DD FUBUKI CLASS, SHINONOME TYPE

DD FUBUKI CLASS, HIBIKI TYPE
