High School Day Brings 4,000 Seniors Here

Neilsen Announces Plans For Junior-Senior Dance

Event Follows Senior Banquet; Collegians Furnish Dance Music

Plans are being completed by the Junior Class for the annual Junior-Senior Dance, to be held Saturday, April 10, Bob Neilsen, Junior Class president, announced this week.

The dance will be formal. Neilsen said that it is the first formal Junior-Senior in the history of the college.

Music will be furnished by the Collegians, East Carolina's 15-piece dance orchestra.

Following the Senior Banquet which will be held in the North Dining hall, the dance will begin in Wright auditorium at 8 p. m. and will last until 11:45 p. m.

Decorations will follow the theme for this year's Junior-Senior, which is "In an Old Southern Garden."

During the dance, there will be a figure consisting of the five officers of the Senior Class, the five officers of the Junior Class and the four Student Government officers with their dates.

Various committees of the Junior Class are completing their work for the dance, Neilsen said.

Classes Select Officer Slates For Coming Year

Officers for the rising Senior, Junior and Sophomore classes were elected this week.

Charlie Bosford will head the Senior Class next year and Jean Fisher will serve as president of the rising Sophomore Class. Run-offs are being held for the Junior Class presidency between Kenneth Bordeaux and Emu Boudo. Boudo campaigned for write-in votes.

Other officers elected for the rising Senior Class are Kris Anderson, vice president; Carolyn Johnson, secretary; Gene Lanier, treasurer; and Willa Dean Lindsey, SGA representative.

The Sophomore slate other than Miss Fisher includes Mack Edmondson, vice president; June Quinn, secretary; and Brooks Joyner, SGA representative. Janie Millikin and Pat Wilson were elected as May Day attendants of the class.

At present, the slate of Junior officers are incomplete. Run-offs for the president, secretary and the treasurer are now being held and results were not known at press time. Garland Tuton was elected vice president and Janet Watson was elected SGA representative in the general election.

Class Dance Formal

The Junior-Senior Dance will be formal. By error, in last week's "East Carolinian" it was stated that the Senior Banquet and "the dance following will be semi-formal."

Bob Neilsen, Junior Class president, confirmed that the dance will be formal as previously planned.

Phillips Reveals Honor Students Of Last Quarter

A total of 392 students, 116 men and 276 women, compose the honor roll and the dean's list for winter quarter as revealed by Dr. Orval L. Phillips recently.

This compares with 399 for the same quarter of last year and 445 for Fall quarter of this year.

A breakdown of figures shows 98 students on the dean's list and 294 on the honor roll.

To be eligible for the dean's list a student must make at least two and a half quality points per credit hour with no grade below three. Both honors require a clear Student Government record.

Male students receiving all-1's last quarter are John B. Funderburg Jr., James Harry Limer, Don M. Muse and Joseph P. Rowland.

Lenten Services Set By Wesleyans Here Continuing To Easter

Special Lenten meditations are being held by the Wesley Foundation Sunday, Monday and Wednesday evenings, and these will continue until Easter. These meditations are being led by students and follow the theme of Christ's passion.

Meditation on Monday and Wednesday is from 10 to 10:15 p. m. and Sunday at the usual Vesper Hour, 6:30 to 7:30 p. m. All the services are held at the Methodist Student Center and are open to all.

Rehearsal Now Under Way For Annual Spring Musical

"Blossom Time," the popular musical, is now in full swing with rehearsals of cast, chorus, orchestra and dancers, according to Dr. K. N. Cuthbert, director of the production.

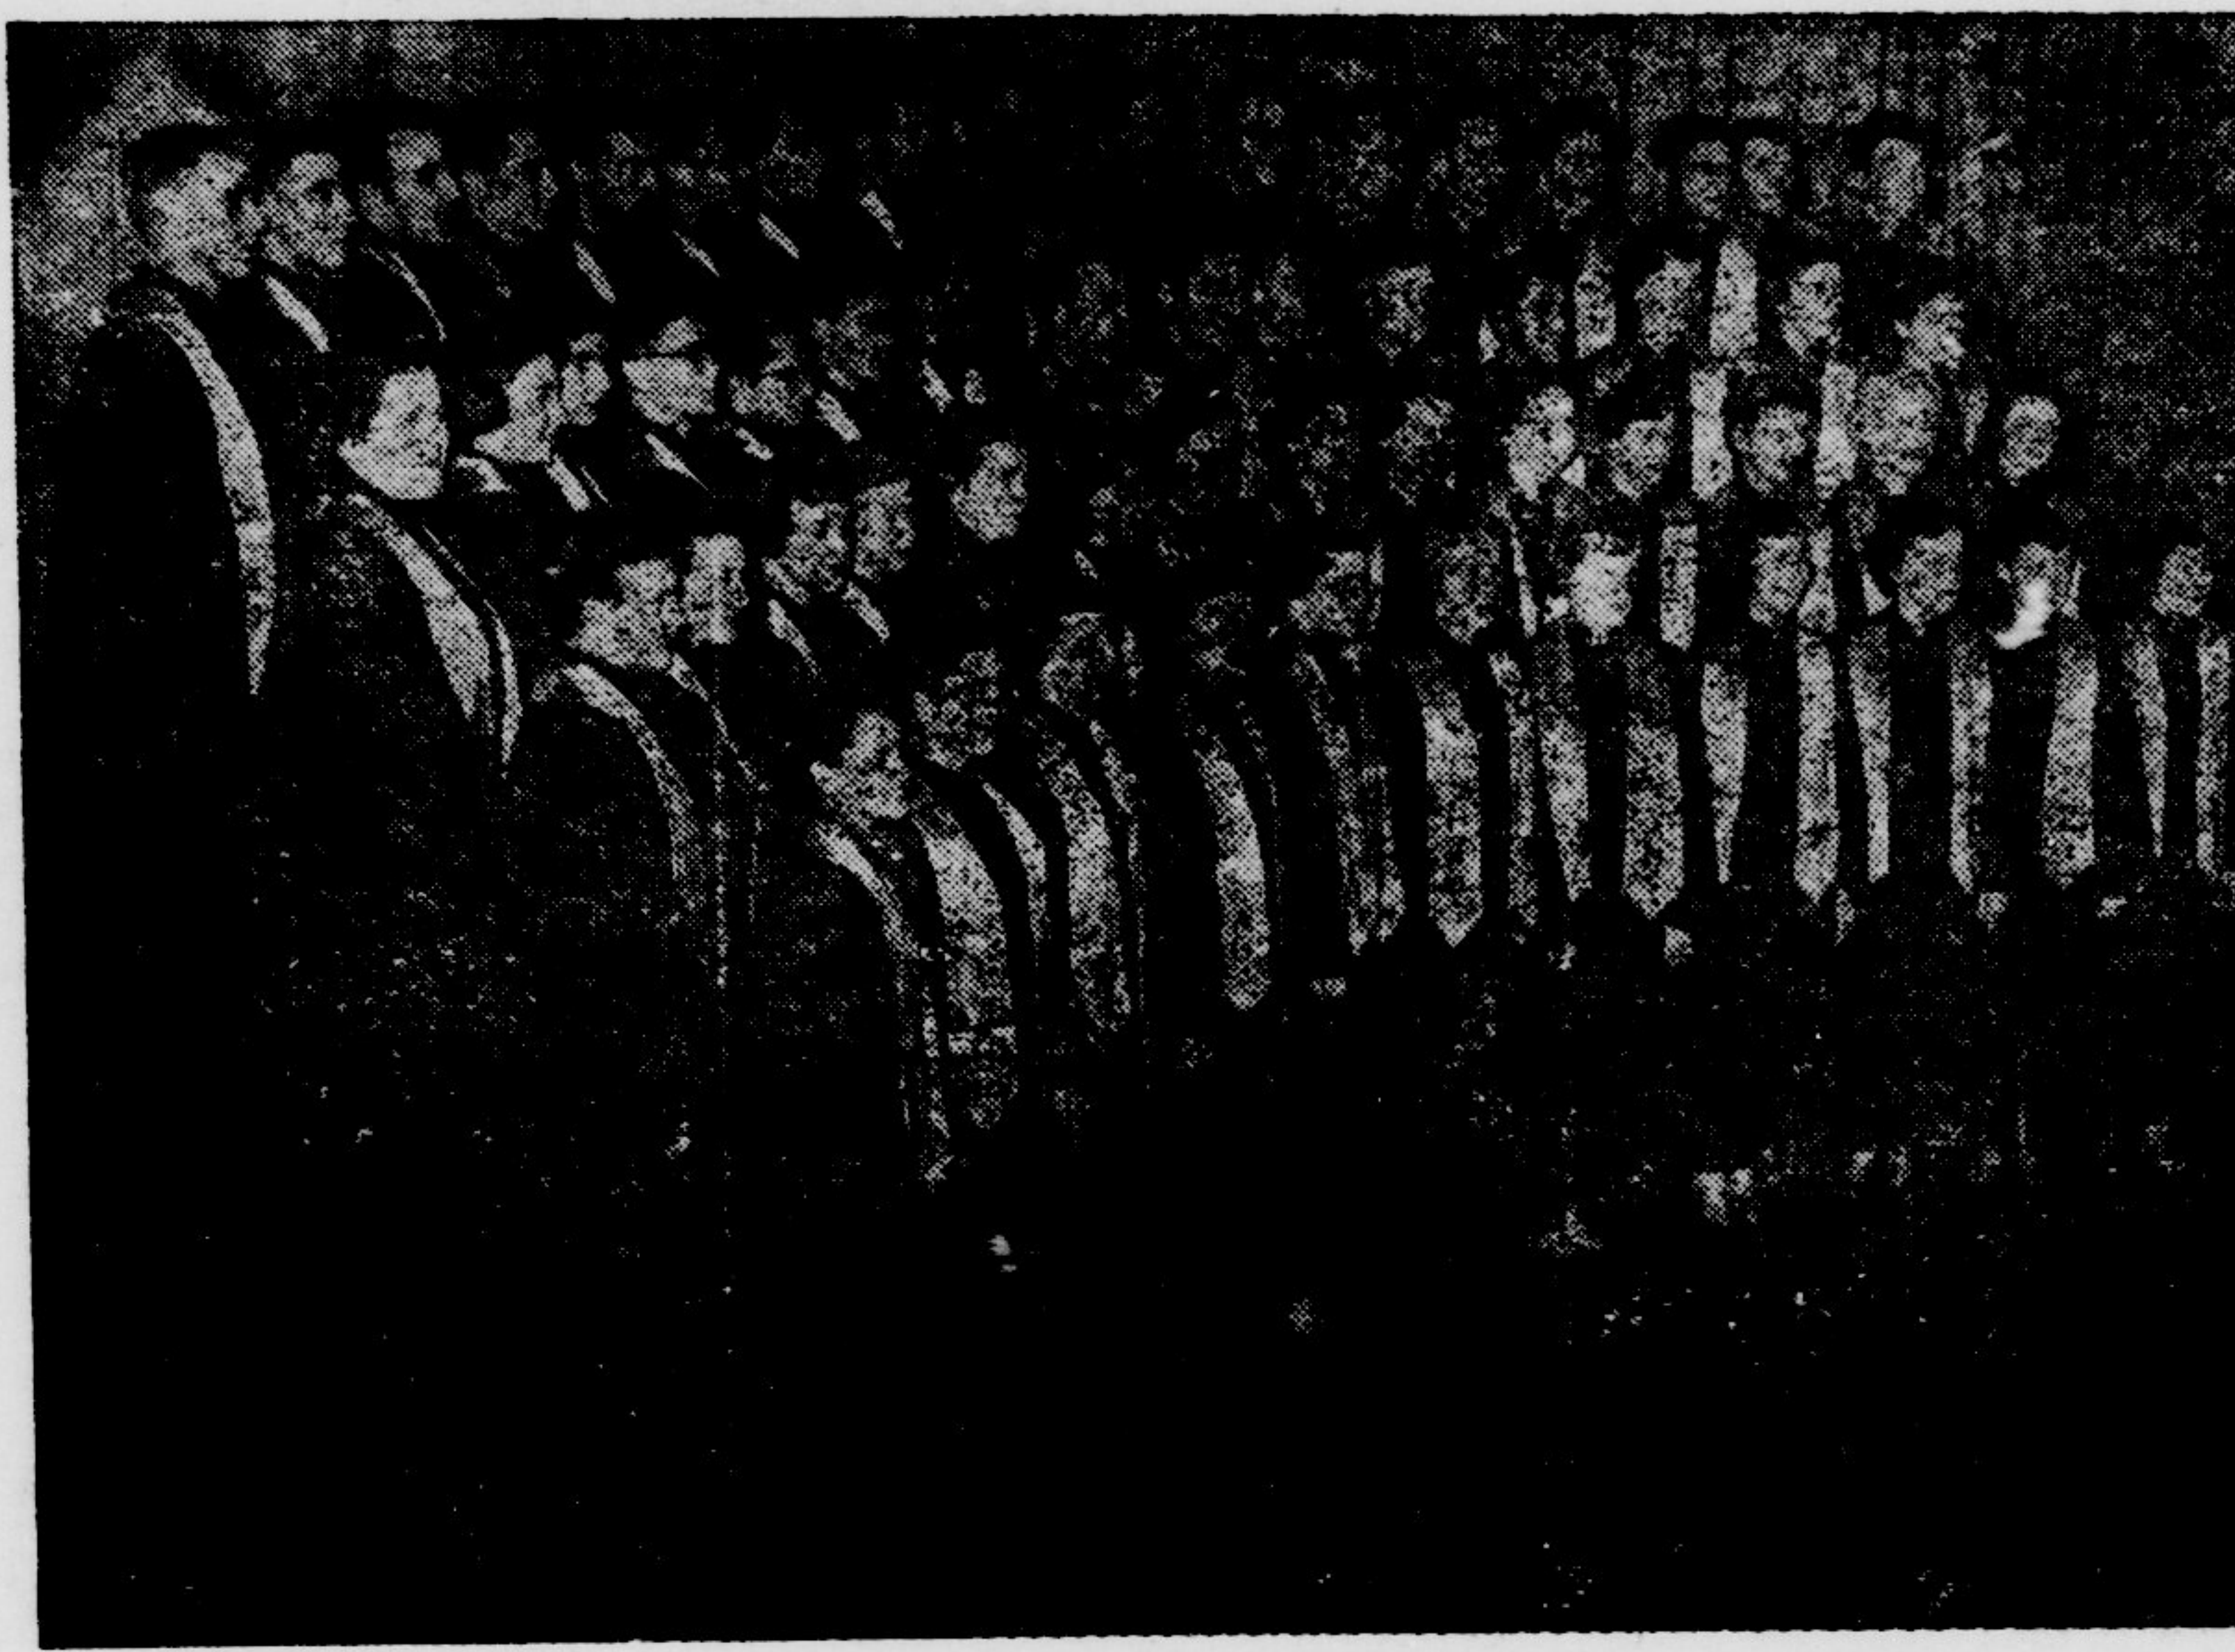

The production, sponsored by the Student Government, is scheduled for presentation Wednesday and Thursday, April 28 and 29 in Wright auditorium. For the past three years,

Education Frat Plans Banquet

At a recent meeting of the Eta Chi Chapter of the Kappa Delta Pi, honorary education fraternity, plans were made for an initiation banquet honoring the new members.

The new members will be chosen from a list submitted to the chapter by the heads of the departments. Requirements for membership are a 1.5 (grade between a 1 and a 2), at least nine hours in education and some display of leadership ability.

East Carolina Choir On State Tour

Choir Returns After Tour Of State For Week

The East Carolina College Choir completed its first extensive tour in North Carolina last week.

The tour, scheduled for March 21-24, included 11 concerts in Kinston, Goldsboro, Raleigh, Hillsboro, Burlington, Graham and Chapel Hill. Audiences estimated at more than 10,000 people attended the series of concerts.

In addition to the programs given on tour, the College Choir has performed over TV Station WNCT of Greenville, at the Greenville and the Washington High Schools, and at the Greenville District Music Festival to be held at the college next week. A concert on the campus was presented Thursday.

The College Choir, choral organization sponsored by the East Carolina department of music, is made up of 58 men and women students, selected for their talent as vocalists. They sing in maroon robes with embroidered Stoles of gold which are the college colors.

Federal Official Proposes Changes In Post Office

A new system has been proposed for changes in the campus post office. According to J. Knott Proctor, Greenville Postmaster, the new plan is now under consideration but has not, at present, been accepted by either the college or the office of the Postmaster-General in Washington, D. C.

The new plan will do away with the student self-help positions that operate the local Post Office and will create one full-time position.

It was suggested by the college that a change in the present postal system be made. A post office inspector recommended that a full-time person be employed.

Mr. Proctor stated that nothing definite will be known of the proposed plan until April 10, when Washington officials send their decision.

If the new system is installed letters will continue to bear the Greenville postmark.

It has been advertised on the campus post office bulletin board for bids to the position as full-time postal clerk.

Park Cars Off Campus On High School Day

Persons who usually drive their cars on the campus are requested by Dr. Ed Carter, director of Field Services here, to leave them outside the gates on Friday, April 9.

According to Carter, 3,000 to 4,000 visitors will be on the campus to take part in the annual High School Day program.

"Most of the campus area will be roped off and those who drive their cars inside the gates will only complicate matters for themselves and those in charge of traffic," Dr. Carter said.

Dr. Elwood Keister of the East Carolina music department, is director of the Choir. Last fall he joined the faculty after extensive study in the field of music and experience as a teacher and professional musician.

Both a singer and an instrumentalist, he has a tenor voice and is a talented violinist.

"Music on the tour program," Dr. Keister states, "ranged from the greatest early sacred literature to modern arrangements." Selections included "Jesu Dulcis Memoria" by Tomas Luis de Victoria, "Lost in the Night" by F. Melius Christiansen, six folk songs by Johannes Brahms, and "Tico-Tico" in an arrangement by Hawley Adee.

Radio Schedule

Student Teachers Number 120

Seniors at East Carolina College who are now gaining practical experience as student teachers in 20 public schools of eastern North Carolina number 79 women and 41 men. Those having assignments in the primary and the grammar grades include 37 full-time and one part-time student teachers. Others are teaching in secondary schools.

Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of student teaching and placement at the college, has just issued a report outlining the student teaching program for the spring quarter and presenting facts and figures about this phase of training students for careers in education.

Work is being done by student teachers this quarter in all grades from the first through the twelfth and in various departments of instruction in secondary schools. All teaching is supervised by college faculty members and supervising teachers in the public schools. Dr. Oppelt is co-ordinator of the program.

Among the 20 schools where student teaching is in progress this spring the college Laboratory School leads in numbers. Thirty-seven seniors are doing full-time teaching there and one is doing half-time teaching. The Greenville High School comes next with a total of 20 full-time and three part-time student teachers.

Faculty Members Reconsider Plan Of Student Group

The faculty committee on final exams are reconsidering the student committee's plan, Bob Neilsen of the committee announced at the Student Legislature meeting Wednesday night. The committees met yesterday (Thursday) and the outcome was not known at press time.

The student plan differed basically from the plan voted to be installed inasmuch that one period exams were favored over the two period exams which was passed by the faculty.

Also at the Legislature meeting a committee was named to investigate further the revision of the Men's Judiciary by-laws. On the committee are Ed Mathews, Gene Russ and Charles Bedford.

The Veteran's Club was voted to receive the "Outstanding Club Award." The club had put on projects during the year to aid the purchase of the Victory Bell, to establish an $800 athletic scholarship fund, a loan fund for veterans and others.

Plans were made for the inauguration of new SGA officers, Wednesday, April 14, in Austin auditorium. The ceremony is open to the public. Bea Burnett, Lois Bland and Mairred Morris were elected tri-chairmen for the reception of the out-going and in-coming SGA administrations which will follow the inauguration.

Shirley Moose was elected by the body to represent the College in the "College Queen of America" contest. She will submit photographs and her dimensions to the national contest headquarters.

Expects Largest Number Yet For Annual Program

East Carolina College has already received notification from more than 3,000 high school seniors in North Carolina schools that they will attend the college's 12th Annual High School Day Friday, April 9. It is expected that between 3,500 and 4,000 seniors will be on the campus for the event.

High School Day Program

9-10 a. m.—Registration at Wright auditorium.

10-11 a. m.—Assembly at Wright auditorium. Program consists of welcome by President J. D. Messick, music by a mixed chorus composed of the College and Women's Choirs and the Varsity Glee Club and an explanation of AFROTC by Col. Roger Fuller.

11-11:20 a. m.—Military drill and review at College Stadium.

11 a. m.-12:45 p. m.—Visitation of departments.

12:45-2 p. m.—Barbecue lunch will be served on the picnic grounds back of the dining hall.

2-3:30 p. m.—Style show sponsored by Home Ec Department in Flanagan auditorium.

2 p. m.—"Banana Moon," dramatic music, will be presented at College Theatre.

2 p. m.—Double-header baseball game between ECC and Elon at College Field.

2 p. m.—Convocation of business majors in the basement of Flanagan Building.

2 p. m.—Physical Education workouts in Memorial Gymnasium.

2 p. m.—Open house and visitation in all departments.

3:30-4:30 p. m.—Collegians play for a tea dance in Wright Auditorium.

FBLA Members Attend Meeting

Dr. James L. White and five FBLA officers, Ed Gore, Howard Rooks, Linda Newsome, Bobbie Lou Avant and Shirley Newton, attended the Virginia State Convention of the Future Business Leaders of America in Roanoke, Va. The convention began Friday, March 26, and ended Saturday night.

Plans are underway to send delegates to an organizational meeting of FBLA in North Carolina. This meeting will be held April 23-24 at High Point College. Dr. James L. White is the state advisor and will preside at the business meeting on Saturday morning.

Playhouse Announces Cast Of 'The Emperor's New Clothes'

The Teachers playhouse announced this week the cast for their spring production, "The Emperor's New Clothes."

Laura Credle of New Holland will portray Zar, a leading role in the play. Laura has participated in "Robin Hood," "The Skin of Our Teeth" and several workshop plays.

The Empress will be played by Pauline Armstrong of New Bern. She has done direction and technical work for the Playhouse and she was also in "Robin Hood."

The part of Han will be portrayed by Charles Hill, a freshman from Jacksonville. Charles has had previous roles in "The Skin of Our Teeth" and the more recent production, "John Loves Mary."

Another freshman, Betty Sue Gay of Bunn, who portrayed the child, Gladys, in "The Skin of Our Teeth" will again play the child in "The Emperor's New Clothes." Betty Sue

More Guides Needed

More guides are needed for High School Day, which will be held on April 9. Students interested in acting as guides are asked to contact Charlie Klutz, chairman of the Guides Committee; the office of Field Services, in Austin or the Alumni Office.

To date, states Dr. Ed J. Carter, chairman of the High School Day committee, letters of acceptance indicate that two schools in Caldwell County, Lenoir and Happy Valley, will travel farthest to participate in the day's activities.

Goldsboro High School, with 140 seniors planning to attend, will probably have the largest delegation; and the Washington and the Greenville high schools will be represented by more than a hundred students each.

Tour Campus

The program arranged for the day will include tours of the campus; visits to departments of instruction, where special exhibitions based on work done at the college will be displayed; a military review by the college Air Force ROTC; and a barbecue luncheon.

Among special features will be a morning program sponsored by the college department of music and presented by the choral organizations of the college and the East Carolina Orchestra. Dr. K. N. Cuthbert, director of the college department of music, will be director.

During the afternoon the home economics department at East Carolina will sponsor a fashion show, at which visiting seniors will model spring costumes made in their classes. This show has been presented for several years as part of the High School Day program and has been popular with guests on the campus.

Ball Game, Dramatics

For sports fans a chief attraction will be a baseball doubleheader game between East Carolina and Elon.

The Teachers Playhouse of the college will present a performance of the musical comedy "Banana Moon," an original play with words and music by two East Carolina students, Douglas Mitchell of Greenville and Patricia Goodwin of Havelock.

Apply Now For Jobs

All students desirous of making application for self-help work for the summer terms or for next fall should do so before April 15.

It is necessary that these applications be on file in either the offices of Dean of Women Bath White or Dean of Men Claton Prewett by that date.

Pat Goodwin of Memphis, Tenn., and Doug Mitchell of Greenville, who were co-writers and co-directors of the musical comedy, "Banana Moon," have major roles in the spring production. Pat, will play the part of the old woman. Doug will play the part of Zan.

Other participants in "Banana Moon" also have roles in "The Emperor's New Clothes." Jimmy Walton, a freshman from Asheboro will portray the general. Robert Gardner of Rocky Mount will play The Emperor. Sally Easterling, a sophomore from Swan Quarter will portray Mong. Anna Avant of Whiteville has the part of the Gong Girl. Faye Semmons of Greenville and Susie Dayton of Raleigh will play Royal Weavers.

Mrs. Dorothy Sandlin of Beaufort will play Tsein. Barbara Tucker, a freshman from Magnolia, portrays Ling. June Quinn of Wallace, Shirley Alford of Burlington and Mary Elizabeth Jones of Wilmington will be Citizens.

The student director for "The Emperor's New Clothes" is Ann McCrary of Durham with Dr. J. A. Withey as faculty supervisor.

The play will be given in the College Theatre April 20, 21, 22, and 23.

Staff Welcomes Seniors

We of the East Carolinian staff would like to take this opportunity to welcome you, our high school visitors, to East Carolina.

We hope that you are finding your stay here enjoyable and that you are able to feel free and at home on our campus. We do not think that it is in any way childish to say that we are proud of our school and feel that for educational standards and hospitality it is among the top. It is our hope that you will see fit to return to East Carolina next fall to begin your college education.

During your stay here you have seen the different departments that comprise East Carolina College. We hope that you have been favorably impressed. We who have been here for at least a year can fully appreciate the indecision that may be in your minds with regard to selecting a school at which to further your education. You have observed East Carolina. Now it is our hope that your impressions have been favorable, and we are looking forward to seeing many of you again next fall.

An Opportunity Muffed

In view of advance publicity, the expense of the program, and the enthusiasm of the faculty we wonder about the singular lack of success met by the World Affairs Institute among students last week. The student body showed an almost complete disinterest in what one faculty member described as "the opportunity of a life time" to hear internationally known speakers.

Unfortunate experiences in morning assembly may have accounted for most student lack of interest in later programs. Combined circumstances of poor acoustics in Wright building, an almost nonfunctioning public address system, hammering in the basement, foreign accents and restlessness in the audience made it virtually impossible for a large part of the assembly to understand what was said. The situation was not helped by the somewhat discourteous departure of many students during the program.

Although morning assembly undoubtedly kept many students away from afternoon and evening program it cannot be denied that East Carolina students all too often may be characterized by enthusiasm for dances, ballgames, minstrels and movies at the expense of entertainment programs, lectures, studies and similar intellectual pursuits.

In any case it would have been to the advantage of East Carolina students not to have permitted the International Affairs Institute to turn into a glorified meeting of the Faculty Lecture Club.
 L. B. C.

A Certain Amount Of Courtesy

East Carolina students were very fortunate last week by being afforded an opportunity to listen to the world renowned speakers who appeared here for the World Affairs Institute. We believe the general opinion of the students is one of appreciation to those who spent time and effort toward the presentation of the program.

As is usually the case, however, there were those students who did not regard the program as beneficial. We agree that each student should have a right to make his own decision about attendance at all student assemblies. But we decidedly believe that any person who does attend an assembly which consists of lectures owes to other members of the audience and certainly to the speakers a certain amount of courtesy. The assembly in Wright last week was admittedly long, but all students were excused from classes to attend it. It is, in our opinion, regrettable that many of the students saw fit to leave before it concluded. Even more regrettable is the fact that they did not seem to realize that the noise they created by leaving in the middle of the program reflected the character of our entire student body as well as disturbing the speakers.—FON

by T. Parker Maddrey

Next Friday will be the 12th Annual High School Day at East Carolina. And for the past 11 of these affairs it hasn't rained. That's quite remarkable for Greenville, but you can never tell. The 12th event may break a record.

These high school seniors will probably get a good picture of our campus and its activities during a crammed program for the day. However, the seniors will get the real, "inside story" of East Carolina from its students.

Talking with students here, the prospective collegiates can learn more about the activities and what the college offers scholastically.

"The moving finger writes, and, having writ, moves on . . ."

The four lines appearing under the mast have been given credit to E. (Edward) Fitzgerald for several years. It was called to our attention that the author of the verse was Omar Khayyam, astronomer and poet of ancient Persia. He wrote during the late 11th and the early 12th centuries. Fitzgerald translated Omar's works into the English version and compiled them in a book, "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam."

East Carolina was well represented at the Wilmington Azalea Festival last week end. Quite a number of students were on hand along with the Collegians and the College Band.

Fred Joseph reports that the college made a good showing at Wilmington and Carolina Beach. He reports: "The ECC Skating Team took on all comers at Carolina Beach Saturday and came out with all colors flying. The skaters were bedecked with colorful uniforms topped by 'kat' hats." We understand that Joseph and Calvin Butt were the stars in the skating competition, assisted by a number of other students here.

Food For Thought

by Don King, Ed Mathews "Buzz" Young

We are happy to announce that since this article has been sent to the printer we have been notified that the faculty has consented to reconsider the matter. We feel that this is typical of the cooperation on our campus.

Sometime before Christmas holidays of this year three boys, Wade Cooper, Bob Neilson and Donald King, presented to the Student Legislature a plan to change our final exam schedule.

Principally, the plan had two aims: (1) to lighten the load on the students during exam time; (2) to lighten the load on the teachers during and immediately after exams. This was to be done by spreading the exams over two days instead of one day. The first, third, fifth, seventh and ninth class period exams would be taken on the next to last day of the quarter. The second, fourth, sixth and eighth class period exams would be taken on the last day of the quarter. All classes that did not meet on the last or next to the last day of the quarter would hold their exams on their next to last class meeting.

Under this system no student could have two or more exams in a row and all the teachers would have at least one extra day to grade the exams.

The Student Legislature approved this plan by a large majority and the three students who presented it were named as a committee to see Dean Jenkins about getting faculty approval for the plan. Dean Jenkins said that he thought that it was a good plan and would be accepted. It was introduced at a faculty meeting and a faculty committee, headed by Miss Williams of the Math Department, was appointed to consider the plan.

March 22 the plan was to be presented to a faculty meeting for approval or rejection. The members of the student committee were invited to attend. Bob Neilson and "Buzz" Young, who went for Wade Cooper and Donald King, were there. Miss Williams presented the committee report to the faculty. This plan, as the faculty accepted it, was presented completely on the front page of last week's "East Carolinian."

In brief it is that over a three day period two hour exams will be taken

Who's Who Among Students At East Carolina

Grammar Grade Major Gets Accent Teased

by Kay Johnston

This week's Who's Who is a true Easterner, from Sea Level. Lena Taylor, a senior majoring in grammar grade education, has had a pretty difficult time with people teasing her over her "high tide" accent. "I especially have had a hard time with the word fish," Lena says, (which sounds something like fiesh when Lena pronounces it)—"and now when someone asks me what I catch with a hook and line I answer 'a whale.'"

"Student teaching this quarter in the eighth grade has been very enjoyable," she continued, "except the first day when one of my pupils made a face at me. My favorite subjects are literature and history."

Active In YWCA

Lena has been a very active leader in the YWCA all of her four years at East Carolina. She was president last year at summer school and has held the office of vice president this year. "I've really enjoyed the many retreats I've attended during my work in the YWCA," she says. "I will always remember my trip to a conference at Blue Ridge last year. I went on the bus and really had a fine time talking to the bus driver, until the lady behind me punched me on the shoulder and told me to please stop talking to the bus driver, she wanted to have confidence in him! Was I embarrassed!"

Lena is a member of the Mormon church. There are only four other members on campus and one faculty member, and since there is no Mormon Church in Greenville the members hold services together every Sunday.

Lena has also been a member of the Future Teachers of America for two years, and held the office of vice president last year. "I really think this is a worthwhile organization," Lena says.

Participates In Playhouse

As a member of the Teachers Playhouse for the past two years, Lena has done outstanding work. She has had parts in the productions "Robin Hood" and "Tom Sawyer," and was business manager of the production "Charley's Aunt." "I directed a one-act play one year," she says, "and took it to the dramatics festival in Wilson. After the play was over, one of the critics asked me if I wrote the play. I knew it was bad, but not that bad!"

Lena is very fond of tennis, swimming and boating. "A true Easterner through and through," Lena smiled.

"Even though I'm looking forward to teaching," she says, "I certainly hate to leave East Carolina—and all my memories and friends."

Couple Of The Week

by Erolyn Blount

Bob Neilson, a Kinston senior, and Sue Massey, a Selma sophomore, started going together in February 1953. Says Sue, "I thought Bob was kind of silly but cute."

Says Bob, "I must have thought Sue was mighty cute, 'cause after the movie, we went back to the dorm and were talking so hard we didn't even notice the time. The house mother was locking the front door before we knew what was happening and Sue just made it in time."

They became engaged October 10, 1953 (the night of Homecoming), and says Bob of the event, "We're gonna put a monument up at that spot." You know, the guy must like being engaged.

"You should have heard Sue," he said. "When I gave her the ring she asked me 'Is this mine?'. Then she proceeded to drag me from one relative's house to the other, and I was definitely not in the mood for meeting relatives, if you know what I mean."

"The first time I went to Bob's house," says Sue, "I was scared to death. I didn't even eat the whole weekend, but when Bob met my parents he wasn't nervous in the least. He came to see me about once a week during the summer, which really made it nice."

Both Sue and Bob like to go horse-back riding, hiking, swimming, dancing and to movies, parties and the beach. "We haven't been on many trips," they said. "Last year we went to the Azalea Festival and to the beach a few times. One time we went on a hunting and fishing trip, but it was rained out, so we just had a party instead."

After finishing school, Bob, who is majoring in business, will have to put in a year with the army. Then he plans to go into the real estate business in Kinston.

Says Sue, who is majoring in primary education, "I'm not going to do anything but be a housewife and a mother."

(Editor's Note: This week's couple will each receive a carton of Chesterfields, a ticket to the Pitt Theatre, a gift from Saslow's Jewelers, a meal at the Olde Towne Inn and the girl will receive an item from the Glamor Shop.)

In all four and five hour courses and one hour exams will be taken in all one, two, and three hour courses. After much discussion from members of the faculty and from the three students present, who pointed out that the plan would not lighten the load on the students or faculty, the plan was approved by a vote of 45-27.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the plan was not necessarily permanent, but it can only be changed by the same faculty that passed it. After being tried out, the plan does not seem to work another plan will probably be presented to the faculty next year.

At the Student Legislature meeting the following Wednesday the student committee reported on the matter. After a long, warm debate the Legislature passed a resolution which said that it would cooperate with the faculty fully in its new exam schedule. The resolution, however did not say that the Legislature approved of the new exam schedule, nor did it say that the Legislature was satisfied. It said that the Legislature hoped that the faculty would reconsider the original plan of the students.

The faculty was certainly in its rights when it changed the exam schedule and Dr. Messick was probably right when he pointed out that

Man Behind The Cokes

Charlie, Jack Of All Trades

by Anne George

Charlie Harrell, junior from Middlesex, can literally be called the "Man behind the cokes!"

This is Charlie's second year of managing the Soda Shop under the supervision of Lloyd Bray, supply stores manager. His duties there are varied in many respects from extinguishing the many fires that develop in the trash cans to repairing the gadgets around the counter. All the purchasing of supplies and food for the "Y" store is handled by Charlie ("The Jack of All Trades"). Book-keeping is another phase of his work that keeps him on his toes.

He really got to know Mr. Bray when he lived in Wilson Hall. One night someone made a mess in the hall, and so Charlie commenced to clean it up. Mr. Bray noticed him; therefore, when this job at the Soda Shop became available he sought Charlie to fill the post. As Charlie laughingly recalls, "I didn't even know how to make a coke my first day."

Around the campus he is also well-known for his interest in FBLA, Interreligious Council and YDC. Also he is an active member of the Junior Class, serves on the Men's Judiciary and is vice president of Freewill Baptist Fellowship. Socially speaking he belongs to the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity.

Upon asking about a memorable incident in his life, he began to relate the time when he was driving from Wilson and turned the corner in front of Austin and almost hit President J. D. Messick. "When I finally stopped the car, I received the best lecture I ever heard at ECC," Charlie added.

Charlie enjoys swimming, the beach, girls in sweaters, and he has even required a slight liking to chocolate in his pensies.

His future plans include teaching for a few years, then perhaps if all goes well Charlie hopes to get a managerial position with some firm.

"I enjoy my work as it is a lot of fun, and a grand way to meet people, though you might say I hang around the 'Y' store more than anyone on campus!"

Letters To The Editors

TENNIS COURTS

To the Editor:

I noticed in different places in the "East Carolinian" discussion concerning the lack of tennis courts and intramural fields; therefore, I thought it would be well to let you know that we have included in every budget submitted to the Budget Commission and General Assembly, each biennium, a goodly sum for tennis courts and intramural athletic fields. So far, the requests have not been granted, despite our insistence every time.

The request will be renewed in the next budget, but what is done depends entirely upon the budget Commission and the General Assembly.

The tennis courts that have been paved so far have been paid for by savings in other areas.

I thought it would be well to let you know that we recognize this need and are doing what we can.

TRAFFIC SITUATION

To the Editor:

As President of the Student Government Association I feel it is my personal responsibility to bring to light facts that were not mentioned in an editorial last week entitled, "First Traffic Fatality: You?", by Bob Hillrup.

Mention was made concerning the traffic problem in and around East Carolina of which everyone is aware. With the increase in students and cars, there is destined to be a problem but it is one of a complex nature requiring time and much study. In the editorial, two recommendations were offered—to "post the proper speed limit and enforce it" and "erect 'stop' or 'right-of-way' signs." If these minor things are done, the author states, "the campus problem will be solved."

We all realize the complexity of the problem but by investigation and observation, we can easily see the many accomplishments in the past and in the present to cope with the problem. The college administration and the SGA has been aware of the problem for some time, and has done much to solve it—committees have studied the situation, one-way streets have been put in, stop signs have been installed, bushes have been cut offering better vision, new sidewalks are being built to keep the pedestrians off the streets, the police force on the campus has been increased, new streets are being paved to let traffic flow easier and many other achievements have been made, all successful in decreasing traffic hazards. Yet the author stated, "so far we have seen no results."

Seemingly tough problems can be easily solved, not by stirring antagonism, but by investigation, clear thinking, and cooperation. We sincerely feel that the entire college administration should be highly commended for superior accomplishments, not only in this problem alone, but in the many other achievements in the past. East Carolina is surely fortunate.
 Mitchell Saieed, President
 Student Government Assn.

WHO'S WHO

To the Editor:

I am writing in reference to the "East Carolinian" of two weeks ago. Pot Pourri hit the nail on the head when the column brought up the question of the honor attached to the present position of our college marshals. I don't know whether there would be enough girls interested to be marshals if the qualifications were higher and the persons checked more thoroughly, but it would be worth looking into. Nevertheless it is good to bring these questions out for a good airing.

I am also interested in the election of students to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." How are the students nominated, elected and by whom? On what basis are these pupils chosen?

Thank you.
 An Interested Student
 (Editor's note: Your questions are being answered in Pot Pourri this week.)

POT POURRI

by Emily S. Boyce

This column is written mainly in answer of a letter to the editor included in this week's East Carolinian; however every year when the publication of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities is made there are critical comments concerning the selection of students. How are these students selected, who actually selects them and on what basis are they chosen? In order to understand the procedure involved, there is a brief outline of the various steps included in the selection of pupils of East Carolina for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

The office of the Dean of Men handles this important duty. In October of every year this office sends out printed forms to every faculty member on campus and to the president of the Student Government Association. These letters ask the faculty member to write in the names of persons from their department (or otherwise) who they think should be included in Who's Who. These are faculty recommendations, not the final word. The forms are recommendations and are treated as nominations from the faculty, usually only two or three names included. The forms are sent back to the office and are compiled into a list. The student's name, the number of votes the nominee received from each faculty member, the number of hours the student carries and the number of quality points the student has are included in this list. Then the list is referred to a committee for final selection. This committee's identity is not known, but it is made up of persons who will give fair consideration to the selection of these students. Oftentimes the final names of the pupils for Who's Who is kept completely unknown by anyone but the committee until the first publication is made.

When naming college students for this honor, a great many things are considered. A student's standing on campus, his interest, initiative, cooperation, his leadership ability, etc., are considered. Academic standing is only one of the qualifications kept in mind during the final selection. A Who's Who student has contributed something to his college, he has done his work to the best of his ability and he is outstanding in student affairs.

With knowledge comes understanding. These students selected from East Carolina are chosen on a well organized, democratic plan. It is a difficult job, but one done with care and consideration.

Talk About Exams

by Faye O'Neal

Probably the hottest discussions on this campus this year have been taking place since the release of the new program for final examinations.

The history of this recent action might be considered as valuable information in reaching an opinion on the matter. At the March 24 meeting of the Student Government Association, it was revealed that the students themselves might be regarded as the unwitting and unwilling source of instigation for the move.

Last fall the SGA sent a letter to the administration requesting consideration of a change in the exam schedule to lighten the students' load when preparing for the final tests. Under the old set-up many students had all their exams on the same day, sometimes straight through for four or more hours. The Student Legislature appointed a student committee which drew up a plan to present to the administration proposing to spread out the exams over the last two days of the quarter with the first, third, fifth, seventh and ninth periods meeting on the first day, leaving an hour between each class for a refresher review.

Other classes would meet on the final day, unless the last meeting of the class regularly fell on the third day before the quarter's end; in such case, the exam would be taken on that day. The administration and faculty were gracious enough to look into the proposal and the developments which followed resulted in the program which was released about two weeks ago—the two-hour exam schedule.

Emily S. Boyce, our versatile assistant editor, has watched with interest the unfolding of the new plan. Her comments follow: "Until we try the new exam schedule, it is difficult to express an opinion; we cannot say now whether it will work or not, we do not know now if it will truly benefit both students and faculty. However, keeping in mind that the plan is only temporary, I believe it is a good thing. The Administration is giving the students a different plan, hoping they will like it better than the old one. If we don't like it and will speak out, no doubt the schedule will be changed and something else tried."

Dave Pennington thinks the student's work will be doubled by the new plan. Agreeing with Pennington is Jean Cullifer who thinks the plan is "terrible." She says that students had enough to worry about with hour exams under the quarter system. "If we ran on the semester system, the plan for two hour exams might work better," Jean says.

Faculty opinion on the matter is interesting and, we feel, necessary to give a complete picture of the situation. Dr. G. W. Knipp of the English department, who is well known for his long essay exams on literature, believes that the new arrangement is good for more advanced courses.

Nell Stallings, a member of the faculty of the Health and Physical Education department, tells us that she went to school under a set-up which provided for the final week of each semester to be designated as exam week, meaning that the whole week was taken for exams. They took exams by subject; for example, all English 220 classes met at the same period. About the new system here, she says, "The idea is good but I cannot say whether the schedule is satisfactory."

SPORTS ECHO

by Bob Hilldrup

This afternoon East Carolina's Pirates take their first steps toward what could well prove to be the "triple crown" of championships in the North State Conference.

With the football and basketball titles already under their belts, the Bucs will be seeking to get off to a winning start this afternoon in the doubleheader at High Point. Tomorrow it's Guilford and then a crucial doubleheader with Elon.

The Bucs will have to take at least four of these five contests if they hope to stay in the running with Elon's Christians who most certainly will be near the top in the battle for the Eastern Division title.

Every year it seems, the Pirates and Christians wind up in a feud over the baseball crown, and, of late Elon seems to have the edge. Last year in particular, the Bucs were in the running right up until the home stretch but then folded in the clutch.

This year however, the four non-conference games which opened the Pirate schedule may make the locals a bit better prepared for the conference wars. It would have been nice to have a couple of defeats on Wake Forest, especially in view of the fact that Elon did it, but win or lose, these games still had their merits.

One of the more pleasing surprises we've had in seeing the number of persons that turned out for the opening game with Wake Forest. Baseball here has always played second fiddle to basketball and football and probably will continue to do so but it's still good to see such a large number turning out to watch the sport.

In view of the fact that this newly-found interest seems to be here to stay, we wonder if it might not be possible to get a few more bleachers for the baseball field. At least half the persons present at the Wake Forest contest were forced to either stand, sprawl on the gym steps, or sit on the ground.

And as long as we're crusading for more seats for the baseball field we might as well suggest that perhaps a few could be added to the tennis court. The latter sport is also on the upswing here and has attracted an ever-growing number of fans. 'Twould be nice if they had somewhere to sit.

No word yet on a schedule for the track team. One understands though, that Leon "Shot" Ellis, a Pirate athlete of not too long ago, is working with the squad and serving as a semi-official coach.

Whenever a new program for a new sport is formed then it needs a great deal to keep it going. In line with this the track team will have to have some athletes if it is to compete. Between 15 and 20 boys are working out now but, from a student body as large as this, it seems that there ought to be a larger number.

Doubleheader At High Point Opens Conference Schedule

A doubleheader at High Point this afternoon officially opened the conference baseball season for East Carolina College's Pirates.

Tomorrow the Pirates move over to Guilford for a single session with the Quakers. Little is known of the Guilford ball club but if last year's series is any indication then the contest should be a close one.

Of the four games played between the two clubs, East Carolina took the first and last, 6-5 and 14-2, while the Quakers were capturing the middle two, 7-1 and 7-3.

Christians Here

A week from today, however, two crucial games which well may have bearing on the final Eastern Division standings will be played between the Pirates and Elon, last year's champs, on the local diamond. The Christians are rated as the club to beat again this year and the Pirates must gain at least a split to keep themselves in the running.

The following Thursday, April 15, a long standing feud will be resumed when East Carolina travels to Wilson to face Atlantic Christian. To the winner of this contest, as to the winner of each athletic event between the two schools, will go the Bohunk Trophy, a battered water bucket which belongs to the team which last recorded a win in any athletic contest between the two schools.

The Bohunk currently is resting with the Bucs by virtue of three cage wins during the recent basketball season.

Three-Run Rally Gives Bucs Win

A three-run rally in the bottom of the ninth gave East Carolina College a 7-6 win over Montclair State Teachers of New Jersey here Tuesday. The win was the Bucs' first in three starts this year.

East Carolina entered the last half of the final frame trailing 6-4. Right-fielder David Nance reached first on the shortstop's error and eventually scored the first run as pitcher Jim Murray walked three consecutive men. Bob Oehner then relieved Murray and pinch hitter Charlie Cherry screeched a double down the left field line to drive in the tying and winning runs.

The Pirates took the lead in the second inning when Murray, who suffered from windless all day, forced in W. C. Sanderson with the first run. Montclair rattled Clyde Owens, the Pirate starter, for six runs in the fourth to bring on southpaw Barnes. Jim Byrd took over in the seventh to gain credit for the win.

Two runs in the bottom of the fourth cut the margin to 6-3 and the Pirates added another in the fifth to set the stage for their late inning rally.

Score by innings: R H E
Montclair 000 600 000—6 6 2
East Carolina 010 210 003—7 7 2
Murray, Oehner (9) and Rubin; Owen, Barnes (4), Byrd (7), Mack Cherry (9) and B. Cline, Britt (9).

On paper, the Pirates are the favorites for championship honors in the Eastern Division of the conference's split baseball race. But to accumulate a won-lost record that will withstand the weathering a true champion must bare they have to gain coordination in two major departments.

First, the all important defense, speaking particularly of pitching, has to find some method by which to remain effectively consistent. No one can deny Coach Earl Smith's Pirates aren't tight around the sacks. As a matter of fact, East Carolina could field two formidable infield combinations from the wealth of material on hand. Coach Smith has a web of protection with starters W. C. Sanderson, Cecil Heath, Paul Jones, and Gaither Cline rounding the horn.

The array of infield talent constitutes the debatable problem of whom to start. Baseball loses most of its speculative interest when numerous substitutions are made. The Pirates have rookies Ray Pennington and Gary Mattook, two outstanding shortstops who can play first string with any in the league. Wilbur Thompson is another capable short fielder necessary for a winning ball club.

Coach Smith brought Vernon Baker with him from Campbell. The big first baseman is a glove smoothie and hits as well as most college first basemen. Charlie Cherry is a talent of third basemen with uncommon fielding ability. He possesses exceptional speed and general baseball know-how. If his hitting improves he will cause a lot of controversy around the hot corner.

The Bucs' outer garden sprouts with good prospects to team with veterans Boyd Webb, Major Hooper and Paul Gay. Hooper is a baseball natural—a player who seldom fails to do right things at the right time. Gay is fully recovered from an injury sustained in football and is playing his usual keen type of ball. The thunder from his bat will play a big part in the Bucs' diamond fortunes this spring. Bob Penley and David Nance are the brightest of the newcomers and are pushing the vets for playing time. Both are seasoned performers for rookies and Nance, especially, has hit the ball sharply in the Pirates' first games.

Possibly best of all is the catching department. North State club's have always been weak here, but this year the Pirates have all-conference Bill Cline back along with highly rated Ralph Britt and Bill Hardee. If Cline can get his share of base knocks East Carolina can match catching with any college in the state.

Always a touchy subject here, but one that has to be examined is the pitching. Again, a staff of sporadic churkers who's best run hot and cold confronts Coaches Smith and Boone and affords them the task of improvement. Jim Byrd is one of the big question marks. If the Kingston righthander fails to win consistently, the Bucs' fate may not be so bright. He is still having arm trouble which first began to plague him last spring. Righthander Jim Piner is a good thrower when he's right. When he's not, well, the difficulty may be from overwork, as was the case last year.

Ken Hall started the Bucs' opener and attempted to blow the ball past the Deacons, only to find the best way to pitch Wake Forest, or any other team for that matter, is to mix the pitches up. Half-speed stuff can do a lot of damage to a fence-busting crew. Two other veterans, Clyde Owens and J. C. Thomas, can give the Pirates support in the pitching side of the ledger if they come around. Also Gene Taylor, a fastballing righthander, could be very effective if he can obtain control.

Among the freshman who still are wet behind the ears but could dry that up by one good pitching effort are Dave Harris, Jimmy Barnes, and Mack Cherry. All are hopefuls. Also Len Johnson and Don Curtis are among the moundmen Coach Smith hopes will make the grade.

The Pirates finished second in the NS class in 1953. They have a good chance of bettering that mark this season.

Golf Team Preps For First Match In Title Defense

by J. W. Browning

The Pirate golf squad has been working out daily in preparation for their first contest. A schedule for the North State Conference champions has not yet been announced, but the first match is expected to immediately follow the spring holidays.

The local linksters have done very well in producing championship teams five out of the six years that they have participated in the loop. Elon won the title in 1952. This was the only year that East Carolina has not been champs since their entrance into the conference in 1948.

Three well-experienced veterans will be back again this year to aid East Carolina's classy golfers in their attempt for another successful defense of the crown. These powerful drivers are Claude King, Dave Martin and Harry Rainey. They will be aided tremendously by the up-and-coming crew of Jim Harris, Pat Hunt and Fred Sexton.

Track

Meanwhile East Carolina's first track team is still working out on the college athletic field in high hopes of having a successful initial season. The team will be coached by Leon "Shot" Ellis, formerly a stand-out in athletics at East Carolina. Runners make up most of the participants that are trying out. At the present there are many problems to be worked out, but if enough interest is shown for a track team at the college, a solution to these problems is expected. The schedule has not yet been completed, but it will be announced as soon as possible.

Court Squad Set For First Match

The East Carolina tennis team has been practicing at a steady pace for the past week in preparations for their first match, which will be after this weekend's spring holidays. The match will probably be at Wake Forest although an official schedule has not yet been announced. A ladder has been set up by Coach Porter and the first six men are seeded as follows:

- No. 1 — Paul Cameron
- No. 2 — Bob Williams
- No. 3 — Craig Kester
- No. 4 — Frazier Bruton
- No. 5 — J. W. Browning
- No. 6 — Dallas Foscoe

This seeding is only tentative however, since challenge matches between the players could change the seedings. Any member of the squad may challenge a man as high as two slots ahead of him. Also, any man not on the team may challenge the number 5 or 6 man for a position on the squad. If the challenger wins his challenge match, he and the man he defeated exchange positions. This requires each player on the squad to hustle in order to keep his position and it also assures the maintenance of the best possible men on the squad at all times.

Other expecting to break into the first six are: Gene Russell, Lewis Barnes, Jack Pickett and A. W. Caudill.

Three Wake Forest pitchers combined talents to shutout East Carolina's Pirates 5-0 at Wake Forest last Friday.

The Buccaneers, who went down to their second consecutive defeat of the young baseball season, collected Ben Tench and Lowell (Lefty) Davis, offerings of Paul (Moose) Davis, only two hits, both singles, off the

The Deamon Deacs scored twice in the bottom of the second with shortstop Lee Abbott's single being the decisive blow. Two more markers in the third plus another in the eighth gave the Deacs their winning margin.

Paul Gay, East Carolina's second batter in the opening frame, lashed out a single for the Bucs only solid hit of the day. The other bingle came in the eighth when shortstop Wilbur Thompson reached first safely as the result of a bunt.

Assistant Coach Earl Smith sent four hurlers to the mound in an effort to avenge an earlier 6-4 setback. Gene Taylor, Smith's opening choice, was charged with the loss.

BSU Here Continues Program Despite Convention Battle

"Although the ECC BSU executive council were unanimous in their support of the State Student Secretary who has been recently involved in an investigation by our Baptist General Board, BSU work at East Carolina will go on the same basis and with the same spirit that it has in the past, despite the fact that there have been changes that involve us," Gloria H. Blanton, BSU Student Secretary here said this week.

Twelve East Carolina students were among a group of two or three hundred Baptist students who attended a call meeting of the General Board of the N. C. Baptist Convention at which the fate of Baptist Student Union work all over the state was pondered and altered.

The meeting was held in the First Baptist Church of Greensboro from 10:30 a. m. to midnight Tuesday, March 30. Heated discussions were carried on throughout the entire afternoon in a battle which one leading Baptist in the state called a "clear out struggle between conservatism and liberalism in the Baptist Convention of NC. The conservatives won out.

The delegation from East Carolina represented the liberal faction. The BSU council, which represents the 700 Baptist students here, sent a letter expressing unanimous support of the group labeled "liberals" because of their supposed promotion of interdenominational and interracial fellowship.

The chief issue discussed at the meeting was the removal of James W. Ray, head of Baptist student work in the state and two other student workers. Miss Blanton was in attendance at the meeting but was not under question as a member of the liberal faction. Neither are the activities of the local BSU being questioned. The decision made by the board called for resignations from the three men involved.

Students who attended the meeting were Ruth Lassiter, Shirley Lassiter, Leo Bishop, E. J. Hines, Juanita Garrett, Ann Carawan, Bob Lee, George Starling, Eugene Hayman and Faye O'Neal.

KINSTON ALUMNI NAME OFFICERS, HEAR ADDRESSES

KINSTON, March 24—Alumni of East Carolina College attending the annual banquet of the Kinston-Lenoir County chapter Tuesday night advanced their scholarship campaign, heard greetings from top officers of the general alumni association, and listened to an address on the problems of the mentally deficient. New officers were also elected.

In an address on the care of the mental patient, Dr. Frederick M. Lash of Caswell Training School, Kinston, discussed causes of mental deficiency and the cost to the state in terms of economics, medical care and education.

Retiring officers of the chapter are: Mrs. J. L. Mills, president; Mrs. Joe Hardy, vice president; Mrs. Kirby C. Lott, secretary; Mrs. Lott West, treasurer.

Officers elected for 1954-55 include: Miss Elizabeth Gaddy, president; Mrs. Joe Hardy, vice president; Mrs. Randolph Spear, secretary; Mrs. Lott West, treasurer.

ALUMNI BREAKFAST HELD AT NCEA MEET

East Carolina College alumni attending the 70th annual state convention of the North Carolina Education Association in Raleigh March 18, 19 and 20 held a breakfast at the S. and W. Cafeteria Saturday morning, with Dr. John D. Messick, ECC president, as principal speaker.

Reviewing the building program at East Carolina, Dr. Messick reported on the early completion of the new library, the beautification of the grounds, the paving of drives and walks, plans opening bids for the proposed new dormitory for men on April 8 and the study of construction problems for the proposed new dormitory for women.

He noted, also, the progress of work on the student union in Wright Building.

Enrollment of 2,446 students for the current school year in residence work and more than 300 students in extension courses places East Carolina's registration to another high record.

Books for the library and funds for scholarships are tangible needs which our alumni can help the college to meet, Dr. Messick told the large assemblage of former students at the breakfast, as well as the effective work in sending good students to the college and building good will for the institution.

Sam B. Deeg of Raleigh, president of the Raleigh-Wake chapter and a district director, presided at the breakfast and was in charge of arrangements.

SUMMER COUNSELING JOBS AVAILABLE FOR MALES

Summer counseling jobs are open at Camp Elliott, a YMCA camp for boys in the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina, according to George E. Simmons, interstate secretary of the YMCA of the Carolinas.

Counselors need not be expert in camping but must be of good moral character and able to get along with boys. The purpose of the camp, which has been operating for a quarter of a century, is to contribute to the Christian lives of boys, Simmons says.

Those interested and qualified are requested to contact Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of the office of Student Teaching and Placement, for further information.

Edwards Heads Circle K Group In Coming Year

Raby Edwards, a junior of Greenville, was elected president of the Circle K Club for the coming year at Tuesday night's dinner meeting. John Barnhill, president of the Greenville Kiwanis, was host.

Edwards succeeds Don McGlohon of Winterville and will assume his duties along with other newly elected officers at the next meeting. Other officers named are Louis Clark, vice president; Jack Hudson, secretary; and Max Joyner, treasurer.

Elected to the Board of Directors of the Club were Charlie Bedford, Calvin Bell, Curtis Hendrix and Dalton Mann.

Dr. John O. Reynolds, club advisor and math instructor at the college, was commended by a standing round of applause for his "outstanding contributions to the Circle K." President McGlohon presented a gift to him from the club. Dr. Reynolds aided organization of the club when he came to East Carolina a few years ago.

Plans are under way to sponsor an Easter egg hunt for first grade students of West and South Greenville schools on April 15. This is an annual project of the club.
