Dear Mary,

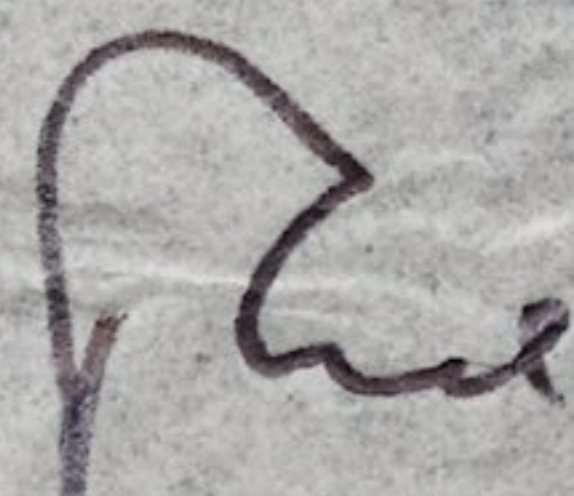

It is very pleasant to hear from you -- and very hard to believe that a year has passed since last we met for that pleasant evening at the Gay house.

This year Gabe is in Rome studying sculpture and delirious with joy at the teacher he has, as for a good many other things. Rosanna is finishing at Yale, in rather a blaze of glory as Scholar of the House. Painting is her passion. E and I are here for a few months only to get Gabe settled and introduced to friends, back home in January. E is working at something mysterious, I'm revising a novel and writing poems -- at least there'll be a good many new ones in a forthcoming Selected 1923-1975.

As for the use of any letter of Randall to me, the use is yours from any xeroxes. I am writing Gallup to that effect. But alas, as I discovered at an exhibition of R's letters at Yale, some have been pinched, two of those I treasure most.

Goodbye, and all good luck! E, if she were not off in town would join me.

As ever,
