

Commerce Conference To Be Held Here Next Week

The commerce department will sponsor a round-table discussion on Tuesday, December 5, at 7:30 p. m. in the auditorium of the new classroom building. Local business men and women will add to the discussions of some of the problems that confront students who go out as office workers.

This conference is for all business students, majors and any others who may be interested. The purpose of the meeting is to find ways of improving the training of workers in the various fields of the business profession.

The conference last year was held at a time of several days, but it was decided to hold this year, one day only. For the other two days, the committee is planning to send teachers and superintendents and some expert in the business field.

Some of the topics for discussion are qualifications of a secretary, personality in business, distribution of secretaries and comparison of men and women in business.

Everyone who is interested is urged to attend this meeting and to ask any questions that will add to the discussion.

MRS. R. E. SELLARS

ECTC Alumna Is On College Staff

By now most of you probably know our new social science teacher, Mrs. R. E. Sellars. She received both her A. B. and M. A. degrees from ECTC.

In addition, she has also studied at the University of North Carolina in the field of literature and art education.

Mrs. Sellars finished high school in Ayden, N. C., and then took a two year professional course at this college. After teaching at Grifton for some time, she married and made her home in Greenville in 1926.

She came back to ECTC in 1940 to take her A. B. degree; in 1942 she received her M. A. in history. During this time she was hostess and dietitian for the National Youth Administration and also a hostess for the Seabees.

Before accepting her present position as teacher of government and sociology, she taught at Greenville high school. Next quarter she hopes to teach her major subject, history.

When asked about her favorite ways of using leisure time, she said that she was very interested in research work. She also enjoys sewing and picture painting.

Mrs. Sellars is a native of Pitt county and now resides in Greenville.

Robert St. John To Speak Here December 18

Robert St. John, noted newspaper reporter and radio commentator, will speak in Wright auditorium on Monday, December 18.

St. John went to Europe in 1939 as a correspondent for the Associated Press. Arriving in Paris the day Poland was invaded, he covered the Polish campaign, the Nazi occupation of Rumania, the abdication of King Carol of Rumania, the escape of King Peter, the bombing of Belgrade and the conquest of Bulgaria, Greece and Yugoslavia.

Returning to the United States in 1941, he wrote his grim book, "From the Land of the Silent People," in three weeks. Another book, "It's Always Tomorrow," was scheduled for release late in November.

Forty-two years old, Robert St. John is tall, blue-eyed, brown-haired, soft-spoken. Although his impressive beard and mustache give him a distinctly foreign appearance, he is from Oak Park, Illinois, a home town he shares with Ernest Hemingway.

ECTC Pays Tribute To Janice Marine

On November 21 the students of ECTC paid tribute to Janice Marine, a member of the Senior class, who died suddenly on October 28.

The memorial service began with a Scripture reading and prayer by Dr. Howard J. McGinnis. Short speech in tribute to Janice Marine were given by Miss Holtzclaw, her adviser; Frances Eakes, a classmate; and Miss Annie L. Morton, dean of women. All three spoke of her loyalty, sincerity, faithfulness and dependability.

The memorial service was concluded by Mr. Fisher who sang "Out of the Night."

Writers' Club Is Formed By Greene

The Writers club, one of the newly organized groups on the campus, held a meeting on Tuesday afternoon, November 21, at which tryouts for membership were read and three new members were elected.

The new members were Joy Flanagan, Amanda Etheridge and Martha Strawn. Miss Flanagan's short story, "The Sixth Day," deals in an unusual manner with a circus freak whose loneliness fosters rebellion but who is forced to accept his lot. A story of the North Carolina coast and of the exploits of the Coast Guard was Miss Etheridge's contribution. This tale is especially good in its characterization of Captain Pat, an elderly man who prefers active duty to an easy retirement. Miss Strawn submitted three short sketches—a character sketch, a descriptive passage, and an informal essay. The meeting was held in the parlor of Ragsdale hall and Miss Mary H. Greene, the faculty member of the club, was hostess.

The Writers club was organized early in the fall with four student members and a faculty member included on its roll. They were Curtis Butler, Jimmy Warren, Catherine Sprinkle, Myrtle Price and Miss Greene. The purpose of the club is to encourage creative writing among talented students and to give members the benefit of hearing criticism of their work. It is hoped that a number of students on the campus will join the group during the year. Tryouts will be held again during the winter quarter.

The World Student Service Fund is a world-wide drive to help student relief. The money raised from this drive goes to buy books, study materials, medical supplies, food and clothing for refugee students and prisoners of war. It is also used to help rebuild colleges and universities in war-torn countries. The drive will last from December 4 through December 9.

Today a "question and answer" service is being held in the "Y" but regarding any information concerning the drive. The Vesper service in Austin auditorium on Sunday, December 3, will also be in connection with this relief fund.

REPORT ON STUDENT COUNCIL MEETINGS

Superintendent Graham from New Bern and Superintendent Armstrong from Goldsboro would speak November 9 on teacher training, and he urged all practice teachers to be present. Mr. Brewer, college electrician, discussed the lighting system in the dormitories and asked to students to cooperate by not overloading the circuits.

Miss Annie L. Morton, dean of women, made several announcements. She said that students must file off-campus slips for both the Thanksgiving and the Christmas holidays. She asked that students expecting week-end guest other than parents and alumni file a slip a day before the guests are expected to arrive. Miss Morton urged that students answer telephone calls as soon as possible. She said that if anyone had not had her grades recorded, she should do so the following day. Also anyone holding a new office should have it recorded.

President Etheridge read a letter of appreciation from the parents of Janice Marine. President Etheridge introduced a discussion of the lights-out situation. The rules and recommendations that had been submitted to the Faculty council concerning the maintenance of quiet and good study conditions in the dormitories were read. These rules appear elsewhere in this issue.

Professor Deal Directs Lost And Found Bureau

PROF. R. C. DEAL

The Lost and Found bureau of the college, which is located in Professor R. C. Deal's office, was established about seven years ago at the request of the students.

Articles that are lost are reported to Prof. Deal's office and those that are found are returned to it to be claimed by their owners. During the last two months the Lost and Found bureau has handled about ten watches, fifteen necklaces and bracelets and twenty fountain pens. Among other articles handled by this office are compacts, class rings, college pins, keys, umbrellas, evening coats and lipsticks.

Prof. Deal commented that of all the lost articles handled in his office, all are claimed except the fountain pens that won't write and the lipsticks.

"I am absolutely convinced of the honesty of the student body as a whole. I have found no student who ever took an article that had been turned in unless he was completely satisfied that it was his," stated Prof. Deal.

Bring The Boys Home By Buying War Bonds

Wasn't it wonderful—that Thanksgiving dinner! The turkey a golden brown, fragrant and tempting, the steaming rice covered with rich giblet gravy, the sweet potato souffle topped with marshmallows delicately browned, the fresh string beans, the celery and olives and salted nuts, the hot buttered rolls, the mince-meat pie, and that satisfying cup of coffee—ah, such a meal would tempt the gods.

The distinct pleasure of eating leisurely with your family, cracking the same corny jokes and exchanging a few new ones, relating the experiences of the past weeks, giving encouragement and receiving it, feeling a bond of understanding between all the members of the family group—these things are worth fighting for.

Speaking of fighting, I wonder how the boys "over there" fared during the holidays. "K" rations are a poor substitute for turkey and dressing. Many of our boys spent the day in fox holes, others crept cautiously through sultry jungles in search of Jap snipers, some dodged German bullets and watched their buddies fall beside them. No quiet dinner for these boys. Hitler and Tojo have seen to that.

No, we at home haven't experienced the agony and self-sacrifice experienced daily by the boys over there. But we can do a lot to help bring them home sooner and so relieve them of the hell through which they are going. We can do this by giving our whole-hearted support to the SIXTH WAR LOAN drive which is now under way. This is our duty. The boys over there aren't shirking. Can we?

Play Night Profits To Aid World Student Service Fund

Next Friday night the two "Y's" are sponsoring Play Night to raise money for the World Student Service Fund drive.

The profits from Play Night will be used to help students the world over to continue their education. The WSSF provides books and supplies for students and equipment for schools that are not supported by Church or State as here in the United States.

Rather than ask for outright contributions from the student body, the "Y's" are providing a night of good entertainment for a very small charge. The carnival being planned will offer dancing and a variety of games and other entertainments.

Play Night offers an opportunity to kill two birds with one stone—first by having an evening full of fun and at the same time making our contribution to the World Student Service Fund.

High Degree Of Honesty Exists Among Students

Upon inquiring into the activities of the Lost and Found bureau of the college, it was learned from Prof. R.C. Deal, director of the bureau, that there exists a very high degree of honesty among the students.

While outlining the work of the bureau, Prof. Deal emphasized the fact that since the founding of the Lost and Found bureau some years ago he has never known any student to claim articles not belonging to him. Though there is every opportunity for a person to claim articles belonging to others, there has been no evidence of such happening.

This is as it should be, and it is very gratifying to observe this fine record. Such conduct is essential to an honor system—an honor system which should, and probably does, exist throughout the college.

Laurels go to Prof. Deal, who has been so successful in getting lost-and-found articles returned to their owners.

Aggressive Aggie

By Jean Hull

Oh! Oh! Hold on to your eye teeth everybody! Here comes Aggressive Aggie, lil' gal who packs such a wallop!

Aggie is always ready to greet you with a hearty slap on the back which loosens every tooth in your head and sends you rocking back on your heels. Wherever Aggie is, there you'll find confusion and plenty of bruised limbs. Let her in your room, and she's like a bull in a china shop, breaking glasses, burning holes in your best spread with her cigarette ashes, and smearing lipstick on the cherished picture of your "dearly beloved."

After a few encounters with human tornado, the other girls get wise to Aggie's carelessness with other people's property—to say nothing of their physical well-being. They manage to steer clear of her presence in the halls and are always "just leaving" when she comes to their rooms.

This coolness on the part of the other girls finally dawns on Aggie and she finds herself all alone and lonely with nary a soul to lend a sympathetic ear to her tale of woe. She begins to find fault with the college, with the teachers, and with her former friends. She wanders dejectedly how come the sudden brush-off.

Well, Aggie, if you really want to know, just bend close and we'll whisper into the fuzz over your good ear. The fault lies not in the school, nor the faculty, nor your friends—it lies in you. By failing to be thoughtful you have broken the basic rule of etiquette. Look around you and see if the most popular girls aren't the girls who are thoughtful and considerate of others. Take a tip from these girls, Aggie, and you won't go lacking for friends.

There was a young lady of Siam Who said to her lover, Kiam, "If you kiss me, of course, You will have to use force, But I bet you are stronger than I am."

SCUMMING

By The Keyhole Korrespondent

Greetings students! Well, here I am back after Thanksgiving holidays full of turkey, cranberry sauce, and ever so much gossip!

Wonder how Neil Posey is making out with Frances Moore? It seems he has stiff competition in a tall Marine. Oh, those roses and orchids (not to mention the candy).

Say, Susie, what has happened to you? Beverly seems to enjoy sitting in the "Y" store with Dot Harris these days.

The campus is all aglow over Sarah Robinson's beautiful diamond. Congratulations, Sarah. Speaking of diamonds, Mary Alice Cahoon has a beautiful diamond too.

Gosh, Elis don't you ever get tired of sitting in Fleming hall parlor?

Now Jackie, all we want to know is—why didn't you wear Curtis Perkin's roses Sunday night when you were with Jack Edwards? Glad to see you two back together.

Oh, Elsie, what has happened to your budding romance? We miss seeing Hoyt's red convertible tearing around the campus. Have you heard? He is getting a new car!

There is an attractive blonde on campus with such nack names as "Bedroom Eyes," "Baby Face," and many more. Now what we want to know is why does she blush when she is called such names?

Frank Bonner, please make up your mind. Is it Ann, Martha, or —??? It seems as if you did Martha rather dirty the week-end of the fraternity dance.

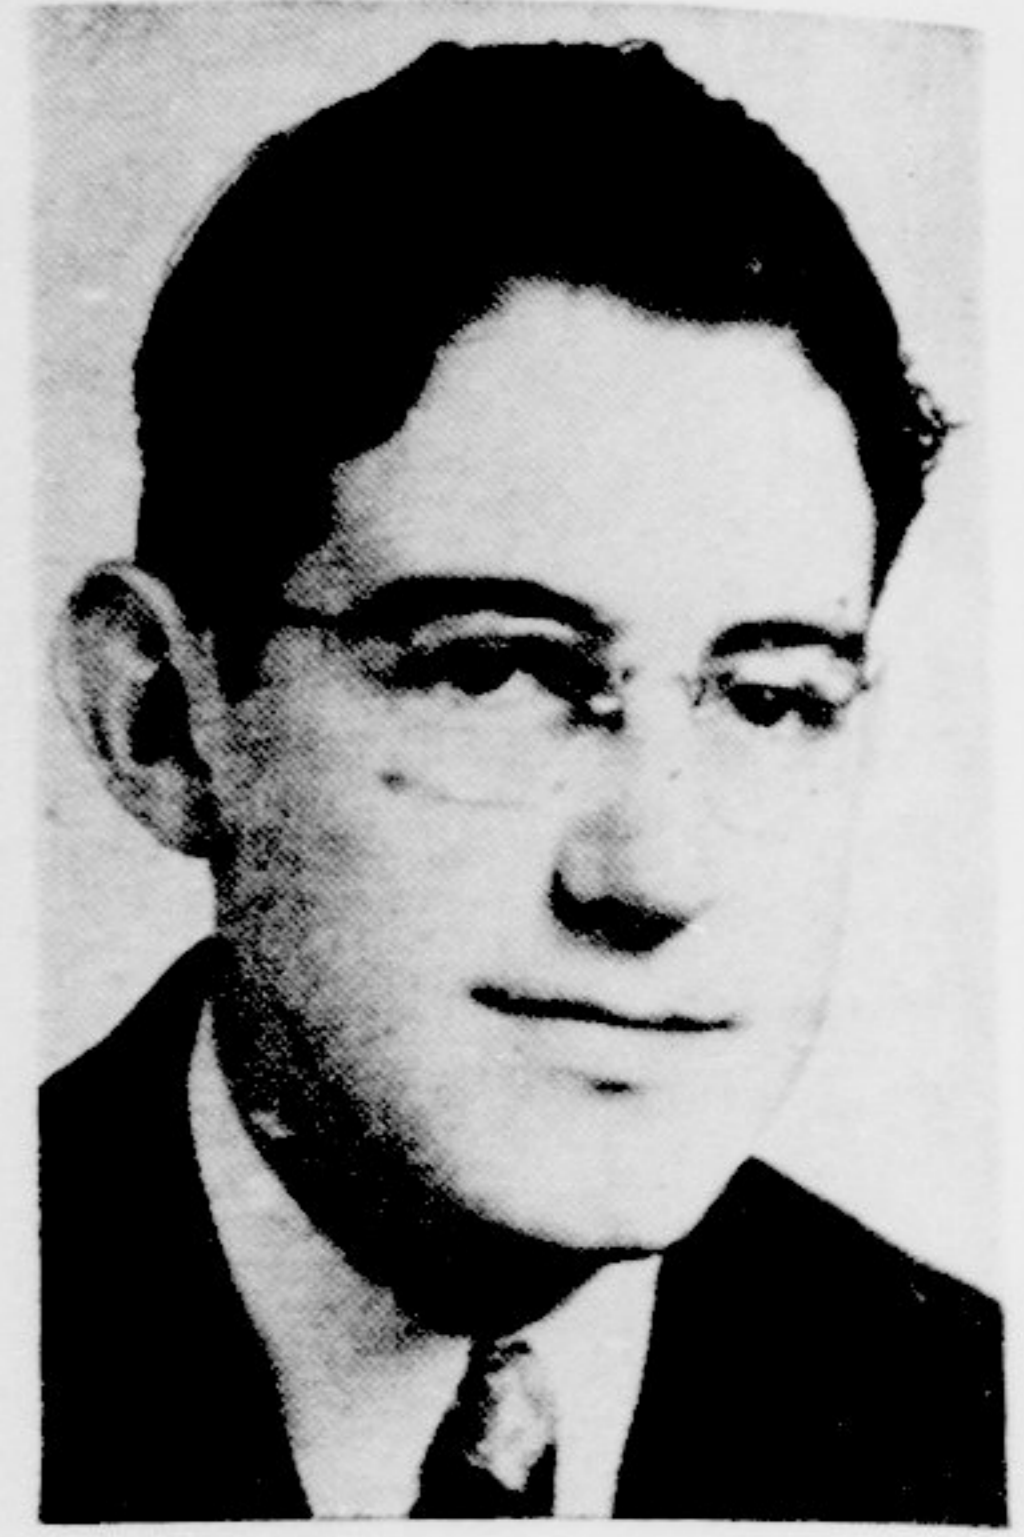

Wonder who could be writing so many anonymous letters to students on the campus???

If anyone should wander over in the vicinity of the campus building at night, they would see all the gals giving Billie Tucker a rush! Good dancer.

Mary Young, I was glad to see you and Bud together on campus after hearing you gave him the run around at the Student Legislature.

STUDENT SPOTLIGHT

By Amos Clark

He likes nothing as much as a red necktie. His greatest ambition is to be a Certified Public Accountant.

His name is Ellis Jennings Bedsworth. He claims Marshallberg as his home, although he lived in Maryland for the greater part of his life. As his friends will testify, he is a "one-man chamber of commerce" for the small waterside town. The fact that he is from down Carteret county way accounts for his odd accent.

Ellis expects to receive his Bachelor of Science degree in Commerce and History in June. He plans to work as an accountant after graduation, although he may first continue his study in the field of accounting.

He is only 19 years of age, having graduated from high school when he was only 15. He completed his first year of college at Louisville.

Bedsworth is one of the 20 ECTC students recently named for "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities" for the school year 1944-45.

Ellis Bedsworth is president of the Phi Sigma Pi fraternity, vice-chairman of the Men's Judiciary and treasurer of the Methodist Student association. He is also a member of the Ragsdale hall house committee and of the Commerce club.

Last year he was junior class representative to the Student Cooperative council and a member of the YMCA cabinet. During the summer he served as student treasurer.

He works in the library and is in charge of the men's part of Ragsdale hall. These and other duties and his studies leave him little spare time, as anyone attempting to find him for an interview can testify. He says he has no hobby except "taking care" of his "old lady," who is John Johnson, his roommate.

Snag Clark seems to enjoy hunting quite a lot these days. Say, Snag, what are you really hunting?

The freshmen girls seem to be causing quite a bit of trouble (so they say) for upperclassmen this year. Man complication, you know.

That clud that floated around campus last week, in case you are interested, was Dot Peebles. The only logical reason was her Gob, Ben Harrison.

Your old Keyhole Korrespondent knows of quite a few gals who took a trip to Chapel Hill for the football game Saturday. Mary Alice Cahoon, Morris Flow, Lillian Harris, Audrey Benson, Jean Hodggen, Sarah Robinson, Charlotte Elliott, Peggy Honeycutt, Dale and Nadine Jobe. Who did you cheer gals—Duke or Carolina?

Why the long face Ann Dale? Miss Hubert???

Girls! Want information on a cute Marine? Just ask a blonde day student by the name of Adelaide Warren. Now, that gal really gets around.

Kit and Trudy seem to be doing O.K. these days (as if the girls on campus didn't know).

We're all glad to see Billy Ferrell back after his illness. Billy doesn't think there is any need of coming back to school since he can't go out in the night air. Why that attitude, Billy?

Allan Jones, must you try to be the Casonova of the Campus?

Wanted: Two girls between the hours of (anytime) to make a detour sign for the gate at Wilson hall. Please have said sign read, "Lieutenants, there are three other dormitories on the campus—said dormitories are Jarvis, Fleming and Cotten. How about strolling up their way?"

Norfleet, I thought that kiss in "The Unseen" was supposed to be a fake. Temptation???

Speaking of J. L., he has joined the Superman club. What do you know about that. Won't he ever grow up?

Johnny Averette and Billie Denton seem to be getting along swell these days. Keep it up kids.

Here's hoping "LIGHTS OUT" doesn't curb any of your dates girls.

Leaving a thought of cheer: only three more weeks until Christmas holidays!!!!

Protest To Editor

Ed. Note: All opinions expressed below are those of the writer alone and are in no measure shared by the editor or other members of the staff.

November 12 Dear Mr. Williams (formerly I would have said Tom),

I write to tell you that your paper is guilty of gross misrepresentation of the facts—and that is putting it mildly. It would be rash to use the term "lie," but that I ate 26 frankfurters at the recent party, let us say, of the TECO ECHO staff is positively absurd. Is it so very much more trouble to adhere even slightly to the facts? Well, to say the very miserable least, I am highly indignant about the entire affair.

Since I fully realized that this little get-together would be attended by a bunch of un-

His reading is about limited to occasional browsing through a much-thumbed volume of Edgar A. Guest's Collected Verse, which can be found on a shelf in his room.

His musical favorites are Tommy Dorsey, "Night and Day," and Bing Crosby. As far as food is concerned, he dotes on shrimp, steak and fried oysters, with the emphasis on the latter.

He doesn't actively participate in sports, except for an occasional game of tennis. As a spectator, he enjoys nothing more than a fast game of basketball.

Ellis was very amicable—until questioned about his "love life." Then he became strangely silent and mysterious, intimating only that he has a special preference for "Fleming hall women." It seems that Ellis' interests this year are not quite so undivided.

couth local yokels, country hicks from some unknown backwoods hamlets, corny and egotistic dramatic enthusiasts, small-time pickpockets, and others nearly as bad as Jimmy Warren. I went only out of a sense of duty, of obligation. Having paid the outrageously large fee of 35c, I went with the intentions of eating as many hot dogs as I had paid pennies out of the dollar. But due to serious limitations forced upon me by my delicate (should I say bird-like?) appetite and the gluttony of Edna Van Harrell, who ate the last eight franks, and Freda Caudell, who did away with Pepsis so fast that I was left with a mere six-ounce bottle of Dr. Pepper, yes, due to this, I found it necessary to stop after the thirty second. Anyway, the hot dogs were not of a high quality; after the twenty seventh, they became quite tasteless.

I had been warned that your drafted amateur sheet was cheap, incorrect, and generally no good, due doubtlessly to riddy-headed, inexperienced, and irresponsible reporters and a wholly incompetent editor, who not only permits the messy work of his staff but encourages it by writing articles equally as worthless and inaccurate. All this I had heard, but never did I realize to what an amazing extent it was true.

Unless some definite and speedy action is taken at once to rectify this inexcusable error, I shall remain just one more dissatisfied subscriber and hot-dog eater!

Protestingly yours,

CURTIS BUTLER.

"In tomorrow's medicine we believe that all healing forces—including religious faith, emotional interest, and intellectual integrity as well as physical welfare—will be brought together to bear upon the future of humanity's health." Dr. John G. Benson, general superintendent of Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis, emphasized the religious influence on health before a DePauw University audience recently.

Universities Must Serve

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

American universities cannot endure as "ivory towers" affording a retreat for scholars, Dr. Edwin Sharp Burdell, director of Cooper Union, New York city, told a forum on post-war educational problems at Fenn college, Cleveland, Ohio, recently.

Direct service to the community will be demanded in the postwar era, said Dr. Burdell, rejecting a proposal of Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, to return to the disciplines of the Middle Ages.

It is significant, Dr. Burdell contended, that colleges which in the past have relied upon "prestige" and in which enrollment has been a "class privilege" are now looking for a wider base of student patronage.

Students Help Fill Red Cross Quota

The Red Cross workroom will be closed until further notice. The quota has been filled and all bandages shipped.

The workroom was open for four weeks, during which time 14,731 bandages were completed. The last night the room was open was banner night; the students and faculty members completed a total of 2,430 bandages.

Those in charge of the surgical dressing room have been very favorably impressed with the interest and the spirit of cooperation shown by the college girls.

Mrs. Rivers, chairman of the Red Cross here, says, "This work is of vital importance to the war effort, as commercial firms cannot produce the volume of folded sponges necessary in war time."

Sports Views

By Neill Posey

Sportsmen at ECTC are not asleep! The Pirates in their purple and gold suits may again be seen on this and many other college handcourts. Glad tidings pertaining to the present intercollegiate basketball questions are beginning to be heard all over the campus. As you know active intercollegiate basketball looked out of the question at the start of this fall quarter. Only a single hope remained and that lay in the organization of a men's athletic association, for with it financial aid might be obtained from the council. It is toward this goal that the men are working days, hours and minutes to reach.

Although no formal announcement has been made, progress thus far is as I relate: A week ago all men students held two "pow wows" with Coach Hankner, head of the college physical education department. Effects of this meeting can be seen in their action of selecting a committee to draft a constitution and the sponsorship of a men's intramural basketball league. The league is already in action, as can be seen elsewhere on this page. The constitution committee (Hankner, Jesse Parker, James Parker, Tripp and others interested) are hard at work drafting a constitution. They have almost completed it.

The organization, according to the present uncompleted draft of the constitution, will be called the Men's Athletic association and its purpose shall be to sponsor intercollegiate and intramural athletics for men. A host of mentorium objectives are being included besides.

Of course such a program will cost "green backs" but it is worth it. Estimates on the cost for basketball only are from $500 to $1500 and will be fixed only after a careful study by the committee.

Now that you see what makes a "sad sack" sad, will some bright genius invent a contraption that will keep good and bad dreams from interfering with each other.

Sad Sack's Belle Is Wonderful Montage of ECTC Gals

By WILLIAM CRAFT

After finishing the gruesome task of washing my G. I.'s, I reclined for the usual "bank fatigue." In only three or four minutes I was in dreamland. The first thing to pop into my dreams was me, myself, or yours truly scrubbing clothes. Oh-h my back!

Finally, after rolling and tossing for a half hour, I dismissed this awful dream and dozed off in a peaceful slumber. This time I dreamed I was seated in the front row at a huge USO show.

The show was introducing a new star as "Southern Belle." The very moment this gorgeous female appeared on the stage, I was sure I knew her. She was so beautiful that I pinched myself to see if I was dreaming—sure enough, I was, but I didn't wake up. Who could? Her long yellow gold hair was as beautiful as Amanda Etheridge's. Upon observing her closer, I found she had Jackie DeLysle's pretty blue eyes (let's cut out well on blondes), Francis Page's cute little nose, Morris Flow's dimples and Ethel Smith's pancake makeup. Her lips, covered with "dragon blood" lipstick, were as tempting as Margie Smith's.

After the face was examined, I turned to the less important features—the body, shape and figure. In stature, she was about five feet, five inches tall and would tip the scales at 100 pounds. She had all the deluxe parts and was really super. Her figure was a cross between Eleanor Powell, "Hiel" Boyette and Bershia Davis.

I don't know how this happened, but, as you know, dreams are funny. Anyway, the next thing I recall I was talking with Miss Belle in her dressing room. She had the lovable personality of Edna Earle Moore, the southern accent used by "Bootsie" Jones, and the tactfulness of Dot Peebles. She kept wrinkling her nose like Proc Roebuck and seemed as exciting as Mary Lou Aycock when she's expecting a call from John Hooks.

Her friendliness amused me. She was as friendly as Sarah Pickett when there're four or five "brass collars" around. Gee, she was really same gal!!

Dreams are surely wonderful, too (One travels so fast). In the next scene I was with "Southern Belle," smooching in the arboretum. I will not attempt to describe this experience, because I might get a furlough someday and want to come back to ECTC.

The smooching didn't last long, representing the Baptist student group; Lorraine Davis, Omelia Monroe and Mildred Wellons, representing the YWCA; Ray Futrell and Sam Strickland, representing the YMCA.

Austin Stage To Be Scene Of Weird, Fascinating Drama

Tonight, the stage of Austin auditorium will be converted into the eerie stage of the St. James Theatre in London. This spine-tickler, "A Murder Has Been Arranged," by the ingenious Evelyn Williams, has one of the most intriguing plots of any play ever produced on the ECTC stage.

A Sir Charles Jasper was to give a dinner on the stage for the member of his family, in observance of a weird anniversary. Then, after the clock had struck eleven, Sir Charles was to inherit the tidy figure of two million pounds.

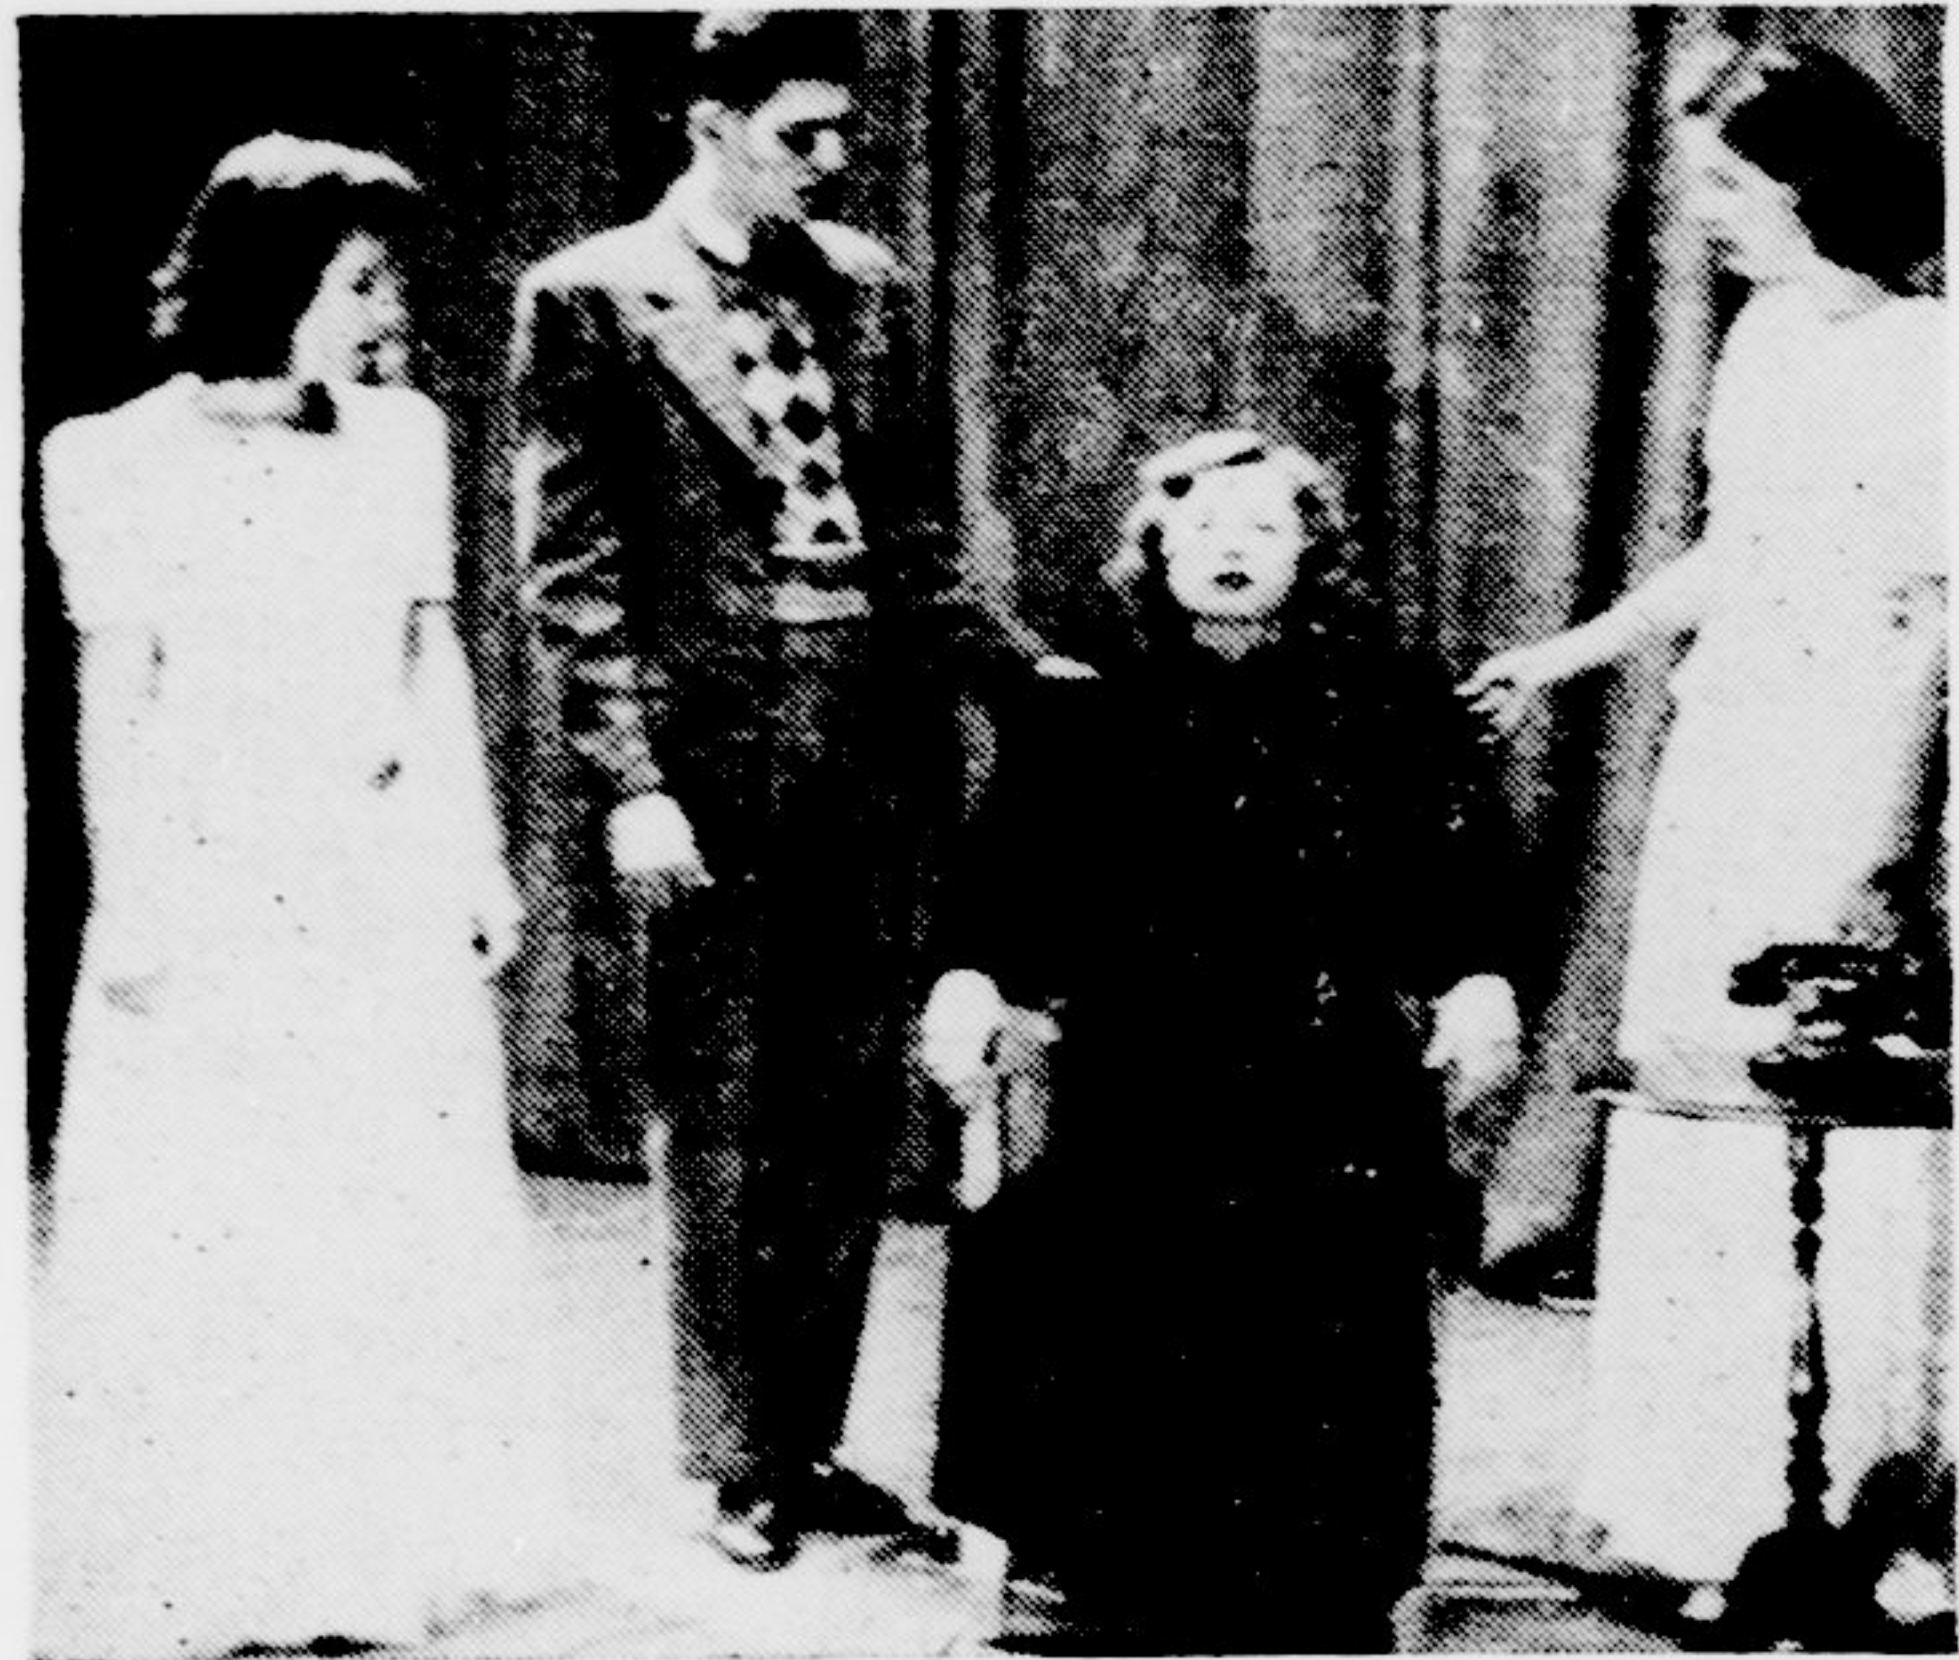

It seems that many years ago a man was slain in the theatre; a dumb girl had appeared and the ghost of the murdered man had drifted onto the stage after the dumb girl's death, so that the murderer was revealed. This, according to the prophecy, was to be repeated if anyone else were murdered on the site of the first murder.

A most important part in the scheme of things was that Maurice Mullins, only near relative of Sir Charles's death prior to eleven o'clock on the night on which the play takes place.

Unseen, forces perform ghastly acts before the eyes of the audience. Horror plays havoc in the vast closed theatre and the outlanders, like the victims, are locked within to await the inevitable. Telephone wires are cut and all connections with the outside world are lost. Outside are gay crowds; inside there is everything to fear.

You will want to be there when the curtain goes up at 8:30 and see this novel mystery play.

SCENE FROM "A MURDER HAS BEEN ARRANGED"

ECTC Swing Band Furnishes Music At Chi Pi Play

One of the most unusual features of tonight's production of "A Murder Has Been Arranged" is the use of the ECTC Swing Band as a stand-in for the one hired by Sir Charles Jasper to play for his dinner party on the stage of the St. James Theatre, London. It is the first public appearance of the Swing Band this year and is the first time that a "live" band has played for the intermissions of a play.

Richard David, saxophonist with the band, will also play the part of Cavendish, the band conductor. Other members of the band are Elizabeth Cotten, Faye Jessup, Mary Barden Taylor, Elizabeth Darden, Elizabeth Morgan, Mitchell White, Wanda Tyndall, Layton Clark and Josephine Gibson. Dorothy Peebles acts as manager for the band and Mr. Charles Fisher is the director.

The Swing Band was formed last year with a view to providing experience in that type of music for its members and provide music for many of the school dances.

Drama Group Organized By Wesley Foundation

What's new? Why, haven't you heard? The Wesley Foundation on our campus has organized a drama group called the Wesley Foundation players.

The group held its first meeting November 17 at the Methodist Student center with Miss Manieje Chandler in charge. Jimmy Warren was elected president; Peggy Honeycutt, secretary and "Boo" Williams, assistant secretary. Plans were made to produce a Christmas play; however, the play has not been selected as yet.

Varied Programs Feature Vespers For November

November 19
Elizabeth Cotton was speaker at Vespers Sunday night, November 19. The theme of her talk was "What We Have To Be Thankful for in 1944."

She said we must start on the campus and be thankful for the many opportunities we have here. We should be thankful that we have no fear of falling bombs, that we can go about our daily work as we choose.

"Our greatest problem," stated Elizabeth, "is the planning of the post-war world, and each of us has a part in it. We should pray for co-operation among our students, the leaders of our country and among the leaders of the Allied Nations, so that neither selfishness nor greed will enter into the peace."

She added, "This world is our world and it will be just the kind of world we make it. We must pray for world brotherhood if we are to have the kind of world we want."

In conclusion, she read Marjorie McModen's poem, "Thanksgiving." A musical duet, "Traumerel" by Robert Schumann, was rendered by Sallie Margaret Johnston, pianist, and Richard David, violinist.

question of raw prejudice was brought up. Miss Smith said the Negro did not want social equality with the white man, but he wanted simply the chance to be a human being—a chance to grow politically and economically.

June Brandenburg sang "Bless This House, O Lord."

November 12
The following Sunday night the Vesper service was a song service under the leadership of Dr. Karl Gilbert. Erma Hinant led the devotional.

November 17
Friday night, November 17, Clarine Johnson read "The Sisters," by Eleanor B. Stocks. Candelighting was used in the Hut and fall leaves served to suggest Thanksgiving. Soft music was played as a background.

November 10
Lucille Husketh and Mary C. Dixon reported on the Blue Ridge conference, which is the official meeting place of the YMCA's and YWCA's of the South, at Vespers Friday night, November 10. The conference was held a few miles from Black Mountain June 8-13.

The theme of the conference was "Christian Conviction. Personal Growth, Social Action," which expresses the major concerns of the student "Y's" in the southern region.

The conference, according to Lucille Husketh, was divided into five parts—platform addresses, seminars, workshops, worship periods, recreation and fellowship. She told us that in one of the workshops it was found that the ECTC "Y" was the best of the YWCA's in the teacher college group, because of its organization and its work on the campus.

In her report Mary C. Dixon reported on what she considered one of the most interesting discussions—that of "Personality Growth" by Lillian Smith. In the discussion the

Simpson Takes Pictures For College Annual

By now everyone probably knows about Mr. Simpson from Simpson's Studio in Charlotte, who took individual pictures of our student body for the school annual, THE TECOAN.

He was here for four days and, as we found out, was a very patient man. Having had our pictures taken, we remember how hard Mr. Simpson tried to get us to smile prettily for the birdie; and I have often wondered how many films were ruined because some of us tried to appear so solemn and studious looking.

Now that we have received our proofs, I can see the smiling faces of students running around showing the pictures to everyone and trying to decide which pose is better and how many pictures to have made. Don't take too long in deciding, fellow students, or you may get left out.

Lane Makes Talk To Primary Teachers

"How a Book is Made" was the subject of Miss Jean Lane's talk to the primary student teachers recently.

Miss Lane told the group how a book is made, from a manuscript through the finished book. She showed samples of books in their many stages of production.

Before coming to ECTC art department Miss Lane was junior art editor for J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia.

Browning's Class Has Guest Speakers

Mr. Sam B. Underwood, Jr., and Mr. J. Frank Harrington were guest speakers to Dr. E. R. Browning's Business Law class on November 13 and 15, respectively.

Mr. Underwood, a Greenville attorney, discussed the major features of contracts. Mr. Harrington, clerk of the Pitt County Superior Court, explained his duties as clerk of court and told of the procedure used in trying a case.

The Business Law class went on a field trip to a session of the court earlier this quarter.

Forensic Club Discusses Politics

On November 2, the Jarvis Forensic club had a program on current political affairs. The vice-president and program chairman, Jesse L. Carter, introduced the speakers. Short talks for the Democratic presidential nominee, Franklin D. Roosevelt, were made by Elsie West and Christine Yarbrough. Upholding, for the night at least, the other major political party, the Republicans, were Amanda Etheridge and Helen Rouse, who to a typically southern audience called attention to the commendable qualifications of Thomas E. Dewey.

The new debate question, which has just recently been announced, was read to the club by the president, Tommie Averette. It is upon this topic, resolved: "That the federal government should enact legislation requiring compulsory arbitration of all labor disputes," that our teams will debate in the Grand Eastern Forensic tournament, which is to be held in Charlotte from April 5 to 7, 1945.

After a report by the radio program committee and some discussion by the club on the subject, it was decided to present, when it came the club's turn, several talks to be made on subjects of interest by various members of the Jarvis Forensic.

Picklesimer Writes Magazine Article

"The New Bright Tobacco Belt of North Carolina," an article written by Dr. Parnell W. Picklesimer, head of the geography department, appeared in the January, 1944, issue of "Economic Geography."

"The purposes of this study are to determine how man has occupied and used the land, to account for the changes that have taken place in the use of its resources, and to suggest problems which are likely to await solution in the near future."

In this article Dr. Picklesimer told of the occupation, character of the landscape and land use of the Bright Leaf belt.
