Elias Carr Esq
Dr Sir

We wrote to you on 18 inst, since which our Cotton market has been very dull, We offered to sell yesterday a lot better than an average at 32, but for want of buyers the only real bid we had was 30, it is useless to try to sell on such a market and get any thing like value, We cannot certainly get within 100,000 bales out of this crop, of what was obtained last year, and now Cotton is as low as it was any time during 1866. If trade would spring up at Manchester and Liverpool, it seems to us we would have an active market, Especially as the Stock at Liverpool is not large - it is almost useless to try to form an opinion, but the above are our views, time alone will determine whether we are right. Please credit us with above statement

SATURDAY.—No Liverpool advices.—Our Market quiet at unchanged quotations; sales and resales, 850 bales.
 MONDAY.—Liverpool advices of the 22nd—"No change in the Cotton Market; Middling Uplands, 14 $\frac{5}{8}$ d.; Manchester Market dull and heavy."—Advices of the 23d—"Cotton Market steady; prices unchanged."—Advices of the 24th—"Cotton Market without special activity, but firmer in tone, and prices show an advancing tendency; sales, 8,000 bales; Middling Uplands, 14 $\frac{5}{8}$ d. to 14 $\frac{3}{4}$ d.; Manchester Market flat, and transactions small."—Advices of the 25th—"Cotton Market closed firm, with sales of 8,000 bales; Manchester Market dull and drooping."—Our Market opened stronger with good demand for export and for speculation, with some spinning demand.—Sales and resales, 3,450 bales, at $\frac{1}{2}$ cent per pound advance on Saturday's prices.
 TUESDAY.—Liverpool advices of the 26th—"Cotton Market firm and more active; sales, 10,000 bales, at 14 $\frac{3}{4}$ d for Middling Uplands."—Also advices of the 28th—"Market firm at 14 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. for Middling Uplands; sales, 12,000 bales."—Our Market firm and steady, with fair demand for export at unchanged quotations.—Sales and resales, 2,900 bales.
 WEDNESDAY.—Liverpool advices of the 29th—"Cotton Market steady at unchanged prices; sales, 8,000 bales."—Our Market not active, and prices were heavy. The heavy receipts at the Ports are weighing on the Market.—Sales and resales, 2,750 bales.
 THURSDAY.—Liverpool advices of the 30th—"Cotton Market quiet and unchanged; Middling Uplands are steady at 14 $\frac{7}{8}$ d.; sales, 8,000 bales."—Our Market very quiet with sales and resales of 430 bales with quotations barely maintained.
 FRIDAY.—Liverpool advices of the 31st—"The Cotton Market is flat; Middling Uplands, 14 $\frac{3}{4}$ d.; sales, 6,000 bales; Stock of Cotton in Port is estimated at 592,201 bales, of which 163,500 are American."—Our Market heavy and prices declined fully $\frac{1}{2}$ cent per pound.—Sales and resales of 900 bales.

We republish the following table showing the percentage of the receipts of each month, for the years 1859 and 1860, of the Cotton Crops of those years. We also add to the table the percentage of receipts to February, for each month this season, supposing the crop this year to be 1,900,000 bales. Also the amount that should be received on each of the remaining months, to have the total receipts come up to the figures of 1,900,000:

Per centage of crop as received.

1866-7....	1 $\frac{1}{4}$	9 $\frac{1}{4}$ 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ 12	23 $\frac{1}{2}$	16 $\frac{1}{2}$ 40 $\frac{3}{4}$	17 57 $\frac{3}{8}$	330,000	190,000	120,000	80,000	30,000	20,000	20,000	1,900,000

The receipts this year to the 1st of February, as compared with this table, would show the crop to be about 1,900,000 bales. It is, however, maintained by all parties at the South, that the crop has been shipped forward this year more rapidly than during any previous season, and that the receipts for February must show a decided decline from the January receipts. Although there is yet a great diversity of opinion as to the probable amount of the crop, there has been a decided advance in the popular estimates, and the low estimate of 1,500,000 bales, has been quite generally discarded.

We have to report for the week a quiet and irregular Market, closing heavy, with quotations barely maintained. The continued heavy receipts at the Ports have principally caused the depression in our Market. The dullness of exchange, and the scarcity of steamer freight, together with the unfavorable Liverpool advices, have also assisted to bring down prices. There have been but few sales to spinners, on account of the closing of Long Island Sound by the ice, preventing shipments to Eastern mills. There is less confidence on the part of holders of Cotton, and some sales are reported under quotations. The exports this week are 11,510 bales. The engagements for next week are, to Liverpool, 6,370 bales; to Havre, 1,200 bales; to Bremen, 1,000 bales. Freights by steam, 9-16d. to $\frac{5}{8}$ d.; by sail, 5-16d. to $\frac{3}{8}$ d.

The Cotton Goods Market is quiet, with holders firm.
