A WEEK OLD.

BUT MIGHTY GOOD READING.

The Washington City correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch on last Wednesday sent the following to that paper, which is very interesting to North Carolinians:

CAROLINIANS AT SEA.
To use a slang political phrase, a good many people in North Carolina do not at present know "where they are at," and not until Mr. Cleveland makes the first move in the Western District of the State can it be determined with any degree of certainty just what localities will get the big plums to be distributed in that portion of the State. It is thought the marshalship and the district-attorneyship will first be settled, and then the Collector of Internal Revenue will be appointed, or it may happen that the latter will be the first one of the three offices filled. That is what mixes up the statesmen, the candidates, and the local politicians.

Charles Price is the present Republican District Attorney. It is admitted, even by his political opponents, that he has made an efficient attorney, and he is reckoned a man of good ability and he has been lenient in his prosecutions. This is remarkable from the fact that the district is considered as one of the most difficult of the internal revenue districts to handle. The collections increased 68 per cent under the Harrison Administration. Mr. Price, it is said, did not vote for Harrison in 1888, but he cast his vote for him last year. If the term of the present attorney is held to have commenced from the date of his appointment the four years will expire June 5th, but he was not confirmed until February, 1890, and it is feared the President may not consent to a change until next February. If so it will be a weary wait for the gentlemen who aspire to the successorship, and especially since no charges are being preferred against Mr. Price.

Mr. R. B. Glenn, of Winston, and Mr. Kope Elias, of Franklin, are conceded to be the leading candidates for the attorneyship. Mr. Glenn, after spending most of last week in Washington, has returned home, but Mr. Elias is still here. The latter has spent considerable time in the city, and it is generally remarked that he has made himself exceedingly agreeable to every one he has met. The ability of Mr. Elias is conceded, and he is always smiling, good-natured, and confident. Mr. Glenn's friends do not see how he can be turned down after the magnificent campaign he made for Cleveland and Stevenson, and yet they cannot tell at present just what his chances are.

A SPECIAL FRIEND.
The appointment of Mr. Joseph S. Miller, of West Virginia, to the commissionership of internal revenue appears to be most encouraging to the friends of Mr. Kerr Craige, of Salisbury, N. C., for they regard the West Virginian a special friend of the North Carolinian just mentioned. Mr. Craige was the Collector of Internal Revenue for his district under the former Cleveland Administration, but served only about two years, and this fact, his backers declare, does not exclude him, for under the much-talked-up "ex" rule his case, they say, would prove an exception. Mr. Craige was considered one of the best collectors in the United States, and it is well known in Washington that Mr. Miller has a high opinion of him. It is also conceded that he is popular in Western North Carolina; and the letters received by Senators Ransom and Vance and Representative Henderson in his favor are claimed as evidences of his popularity and that he would be acceptable to the people at large. But there are ever so many other good people in the Western District whose friends are pushing their claims for the collectorship. Some have put their papers regularly on file and others are simply being talked up in a way that means business if it goes any opportunity offers. There is the Hon. M. H. Pinnix, of Lexington. Like Mr. Craige, he has been a loyal Cleveland man, too—not a latter day convert, but a Cleveland man away back in 1854, when the New Yorker was first put on the national political turf. Mr. Pinnix is a strong and able man and is ranked as one of the best and most reliable Democratic workers in Western North Carolina.

Then there is Colonel Paul B. Means, of Concord. Just now he is reported to be somewhat interested in the re-appointment of Miss Mary Dusenberry to the Concord postmastership, but he is also a candidate for Collector. He has served continuously for twenty years on the Democratic committee of the State, and it is related of him that not in all that time has he missed a meeting of the committee. Colonel Means was a devoted follower of the fortunes of Mr. Cleveland at Chicago last year, and at the convention there he was an alternate delegate casting a third of a vote for the present occupant of the White House.

OTHER CANDIDATES.

Catawba, which was formerly the banner Democratic county of North Carolina, has two candidates for the collectorship. Catawba lost the banner at the November election of 1892 because it was headquarters of the Gid-sonite combination, but she rolled up 1,100 majority, any way. The two candidates for the county are gentlemen of fine executive ability, very popular, and they have strong endorsements. They are Mr. J. G. Hall, of Hickory, president of a big wagon company and Mr. W. H. Williams, of Newton. Both are active, working Democrats, and it is said that either one would make a good collector.

Mr. John L. Seales, of Statesville, is a much younger man than any of the others mentioned for the collectorship, but he is what they call in that portion of the old Commonwealth a stalwart Democrat, always working for the party. He is also a fine business man.

Tredell county has still another candidate in the person of Mr. John A. Cooper, president of the First National Bank of Statesville. He is popular and has heavy endorsements. He is a staunch Democrat and has never wavered in the faith, not even when numbers of his family were deferred off into the Republican party.

The name of Theodore F. Klutz, of Salisbury, must not be omitted, for he has frequently been mentioned for the collectorship, is an active Democratic worker and a splendid stump-speaker, much liked at home and abroad; but he announced himself as being a possible candidate only after it had been thought that Mr. Craige had been barred out under the "ex" rule.

HOW IT WOULD OPERATE.

This is all preliminary to a growing conviction here that Mr. H. A. Guder, of Asheville, who is one of the strongest candidates for the collectorship, will be ruled out in the event of the appointment of Mr. Kope Elias as District Attorney. They are from the same end of the district, and one or the other, it is claimed, will be sacrificed on account of geographical location. Senator Vance is strongly supporting Mr. Guder and is opposed to Mr. Elias.

Then, again, in the eastern end of the district—at Winston and elsewhere—there are several candidates who will become active and prominent should Mr. Glenn fail to secure the attorneyship. Messrs. T. H. Sutton and J. C. Buxton are both expected to candidates under that contingency.

Mr. John L. King, of Greensboro, president pro tempore of the State Senate, is also mentioned now in connection with the collectorship. All the gentlemen mentioned are recognized as Democrats of excellent standing, character, and ability, and they are all popular in their section of the State.

One fact has been established thoroughly since the contest for the North Carolina officers commenced, and that is if Mr. Kope Elias does not succeed in his efforts to become the District Attorney he has at least puzzled the senators, representatives, politicians, and people generally.

Mr. Price, the present Republican attorney for the district, has not yet given the slightest intimation of any intention on his part of resigning the office, but the talk is that a Republican of his ability and character ought to be willing to tender his resignation to the President at an early day just for the fun of finding out speedily who will be his Democratic successor.

THE EASTERN DISTRICT.

It is plain sailing in the Eastern District of North Carolina, and, as announced some time ago in the Dispatch correspondence, the slate in that district has practically been agreed upon, and the only thing they are waiting for is for Mr. Cleveland to give the order. The slate is: District Attorney, Mr. C. B. Aycock, of Goldsboro. Collector of Internal Revenue, Hon. F. M. Simmons, of Newbern, ex-member of Congress and chairman of the State Democratic Committee. Marshal, Mr. O. J. Carroll, of Clinton. The latter is the special candidate of the commercial travellers, and his selection will be a compliment to that intelligent and influential class of citizens. Before Mr. Simmons gave his consent to the use of his name there were about twenty-five candidates for the collectorship in the Eastern District.

"ONLY ONE."
Only forty-one foreign missions are at the disposal of the President and there are forty-four States in the Union. That probably accounts for the unwillingness of Mr. Cleveland to give any more missions to North Carolina, and in all likelihood one will be the limit for Virginia also. Strenuous efforts are being made, however, to get a second mission credited to North Carolina, and it is for a colored man, Rev. Ezekiel

Smyth, who was a long time ago Minister to Liberia, and wants to go back there. He is said to have the backing of the Afro-American Society, and at one time they were making a considerable impression on the President. It turns out, though, that in the last campaign the Rev. Smyth was a third-party man, and this fact is believed to have ruined whatever chances he may have had.

A CONSULSHIP.

Representative Henderson and Senator Ransom are active in their efforts to secure a good consuls for Major William M. Robbins, of North Carolina, and will not relax until he is provided for. The President has practically promised the ex-Congressman a place in the service, but has not designated the place. It is said that Major Robbins would like either Montreal or Havana. Other North Carolinians, who are being vigorously pressed by their friends for consular positions, are Mr. Thomas R. Jernigan, of Raleigh, formerly Consul at Nagasaki, Japan; Mr. W. R. Henry; Mr. Hale, of Fayetteville, former Consul at Manchester; Mr. Pendleton King, of Guilford county, former secretary of the American Legation at Constantinople, and Mr. J. G. Martin, of Asheville, who would like to be appointed Consul at Kanagawa, Japan. It will readily be conceded that all of these gentlemen cannot be appointed. It is more patronage of the kind than can reasonably be awarded North Carolina.

RIVALRY.

There is so much rivalry over the postmastership at Thomasville, N. C., that the appointment has been delayed. The time of the Republican incumbent expired on the 9th of April. The office is now held by Miss Mary Cecil. Representative Henderson is anxious for the Democratic patrons to come to an agreement, as it would expedite matters very much. Mr. Henderson has had changes made in nearly all of the fourth-class offices in his district where changes are to be made. There are 332 offices of this class in the district, but only about 100 changes were desired, as Democrats and unobjectionable people were serving.

PIPES TENNYSON SMOKED.

The Common Sense of Irish Clay Suits the Great Post Best.

The love that the late Lord Tennyson bore for the gentle weed is now almost proverbial. Like many other great thinkers and writers of this and previous ages, the pipe was his boon companion. An invitation from the poet to smoke with him in his sanctum was seal of a bond of friendship. On these occasions he was seen at his best. He unbuttoned, and even told stories against himself. Yet sometimes he remained in a meditative mood, scarcely uttering a word. It is the old story of the night that Carlyle and Tennyson once spent together. They both sat over the fire in Carlyle's house at Chesham, with their pipes, but never said a word until the poet rose to go, when Carlyle said: "Man, Alfred, we have had a grand night; come back again soon."

The Irish clay pipe was Tennyson's favorite. The more expensive ones he used were gifts, and one used because they were gifts. The heavy bowl and large bowl (for Lord Tennyson always favored ample proportions in this particular) are the only distinguished features of his clay pipes. There was usually a large basket of these clay pipes, numbering at times as many as two hundred, lying on the study floor ready for use. When the bard had once used a pipe it was placed on the fender near the fire for another burning time. There was, in fact, delightful untidiness about the room, for pipes had been laid down carelessly almost everywhere, the hard oak cabinet by the fireplace being apparently only seldom used.

The inveterate smoker used generally dry birdseye, though at times he indulged in something very much stronger. He smoked the birdseye, without the moisture because as he told his friends, Sir Walter Raleigh thus recommended it.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Light-house.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Tresscott are keepers of the Gov. Light-house at Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with measles, followed with a dreadful cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere "handful of bones." Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at John L. Wooten's.

Miss Annie Crawford, who lives near Statesville, fell into the fire some days ago and was severely burned about the head and chest. She was alone in the house at the time and was found in the position indicated some time afterward. She has no recollection of the occurrence but it is supposed that she fainted.—Statesville Landmark.

JIM.

No one at the station knew where Jim came from. He appeared one day at the gloomy little mining camp and took his place among the other miners. The miners had not known him long before they began to realize that he was not a safe man to arouse. "Big Jack," the bully of the camp, called him a "tender-foot" one day, and before the big fellow had time to think, he was on his back with Jim holding him down, and the bully knew by the dangerous glitter of those flashing eyes above him that it was best for him to apologize.

From that time no one molested Jim. He drank more liquor and swore more terrible oaths than any man at the station, and yet there was something beneath it all that in the eyes of those rough fellows marked him as a gentleman. Little by little Jim won the confidence of that lawless crowd, but no one ever won his confidence.

One day, about two years after Jim's arrival at the station, a professional gambler came to the town. Gamblers were no novelty in any of the mining towns, so this new comer would have created no comment had he not brought with him a woman, his wife, he said. Women were seldom seen at the station, at least, women of this type. She was a lady, that was evident. She was tall and slender and had once been beautiful, too, if the boys were any judge of beauty; but now she was poorly clothed, was very pale, and always had a kind of frightened look when her husband was near.

The boys noticed that about the time the gambler and his wife came to the station Jim began to act very strangely. He did not join them in their evening carousals, but kept more by himself nights and worked hard days. One night when the boys were all playing cards, Jim came in. He did not take a hand in the game, but sat back in the shadow looking on. The gambler was losing, and losing fast, too. Strive as he might the luck was against him. Suddenly the gambler's wife entered the room. She walked toward her husband and said something to him. The brute was maddened by his losses, and with an oath he pushed her aside. In an instant Jim sprang forward shouting, "What strike her, you brute!" There was a sharp click, a report, and the gambler lay on the floor.

There was nothing to be done. It was a clear case of murder, and yet there was not a jury in the State that would not have acquitted Jim if he had only made any defence. He refused to say a word for himself, and so of course the court had to do its duty. The sheriff tried to have him escape, but he would not do it. The boys tried to make him save himself, but he only smiled sadly and shook his head.

The story of the case was told in the newspapers, and was copied all over the country. It was not long before the sheriff received a strange letter from a little town in Massachusetts. It was from an old lady, and this was the letter: "MY DEAR MR. SHERIFF: I have seen in the papers an account of a murder committed in your town. I want to ask you about the man that did it. I can't think my suspicion is true, for that would be too awful. But oh, Mr. Sheriff, if you could let me see the man who was to be hanged for murder. Then she left the cell to seek further for her James.

He was alone again and the haggard look in his face deepened. He smiled sadly as he looked at the place on his arm that the stove had burned, then he reverently kissed the hand that her hand had touched.

"She didn't want her son to be hanged," he muttered. He took out his pocket-knife; the sheriff had not taken any of his property away from him.

"She is sure I'm not her Jimmie; she thinks she will find him sometime. She is right; her boy will never be hanged." There was a low, gurgling sound. Jim lay back on the bed. Only the cell walls were near to him as he uttered a single word, "Mother."—Frank D. Blodgett, in the Amherst Monthly.

ABOUT THE TOAD.

He is as Cunning and Active as a Cat.

A Close Observer Relates the Result of His Observations—Not a Lazy, Slow-Going Animal as Many Suppose.

Did you ever see a toad catch and eat his supper? That has been my good fortune, and it was a revelation. I was setting one evening in my back yard contentedly smoking and looking with some pride at a small garden patch where I had spent many hours on various vines and plants that were now rewarding me with a vigorous growth. That garden was the home or resort of many toads, and we had become well acquainted with each other, although I thought them rather a stupid lot. It was comical, however, when I accidentally disturbed one among the leaves or hauled him out of the soft earth, where he was resting, to see the little fellow puff himself out to the point of bursting, and roll up the whites of his eyes at me with an expression of sleepy surprise.

I thought they soon became accustomed to my presence, and would only take one or two hops from under my feet and then watch me with stupid gravity. I had about finished my pipe when I observed one of my toads coming toward me along the path that led to the garden. He was as usual quite deliberative in his movements. A hop, a long wait, and then another hop. As he came near my seat he eyed me solemnly for awhile, then hopped between my feet, and disappeared under the chair. On turning around a few minutes later I saw him in the front of the house. Without any object I rose and strolled after him. The sun had disappeared but it was light enough to see even a small object at quite a distance. The toad paid no attention to me as I came up with him.

Suddenly he made a leap toward the edge of the path and vanished from sight. I knew he had not reached the grass border, and I was puzzled at his strange disappearance. I took a step forward and stopped over the spot where he had landed. The mystery was solved, although I could scarce believe what I plainly saw. The toad was there, but the fat, chunky body was literally puffed to the walk and was scarcely discernible from it. It looked as if he might have been run over by a cart wheel, so perfectly flattened was the body.

As I looked there was a lightning change. Like a flash my toad threw himself at the grass border—I thought I saw a darting tongue—and then he leisurely hopped back to the walk the same rotund, stupid-looking fellow I knew so well. I opened my eyes very wide and followed him closely. Again and again was that marvellous flattening process repeated, as he caught sight of objects to me utterly invisible; again and again he launched himself like an arrow into the air or at a tuft of grass, and I do not believe that he once missed his prey. In this manner we traversed the whole length of the walk, when the toad turned and retraced his steps—rather, hops.

It was now quite dark and I bade him good-night. I had found out my friend of the garden. Instead of being a loggy, slow-moving animal, he was as cunning as a cat and twice as active. I am afraid he is something of a hypocrite in his daily life, but who is not more or less? Every summer my garden is filled with toads. I treat them with profound respect.

GREAT AND SMALL.

A sparrow swinging on a branch
Once caught a passing fly
"Oh, let me live!" the insect prayed
With trembling, piteous cry
"You are the sparrow," you must fall,
For I am great and you are small."
The bird had scarce begun his feast
Before a hawk came by
"Before a hawk come," "Pray let me live,"
Was the poor sparrow's cry
"You are the sparrow," you must fall,
For I am great and you are small."
An eagle saw the rove and swooped
Upon him from on high
"Pray let me live; why should you kill
So small a bird as I?"
"Oh," said the eagle, "you must fall,

A SAMOAN TEA.

A woman recently home from Samoa tells of tea in that South Sea island. The Samoan tea is quite like any other tea so far as it is an informal festivity to promote sociability over a sip of something. The peculiar cordial brewed by the native women is usually the "something" offered, drunk out of a cocoa shell beautifully polished. At the King's picnics, fetes of which the monarch is very fond, it is imperative to drain your drinking vessel, and, as the cordial is very exhilarating, this, in the case of weak-minded visiting women, is sometimes disastrous. "I went to a tea while there," said the woman, in addition, "which Robert Louis Stevenson gave. He is thoroughly Samoanized, and we all sat on the mats in the piazzas, he cross-legged exactly like the natives. When I returned the hospitality I provided bamboo seats and little tables, but Mr. Stevenson would have none of them, choosing a mat instead."

HOUSE AND HOME.

Where Does Gorging Begin and Abstinence End?

No Clear-Cut Line of Demarcation in the Minds of Many—To Keep the Hands Soft—About Baby's Airing.

For many years doctors and hygienists have had much to say on the subject of no food just before bedtime. A number of intelligent persons have experimented in this line, and have satisfied themselves and their immediate associates that there is a good deal of nonsense in this kind of talk. All brain-workers especially find that if they go to bed in any degree hungry it often means a sleepless night and a weary dragged-out feeling next morning; fortunate indeed are they if they escape a headache.

There is in the minds of many persons no clear-cut line of demarcation between gorging and abstinence. If these people cannot eat a hearty meal, indulging in salads and heavy foods, they seem to think that they must take nothing at all, and indeed they are better if they do not take such hearty food, but this by no means indicates that they must go to bed hungry. One of the best evening dishes is wafters made of sifted graham flour and a ripe apple. Pare and slice the apple and eat the two together, being careful that they are thoroughly masticated.

There are many hygienists who claim and possibly with some show of reason, that the hull of the grain that is ground in with full graham flour is not specially digestible. This being the case, an ordinary household sieve will clear the flour of the undesirable material. A well-beaten egg, a cup of sweet milk, a pinch of salt, a spoonful of baking powder and enough of this sifted flour to make a batter about as thick as that used for layer cake are put into shallow pans—jelly-cake pans are good—and baked in a very hot oven. It is not sufficient that the oven be merely at ordinary heat, but it must be at high temperature as possible without burning, and the baking must begin at once.

The result of this, if properly managed, will be a crisp, sweet and delicious wafer, that is, without question, one of the most nutritious and easily assimilated of all foods. It is a debatable point whether an ordinary meal of miscellaneous materials is not better than none at all. The philosophy of this is that the active brain calls the blood to the head in such quantities that sleep is out of the question. The digestive powers call this blood from the brain, and this relaxes the tension on the mental powers. In the animal kingdom, and among infants, the impulse is to sleep after eating.

Spring Wraps.

The first wraps for early Spring are already shown. They present no striking changes, except in length. They are considerably shorter than the wraps worn last season, twenty-eight inches being the average length. The huge sleeves of the present fashions make the cape a very convenient garment; and while many jackets are showing for Spring with large sleeves to accommodate the huge dress sleeves, it is anticipated that capes will continue to be popular. The most successful shape is the round military cape, which is cut very full and is usually composed of a succession of two or three capes, one above the other, with a turnover collar at the throat. These capes are sometimes made of different shades of cloth, or they may be trimmed with successive rows of broad, loose, close together, and shading from a dark tone of color to a neutral tint. The chief characteristic of the spring capes is their excessive fullness. They measure as much as four and a half yards around the bottom, and are arranged to hang in full, irregular, fluted effect around the shoulders to match the flare of the stylish umbrella skirt, which in many cases matches the cape in material.

Good Family Medicines

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills, the very best family medicines, and are never without them. I have always been a Delicate Woman and began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla three years ago for that reason.

Act Like a Charm

I take pleasure in recommending these medicines to all my friends, for I believe if people would only keep Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills at home, all sickness and suffering would be prevented.

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently, on the liver and bowels.

Notice to Creditors.

The undersigned having duly qualified as administrator of W. H. Peaden, deceased, notice is hereby given to all persons indebted to the estate to make immediate payment, and all persons having claims against the estate must present the same for payment on or before the 26th day of April, 1893, or this notice will be placed in bar of recovery.

Land Sale.

By virtue of a decree of Pitt Superior Court made at March term, 1892, in the case of Turner Smith and wife vs. Samuel Cory, the undersigned Commissioner will sell, for cash, before the Court House door, in Greenville, on Monday, the 26th day of April, 1893, the following described piece or parcel of land, situated in the county of Pitt, and in Chisolm township, adjoining the lands of Josephus Gaskin, Henry McLawhorn, Samuel Cory and others, containing 25 acres, more or less, being the place on which said Turner Smith and wife lived in 1885. This April 20th, 1893.

Speaking of Groceries, I have fresh arrivals of such things as every house-keeper needs. Examine what I have and you will be sure to buy.

TAX SALE.

Pursuant to provisions of chapter 218 of the laws of 1891, I shall, beginning Monday, May 1st, 1893, at 11 o'clock A. M. in front of the Court House door, in Greenville, sell the below described land and town lots for taxes due for the year 1892 and unpaid thereon, and cost for advertising the same.

A HANDSOME MEMORIAL.

Wilmington Star.

A handsome memorial of the first settlement of North Carolina by an English colony, in 1657, has been on exhibition at the Orton the past two days. It is a desk, made of white holly grown on Roanoke Island, beautifully polished and elaborately and handsomely engraved. It was made at the Atlantic Coast Lumber shops in this city, free of charge by Mr. E. V. McKenzie, pattern maker, and the fine polish put on its face was the work of Messrs. Parker and Craig, employes in the shops. The desk was designed by Mr. Silas McBea, of Swansea, Tenn., and the carving designed and executed by Miss Kate Cheshire, of Tarboro. The carving is highly artistic and has elicited praise from the many visitors who have had the pleasure of seeing it. It commemorates the birth of Virginia Dare, the first child born on this continent, of English parents, members of Sir Walter Raleigh's hapless colony whose fate is shrouded in mystery.

Mrs. George W. Kidder and Mrs. R. R. Cothen, who will represent North Carolina in the Colonial department of the World's Fair at Chicago, had the desk made after visiting Roanoke Island and selecting the wood.

The memorial cost about $400. It will be sent to Chicago for exhibition in the woman's building at the Columbian Exposition and after the fair is closed it will be returned and placed in the State exhibit at Raleigh.

COLLEGE CITY.

BEAUTIFUL BUILDING LOTS.

Desirable Location for Home Seekers.

On the south-western border of Greenville and lying just beyond the College grounds is a beautiful tract of land that is about to be placed upon the market for residence lots. This tract of land, containing 132 acres, is what was known as the Marcellus Moore farm until it came in possession of the Higgs Brothers in January, 1892. These enterprising young men have decided to lay this property off in lots and offer them for sale. Because of its nearness to the College they have given their property the name of College City.

Just opposite and running on a line with the last street through the property laid off by the Greenville Land & Improvement Company, a street 50 feet wide and 120 yards long has been opened through this new property. Other streets are to be opened and the lots formed in regular blocks.

It is well-known that in the extension and building up of towns the tendency is more or less toward or around the depot, and when it is considered that this College City property lies only about a quarter of a mile from the depot it becomes all the more desirable and valuable.

As a suitable place for residence it is not to be surpassed. It is the highest elevation anywhere around Greenville and is far above the main body of the town. Excellent water can be obtained on any part of the property, a sulphur vein running all through it.

The property is only a few minutes walk from the Court House and business portion of the town and being just outside of the corporate limits is free from town taxes. All these things are worthy the consideration of home seekers.

Persons wishing to purchase any of these lots for immediate improvement can get them at a very low figure. The first of the lots will be disposed of at less than their value, and thus an opportunity is afforded to get a home at very small cost.

About fifty lots will be sold soon at public auction, notice of which will be given later. Those desiring to secure a lot at private sale can do so.

The future of Greenville and the progress just ahead of it, makes an investment here absolutely safe, to say nothing of the desirability as a place in which to live. A lot in College City will give convenient location, high elevation, pure air and sulphur water, things that cannot be overestimated in selecting a site for a home.

Any further information about this desirable property can be had from Higgs Bros., Greenville, N. C.

It does not look like Greenville will have a base ball club this season.

Truck shipments are beginning to make work for the transportation lines.

April has been giving us some howling winds. It beat March in this respect.

Next Monday is the first day of May and then the picnic season fairly opens.

Many farmers have finished planting cotton and setting out tobacco has commenced.

Better not take off your thick clothing even yet. There will be some more cool weather.

Mr. M. R. Lang brought the REFLECTOR a flat asparagus sprig Monday, that was two inches wide.

Third ward convention will be held in the Mayor's office Friday night. Second ward meets in the Court House.

If the price of cotton is not low enough to suit the farmer let him put in a big crop and he will succeed in getting it lower.

Go to your ward meeting Friday night. The work done there is more important than at the election, for a nomination now means an election.

If the farmers watch over our peanut market reports they will see which kind bring the best prices and get a pointer there from which kind they should plant.

If every street in town was shaded as well as Evans street from Five Points to Forbesside bridge we would have some beautiful and delightful thoroughfares.

Strange that the company holding insurance on the tobacco warehouses here would not permit skating in them when warehouses all over the State are used as skating rinks.

A very handsome Episcopal church at Snow Hill was dedicated on Sunday morning. Rev. Alban Graves, Rector at this place, was present and took part in the exercises.

Remember in reading the REFLECTOR that you will find local matter in the tobacco department on fourth page, as well as in the regular local columns on third page.

If Miss Spring wants to let old man Winter hold her in his lap all summer his nose of our business. But it looks like the old chap has got a right good lease on her.

The visitors and delegates to Conference at Washington returned home Monday. The REFLECTOR is indebted to Mr. D. D. Haskett for the interesting report we publish.

The State editors meet in Newbern this morning and look for a pleasant time during their convention. The REFLECTOR household can't go down this time but we are with the boys in spirit.

Round trip tickets from Greenville to Nashville, Tenn., on account of the Southern Baptist Convention which meets in that city May 12th, will be sold at $24. The tickets are good to return until May 25th.

Newbern is giving the editors a diversity of entertainment this week, with with bellows surroundings thrown in by the way of relish. No doubt the editors will take home lasting impressions of the products of the community.

Three parties from Georgia who wanted to take the Keeley treatment mistook Greenville for Greensboro and came here on the train a few nights ago. The Richmond Dispatch reverses this mistake and locates the REFLECTOR at Greensboro.

The James City Affair.

The trouble between the negroes of James City and Mr. J. A. Bryan, of Newbern, over the possession of the James City property, reached its crisis last week. The efforts of the Sheriff of Craven county and his posse to eject the negroes proved of no effect, and the local authorities being unable to execute the laws, the State was called upon for aid. Gov. Carr was in Washington City, but was telegraphed as to the situation and returned home at once to take steps in the matter. Orders were issued that the First Regiment of the State Guard be sent to Newbern and Saturday night Capt. J. T. Smith received telegraphic orders from Col. J. E. Wood, commander of the First Regiment, to have his company, the Pitt County Rifles, armed and ready to move at a moment's notice. The sounding of the assembly roll called to the army the members who live in town and messengers were sent out to notify those who live in the country. A later telegram from Adjutant General Cameron ordered Capt. Smith to report with his company at Kinston Monday afternoon. A guard was detailed at the army for the night and the company was disbanded until 9 o'clock Sunday morning when they were to meet for further orders. Sunday morning another telegram was received ordering Capt. Smith to report at Goldsboro Monday afternoon in compliance with these orders. The Rifles took the train Monday for Goldsboro. The muster of the company was as follows:

Captain—J. T. Smith.

Lieutenants—B. F. Sugg and J. A. Teel.

Sergeants—J. C. Albritton, J. R. Cory R. W. Ward, W. S. Briley and W. R. Smith.

Corporals—O. E. Warren, E. T. Forbes and J. F. Evans.

Privates—O. L. Joyner, J. S. Jenkins H. C. Hooker, H. M. Snuggs, W. E. Jolly, H. M. Rogers, A. W. Outerbridge, R. B. Jarvis, Paul Hester, J. A. Dudley, L. N. Briley, R. S. Evans, W. J. Hembly, S. M. Daniel, S. W. Andrews C. B. Whitehead, A. D. Johnston, J. R. Nichols, D. G. Moore, J. E. Fleming, S. G. Worthington, S. P. Craft, J. L. Lawson, J. J. Jenkins, R. J. Harrington, A. P. Murray, J. B. McGowan, S. J. Nobles.

Musicians—S. T. Hooker.

A large number of our people were at the depot to see the boys off. A few of the boys were mighty serious looks over the prospect of "going to war," but most of them departed in high spirits.

Private Claude Joyner was at school at Bethel and knew nothing of the Rifles being ordered off, but seeing the company pass Bethel and learning the trouble he put out on foot for Greenville, got his uniform and gun and took the afternoon freight train for Kinston to meet the boys there if possible. Claude is a plucky soldier.

The first regiment met at Goldsboro and accompanied by Gov. Carr seven car loads of them left in the afternoon for Newbern, arriving at the latter place at 6:45. Advice received at the REFLECTOR office Monday night were to the effect that the negroes were willing to give in, but insisted that the elections should be made by proper authorities. All was quiet and no further trouble apprehended, this being taken as final settlement of the matter.

Advices yesterday showed that all was quiet and the trouble thought to be at an end.

District Conference.

The Washington District Conference convened in the town of Washington April 20th at 9 A. M., Bishop W. W. Duncan presiding. The charges were all represented but three, one on account of sickness of pastor and the two others on account of storms prevailing on the coast. All the reports were very favorable, showing increased religious interest in the whole district. Greenville was represented by the pastor, Rev. G. F. Smith, and Gov. Jarvis and D. D. Haskett; and Greenville Circuit by Rev. R. L. Warlick, J. Tucker and T. H. Tyson.

The Conference was well attended and highly entertained. The Bishop preached several times to the satisfaction of all. Several ministers from other districts were in attendance and three presidents of colleges.

T. J. Jarvis, J. M. Benson and A. W. Thomas were elected delegates to the Annual Conference, and J. W. Evans and J. M. Bateman alternates.

A Sunday School mass meeting was addressed by Gov. Jarvis and Bishop Duncan, both making able addresses.

The next District Conference will be held at Fairfield, Hyde county.

Ward Meetings.

The Democratic voters of the Third Ward of the town of Greenville are requested to meet at the Mayor's office, on Friday April 28th, 1893, at 8 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of nominating candidates for Councilmen to be voted for at an election to be held on the first Monday in May next.

ALEX. L. BLOW, Com. for 3rd Ward.

A convention of the Democratic voters in the Second Ward of Greenville will be held on Friday, April 28th, 1893, at 8 o'clock P. M., at the Court House, to nominate two Democratic candidates for Councilmen in said Ward, to be voted for at the town election to be held on the first Monday in May next.

G. B. KING, Com. for 2nd Ward.

Fire at Kinston.

Kinston had quite a destructive fire last Friday afternoon, destroying a colored church and ten other buildings. The fire was caused by sparks from a lumber mill. The loss is estimated at $15,000, about one-third of which is covered by insurance. Kinston, like Greenville, has no fire department, and when the fire started it just had to burn itself out and stop.

Every reader should look carefully at Young & Priddy's advertisement to-day. The cold, stubborn facts are there, and should not be overlooked. Opportunities that are not taken advantage of are as profitless as no opportunity at all. Catch the point and make ready to strike while the iron is hot.

The "Independent Order of Dog Killers" felt slighted that they were not called upon to go along with the military to Newbern. But Capt. Moore has ordered Lieut. Rawls and Sgt. Higgs to have all their trick bats rubbed up and put in good shooting order in case recruits are needed.

H. B. Randolph, Brunswick, Ga., writes: "I was under the care of nine different doctors, but not one did me the good that Botanic Blood Balm has done me."
