Spiritual Emphasis Week Begins Monday

SGA Sponsors Dance For Polio Thursday

A benefit dance for the March of Dimes drive will be sponsored by the Student Government Association next Thursday night after the ball game with Appalachian.

In response to the county chairman to sponsor a dance, the Student Legislature decided to do so in support of the national drive in the fight against polio. Coon Williams was named chairman of a committee for the dance by SGA President Mitchell Sauced.

Admission charge was set at 25 cents per person and donations will be accepted.

Late permission for girls will be checked. President Sauced said that he felt sure that it could be obtained.

By-Laws Still Under Study

Action on the proposed revisions in the by-laws of the Student Handbook was postponed until mimeographed copies could be made available. The changes, which have been viewed by the Legislature, Executive Council, the Administration and other groups, will still get further study before a final vote of the legislature body.

Retires Russell's Jersey

In a letter from Dr. N. M. Jorgenson, director of health and physical education, the athletic department is securing another jersey to replace number 14, which was worn by the Pirate cager star, Sonny Russell, during his past years here. The jersey will soon be officially retired.

Five delegates were selected to attend the regional Virginia-Carolina Student Association of the National Student Association to be held at Woman's College of UNC in Greensboro, February 13. Jimmy Winstead, Howard Rooks, Jane Kanoy, the editor of the "East Carolinian" and one of the editors of the "Buccaneer," were elected as delegates by the body.

Percy Wilkins and Ann Siler were appointed as the student members to serve on a student-faculty committee to select "Mr. and Miss Student Teacher" of 1953-54.

Official Lost-Found

An official lost and found department is being investigated on the campus. At present the Alumni office, dean of men's office and the SGA office handle most lost and found articles. The potential official lost-found bureau will be the Alumni office which will move sometime next week to the old Home Management building or the campus telephone office which the Alumni office has occupied for a number of years.

Names Omitted On List

Due to an error Charlotte W. Baker and Verle Trueblood were omitted on the list of students who made all ones during Fall Quarter. Dr. Orval L. Phillips, registrar, announced this week. This brings the total of one students on campus to 17.

Playhouse Slates Musical Comedy January 25

Two East Carolina College students, members of the Teachers Playhouse, college dramatics club, have provided the script and the score for a musical comedy "Banana Moon," which the club will present Monday, January 25.

The performance will take place at 8:15 p.m. and will be open to the public. The production will be one of a series of workshop plays given during the school year.

The comedy, a romantic story of amateurs in a summer stock theatre, was adapted by Douglas Mitchell, Greenville sophomore, from Laurence Riley's "Return Engagement." Music for songs and dances was written by Patricia Godwin, sophomore from Havelock, with Mitchell as collaborator.

Susie Denton and Hannah Phelps, both of Raleigh, are serving as choreographers for the performance and with Charles E. Shearon of Durham will appear as principal dancers.

Scenery was designed by Jean Tetterton of Greenville and is being built under her direction. Ernest White of Waynesboro, Va. is in charge of lighting and sound effects.

The cast of "Banana Moon" includes Jeanne Pritchard, Elizabeth City; James L. Thompson, Durham; Iene Lingle, China Grove; Robert Gardner, Rocky Mount; Anna Avant, Whiteville; and Patricia Mitchell is director of the production. Eleven other students will appear in minor parts.

School Blazer Orders

Those persons desiring East Carolina College blazers this year are requested to see Janet Hodges, 257 Fleming Hall, within the next month.

The school jackets are being sold by the Association for Childhood Education. Orders will be taken by Janet from 7 p.m. until 10:30 p.m., with a $5 deposit required with each order.

program they were recalled to the stage for a number of encores.

Representing the Greenville Music Club in welcoming and entertaining guests at the reception were Miss Beatrice Chauncey, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gray, Mrs. Burt Greene, and Mrs. Edmund Durham.

Charles A. White of the Greenville Music Club announced Tuesday at a short business meeting that Bizet's "Carmen" will be presented by the Grass Roots Opera Company February 16 in the College Theatre here. Plans were begun for the event, which will be sponsored by the club.

Visiting Leaders Present Theme: 'Nation Under God'

Spiritual Emphasis Week at East Carolina College, annual observance sponsored by student religious organizations on the campus, will be observed next week, January 18-21. Five speakers prominent in educational and religious activities in this state and in the nation will participate in the program.

"This Nation Under God — Our Moral and Spiritual Heritage" is the theme chosen for Spiritual Emphasis Week this year. The program for the event has been arranged under the leadership of Dr. Carl V. Harris, director of religious activities at East Carolina, and W. Parker Marks of Speed, president of the Interreligious Council of the college.

Sponsored by Council

This year's observance of Spiritual Emphasis Week is sponsored by the interreligious Council, composed of 11 student religious groups, and has been planned with the assistance and cooperation of the Student Government Association.

Speakers on the program will be brought to the campus by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, through the assistance of Harry S. Jones, director of the Carolina Region of the organization.

Dr. James G. Huggin, minister at the Central Methodist Church of Shelby, will give the keynote address at a student-faculty assembly Monday morning, January 18, in the Wright auditorium. His topic will be "Spiritual Foundations of American Life: What Are They?"

Other speakers who will appear on programs during the week are Rabbi Nathan Hershfield of Temple Emanuel, Gastonia, professor of Old Testament at Livingston College, Salisbury; Dr. Gordon W. Lovejoy, educational consultant for the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Guilford College; Harry S. Jones, director of the Carolina Region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews; and the Rev. W. W. Finlator of the First Baptist Church, Elizabeth City.

Assemblies On Tap

A general assembly scheduled each day at 7 p.m. in the Austin auditorium will present a talk by one of the visiting speakers. Open forums, with Mr. Jones as moderator, will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday immediately after the assemblies.

Devotional periods will be observed each morning at 7:30. Protestant services will be conducted in the Austin auditorium and Roman Catholic services at St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church in Greenville.

Other events scheduled for the guest speakers, include evening discussion meetings in the college dormitories, personal conferences with students and talks before various college classes. Morning and afternoon coffee hours have been arranged to provide informal meetings between students and guests.

A book display for Spiritual Emphasis Week has been arranged by the National Conference of Christians and Jews and the East Carolina Interreligious Council. It will be located in the college alumni office.

Directs Work

Dr. Carl V. Harris, director of religious activities at East Carolina, has served as advisor to the Interreligious Council in its planning of Spiritual Emphasis Week which begins Monday.

Winter Term Enrollment Tops Previous Figures, Says Phillips

East Carolina College has this year the largest winter-quarter enrollment in its history, according to an announcement by Registrar Orval L. Phillips. A total of 2,358 men and women are now registered for courses offered by the college.

Students taking work on the campus at present number 2,095, as compared to 1,238 in the 1952-1953 winter quarter and 1,796 for the same period of 1951-1952.

Enrolled in extension courses from nine eastern North Carolina towns are 263 students, most of them taking in the public schools. The number of extension students for the winter period last year was approximately the same.

Among those taking work on the campus, 1,663 are enrolled in courses preparing them as teachers.

Sixteen men and 450 women are specializing in elementary education. This large number indicates that efforts at East Carolina to train elementary teachers and so to decrease the acute shortage of personnel in this area of public education are meeting with success.

Students who enrolled at East Carolina College this quarter for the first time include 130 men and women. Individuals who have registered for courses taught on the campus during the present school year thus total 2,342, of whom 2,212 attended the college during the fall quarter.

Women students now on the campus number 1,159; and men students, 996. A breakdown of the total of 2,358 shows the following enrollment: freshman, 796; sophomore, 489; junior, 302; senior, 354; graduate, 17 full-time and 129 part-time; special, 25 and extension, 263.

Faculty Artists Present Recital

A recital of works for two pianos presented by Elizabeth Drake and George E. Perry of the East Carolina College faculty and an informal reception in their honor afterwards provided chief interest at the January meeting of the Greenville Music Club Tuesday of this week.

Approximately 300 club members and guests were present in the Austin auditorium on the college campus to hear the faculty pianists, in a program sponsored by the city music organization and the East Carolina department of music.

Selections played by Miss Drake and Mr. Perry during the evening ranged from a series of Bach preludes to works by Gershwin, Shostakovich, and other modern composers. Included among their numbers were Schubert's "Rondo Brillianto," Brahms' "Variations on a Theme by Haydn," Rachmaninoff's "Floods of Spring," and Chabrier's "España Rhapsody."

The duo-pianists have played together during the past few years in Raleigh, Wake Forest, Farmville, Greenville and elsewhere in eastern North Carolina. Their performance Tuesday was received with enthusiastic applause by the audience, and after the conclusion of the scheduled

College Awards Contracts For Two New Dorms

Contracts for the erection of two new student dormitories at East Carolina College will be let early in February according to present plans, college President John D. Messick has announced.

Dr. Messick has also announced that the renovation of Wright building as a student union, work on which was begun in the fall of 1953, is progressing satisfactorily. The new Joyner Library, under construction since the summer of 1952, is expected to be ready for use in March, he says.

Contracts have been awarded, Dr. Messick states, for paving various walks and drives on the campus. Work will soon begin on this project. When completed, the new dormitories will provide much needed living quarters for the rapidly expanding student body of the college. One of the dormitories will accommodate men students, and the other is planned for use by women students.

A large number of those who wished to enter East Carolina in the fall of 1953 were unable to do so because of lack of available rooms on the campus. Many students, both men and women, now rent rooms in the city of Greenville.

Architect's drawings for the new dormitory for men, by Eric G. Flanagan of Henderson, were submitted to the office of the Budget Bureau in Raleigh about December 1. James Griffith, Greenville architect, submitted plans for the new dormitory for women on December 21.

These plans will be reviewed by the State Budget Office and returned to the architects for any changes which may be recommended. Bids will then be received for the construction of the two new dormitories.

The new men's dormitory will be built on the South Campus near Tenth Street. When completed it will be East Carolina's third residence hall for men, Slay and Ragsdale halls being already in use. The new dormitory for women will be located on the West Campus and will be the fifth large residence hall for women.

Both new buildings will be brick structures designed to harmonize in architecture with existing dormitories. The men's residence hall will provide living quarters for 800 students; and the women's dormitory, for 270.

Business Groups Sponsor February Valentine Dance

The Future Business Leaders of America will hold its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday night, January 19, at 6:45 in Flanagan auditorium.

At this meeting detailed plans will be made for the forthcoming annual Valentine Dance to be held in Wright auditorium on February 12. This dance is sponsored jointly by FBLA and Pi Omega Pi, both business education organizations.

Major committee appointments were announced this week by the heads of these organizations: Julian Vainwright of FBLA and Don McGlohon of Pi Omega Pi. Serving as co-chairmen of the dance this year are Jack Hudson and Curtis Hendrix. Other committees and their co-chairmen are: publicity, Bobbie Lou Avant and Peggy Nash; decorations, Ed Gore and Shirley Newton; refreshments, Ann Bynum and Frances Buck; figure, King and ueen, Betty Sue Banch and Florence Helms; finance, Howard Rooks and Keith Hodson; clean-up, Kenneth Borden and E. A. Thomas.

The Valentine Dance has been sponsored for several years by the two business organizations. The affair in the past has been one of the most colorful events of the year. An added attraction this year will be the selection by popular vote of a King and Queen of Hearts to reign over the event. The formal coronation will be the central theme of the figure.

The dance will be open to the public at $1 a couple or stag. Music will be furnished by the East Carolina College Collegians.

All members of FBLA are urged to attend this meeting and to take an active part in the promotion of the dance.

Service Frat Meeting Set For Monday Night

The men's service fraternity, Alpha Phi Omega, will hold an open meeting on Monday, Jan. 18, at 8:30 p.m. in the men's day student room.

The meeting is being held in order that boys who are interested in becoming members may see how business is carried on and fill out applications. All interested persons are advised to attend this meeting as it will be the only opportunity to see the only organization of its kind on campus.

Women's Judiciary Operates Similar To Regular Courts

by Valeria Shearon

(Editor's note: This is the first of a series of articles we plan to publish on Student Government activities. This article explains the duties of the Women's Judiciary, one of the three branches of the Student Government Association. The three, as in our national and state governments, are the executive, legislative, and judicial branches. The latter branch here is divided into two groups, the Women's and Men's judiciaries.)

Probably every East Carolina student, whether male or female, realizes that there exist on the campus an organization known as the Women's Judiciary, which holds among its prerogatives the right to consider merits and restrictions upon breaking lasses.

But beyond this limited formation, your knowledge of the organization is probably as old as a day old potato. Let us, then, with Judiciary Chairman, Jane Hobgood reveals some of its duties.

Proceedings of the Judiciary are held in the presence of the president of Faculty, Betty Bynum, and Marvin Milne, secretary, in the Women's Hall.

Just what proceedings are held in the Women's Hall.

On the first of the month, a meeting is held in the Women's Hall. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the activities of the Judiciary during the past month.

Let's Grigby of the English Club spoke to the members of the English Club at their regular meeting last Tuesday night at 8:30 p.m.

Let's Grigby chose to discuss the English Club, relating facts about the club's history and the various uses of the club. The club is mentioned in the modern almanac.

An Opportunity For Spiritual Growth

Spiritual growth at college is just as essential as our expansion in education, social and extra-curricular activities. Our spiritual and moral behavior is a primary factor of our status quo not only in society but before God. Thus Spiritual Emphasis Week is launched Monday on the East Carolina campus with the theme this year, "This Nation Under God—Our Moral and Spiritual Behavior."

To achieve a well-rounded education, and that is our purpose in attending college, we must have a background in all activities of college life. Spiritual expansion is certainly one topic which should be included in the student's program of a college education.

On program for Spiritual Emphasis Week is a visiting team of five highly trained and well-studied spiritual workers who will address the assemblies and conduct informal conversation with students in their dorms. These men, we feel, will add an intangible substance to our lives. We, as students and future leaders of this nation, should not only be attentive listeners but should also put practical application on the basis of their messages.

This nation was set up by people who wanted to establish their own beliefs and faiths, and that is the way our life is run today. Despite the high pressure existence of which each person is a part, Americans, as a whole, have not forgotten their basic right to individual beliefs and faiths.

During the coming week we will have an opportunity to partake in our inherent freedom of religion and worship and also present us with the chance to further our education in spiritualism. It is an opportunity to study one of the greatest subjects. Let's all strive to benefit from Spiritual Emphasis Week.

Oak Tree Sessions Get No Where

Under an old oak tree at a country church, some members discuss and oppose violently a motion that was made during the previous church business meeting. They had voted affirmatively and offered no discussion at the meeting.

More or less the same oak tree discussion goes on the East Carolina campus, particularly after Student Legislature meetings on Wednesday nights. Conversation as this goes on in the soda shop after such meetings: "That was really an assinine motion passed tonight." Then they proceed to put up arguments against the motion. These arguments were not brought out in the meeting and, yet, they gripe.

Not only some legislative members are guilty of this, but some other students. They have gripes, complaints and suggestions, but seldom do any of these get past the bull session or "oak tree discussion" stages.

The time and the place for all of these gripes and suggestions for improvement is in the Student Legislature meetings or they may also be directed to the Administration, who, we feel, will welcome such. In both plants, the SGA and the Administration, will explore possibilities on such matters brought to their attention and will take action if they see fit.

Soda shop sessions get no where. If you, as a student, believe that you have a good idea or a worthwhile gripe, share it, but also with the SGA or Administration who could "put the show on the road."

Wit And Wisdom

Remember this maxim in life's rugged pull: You can't hit the bull's eye by shooting the bull.

You can fool all the people some of the time; you can fool some of the people all the time; but you can't fool all the people all the time.

It is fine if you don't inhale.

From we believe in, give us practice.

Ye Editor's Say

by T. Parker Maddrey

Mrs. George E. Perry, who conducts the campus radio programs, tells us that the college will have some television programs soon. Already the local channel, WNCT (Watching North Carolina's Television) has featured college talent from the music department and plan other programs using faculty and students.

With the aid of TV in Greenville, people in the 100-mile radius will see the college in action and in pictures. At present Channel 9, Greenville, is not equipped with mobile cameras and "live" programs are limited to the studio. However, in all probability, films of EC football games will be shown.

Television is a step forward in the progress of Greenville. And the city needs such progress to keep pace with a progressive college.

(ACP)—Among students at Smith College, sophomores are the most prone to cut classes. A recent poll showed 58 per cent of the soph cut at least once a week, and for three main reasons: studying for exams, dull classes and out-of-town week ends that conflict with Saturday classes.

Commented the "Sophian," student newspaper: "The reasons or excuses for missing class reveal neither maturity nor responsibility."

(ACP)—At the University of Houston, the dormitory council issued the following regulations to govern necking on campus:

"1. Area outside of 'D' and 'E' dorm reception rooms approved for goodnight kisses only.

"2. Cullen boulevard, side of 'D' dorm, recommended.

"3. Cars in dorm parking lot only if we can see your heads showing over car seat.

"All other areas are taboo. Don't go about wrecking the necking by using the taboo areas."

(ACP)—At Northwestern University, a recent ruling permits students to extend an affectionate goodnight kiss at dormitory doors—but only so long as the couple keeps all four feet on the ground.

Couple Of The Week

by Erolyn Blount

It seems college days have been just a continuation of high school romance for quite a few campus couples. Marietta Hooper from Elizabeth City and Major Hooper from Stump Point are no exception though they actually didn't start going steady until they came to college. They've been going together for quite a long while now (almost four years to be exact). Says Marietta, "I roped him into carrying my trunk up for me the first day I arrived and after that—well . . ."

They both like movies, dancing and all types of sports, though Marietta says, "My interest in sports is mainly for Major's sake because he likes them so much.

Both are practice teaching this quarter. Marietta teaches music and Major teaches in the grammar grades at the Training School. Marietta comes to Major's class once a day and the unusual coincidence of having the same last name has caused quite a titter among Major's students, because he has told them he is unmarried.

The first day after Major got back from ROTC camp this past summer, he and Marietta were in an auto wreck. Luckily neither was hurt, but that shows what separations will do. Are you sure you had your mind on your driving, Major?

"When we were dumb freshmen," says Marietta, "we really pulled a cute stunt. Major and I were sitting in the parlor talking when I got a phone call from a girl friend whom Major and I both knew. Major wanted to talk to her, too, and not knowing the rules, we both went to the phone. The House Mother soon came to inform us that boys weren't allowed on the hall. Major was sent to the Dean of Men and I to the Dean of Women. For months after that we were teased unmercifully about being caught in the phone booth."

After graduating this spring, Major will enter the Air Force. Marietta says with a smile, "I just think I'll wait a while and see what Major's going to do before I apply for a job."

(Editor's note: By being named Couple of the Week, Marietta and Major will each receive a gift from Eslow's Jewelers and a ticket to the Pitt Theatre.)

Who's Who Among Students At East Carolina Henderson Music Major Also Beauty Queen

by Kay Johnston

This week's Who's Who is a girl who should be very thankful, for Delores Matthews is not only very talented but a beauty queen as well. Delores, a vivacious brunette, is a music major from Henderson, and will graduate in March.

Before doing her student teaching last quarter, she thought she would enjoy teaching in high school, but since then she has changed her mind.

"Those children really stole my heart," said Delores. "One day I was teaching on the history of music and I asked my students if any of them had any old oriental records. The next day a little girl came up to me and said she had brought me an oriental record. Without playing it beforehand I put the record on during class. You can imagine my surprise when I heard a jazzed up rendition of "Confucius Say."

Delores will begin teaching in Henderson after she graduates in March.

Beauty Queen

Delores represented East Carolina last year in the Azalea Festival in Wilmington. She was also Henderson's queen in the 1953 "Miss North Carolina" beauty contest. "East Carolina was really represented," said Delores, "there were five of us and we really had a wonderful time."

Delores Matthews

A lover of all sports, she is especially fond of and plays tennis. Her pet hobby at the moment is raising parakeets. "I'm trying to teach him to sing 'Rah! Rah! East Carolina!' at the present," smiles Delores, "and I'm getting pretty fair results."

Musical Abilities

She was secretary of the Music Education Club last year and plays both in the school band and orchestra. (It has been rumored that Benny Goodman would be put to shame when Delores "warms up" on her clarinet.)

When asked why she chose East Carolina as her alma mater Delores replied, "I used to attend the all state band clinic while I was in high school and I was sure I could never find a school with any friendlier atmosphere, better teachers or finer students. And do you know something, I was right!"

Delores was honored last fall as one of the 28 East Carolina juniors and seniors who were selected for the 1953-54 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities." The group is selected on the basis of leadership, scholarship, participation in extra-curricular and academic activities, citizenship and service to the school, and promise of future usefulness to society.

Rambling Male Writer Finds

Ear Rings Trap Campus Males

by Bruce Phillips

Epochs and days, though constraining in hourly duration, coincide in some respects—one being their prevailing tastes in fashions.

Speaking exclusively from a man's conception, we feel that the flowery freckle that flourishes on the feminine attire worn on our campus is indeed creative art (Here we'd like to note that Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturdays (exceptions) and we are inclined to submit only incessant admiration.

It would offer a task resembling something like gathering grapes from thorns to attempt to convey the Homosapiens' (descendants of King Kong) impression of a woman's trousseau in its entirety, so in the passage that follows the author hopes to concede his paltry interpretation of ear rings.

With jade for excitement, cut steel for passion, moonstones for contentment and pearls for sympathy, milady may express every mood and still go garbed as fashion dictates in somber black. She can interpret all her inmost feelings, just by careful selection of the dangling drops with which she adorns her ears. Ear rings interpret personality as no other piece of jewelry can. They offer seclusion for the meek, affording them involuntary exile from their nimble egos; they enable the strong and accepted another medium by which they may secure their pedestaled position in society; and lastly, can be extremely effective in the basic, unwritten prescriptions of YOU and ME—snagging a man!

Name all the alluring toilet water, passion powder and bacteria-proof lipstick you can but when a show of wedding bands among men is summoned the one thing that they say fenced'em in will be the blinding splashes and inebriating shapes of those rapturous clamps their spouses clasped on their hearing auricles.

Neither size nor shape holds any jurisdiction over these little beauty accessories that would even make Ma Kettle a Tobacco Road's Helen of Troy. They range from tiny love drops to miniature roller coasters. They may be long and thin and sag in the middle like the beds in Ragsdale dorm or still yet, they may be hexing and potent as a "big orange drank."

Ear rings can create their own moon glow and steel the sun's thunder. Before too long the feminine populace may be wearing 'em equipped with air conditioning, radar screens and Duo Therm. Even now they are useful, not only as weapons of love and war but as hearing aids, to cover scar tissue, and as a place to put old razor blades.

The above may sound a bit cynical, but believe us only adoration is intended. Ear rings are one of the most practical means of dress. Everyone, no matter how bent or broken, can afford these humble but commendatory devices, whether they are purchased from the latest in vogue or from the outlandish selections at Rose's Five and Ten.

Ear rings are truly fascinating and the intrigue that surrounds them make them indispensable in every maiden fair's wardrobe. "To this day I ain't figured out what they wear them for, but I have studied about it, and I figure it's some kindly of a contest where one bunch full of them females wear them ear pieces in hopes of causing a bunch full of men to either fall out or fall in something (love?)."

Formular To Reduce

Pardon, Your Figure's Showing

by Pat Humphrey

During the Christmas holidays, many students stuffed themselves with traditional foodstuffs, such as turkey, various kinds of candy, fruit cake and cranberry sauce with no thought of their waistlines. The New Year's story, though, is quite sad. Many girls found that the buttons on their skirts would not quite reach the button holes. This predicament was rather embarrassing as many of these skirts had been a perfect fit before the holidays began.

If you are one of those students who have found themselves in the above dither, here are a few suggestions about ways to lose weight.

1. Cut out all sweets: this means those small fountain drinks and nabs between classes. There are enough skinny people on the campus to keep the Soda Shop in business.

2. Take daily exercises. Run around the Wright Circle four times every morning before you go to class. Any time any of your friends wants an errand done, offer to do it; the exercise will be good for you.

3. Eat plenty of good foods. Two stalks of celery three carrots and a glass of juice will make a delightful dinner. Lettuce, apples and unsweet-ened coffee without cream will make a supper you won't soon forget.

Just try this plan for a week and if you are still alive, report the results.

This Week's Movie

by Faye O'Neal

A film which contains some of just about everything is "Sombbrero," which will be shown here in Austin auditorium Saturday at 7 p.m. As one would intuitively guess, the setting is in Mexico. The photographing is all done in completely authentic settings and is in very glorious and gay technicolor.

There are three full fledged love affairs, bull fighting, cock fighting, a village feud and brilliant dancing—all this in one story. The dancing has been named by some critics as the best feature. Cyd Charisse does one routine which creates a melancholic sombreness that one does not easily forget.

Other stars in the movie are Ricardo Montalban, Vittorio Gassman, Yvonne de Carlo, Pier Angeli and Rick Jason.

Life and folklore of the Mexicans is picturesquely presented for "Sombbrero." But it has been said that the Mexicans would not recognize it. The love affairs seem to lack conviction and enthusiasm. We do recommend the film, however. It will probably interest most of the students here.

Food For Thought

If you are one of the few students who have been up here on a Saturday afternoon or Sunday, there is no use telling you how much this campus resembles a baseball park in December. But the chances are three or four to one that you are not. Most of our students are well content to leave our fair college come Friday p. m.

Let us look more closely at the situation. There are many good reasons why our campus is bare each weekend.

For instance: It is cheaper to live at home when it is within a reasonable distance.

Some people have the use of a family car, television and, perhaps, a helpful change of atmosphere at home.

Other people have jobs at home. There is a lack of college entertainment planned and insufficient facilities for the students use here and in Greenville.

All of us definitely prefer home cooking. And some people go home because they reason that everyone else is going home and it would therefore be dull up here.

Then, too, times have changed in the last generation and travel is easier now than before.

But there appears to be a general attitude of indifference among the students which aggravates the situation. We feel that the school and students would be better off and get more from their education if this became a seven-day school instead of a five-day one.

Toward this end we believe the following things would be apropos: Students should be willing to instigate better entertainment and recreation.

Then they must give better support than has been given in the past.

The gym should be available for supervised but informal recreation seven days a week.

Here we would like to offer a word of commendation about the new swimming pool, which definitely helps alleviate the situation, but perhaps it could be made more readily available for informal use.

And what about the bowling alleys which used to be open under the cafeteria? With over 2,000 students in school we think that they certainly could be utilized again.

The new student union planned for the Wright Building should be another big step in the right direction and we hope that it will be kept open until within 15 minutes of curfew each night. It certainly should be a good place to spend some time with a date after a movie or supper.

Another nice thing is the television set purchased by the girls in Jarvis. Watching TV beats walking on these cold nights.

Social fraternities and sororities might help alleviate our situation some. They could plan and execute their own entertainment as is done in some other colleges.

POT POURRI

Last week there was an announcement of a supper given by the Home Economics Club in the college nursery school. We were surprised to note that the majority of the students here did not know East Carolina maintained a nursery school or even where it was located.

The school has an interesting history. It was begun in 1937 and set up as a three-hour elective course especially for home economics students. A total of six teachers have been in charge of the nursery school from 1937 until 1954. In 1941 the school became a required course for home economics students, anyone enrolled at EC may elect the course.

The nursery school in Flanagan building is set up for 16 children, eight boys and eight girls from the Greenville area. The children's ages run from three to four years. School opens at 9 a.m. and closes at 1 p.m. Monday through Friday the children eat lunch at school. Juniors and seniors work with the children and observe them a total of six hours a week. The basic purpose of the school is to give college students a working knowledge of the preschool child, this being a reliable asset in the field of homemaking and in the teaching of older children. The course is definitely desirable for primary teachers and others who will later come in contact with children. Miss Ruth Lambie of the home economics department is now in charge of the school and gives valuable help to those students in primary work and others.

With 16 healthy boys and girls in the school the schedule can't be exactly set and strict. Anything may happen! Children, in addition to regular play with bicycles, wagons, dolls, swings and so on, have many different activities. Recently they have been taking care of various pets—a rabbit, canary and gold fish, plus a visiting stray kitten. Before Christmas the little people made decorations for their Christmas tree and gifts for their parents. The gingerbread men they made created quite an impression on the children. The future program will involve such activities as making jewelry for their mothers, planting a garden, or preparing a picnic lunch. The children have a grand time, and one little boy who had to stay home with a bad cold told his mother, "But mother, I can't stay home! We're making cookies today and I know Miss Lambie can't get along without me!"

Forum And Against'em

Suffrage At 18 Years

by Faye O'Neal

Last week former president, Harry S. Truman expressed his feelings on the voting question: whether or not 18 year olds should be allowed to vote in state and federal referendums. Truman believes that 18 year-olds are too immature to have that privilege. He further stated that he favors 24 as an age when more average Americans are ready to vote intelligently, thus denying that we are "grown up" when we "come of age" at 21. All of which means no great deal except that it recalls the situation to us and inasmuch as it is a problem that concerns the majority of college students in America, we take this question for our topic this week.

Many yearning "politicos" launch a firm defense against such views as those of Harry Truman. There are a great many "state's righters" who believe that the matter should be left to the discretion of the states. There are practically no Americans who fear to speak up when asked to contribute to discussions on this controversy. It is our opinion that a national poll on the issue would result in extending voting privileges to 18-year-olds; whether or not this should be done, we decline to say in this column. However, the majority of those asked in a round the campus forum say that 18-year-olds are deserving of the privilege.

Mrs. Mildred Rouse Suites, a junior who received last year's award as the best woman citizen at East Carolina, definitely favors giving the right to vote to 18-year-olds. Mrs. Suites says that these youths are considered grown up in every other way and that, in her opinion, most 18-year-olds are capable of intelligent judgment as much so as 21-year-olds.

Charles Bedford, who is president of the YMCA here and an active participant in any current issue, rides along with the bandwagon advocating affirmativeness. Bedford states, "I do not believe that an 18-year-old boy is experienced enough to vote intelligently, but neither are vast numbers of other Americans experienced or educated to the degree to exercise their voting privilege with unbiased critical judgment. Furthermore, the boy who is 18 has no guarantee against being compelled to fight for American rights. He should not be denied the rights for which he must fight." Also Bedford disagrees with the state's righters who would create a situation allowing some 18-year-old Americans to vote while others would be prohibited from voting.

Charlie Klutz, active in the SGA here and popular in campus activities, is the third consecutive person to agree with those in favor of granting voting rights to 18-year-olds. Many 18-year-olds are more qualified than some of those 21 or older, according to Klutz.

Louise Collins, a 19-year-old freshman from a middlewestern Carolina city well known for its political aspirations, disagrees with others consulted in this query. Louise says that anyone realizes the immaturity of 18-year-olds and that there is no utility or advantage in adding a lot more immature voters to a list which is already composed of too few intelligent thinkers.

SPORTS ECHO

The appointment of Jim Mallory to the position of head baseball coach at East Carolina should bring a decided upswing in Pirate baseball fortunes come springtime.

Mallory, who takes over from football coach Jack Boone so that Boone can concentrate more fully on the grid game, has had plenty of experience both coaching and playing.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina, Mallory's experience, from amateur to the major leagues, should play a decisive part in making the Bucs a championship contender.

In the last several years athletics at East Carolina have come a long way—and it's high time that more emphasis be placed on baseball. The above isn't meant to take away from the work done by Boone, however. East Carolina's gridiron boss did a good job as head baseball coach, but it must be admitted that Mallory's statewide reputation as a baseball coach speaks for itself.

Here's to bigger and better Pirate baseball squads—

Another Pirate sport, swimming, has been making vast strides of progress over the last several weeks.

For the first time in the history of the school East Carolina is represented in the water sport and from the indications of the schedule at least, the Bucs are going at it in a big way.

In their opening meet the local swimmers turned back New Hanover High School 36-31. They tangled with the Winston AAU Monday, Davidson's freshmen Wednesday and tomorrow take on the University of North Carolina frosh. Monday afternoon NC State's swimmers come to town with Clemson University's squad on Jan. 18.

Speaking of new sports, we've often wondered just why East Carolina doesn't field a track team. Without having made any inquiries on the subject we certainly can't criticize anyone or anything concerning the matter, but it seems to us that, since other North State Conference schools compete in this sport, East Carolina could do as well.

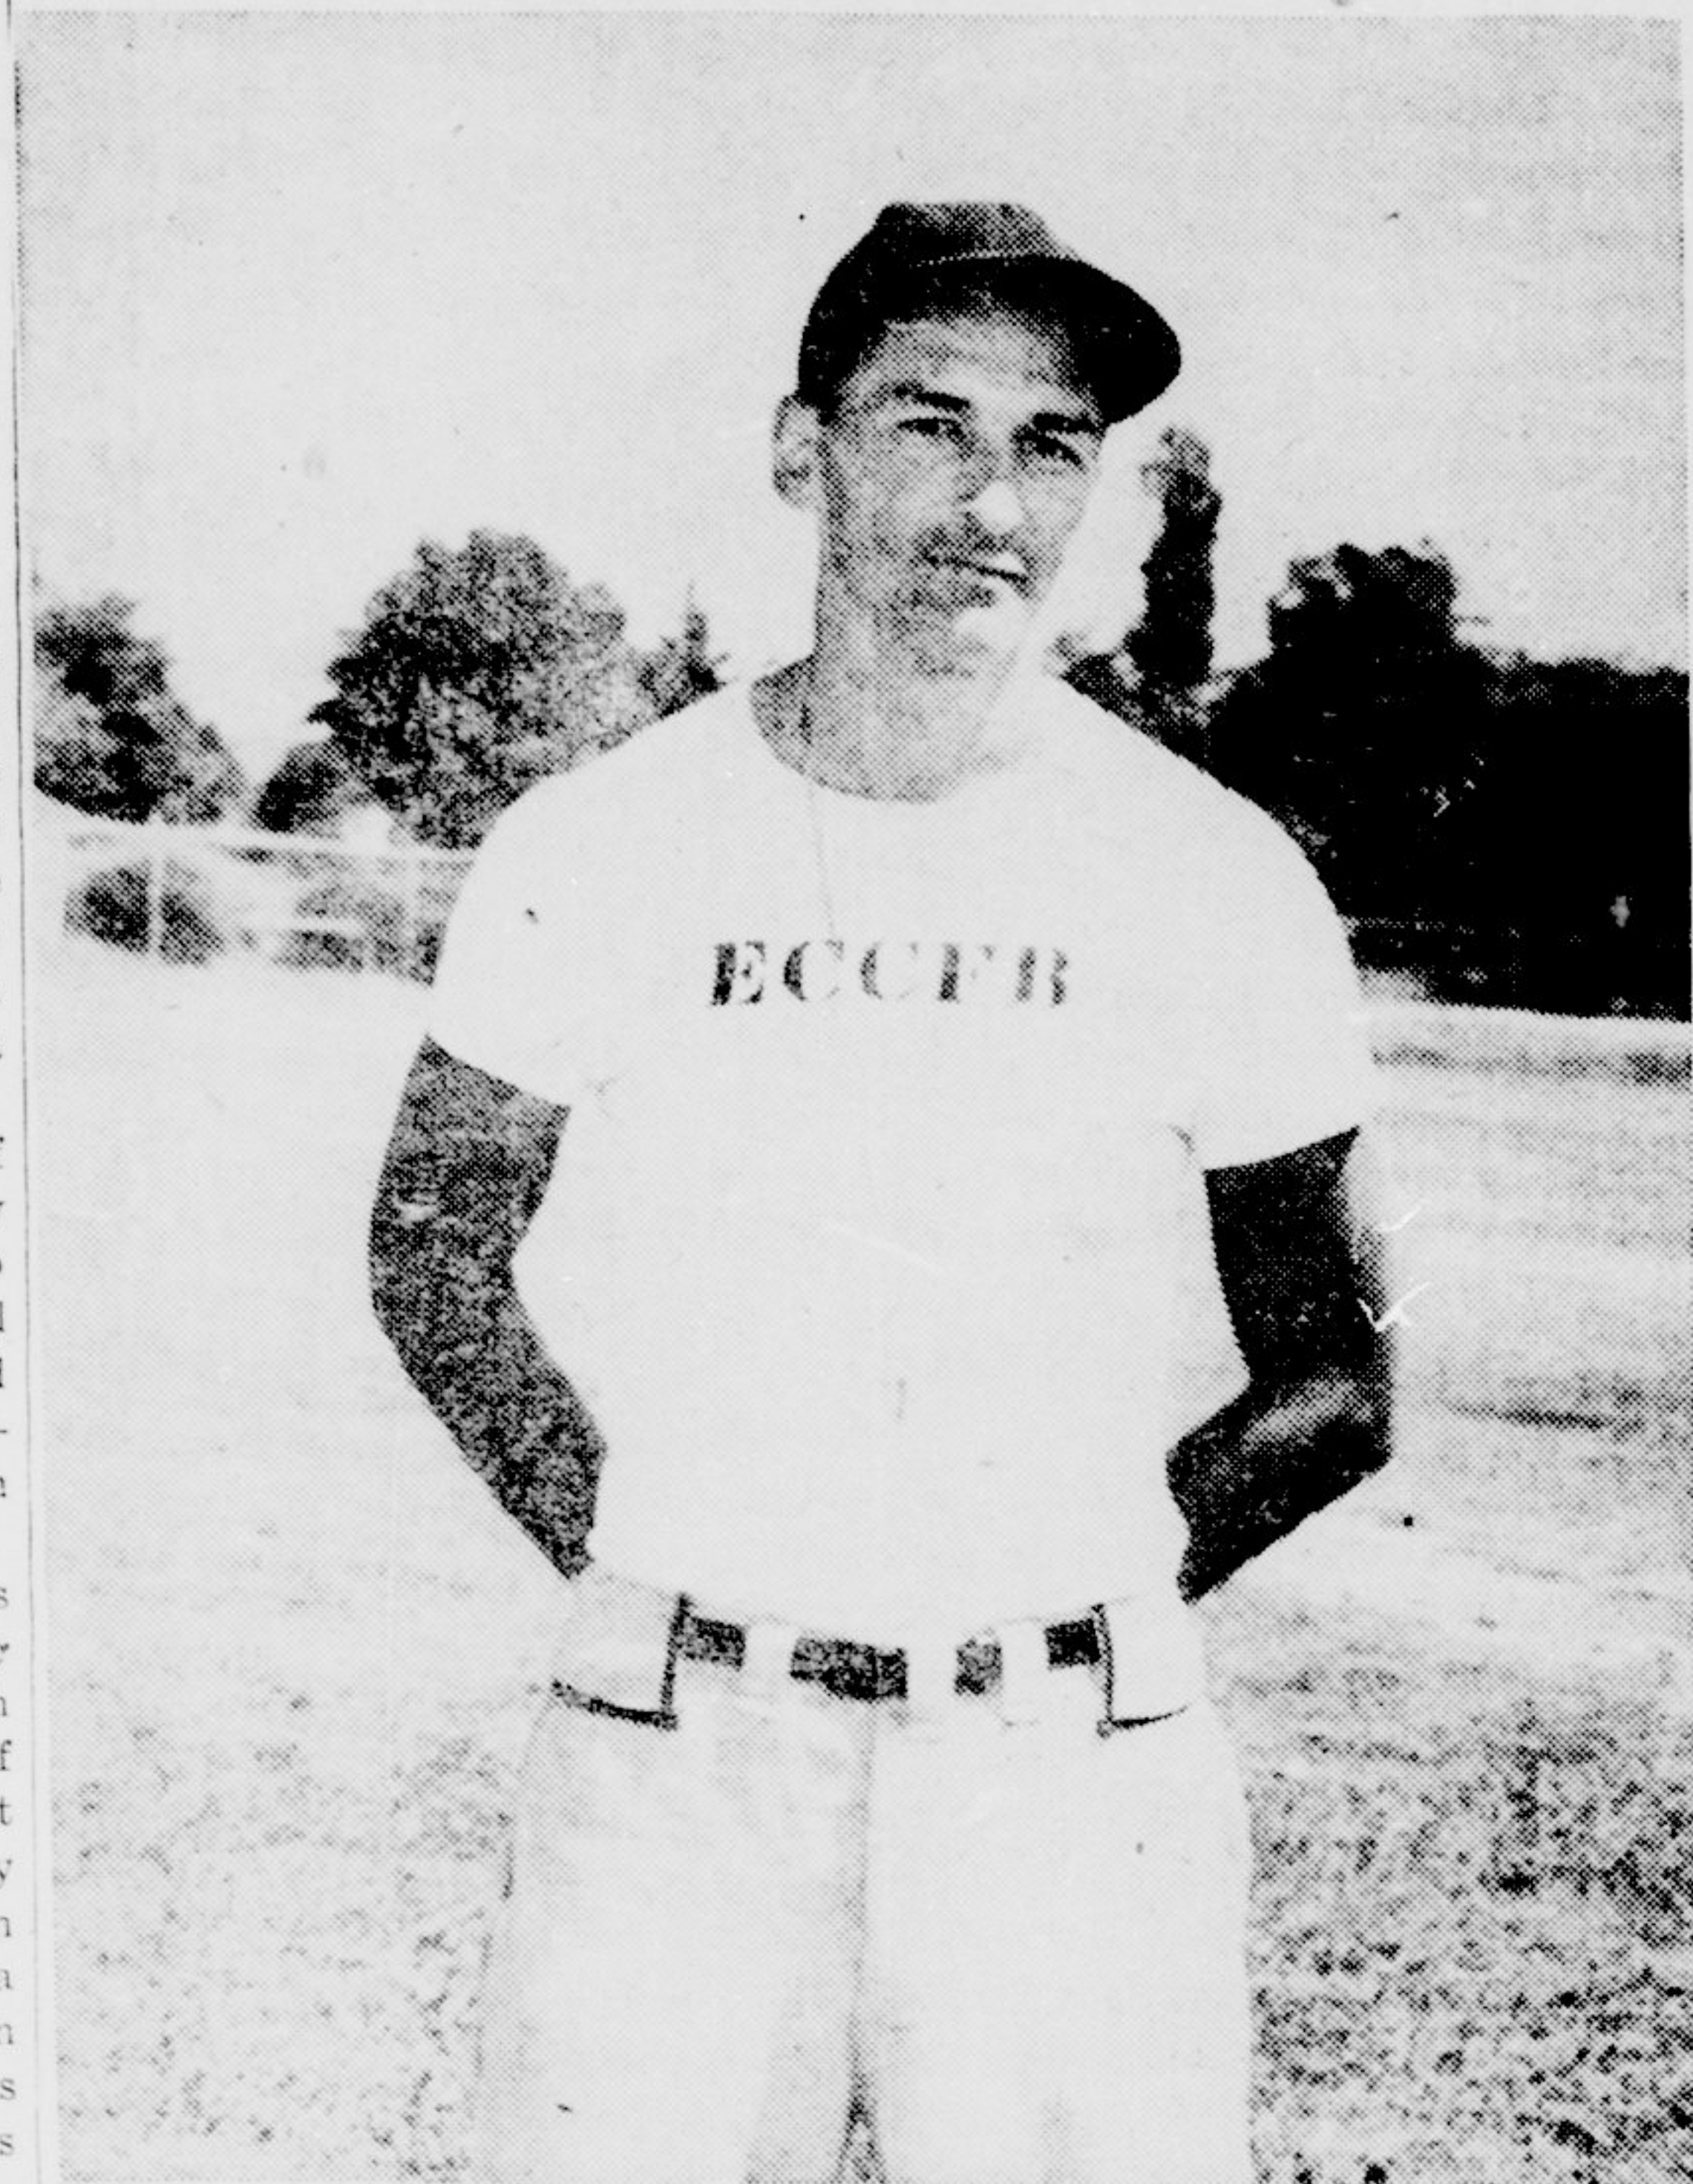

We prowled through the files of the "East Carolinian" (and the now defunct Teo Echo) in an attempt to discover whether East Carolina had ever fielded a track squad. We found no indication of it but we did discover a slightly interesting note in a December, 1940 issue.

It seems that quite a few persons would like to see the all-winning Pirate basketball squad tangle with the fabulous Bvo Francis & Co. of Rio Grande College but, should that ever occur—and if scores are any indication—then the Bucs would be in for a bad night. For East Carolina and Rio Grande have competed in basketball. December 14, 1940 was the date and Rio handed the Bucs their worst defeat in two years.

Final score? ECTC 28; Rio Grande 42.

Pirates Play Two Crucial Road Games

Appointed Head Coach

James B. (Jim) Mallory, assistant football coach at East Carolina College, has been named to the position of head football coach Jack Boone so that the latter may devote more time to the grid game.

Hodges Scores 32 As Pirates Down Elon Five, 85-51

by David A. Evans

The East Carolina College Pirates got away to a slow start against Elon College on the night of January 9th in Memorial Gym, but got up enough steam to take the lead in the second quarter never again to be headed as they walked to an 85-51 victory.

After a poor first quarter which ended with the Pirates on the short end of a 15-13 score, East Carolina broke ahead with 6:31 remaining in the second session on a foul shot by freshman forward Don Harris followed by another foul toss by Bobby Hodges. From there on out the gate was down as the Pirates dumped in 24 points in the second period to take a 37-24 half-time lead. The Christians of Elon seemed to lose their spark when their starting center and leading scorer Dave Maddox fouled out.

Bobby Hodges, Pirate center, continued his net swishing ways, scoring 32 points to run his season's total to 158 points in six games for an average of 26.3 points per game. Tying for second in scoring honors for the night were Charlie Huffman and diminutive Cecil Heath with 15 points each.

Substitutes poured from the East Carolina bench but the scoring increased as the Pirate cagers whipped the net for 27 points in the final quarter with Waverly Akins hitting on a shot from the floor for the final two points to ring down the finale.

The Pirates seem to be getting better as the year progresses and now stand as the team to win in the North State Conference. The largest task in retaining the North State crown may present itself when the Pirates face Lenoir-Rhyne in Hickory on January 16. East Carolina won the first game on their home court by a slim margin of 8 points, the game ending with the score 87-79 in the Pirates' favor. Should the Pirates win the road will certainly be a lot smoother on the way to the conference championship.

East Carolina returns home on January 21 when they meet the Appalachian Mountaineers in Memorial Gymnasium.

Bucs Meet Lenoir Rhyne, Western Carolina Fives

by Anwer Joseph

With a six game winning streak and an undefeated record so far this year the East Carolina College Pirates hit the road for two critical North State Conference basketball contests when they journey to Lenoir Rhyne and Western Carolina this weekend.

Mallory Receives Position As Head Baseball Mentor

James B. (Jim) Mallory, assistant football coach at East Carolina, has been named to the position of head baseball coach here. Mallory replaces Jack Boone, head football coach, so that the latter may concentrate more of his time on the grid game.

Mallory will be aided in his diamond duties by Earl Smith, assistant coach in football and basketball here.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina, Mallory came to East Carolina in the fall of 1953. He had formerly held the position of head football coach at Elon College.

The new Pirate diamond boss has had extensive baseball experience. He was captain of Tar Heel baseball squad in 1940 and played major league ball with the Washington Senators, St. Louis Cardinals and New York Gints.

While head mentor at Elon, Mallory's baseball teams won 77 games and lost 18 over a six-year period. Christian squads were three champions of the Eastern Division of the North State Conference and in 1951 claimed the overall loop crown.

Smith, who will assist Mallory in his new duties, came to East Carolina last fall from Campbell College where he was director of athletics. An alumnus of East Carolina, Smith coached Jirite baseball and basketball teams here during 1946. He too, has had professional baseball experience.

Mallory and his wife, the former Elizabeth Hulin, of Lexington, have two sons. Smith and his wife, the former Stella Gray Harden, of Windsor, have a daughter and a son.

Loss In Bowl Contest Marks First Shutout At Home Since 1948

The 12-0 loss by East Carolina in the Elks Bowl January 2 marked the first time since the final game of 1948 that the Pirates have been shut-out on their home field.

For 25 consecutive contests at College Stadium the Bucs tallied at least one TD per contest. The last loss by the shutout route prior to the Morris Harvey demise came in November 1948 when Atlantic Christian edged the Bucs 6-0. That year, incidentally, saw the Bucs lose all of their nine games.

The first cage clash will unfold tomorrow night in Hickory when the league leading Pirates take on the number two club of the conference in the form of the rapidly improving Bears of Lenoir Rhyne.

The Bears boast a 6-1 record in conference play with the only loop defeat coming at the hands of the Pirates in a pre-holiday clash. Their overall mark is eight wins against two losses.

Monday night the East Carolina players will face the number three ranking club of the conference when they hit Cullowhee to meet Western Carolina. The Catamounts, a hot and cold club all year, are rating as conference darkhorses and given an excellent chance of upsetting the Bucs.

Victories in both games would give the Pirates a little more edge over the nearest contenders and almost insure them top billing in the conference tournament to be held at the end of February.

Coach Howard Porter has sent his Pirates into rough and tough scrimmages during the past week, trying to improve the locals' play and iron out mistakes made in Saturday night's game against Elon.

The probable starting lineup for the Bucs has Cecil Heath and J. C. Thomas at the guards, Bobby Hodges at center and Charlie Huffman plus either Paul Jones or Don Harris at forwards.

North State Standings

East Carolina College's Pirates continued to lead the North State Conference as of Monday's standings. The Bucs, who are undefeated this year, have a 4-0 record in conference and a 6-0 overall mark.

31,000 ACTUAL STUDENT INTERVIEWS SHOW COLLEGE SMOKERS PREFER LUCKIES TO ALL OTHER BRANDS!

In 1952, a survey of colleges throughout the country showed that smokers in those colleges preferred Luckies to any other cigarette. In 1953, another far more extensive and comprehensive survey—supervised by college professors and based on more than 31,000 actual student interviews—once again proves Luckies' overwhelming popularity. Yes, Luckies lead again over all other brands, regular or king size... and by a wide margin! The number-one reason: Luckies' better taste!

East Carolinian Sponsors Annual Talent Program

The "East Carolinian" sponsored their second annual talent show last Monday night in Austin auditorium, with Eli Bloom, Greenville merchant, acting as master of ceremonies. Proceeds from the talent show will be used in enabling the staff members of the "East Carolinian" to attend the Columbia Scholastic Press Convention in New York City in March.

The show opened with Roy Askew, accompanied by Evelyn Eure, singing "You Alone" and "Stranger in Paradise." Other vocalists on the bill were Patsy Pappendick, Jeanne Williams, Lou Anne Davis, and D'Este Pool.

Dressed in French tradition, Helen Bland did a dance routine entitled "French Jazz." Susie Denton, who was with the Roxette Company for the last two summers, entertained by doing "The Creep." Bruce Phillips and Shirley Moose came up from the audience to do a jitterbug number, colored by a few jokes from Bruce.

Ellen Sprinkle accompanied several of the vocalists, besides performing in a single act when she played "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" on the organ. Also the audience joined in to sing with her in the college cheer that she played.

Nancy Crause danced in a ballet number, and Leonor Padilla, an exchange student from Honduras, sang "Begin the Beguine" in Spanish, dressed in the South American style.

Several monologues were also featured, one a classroom scene by Ruth Lassiter. Janet Swinson read to the audience the evils of husbands, closing with the thought she she still wanted one.

Approximately 400 people attended the show.

5-COUNTY ALUMNI MEET IN LENOIR

A meeting of East Carolina College alumni from Alexander, Burke, Caldwell, Catawba, and Wilkes counties will be held in Lenoir on Tuesday, January 26, with Alumni Secretary James Butler as principal speaker. Arrangements for the meeting, which will include dinner preceding the program, are being handled by J. B. Edwards, member of the Happy Valley high school faculty, of Patterson.

REDISTRICTING COMMITTEE WILL BEGIN STUDY

Members of the Committee to Study Redistricting of the North Carolina area included in the East Carolina College Alumni Association will meet Saturday, January 23, at 12:30 o'clock in the Sir Walter Hotel in

Gordon Exhibits Art Work At Duke

Twenty-three paintings and drawings by John Gordon, faculty member of the department of art at East Carolina College, are placed on exhibition at Duke University Saturday of this week, January 9, and may be seen there in the library on the campus of the women's division of the university.

The exhibition by the East Carolina artist is sponsored by the department of art at Duke. It will be on display until the end of January.

Oils and drawings among Mr. Gordon's works in the exhibition include portraits of Jamie Poindexter of Greenville and of Robert Broderson of the Duke department of art; scenes in and near Beaufort, N. C.; and a number of figure paintings and etchings.

Mr. Gordon joined the East Carolina faculty in 1952. He is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and of the State University of Iowa. He has studied at the Beaux Arts School, Marseilles, France, and at the American University at Biarritz, France. During World War II he served for three years in the US Army.

Methodists Plan Christian Culture Discussion Topics

The Worship and Vesper Committees of the Wesley Foundation have planned a series of discussions on the theme "Christ Transforming Culture" to be held at the Sunday vesper hour 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. during January and February.

The first of these discussions will be conducted by Miss Mamie Chandler on next Sunday, on the subject "What Is Wrong with Our Culture." On the following Sunday evening, Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert will lead the discussion on "Christ and the Fine Arts." Other subjects will be announced later.

Worship at the student class on Sunday mornings at 9:45 will follow this general theme. The class is continuing the study of "The Letter to the Ephesians."

Pirate Swimmers Meet Carolina Frosh Team

East Carolina College's swimming team entertains the University of North Carolina freshmen tomorrow in the third meet of the season for the locals.

The Pirate mermen opened their season with a 36-31 win over New Hanover High School and were prepared to swim the Kinston AAU Monday afternoon but the latter squad, due to a case of chickenpox on the part of their coach, failed to show.

Wednesday afternoon the Pirate swimmers travelled to Davidson College to engage the Wildcat frosh. Results of this meet could not be learned prior to press time.

As an Air Force Aviation Cadet, you get in on the ground floor of jet aviation, learn jet flight with the latest equipment and best instructors. You graduate as an Air Force lieutenant earning over $5,000 a year... a man thoroughly prepared for leadership in both military and commercial aviation. Join the many fine young men who keep their hands on the future. Train as an Aviation Cadet!

commercial aviation. Join the many fine young men who keep their hands on the future. Train as an Aviation Cadet!

You may be eligible
To qualify as an Aviation Cadet, you must be at least a high school graduate. However, you will be of more value to the Air Force if you stay in college, graduate, and then volunteer for training. In addition, you must be between 19 and 26½ years, unmarried, and in good physical condition.

★ Win an Air Force Commission
★ Earn over $5,000 A Year

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO:

1. Take your high school diploma or certificate of graduation and a copy of your birth certificate to your nearest Air Force Base or Recruiting Station. Fill out the application they give you.
2. If application is accepted, the Air Force will arrange for you to take a physical examination at government expense.
3. Next, you will be given a written and manual aptitude test.
4. If you pass your physical and other tests, you will be scheduled for an Aviation Cadet training class. The Selective Service Act allows you a four-month deferment while waiting class assignment.

WHERE TO GET MORE DETAILS:
Contact your nearest Aviation Cadet Selection Team, Air Force ROTC Unit or Air Force Recruiting Office. Or write to: Aviation Cadet, Headquarters, U. S. Air Force, Washington 25, D. C.
