Marvellous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Diamonddale, Mich. we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvellous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding with La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them."

A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results. Trial bottles free at John L. Wooten's Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

If you are an American citizen this is as much your government as it is that of any other man, and while you may not take an active part in political discussions you should feel and manifest enough interest to go to the polls and vote for the men who represent or are the exponents of those principles calculated to give you and your neighbors the best, fairest and cheapest government.

If the good citizen throws away his opportunities by not exercising the rights the law of the land gives him, the wicked element will come into power, infringe your rights and despoil your country as it has done in times afore. Good citizens must ever be on the alert; there is no other way to hold the evil in check.

Let us admonish you by every right and tie that you hold sacred, for the sake of good laws, peace, prosperity and happiness; for the sake of good and benign laws and the humane and beneficent institutions which have been given you under Democratic rule, to rally once again for their maintenance and perpetuation, that those who may come after you may bless your memory.—Graham Gleaser.

The unexpected flop of Speaker Reed over to the Democratic ideas of a reduced tariff is causing a great deal of talk here. Republicans are dumbfounded. They understand it to be a challenge to McKinley on the Presidential nomination question. It was in Michigan that Mr. Reed, said "No McKinleyism." It is well known that McKinley is on fire all over for the Republican nomination in '96. So is Allison, Harrison, and Reed. Allison is popular because of his low tariff ideas, and Reed knows it and is trying to crop his wings. As it looks at present Allison will be the Republican nominee in '96. As to who will be the Democratic nominee it is too early to conjecture. Gov. Campbell of Ohio, Gov. Stone, of Missouri; Bryan, of Nebraska, Carlisle, of Kentucky, Whiteley and Hill, of New York, Stevenson, of Illinois, and Gresham are all possibilities. If Bryan should happen to win in Nebraska the ticket might be Bryan and Crisp. Four influential papers in Pennsylvania, three in New York and two in Ohio say Crisp should be the man.

The Democratic headquarters here claims to know all about the North Carolina campaign. They expect Democratic Congressmen from every district but the second, and have good hopes there. Mr. Woodard is very popular in Washington and his district is closely watched. White people of all political parties here can't understand how any white man, be he Populist or Republican, can aid Cheatham either directly or indirectly, but, as the old saying goes, "lots depends upon a fellow's raising."

The suit for divorce of Dr. Glennan, who stole his two little boys from Mrs. Glennan by force three weeks ago, has not yet been heard, but the court has ordered alimony of $50 a month to be paid to Mrs. Glennan while the suit is pending. It will be remembered that Mrs. Glennan is the daughter of ex-Congressman Kenneth Rayner, of North Carolina.

A story leaked out here last week that, though dating back to before the Democratic State Convention of 1892, will be of interest to North Carolinians. A close acquaintance of the late Col. L. L. Polk told your correspondent last night that when the name of Julian S. Carr was mentioned for Governor, Col. Polk was delighted and immediately declared that whatever the Alliance might do toward putting up another State ticket, he would use his whole strength for Carr. Polk asked a friend of Col. Carr to come to his office and talk over the matter, whereupon he told this friend that the Alliance in North Carolina would be controlled by him (Polk) in this matter and that he liked Mr. Carr so much that he could get the entire support for him, provided Mr. Carr would write him (Polk) a letter (dictated by Polk) claiming to be in sympathy with the Alliance in its movements, Polk declaring that he would only show the letter very cautiously to the Alliance. This, said Polk, will give Mr. Carr the Alliance vote in the State Convention and elect him Governor by an overwhelming majority. This friend left Washington and went to Durham to see Col. Carr about it, whereupon Mr. Carr is reported as saying with great emphasis, "Tell Col. Polk that I appreciate his interest in my behalf, and that no one sympathizes with the farmers of North Carolina as I do, but if I thought by writing that letter it would make me President of the United States I would not be found compromising my Democracy in that style." So this ended it. Dr. Sanderlin received the Alliance support in the Convention and Gov. Elias Carr was nominated. Had the Alliance vote that Col. Polk talked about been added to the support accorded Mr. J. S. Carr his selection would have been assured. Thanks be to heaven that the sentiment which actuated Henry Clay "rather to be right than be President" actuated Mr. Carr with reference to the gubernatorial nomination.

Senator Faulkner says he feels confident from advices received from all parts of the Union that the Democrats will control the next House of Representatives by a good majority.

OUR NATIONAL CAPITOL.

(Special Cor. of the REFLECTOR.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 26th, '94.

As the day of election approaches the Republicans are getting more and more sanguine that they are going to sweep the country. The Democrats, however, are laying low and working hard. They are confident of surprising the Republicans on the 6th in New York, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and the South. It is well understood by REFLECTOR readers that the Republicans hope for Populist victory in the South and Democrats hope for Populist victory in the West. The reason is plain. They are working against each other as ever and neither side cares a straw as to the benefit to be derived by their Populist brethren. Wherever they can use the Populists to ride in power on they are doing it.

To forecast the election, our servatives at both headquarters size it up as follows: Hill will be elected Governor of New York and Tammany will likely be defeated in the city. Illinois and Delaware will have Democratic legislatures and elect Democratic Senators, Bryan may possibly win in Nebraska, but not probable; Wilson will have a close rub in West Virginia; Republicans will gain five Congressmen in Pennsylvania, two in New York, two in Michigan, one in Illinois and about ten from the West and South. A very conservative estimate of the standing of the next House, 173 Democrats, 170 Republicans and 13 Populists. With these figures the Democrats can organize, for the Populists will all support Crisp for Speaker as against Reed. Both Simpson and Pence, the Populist leaders, have been heard to say that as between the two the full Populist strength would go to Crisp, but there may be an effort to make Simpson or Weaver Speaker, should the Populists demand it of the Democrats with threats that otherwise they will vote for Reed. In this emergency the Democratic administration would certainly receive the support of the Populists on every administration measure and would have all the clerkships and committee chairmanships. But this is mere talk, for there are very few Democrats who do not expect to retain the House. On the other hand the Republicans have already conceded the Senate to the Democrats, and it is conceded by all sides that if the tariff bill had been passed six months earlier the Republicans would have been swept utterly out of existence, for the downfall of business so enthusiastically predicted by the Republicans should be the tariff bill become a law has been met by the great business revival and the upheaval in the price of raw wool.

The unexpected flop of Speaker Reed over to the Democratic ideas of a reduced tariff is causing a great deal of talk here. Republicans are dumbfounded. They understand it to be a challenge to McKinley on the Presidential nomination question. The death of the Czar of Russia is momentarily expected. When he dies the Russian Embassy here will go into mourning for one year, and will take no part whatever in the social functions at the capital. The President will send an unusually genuine message of condolence to the Russian Government because of the very kindly relations which exist between the two Governments.

As the 6th of November draws nearer, Democrats should everywhere bear in mind that personal animosities and petty jealousies should now be made to yield to a sense of party duty. The supremacy of the Democratic party is what loyal Democrats will strive to preserve. It is no longer a question of this man or that man, but the continued dominance of that party on which the welfare and prosperity of the south depends. Experience under Republican rule has taught our people what that means. As the election day draws near, let every Democrat be prepared to cast his vote for the Democratic nominees, regardless of personal prejudices and preferences.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

A Tariff Object Lesson.

The McKinley law went into effect in 1890. It so happened that the Methodists of Morganton were that year building a handsome brick parsonage. The building was located in a section of the town where they were required to cover it with tin. In the Herald of Oct. 30, 1890, were shown how by reason of the McKinley law the Methodists had to pay fifty-two dollars more for tin to cover that building than they would have paid before the McKinley law passed.

Just now our Baptist friends are erecting a handsome brick church on the same street on which the Methodist parsonage stands and only two hundred feet away from it. They are also required to cover the building with tin. Before the McKinley law was repealed they got quotations on tin at $10.37 per box. They decided to wait until the new tariff law went into effect, and yesterday they bought their tin at $8.25 per box. The new tariff bill has saved them more than forty dollars in this one item. They will besides save money on their nails, and hinges and locks and other hardware.

These are facts. Let those who doubt ask Mr. J. A. Claywell if the Methodists didn't lose fifty-two dollars on tin under the McKinley law.

Let those who doubt ask our honest Republican friend, Pink Hildebrand, how much the Baptists saved on tin because the McKinley law was repealed.

This is only one of many instances showing how the Democratic party is redeeming its pledges to make goods cheaper.—Morganton Herald.

Capt. Thos. W. Mason is making the point in his speeches that the leaders of the Third party movement in North Carolina were in the Democratic State convention two years ago and endorsed its work, and that inside of ninety days they had turned around, repudiated the ticket which they had endorsed in the beginning, and were supporting another against it; and he is wanting to know of the people how they can this year support a lot of men who in 1892 could not keep their promises from convention time to election day. The facts are as Capt. Mason states them, and his questions are pertinent and timely.—Charlotte Observer.

THE REFLECTOR,
Greenville, N. C.

D. J. WELCHARD, Editor and Proprietor

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31st, 1894.

Entered at the postoffice at Greenville, N. C., as second-class mail matter.

HOW TO VOTE.

Vote for F. G. James for the Senate.
Vote for J. D. Cox and S. M. Jones for the House of Representatives.
Vote for Willis R. Williams for Superior Court Clerk.
Vote for R. W. King for Sheriff.
Vote for Henry Harding for Register of Deeds.
Vote for John Flanagan for Treasurer.
Vote for Dr. Laughinghouse for Coroner.
Vote for J. B. Kilpatrick for Surveyor.
Vote for the Democratic candidate for Constable in your township.

Vote for W. A. B. Branch for Congress.
Vote for John E. Woodard for Solicitor.
Vote for S. McD. Tate for State Treasurer.

Vote for the Democratic Judges for both the Supreme and Superior Courts.
In fact and in short, vote the straight Democratic ticket from beginning to end, and don't scratch a single name. Do this and you do your duty as a citizen who loves good government and is opposed to a return of Radicalism in North Carolina.

Another important thing for Democrats to think about is that Justices of the Supreme Court, several Superior Court Judges and a State Treasurer must be elected on the 6th of November. It is no time for men who want to see these places filled by capable officials, to be fooling with Populist-Republican fusion candidates.

Harry Skinner is "co-operating" with the Republicans, therefore if you vote for Skinner for Congress you vote to restore the high taxation of the McKinley bill; you vote to put our elections back under Federal supervision; you vote to abolish the income tax; you vote against stopping the payment of fraudulent pensions; you vote against the reforms that the Democrats have inaugurated; in fact if you vote for Harry Skinner you vote against your own interest.

Hon. W. A. B. Branch and Col. Harry Skinner met here Saturday in their joint canvass. There was a large crowd present to hear them. We venture the assertion that no Democrat who heard them left a less Democrat than before, but on the contrary was prouder than ever that he was a Democrat. We can also assert with equal emphasis that no votes were made for the third party, or fusionists as they are now. We can go further and say that no sensible, unprejudiced man heard the two speeches who was not convinced that Mr. Branch ought to be elected and the Colonel ought and must be beaten.

Mr. Branch's speech was pleasant, gentle, mild and truthful. It was brim-full of sensible matter, delivered in a gentlemanly way. Col. Skinner was exactly the opposite in every particular. One was the speech of an honest man with a high regard for truth and principle. The other was the speech of a pure unalloyed demagogue—and a meaner, more deceiving speech we never heard. If every white man in Pitt county could have heard the Colonel's tirade he would not get enough of their votes to count. If every white man in the First District could have heard this speech the votes cast for the Colonel on the 6th day of November by them would not be enough to mark the fact that he had ever been a candidate for Congress in this District. Democracy has nothing to fear from such demagoguery. It has only the effect to arouse to new effort those who love honor, truth and upright-ness in politics. We ask the good men of Pitt county to show by their votes next Tuesday their disapprobation of any such harangues as the Colonel made here last Saturday.

Politically the Colonel is a dead letter—a back number, and justly so too, as there is nothing in him.

Mr. Branch has made a Representative against whom not the slightest suspicion has ever rested. His character, both public and private, is above reproach. He is just such a man as the people want to represent them and will be elected again next Tuesday.

Burglars are making their rounds in several towns again. Greenville had as well keep a sharp watch for them.

This issue of the REFLECTOR is the last warning we can give you to do your duty on election day.

Do you want Harry Skinner to represent this district in Congress? If not you had better get to work for the Democratic ticket.

If you vote the fusion Legislature ticket you vote for the overthrow of our system of county government and for a return of the infamous Radical rule that came so near running the State.

Two passenger trains on the Raleigh & Gaston road collided between Henderson and Kittrell on Saturday afternoon. The conductor of one of the trains, Capt. Drummond, and two or three of the passengers were slightly hurt.

MARRIED.

In company with Dr. W. H. Bagwell, on Thursday morning, October 25th, I went up from Greenville to Penny Hill, where at 2 o'clock P. M. in the home of Mr. Jenkins, the bride's brother-in-law, I united in marriage Mr. M. T. Spier, and Miss Hattie Cobb. A youthful, promising, good looking couple they make, and have the well wishes and prayers of many friends and loving relatives for their success in all which goes to make up life. Their attendants were Mr. J. E. Fleming and Miss Emely Cobb, Mr. Joe Thigpen and Miss Alma House, Mr. J. J. Satterthwaite and Miss Electa Thigpen, Mr. R. W. Ward and Miss Nannie Bagwell, Mr. W. J. Thigpen and Miss Lon Cobb, Mr. W. S. Briley and Miss Laura Ward. These were all nicely dressed and graced the occasion uniquely. The chosen twelve accompanied the groom and his bride to his father's, Mr. Montgomery Spier, near Patoles, where the fatted calf had been killed, and all things were in readiness. After a few weeks with the old people, Mr. and Mrs. Spier will go to house keeping in their newly prepared home. Long may they live and happy may they be.

Their true friend,
J. H. LAMBERTH.

MARRIED.

JONES-WARD.—It was a grand and most delightful occasion at the residence of Mr. Fernando Ward, seven miles from Greenville, on last Wednesday morning, being the marriage of his oldest and lovely daughter, Miss Eliza, to Dr. C. M. Jones, of Grimesland. The reception was had on Tuesday evening and the many friends met and feasted upon a bountiful supper spread by Mrs. Ward. At 6:30 Wednesday morning, Rev. J. L. Winfield read the ceremony and pronounced them husband and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Jones left on the train for a bridal tour in the northern cities. The presents were numerous and valuable.

The Democracy in this section is being thoroughly aroused.

The Republican party in North Carolina proved itself to be incapable of managing public affairs wisely, discreetly, honestly, and prosperously, says the Wilmington Messenger. That is plain, solid, unbending truth, the whole truth, nothing but the truth. Its record is one of folly, of extravagance, of infamy. It plundered the people, robbed the school children, bankrupted the State. It did all that was possible to do that was evil and vicious, destructive. It left undone all that was good and right and beneficial. Hard words, but true words. The white men of North Carolina who lived between 1866 and 1876, know how this was. The rule of the carpetbaggers, the scallawags and the black and tan annex was a rule of ruin and robbery. If we could get hold of the campaign book of 1876, we could bring out the startling figures of the crimes and plunderings of the Radicals. They show a degree of political profligacy and personal debauchery that seems now beyond belief. One Legislature alone, fully under their control, ran up the State indebtedness to about $42,000,000. The State then was too poor to pay the interest even on this monstrous robbery. Of this great sum the people have received but very little benefit. One Southern woman from New Orleans—fallen, depraved—was in possession of $100,000 of these bonds. She said she obtained them from a certain Railroad President of North Carolina, Mr. Josiah Turner, in the old Raleigh Sentinel, used to tell of all this villainy from day to day until the people understood the whole lesson of moral degradation and financial ruin.

In a recent issue of our valued contemporary, the Asheville Citizen, there were some few points in the black record of the black radical party, that ought to blister and blur the memories and names of the rascals who perpetrated the villainies and bring shame to the consenting fellows—some now seeking office—who did not have grace enough to even hang their heads with humiliation while their party was carrying out its plans that prostrated everything, violated all honor, made the State a byword and reproach, heaped debts mountain high and robbed wholesale the already well nigh ruined people by the long war and the disastrous results.

And this is the party that the erring, misled Populists are allied with in 1894, and hope with them to gain possession of the control of the State. Wee wooth the day when that comes to our dear old mother North Carolina.

The Citizen shows that a Radical Legislature with some two thirds of the members or more, (19 negroes, several not able to read or write) at once entered upon their raiding and robbing. The treasury was emptied early. The school fund was made way with. It says, and although an old story will be new to many: "Four hundred and twenty thousand dollars ($420,000) of stock in the Wilmington and Weldon and Manchester railroads, which belonged to the educational fund for the benefit of the poor children of the State, were sold by the Republican State Treasurer for only $158,000 which was paid out to members of this legislature at the rate of $8 per day.

Not satisfied with robbing the treasury and the public schools, this august assembly of carpet baggers and negroes determined to work the credit of the State for all it was worth."

Then the fun began and the money flew and the people were plucked. It was a mad, cruel saturnalia of scoundrels and rascals: A ring with a Yankee soldier, Gen. Littlefield, at its head was organized, and George W. Swenson his confederate and backer. The Citizen tells the simple truth when it says that the "ring demanded, and in many cases received 10 per cent, of all appropriations passed by that Legislature. This ring bought the Legislature, giving orders to G. W. Swenson for the money. A regular bar was established in the capital of the State. Railroads were chartered right and left. Bonds were issued for the stock of the State in all these projects. In this way, in less than four months, this Legislature authorizing the issuing of bonds of the State to the extent of $25,320,000. Other schemes were also worked, and when this Legislature adjourned North Carolina, counting her old debt, was prostrate beneath a debt aggregating the frightful total of $42,000,000. At that time the taxable values of the State were only $120,000,000. County authorities, emulating the example of the State, began a system of plunder in their municipal credit and plunged many of them so deeply in debt that many of the wealthiest in the State had their script hawked on the streets at 10 cents on the dollar."

The ring went to New York, some fifteen of them and took an entire floor in a great hotel, parlors and all. For weeks the selling of bonds, the gambling of bonds, the riving of bonds to women of the town, the dining and wining, the debauchery and crimes against the people of North Carolina continued, the whole sum thus thrown away paid by the helpless and overburdened people of our State. It was the most vicious, the most open display of corruption and robbery that was made by the plunderers of any of the several harrowed and pillaged States of the South. The record is dark with villain and most damning to all engaged in the rioting and stripping spoliation.

And now after some twenty years of prosperity under Democratic supremacy and benign government; after the State has steadily and surely advanced in prosperity; after its schools and colleges have been placed upon a high plane of success; after the railroad system has been greatly developed and perfected; after taxes have been reduced well nigh to one-fourth what they were; after long continued law and order and the prevailing of good will between the races, it is now asked that the grand old party of the Union and the Constitution that has brought all this and much more that is good to pass shall be set aside, and hungry, disappointed, incapable, and in many cases unprincipled demagogues shall be placed in power, and control the destinies of a great State with more than 1,700,000 population. The proposition is monstrous. Let the white men and the colored men who wish well to the State and have a proper regard for their own interests beware, and see to it that such an unmitigated curse and calamity does not befall North Carolina.

WILL THE PEOPLE RUN THE RISK.

The people of North Carolina should reflect well upon what is involved in a transfer of their State government from the hands of the Democratic party to those of the party which has placed its candidates before them but which has not yet taken unto itself a name. All but one of the members of the Supreme Court are to be elected, and half of the judges of the Superior Court. As to the "non-partisan" Supreme Court candidates, Capt. W. H. Kitchin has been charged with having said, and as far as we know has not denied having said, that everybody in the east knows that Judge Faircloth is not fit to sit upon the Supreme Court bench and that he has heard in the west that Judge Farches is even less fit than Faircloth. If Captain Kitchin did not say this we will give him the liberty of our columns to deny it. It is certain that in his campaign he cannot be induced to tell the people who they should vote for, notwithstanding that he has been urged to do so by gentlemen who have met him in joint discussion. He is the chief speaker for the unnamed party in their campaign and the people may naturally regard with suspicion a ticket which he will not advise them to vote for. As to the candidates for the Superior Court judgeships, nominated by the combination against the Democracy, who can name them? We cannot. The majority of them are men unheard of until now and some of them are wholly incompetent—men who have made no reputation at the bar or in any other line of endeavor, and who are unfitted to sit in judgment upon the lives and property of the people. The judiciary is the last refuge of the citizen. If it is incompetent or corrupt he is in danger of both his person and possessions, and we distinctly assert that some of the men who have been named for judges against the candidates of the Democratic party are entirely incompetent to discharge the duties of the places for which they have been nominated. Its judiciary has been in all times the pride and the glory of North Carolina and unless her people have become unworthy of their traditions they will not see the standard lowered this year.

Only second in importance to the judiciary is the Legislature. What changes in our statute laws and our whole system of administration would be made by a Legislature elected upon the idea of general opposition to the existing order of things, cannot possibly be foretold. We know, though, that such a Legislature would be dominated for the Populists by Marion Butler, and for the Republicans by Dr. J. J. Mott. We are not unmindful of the fact that it is now the understanding that Mr. Butler and Mr. Pritchard would be the controlling influences of such a body, but Dr. Mott is a stronger character and an abler man than Mr. Pritchard, and as the father of fusion—having espoused it two years ago while Mr. Pritchard was yet a straight out—he would quickly shove the latter in the background and in combination with Butler rule the Legislature. We should then have government in North Carolina not, as now, by the people, but by Mott and Butler. Mott is a natural boss and has had long years experience in the business. Butler has within two years developed into the most finished autocrat the State has ever seen. He is the supreme ruler of the Populist party in this State and his underlings obey him implicitly. Mott would simply take the Republican members of a fusion Legislature by the throat and choke them into submission by virtue of his superior force and capacity.

It is not alone that these two men would elect themselves to the United States Senate. That, heaven knows, would be bad enough; but the United States Senate cannot hurt or help us half as much as can the Legislature of North Carolina, and well might the State tremble for what would be meted out to it through the Legislature by these two men intoxicated with victory and animated by the spirit of revenge. The work of years would be overturned and a new order of things instituted. An intolerable autocracy would be set up and the true people, who have once since the war rescued the Common wealth from bankruptcy and disgrace, would see their work destroyed and themselves placed under ban. We cannot draw the picture of what would be, for no one knows. If we could we would roar from it in horror and the spectacle would startle every beholder.

God save the State!—Ex.

BUCK KITCHIN'S CALOMEL.

GOLDSBORO, N. C. Oct. 22.—Buck Kitchin gave a performance in this town on Saturday.

Saturday is a stirring day, and the commerce of our county towns hum on this old Jew Sunday.

There was a swarm of country folks in town, but the attendance on Buck's show was slim.

Many who went were old school Democrats who are fond of the humorous phases of Buck, and who, on the whole, love to laugh at a ridiculous thing.

In the ring with Buck was Dr. W. Patrick Exum, surgeon general of the North Carolina branch of Coxey's Army.

Surgeon General Exum is the same Exum who, while running for Governor, stomped his toe against the Democratic party and fell sprawling.

After the election and fall of the doctor, he said: "If the people in the county felt as I do, the streets of Goldsboro would run knee-deep with blood."

Though Dr. Pat threatened this knee-deep frasset of blood, a proposition, authorized by act of Legislature, to issue $50,000 in bonds for a system of sewerage was defeated. It was impossible to awake even a timid people to a sense of danger or to the necessity of blind ditches to carry off the blood.

The surgeon general will talk. He probably talks more and does less harm than any man on earth.

Enough of the surgeon general. Let us quietly and prayerfully turn to Buck for a few moments. How far Buck is yet reconciled to political association with Mr. Marion Butler, Duke of Sampson and Earl of Wayne, is not apparent since Buck, a few weeks ago, remarked to a friend of mine, in Goldsboro: "I've been in the Populist party long enough to find out that Marion Butler is a d—d scoundrel."

Then he "cuss'd" Cleveland some more.

Then he felt much better. In eastern North Carolina it is generally admitted that Buck is acting on the advice of his family physician.

Buck is of a bilious temperament, his system being so tough that it resists the medicinal properties of the most drastic cathartics.

While medicine had failed, Buck's physician discovered that the "cuss'in" of Cleveland in large doses, before and after each meal, relieved the torpid condition and helped the liver correspondingly.

Buck doesn't hate the Democratic party. He is making a tour of the State simply that he may have a wider field in which to "cuss" Grover and thus improve the condition of his liver.—John R. Morris in Charlotte Observer.

VOTE THE TICKET.

The result of the election in North Carolina to the whole people is of stupendous importance. It really, and without exaggeration, would amount to something very nearly approaching a revolution if by the stupidity and blindness of the people voting that the control of public affairs should be taken from the great party that has saved the State and governed in wisdom and righteousness, and handed over to the unwise and reckless demagogues and incapables who have united, throwing all semblance of principle to the winds, for the one purpose, the sole purpose of getting off of, of securing grub and the distribution of spoils. It would not be a revolution of blood, but a revolution of radical wide, deep, broad that would amount to a cataclysm of ruin and robbery, says the Wilmington Messenger.

The thinking, sensible, honest, well-meaning people of North Carolina who would not bring upon the State a condition of disorder, of discontent, of extravagance, waste and incompetency, must unite and vote together—vote for the nominees of the party. As Senator Ransom said in his speech here throw away prejudice and preference and personal dislikes and burn them on the altar of your country. It is of the greatest importance that the party nominees should be voted for by every man calling himself a Democrat, and by every man who wishes well to his people and his self.

This is no time for splitting tickets and dropping names. You may find names on the tickets this year that are offensive to you against your preference and judgment. But do not throw them aside. Vote the ticket. This is necessary now almost beyond any other year because of the truly infamous conspiracy afoot to ruin and blast North Carolina. Put the Radicals again in power, and you will invite the flood of wasteful extravagance and high taxes to come in again with all of its destructive, oppressive power.

By failure to vote for a Democrat you in fact to that extent help to put in the vile combination of hungry office seekers who drop all pretense of principles to fasten their claws upon the vitals of North Carolina. Duty to yourself, duty to your family, duty to your State compel you to maintain your principles, vote the ticket and stand guard to the Democratic flag.

We repeat, the election and its results is of the utmost importance to the future weal of North Carolina. Your Legislature, two Senators, nine Representatives, the Judiciary and County Government and low taxes and public education are all at stake. Vote the ticket.—Oxford Ledger.

In a speech at Winston Saturday night Mr. J. C. Buxton, referring to the subject of hard times, warned the people that if the Republicans gained this election we would have such hard times that the depression through which we have passed would, in comparison, be reverted to as a sort of thanksgiving occasion. And Mr. Buxton is exactly right, except that he did not put it strong enough. No such distress and hard times has ever been witnessed in the United States as would result from the control of Republicans and Populists. Either would be bad but the two combined, would be confusion and worse confounded. From such an aggregation the people of North Carolina and the South have everything to fear. South Carolina, Colorado, Kansas and Oregon are samples of what can be expected. The result would be much worse if the whole country was turned over to the combination.—Salisbury Herald.

In order to bury Populism and Radicalism forever in North Carolina it is necessary for every Democrat to realize the fearful consequences of defeat in the coming election.

OPPOSED TO POPULISTS.

There is a very strong feeling among the most intelligent colored men against fusing with the populists, whom they say are only disappointed Democrats. One of the most intelligent colored men in this State is the editor of the Star of Zion, published at Salisbury and from which we copy the following:

"The history of the Populist movement shows that it has been inaugurated and carried on by a disgruntled element of the Democratic party which has changed in nothing except in name, only from bad to worse. All the crazy political freaks that disturb the public and the legislation which would unsettle, if not disrupt, our whole system of government, spring up and are advocated by the Populist element. They are generally as much, if not more, opposed to giving fair play to the negro than are intelligent and progressive Democrats. The reasons for this are apparent. The Populists are made up, as a rule, of the element of white people which has always been opposed to the progress and best interests of the negro. The action of the so-called white Republicans of Alabama, the votes of the Populist members of Congress and in the various State Legislatures on all questions which concern the negro give evidence that there is nothing in that party, or a coalition with that party, that will prove of benefit to the negro. There are only two parties that can hope to have any show of success in this country for years to come. Those are the grand old Republican party which once stood for human rights and fair play, and the Democratic party which is now in control of national affairs. The history of the two parties is before every intelligent citizen. He who can't find what suits him in the one should try the other, since any other course amounts to little more than labor lost.

We advise colored men who can't find it convenient to act with and for the Republican party to either let politics alone or endeavor to make some sort of deal with their Democratic friends as will give them a chance to exercise the right of franchise in a manner that will promote the best interests of the country and State.

The time will come, if it is not already here, when colored men will find it to their advantage to act with the Democrats in some matters, especially those pertaining to local and State affairs. As between Democrats and Populists we prefer straight-out Democracy with all that the term implies, to Populism. The Democrats have set the Republicans an excellent example. When they were out of power and in the minority they kept their organization intact, nominated candidates each year and continued the fight until victory came. If the Republicans even here in North Carolina will only do likewise, return to the old landmarks, preach and practice Republican doctrine as it was in the days of Lincoln, Sumner and Grant, and the doctrine of a free and untrammelled vote and fair count for every lawful citizen, with modified protection to American laborers and American institutions they are sure to win.

What They Think of Each Other.

We give below Marion Butler's opinion of the Republican party in his exact words, copied from his paper of July, 1892, as follows: "Now a word to these who have joined the People's party: What is there to be gained for reform by defeating the Democratic State ticket? Nothing, but much to lose, let the result be what it may. If you elect your ticket, you do it at the sufferance of the Republican party, and you are at their mercy now and in the future. If you are the cause of the Republican party capturing the State you have given a heavy blow to the cause of reform and put the management of your State in unworthy and incapable hands. Let not those who want office more than they do reform precipitate you into taking any such unwise action."

We would ask our Republican friends what they think of the above words. "Unworthy and incapable hands"—pretty strong language that.

The Republicans in their national hand-book denounce the Populists as "communists and anarchists." What do our Populist friends think of that!

Take the Populist opinion of the Republicans, and the Republican opinion of the Populist, and we wonder how there can be a fusion between the two parties. It is a strange mixture. It can be explained in no other way than that both parties want to beat the Democrats and are willing to stoop to any thing to do it.—Concord Times.

PONDER WELL WHAT YOU DO.

If there has been a single sensible reason yet given why men should desert and vote against the Democratic party in North Carolina, we haven't seen it. There is none. The record is too plain, so plain that every man must see it. He can't help it. The party in North Carolina has stood for and pledged an economical and honest government. Where is the man who can deny and prove that it has failed to keep its pledges? Every man knows that taxation is now lower in North Carolina than in any other State in the Union, that justice is dealt out from our courts, that the laws are administered in the best possible way, that Democratic officers have without exception been faithful to every trust, that the whole department of government has been administered in a proper, honest and economical way. When a man denies these facts it is in order to ask him for some proof to substantiate his statement. Populist editors and speakers deny it all, but offer not a single instance in which a trust has been betrayed.

Men of North Carolina who have passed through the experience of the last thirty years should be slow to turn against this party which has been the salvation of the State. If they will but stop and reflect, and bring to bear their common sense and experience, they will not do so. We are not surprised that buyers, irresponsible men, and place hunters should do as they are doing, seeking to destroy the only party that can and will govern the State well. But why in the world sensible and honest men who are seeking only the welfare of their State should for a moment hesitate to give their entire support to the Democratic party, we cannot see.

No matter how men of North Carolina are divided on National issues, all true men should come together and make a solid unit for the best State government. While every man should have an interest in National affairs, his supreme interest should center in his State government. Let us not lose sight of this truth. Even were the National Democratic party opposed to our interests, and that party, as a State party, could give us the best State government, then it would clearly be to our interest to support that party. There are many men who oppose the national party, however unwisely, but they must admit that the Democratic party is the best one in North Carolina.

And this is the important point with us. North Carolina must be kept in safe hands. Where can any improvement be made by a change? And if there is no improvement there will certainly be a retrogression, a backsliding, a return to the corrupt, extravagant and ruining methods of Radicalism. Men who love their State will think twice before they do anything to wrench it from the party that has given it all which it now possesses.

The Populists are in favor of the Australian Ballot System.

The Populist here are bitterly denouncing that they are in favor of the Australian ballot system. They are very ignorant of their own platform, or they are not taking the truth. They may take whichever horn of the dilemma they choose.

Now this is a matter very easily proven. Their own county paper publishes every week the last platform and utterance of the national People's party. What does that say? Here it is, and it is copied verbatim from the Cabarrus Populist's bible, the Vestibule: "Resolved, That we demand a free ballot and a fair count in all elections and pledge ourselves to secure it to every legal voter without Federal intervention, through the adoption by the States of the unperverted Australian or secret ballot system."

The Pops. considered it so very important that they put it in the very first resolution in the platform. If there is any one who doubts that this is the exact wording of the platform, let him get any copy of the Vestibule and see for himself.

Now, this platform of the Populist not only declares for the Australian ballot but it declares in favor of the "unperverted Australian or secret ballot system." That is, the Simon-pure article, as it originated and exists in Australia, and not as it has been changed and perverted in New York and other States.

be in separate compartments; the ballots are all printed on one paper by the State, and each voter is allowed to have only one ballot only one voter is allowed in the booth at once; each voter is required to make a mark exactly in a certain place indicating the persons on the ballot they wish to vote for.

These are the main features of the system. Any one can see at a glance that this would prevent any one from voting who could not read. It would not only do this, but its intricacies would prevent many others more intelligent from exercising their rights at the ballot box. It would practically disfranchise a large number of both colored and white people, but of course it would affect a larger number of colored people than whites.—Concord Times.

POPULIST SHOULD PONDER WELL.

We have never thought or believed otherwise than that there were thousands of good, well-meaning citizens in North Carolina who have united with the Populists. We would never intimate otherwise says the Wilmington Messenger. They are unfortunate in being most unwisely led. A part of their principles are sound and safe, but most unfortunately they are so blended with other dogmas that are revolutionary and destructive as to repel tens of thousands of people in all the States who would wish them success if their ends were indeed wise, practical and beneficial.

We feel assured that in every county good men, religious men even, men of character and who are at heart patriotic, are following the Populist leaders. They are following blinded and ignorant men who have no real genius for government, but who are self-seekers, ill-balanced, disappointed and ambitious. No wise and conscientious and sincere believers in fundamentals of the People's Party would ever unite with the Republican party that antagonizes its principles at every turn. The good and true men among the Populists ought to spurn and repudiate with hot indignation this base betrayal—this wholesale surrender to the radicals. If this worthy element will look at the matter in the white light of truth they must see how glaring and false and foul the act that unites a party originated in reform with a party entrenched for more than thirty years behind the very principles the Populists fight and denounce. In all the history of parties there has never been such a shameful surrender that authorizes every honest man to believe it to be steeped in fraud and corruption.

Then to think of Eastern men—good honest farmers—living in counties once so harried and robbed and ruined by the Radicals and their negro allies between 1866-76, to be hob-nobbing, to be hurrahing with the Butler-Radical gang pledged to a repeal of the present system of County Government and making it certain that the old era of ruin, of high taxes and open rascality will be returned with all of its death to prosperity, peace and safety.

The Messenger would say into every good man, every true citizen among the Populists—to every patriot and friend of humanity—don't. Never agree to unite with your old devilish enemy to oppress and vex and injure your Democratic neighbors of a life time. Do not bring hurt and sorrow upon yourselves.—Oxford Ledger.

A Negro Editor's Opinion of Fusion.

The editor of Maxton Blade, a Republican newspaper edited by a colored man, is opposed to fusion and doesn't hesitate to "talk out in meetin'" about the men who are trying to sell out his race and drive them like cattle into the Populist camp. He is a Republican of the straightest sect, but sees no good for the negro in this new doctrine. We quote from a late issue of his paper:

"Ever since colored men were clothed with the robes of citizenship the white Republicans have taught them that it was a crime to vote any other than a straight Republican ticket, and now because they persist in doing what they have been taught to do, they are called rebels. They refuse to be driven into the Populist camp, and for this they are called all manner of hard names. The fact is, the white Republicans are the rebels; they are the traitors, for they are seeking to sell the colored vote to the Populist party. They will not be able to deliver the goods, however."

George L. Tonoffski, for years prominent as a local Republican at Raleigh and more recently as a Populist, is out in a card saying he can't stand fusion and will cast his lot with the Democrats.

We are sorry to learn that the farmers are showing a disposition to rush their cotton to market, when it is not absolutely necessary to do so.

There is no doubt that the size of the crop is over-estimated, and that the present low price is due to the general belief that an enormous crop has been raised. This report is, we believe, untrue, but it has been industriously circulated by agents of foreign spinners and brokers who find it to their advantage to do so.

Cotton is low simply because the size of the crop is over-estimated. The market and the producer are demoralized by this report and until this feeling is improved there is little reason to look for and advance in prices.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Public Schools in Jeopardy.

The public schools in North Carolina are in jeopardy. The fusionists talk well enough about their devotion to the cause of education, but there can be no doubt that the combination of incapacity and rascality would fritter away and steal the money that ought to go to the little children of the State. The Republican record in regard to public schools in North Carolina is well known. In 1868 they collected $35,866.01 for public schools; in 1869, $167,568.18 and 1870, $203,411.01, making a total of $406,411.01 collected in the three years, of which only $38,981.86 was spent for common schools.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Let the old Confederate soldier remember when he goes to vote that the Democratic party in North Carolina last year paid $95,000 in pensions to the Confederate soldiers and their widows. Do you think the fusion crowd, which is composed of leading Republicans, your old enemies, and some sore-head Democrats, will give a cent to pension the old worn out Confederates and their widows? No, no, not a cent.—Concord Times.

Eugene Field says: "We have no hesitancy in declaring that the newspaper writer who can write a timely newspaper article just now without offending somebody is a daisy from Daisysville, Daisy county."

CAPTURED A PORCUPINE.

A Tennessee Farmer Obtains an Odd Subject for Exhibition.

Jack Landslow, of District fifteen, Dyer county, Tenn., has struck a piece of unprecedented good luck. Early one morning he picked up a hatchet and started out to the woodpile to cut some kindling for his wife. As he stepped from the kitchen he was considerably surprised to see a large hemlock porcupine climbing a tree about ten feet from the door.

Jack had often heard of a porcupine's tail is cut off while the animal is in the act of climbing it will stop and either refuse to climb higher or descend. As the prickly little animal was only about four feet from the ground Jack had no trouble in springing forward and with a quick blow of the hatchet severing the tail of the porcupine in twain.

Sure enough the animal ceased its ascent and remained in the same position. A porcupine is rarely seen in that section of country, and was therefore quite a curiosity to Tennesseeans. Jack's neighbors soon heard of the porcupine and came to see it. Landslow could see no reason why he should not make some money out of the thing, so he placed a twelve-foot, peep-light board fence around it and charged ten cents admission. He made several dollars a day with his prize.

The animal became accustomed to the spectators and would readily eat and drink from its master's hand. Landslow said he would cut off a section of the tree with the porcupine on it and carry the animal around and exhibit it but for the fact it is a valuable shade tree, and the porcupine might not be able to hold on long enough.

Signaling at Sea.

The British government is testing a new plan for signaling at sea. It consists merely of an ordinary gong fastened to the bow of the ship below the water line. This acts as a transmitter, and the receivers are gongs of exactly similar tone and rate of vibration, one on each side of the ship below the water line. The receiving gong will take up and reproduce the sound of the sending gong from a long distance. Signals already have been clearly transmitted ten miles.

Nitrogen Obtained from the Air.

Lord Rayleigh and Prof. Ramsay have announced the discovery of a new element. Nitrogen obtained from the air, it was observed, has a density different from that of nitrogen obtained from other sources. Nitrogen obtained from the atmosphere was accordingly treated with magnesium, with the result that the nitrogen was absorbed, but a residue remained. This residue was the new element—a dense and inert gas twenty-one times heavier than hydrogen and fifty per cent. heavier than nitrogen. Its spectrum is a single blue line more intense than the corresponding line of nitrogen. Prof. Dewar, the gas liquefier, is skeptical as to the new element, but confesses that in liquefying nitrogen he has always found it "clouded by a white

HEARTS WON.

BY BOHEMIAN.

Clip clip, went the whip. One of the most exciting races that ever took place in the county was on. Dashing around the country road came the black stallion, and in the light wagon were seated a couple whose destiny depended upon the speed of the thoroughbred.

"Oh, Jack, they are gaining," she breathed. Clip, clip. The stallion was straining every nerve. It was a stern chase and a long one.

"If pa does catch us, Jack, he'll kill you," she whispered. The wagon now was rocking like a boat in a storm, and she clung with both arms to his arm.

"See, Jack, he's got his gun!" Jack muttered something, pressed his lips more closely and again touched his whip to the flanks of the gallant nag.

"If the old hadn't changed horses on us, sweetheart, we'd have beaten him out of the county."

"That's so, the meanest man on earth."

"No, not that, Jack—"

"Then what does he want to come between us for? You belong to me, don't you?"

"Yes, but—"

"If that confounded dog hadn't barked we'd have got away all right."

"I thought he'd bitten you when he flew at you like that."

"Only got a piece of cloth for his trouble. Still it's embarrassing. If I had only an ulster to put on. Might trouble me to explain to the minister—"

"If we only get there," sighed the other.

"Get there? We will or die."

"Yes, die together."

Clip, clip. Patter, patter. The second vehicle was approaching closer. Another ten minutes and the race would be lost. Jack had apparently played for desperate stakes, and stood a good chance of losing.

"How much farther is it to the minister's, Jack?"

"Ten miles."

"Oh, dear, there's the tollgate."

Like a whirlwind the wagon dashed up to the low wooden structure. A man with sandy whiskers came out. Jack pressed a five-dollar bill into his hand.

"Never mind the change," he said. "Quick, lift the gate. It's life or death. You're a good friend of mine, Bill?"

"Ye-ou can bank on that, squire. I knowed your father and his father before him, and the family—"

"Don't waste a word then, Bill. Let me through."

"Elopement?"

"Old man back there?" Pointing to the approaching cloud of dust.

"Yes, yes."

"Pretty hot, I guess."

"Yes, quick, or—"

now on your thinking cap," he said, as calmly as ever.

The old gentleman ducked his head more than ever to save that valuable portion of his anatomy.

"Now I guess we can talk business," said Bill. "This ain't no battle, and it ain't your goin' to be stormed in that fashion. You haven't got the price?"

"Then you can't go through. Them's the orders."

For an hour they expostulated. At the end of that time another carriage approached and the old gentleman borrowed a nick from a friend and dashed on his way. The man at the tollgate would not surrender the gun, which he said had been raised against him and which he wanted as evidence. When the old gentleman reached the house of the minister the young couple and the reverend gentleman were strolling out of the front door. Jack surveyed his irate father-in-law calmly.

"You're a little late in getting here, father," he said. "We hoped to have the pleasure of your company, and indeed wanted you to give away your daughter, but time was pressing—and you understand the anxiety of a lover—so we decided not to wait. Still, at any rate have the satisfaction of being the first to congratulate us. There is my hand, sir. I thank you for your lovely daughter and trust that I may never prove unworthy of the confidence you have bestowed upon me. Edith, dear, receive the parental blessing."—Detroit Free Press.

Bound to Get the Train.

A young woman, jauntily dressed, wearing a natty suit, rushed into the union station the other afternoon. Taking a hurried glance at the walls of the room, she finally discovered the timepiece, and with an audible "Oh!" ran upstairs as fast as her already weakened strength would permit. She was nearly overcome by her exertions as she reached the exit to the platform. A large box and two bundles were all the impediments she carried. She was climbing aboard a train for Springfield, minding not the drops of rain that were drenching her costume, at the same time telling the brakeman, with spasmodic gasps, how she feared the horrid train would leave before she arrived, adding that she had an engagement in New Britain that she must not break. On learning that she was not on the New England side of the station, and had not time to go around, she tossed her luggage over the fence, and with an athletic bound sprang after it. She landed all right, and, making a dash, succeeded in boarding the train she sought just in time. Hats were off to the New Britain maiden.—Hartford Post.

So we progress from crude muscle and the tugging of sinews to the power of swift horses, tireless steam, and now stand on the threshold of the universal electricity, that has been back of all these forerunners, and is now fast supplanting them. There may be a pair or so of oxen again owned in town, but, like the getting out of the old tin lantern, it will be but a flickering remnant of a past already dead.

A BATTLE WITH CARP.

Green Grass an Excellent Bait for These Fish.

Carp have become so plentiful in the sloughs along the Columbia that fishermen have offered to supply farmers at Seapooche with any desired quantity for manure at five dollars per ton. No one can with justice call the carp a worthless fish after that. As tending to show how numerous the carp are in places, a farmer states that recently he was passing a slough with a lot of green

RELEGATED TO THE PAST. The Necessity for the Old-Time Ox Team Gone.

Inspector Whitmarsh has finished his oxen, and reports not one team of oxen owned in town, says the Easthampton (Mass.) News. Last year there was just one, which was sold for beef on the day after his call was made. This, the last team, was owned by Jarvis F. Burt. This vanishing of the heavy ox team marks an era in our progress just as surely, if not as noticeably, as the coming of steam after the stage coaches and canals, or the entrance of the electric car to supplement and in some respects displace the steam locomotive and the horse team. Years ago the farmer was not to be found who did not own an ox team and oftentimes more than one. Much of it was new sod, and the roads were far harder to travel than even at this date when we are apt to think them anything but good. But with the coming of better roads the more complete breaking of the fields, the invention of powerful machinery and cheap explosives for removing stumps and rocks, and more especially, the patenting of heavier horses, the patient ox has, like the Indian, gone out of our civilization gradually but surely, but, unlike the Indian, he has not gone west. To the little folks to-day the massive yokes, smooth and glistening with the labor of straining shoulders, are a curiosity. The big-tongued cart is almost as obsolete as the ox himself, and the long whip has gone with the "haw" and "hee" and "gee" and other strange terms of a now almost dead language. As, in so many other respects, classic reference to "Ox-eyed Juno" will have to be explained before long, with reference to the cow as the modern prototype, and undoubtedly the revisers will have it "Cow-eyed Juno" in the editions of a decade hence.

Subterranean London.

It gives an impressive idea what subterranean London is fast becoming to learn that, on emerging from the river, the new city and Waterloo line will, in its passage up Queen Victoria street, run for a part of the way underneath the low level main sewer, which, in its turn, runs along beneath the District Underground railway. So that at this point in the city we shall have first a busy main thoroughfare, below that a steam railway, then a huge metropolitan sewer, then an electric railway, reaching its terminus at a depth of about sixty-three feet below the streets, and here it will communicate with another line—the Central London—which lies at a depth of eighty feet.—London Daily News.

A BATTLE WITH CARP.

Green Grass an Excellent Bait for These Fish.

Carp have become so plentiful in the sloughs along the Columbia that fishermen have offered to supply farmers at Seapooche with any desired quantity for manure at five dollars per ton. No one can with justice call the carp a worthless fish after that. As tending to show how numerous the carp are in places, a farmer states that recently he was passing a slough with a lot of green grass in his cart. The grass slid off into the water, and the carp came around and began eating it. He jumped into the water with his pitchfork to throw the grass back on his cart, and a regular "pitched" battle took place between him and the carp for the possession of it. The carp ran him down, but he worked away like a Trojan, and managed to save about half of the grass, and with it pitched about half a ton of carp into the cart. The rest of the grass was eaten by the carp he did not catch. He was on his way to the city, and the grass was intended as a lunch for his horse. When he arrived here the carp among the wet grass were all alive and kicking, and he sold the lot to a Chinese fish dealer for two dollars and fifty cents. He thinks of repeating the experiment the next time he comes to the city.—Portland Oregonian.

Why Thomas Nast Will Draw Pictures for the British.

To those who are interested in cartoonists and their work it long ago became evident that Thomas Nast had ceased to be attractive to American readers, says the Detroit Free Press. His great reputation, made when he was the most popular caricaturist in America, would not sell his work in late years, and one failure was recorded only to be followed by another. Mr. Nast has gone to London to enter the service of the Pall Mall Gazette. A writer in the New York Sun explains his loss of prestige and popularity here by saying that he would not work in colors as a cartoonist, and he refused until the very last to give way to the requirements of the new school of caricaturists and cartoonists, which at the present time holds the ascendancy. Until the very last Mr. Nast insisted upon running his mottoes, rhymes and comments in the body of the picture, and his fondness for an elaborate framework of scrolls, lines and brackets could not be overcome. The publishers with whom he dealt endeavored to get him that the public required accurate drawing even more than novel ideas, but Mr. Nast continued his exaggerated style, so that gradually his work ceased to be in demand. It is not unlikely that he may succeed in catching the popular fancy in London, for the reason that the Londoners like black and white and line work in their cartoons. They have no colored illustrated journals, such as we have here, nor have they a school of young caricaturists who deal with questions of yesterday and to-day in the papers. They like political cartoons that are carefully thought out and thoroughly partisan in nature, and they accept them whether the drawing is good or bad.

The Reflector and Constitution $1.50.

WILL YOU HELP?

In the great contest which is to be fought between now and the next presidential election for THE PEOPLE'S MONEY—The Coinage of both Gold and Silver, without discrimination, which means the free coinage of both as opposed to the policy of contraction, which is being dictated by England, and which levies tribute on every product of the farm, on valuations of all kinds and on all compensation for labor.

The Great Issue now is the double standard against the single standard—the use of both gold and silver as standard money metals, against the organized effort to hold the currency of the country strictly to the gold basis.

THE ATLANTA CIRCULATION, 156,000. WEEKLY CONSTITUTION published at ATLANTA, GA., and having A CIRCULATION OF MORE THAN 156,000, chiefly among the farmers of the country, and going to more homes than any weekly newspaper published on the face of the earth is

The Leading Champion of the People in this as well as in other great contests in which they are engaged against the exactions of monopoly. By special arrangement with The Constitution the paper publishing this announcement is prepared to make A REMARKABLE CLUBBING OFFER, by which both this paper and The Constitution will be offered for one year at almost the price of a year's subscription to one paper.

BOTH PAPERS FOR $1.50.

THE CONSTITUTION IS THE BIGGEST AND BEST WEEKLY NEWS-PAPER published in America, covering the news of the world, having weeklies in every city in America, and in the capitals of Europe, and reporting in full the details of debates in congress on all questions of public interest. It is THE GREAT SOUTHERN WEEKLY NEWSPAPER, and as the exponent of southern opinion and the purveyor of southern news it has no equal on the continent.

THE CONSTITUTION'S SPECIAL FEATURES are such as are not to be found in any other paper in America. THE FARM AND FARMER'S DEPARTMENT, THE WOMEN'S DEPARTMENT, THE CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT, are all under able direction and are specially attractive to those to whom these departments are addressed. Under the editorial management of Clark Howell, its special contributors are writers of such world-wide reputation as Mark Twain, Bret Harte, Frank R. Stockton, Bill Chandler Harris, and hundreds of others, which it offers weekly service from such writers as Joel Arr Sarge Plunkett, Wallace P. Reed, Frank L. Stanton, and others, who give its literary features a peculiar Southern flavor that commends it to every fireside from VIRGINIA to TEXAS, from MISSOURI to CALIFORNIA.

Do Not Delay, but send your name now. If you are already a subscriber to your home paper, and you want The Constitution only, communicate with The Constitution direct, and send One Dollar for one year's subscription with your guess in the prize contest. You can get your home paper, however, publishing this, and The Constitution, for almost the price of one, and remember that all clubbing subscriptions must be sent to this paper and not to The Constitution.

THE CONSTITUTION is among the few great newspapers publishing daily editions on the side of the free coinage of silver, Believing that the establishment of a single gold standard will wreck the prosperity of the great masses of the people, though it may profit the few who have already grown rich by federal protection and federal subsidy.

Two Thousand Dollars in Cash Prizes!

To those who take advantage of this clubbing offer The Constitution will distribute Two Thousand Dollars in CASH PRIZES, by the following plan: We have placed in a sealed envelope in the keeping of the Treasurer of the State of Georgia, and locked in the great vaults of the State, a legal tender note, which like all federal paper currency is numbered, each note of every denomination issued by the government having its own number. The number on this particular note is composed of eight figures, and on the arrangement of these figures as they appear on the note depends the distribution of the two thousand dollars in prizes offered.

The following figures compose the number of the note: 5-3-4-0-1-0-7-8 though of course they are not given here in the order in which they appear on the note. To those who in sending with their subscriptions a rearrangement of these figures so as to give the number as it is on the note, we will distribute prizes as follows:

- $1,000 IN CASH to the person who gives the number of the note.
$500 IN CASH to the person who comes second nearest.
$250 IN CASH to the person who comes third nearest.
$100 IN CASH to the person who comes fourth nearest.
$50 IN CASH to the person who comes fifth nearest.
$30 IN CASH to the person who comes sixth nearest.
$15 IN CASH to the person who comes seventh nearest.
$10 IN CASH to the person coming eighth nearest.
$5 IN CASH to the person coming ninth nearest.
$5 IN CASH to the person coming tenth nearest.
$5 IN CASH to the person coming eleventh nearest.
$5 IN CASH to the person coming twelfth nearest.
$5 IN CASH to the person coming thirteenth nearest.
$5 IN CASH to the person coming fourteenth nearest.
$5 IN CASH to the person coming fifteenth nearest.
$5 IN CASH to the person coming sixteenth nearest.

Each of these prizes will be delivered in cash, subject to the following conditions: (1st). Each guess must accompany a clubbing subscription to the paper publishing this announcement and The Constitution at the above announced clubbing rate, which must be in cash. (2d). All clubbing subscriptions must be sent through the paper making this publication and not to The Constitution. (3d). This offer is to be closed on the first of May, 1895, and guesses received with subscriptions after that time will not be counted in the distribution of these prizes. (4th). Should there be any ties in the guesses, the prizes will be divided. (5th). Every new or renewal subscription to either of the two papers will be entitled to a guess with every subscription.

THE CONSTITUTION heartily advocates an EXPANSION OF THE CURRENCY. Until there is enough of it in circulation to do the legitimate business of the country. If you wish to help in shaping legislation to these ends, GIVE THE CONSTITUTION YOUR ASSISTANCE, lend it a helping hand in the fight, and remember that by so doing you will help yourself, help your neighbors, and help your country!

AS A NEWSPAPER: THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION has no equal in America! Its news reports cover the world, and its correspondents and agents are to be found in almost every balwick in the Southern and Western States. AS A MAGAZINE: It prints more such matter as is ordinarily found in the great magazines of the country than can be gotten even from the best of them. AS AN EDUCATOR: It is a school house within itself, and a year's reading of THE CONSTITUTION is a liberal education to any one. AS A FRIEND AND COMPANION: It brings cheer and comfort to the fireside every week, is eagerly sought by the children, contains valuable information for the mother, and is an encyclopedia of instruction for every member of the household.

Prof. Goode has only had charge of this school for about two months and it was surprising to see how progressive everything was. Programmes were distributed and Prof. Goode and his excellent assistants took seats with the audience. Each pupil came out recited, played or read without the least confusion, and without prompting from an instructor. For instance, a little girl would go to the piano, fix her own music, render her selection perfectly, and retire without the assistance of any one. All other parts passed in the same manner.
Every selection of the programme was faultlessly rendered and the audience was delighted.
Prof. Goode was wise in the selection of his teachers and they are proving themselves capable of the very best work in their respective departments.

Polk Miller.
One of the largest audiences that has assembled in the Opera House for some time greeted Polk Miller in his entertainment for the benefit of the Odd Fellows on Monday evening. His impersonations of the negro character and dialect were perfect, his humorous stories of plantation life were almost side-splitting, and his songs with banjo accompaniment captured everybody. We have not heard our people express themselves so delighted with any entertainment as with Polk Miller's.
The Fusionist Method.
The straightout Republicans had a big barbecue and rally over at Parker's X Roads, on Saturday. John H. Williamson, of Franklinton, was present to make them an address. The fusionists hired one of the negro bands to go over to try and break up the meeting and draw the darkies over to town. The presence of the band infuriated the crowd and armed with sticks and pieces of fence rails they made a rush for the wagon. But for the timely interference of Williamson there might have been serious trouble. While he was urging the crowd back the band put whip to their mules and cleaned up for town. It is reported that the fusionists have tried to interfere with all the meetings of the straightouts.
