has of contact with the negro.
As soon, he is made to believe, that for he leaves his old home, that the south is a land of pestilential miasmas and that fever lurking there are much more to be dreaded than negro bullets or negro domination. If we really desire immigration all of this must be refuted, and this we can not do truthfully now. Our people are not convinced of their sanitary surroundings, and I do not believe that 10% of our pop-
