College Paper Celebrates 25th Anniversary

Registrar J. K. Long Releases Dean's List, Honor Roll For Fall Quarter

New Honor Roll System Goes Into Effect At East Carolina

The Dean's list and Honor roll for the fall quarter were announced last week by Registrar J. K. Long as students of East Carolina Teachers college celebrated their third week of the new winter quarter. The list, the first time being differentiated, showed the college to be far ahead of the men in academic achievement. The Dean's list for the fall quarter is composed of 17 men and 14 women, while the Honor roll listed 72 men and 140 women.

Staffs Of The College Newspaper

The business staff of the TECO ECHO is doing such efficient work this year that there has been no difficulty in soliciting ads for the paper. Instead, businesses are seeking out members of the staff to get space in the TECO ECHO. Business Manager Annie Lou Butts, second from right sitting, confers with her assistants at one of the regular Monday evening meetings. Teco Echo Has Outstanding Record Over Quarter Century

The TECO ECHO, student-published weekly newspaper of East Carolina Teachers college, celebrates this month its twenty-fifth anniversary. The first issue of the TECO ECHO was circulated among students of East Carolina on December 19, 1925. The first TECO ECHO was circulated among students of East Carolina.

George E. Perry Presented In Trio Recitals

George E. Perry of the faculty of East Carolina was presented by the Greenville Music club in a recital concert for the organ Tuesday evening, December 12. The concert took place in the Austin auditorium.

Mr. Perry, also a pianist, and a group of five student musicians from the college appeared in a program before the Goldsboro Kiwanis club Wednesday evening, December 13. The program was the annual Ladies Night given by the Kiwanians.

Mr. Perry has been presented by the East Carolina department of music in several recitals for the piano since he joined the faculty in 1948. He has appeared before civic and social groups in a number of eastern North Carolina towns.

Last February he gave, with Elizabeth Drake of the faculty, a two-piano recital before the Greenville and the Raleigh music clubs, and in the spring was soloist with the East Carolina Concert band at its annual spring recital. Perry is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, has done graduate study at the Wisconsin School of Music and is a member of the American Guild of Organists.

Cantata Is Chief Attraction Of Annual Christmas Concert

The annual Christmas concert, held in the Yulefest auditorium, was the highlight of the holiday season at East Carolina Teachers college. The chief attraction of the concert was the cantata, "The Mystery of Bethlehem," which was directed by Dr. Karl V. Gilbert of the faculty. The cantata was presented by the college Thursday evening, December 14, in the Austin auditorium.

Alison Hearne of Greenville and Robert Mays of Hopewell, Va. were soloists for the cantata. The cantata was directed by Dr. Karl V. Gilbert of the faculty. The cantata was presented by the college Thursday evening, December 14, in the Austin auditorium.

Big Semi-Formal Dance Will Be Held After Christmas Holiday

The TECO ECHO and the Student Government association are sponsoring a dance Saturday night, January 6, in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the student newspaper which was first published on December 19, 1925.

Bob Lee and his orchestra have been engaged for the dance which is to be a semi-formal affair beginning at 8 o'clock and lasting until 11:30. The dance will be the first major social affair of the new year at the college, since students will return from their Christmas holidays on the preceding Tuesday.

It is expected that the dance will be one of the major attractions of the last half of the school year, according to Rexford E. Piner, editor of the TECO ECHO. Piner is a junior from Wilmington.

Considered One of the Best The TECO ECHO, published weekly by the students of East Carolina, is considered to be one of the best weekly college newspapers in the South. It has received many honors during its quarter of a century of publication and stands as the voice of free student expression on the campus.

Jarvis Forensic Teams Win Two Debates Over ACC

East Carolina Teachers college won two debates over Atlantic Christian college of Wilson here Tuesday evening, December 2, when representatives of the two schools met for their second annual debate contest. The topic was the national intercollegiate query for 1950-1951, "Resolved, That the non-Communist nations should form a new international organization."

Both the affirmative and the negative teams from East Carolina, made up of members of the Jarvis Forensic club, were awarded decisions over two teams from Atlantic Christian. Charles Self of Greensboro and Mitchell Saited of Greenville, the East Carolina affirmative, won over Lloyd Dale and Wilbur Ballenger of Atlantic Christian; and Billy Tucker of Grimesland and Ray Sears of Greenville, East Carolina negative, won over Bruce Whitley and Glenn Briggman of Atlantic Christian.

The contest was staged here under the sponsorship of the Jarvis Forensic club. Dr. Meredith Posey of East Carolina and Mrs. Doris Holsworth of Atlantic Christian, debate coaches, arranged the meeting of the four teams.

Dramatics Group Elects Thirteen To Be Members

Thirteen students were elected to the Teachers Playhouse, dramatics organization at East Carolina, Monday evening, December 11, at a called meeting presided over by Joseph W. Conleton, vice-president of the organization.

The students were selected to become members of the group as a result of their interest shown and participation in two workshop productions. The Teachers Playhouse presents a workshop production every Friday evening.

New members of the organization are: Barbara Hatch, Betty Poole, Philip Gorham, Gene Hart, Joan Johnson, Carl Willis, Jeannine Ennis, Dolores Eisele, Carolyn Eisele, Annette Hughes, Mildred Stapleford, Rebecca Roberson, and Janet Kirkland. Mrs. Susie Webb, a member of the Alumni office staff, also became a member of the dramatics group.

Religious Emphasis Program To Be Held Here January 21-25

Religious Emphasis week at East Carolina will be observed January 21-25. Robert L. Holt, director of religious activities on the campus, has announced; and plans are now being completed. The event, an annual one at the college here, is sponsored by the Inter-religious council of East Carolina.

The Rev. Ray Holder, Episcopal rector of Raleigh, will be principal speaker at a series of programs held during the week. Other speakers will be announced later.

Peggy Monroe of St. Pauls heads the steering committee for Religious Emphasis week. Serving with her are Houston E. Williams, Leland, and Catherine Hill, Deep Run. Committee chairmen working on arrangements for the week are Billy Vendrie, New Bern; Don Blood, Greenville; Gloria E. Rhodes, Tallahassee, Fla.; Gene Hart, Kinston; Merle Kirby, Kenly; Patricia Williams, Wilmington; Priscilla Hynson, Washington; and Ray Sears, Greenville.

Students of the modern dance, directed by Mrs. W. E. Dole of the health and physical education department, gave a dance drama, "The Judgment and the Lady," as part of the concert.

Concert Band Gives Christmas Program At Special Assembly

The Concert Band of East Carolina, a seventy-member music group, gave its annual Christmas program this morning at 10:00 o'clock in the Wright auditorium. A special assembly of students was called by President John D. Messick of the college, and the college community heard a concert by the band, assisted by the newly organized men's glee club of East Carolina.

Herbert L. Carter of the faculty conducted the band as it played an all-Christmas program; and Dr. R. R. Willmann, chairman of the department of music, directed the men's glee club. Singing of carols by the audience, accompanied by the band, was included in the morning's program.

President Messick gave Christmas greetings to students of the college, who will leave the campus for the holidays at noon Saturday.

VERSE OF THE WEEK

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path. I have sworn, and I will perform it, that I will keep thy righteous judgments."
—Psalms 119:105-106

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

As the TECO ECHO reaches the end of twenty-five memorable years on the campus of East Carolina, we pause to consider its growth, values and future before moving onward in the steady stream of time.

First published on December 19, 1925, the college paper has grown from a bi-weekly, five-column paper to a weekly, larger seven-column paper with more pictures, more pleasing make-up and higher standards in general. It is now a highly recognized paper, the results of a quarter of a century of progress on the campus of a progressing college. Each week 2700 copies of the student newspaper are circulated among students, alumni, friends and other colleges, universities and high schools.

For twenty-five years now the TECO ECHO has been a mirror of campus life at East Carolina. Looking through the files one may see the college of days gone by when the paper recalls the visit of Will Rogers to the campus in 1925. It brings back to old timers the days when barber shops specialized in ladies hair bobbing and shampooing . . . the days when the flapper was at East Carolina and "Joe ollege" wore bell-bottomed pants and flat straw hats . . . the days when the girls wore short dresses and were required to wear hats when they went downtown.

We may follow through the files of ancient papers and see recorded the many honors the paper won as the college itself was increasing in size and importance. In 1927 the TECO ECHO became the first college newspaper in North Carolina to be represented at the Columbia Press association convention in New York city. This was the same year the college was recognized by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

On through the years the TECO ECHO recorded its own development and the news of the college, and it stands now as a permanent written history of East Carolina Teachers college from 1925 to the present day.

It has served the purpose of informing the college community about college events. It has interpreted campus life and helped to form opinion. It has trained many worthwhile citizens who have profited immeasurably from the experience and good fellowship which exists in a college newspaper office.

The administration and faculty of the college have not stooped to censor the expression of the students' minds in their own newspaper for which the students appropriate money to make it independent. The students of East Carolina have had a free press but they have been governed by good sense and a sense of responsibility.

The TECO ECHO has a good office in which to operate, and it has good equipment—four typewriters, four filing cabinets, two wall cabinets, two desks and a new press camera. This year the paper was given $4,250 with which to operate—$650 more than it had last year, which was a record itself.

What will the next twenty-five years bring? We do not know. We hope, however, that the paper paper can continue to grow at the rate it has grown for the past twenty-five years.

There are always improvements to be made. We need a telephone badly. The office can be made to have a more pleasing appearance. Perhaps in the future the TECO ECHO will be able to publish six or eight pages every week. Proceeding from that point, perhaps it will become a daily paper printed on presses owned by the college. Perhaps there will be many journalism courses offered and a great number of students interested in working on the TECO ECHO. Its name may even be changed in the future.

The words of the motto which are carried in the masthead of the paper today are, by a strange coincidence, not unlike the words of the first editorial that ever appeared in the TECO ECHO twenty-five years ago. Though they were not expressed so poetically, they meant the same—here is your paper; we have published it with the best that we have in us; here it stands, a written record of what we believe to be the most important news on this campus; this paper can not be changed now; it is done; perhaps you will like the next. We have been criticized before. As someone has said, "To escape criticism, say nothing, do nothing, be nothing." If this be the case the TECO ECHO will never escape it.

ETAOIN and SHRDLU

by Rexford E. Piner

Is anyone wondering why we had this column with such an unusual name? Is anyone reading this column? In case you have read and wondered, here is one clue—it doesn't spell anything backwards or forward, that's for sure. Perhaps we'll tell you the whole story sometime.

Can you imagine the Congress of the United States requesting money from the Treasury department? When Congress needs money, it doesn't have to request it from any of its subordinate committees or other departments of the government. It legislates it to itself.

When the Student Legislature of East Carolina needed money, however, it had to request it from the Budget committee. The Budget committee then recommended at the next meeting of the Legislature that the Legislature be given $500. Then the Legislature had to approve this recommendation. Doesn't that make sense, does it?

The Budget committee is subordinate to the Student Legislature. That was proved in last year's Legislature when there was a clash between the two bodies. All the Legislature has to do to get money, if there is any in the treasury, is to vote itself what it needs. It doesn't have to request money from the Budget committee, since it may overrule that committee's decisions, and the Legislature must approve all allocations anyhow.

Seems to us the Legislature went around its proverbial elbow to get to its thumb!

A number of students at Mount Union college can now claim that they've seen almost every book in their school library. Students moved 65,000 books across their campus so that their new library wouldn't look bare the day it was dedicated. East Carolina may have a new library before the next atomic bomb is dropped. One was scheduled to be constructed in the area where the Y hut stands, but the shortage of building supplies and the inability to obtain contractors has delayed beginnings. Oh, for the happy day when students of East Carolina can form a chain from the present library to the new one and pass the books along to their new home. They did it at Mount Union.

Well, the winter quarter is well under way and the new traffic regulations have gone into effect, but as far as we can tell there has been no improvement in conditions which the regulations were supposed to overcome. Drivers still park their cars in "no parking" areas, and there has been no noticeable reduction in the speed or carefulness of driving. We have seen many flagrant violations.

The future leaders of America: "What do you get for being on the Dean's list?" "Nothing. Your name in the TECO ECHO." "Now there's food for thought."

Our personal thanks to Francis Gay, sportswriter for the athletic department, for his help in an emergency last week. Gay wrote most of the material for the sports page of the last issue of the TECO ECHO when Sports Editor Lloyd Whitfield was out with a bad toothache and swollen jaw.

Orchids to: . . . The Industrial Arts club and other campus organizations that have shown so much true Christmas spirit in thinking of others as our God thought of us on the birthday of Christ. The Industrial Arts club temporarily turned their laboratory in the Flanagan building into a Santa Claus workshop and repaired hundreds of toys for underprivileged children of Greenville. The club cooperated with a number of civic organizations in the city. The Industrial Arts club is a new organization on the campus and is headed by Robert A. Robinson of Franklin Springs, Ga. Robinson is a junior at the college.

Your Manners

Manners really do show! Here is a way to tell how much. Think of the last chaperoned party or dance you went to. Now give yourself one hundred points if you engaged in conversation with at least one chaperone. Count seven-five points for just speaking to one of them, and add five points for every additional chaperone or faculty member greeted during the course of the evening. If you ignored them all, then honestly accept a flat zero and go to your next party resolved to make a higher score than anyone present.

Who's Who At East Carolina

by Anne Jones

It is not often that we find people of outstanding character who take an active part in many activities and seem to get a great enjoyment from all of them. In college a student's interests usually narrow, and his time is devoted to his major field of interest. Joyce Proctor, president of the English club, is, however, an exception to the rule.

Miss Proctor has made a definite contribution to our campus life in the field of English and in the Young Women's Christian association. She has been an active member of the English club ever since her freshman days, taking over as president of that organization, which is the oldest departmental club on the campus, with the opening of the present school year. Having served as vesper chairman of the YWCA last year, she is currently vice-president of that group.

During her freshman year Miss Proctor was elected vice-president of Cotten hall and freshman class reporter. She also served as a member of the Women's Judiciary and is a member of Sigma Pi Alpha, national honorary foreign language fraternity.

In her freshman year at East Carolina Miss Proctor won a scholarship given by the Danforth Foundation which entitled her to attend a Religious Youth Training camp held on the shores of Lake Michigan during the summer of 1949. At this camp which lasted for two weeks, the delegates took part in many discussion groups on the problems of religion and some of the problems of college students along this line.

Because of her deep and earnest interest in people and their welfare, one can easily understand why Miss Proctor plans to teach when she finishes school next winter quarter. Her ambition is to teach in a small country school where she can know the students and they can get acquainted with her. She loves to associate with boys and girls because, in her own words, "when they are young you can teach them so much; you can teach them how to live as well as what is in the book."

In her leisure time Miss Proctor likes to write poetry just for her own pleasure. Several of her poems have been published from time to time in the TECO ECHO. She also likes to go to the movies, especially musicals and comedies. Her favorite actress is June Allyson; her favorite actor is Fred Astaire.

Miss Proctor graduated from Saratoga High school in the spring of 1948 taking the top scholastic honors of her class. Her high school activities include being president of the junior class, chief marshal, member of 4-H club and Beta club, president of county organization of Future Homemakers of America, and editor of the annual. She received the Connor scholarship upon graduation for being the most outstanding high school senior in Wilson county. She was also awarded the citizenship trophy for the most outstanding student in her high school.

In the field of sports she likes to watch basketball and football. She is proud of the fine record made by our Pirate football team this year.

Her favorite verse of scripture is Philippians 4:13, "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me." This verse she has taken as her life's motto.

Miss Proctor stated, "What I have accomplished I owe to my parents whose efforts and encouragement have made my life what it is today."

Thus we find in Joyce Proctor a humble-minded person who has made good through meek and earnest actions. Her presence here at East Carolina has been a great influence upon molding thoughts and actions of many students.

ROUND THE CAMPUS

by Sam Guthrie

There is an underground movement to start a new fraternity on campus. Would-be organizers would call it TAPPA NU KEG and set the initiation fee at $3.40 per member, to be used as seen fit by the officers. Although there is a limit to the membership (1300), authorities are vigorously fighting the movement.

Fell in any ditches lately? If you have, they were probably the ones the maintenance crew is digging for the wires for the new lights. Sure wish the ground would freeze or something so they couldn't dig any more. Those lights will be a heck of a nuisance.

The Circle K Ladies Night banquet last Tuesday night was some shindig. All the Circle K guys brought their dolls and they decorated their interiors with good old turkey and cranberry sauce . . . urp! After some fine entertainment, they all departed for . . . well, they left, anyhow.

Scene: Greenville High school campus. Two excited student teachers pass a fresh freshman who laughs diabolically and says, "Heh, heh . . . fresh meat!" Anybody got any spare salt?

Another local makes good! Seen on a Slay door was a big white star cradling these words: "Home of Lionel Barrymore Robbins, Star of the annual Methodist Christmas Pageant. Thirty seconds in dramatic monologue! (He walked across the stage.) For appointments, see his press agent next door." My! My! This college humor!

Speaking of posters, and we are, this one appeared on campus. "All I want for Christmas is my little electric hot cup. Borrower please return to room." Think he will get

We have been talking with the student treasurer who says he hopes to have a very Merry Christmas, and he told us some of the presents he hopes to buy himself. We don't mean to be nosing into someone else's business, but it might be a good idea to initiate an annual investigation of the Budget office books just before Christmas! Note to Mr. Flanders: Please don't sue us. We have nothing.

Ah, yes! Tomorrow is another day . . . but what a day! Most of the students we have talked to have stated very emphatically that they do not wish to spend the holidays in Greenville. It seems that they all want to go home Saturday, which comes none too soon for most of us. Well, here's wishing all of you a happy Yuletide season and a glorious New Year. Get into the spirit, and if there is any left, leave it home. The school officials don't tolerate it nowadays! Fleiz Navidad! Spell it backwards and it says: Zilef Davivan!, which in turn don't mean nothing. But if you read it in Spanish, it means "Merry Christmas!" (I think). Sooooo . . . Merry Christmas!

MILES BEHIND THE MIKE

by Miles Buck

Let's face it, the western stars have an appeal which will not be denied. If you listen to any station long enough, sooner or later a western or hillbilly show will come on. Most people claim they don't like the stuff, but it would seem that there are plenty more who do, and the record companies are doing a land-office business with western recordings.

We agree that there are plenty of second rate western outfits roaming the country, but there are enough top flight entertainers to offset the poor ones. The "Grand Ole Opry" in Nashville, Tenn., has been doing all right these many years. They play to a packed house every Saturday night and the "National Barn Dance" in Chicago still draws the crowds on Saturday night.

Many of our popular dance tunes were at one time or another western tunes.

We don't have much patience with the characters that moan and groan and play a guitar off key, but we enjoy good western music when played by a first class outfit like the Sons of the Pioneers and other such organizations.

Another group of singers that is rapidly being made popular through the medium of radio is the ballad singers. In order to enjoy their artistry one must first of all understand what is behind the true folk ballad. Probably the most popular at the present time is Burl Ives. He has appeared in several movies and has made several albums for Decca which are available at most good music stores.

If you are interested in folk music, any good library will furnish you with ample material on the subject. On our own campus there are two people who know a great deal about folk music. Mr. Vornholt has a fund of knowledge on the subject and Mrs. M. N. Posey has from time to time entertained various organizations in Greenville with her fine singing of folk ballads, especially those native to North Carolina.

Stan Kenton has definitely dropped his plans for a second "Innovations" tour early in 1951. He finished a two-week stand at the Rustic Cabin in Inglewood, N.J. last Sunday. He is scheduled for the Hollywood Palladium starting next March 5 for a five-week stand. Kenton is finding the dance band is doing very well at the box office and can see little point in going into concert work. Less than a year ago Kenton indicated he would never play for dancers again.

The music of the Kenton orchestra is different and somewhat controversial but he still packs them in, and in any business that's what counts. There are many who think Kenton is something super, wonderful and there are just as many that could do without him. We are of the latter school, but that is what makes the world go 'round.

We understand that the local record stores don't carry Kenton, so nice people, if you want Kenton, you will have to go outside Greenville to find his discs.

Along with everyone else on campus we have had holiday jitters all week and look forward to tomorrow noon and that long recess with home cooking and lots of sleeping, parties and what have you. So to one and all a very Merry Christmas and we'll see you in '51 when we'll try and make a fresh start with resolutions to break.

TRADE BITS

by Tommie Lupton

We here at East Carolina may talk about it being cold sometimes, but we really ought to be thankful, for up at Appalachian State Teachers college, schools were closed during one week because of a blizzard. The schools were reopened on Monday, but were closed again Thursday. They were not closed the second time because of snow, but because of the heavy rains. If we were up there at Boone, we probably would not be dreaming of a white Christmas.

Several colleges in the state are presenting Handel's Christmas "Messiah" this year. Glee clubs from Wake Forest, Lenoir Rhyne and Appalachian are among the schools giving this Yuletide musical program.

It is rumored at Lenoir Rhyne that Vaughn Monroe and his 30-member "Camel Caravan" will appear there in the spring.

"A woman who goes in for heavy cosmetics to make her given age sound plausible is just making up for lost time." Thanks to "The Western Carolinian."

Sadie Hawkins day seems to have been a big hit at all of the North State colleges, for every time we pick up one of their exchange papers we read about the big dances and races in the various "Dog Patches" and the collegiate "Daisy Maes" and "Lil' Abners."

Smith Barrier, sports editor of the "Greensboro Daily News," was the main speaker at the annual Lenoir Rhyne college football banquet. Letters were awarded to members of the 1950 football team and the 1951 grid captain was announced.

Here's a "believe it or not" item taken from the "Maroon and Gold" of Elon. The story which was supposed to be true went like this:

"Every now and then someone writes a check and forgets to sign it. That is not news. But when seven people let an unsigned check go through their hands unnoticed, that IS news."

"Recently an Elon student received a check from his mother, who had forgotten to sign it. Not noticing the lack of signature, he took the check to a local store, where it was cashed without question. The local merchant passed the check to a salesman, who also accepted it without looking for a signature. The salesman turned it in to his office, where it was deposited in a Greensboro bank. Again it was accepted and forwarded back to its source in Washington. The unsigned check passed its seventh hand when the Washington bank honored it, and it was not turned back until a bookkeeper caught it in balancing account."

P. S. The article was titled CHECK THIS!

To The Editor

To The Editor:
I am passing on to you a remark made by a visitor to our campus on several occasions, who has had wide experience in his association with different groups. He stated when he went in our dining halls he had expected to find a noisy place, but instead found the students to be more orderly than the adults are in most public eating places.

I have before me a letter from Larry Averette, president of the Greenville Lions club, in which he says, and I quote:

"On November 9, when our organization sponsored the Gene Krupa dance, there was a large number of students from East Carolina Teachers College present. I feel sure that you will be interested in knowing that many citizens and members of the Greenville Lions club had nothing but praise for the fine manner in which the students conducted themselves."

I realize, of course, that it is a tradition for the students of East Carolina Teachers college to conduct themselves as ladies and gentlemen and it is indeed gratifying to see this demonstrated at a public gathering of this kind."

From these two statements you may be sure that people are appraising your conduct at all times. It makes me happy, and I am sure it does you, when you are spoken of in this way.

President

SPORTS ECHO

BY LLOYD WHITFIELD

Reports circulating to the effect that East Carolina will discontinue intercollegiate boxing has been a subject of wide criticism for the past two weeks. Last week we wrote in this column our views on the subject although we have received no official word from the athletic office concerning the matter.

However, we had received no official word regarding the status of intercollegiate boxing at East Carolina. We were just commenting on a widespread rumor Monday afternoon this reporter met with Athletic Director Dr. N. M. Jorgenson, and he gave an explanation of the situation as it now stands and will stand. He also wrote a letter and gave us permission to print it. The letter explicitly explains the current position of Coach Johnny Long and his assistants.

Before we discuss Dr. Jorgenson's letter, let's refer back to last week's column which stated that several of the nation's top amateur boxers had expressed a desire to attend East Carolina, but could not enter school here because we could not offer financial aid. Some students have the idea that these boys, such as Jackie O'Neil, had been promised scholarships but now could not get them. That is not a true statement! Dr. Jorgenson showed us the athletic department's budget in regard to the amount given to each sport for scholarships. In regard to boxing the budget stated "Boxing will not draw from the scholarship funds but will use its own gate receipts and guarantees for self-help jobs and scholarships." This budget was presented to all the members of the coaching staff and they were well aware of the fact that having scholarships could not be given. Where some of the students got the idea that the boxers had been promised scholarships by the athletic department, no one knows. It is true that boxers might have been promised self-help jobs and aid. However, this came through sources outside of Dr. Jorgenson as the budget vividly states.

THE STATUS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE BOXING AT EAST CAROLINA
At the time of the meeting Dr. Jorgenson presented us with a letter entitled "The Status of Intercollegiate Boxing at East Carolina." It read in detail as follows: "I regret to inform the students of East Carolina and the followers of boxing in general that circumstances make it advisable at this time to curtail our intercollegiate boxing program and to confine that sport to the intramural level of competition.

Circumstances making this move advisable include: (1) the lack of sufficient funds to offer boxing scholarships (and in order to compete against other colleges and universities we must offer inducements to obtain competent boxers); (2) loss of last year's squad members to the armed services and failure of a number of boys to return to school; (3) instruction from the State Department of Public Instruction that we do not sponsor high school tournaments as we have in the past two years."

From this letter we gather that East Carolina will not have an intercollegiate boxing team. However, the boxers will be able to use the college's equipment and facilities for intra-mural bouts. Boxing will not be dropped entirely from the curriculum. We will continue to have it, with the boys scheduling their own matches.

Now that we have looked at Dr. Jorgenson's side of the statement, and presented it to a group of Wilson hall men who desire to do something about the situation, we still do not see why we cannot have an intercollegiate boxing team. Why not put on a drive to establish funds for scholarships for boxers? People say it would be murder to put one of our boys in the ring with a Southern conference boxer. Why? Before a boxer goes into the ring he is supposed to have a physical examination. An intercollegiate boxer is required to wear a headgear to prevent serious head injuries. He has a certain amount of gauze wrapped around his hand to prevent cracking or breaking the hand. His body is covered with a special kind of oil to prevent serious cuts. This oil causes the skin to bruise instead of being cut when hit by a boxing glove.

We do not know what action the students will take, but it is evident that they desire more specific reasons why we cannot have a boxing team. The students love it more than any other sport, so they say. We advise all officials to lay the cards on the table. We had been informed earlier in the season by Boxing Coach Johnny Long that he had been promised money, but could not get it now.

How do the other coaches feel about the situation? Do they want to keep intercollegiate boxing from the scholarship funds because this draws money out from their sport? Maybe that is the answer, and maybe it is not. If it is, we do not think it is fair to the students. They should have the benefit of a well-balanced and a broader program than we have. This is an excellent opportunity to broaden it. We ask the athletic officials to reconsider and give the school a boxing team that will box other colleges.

ODDS AND ENDS
Coach Howard Porter's basketball cagers have been coming along just fine, and they sport one conference win against no losses. Coach Porter has come a long way thus far, despite the fact that he has had largely a crop of green freshmen to work with. These boys are making a good account of themselves, and we should have a couple of All-conference freshmen. Porter's worries were added to immensely when it was discovered that Len Bauer was no longer eligible for competition. Bauer was a great ball player and was counted on as being the backbone of the squad this year.

Three members of the physical education department attended the annual meeting of the State Physical Education and Health Recreation Association conference in Chapel Hill, December 8 and 9. Those attending from East Carolina were Dr. N. M. Jorgenson, Dr. Charles DeShaw and Miss Nell Stallings.

Baseball coach and assistant grid coach at East Carolina, Jack Boone, was the guest speaker at a football banquet given the Churchland, Va. high school team last week.

Whittington Leads Riflemen To Win In Match With Harvard

Cadet Richard B. Whittington led the Air Force Reserve Officers Training corps riflemen of East Carolina to victory over the Harvard university AFROTC rifle team in a postal match early this week. Cadet Whittington had a high score of 349 for all four firing positions.

The East Carolina squad, coached by Capt. James N. McDill, instructor in Air Science and Tactics, scored a total of 1674 points against 1436 for the Harvard team.

A postal match is one in which the team from one school will compete with another by way of the United States mail. An officer of each team witnesses the shooting and scores are mailed to the other team.

Capt. McDill announced that his squad will shoot a match with the University of Notre Dame this week. Other teams that have been booked are The Citadel, the University of South Carolina and the University of Mississippi.

The box score of the Harvard match was:

Russell Scores 20 Points As Bucs Win 64-59 Victory

Sparked by a brilliant high-scoring forward, Sonny Russell, who bagged 26 points, the East Carolina Pirate cagers racked up an impressive 64-59 non-conference victory over a visiting Wilson Teachers college five in Wright gymnasium last Friday night.

It was the first victory for the locals against outside competition as they shot with deadly accuracy and played with championship form. Leading the victory, along with Russell, was Coach Porter's star freshman cager, Charles Huffman. Huffman hit for 20 points, and showed great form in doing so.

Dr. N. M. Jorgenson, head of the East Carolina physical education department, announced on Wednesday afternoon that the Training school gymnasium would be utilized after Christmas for intramural activities.

The gym will be used for basketball, volleyball and many other various sports. Jorgenson expressed hope that the present intramural basketball league, which includes 13 teams, would increase to about 30 teams.

Girls' High School Basketball Clinic Held Here Monday

High school players and coaches of Pitt county and neighboring schools attended a girls' high school basketball clinic held in the Training school gymnasium Monday afternoon, December 11. The program was sponsored by the East Carolina physical education department and was under the direction of Miss Nell Stallings, faculty member.

Points stressed during the session were interpretations of the rules and actual demonstrations. Various techniques also came in for observation.

As Winter Sports Get In Full Swing

Buccaneer Gridders Honored By Stadium Fund Committee

Dennis Smith Wins Most Outstanding Blocking Plaque

The East Carolina Stadium Fund committee honored the 1950 East Carolina gridgers at a banquet Monday night, December 11, in the north dining hall at the college. Chairman of the Stadium Fund committee, Ed Rawl, served as master of ceremonies for the event, and President John D. Messick of East Carolina pronounced the invocation.

After the dinner several leading members of the Stadium committee were introduced. They included Dave Whichard, Jr., Sam White, Reynolds May, Herbert Waldrop, Lee Folger, and Erel Webb.

Dr. J. B. Cummings, newly elected president of the North State conference and chairman of the college athletic council, was recognized, along with Dr. C. F. Irons, team physician.

Coach Bill Dole, head grid mentor at East Carolina, spoke on the 1950 football squad, and praised the team's spirit and their outstanding success throughout the year.

Dennis Smith, sophomore from Chowchocinity, was named as the team's most outstanding blocker and was presented a plaque by Coach Dole for his splendid defensive play. The plaque was donated by Joe Williams of Whiteville, a graduate of East Carolina, who has decided to make this award an annual affair to the Pirates' "most outstanding blocker and tackler."

Roger Thrift, recently acclaimed as the North State conference's most valuable player, and Johnny Smith, the Bucs' hard-charging fullback, were named honorary football captains for the 1950 season.

Lenoir Rhyne Takes Early North State Conference Lead

Jim "Pappy" Hamilton, former University of North Carolina star, took over the job of coaching the Lenoir-Rhyne basketball team this year and is now resting on top of the North State conference with a record of two wins and no losses.

The Bears walloped Western Carolina in a two-game series by 91-46 and 90-67 scores. These two wins moved the Hickory team ahead of East Carolina by one game.

High Point Impressive
High Point, the conference favorite, has yet to play a loop contest, but has registered impressive wins. They defeated Washington and Lee 82-69, and the Generals are expected to have one of the hottest teams in the Southern conference.

The real test of the Panthers from High Point will come this week. Last night they were to have played the University of Evansville at Evansville, Ind. Then, Saturday night at Bowling Green, Ky., the North Carolinians will meet a national ranking power, Western Kentucky.

Guilford Beats Atlantic Christian
In the only other conference game played last week, Guilford's Quakers defeated Atlantic Christian, 51-50. The Quakers' only defeat came at the hands of East Carolina by a 61-35 score.

SCHEDULE

Friday—Lenoir-Rhyne at Wofford, Atlantic Christian at Norfolk Navy, Camp Lejuene at East Carolina, Martinsville DuPont at Guilford.
Saturday—High Point at Western Kentucky, Appalachian at McCrary, Atlantic Christian at Norfolk Navy.

Porter's Cagers To Meet Marines Tonight At Eight

Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina cagers will take on a strong non-conference foe, Camp Lejuene tonight in Wright gymnasium with the tip-off scheduled for 8 o'clock. The Bucs will be seeking to revenge a 63-62 overtime loss handed them by the Marines earlier in the season.

The Camp Lejuene team boasts one of the strongest service teams in this section with several great college stars spearheading the squad.

Coach Porter lost his first string guard, Len Bauer, last week when he was declared ineligible, but the Pirate coach has several reserves he hopes to work in at guard. Looking especially good at that position thus far have been Bobby Hodges, two times prep All-state, and John Posta, a big 6-foot, six-inch giant from New Jersey. Richard Blake, another high school All-stater and sophomore, has seen considerable action at guard and is the No. 1 substitute.

The probable starting lineup for tonight's contest will have Sonny Russell and Charles Huffman at forwards. Toddy Fennell will start at center with Bobby Hodges and John Posta starting at guard. Porter has several competent reserves who will see plenty of action. Paul Jones, Jim Blake and Lou Collie are capable substitutes and will probably see service at forwards.

Tonight's game will be the last for the local cagers until they meet the highly publicized High Point Panthers here January 9. After the High Point game the Bucs will meet the defending North State conference champions, Appalachian, here January 12.

Notice

A syndicate, The Campus Valet, owned and operated by East Carolina students, will award each week three dollars of dry cleaning to the TECO ECHO'S "Athlete of the Week." Each athlete who is named to this honor is requested to contact Paul Casey to receive his award.

Baptist Student Center Is Scene Of 'Open House'

Open House was held at the Baptist Student center Sunday afternoon, December 3. Faculty and staff members, students of all denominations and members of Memorial and Emmanuel Baptist churches in Greenville were invited to call at the center.

The Open House gave friends of the Baptist Student union an opportunity to fellowship with the Executive council and to see the new chapel recently completed. A dedication service for the new chapel was held at the center on December 1, in which Jack Painter, junior from Tarboro, gave a talk of dedication, and Gene Hart, Kinston senior, led the group in prayer. The room will seat approximately 50 people and is used for vesper services on weekday evenings, as well as for various forums and study groups sponsored by the BSU.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Studebaker of Carrboro, N.C. presented the organization with a lectern and pulpit Bible for the chapel. Others who gave gifts to make the small chapel possible were the following alumni: Julia Bray, Josie Keeter, Faye Howard, John Causey, Betsy Sue Stafford, Amayllis Lang, Mrs. C. D. Ward (Hester Gist), Mrs. E. E. Rawl (Josephine Little) and Mrs. Clem Garner (Ruth Blanchard).

Frances Dixon was chairman of the committee in charge of inviting a number of people off the campus, and Jamie Parker, Elizabeth Pate and Jack Painter composed the steering committee of the Open House.

Guests were greeted at the door by Patsy Stroud and Alice Jackson. In the receiving line were Miss Gloria H. Blanton, BSU counselor; Doris Edwards, president; Milam Johnson; Pat Williams; Mrs. Clem Garner, advisor; and Mr. James W. Ray, state secretary.

Other Executive council members who assisted with the Open House were: Clifford Adams, Elsie Howard, Elizabeth Glasgow, George Starling, Avis Squires, Donald Smith, Catherine Hill, Dor Cain, Margaret Mason, Seleta Tucker, Ora Mae Rouse and Helen Duncan.

Retired General Of 11th Division Visits EC Campus

Brig. Gen. William E. Brougher, retired, of the U.S. Army, was a visitor at East Carolina Thursday, November 30. Commander of the 11th Division, Philippine Army, during World War II, he was a prisoner of the Japanese for three and a half years following the Bataan surrender. The general, Mrs. Brougher, and Mrs. Griswold of Chattanooga, Tenn., were guests while here of Miss Emma L. Hooper of the college faculty.

The distinguished visitor stopped in Greenville en route from his home in Atlanta, Ga., to Newport News, Va., where he was scheduled for a speaking engagement Friday.

During the struggle in the Philippines, the 11th Division, commanded by General Brougher, had the mission of defending the eastern half of Lingayen Gulf and the exposed coast of Northern Luzon. After Bataan, he spent three and a half years in nine different prison camps in four countries. He was liberated at Mukden by the Russians and left Manchuria with General Wainwright and the first contingent of American prisoners of war to be brought out in American planes. Before his recent retirement, he was commanding officer at Camp Gordon, Augusta, Ga.

While imprisoned, General Brougher wrote a series of poems, since published under the title "The Long Dark Road." The volume is now in its seventh printing. He is a popular speaker and since the war has filled more than 250 lecture engagements.

If everyone profited by their mistakes many would be able to pay dividends.

The TECO ECHO, which circulates each week 2,700 copies to students, alumni and many universities, colleges and high schools, has a comparatively small staff. In addition to Piner, the editorial staff of the paper has a managing editor, four assistant editors, three featureists and an editorial advisor.

The sports staff is composed of Lloyd Whitfield of Kinston, sports editor, and Tom Cox of Mount Olive, assistant.

Annie Lou Butts, soprano from Angier, heads the business staff. Miss Butts has eight assistants. Peggy Bowen of Greenville is circulation manager.

Dr. Utterback Reads 'Christmas Carol' To Baptist Students

Members of the Baptist Student union of East Carolina heard a reading of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" by Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the college English department Monday evening, December 11. The event took place at the Baptist Student center.

A program of carol singing and a Christmas tree was included in the entertainment for the evening. Elsie Howard of St. Pauls lead guests in group singing, and Seleta Tucker of Farmville was soloist. Those present participated in decorating the tree at the center with their gifts to the Lottie Moon offering for missions, an annual project for foreign missions made by Baptist churches.

A social hour followed Dr. Utterback's reading of the Dickens classic.

Work without a spiritual motive is just a weariness of the flesh.

Baptist Students Will Go Caroling Tonight

Baptist students of East Carolina will go caroling tonight, December 15, as is customary with that group during the pre-Christmas season. A tradition with Baptist students on the campus, they will meet at the Baptist Student center at 7:15 and sing before the windows of friends on and off campus.

George Sarling will lead the singing, and Elizabeth Glasgow, social chairman, has provided for light refreshments and jingle bells for merry-making.
