

LAW OFFICE OF JARVIS & BLOW,

Greenville, N. C., Feb. 9th 1892.

My dear Governor

Mrs. Jane is in bad health, is low spirited and she thinks she is growing worse. I have concluded to take her up to Raleigh next week and, as she is so small, she will take her servant with her and go to the Yarbros but we will see much of you. I do not mean to say that she is dangerously ill and I hope to see her improve by the trip but she is a nervous condition that makes her exceedingly low spirited. In fact I think she will soon begin to enjoy the trip.

I have much to talk with you about and one of the questions I wish to discuss is whether or not I had better take the woods. Things are in such a condition in the State that it looks to me like it will be wise in me to hide myself away till the storm is over and it may be that I will then be too old to give myself any more concern about politics.

But all this ~~will~~ will talk over when I see you next week.

With kind regards to all and best wishes for yourself I am

Sincerely yours

Wm. J. Jarvis
