A Mrs. Williams, at Columbus, O., murdered two of her children by cutting their throats from ear to ear. The postoffice at South Omaha, Neb., was robbed of $3,000 cash, registered letters and stamps. The N. C. Presbytery meets in Newbern April 9th to 19th. Reduced rates over the railroad to those who attend. The Methodist parsonage at Pleasant Grove, in Union county, was destroyed by fire Wednesday. The fire was caused by a defective flue. The city of Richmond has donated $10,000 for the purchase of a site for a monument to Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, the great Confederate cavalry leader. An old man named Reams, from Virginia, was waylaid and murdered in Nash county on Sunday. His assassin believed that he had money with him. On the next Sunday after the Shenwell-Payne tragedy the pastor of the Methodist church of Lexington preached a sermon against capital punishment. Capt. J. V. Wallace of Morehead City, has a duck that is laying black eggs. She has laid fifteen and is laying yet. The eggs bear the appearance of having been dyed. A cyclone blew down a negro church in Georgia in which a school was in progress. The teacher and forty pupils were buried under the falling timbers and every one of them was taken out alive. Hon. H. A. London has been invited to deliver the address here on Memorial Day, subject Maj. General Bryan Grimes. Mr. London is an editor, a lawyer and a fluent speaker. We trust he may accept—Washington Gazette. While up in her room attending to her infant child near midnight Mrs. C. H. Whorton, who lives on P. Hook street, was struck in the arm by a pistol ball fired from inside the lock by one of them. It fortunately inflicted but a slight flesh wound.—Newbern Journal. Capt. E. B. Willis of the sharpie Ada Foster of Morehead City was in luck on catching croakers Friday at Cape Lookout. At one haul at ten o'clock in the morning he caught fifteen thousand. His son in another boat at the same time caught ten thousand.—Newbern Journal. Mr. David Weaver, of Steel Creek, is in a serious condition. He and a young boy were out chopping wood, when the boy's axe slipped, striking the old man on the leg, and inflicting such a wound that it is feared he will never recover.—Charlotte Observer. The fishermen tell us that fishing has been almost a complete failure this season. When the nets were first put out the freeze came and destroyed nearly all of them. And the run of fish has been small. Taking the small number of nets in use and the light run the season has been a failure.—Washington Progress. Kingston Free Press. A fusionist legislator who was asked by his constituents on his return home what the legislature had done, replied that it had made many good laws, but that "Old Grover Cleveland had voted them." No doubt he had constituents credulous enough to believe this. The building and loan associations of the city had a meeting and decided to bring action to test the law in regard to the act to regulate assignments. Mr. C. L. Hunter will bring action for the Mutual Building and Loan Association. The case will be tried at Lincoln court before Judge Robinson, and will be taken immediately to the Supreme Court.—Charlotte Observer.

Everybody noticed how dear the late Senator Vance became to the hearts of the Republicans and Populists—after he died. They lauded him in their speeches last year and turned his utterances against the Democratic party. Yet their Legislature not only made no provision for a monument for him, nor for a statue of him in one of the State's vacant niches in the capitol building at Washington, but it did not even go on record with an expression of a sense of the State's loss on account of his death. This paper and others suggested directly after his death, that the next ensuing Legislature should fill one of the State's niches in the capitol building with a statue of Senator Vance, and if the Democrats had had the Legislature this would have been actively urged and such provision would have been made. The expense would have been provided for and without increase of the rate of taxation, either.—Charlotte Observer.

It is not surprising to learn that the abandonment of the State Fair is under consideration. For a number of years it rested upon the check book of Hon. Thos. M. Holt, who has spent more money, in one way and another, without any return, for the advancement of North Carolina interests, than any except a very few people have any idea of. Last year it cost Col. Julian S. Carr large money. Citizens of large wealth undoubtedly were more to the State than those in humble circumstances, but there is no reason in asking the wealthiest citizen to go on indefinitely in his expenditures for purely public purposes.—Charlotte Observer.

According to the New York Press Mr. Charles Broadway Rouss is now so blind that he cannot recognize his dearest friends. He has to be led about. But he goes to business every day and never forgets to ask: "Does anybody need anything, this morning? Are there any letters from the old veterans who fought for the South?"—Richmond Dispatch.

One of the most ludicrous acts of the late Assembly of confusionsist was one to established the Grand United order of Gallinham fishermen of North Carolina. The fact is for the benefit of a charitable object and the author of the bill spelled the name of our State as it is now engrossed and above spelled.—Raleigh Press.

Deafness Cannot be Cured. By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; in nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, Etc.

Up in the Air.

A company has just been incorporated at Springfield, O., for the discovery of the heirs of the vast Holmes estate in England, said to be worth $400,000,000. It was left by James Holmes, a South sea trader, and William Himrod, of New York, is said to be one of the heirs. The odds are 100 to 1 that there is no such estate. Similar announcements are made from time to time, and thousands of people in this country have been misled by unscrupulous swindlers. There are no estates in England worth millions of dollars awaiting American claimants. Our ministers and consuls have frequently made this statement, but it has no effect. Just so long as people love money and lack common sense and information they will be the victims of the lawyers and agents who work the unclaimed estate racket. In the past few years it has been announced that various persons in Georgia were attempting to recover million-dollar inheritances in Europe. Not one ever succeeded. They spent what money they could spare on the agents who were swindling them, and that was the last of it. People hunting big estates as a rule, will only to accumulate them by their own efforts.—Atlanta Constitution.

About Advertising.

An exchange says the following on this important subject: It is continous effort that pays in advertising as in everything else. A business man doesn't keep his store open one day in the week, or one week in the month, or three months in the year. If he advertises that way that is the impression people will get. It is continuous that has made each letter in the word "Royal" before the words "Baking Powder" worth over $2,000,000. The owner of Royal Baking Powder recently received $12,000,000 for his business—a business built up and fostered by persistent advertising. People are very forgetful. They have to think pretty hard to remember the vice presidential candidate two campaigns back, and yet he was pretty well advertised at the time. It has been truly said that the time to advertise is all the time. In business there is no such thing as standing still. A business man must go forward or he will fall back. Even if you do just as much business this year as you did last, some other fellow is doing more business and he is getting ahead of you.

Did You Ever See—

A lazy man who had time? A young man who didn't know? An old man who didn't remember? A politician who wouldn't promise? A pretty girl who didn't look saucy? A town go forward rapidly when part of its people pull against the other part? Any kind of weather over which somebody did not grumble? A man who did not know exactly just how every other business ought to be run except his own? A mother who felt that her boy was to blame for anything? A candidate who did not think he was the man until after the election? Saved the Building. The Methodist church in Rolesville had a narrow escape from destruction by fire, one day recently. A few shingles were dislodged by a wind gust and fell on the roof. There was no ladder convenient, so Mr. Latner Rogers who was near by climbed a tree, crawled out on a limb projecting over the church and jumped down on the roof a distance of ten feet. A boy climbed the tree and hauled water down to Mr. Rogers by the bucket with a rope attached. Mr. Rogers was not injured in his leap and the church was in this way saved from destruction.—Raleigh Press.

Just 1895 Years Ago.

The year 1895, according to some, will be a remarkable one, both from an astronomical and religious point of view. On next Friday—Good Friday—April 12, the heavenly bodies which gravitate around the sun will be in exactly the same position they occupied in the firmament the day Christ died on the cross. It will be the first time such a thing has occurred since that great day, just 1862 years ago.

High Salaried Men.

The highest salaried employe in the United States is supposed to be the president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, Henry B. Hyde. He receives annually $100,000. John A. McCall gets $75,000 to be president of the New York Life. Samuel Spencer receives $50,000 a year for selling Pierson Morgan what he knows about railroads. Mr. Cleveland receives $50,000 and a house and lot for being President. Dr. De Pew's salary as president of the New York Central Railroad is believed to be $50,000. Cornelius Vanderbilt's cook receives $15,000 a year. The sheriff of New York used to make $100,000 and over every year but his wings have been clipped. Masini receives $50,000 a season for singing his mighty tenor in Madrid. Jean de Reszke received $5,000 for singing one song.—The "Salut de-mour" from "Fenet." Patti's contract called for $3,000 a night when she was at the height of her fame, but she had to give $500 of it to her agent. Taral the jockey, has made $30,000 in a single season. President Felix Faure, of the French republic receives $250,000 a year. Admiral Greer's pay is $6,000. An English general's pay is $27,500 a day and the pay of an English admiral is $19,000 a year. Ambassador Bayard receives $17,500 a year. Sir Julian Pauncefote, British ambassador to this country receives $30,000 per annum. Britain's ambassador to France, the best paid diplomatic personage in the world, receives $50,000 a year.

World's Proverbs.

If you would be a sage among fools, never express an opinion. It is easier to win applause than to make converts. When the rack is empty the milk pail leaks. One dyspeptic stomach can sour a whole family. Man has a reputation to make, woman but one to lose. Few have sufficient command of language to know when to keep still. Killing time is the commonest kind of fool suicide. The world cannot afford to do without reasonable pleasures. Fashion cares less for what you say about its character than about its clothes. Read what you write when it is cold, and you may not be so warm over it.

A Thought for the Day

What is the care for gossip? Simply culture. Good natured people talk about their neighbors because, and only because, they have nothing else to talk about. Everybody must talk about something. On some subject or another everybody must have something to say or give up society, and out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. That of which the mind is full—that with which it is furnished—will come out in expression. The very simple reason why the world is full of gossip is that those indulge in it who have nothing else in them. So it is that the true cure for gossip is culture.—Dr. J. G. Holland.

A LONG SWIM.

Afloat for Four Hours Upon the Atlantic in December. When the conversation fell upon the Elbe and Gasconne and the narrow chance of escaping alive from a wreck in the wintry sea, the man from a far northern British province was moved, says the New York Sun, to tell the story of his piano tuner. The piano tuner earns his bread by traveling from point to point in the far northern province and tuning the few pianos owned in those parts. Something in his hearty manner and strong figure led one of his patrons to ask a few questions concerning his life, and piano tuner answered in effect thus: "I am a Maxman, and I have inherited a rugged constitution. I seldom wear gloves, even in your winters, and much of the time I go without an overcoat. For many years I followed the sea, and I had one adventure that few would have lived to tell of. It was a midnight of December when I was ordered aloft to stow the main royal, and before I knew what I was about I fell from the yardarm into the sea. "No one on deck had noticed my fall, and apparently no one had heard my cry, for the ship kept right on. There I was, with heavy boots and a heavy coat, alone amid the waves of the Atlantic. You may not believe me, but I did not get greatly alarmed. I managed to get out of my boots and coat, and then I began to swim to keep myself afloat. Somehow I felt that I should be saved. We had passed a vessel about sunset, and I thought she'd come along and pick me up. I had been a good swimmer all my life, and I kept afloat till daybreak, when that other vessel did come along and fish me out, four hours after I fell in. We got into New York three days after my ship arrived, and when I came aboard, as she lay at her wharf, my mates took me for a ghost."

Locating Icebergs.

The schemes and plans hit upon to assist in detecting the proximity of icebergs at sea are legion, but few of them are based on natural indications. For example, the captain of an ocean steamer in most cases finds out when a vessel is approaching an iceberg from the men down in the engine room. That sounds queer, but it is a fact, nevertheless. It appears that when a steamship enters water considerably colder than that through which it has been going its propeller runs faster. Such water usually surrounds the vicinage of bergs for many miles. When the propeller's action, therefore, is accelerated without steam power being increased, word is passed up to the officers on the bridge that bergs may be expected, and a close lookout for them is established. Such a phenomenon carefully studied is capable of being reduced to data which would give helpful warning.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

An Accomplished Man.

"Grandma, may I take that piece of chocolate you left on the table? I will be good!" "Yes, you may take it." "The little girl does not move." "Why don't you go and get it?" "Oh! grandma, dear, I ate it first!"—L'Annunciatore.

NO TIME.

A Writer's Interpretation of That Oft-Repeated Expression. Remarks That Apply Not to One Side of the House But to Two—Real Causes at the Bottom of the Difficulty. "Well, dear, have you read that article in the morning paper yet?" "My goodness, how could I? I am sure I have not had a moment to myself all day." "Not this evening, either?" "This evening?" Do you think a tired woman can read an abstruse philosophical article in the evening? I intended to finish my novel this evening if it were possible for me to be allowed so much indulgence. But, by the way, did you write that postal card to New York for those samples of tea?" "To-day? Now, dear, I suppose you think your samples of tea the only important matter I had to see to. I really had no time to-day. Let's see, where are my gloves? Did you sew the button on?" "Oh, Tom, do excuse me! I forgot it; but I will do it immediately." "I did not have time," usually means "I did not wish to take the time" to undertake anything that was unpleasant or uninteresting to do. And it is a remarkable fact that those people who have nothing serious to occupy their time have usually the least time, while those whose shoulders are already burdened with many cares learn to economize time, and always have a minute to spare to do a favor or to devote to another's interest. The young wife who had not the time to read her husband's article in the newspaper, which to him seemed important, but to her tiresome, would perhaps lament the next day, "that apparently endless evening, with nothing amusing to do," and the young husband who had not the time to send a postal card had perhaps looked at his watch a dozen times an hour to see whether the tedious office hours in which there was "really nothing doing to-day" were not nearly at an end. So it is in many cases, as well as in this; forgetfulness, disinclination, and consequent neglect are the real causes to which the excuse "no time" is so frequently and constantly applied.—Demorest's Magazine.

Repairing an Ocean Cable.

It is said that one submarine cable is laid at a depth of 18,000 feet. But there are at least three cables working at a depth of nearly 17,000 feet and four in about 16,000. The vast majority lie in water about 12,000 feet deep or less. Repairing a cable is hard work. The apparatus has also to be at once sensitive and strong. As is generally known, the point where calculation shows the brake or damage to have happened and then lowers a grapple, which it slowly drags across the route of the cable at right angles. As soon as a tension on the grapple rope is noted, due to catching the cable it has hooked, great pains have to be taken lest the precious treasure-trove slip off at any stage of its journey up to daylight. Special grapples have been devised for this important work. In one of the latest the prongs project from a hood like the claws of a crab or turtle. Should any of them come in contact with rock on the bottom of the sea they recede within the shield sufficiently to let the grapple slide over the obstruction. The writer has seen chunks of prehistoric granite as big as one's fist brought up by a clogged grapple from more than 1,000 fathoms of water. In this new grapple the prong, if it has hooked a bight of cable, will still hold on when it retracts into the shell.—N. Y. Advertiser.

Mohammedan Tree Worship.

To a certain degree the inhabitants of all the Mohammedan countries are worshippers of the tree known as the date palm. One of the prophet's most supreme and binding injunctions is: "Honor thy paternal aunt, the date palm, for in paradise was it created, and from the very heap of dust out of which Adam's body was formed." The Mohammedans also have a tradition to the effect that when Adam and Eve were driven from the garden they were allowed to take with them a date seed, and that from that single seed sprang all the date trees now known. By some admirable providence the original date seed was planted and the tree grew where the temple of Mecca now stands, and from its trunk was born the cradle which often lulled the infant Mahomet to sleep. The Mohammedans declare that all prayers are fulfilled which are made with the knees pressing upon palm wood, or with the same kind of wood in the hand.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Abraham Lincoln's Grandfather.

R. T. Durrett, of Louisville, at one time an editorial writer on the Courier-Journal, in a letter to City Controller Sturgeon, makes the following reference to the grandfather of Abraham Lincoln: "The grandfather of President Lincoln settled in Jefferson county, Ky., in 1780 on a tract of 500 acres of land, where the old Long Run Baptist meeting-house now stands. The land bears date of March 4, 1780, and his name appears in it as 'Abraham Linkhorn.' He was killed on his land by the Indians in 1788. Morgan Hughes also owned a tract of 500 acres of land adjoining the Lincoln tract, and like Lincoln, was one of the earliest settlers of Jefferson county. On this land of Hughes an old station, known as Hughes' station, was built at an early date, and Lincoln was residing in this station when he was killed by the Indians."

On Dangerous Ground.

"Judge," said the colored witness, "I wish you please, suh, make the lawyer stop pesterin' me!" "But he has a right to question you." "Dat may be, jedge, but I see got a kinder rattlin' in my head, en ef he station, wuz built at an early date, and Lincoln was residing in this station when he was killed by the Indians."

Juggling with Words.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U.S. Gov't Report. Some clever instances that have been preserved in English history—a little tit in verse between Oxford and Cambridge. Punning, or playing on words, though occasionally very clever, is a spurious kind of wit, says Peterson's Magazine. The following lines, however, by Lord Erskine upon Lady Payne introduce a similar play upon words: "The true I am ill, but I need not complain. For he never knew pleasure who never knew pain." The poet Stenhouse, author of the well-known lines about the warmth of a traveler's welcome to an inn, wrote this couplet upon a resident in the carpet weaving town of Kidderminster, who poured forth floods of verse: "The verses, friend, are Kidderminster stuff. And I must own you've measured out enough." James Smith is the author of a good epigram of the punning kind on a daughter who asked her father, as the dear girls do, for money: "Dear father, to gain money, sure wisdom is best. For dumb bells are fittest to open the chest." The rivalry between the universities of Oxford and Cambridge has expected, as might naturally be expected, many neat epigrams. Oxford, even as late as the reign of George I., was persistently Jacobite; and when the house of Hanover came in that famous "home of lost causes" favored the pretender. The king sent some cavalry to the city of Oxford to keep the peace, and about the same time his majesty happened to present a library to the University of Cambridge. Here was a chance for an epigram, which an Oxonian promptly availed himself of in these lines: "The king, observing with judicious eyes The state of both his universities, To Oxford sent a troop of horse, and why? To Cambridge books he sent, as well discerning, How much that loyal body would be learning." To which charge of lack of learning a Cambridge graduate cleverly replied: "The king to Oxford sent a troop of horse. For Oxford owns no armies but force. With equal skill to Cambridge books he sent. For whigs admit no force but argument. While on the subject of the universities it may be well to quote the following lines, which give a curious reason for the amount of learning possessed by Oxford and Cambridge: No wonder that Oxford and Cambridge profited In wisdom and science so richly abound, When all carry thither a little each day. And we meet with so few who bring any away. Dr. Parr, who attended on Queen Caroline to read prayers and perform other services, was succeeded in these duties by a man named Fellowes. Hence this epigram: There's a difference between These two, and the question is, Who's the doctor is jealous Of the little Fellowes? Whom the king thinks much above Parr. In a similar vein is the following epigram upon a certain Bishop Goodenough, who was about to preach before the house of lords: 'Tis well enough that Goodenough Before the lords should preach; For sure enough they're 'bout enough He undertakes to teach. Harry, I will not answer you at once. I will think the matter over. I will give you time. I feel that to accept you at once were too sudden.—Boston

Royal Baking Powder. ABSOLUTELY PURE. Fixing the price. The poet Stenhouse, author of the well-known lines about the warmth of a traveler's welcome to an inn, wrote this couplet upon a resident in the carpet weaving town of Kidderminster, who poured forth floods of verse: "The verses, friend, are Kidderminster stuff. And I must own you've measured out enough." James Smith is the author of a good epigram of the punning kind on a daughter who asked her father, as the dear girls do, for money: "Dear father, to gain money, sure wisdom is best. For dumb bells are fittest to open the chest." The rivalry between the universities of Oxford and Cambridge has expected, as might naturally be expected, many neat epigrams. Oxford, even as late as the reign of George I., was persistently Jacobite; and when the house of Hanover came in that famous "home of lost causes" favored the pretender. The king sent some cavalry to the city of Oxford to keep the peace, and about the same time his majesty happened to present a library to the University of Cambridge. Here was a chance for an epigram, which an Oxonian promptly availed himself of in these lines: "The king, observing with judicious eyes The state of both his universities, To Oxford sent a troop of horse, and why? To Cambridge books he sent, as well discerning, How much that loyal body would be learning." To which charge of lack of learning a Cambridge graduate cleverly replied: "The king to Oxford sent a troop of horse. For Oxford owns no armies but force. With equal skill to Cambridge books he sent. For whigs admit no force but argument. While on the subject of the universities it may be well to quote the following lines, which give a curious reason for the amount of learning possessed by Oxford and Cambridge: No wonder that Oxford and Cambridge profited In wisdom and science so richly abound, When all carry thither a little each day. And we meet with so few who bring any away. Dr. Parr, who attended on Queen Caroline to read prayers and perform other services, was succeeded in these duties by a man named Fellowes. Hence this epigram: There's a difference between These two, and the question is, Who's the doctor is jealous Of the little Fellowes? Whom the king thinks much above Parr. In a similar vein is the following epigram upon a certain Bishop Goodenough, who was about to preach before the house of lords: 'Tis well enough that Goodenough Before the lords should preach; For sure enough they're 'bout enough He undertakes to teach. Mohammedan Tree Worship. To a certain degree the inhabitants of all the Mohammedan countries are worshippers of the tree known as the date palm. One of the prophet's most supreme and binding injunctions is: "Honor thy paternal aunt, the date palm, for in paradise was it created, and from the very heap of dust out of which Adam's body was formed." The Mohammedans also have a tradition to the effect that when Adam and Eve were driven from the garden they were allowed to take with them a date seed, and that from that single seed sprang all the date trees now known. By some admirable providence the original date seed was planted and the tree grew where the temple of Mecca now stands, and from its trunk was born the cradle which often lulled the infant Mahomet to sleep. The Mohammedans declare that all prayers are fulfilled which are made with the knees pressing upon palm wood, or with the same kind of wood in the hand.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE REFLECTOR
Greenville, N. C.

D. J. WILSON, Editor and Proprietor.
Entered at the postoffice at Greenville N. C., as second-class mail matter.
WEDNESDAY APRIL 10th, 1895.

In several States municipal elections were held the first of this week. The weather seems to have been unfavorable for Democrats.

It is now said that the decision of the Supreme Court on the income tax law will be that it is Constitutional except as to income derived from realty rents and municipal bonds.

There is some talk of nominating Morrison for the Presidency. He is really the father of tariff reform and as the additional qualification of favoring the free coinage of silver.

Governor Carr has commenced proceedings as a private citizen of North Carolina against the Secretary of State to prohibit the printing of the mortgage law alleging that it was fraudulently passed by the Douglasites.

Another evidence of the ignorance of the Clerks of the Legislature is shown from the fact that they locate eight townships in Jackson county in Johnson county, and the Magistrates for these townships have been certified for Johnson and would have to be sworn in this county, one by one their errors are coming to light.

The new charter of Raleigh does not exempt any property from taxation. It makes no difference for what purpose it is held. All the church property and the property of all societies is taxed just as other property. The people of the Capital City are very indignant over the matter. It is hard to imagine any evil which the legislature could have done which they did not do.

Alas! how the mighty do tumble occasionally. Gen. William Mahone, of Virginia, who was on almost constant campaign around Washington while Congress was in session, trying to unload a city lot on the government for a fabulous sum, has gone back to his home in Petersburg and executed a deed of assignment. His family figures conspicuously among the preferred creditors.

Senator Cook who was elected Judge of the new criminal district formed in the east, was sworn in Monday by Judge Montgomery of the Superior Court. Mr. Cook had no commission and it was an unusual proceeding for a Judge to administer the oath of office to a man who had no commission, but such was done Monday by the non-partisan Judge of the non-partisan Supreme Court. It is probably without precedent, and looks like Mr. Cook will be put in when his case comes before this august body—non partizan Supreme Court.

Governor Carr has taken a hand in reference to the mortgage matter to see if he cannot come to the relief of the people who are now oppressed by this nefarious legislation. He has written a letter to the Attorney General asking if he has got the power to institute proceedings against the Secretary of State restraining him from furnishing for publication the act known as "An Act to regulate assignments and other conveyances of like nature in North Carolina" until it could be determined whether it passed the Legislature and whether its enrollment was procured by fraud and forgery.

The last Legislature appointed three additional Magistrates in every township. They were to go into office on April 1st, 1895. If any of them have not qualified the office is vacant, says the News and Observer, and they cannot now be sworn in by the Clerk of the Court. It would be illegal for him to attempt to do so. This vacancy can only be filled by the Governor where a Magistrate fails to qualify in the time specified by law. Will we guess the Governor will not make many appointments as they would be useless, we already have plenty of Magistrates. It will be saving much expense to the State to leave these offices vacant. No credit, however, ought to be given the Legislature for this saving of expense.

The Richmond Dispatch
printed much of its Bismarck birthday news in German.

It looks like the Senatorial contest in the Delaware Legislature is going to hang on indefinitely. They continue to ballot every day without arriving at any result.

The outlook now is that there will not be any great interest in the town election to be held the first Monday in May. The new town charter which was put through the Douglas Legislature changes the wards so that the control of municipal affairs can be taken out of the hands of Democrats and turned over to Republicans. What the outcome of this is to be cannot now be predicted with any degree of certainty, but judging from the way Republicans have always managed things wherever they had control not much good can be hoped for. The REFLECTOR would say this much to the Democrats, however: There is to be an entire new registration during this month. Let every man of you see that his name is properly registered, put out a good ticket in every ward, and then do your best to elect that ticket even if the chances do seem against you.

Some of the Fusion clan headed by Richmond Pearson are in Raleigh trying to do something to relieve the Legislature from the odium that has come upon it from the passage of the mortgage law. So far they have only been able to arrive at the conclusion that it was passed by the Clerks, or somebody, they don't know who. They don't want to fix this on any of their own party but they can't connect anybody else with the transaction. The original bill as introduced by Mr. Smith, of Stanly, has been found, and shows that he had a clause excepting cash borrowed at the time of the execution and also for supplies, but the Finance Committee, whose chairman was the "reformer" Hileman, struck out this and left the bill as it now stands. So it will be seen that when introduced by a Democrat it was all right and protected the farmer, but when the Fusionists got a chance at it they "whacked" out these excepting clauses and gave it its present destructive effect. This would look as if they did intend it to apply to all transactions. Mr. Pearson first tried to get Gov Carr to call the Legislature to together to repeal the act, but the Governor would not even consider the proposition, so Pearson, Walsler & Co. are hanging around the Supreme Court room to see what help they may get there. This is a wonderful state of affairs but just as good as might be expected when the people trust such a crowd as has had charge since the election.

The Supreme Court has rendered a decision on the new mortgage law. The decision is just what everybody felt it must be. The State was being ruined by this abominable bill. Everybody knew it would be unwise for the Governor to call together the crowd that passed it for the purpose of repealing it. Nobody, probably outside of the Fusionist in the body, ever wants to see this crowd assemble again in the capacity of a Legislature. There was only one other way to save the State and that was for the Legislature to say that the law did not apply to mortgages given for a present consideration or for supplies. This they did and now the people can breathe a little easier, but confidence can not be easily restored yet because two out of the five members of the Court say in their opinions that the case before them was not a proper one to test the law, and Judge Avery does not agree in the conclusions. Judge Clarke agrees in the conclusions with the majority but with Judge Avery as to the case not being a proper one to test the law. With these facts people will be slow to take mortgages now even though a majority of the Court has said that this law does not effect them. The Supreme Court will probably be kept busy for the next two years with matters growing out of laws passed by the "Douglas Association" which spent sixty three days in the Capitol trying to ruin the State.

A fellow is under arrest in New York for swindling some Wall street brokers out of $15,000. He will sell the scheme by which he did it he can raise all the money he needs to pay any judgment rendered against him.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, April 6th, 1895. —The Treasury is to-day in better condition than it has been at any time since the present administration came into power. For some time there has been a steady increase in receipts, both from customs and internal revenue, and they are expected to continue to increase right along. Not the least gratifying thing about the situation is that it is now Congress that no extra session of Congress will have to be called, even if the Supreme Court decides against the income tax, unless something new entirely unexpected shall make it necessary. The Treasury will have ample money to pay all claims, and the arrangement made with the syndicate which bought the last issue of bonds has so far worked like a charm in keeping the gold in the Treasury.

Mr. M. H. Twitchell, of Louisiana, who has been U. S. Consul at Kingston, Canada, for nearly twenty years, reports to the State Department a curious method of discrimination against Americans which has been recently put into effect by the Canadian authorities. Physicians residing near the boundary line between the United States and Canada have for many years—ever since colonial days, in fact—practiced indiscriminately on both sides of the line, but those who live on the American side of the line have been notified by the Canadian authorities that they will no longer be allowed to visit patients living on the Canadian side. That is an application of the doctrine of protection that should be studied by Gov. McKinley and his disciples.

Postmaster General Wilson formally took charge of his department yesterday. He was sworn in Wednesday afternoon by Chief Justice Fuller, the ceremony being witnessed by Mrs. Fuller, Miss Wilson, Mr. Bissell and a number of the officials of the department. Mr. and Mrs. Bissell expect to return to Buffalo in about three weeks. President and Mrs. Cleveland have invited them to spend a few days with them at "Woodley" before they leave.

Secretary Herbert believes that it is such a name, particularly when it comes to the selection of a name for a new vessel. As soon as it was learned that the Secretary was almost ready to take up the question of selecting names for the gunboats now being constructed at Newport News, Va., the pressure in favor of the cities which are competing for the honor began and it has steadily grown stronger, and the end is not in sight. The cities having active partisans working in their behalf are Nashville, Chattanooga, Lexington, Ky., Mobile, Norfolk, Niagara and Gloucester, and others may enter the good-natured contest. Three States have already put in applications to have their names given to one of the two battle ships authorized to be built by the last Congress—Rhode Island, Kentucky and Pennsylvania—but it will probably be a long time before those names are selected.

TOBACCO FRECKS.

The Reflector :

The cause mentioned in Friday's REFLECTOR of tobacco frecks or what some call "frog eyes," is, in my opinion, a mis-taken idea. Having been rear'd in a tobacco field I have had ample opportunity to study this as well as other diseases of the plant in question. We find several causes for this disease, few of which can be remedied under any circumstances. The main cause, however, is in the way the guano is used on the land. To prevent specks from appearing on the leaf, however poor the land, not more than one hundred pounds of guano should be used to the thousand hills, or four hundred pounds to the acre. This should be drilled in the furrow, less amount should be used on strong land ninety pounds is sufficient. Too much manure will make it speak, or freck, in a wet or dry season.

Now, it is reasonable to suppose that breaking up the roots in plowing is against nature and will not only check growth in tobacco but in any plant. So with each plowing get a little further from it so as not to tear up the roots as they make their way to middle of speck. By so doing not only specks or frecks, but burning, or firing, at bottom of plant will frequently be prevented.

GOOD RECOMMENDATIONS.

And the Reasons the Grand Jury Had for Making Them.

The Grand Jury at the present term of court made the usual inspection of county buildings, the records in county offices, &c., all of which were reported in good condition and order. They reported that the Home for the Aged and Infirm was in a better condition than it had been for years, but made some recommendations that would add to the safety and comfort of the inmates. These were: First, that two street lamps be placed in the yard at the Home; Second, that a fan be placed on the premises; Third, that Miss R. H. Bailey, a young insane inmate of the Home be sent to the asylum.

Mr. L. A. Mayo, Foreman of the jury, handed as these reasons upon which the recommendations of the jury were based. 1. The need of two lamps in the yard of the Home for the Aged and Infirm is obvious to every person acquainted with the Home, its occupants and surroundings. There are at all times infirm inmates who are more or less comatose, and who are at times disposed, the Overseer says, to roam about the yard at night, groping their way in the dark. They are liable to fall and injure themselves, besides giving the Overseer considerable trouble to find them and get them back to their rooms.

Another reason for this recommendation is that corrupt persons take advantage of the darkness to go on the premises with impure motives, and hiding in the shades might defy the efforts of the Overseer to detect them, whereas, if the yard was lighted, any one entering the premises could be seen. The protection of the inmates and the property demand that the lamps be put up.

2. The reason for recommending the placing of a fan on the premises, is that as the Overseer is almost constantly at work about the farm during the day, there is no way to give an alarm if fire should occur in any of the buildings or any thing arises to need his immediate presence. If the Commissioners do not furnish the fan the county may some day sustain the loss of this property. It would be appalling should fire occur there and get the good control. The buildings are near together, and in addition to the danger to them, a number of the inmates are so afflicted as to be powerless to get out of the buildings without assistance and might be burned to death.

3. They recommended that Miss Rillie Bailey be sent to the insane asylum because such an institution is deemed the proper place for her. If under the treatment patients could receive at the asylum she could be cared, it is inhuman to keep her confined in the County Home, to eke out the remainder of her life there. A few months proper treatment might restore her mind and enable her to care for herself and enjoy life as other people.

A man named Dill, near Greenville, S. C., while drunk beat his wife and drove her from home, then followed her to his son's, where she sought refuge. As he approached the house, cursing and brandishing a knife, his son shot him fatally.

DON'T DO IT.

DON'T Dispute with a woman when she says my goods are the only ones to buy. Because she knows what she's talking about.

DON'T Argue with her when she says my prices are money-savers. She talks like a sensible woman who knows what's what.

DON'T Try to excuse yourself for going to some other store instead of mine. You know that you can offer no reason that can be sufficient for passing the store where the best and cheapest go together.

DON'T Expect your wife to meet you pleasantly if you've gone to some other store than mine, when she expressly told you to go nowhere else. Don't do these things if you expect to live long and keep your hair on.

The Tobacco Department.

Conducted by O. L. Joyner, Proprietor Eastern Tobacco Warehouse

Florida is developing into a fine cigar tobacco state. Work has commenced on the new warehouse. It will be 80 by 140.

The cool nights that we are having are very bad on young tobacco plants.

We hear that in some sections of the county the young tobacco plants seem to be freching on the bed.

Right now is the time to do most of the cultivation of a tobacco crop in the thorough preparation of the soil.

Mr. Geo. Harrison, who has been on this market since August last, left last week for his home in Granville county.

Quite a number of new buyers are expected to locate on this market next year. Some are now making inquiries about locating here.

We sincerely hope to see a smoking tobacco factory in Greenville before another year. Greenville could support one better than any town we know of.

Every farmer should constitute his farm an experiment station of which he is the director. By this the highest attainments of agriculture can easily be reached.

Some of the most successful tobacco growers that we have and those after whom it is well to pattern agree that a thorough preparation of the soil is the most important stage of the cultivation.

Would it not be a profitable investment for some of our merchants to build a smoking tobacco factory? Start it at first on a small scale and if the trial proves a success enlarge it to meet the requirements of the trade.

And Mr. W. H. Richard says Greenville is to have a fire engine and then the next worst thing needed is a white fire company. During the past three years we have seen a few small fires in town and at nearly everyone Seth Hooker was the most conspicuous figure there dodging in and out between the flames, directing and daring and never losing his self possession. His bold and daring risks have been the comment of spectators wherever a fire has occurred and while we have never heard him express himself in regard to the organization of a company, yet we believe he will head a company of good men and surely there is no man in Greenville better qualified or adapted to admirably fill the position than he. Let us have him.

This has been a most remarkable spring. Snow and rain have been the order for some time. From the time the plant beds were prepared till the last week in March there was very little weather suitable for work, and as a consequence of the heavy rains upon the newly manured plant land much of the strength is washed away. And our farmers had better keep a close eye to this and when the plants get large enough they should be refertilized. Exactly how this should be done we are unable to say, for on one or two occasions we undertook that job and as a result numbers of plants died. Those who are accustomed to practicing this every year say the best time to do it is just before or during a rain, then all the fertilizer is washed off the plants and into the ground. If it is not convenient to put on the fertilizer during a rain a sprayer should be used.

The Atlanta Constitution, wide awake and liberal as it always is, has a premium offered this year of two hundred dollars for the farmer who raises the best and most valuable one acre of tobacco, quantity and quality considered. The stipulations are in substance these: The competitor must file a written notice of his intention to compete for the prize with Constitution Publishing Co. He must have one acre, no more no less, must have it staked off and given in detail amount of manure used and mode of cultivation. Must live South of Mason and Dixon line but anywhere between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. Under these stipulations it occurs to us that a Pitt county, North Carolina, man ought to be able to get that prize. Every where Pitt county has offered her tobacco against that of any other section some of the premiums have been taken. Ex-Commissioner of Agriculture Robinson, of this State, and the Commissioner of Georgia and Mississippi, are the committee to decide the matter. We would suggest that Mr. D. M. Edwards, W. J. Jackson, and others of our farmers whose tobacco has taken premiums, make an effort to get this one.

While the decreased acreage in the old tobacco belt of this State and Va., may be and doubtless is equal to the increase in acreage in the eastern counties yet it is not a nice policy for our farmers to go into a big crop expecting fancy or even standard prices for medium or inferior tobacco, for they will be surely disappointed. Money out of a tobacco crop for the eastern farmer, as time and experience has often demonstrated, lies in the production of a fine crop. Good tobacco never goes begging even at stiff prices while it is a hard matter to sell common tobacco at any price.

We learn that Mr. E. M. Pace, who for the past four years has been connected with the Wilson tobacco market, will be located on this market next year with Messrs. Rountree, Brown & Ernel. Mr. Pace is probably one of the oldest tobacco men in experience in the state. Years ago he inaugurated what is to-day known as the loose sales system on the Danville, Va., market. He moved from there to Lynchburg, Va., and from there to the North Carolina markets. For the past four years as above stated he has done all that he could for the Wilson market, but recognizing a year ago the superior advantages of the Greenville market over all the eastern markets, he made an effort to get here then but the opportunity not being ripe he waited till this year. Straws show which way the winds blow, and if Capt. Pace had not seen the superior natural advantages of Greenville he could never have been induced to leave Wilson to come here.

In these times of low prices and small profits, it requires the most careful thought and judgment to make much money on a farm and unless system and judicious management is exercised the debit side of the P. and L. account will be the larger.

We have frequently been asked what causes tobacco to freak. We don't know and don't think many do. Certain it is the absence from the soil of some quality which is required to make a healthy plant. Deep ploughing disturbing the top root will prevent it, it is said.

One of the most pleasant rides that we ever took with a male was made last week from this place to the home of Mr. J. J. Laughinghouse in company with Pat Gorman. The weather was splendid, the atmosphere serene and Pat, as he almost always is, was in a jolly mood and made the time pass most delightfully pleasant.

Did you ever think of it how many millions are fed and clothed and how many have the luxuries of life provided them out of the one commodity, tobacco, and yet it is not a necessity but is rated with the luxuries. At any rate the English people think so when they have to pay out a dollar a pound for all they use.

Just at this time farmers cannot give too much thought and attention to a thorough preparation of their tobacco land. If the land is thoroughly pulverized the young roots of the tobacco have no trouble penetrating the soil and getting the full benefit of all manures, then again they will grow to a much greater depth in search of water in case of a drouth when the land is thoroughly prepared.

How many farmers in the county who keep an accurate account of all monies expended and received on sales of products? Unless this is done there is no possible means of telling whether the business is paying or not. Every crop should have a separate account in order to tell which is the best money crop. No sensible man would keep a herd of six cows very long before he would find out which was the best milker and then set about to either increase the value of the sorry ones or get rid of them. Precisely is that the case with cereals. Every farmer should know which of his crops is paying the best and then go to work to improve the sorry ones. So also should this same idea be carried into the different fields. See which are paying and which are not and then go to work to improve the unimproved lands.

AYDEN IS COMING.

Land Improvement Company Organized—Tobacco Warehouse Talked.

AYDEN, N. C. April 5th, 1895.

A great many drummers are noticed on our street.

Rev. J. M. Barfield moved into his new residence yesterday.

We have a man here with plenty of money who is talking tobacco warehouse strong. We believe it will come.

We cannot help from adding a word of praise for the DAILY REFLECTOR since its enlargement. It is quite a handsome little sheet, and better still, it gives the news.

Ayden seems to be on a boom, a land improvement company has been formed. The style of the firm is Eastern Carolina Land & Improvement Co., with J. S. Cannon, President; W. F. Hart, Vice-President; B. W. Smith, Secretary; J. R. Smith, Treasurer. All of them are live business men and we believe this will be a big thing for Ayden.

THE FUTURE AMERICAN.

He is Destined to Be the Highest Type of Humanity.

Dean Hole, on the eve of departure for home, predicted for America the highest type of humanity. He is of the opinion this country is assimilating the various foreign races comprising its population in a way that will produce a distinctive American type, and one that will be superior to any of the old world races contributed to it.

The distinguished Englishman refers back to the mixture of Saxon, Celt and Norman in the British Isles, resulting in a type that has since had a positive influence upon the history and civilization of the world. In this new race the same elements are mingling under more favorable auspices, together with others that will lead, in Dean Hole's estimation, to a race, better, more energetic and with a higher mentality than the English.

Certainly there are grounds for the belief of Dean Hole. He was not the first to advance the theory. Some scientific gentlemen many years ago advanced the opinion that the mingling of races in this country would produce a magnificent homogeneous race. The great natural resources, grand distances and other characteristics of the country itself might be expected to play a part in forming the great American type little less important than the blending of original elements.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

THE ENGLISH MAIDEN.

She Lacks Versatility But Has Plenty of Concentration.

A New York girl has had an English friend staying with her this winter, and this girl has made her open her eyes very widely. In the morning, while the American girl is lounging and yawning, her English friend is, as she says, "totting up my accounts and writing in my diary." The New Yorker said to her: "Why do you bother with a diary?" And the English girl answered: "Because, when I go home, I want to be able to tell my mother and sisters, and it will be a help to me in recalling things; and then, too, I think what a pleasure it will be to me in the future." The American girl can't understand that, while she has a smattering of everything, what the English girl knows she knows well. She is slow, but lacking versatility she has concentration; having studied botany she is interested in all the strange blossoms and is making a herbarium. If she has a fancy for geology she is collecting pebbles; but it is always certain and sure that she has some special object, and that this is going to be of interest to her all her lifetime and make her, when she is an elderly woman, of interest to other people.

A UNIQUE WEDDING.

The Justice Married His Couple in the Dark.

A marriage in the inky darkness of a vault is something decidedly unique, but that is the sort of a wedding that occurred in the courtroom recently, says the Kansas City Times.

About eleven o'clock a fine-looking young man and two decidedly good-looking and stylishly-dressed young women entered the recorder of deeds' office and asked for a marriage license, and one was issued to William Dray and Viola Roderick. They said the marriage was to be a surprise, and requested that nothing be said about the granting of the license. Then they consulted together, and finally asked if they could be married right there. Recorder Cuel hastened to the telephone and called up Justice Ebert. Before the justice arrived word had passed around that a wedding was to occur, and the room was filled with uninvited guests. The groom did not relish this, neither did the bride, neither did the bride's sister, who was of the party. The door to the large vault where the records are kept stood invitingly open, and the groom said:

"Let's step in here," and the bride and the bride's sister, who were in the vault, entered the vault. It was brilliantly lighted and filled with the dull odor of dusty records. The bride glanced about, frightened a bit, but then looked at the groom and smiled sweetly. The groom, evidently a brave man, was not as nervous as the justice, who fumbled to get from his pocket a paper upon which he had written the words of a simple marriage ceremony. The door was shut softly behind the party, and the wedding was screened from curious eyes.

The justice was getting along fairly well, and had just reached that part in the ceremony where he asked the couple to join hands, when something happened. One of the clerks had slipped to the switchboard and turned off the lights in the vault. Everything was as black as darkest midnight. The bride and groom could not see each other. The justice could not see them. It was no time to stop or falter, however.

"Find her hand," said the justice, and the hands came together as though they had met in the dark before.

"By the authority vested in me by the law I pronounce you man and wife."

It was over, and Mr. and Mrs. Dray came out into the light of day happy as though they had been married in the noonday glare of a thousand suns.

THE BOY KNEW HIS BUSINESS.

A gentleman on the cars was recently offered a novel by Honore de Balzac. "New novel, sir," cried the train boy, "this is just out. It's by the last new writer of Paris."

"Did you say that was a new novel?" asked the traveler.

"Yes, sir; just out."

"The man who wrote it has been dead for years."

But the boy was equal to the occasion.

"Pshaw!" said he, "this isn't the old man—it's his son."—Cincinnati Tribune.

He Balked the Experiment.

The late Prof. Hyrtl was very fond of animals. Some years ago one of his fellow professors undertook some experiments to ascertain the loss of weight in cases of starvation, using for the purpose a lot of rabbits. The subjects of the experiments were weighed every day, but to the experimenter's astonishment, they gained flesh instead of losing it. It was some time before he found out that Prof. Hyrtl had been keeping them well supplied with food.

The Japs Are Fighters.

An English naval officer writing home says, alluding to the remarkable prowess shown by the Japanese in the capture of Port Arthur: "They would make very bad enemies. We could smash them at sea, probably, but we could do nothing against Japan on land. We can teach them nothing in military science. They are masters of modern scientific warfare. The capture of Port Arthur was a perfect revolution."

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Rogers, 129 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching Consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which there are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottles at J. L. Wooten's Drug Store.
