NORTH CAROLINA

AT THE WORLD'S FAIR, CHICAGO, ILL.

Official Report of the Executive Committee.

By resolution and instruction of the Executive Committee of the Board of World's Fair Managers, the following members visited Chicago for the purpose of examining the North Carolina exhibits: Dr. W. R. Capeheart, Avoca, Bertie Co.; J. B. Coffield, Everett, Martin Co.; J. F. Payne, Alma, Robeson Co., and H. E. Fries, Salem, Forsyth Co. Col. W. F. Green, of Franklin, Franklin Co., and Mr. W. E. Stevens, Clinton, Sampson Co., were detained on account of sickness in their respective families.

North Carolina Exhibit in the Agricultural Building, World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, 1893.

The committee arrived in the city on Saturday evening, July 8th, and on Monday, 10th instant, proceeded to the Fair grounds for purpose of examining the various exhibits which were formally tendered by Mr. P. M. Wilson, Executive Commissioner, and Mr. T. K. Bruner, Commissioner of Exhibits. The committee constantly bore in mind the fact that North Carolina had a very small appropriation with which to exhibit the resources of our State. All details of the finances and various accounts representing the amounts used in making the exhibits have been examined to date and found correct, and will be hereto attached as a part of this report when the exhibits are returned to North Carolina.

We now more fully than ever realize the wisdom of the decision made by the gentlemen in charge of the North Carolina exhibit relative to the State building. Our committee appreciates the immense work done by the following North Carolina ladies in their efforts to erect for the State a separate building, namely: Mrs. R. R. Cotten, of Falkland, Pitt County; Mrs. Charles Price, of Salisbury, Rowan County and Mrs. George W. Kidder, of Wilmington, New Hanover County; but we think the money which the board would have spent toward a building has been more judiciously expended in the various exhibits as we find them. We have examined the space allotted to North Carolina for the State

While the other States and nations have not completed their exhibits, we find the State's exhibits completed and located in the following buildings; Agriculture, Forestry, Mines and Mining and Horticulture.

AGRICULTURE

The space allotted in the agricultural exhibit is situated on the main aisle, lake front. The size of the space allotted is, 1,600 square feet, surrounded by a handsome copper railing. Our nearest neighbors are New York, West Virginia and France. We find the agricultural products of our State artistically arranged, representing the various crops as they are found from the seaboard to the mountains. They comprise staple agricultural products, as cotton, corn, tobacco, rice, peanuts, wheat, oats, peas, beans, etc.

The grains are arranged and exhibited under glass, carefully labeled, representing the grower, condition of climate and soil, yield per acre, value of product, etc. We have also in this exhibit a quantity of fine tobacco, representing such as is grown in the Golden Belt of North Carolina. The cotton seems to attract a great deal of attention; the canned fruits are well arranged, carefully preserved in glass jars; the various grains and grasses are artistically shown, as will be seen by reference to the cut which is hereto attached. We were particularly struck with the evident care and thought displayed in making the best possible effect with the means in hand. While New York has a most extensive exhibit, it is confined largely to one or two agricultural products, in which they exceed us in number as to the specimens, but do not exceed us as to variety or quality. After a careful examination of many other exhibits in the Agricultural Building, we were greatly impressed with the wisdom of the management in bringing out to the fullest extent the variety and value of our agricultural products. We find the exhibit in the direct charge of Mr. J. A. Gill.

We also find a great many of the articles represented in the agricultural exhibit have been collected and carefully arranged by Dr. H. B. Battie. In addition to the various agricultural products referred to which have been collected by him, he makes also an attractive exhibit of various fertilizers and the different soils found in our State. In addition to the articles mentioned are two stands of photographs carefully prepared and labeled under the direction of Professor Holmes, representing some of the farms of our most successful farmers and many other views giving a clear idea of the beautiful and attractive scenery of our State.

FORESTRY.

The display in the forestry exhibit is situated on main aisle, lake front, occupying the form of an "L" about 1,800 square feet. We find it under the direct charge of Mr. Frank Green. The space is surrounded by a yellow pine railing and handsomely finished newel posts donated by Foggie Bros., of Salem. In this exhibit we are particularly struck with the practical illustrations represented in the various cases, eight in number. We find in each case cross-sections of trees, with enlarged photographs (about 2 x 3 feet) representing the trees themselves, and a view of the forest from which they were taken, including all useful varieties from the seaboard to the mountains, 130 specimens. A great deal of very valuable information can be obtained from each specimen, inasmuch as there are attached to each the following facts: Botanical and common name of tree, its height and dimensions, locality, watershed, altitude, soil, frequency, uses, character of forest, neighboring trees, and a map showing the parts of State where varieties are found in greatest abundance. The New York exhibit, which is near, is an extremely interesting one, and the specimens from a scientific point of view are no doubt valuable; but our own exhibit, in dealing commercially with the forest growth of North Carolina, has made such an exhibition of our timber lands that any one going through the Forestry Building cannot but be deeply impressed with the untold timber wealth remaining in our State. We find in addition a large number of beautifully finished specimens of various woods loaned by the Richmond & Danville Railroad Company from Western North Carolina; and while the California exhibit has a number of similar finished specimens, our own, we believe, surpasses them, because they apparently represent more arranged numerous nets and fishing traps procured through the kindness of Doctor Capehart. We find in this exhibit a large number of beautifully mounted specimens of fish and aquatic birds, principally such as are of commercial value, arranged in eight glass cases carefully labeled. We find also various interesting implements used on our coast in connection with the fish and oyster industries, and numerous photographs of fisheries; in addition to the above a great deal of valuable information as to the value of the fishing industries in Eastern North Carolina. A very striking feature of this exhibit is the hut which is used by the fishermen on the coast. Near this hut are Palmetto trees, and at their base hanging moss and numerous oyster, clam, and other shells. Another attractive feature is the diamond back terrapin, representing the fact that they can be successfully and profitably grown on our eastern coast. Several other exhibits are much more elaborately and expensively arranged, as Norway, Canada, and Japan, and in some of them we were greatly impressed with the number of canned goods, a feature which was omitted in our own because of the inability of the management to secure the exhibit from the manufacturers of canned goods in our State. We hope yet to see the deficiency remedied.

Our conclusion is, we surpass all state exhibits, and among all the exhibits in the building we surpass all in the variety and arrangement of our display, except, possibly, Japan, Canada, and Norway.

HORTICULTURE

The smallest of all the exhibits is found in the Horticultural Building, and consists of a case of native wines, thirty varieties, procured by the management nearly the existing conditions as are found from a commercial standpoint. A table containing over 500 varieties of medicinal herbs and plants was secured through the kindness of Messrs. Wallace Bros., Statesville, and a collective exhibit of the spruce of pine-oil as made by the Spiriline Chemical Company, Wilmington. In this connection the management was very ably aided by the following gentlemen: Mr. Gifford Pinchot, Biltmore, N. C., and Mr. W. W. Ashe, of Raleigh, N. C. Our exhibit is of such a character that it will, for years to come, represent in our State Museum, as it does here, a most useful commercial exhibit of forest growth. We believe that our State will receive the prize for the exhibit in the Forestry Division.

We can not leave the Forestry Building without reference to the display which was made by Mr. Vanderbilt for his forestry estate at Biltmore. We find in this exhibit maps representing his entire property - numerous photographs representing the forest as he finds it, and many other illustrations indicating the probable future usefulness and value of his estate. This exhibit in itself far surpasses many others, and should interest lumbermen from the North and Northwest in our forests.

FISH AND FISHERIES.

This exhibit is in charge of Mr. H. H. Brimley, an accomplished naturalist. The space of 1,800 square feet floor space is located on main aisle, entrance to the colonnade leading to the United States Government Aquarium, adjoining exhibits of Minnesota, Rhode Island, Washington, Holland, and Japan. The space is surrounded by brass anchors connected by plush ropes, while overhead and on the tables are

MINES AND MINING.

The exhibit in mines and mining is of the following size and location: Sixteen hundred feet on main front of Mining Building, next to Pennsylvania, Virginia, and New York. The space is surrounded by a wooden colonnade, with the name of North Carolina in black, representing iron; white, representing silver; gilt, representing gold; yellow, representing copper. We find it in charge of Mr. T. K. Bruner, who deserves special mention for his labors in behalf of this exhibit, as does also Professor Holmes and H. B. C. Nitze. The effect, as seen by reference to the cut, is extremely pleasing, and the variety of minerals displayed is more numerous than those found in any other State. It consists of about fifteen hundred specimens of ore, minerals, and gems, the arrangement showing the geological and geographical distribution of the material throughout the State. Beginning with gold ores, the free milling ores, then the various sulphurets and other refractory ores followed, merging into silver, copper, lead, and zinc. Then the iron ores were treated in the same way, leading to economic minerals, such as mica, corundum, garnet, kaolin, etc.

The gems comprise smoky and citrine topaz and other quartz custodian of the colonial exhibits for all the States after August 6th and Mrs. Price is arranging a most creditable room illustrating the homespun products of women. Mrs. Cotten deserves great praise for her energetic work in behalf of the memory of Virginia Dare. At the request of this committee Mr. Wilson, as Executive Commissioner, who is in charge of the finances, will prepare and add to this report a copy of the various monthly reports which he has made from time to time concerning the progress of the work in connection with the exhibits; he will also prepare and attach, as a part of this report, a carefully itemized statement of various expenditures.

Mr. Bruner, the Commissioner of Exhibits, at the request of this committee, will prepare and add to this report excerpts from the reports made by him to the World's Executive Fair Committee of the board of Agriculture, together with an itemized statement of the expenditures made under the direction of that Committee.

A very erroneous opinion has been created in our State relative to the expense incident to the Fair. The fifty cents admission to the grounds gives free admission to all buildings, except such as are places of amusement. It is our belief that much good will result to North Carolina from the fact that she was the first of the Southern States to decide upon the exhibit here, and certainly from the fact that she has to a very remarkable degree our exhibits illustrate the fact that our management has had in mind all the while the practical results that would accrue to North Carolina. While the cases are handsome, they are not more so than they should be in order to demand the attention they deserve alongside of neighboring exhibits. They are so constructed that they will be removed from Chicago and placed permanently in our museum at Raleigh, and we believe from that point alone they will be worth more to North Carolina in gems, rarely tinted garnets, olivine, amethyst; the hiddenite, and a number of corundum gems, such as ruby, sapphire, oriental emerald, topaz, etc; fifty specimens of granite, marble, and sandstone suitable for building and monumental purposes; also a large number of photographs 15 x 21 inches, prepared by Professor Holmes. Near our own exhibit is that of Pennsylvania, a very expensive and handsome exhibit, confined almost exclusively to coal and the various products of the coal-mines.

We feel indebted to the following parties for their kindness in lending us a portion of their individual exhibits: W. S. Primrose, collection, Raleigh; Dr. H. S. Lucas, collection, Cullasagee; Prof. J. A. D. Stephenson, collection, Statesville; A. M. Field, collection, Asheville; Col. H. C. Deming, McDowell County collection, Harrisburg, Pa.; Mrs. W. J. Coite, hiddenite ring, Statesville; T. K. Bruner, collection, Raleigh; Prof. J. A. Holmes; Garrett Ray, Bu-nessville; H. B. C. Nitze, Chapel Hill; Dr. C. D. Smith, Franklin; R. Eames, and the faculty of Davidson College.

Having made an examination of the buildings and grounds we are confident of the fact that Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bruner, who have direct charge of our exhibits, have been extremely wise in selecting the locations in the various buildings, and we feel particularly indebted to Col. A. B. Andrews, National Commissioner for North Carolina, for his valuable aid and influence in securing the spaces for North Carolina. The locations are in each instance prominent; and considering the amount of money available, we are surprised to find the exhibits so artistically arranged. The gentlemen in charge of the exhibits are attentive to visitors and are apparently conscientious in discharge of their duties. So far as we have been able to judge, all purchases have been made at the lowest possible figures. We are impressed with the extreme neatness and care of each exhibit and the numerous facts relative to North Carolina which are bountifully put upon cards and distributed through the various cases.

It is our belief that much good will result to North Carolina from the fact that she was the first of the Southern States to decide upon the exhibit here, and certainly from the fact that she has the most carefully prepared and a most practical exhibit, certainly of all the Southern States, and in quality and variety of things exhibited is second to none. We believe, furthermore, that the examination of this exhibit when it is transferred to our State Museum at Raleigh will awaken a State pride not heretofore existing in North Carolina, and that the younger people of our State will be more deeply impressed than heretofore with its wonderful and various resources. years to come than the entire amount expended in the exhibit made in Chicago at this time. Apart from the various exhibits made by the State and above referred to, the committee was deeply interested in the colonial exhibit from the thirteen original States, found in the rotunda of the Government Building. This was the direct result of the labor of Mrs. Kidder, of Wilmington, the Lady Manager for North Carolina, and chairman of the National Colonial Committee, and among various exhibits here we found none more attractive and interesting than that of our own State, collected by Mrs. Kidder, with the assistance of Mrs. Cotten. We had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Cotten, who, with Mrs. Price, is in attendance upon the Board of Lady Managers, now in session. Mrs. Cotten will be

The Charlotte Observer says that Hon. Alfred M. Waddell and ex-Lieutenant Governor Steedman will also be candidates before the next State Legislature for Senator Ransom's position in the U. S. Senate.

Another invoice of the nobility have just come over from across the big herring pond, and it is now in order for Uncle Sam and his subjects to be breaking their necks endeavoring to see which can make himself the biggest fool over them.

The outlook is that the money panic is over and better times are near at hand. During last week many banks that had suspended resumed operations and a number of mills started up work again.

Another child, a girl, was born to President and Mrs. Cleveland on Saturday. We have not heard that ex-Governor Lee, of Virginia, has telegraphed his congratulations this time.

Hon. F. M. Simmons has at last been appointed Collector of the Eastern District of North Carolina. It has been understood from the beginning that he would be the man and hence there was little or no competition for the place.

It is believed that Mr. Aycock's appointment as Attorney will soon follow and then all may rest assured that the Revenue department of this section will be properly looked after.

It is now pretty generally believed that the Senate will vote on the repeal of the Sherman bill about the last of this month, and that a majority will vote for the unconditional repeal.

On last Friday quite a number of important appointments were sent by the President to the Senate for confirmation. They were: Theodore Runyon, of New Jersey, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States to Germany.

Keenan, of Wisconsin, at Kehl, Germany; Henry C. Astwood, of New York, at Calais, France; Leopold Moore, of New York, at St. Christopher, W. I.

The Washington correspondent of the Charlotte Observer writes as follows to that paper touching the policy of President Cleveland with regard to the financial plans of the administration:

As bearing out recent information, I hear the important statement that Secretary Lamont is not long since that it was a mistake that the President desired only the repeal of the Sherman law. He said the President would approve other measures as well which are desired by the public and passed by Congress.

I understand this to cover the change of the position in the Treasury and State banking.

The valuation of the lands of W. F. Mills, in Chicod township, consisting of 165 acres was reduced to $410, the timber having been cut off the same.

S. M. Crisp, of Old Sparta, Edgecombe county, was ordered to list for taxation his property in Pitt county.

Ordered that the Clerk of the Board turn over the tax books as estimated and copied by him for the year 1893, to the Sheriff and that the Sheriff collect the same and duly account therefor.

Whereas at a previous meeting of the Board, Jarvis & Blow, as attorneys for the Board were instructed to institute a suit against J. A. K. Tucker, late Sheriff of Pitt county, and the sureties of his official bond for a settlement of taxes due by him to the county for the year 1892, and it now appearing to the Board that said Tucker has since paid to the Treasurer the amount on account of said taxes so that there now remains due only a small amount which will have to be ascertained by a further calculation, it is now ordered that said Jarvis & Blow postpone bringing suit until the first Monday in November next.

The Board having no further business adjourned to meet first Monday in October.

WASHINGTON LETTER.
(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 9, 1893.

"President Cleveland," said a southern Senator who had just left the White House, where he had been invited to attend a conference, "is not prejudiced against those Democrats who are opposed to his financial policy as far as it affects a national, and he is fully aware of the extent of his opposition in the west and south. He believes that the wisdom of first repealing the purchasing clause of the Sherman silver law, which has been so greatly denounced by the business men of the country, and which was explicitly promised by the Chicago platform, will be so apparent after the entire financial policy of his administration shall have been made public that all divisions will soon be forgotten.

His first step will be to repeal the law, to stop the purchase of silver; but he bears no ill will towards those who differ with him, believing that they are as honest in their belief as he is in his. The only reason that he has not announced the financial policy of his administration is that it is not yet fully determined upon. Mind you, it is no task of a day, a week, or a month to reconstruct the financial system of a country of 65,000,000 people, which has been growing from bad to worse under Republican legislation, until it is today as bad as it could well be, and financial reform has become the most urgent necessity of the time. Grover Cleveland has proven himself to be a man worthy to be trusted, and I can see no reason why every Democrat should not repose the most implicit trust in him in this emergency, even if their personal opinions do differ from his as to the means to be used to reach the desired end.

The restoration of prosperity to the country at large, not to a few favored men, but to everybody, I am, and have always been, who is known as a silver man, but I shall unhesitatingly vote for the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman silver law."

The House added amendment after amendment to the new rules reported by the committee on Rules, until they stand as adopted almost the same as they were in the last House. Theoretically no Democrat finds any fault with the liberality with which the rules treat the right of the minority, but there is reason to fear that when the tariff bill, the bill for the repeal of the Federal election laws, and other measures against which the Republicans get before the House they will be found too lenient towards the minority.

"Much ado about nothing" is all the talk about the vote in the Senate this week. With twenty Senators absent the silver Senators defeated Senator Vorhees on two propositions—one to go into executive session while Senator Stewart was making his long speech, and the other to adjourn. The votes have absolutely no significance as far as the final result is concerned. The situation stands precisely as it did before—the bill will be debated a reasonable time, unless an agreement is reached setting a time to vote, and then an attempt will be made to force a vote. To say how that attempt will result is merely to express an individual opinion or to make a guess.

Since President Cleveland made an address at the opening of the Pan-American Medical Congress, now in session, there has been a decided "let up" on the silly stories about his being in bad health, stories which never had any better foundation than the imaginations of their disseminators.

Senator Morgan, of Alabama, this week introduced a concurrent resolution for the appointment of a joint committee on finance, to be composed of seven Senators and seven members of the House, for the purpose of making an examination into the financial and monetary condition of the Government and people of the United States. The resolution enumerated the following subjects to be investigated and reported upon by the committee: The full or partial demonetization of legal tender silver coins; the ratio which should be established between gold and silver; laws relating to legal tender and to the prevention of unjust discrimination in the several kinds of money; the repeal of the tax on ate bank currency; the cruce at the present embarrassed condition of the people and the national banks; and what further legislation is necessary to prevent national banks abusing their power under the law. The last subject is particularly interesting just now, in view of the statements that certain New York National banks make more than $1,000,000 by selling currency at a premium, while declining to cash depositors checks.

The Best Market.
A tobacco buyer from Danville was in the market here, last Thursday, and was heard to remark at the close of the day that Danville and Richmond could not have raised the real money to buy the quantity of tobacco that was sold "that day." It is worth noting, too, that Farmville pays cash for every pound sold here.

To the Tax Payers of Pitt County, N. C.: The tax list for 1893 having been placed in my hands on the first of September for collection, and as I am equipped by law to make prompt settlement of all taxes charged thereon, I now notify the tax payers of Pitt county that I am determined to collect the same by distress at the earliest possible moment and if you do not desire to have your property seized by law for failure to perform your duty, and in order to save trouble and expense it will be best for those who are unable to pay their taxes in full to call on me at my residence or at my office at the same by distress at the earliest possible moment. Don't forget this, I mean business. Sheriff of Pitt County, GREENVILLE, N. C., September 12th, 1893.

PRESENTING AWARDS.

Last Sunday morning just as the exercises of the Baptist Sunday School were drawing to a close, Superintendent C. D. Rountree stated that this was the last time, for a while at least, that Miss Lula White, the efficient organist would be present with the school, as she was to depart next day for Hollins Institute, Va. He spoke of her faithfulness during a service of three years as organist, how she began when so small she could scarce reach the pedals of the organ, how punctual and obliging she had always been, and said he was unwilling that she should leave without his extending some testimonial of his appreciation, as Superintendent, of the excellence with which she had performed her duties at all times, and he called upon Col. I. A. Sugg to present her with a Bible. In presenting the Bible, which was a very handsome one, Col. Sugg said:

By request of our worthy Superintendent it is a pleasant task for me to present you this testimonial of his esteem, which I assure you is shared by all the officers, teachers and scholars of this Sunday School, and by none more than myself. You are now about to part with us for a time (we hope not forever) and while your hearts will be made sad by this separation, yet we rejoice that you are going to gladden the hearts of others by your gentle and thrilling touch. And while you are leaving a home of happiness, luxury and love, where your companionship is so delightful and refreshing, do not be lured by the thought that the rippling waves that now fall at your feet on the sea of life will always

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO TOTTINGS.

The storm damaged tobacco in the western part of the State and in Virginia.

Some of the markets that have been paying off with paper are now paying cash. Money seems to be coming into circulation.

Hurrah! Hurrah! for Greenville. It was a pleasant sight to look on the happy faces of the farmers, who sold their tobacco on the Greenville market last week, especially when they were so gloomy a short time since.

Farmers don't forget you have a special invitation to visit the warehouses when you come to Greenville, whether you bring any tobacco or not. The prices will bear close inspection and compare favorably with any market in this State or Virginia. Come and be convinced that Greenville is the place for you notwithstanding the malicious falsehoods circulated so freely by paid hirelings.

There is right much being said about the charges of the Greenville market as compared with those of Wilson. This complaint comes only from a few living between Greenville and Wilson and as Wilson expects to pay for that center (brick) warehouse in the main with Pitt county tobacco she must get up some excuse to induce it to come that way, and as they can't beat our prices they resort to cut charges on a few and make others pay the difference. Bring us a Wilson county farmer's bill and we will lay down ours with it and get an inspector to say which has the largest charge—Bosh!

EASTERN TOBACCO WAREHOUSE, GREENVILLE, N. C. IS STILL IN THE LEAD.

OUR Floor was filled last week with the BRIGHT YELLOW LEAF, it felt like old times. How I did enjoy saying: "Give him 20, 30, 40, anywhere along up there!" The buyers seemed to catch on to the time, the auctioneer's voice echoed their bids as they were given. The farmers smiled and all were happy. Never in all my experience in the Warehouse business do I remember seeing such universal satisfaction on so large a scale. Mr. W. H. Porter, who lives just below Greenville, came up with a small load, said he would have been satisfied with sixty dollars, but to his delight sent him back with eighty dollars

INSTEAD. There were scores of others the same way, whose names we might mention, but space forbids. The Proprietor of the Eastern Warehouse always delight in sending his friends home pleased. Every pile has my personal attention. In conclusion allow me to say, bring me good Tobacco and I will get as much for you as any Warehouse or market, no matter what flattering promises they may make. Its the hard dollar that does my best talking. When you get ready to sell, load up or pack up and bring it to the Eastern. When in Greenville, whether you've got Tobacco or not, come around, we are always glad to see you.

Sincerely your friend,

OLTHOS L. JOYNER,

Too True.
No paper can be published without some patronage and every man is interested in keeping up a home paper, truly says an exchange. If a railroad or any other enterprise for the good of the community is desired, the newspaper is expected to work for it. If a public meeting is wanted for any purpose, the newspaper is called upon for a free notice. If any sect or society have an entertainment or reception of any kind, the newspaper is expected to mention it. The newspaper must agitate and advocate everything that will advance the interests of the business men, and yet some of them do nothing to support a home paper.

THE DAMAGE BY STORM.

The injury to the Tobacco Crop Various-ly Estimated.

The wind and rain storm of last Monday has no doubt done considerable damage to the tobacco crop in this State and Virginia, though the injury is hardly as great as the first reports indicated.

The storm covered almost the entire tobacco growing section of the East, and hence it is difficult to estimate the damage. The center was near this part of the State culminating in a furious gale at Kernersville, ten miles from here, where 100 houses, were more or less injured, including several tobacco factories.

Warehousemen in this city say that the damage in this territory is estimated at from 20 to 30 per cent. Leaves were torn from the plant and those left on the stalk were badly bruised and broken. Fields which were protected by forests and high lands suffered less, some escaping almost entirely. The planters are gathering up the leaves this week and curing them. We give below newspaper reports of the damage in other sections.

The Danville Register says: Monday's rain and wind storm was disastrous to the growing crops, especially tobacco and yesterday morning many rumors reached the city in regard to the same.

In order to get more definite information, The Register yesterday telegraphed in various directions and sent special reporters out on all the roads, a distance of eight or ten miles around Danville, to make personal inspection.

The reporter who took in the Design section and the country along Fall Creek, found that rumors as to the destruction of tobacco had been exaggerated but little, if any, and to say that the damage is 40 per cent. of the value of the crop is putting it at a lower figure than any of the farmers put it. Some of the farmers were found hauling the tobacco that had been broken off the stalks to their barns to be cured, but the bulk of the damage was done by the high and continuous winds which whipped and beat the leaves together and caused them to become bruised and broken and slit into shreds, will show large blisters and defects in the leaf. Men who are judges say the prospect for fine bright wrappers is almost entirely gone, as the crop is so nearly matured there is no chance for recuperation, but the prospects for good fillers is not quite so gloomy.

The Greensboro Patriot has this to say: Reports from the country show fearful destruction to tobacco and corn. Mr. J. H. Clapp, who lives near Alamance Church says that his cotton is almost entirely ruined, being torn and twisted. His neighbor, Mr. Taylor's tobacco is almost totally destroyed. Mr. Geo. Wyrick, who lives north of town, reports his tobacco in an awful condition and that his fruit is all blown off the trees. His neighbor, Mr. Henry Wilson, although he already primed his tobacco went over the field and gathered up baskets full of leaves that had been blow off. But the greatest damage to tobacco Mr. Wyrick says is from being bruised and slit.

From Durham the Sun reports as follows: The tobacco crop also suffers considerably. The leaves are torn and ragged, and where beginning to ripen the plants are stripped of fully one-half the leaves. Fruit trees did not escape the ravages of the storm. The editor of the Journal on Wednesday of this week traveled from South Boston, Va., seven miles through the country inspecting many tobacco fields, but found little damage done. In the Eastern part of this State the bulk of the crop is cut and hence escaped. The South Carolina crop is nearly all in the barn.—Winston Tobacco Journal.

What did that victory mean? It was the verdict of the people in favor of the principles set forth in the platform upon which we stood; a verdict against the legislation of the Republican party, so long in power; and they have a right to expect us to keep our pledges to them, to look to the interest of the great body of our fellow citizens whose interest have been so long neglected. When the representatives of the Democratic party met in Chicago, July, 1892, they declared their position in a manner as to their immediate constituency in terms unmistakable for a bimetallic basis, and for an equal chance for both gold and silver. We hold to the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country, and the coinage of both without discriminating against either.

This, Mr. Speaker, is in accord with all the Democratic party has ever taught from its first existence to the present day—its incorporation not only in its national but in most of its State platforms. I know not what views others may take upon this subject, but it seems to me the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law would be a violation of faith for which we would be held justly amenable; for this reason I shall oppose it. The argument has been more than once used in this debate that this particular financial legislation was not a party question. If so, why not eliminate it from our platform? If so, why was it that views that were supposed to be entertained and constantly expressed entered so largely into and controlled our nominations and made the basis of all our arguments before the people for the positions we hold on this floor? Convince them once that these solemn declarations are but meaningless expressions and the righteous indignation of an outraged people will be visited upon those who presume to use this medium to impose upon their credulity and their confidence.

The Statesville Dude and His Cigar.

A Statesville dude attended Rocky Springs camp meeting Sunday and while there was introduced to a citizen of Wilkes or Alexander, he doesn't know which. The Statesville man was smoking and immediately after the introduction his new acquaintance took his cigar from his fingers and sticking it in his mouth began puffing. The Statesville man was surprised but surprise doesn't express it when, after puffing awhile, his new found friend passed the cigar back to him. The Statesville man was disgusted and threw the cigar down. The other fellow picked it up, brushed the dirt off and smoked it until he went to dinner. Then he carefully deposited it on the side of a tent until he finished dinner; then he finished the cigar. The Statesville man doesn't understand it but we suppose it is according to etiquette in that country for new acquaintances to smoke the same cigar.—Landmark.

HON. WILLIAM A. B. BRANCH.

His Speech in the House of Representatives, August 25th.

MR. SPEAKER: I would not in the closing hours of this discussion endeavor to advance an original idea upon a subject that has commanded the serious attention of every interest of every section of our country and caused a feeling of fear to take possession of many of those who are by reason of their position as legislators called upon to pass their verdict.

I have listened carefully to arguments on this floor upon this all-important question; not as one whose mind was made up, but one who was open to conviction based upon argument not from an individual standpoint, not from a sectional standpoint, but from the standpoint of a legislator, intrusted with the well-being of every interest of every section of this land.

I have been disappointed. I have heard it discussed from the standpoint of the banker, the bondholder, the silver-miner, the commercial centers, and the rural districts, North, South, East, and West, discussions made conspicuous by reason of their individuality, many reasons being assigned for the present depression, and a few ideas for relief suggested.

The gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Morse] in his discussion of this question attributes the depression to the fact "that the people are getting ready for the low prices promised by Democratic speakers in the last campaign, the result of a tariff for revenue only. This he says has had a tendency to paralyze business, to throw thousands of workmen out of employment, and drive thousands of men who are consumers into the business of last resort—agriculture." While this does not explain why Government bonds will not, as collateral, secure loans to but a fraction of their face, those who are engaged in that industry will be glad to know that the gentleman from the great manufacturing center has learned this fact, and hope he will stand ready as a legislator for every interest known to this country, to lend this industry "of last resort."

Sad experience has taught them it is a business of last resort resulting largely from selfish legislation. The people I have the honor to represent directly on this floor are largely an agricultural people. A long series of legislative enactments tending to concentration and consolidation of money in one section and in certain interests, and not their want of devotion to their interests and extravagance, has caused their particular tolling to be spoken of as "the one of last resort."

It was this fact that contributed largely to the triumphant victory achieved by the Democratic party, November last. What did that victory mean? It was the verdict of the people in favor of the principles set forth in the platform upon which we stood; a verdict against the legislation of the Republican party, so long in power; and they have a right to expect us to keep our pledges to them, to look to the interest of the great body of our fellow citizens whose interest

When the representatives of the Democratic party met in Chicago, July, 1892, they declared their position in a manner as to their immediate constituency in terms unmistakable for a bimetallic basis, and for an equal chance for both gold and silver. They will fuse and get beat. Signs multiply that there will be a coalition in North Carolina next year between the Republican and Third parties. Republicans who, a year or two back, could find no language too strong with which to denounce the Third party, its vagaries and its leaders, have changed their tune—they are sympathizing now with doctrines which they regarded a short time ago as ruinous, are associating with leaders whom they characterized as scoundrels, and have become eager readers of Populist newspapers (?) which lately they would have picked up only with tongs. On the other hand, Alliance-Third party men who but recently were protesting that they were the best of Democrats and that their movement meant nothing to the prejudice of the Democratic party, are found denouncing it from the house-tops, consorting with its enemies, and preparing to make common cause with anybody of any element or color that is opposed to it. Ah, well, these things are noted as matters of passing interest. The old Democratic party has met many an enemy before—sometimes in the open field and sometimes in the bushes; sometimes divided into armies, hostile to each other as well as to it, and sometimes in combination. Sometimes it has whipped in the fight with one hand tied behind it and sometimes it has had to put on its whole armor and put forth its whole strength. But it will be remembered by all hands, whether they stood in its ranks or stood up against it, that it has always won, and the greater the struggle the greater the victory. A coalition may give it some work next year. We hope, indeed, the opposition will be formidable enough for that, for it is only when it is "at ease in Zion" that it is in danger. When it is scared it is safe.—Statesville Landmark.

Intelligent Bell Boys. Every traveling man has had his experience with the intelligent bell boy who "calls" for the early train.

"I was pounding my ear pretty lively one night in a Texarkana hotel," said a Texas man, "when a big thumping on my door brought me up sitting in bed.

"What is it?" I asked. "Boss," said the dorky, "is you de man what wants to go on de two o'clock train to Big Sandy?" "I had left no 'call,' and I made that dorky understand so in a few short words. He tackled the next door and I heard him ask again: "Boss, is you de man what wants to go on de two o'clock train to Big Sandy?"

"The answer was terrific. The dorky was awed. For about five minutes he was still, as if absorbed in thought. Then I heard him say to himself in an argumentative tone: "Dar's sum un in dis hall who wants to go on de two o'clock train to Big Sandy. I dun forgot de number."

"He went down the line repeating the performance at seven doors before he reached the man who wanted to go on de two o'clock train to Big Sandy."

An Illinois man thought he could parallel this evidence of sagacity. He said: "I stopped one night in the hotel at Shawneetown and left a 'sure call' for the boat, which was expected along about four o'clock in the morning. I went to bed and slept peacefully until the racket at the door aroused me.

"All right," I said. "Mr. Jones! Mr. Jones!" sang out the dorky. "You wanted to catch de Padooky boat? Well, dey ain't no use of you gettin' up. De boat's done gone, sah!"—Chicago Post.

me call your attention to the historical fact that after a splendid career of prosperity, filling the world with her fame, Rome culminated and declined. History proves that the great cause of that decline was the laws enacted affecting real estate and the products of labor. Nations that desire permanent prosperity and power should protect both capital and labor, and thus encourage industrial interests.

A competency drawn from and reinvested in the soil encourages love of country, and should bring to it independence. Accumulation of wealth by unnatural and unhealthy speculation can but in time produce panics, want, and suffering, such as we witness on all sides of us to-day. I realize, Mr. Speaker, that no arguments can be more dangerous, coming from a Representative intrusted with legislation, than arguments based upon individual interest or arguments calculated to array one section against the other.

The great agricultural sections South and West ask no special legislation for this infant industry of last resort. They simply ask an equal chance in the race, of life, to be allowed to join the grand procession, and go forward to the development of our country, and to the accomplishment of a grand destiny for all.—[Applause.]

PRETTY PEARLS

What They Are Made of and Where They Are Found.

The Shells Are of Far More Value to Those Engaged in Fishing Than the Pearls—Products of the Gulf of California.

Very few people are aware that the pearl-oyster is not in any way like the oysters which we eat. It is of an entirely different species, and, as a matter of fact, the shells of the so-called pearl-oyster are of far more value to those engaged in "pearl-fishing" than the pearls. There are extensive pearl fisheries in the Gulf of California, and some of the finest pearls have been taken from these waters. In 1881 one pearl, a black one, was sold for ten thousand dollars, and every year since that time many pearls have been taken from the beds in the California gulf valued at over seven thousand five hundred dollars each. But such "finds" are very rare, and, as a rule, the pearls which are brought up are of very little value. The shells, however, are very valuable; most of them are shipped to Europe, where they are manufactured into ornaments, knife-handles, buttons, and the hundreds of other articles for which "mother-of-pearl" is used.

Another fact concerning the pearl-oyster and the pearl itself is very little understood. I have seen in books of instruction both in this country and in England the statement that "the formation of the pearl in the oyster-shell is caused by a disease of the oyster;" and this statement is more or less generally believed, as is also the erroneous inference to be drawn from it that the oyster referred to is the edible oyster. The mother-of-pearl is nothing more than a series of layers of nacreous matter deposited by the oyster upon the interior of the shell, and the pearl itself is a perfectly accidental formation. It is caused by a similar deposit of nacre around some foreign object.

This foreign substance may be a grain of sand, a parasite or some similar object, but most authorities agree that it is more usually an undeveloped egg of the oyster around which this natural deposit is thrown. The largest pearl ever found measures two inches long and weighs three ounces. This is of eastern origin. The largest found in the Gulf of California did not exceed an inch and a quarter long and was somewhat larger than the egg of a bluebird. Many of the Californian pearls are black and speckled. These are considered more valuable than the white pearls in Europe, but the most highly prized pearls of all are pink.—Robert F. Walsh, in Harper's Young People.

Quite a Different Thing. The Wife—Well, what do you suppose I saw last night? The Husband (complacently reading his magazine)—I don't know, I'm sure. It's seldom I see anything at a reception but a lot of women's backs. What was it? "Three tiaras precisely like my own."

"Indeed?" "Yes, and a dress that was simply copied from mine."

"Imitation is the sincerest flattery—that's good."

"And as for Mrs. Brown-Jones, why she simply makes it a business to look as much like me as possible."

"I know I'd get even with Brown-Jones some day for those four acres he held against my king fowl!"

"Therefore what good does it do me to go to Europe twice a year for the fashions? I simply give them to these other women for nothing, and the first thing I know I'll be accused of copying them."

"That's so," said the husband, seeing a chance for economy; "I wouldn't do it any more."

"I'm not. I'm sick and tired of it. I'm going to Paris next week, and—"

"What!" "I shall have my toilette entirely renewed, give my present outfit to young Mrs. Poorley. I'll show them that two can play at that game. I shall have to get some new diamonds and have my old ones reset, and hereafter I shall wear my toilettes only as long as it is necessary to demonstrate the fact that I would create them for me, and for me alone. By the way, Henry, I would smoke so many cigars. They're awfully expensive."

The husband faints.—Tom Hall, in Brooklyn Life.
