

Chapter	Page
III. THE WAAC'S FIRST SUMMER—Continued
The First WAAC Officer Candidate Class, 20 July–29 August 1942 . . .	63
The Training Course	66
Graduation	71
IV. SEPTEMBER–OCTOBER 1942: BEGINNINGS OF FIELD DUTIES	73
New Graduating Classes	75
The Second WAAC Training Center	77
Aircraft Warning Service Units	78
Appeals for Publication of Command Channels	82
New Expansion Plans	84
General Marshall's Intervention	85
Assignment of Regional Directors	88
Field Action	89
Director Overseas	91
V. NOVEMBER 1942–JANUARY 1943: PLANS FOR A MILLION WAACS	92
The Adjutant General's Estimates	92
Estimates Based on Field Requisitions	93
Proposals to Draft Women	95
The Weakness of the Auxiliary System	96
Proposals for Expansion on Auxiliary Status	97
The Winter Months	99
Shipment of the First Post Headquarters Companies	103
First Overseas Shipment	104
End of 1942	110
Indecision as to Planning Goals	110
VI. THE NEED FOR MILITARY STATUS	113
Administrative Handicaps of an Auxiliary	113
The Auxiliary Disciplinary System	115
Remedial Legislation	117
Introduction of WAC Bill	118
VII. SPRING, 1943: EXPANSION AND DECENTRALIZATION.	122
Expansion Program Decided	122
Expansion of WAAC Training	126
Delegation of Command Authority	127
Inclusion in the Troop Basis	128
Staff Directors Assigned to New Commands	130
Major Commands Receive Waacs	132
Readiness for Increase in Number	135