West Cites Points Of Discussion In Committee Meeting

A committee, made up of students and faculty members, originated through the joint efforts of the Student Government Association and Administrators, met for the first time last week, to begin their study of cheating on the campus.

In their first move, Barney West, ECC junior, and author of the study committee plan, was elected to serve as student chairman of the committee, which is composed of seven students and five faculty members.

When approached as to the results of the initial meeting, West stated that, "We first talked out the problem, trying to determine whether or not our premise was correct, and if there was a lot of cheating going on here at East Carolina. West added, "We decided to accept the fact that there is a problem with cheating here, and go from there, with the knowledge in mind that the problem is no worse here than it is at other schools."

West emphasized that the first meeting of the committee was largely taken up with discussion about the problem, ideas for solutions and a program of action to be followed in carrying the situation. "We requested," said West, "that some faculty members aid the cause of cheating, but it still boils down to the fact that it is lacking in student maturity, and acceptance of responsibility. In other words, if a student values integrity, he is not going to cheat."

According to West, one of the solutions suggested by members of the committee was an indoctrination campaign, with the basic belief in mind that the problem actually lies not in the cheater himself, but the honest student who condones the practice.

Several points of the indoctrination campaign included such courses of action as articles in the student newspaper to increase student awareness of the problem, dormitory discussions, and campus-wide assemblies to discuss the problem.

In conclusion, West stated, "It is impossible to completely stamp out cheating, but our basic concern is the attitude of the students towards cheating. They see it, they know it exists, and they turn the other way. When we turn in our report to the Student Government Association, in April, we will have specifics, and not a general discussion."

DORM ROOMS AVAILABLE

Melvin V. Buck, director of housing, reports that rooms are still available in the dormitories for those students who wish to move in next quarter. Interested persons should contact the housing office on the second floor of the Administration Building.

East Carolinian Editor Wins Scholarship To NY Conference

Kathryn Johnson, editor of the East Carolinian, has been chosen by a selection committee from the Overseas Press Club as a scholarship participant in the Student Editors' Conference on International Affairs.

The conference, which is co-sponsored by the Overseas Press Club and the U. S. National Student Association, will take place February 19-22 at the Overseas Press Club in New York City.

Curtis B. Gans, National Affairs Vice President of USNSA and former editor of the Daily Tar Heel (UNC) says that the purposes of the conference are:

(1) to increase the student editor's understanding of the requirements, techniques and philosophy of overseas news coverage,

(2) to broaden his grasp of the technique and requirements of domestic reporting of foreign news on the undergraduate and professional levels,

(3) to find a more effective preparation for journalism as a career through practical discussion with leading professionals,

(4) to evaluate the student's own performance as an editor by meeting with others who have the same goals and responsibilities,

(5) to broaden his scope of knowledge on current international news-making events.

Each student editor attending the conference could pick two sections

Scene From Coming Ballet

Ballet Company Plans Performance Monday

The American Ballet Center Company, one of the newest and most highly praised dance groups in this country, will appear on campus February 8 under the sponsorship of the college Entertainment Committee. The program is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

Requests for tickets, already being received, indicate that the ballet company will attract a large audience from many localities in this section of the state.

The American Ballet Center Company founded in 1959 under the sponsorship of its school, New York's famed American Ballet Center, is making its transcontinental debut this season. Robert Jeffrey, brilliant young American choreographer, is artistic director of the company, which will appear here with a corps of twenty-five top dancers and an orchestra.

Jeffrey has won fame as director and chief choreographer of the Robert Jeffrey Theatre Ballet, the New York City Opera, and of a large number of television and stage productions.

The program at East Carolina will include, among other works, a classic "white" ballet, several of the famous classic pas de deux, and at least one of the "froth and frolic" works for which Jeffrey is famous.

Among the ballets to be presented in the company's present tour will be Jeffrey's "Pos des Deesses," dance of the goddesses, which the choreographer staged for the famed Ballet Rambert in London, and which became the first modern American work to be danced behind the Iron Curtain when the Rambert Company made its highly successful tour of China.

Tickets to the performance may be purchased in the Wright Auditorium before the program Feb. 8 or may be bought from Dr. James W. Butler, business manager of the Entertainment Series. The price of admission is $2. Students and faculty will be admitted free upon presentation of I. D. cards.

ATTENTION WINTER GRADUATES

Uke Armstrong, editor of the Buccaneer, announces that all seniors graduating at the end of Winter quarter, should come by the Buccaneer office, and sign up, in order that their names may be put on a mailing list to receive an annual. A charge of three dollars is required for each quarter following graduation that the student is not in school to cover the cost of the individual yearbook.

'Who's Who' Taps Veteran Librarian

Wendell W. Smiley, librarian at East Carolina College, will be included among those listed in the 1960-1961 edition of "Who's Who in America," one of the most widely known and used reference works published in the United States.

"Who's Who in America," a Marquette's publication, was founded in 1897 and has continuously followed high standards in making available information about "men and women in all lines of useful and reputable achievement." Through the years those listed in it have been uniformly, according to the publisher, about three in ten thousand of this country's population.

Mr. Smiley has been librarian at East Carolina since 1943. During his years at the college the library has grown phenomenally. In 1955 the Joyner Memorial Library was completed and provided new headquarters for book collections and library services and for the department of library science. The college closed circuit TV studios and the college radio station WWWS are both located in the Joyner Library and are operated under Mr. Smiley's supervision. The number of volumes in the book collections is now approximately 140,000, and a library staff of 18 people works under Mr. Smiley's direction.

Danforth Sponsors Wiebe As Lecturer

Dr. Gerhart D. Wiebe of New York City, a partner in Elmo Roper and Associates will be the seventh lecturer in the Danforth Lecture Series here on campus. His three lectures will be on "Obsolescence in American Culture." They will be held Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, February 8, 9, and 10.

The lectures for Monday and Tuesday will be held in Austin Auditorium, and the Wednesday night lecture will be held in the Joyner Library auditorium. They are all scheduled for 8:00 p.m.

Dr. Wiebe will also speak Monday at 1:00 p.m. in Austin Auditorium on the importance of controversy in social control.

Dr. Wiebe holds graduate degrees from Ohio State University and has served there as a member of the faculty in the Bureau of Educational Research. Before he became a partner in the Roper Association, he was research psychologist and assistant to the president of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

He is a member of the American Marketing Association and the American Psychological Association, and is a past president of the American Association for Public Opinion Research.

This lecture series will serve as a study program for the Pitt County Parent-Teacher Association.

Nichols Announces Prom Entertainers For Annual Event

Frankie Lester

Junior Class President Bill Nichols has announced that contracts have been signed with Frankie Lester and the Billy May Band for this year's Junior-Senior dance on Friday, April 22, at 8:00 p.m.

Frankie Lester, the vocalist for the dance, has sung with the Tommy Dorsey orchestra and later joined the Hal McIntyre band. He was vocalist with the Buddy Morrow orchestra after the war. Lester is under contract with R.C.A. but is more famous for his dance band work than his recording career. Lester is now permanent vocalist with the Billy May Band.

The Billy May Band is famous for its "boisterous, fresh, and humorous approach" to popular music. The band is very popular with college campuses throughout the country.

Bill Nichols, who is overall chairman of the Junior-Senior, expressed great satisfaction at getting the Billy May organization for the annual dance. "We think everything's just ideal," said Bill. "We're getting things organized now and we're sure that will be the biggest Junior-Senior we've ever had."

Clinic Features Noted Director

The 1960 All-State Band Clinic, Eastern Division meeting at the college February 5-6, will bring to the campus as music director Dr. Lucien Cailliet, musical director of G. LeBlanc Corporation, Kenosha, Wisconsin. As special lecturer-demonstrator, Earl Slocum of the Music Department of the University of North Carolina will also be here.

More than 90 selected student musicians representing 27 high schools in Eastern Carolina will attend the clinic. They will receive instruction from experienced teachers and band directors from the college faculty and from public schools of the state. As members of the Clinic Band, the students appear in a public concert Saturday night February 6 in the Wright Auditorium. Herbert L. Carter, director of bands at East Carolina College, is in charge of arrangements for the two-day event.

Dr. Cailliet has spent many years with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Leopold Stokowski and Eugene Ormandy, where he was engaged as bass clarinetist and arranger. He served on the faculty of the University of Southern California as Professor of music and conductor of the orchestra and band. He has also Saturday night, February 6, in the Kusse de Monte Carlo.

Dr. Cailliet has over a hundred published compositions for orchestra and band in the catalogs of various publishers. His writings include a treatise on orchestration and band arranging, and in recent years, he has composed, arranged and conducted many motion picture scores. He did the orchestration for the motion picture "The Ten Commandments."

At the Clinic, Dr. Cailliet will organize the Clinic Band, rehearse with members, and act as conductor at Saturday's concert. He will also be guest conductor of the ECC College Band on Friday night and will conduct a works written by Richard Wagner and transcribed by Dr. Cailliet, "Elsa's Procession to the Cathedral."

Mr. Slocum, who is nationally known as a performer and clinician of the flute, will conduct two flute clinics for directors and students.

As a special event of the Clinic, the East Carolina Concert Band with Herbert Carter as conductor, will present a public concert, February 5, at 8:00 p.m. in the McGinnis Auditorium.

EC Band Presents Concert Friday Night In McGinnis

These selections plus several lighter numbers are included in the concert which the band will play while on tour February 10-14.

There will be no admission charge.

De Gaulle Triumphs In Algerian Crisis

The people of France as well as several thousands of Moslems in Algiers forgot political differences of the moment and staunchly backed President Charles De Gaulle on his stand on the Algerian situation.

In the eight day crisis, friction and secondary problems were pushed back as the French people realized that if General De Gaulle were unable to keep his historic pledge to the people of Algeria, not only the chief of state, but also the country of France, would lose face in the eyes of the world.

De Gaulle has pledged that after a cease-fire Algeria would be able to choose freely its political future, even if that meant secession from France with full independence. Throughout the eight days of rioting waged by insurgents who fought to "keep Algiers French," De Gaulle did not budge an inch from his original plan.

"We will fight to the end," the rebels screamed. But they had not reckoned on the inner-strength of De Gaulle or the strength of his backing. Monday, the group yielded to the unbending alternatives of their President and surrendered. Popular support for the rebels had already begun to wane.

A ring of "They shall not pass" was resounded in the President's statement, "It is I who carry the destiny of the nation (and) I must therefore be obeyed by every soldier." He claimed the insurrectional riot was "a blow against France." He would stand fast, he declared, because "if I failed in my task, the unity, prestige, and destiny of France would be compromised . . . I shall do my duty."

So, in this short but most important trial of strength, De Gaulle, the symbol of the France which has a newly elevated position in world affairs, has won out. And France has gained renewed prestige in the eyes of the world.

Stern Policies Needed By US Against Castro

The President of the United States "turned the other cheek" in his restatement of U. S. noninterventionist policy in its relations with Cuba, and of its cordial, friendly relationship with the Cuban people. This was Eisenhower's answer to the insults from Castro and his cohorts.

The President expressed "increasing concern" over "the tendency of spokesmen of the Cuban Government, including Prime Minister Castro, to create the illusion of aggressive acts and conspiratorial activities . . . attributed to United States officials or agencies."

But he also made it quite clear that Washington will not make reprisals and that the Cuban people are still held in "great affection."

The U. S. Government has bent over backwards in trying to get along with Dr. Castro. We have smiled and shut our ears while he hurled abuses and outright insults at the U. S. We have not made loud enough our protest against the manner in which expropriation of American property is being carried out without written guarantee of adequate payment.

Although we still contend that cutting the Cuban sugar quota is not the answer, we think that the President will have to be more firm when dealing with Castro. We have suddenly become very tired of having the name and reputation of our country made a butt of by the red-tinged Prime Minister of the small island republic.

Hitler's 'Twisted Cross' Comes Alive Again To Fascinate Youth

By ROY MARTIN

Recently, Americans were shocked to learn, in the course of investigation concerning a synagogue bombing in Kansas City, the existence of a neo-Nazi youth party in two Kansas City High Schools.

Authorities estimated that from forty to eighty boys at the two schools were members of a Nordic Reich group. It was also disclosed that members of the club had in their possession such things as Nazi uniforms, swastika armbands, medals, and other items attributed to Nazism.

Officers also found several letters containing such statements as "Our founder is Adolf Hitler. The war ended in 1945. The ideas of national socialism have not died." Evidence was also found of the merger of the two school parties in another note which stated, "Our party is joining with the National Socialist German Workers' party that is based at Southeast High."

When matters such as this come to the attention of people, immediately they want to know, why? "Why" is a word that has plagued the people of the world throughout the ages. More often than not, the why of things and occurrences remains a mystery. Is the same true in this case? Can it be explained why young people, and American young people, at that, should band themselves together into such an organization against which, perhaps, their fathers fought and died?

Although this matter is one of the most serious ever to confront the parents of America, perhaps, actually the youths involved are not to blame themselves. They were never acquainted with the horror of Nazism . . . the concentration camps, the oppression, and the stench of bodies piled up like cordwood for the Nazi crematoriums, which some Americans came in contact with in Germany during World War II.

These young people cannot be excused for what they have done, and doubtless some punishment will be inflicted. Perhaps the greatest thing they deserve, however, is understanding.

Having traveled the same road that these young people are traveling now, we can say that growing up is a complicated process, and many times there are those who never make the grade as far as being "grown up" is concerned.

The years of youth are questioning ones, a time when personalities are molded, with convictions and beliefs being turned in for newer models. They are also periods of searching

Drama's Cast Approved; Freshman Takes Honors

By JASPER JONES

The East Carolina Playhouse production of "The Diary of Anne Frank" was one of the most effective this group has given. This Pulitzer Prize winning play has been a success in almost all of its productions, notably the 1956 New York production and the one in Berlin a little later.

The E.C. players were equal to the play's demands in most respects, and they conveyed the very human and intimate aspects of the drama with unusual success. The more jubilant and optimistic scenes were, in general, the best. The touching Chanukah celebration was especially memorable.

The Anne Frank of Susan Truesdale, a freshman playing her first important Playhouse role, was beautifully done. The difficult task of portraying an adolescent confronted with the many unusual problems which were Anne Frank's would have thwarted many a less capable actress. Her essentially girlish interpretation was realistic and appealing, and her many beautiful and often whimsical lines and speeches were integral parts of a sensitively created role. The Playhouse is fortunate that Miss Truesdale is a freshman and will be in more future productions (we hope).

Ben Avery, who portrayed Mr. Frank, was also excellent. Special praise must go to him for his consistent articulateness. Undoubtedly, this contributed more than anything else to his success. Leigh Dobson, as Mrs. Frank, performed with the skill and insight that we expected of her. Albert Turner, who played Peter, Anne's first love, was successful in portraying a shy, adolescent boy. He also conveyed to the audience his pathetic shame and distress at his parent's lack of character and feeling for others. His relationship to Anne Frank was a different matter, however, and the scene between he and Anne in his room didn't come off as it should have. Mr. Turner also seemed a little large for the part, but this is quibbling.

Dorning Jenkins was a delight as the cynical and superficial Mrs. Van Daan. She bit right in to this juicy role and squeezed everything out of it. Her make up, costumes, mincing gait, insinuating voice—everything seemed perfect. Jim Roper as Mr. Van Daan was almost a match for Dorning Jenkins. He aroused enough contempt for himself to make the characterization thoroughly believable.

Joanne Eagles as Margot Frank was very good. One observer remarked that her interpretation of Margot was "more assertive and far more realistic than the original Margot in the New York production." Doris Robbins as Miep was also successful, and Gerald Harold was satisfactory as Mr. Kraler.

David Thrift, as Dr. Dussel, the bothersome dentist who moves in with the Franks later in the play, was funny, but little else. He ran slipshod over many of his lines, and we heard him say "branz" instead of "bring" along with a number of other mispronunciations. His conception of this part had little in common with the Dr. Dussel in the Goodrich-Hackett novel.

Highlights of the play were the aforementioned Chanukah scene; the emotionally complex scene in which Anne has a nightmare and wants only her father's comforting words (Ben Avery and Leigh Dobson were both terrific here); and the climactic moment when Miep bursts into the room with news of the Normandy Invasion. The famous final scene when the Gestapo come seemed a little weak.

The sets were easily the best we've ever seen for anything on this campus. They were functional as well as interesting. The audience seemed to be actually in the cramped Amsterdam apartment, and the opportunity of observing the actions of everyone at all times, whether they were all directly involved with the drama at the moment or not, was exciting indeed. Other stage effects were of the same quality.

Lastly, we must congratulate Dr. J. A. Withey who has created a coherent production and done a really beautiful job of inspiring his act—that is unusual in college productions. unusual in college productions.

Jim Gillikin, Ronnie Knouse Hold Lead Roles In Opera Theatre Production 'The Medium'

By MARCELLE VOGEL

James Gillikin of Greenville, and Ronnie Knouse of Winston-Salem have both had much acting and musical experience before taking the roles of Toby and Mr. Gobineau in the latest Opera Theatre production of The Medium.

The Medium, to be presented in McGinnis Auditorium on February 20 and 21, is the tragedy of a woman, Baba, caught between two worlds, a world of reality which she cannot wholly comprehend, and a supernatural world which she cannot believe.

Toby, portrayed by Jim Gillikin, is the enigmatic mute boy, whom she adopted, who seems to hide within his silence the answer to Baba's startling and unanswerable question.

Ronnie Knouse, as Mr. Gobineau, visits Baba in an attempt to see his dead son once again. "As a senior in high school, Ronnie Knouse received many honors with his musical and acting talent. He was awarded first place in the Senior High School Soloist (national), and actors (state) contest. He also won first place in the National Music Clubs of America Contest (State & National), and first place in the National Womens Club Contest (state).

Besides the many awards he has won, Knouse was also soloist for Kermit Hunters' Thy Kingdom Come, in Salem, Virginia, and he portrayed Daniel Boone in the outdoor drama Horn In The West. He also had the lead of "Ketzal," in last year's Opera Theatre production of The Bartered Bride, and was the lead character in the freshman play The Old Lady Shows Her Metals. Knouse was also soloist for the EC Choir last year.

Jim Gillikin, an experienced dancer, has had his education and training at Chowan College, University of North Carolina, June Taylor School of Dance, New York City; Pasadena Playhouse Associates, New York City; Shell Playhouse, New York City; and the Musical Arena Theatre Association, New York City. He has also had experience at the Rye Music Theatre, Rye, New York; Air Force Special Services, France and Germany; and at East Carolina.

Gillikin has also been in such musical productions as: Kiss Me Kate, Fanny, Damn Yankees, Finian's Rainbow, Show Boat, Carousel, Brigadoon, Silk Stockings, Dark of the Moon, Oklahoma, and Desert Song. Gillikin choreographed the spring musical Kiss Me Kate last year, and is teaching modern dance and jazz in preparation for the spring production of Annie, Get Your Gun.

Having played the part of Toby before at Chapel Hill, Gillikin said, "Toby affords the actor-dancer a wonderful opportunity to show the best of his abilities. Any part which has to be sustained throughout without voice is a tremendous challenge to the actor." He added, "I am very happy to be able to play the role again."

Gillikin commented, "This is one of the finest vocal groups I have ever worked with. The show is beginning to jell and by opening I am sure it will freeze the audience to their seats." He added, "I am enjoying working with Dr. Rickert. He shows a great deal of talent and imagination!"

Other members of the cast for The Medium are: Jane Murray, Martha Badner, Alison Moss, Ann Darden. Other members are: Jeanne Peterson, Jessamine Hiatt, and Carolyn Elam.

Music director for The Medium is Paul Hickman, director of the Opera Theatre, and Robert Rickert of the English Department is the dramatic director for the opera. The sets for the production are being designed by John Gordon of the Art Department faculty.

Donald Hayes, director of the ECC orchestra, will conduct the opera orchestra. This is the first year that the orchestra will accompany the opera theatre and its production.

Dr. Charles Devises New Medical Method

Patients who have suffered from a sudden ripping off of adhesive tape dressings or bandages "will be grateful, according to the medical journal GP, for a new technique devised by Dr. Lucile H. Charles of the English department of East Carolina College.

In an article in the January issue of GP, publication of the American Academy of General Practice, Dr. Charles describes the method which "consists not in speedily pulling the tape away from the patient, but rather slowly removing the patient from the tape." The discussion is illustrated with drawings illustrating the wrong way and the correct and painless way of going about the job.

"With the thumb and the index finger of one hand," Dr. Charles' article directs, "gently lift a corner of the adhesive tape . . . With the fingers of the other hand, gently and slowly press the skin that is just beneath the tape, away from the tape and toward the center of the dressing or bandage . . ." and continue the process until the adhesive has been entirely removed.

Dr. Charles' method is slated for discussion in the medical columns of forthcoming issues of Cosmopolitan, Every Woman's, Family Circle, the American Weekly, and Chatelaine of Canada.

Snow Story

Unusual Object Attracts Perplexed Individual

By DERRY WALKER

I seldom tell this story, because only a few people ever believe it.

Last year, when snow was deep everywhere, my car ran out of gas on the outskirts of Greenville. My watch read eleven o'clock and fresh snow was beginning to flutter downward again. I decided that I would not try to find an open filling station at that late hour; instead, I would walk home and return for my car in the morning.

I got out of the car and stepped into eight inches of snow. My feet were soaked after a few steps and I pulled my coat tight to shut out the wind. I saw only a few lights as I crunched along, and I began calling myself names for having run out of gas. As I passed by a house I debated whether or not I should stop and ask to borrow the telephone.

As I stared at the light burning in the living room window, I became aware of an odd sound behind and above me. I turned in the snow and squinted in the direction of the sound. I heard a dull sifting sound, somewhat similar to thrush breathing, and it seemed to come from the air above me. Perplexed, I strained harder to see beyond the multitude of white flakes that fell. The sound grew louder and then I saw something resembling two thin streaks of blue flame. Some kind of aircraft, I thought—but certainly nothing I had seen before.

When the sound came within ten feet of me, the airborne object took shape. Large, perhaps thirty feet in diameter, and saucer-shaped. But that's impossible; I must be snow blind, I thought. The thing drifted along until it was almost directly overhead and I stumbled away from it to a doghouse in the front yard of the house. It was small but I crawled into it, making a Bull Terrier a bit angry in the process.

The Terrier and I got as comfortable as we could under those hurried circumstances, and we stuck our heads through the small door. The craft had not moved. It hovered there above the doghouse, its engine still manufacturing the blue flame and the odd breathing sound. Then, as we watched, a door opened at the bottom of the thing, revealing a portion of its interior, illuminated by an eerie aqua light that reflected on the snow.

I was too bewildered to do anything. The Terrier was too. While we watched, some garbled voices drifted down to the doghouse.

"They are more intelligent than we suspected," a voice said.

"We have underestimated them. They learned we were coming and they have begun covering themselves with this white material."

"We must return, and attempt to catch them off guard later," and they were gone. I ran all the way home, scared to death. I don't know what became of the Terrier. (Worthy 2d prize Burlington, Wis. L. Club)

Problem Needs Airing

By TOM JACKSON

Recently the EAST CAROLINIAN has been criticized for "airing dirty laundry" due to its stand taken on the campus cheating situation. This criticism, from students and faculty alike, is not without sound reasoning.

They (those who criticize) base their criticism on the fact that the student newspaper is circulated off campus and in some instances could be bad publicity for the school. This is true. Our student newspaper is sometimes circulated to off campus readers.

However, this is no reason to water down the news or to withhold opinions. If a bad situation exists on campus it should be made known. Not only to the campus, but to the whole of East Carolina's interested audience. Those who are interested in the school deserve to know what is going on here. Those who are not interested don't care what is going on. So we feel that the news should be printed.

If the students on this campus are dishonest then people should know about it. They should be told again, and again, and again until they get sensitive enough, or tired enough of hearing it to do something. Not only should the students read about it, but their parents, the ones who are paying the bills in most cases, should know it too. The President should know it. The Board of Trustees and the Board of Higher Education should know it. The legislature and the governor should know it too.

If ECC is a diploma mill, issuing diplomas to the ones who prove to be the craftiest, the most dishonest, those of lowest character, and to those of least integrity then the ones who are supporting this school should know . . . so they can either cause enough pressure to get better results, or turn their efforts in a more productive direction.

If East Carolina College is the epitome of mediocrity, (as it has been called) it will remain such until enough people get excited about it to do something.

This intellectual environment here is, in part, the fault of the students, but they are not alone in the guilt.

And what about the student from J. H. Rose High School who recently said ECC is much easier than high school, or the college administrator who commented, "Sometimes I wonder if there is enough challenge for the bright at East Carolina."

Union To Sponsor Designing Contest

Cynthia Mendenhall, Recreational Director of the College Union, has announced that the CU will sponsor an art contest for the best original design of a brochure cover.

An award of $10 will be presented to the student who designs the cover in conventional or modern style, which best portrays the purpose of the Union.

Each year a leaflet explaining the Union's purpose, facilities, and its program is sent to incoming freshmen. Leaflets are also available to any students who are interested in obtaining one.

A committee made up of the College Union advisory board, staff, and student committees will judge the art work submitted.

The deadline for submitting an entry to the contest is April 15. Further information may be obtained from Margaret Ann Rankin or from the College Union office in Wright Building.

The College Union committee would like to incorporate the art work of ECC students in the composition of the brochure. As well as being available for ECC students, the brochure is often requested by other colleges and samples are displayed at the regional and national conferences of the Association of College Unions. Miss Mendenhall commented.

'Y' Sponsors Panel Discussions Tonight

A panel of students presenting their views on race relations will begin a series of three discussions on racial tensions tonight at 6:30 p.m. The discussions are sponsored by the YMCA and YWCA.

Beginning with this program and continuing each Thursday night through February 18, different persons will be discussing one of the most timely problems of today.

Besides the panel of students, in the weeks that follow, there will be members of the faculty, and persons closely associated with the college, as well as some outstanding and well known person to speak on the various subjects.

In sponsoring these discussions the Y hopes to help EC students come to a better understanding of this problem as well as to give them a chance to express their views, a spokesman for the Y said.

Film Will Tell Story Of News, Work In Paper

"Assignment: Mankind," a documentary color film about a day in the life of the Christian Science Monitor, will be presented on campus February 7.

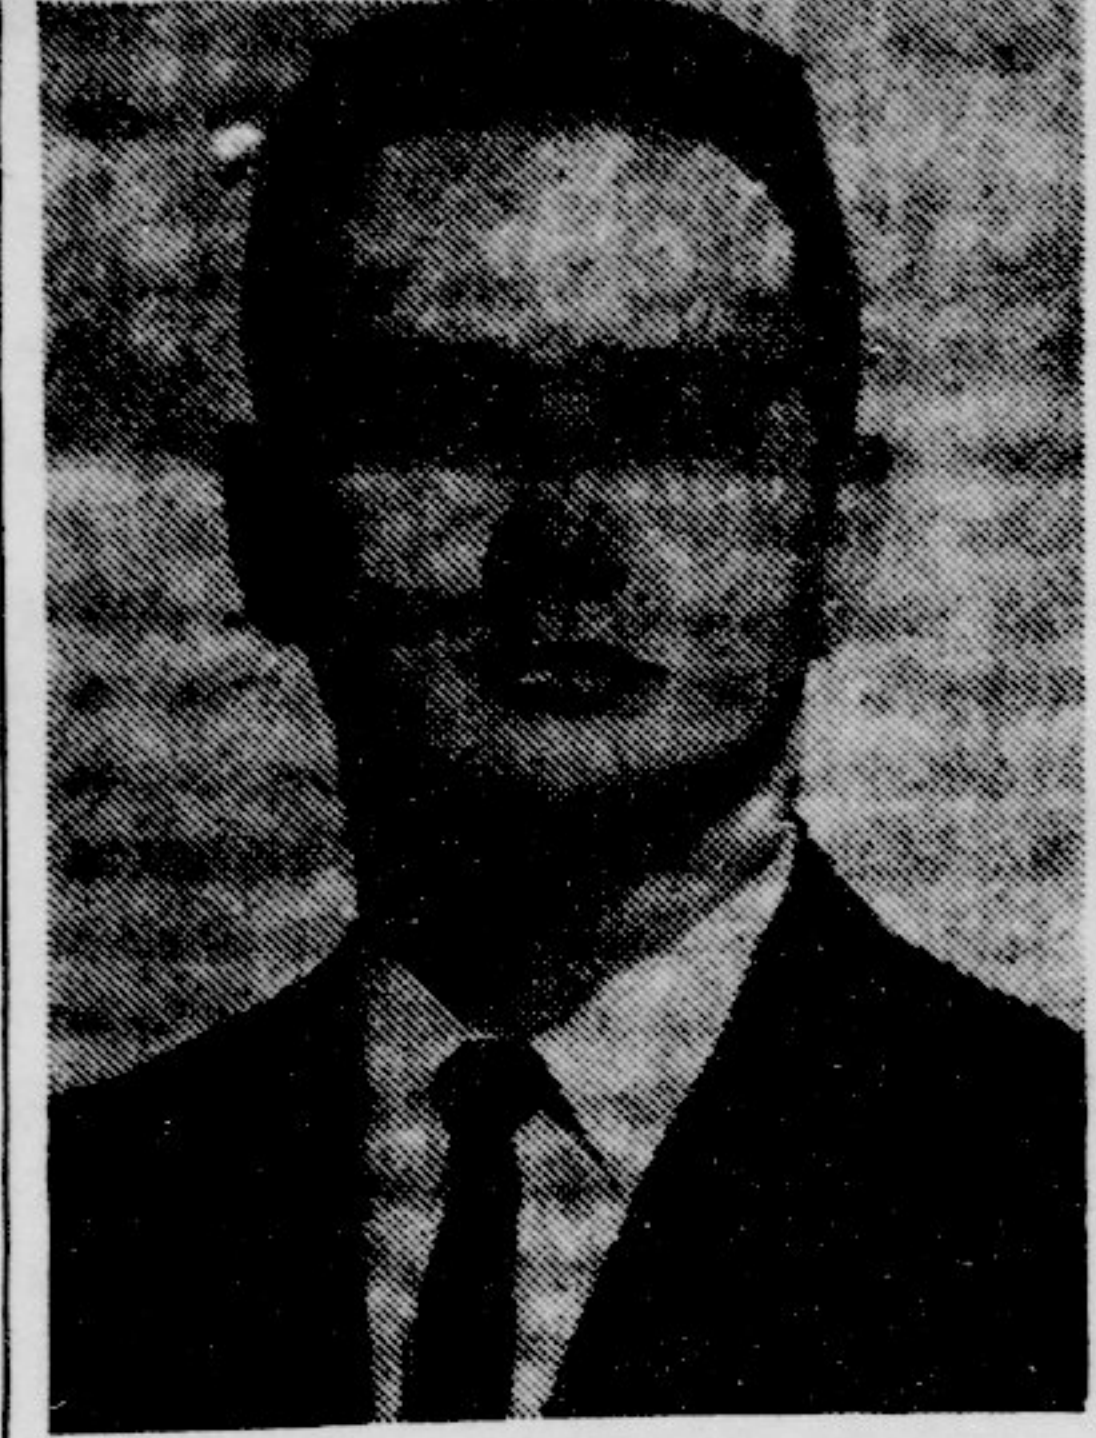

With a musical score by Louis Applebaum, the film follows the flow of news as gathered by a global staff, shaped by conferences in Boston, and transformed through editorial processes in a completed newspaper.

The script was written by John Beaufort and the film directed by Jack Alexander.

Mrs. Robert K. Stuart, college advisor for the Christian Science college group and representatives of the Christian Science Monitor for Greenville, says that the Monitor's theme, "To bless all mankind," has been captured in this film.

The Christian Science group on campus, sponsors of the film, invite all interested students and faculty members to see the film February 7, at 7:45 p.m. in the auditorium of the Joyner Memorial Library. The film runs twenty-eight minutes.

Missionary Speaks In Mission Series

The Reverend Edward Winckley of the Anglican Church, South Africa, will be in Greenville, February 7, 8, and 9, and will speak at The Saint Paul's Episcopal Church on the "Mission of Christian Healing."

Reverend Winckley, though a Londoner, has spent a number of years in missionary work in South Africa. Serving as Chaplain to the South African Church Railway Mission, he traveled 70,000 miles in three years with six European and five non-European churches under his charge.

In 1944, Winckley was commissioned to work full time in the Church's Ministry of Healing, and established the first Healing Home in South Africa. He was directly responsible for the Kearsney Healing House at Natal and Ekuphseveni, the first Missionary Home of Divine Healing for Africans. Kearsney is the largest healing community in the world. Reverend Winckley is at present on his second tour of Healing Missions in this country.

European Tour Receives Many Applications; Much Support

The Grand Circle Tour of Europe, sponsored by East Carolina College, has already received much enthusiasm and support, Myrtle B. Clark, director, says.

The trip, which will include thirty-four days of summer touring through Scotland, England, the Netherlands, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Italy and France, will offer nine quarter hours of graduate or undergraduate credit. Mrs. Clark said, "The purpose of the trip is to offer education, enjoyment, and increased professional proficiency."

Among the persons planning to go are Closs Jenette, Jenette McClain, Jessie Mercer, Frances Jenette, and Kathleen Johnson, all of Elizabeth City.

Others are Margaret Lewis, Betsy Redding, Helen Fisher, Jackie House, Betty Thomas, Ruth Clark, Carol Bailey, Jessie Taylor, Mary Twining, Dorothy Brinson, and Tony Brandson.

Three faculty members are accompanying the group. They are F. A. Dade, Ruby Edens, and Lily Carr. Also Mrs. Roy Cox, of Winterville, and Venetia Cox are going on the tour which has drawn an application from as far as Naples, Florida, from Mrs. Carl G. Pfeiffer.

Mrs. Clark has announced that there is still enough space on the boat for more applications. Persons interested may contact Mrs. Clark at the Wahl-Coates School, or see Dr. Ralph Brimley's office in the Alumni Building.

Dean Points Out Absence Rules

James B. Mallory, Dean of Men, reported this week that students should become familiar with the college rules relating to class absences in order to save time for themselves as well as the Dean's Office in getting these absences excused.

"The free cuts given to a student," said Mallory, are to give the individual student a leeway for the unexpected things which come up each quarter.

"Too many students are abusing their cuts by taking them all when they are not needed. Then when the free cuts run out and an unforeseen circumstance does arise, the students expect us to excuse them. Naturally we can not do this since we have already made allowances for such matters by giving them a number of free cuts in advance."

To clarify class absence regulations the Dean quoted from the college Catalog, "Absences from class will be excused for the following reasons only: (1) Illness of the Student . . . (2) Death of a member of the student's immediate family, and (3) Representation of the college or a campus organization in an activity that is recognized by the administration when such representation is reported to the college by a member of the faculty."

COMMITTEES: AN AGONIZING REAPPRAISAL

To those of you who stay out of your student government because you believe the committee system is just an excuse for inaction, let me cite an example to prove that a committee, properly led and directed, can be a great force for good.

Last week the Student Council met at the Duluth College of Veterinary Medicine and Belles-Lettres to discuss purchasing a new doormat for the students union. It was, I assure you, a desperate problem because Sherwin K. Sigafos, janitor of the students union, threatened flatly to quit unless a new doormat was installed immediately. "I'm sick and tired of mopping that dirty old floor," said Mr. Sigafos, sobbing convulsively. (Mr. Sigafos, once a jolly outgoing sort, has been crying almost steadily since the recent death of his pet wart hog who had been his constant companion for 22 years. Actually, Mr. Sigafos is much better off without the wart hog, who tusked him viciously at least once a day, but a companionship of 22 years is, I suppose, not lightly relinquished. The college tried to give Mr. Sigafos a new wart hog—a frisky little fellow with floppy ears and a waggly tail—but Mr. Sigafos only turned his back and cried the harder.)

But I digress. The Student Council met, discussed the doormat for eight or ten hours, and then referred it to a committee. There were some who scoffed then and said nothing would ever be heard of the doormat again, but they reckoned without Invictus Millstone.

Invictus Millstone, chairman of the doormat committee, was a man of action—lithic and lean and keen and, naturally, a smoker of Marlboro Cigarettes. Why do I say "naturally"? Because, dear friends, active men and active women don't have time to fuss and fumble and experiment with cigarettes. They need to be sure their cigarettes will never fail them—that the flavor will always be mild and mellow—that the filter will always filter—that the pack will always be soft or flip-top. In short, they need to be sure it's Marlboro—dependable, constant, tried and true Marlboro. Smoke one. You'll see.

Well sir, Invictus Millstone chaired his doormat committee with such vigor and dispatch that, when the Student Council met only one week later, he was able to rise and deliver the following recommendations:

1. That the college build new schools of botany, hydraulic engineering, tropical medicine, Indo-Germanic languages, and millinery.
2. That the college drop football, put a roof on the stadium, and turn it into a low-cost housing project for married students.
3. That the college raise faculty salaries by $5000 per year across the board.
4. That the college secede from the United States.
5. That the question of a doormat for the students union be referred to a subcommittee.

So let us hear no more defeatist talk about the committee system. It can be made to work!

You don't need a committee to tell you how good Marlboro are. You just need yourself, a Marlboro, and a match. . . Or if you like mildness but you don't like filters, try Marlboro's sister cigarette—Philip Morris.

LUCKY STRIKE presents Dear Dr. Frood:

BAFFLING BLOT FAILS TO FAZE FROOD!

(see below)

Dear Dr. Frood: Every night for the past two weeks I've dreamt that I am being pursued by a beautiful girl in a Bikini who wants one of my Luckies. Just as she catches me, I wake up. How can I prevent this? Puzzled

Dear Puzzled: Go to bed a few minutes earlier.

Dear Dr. Frood: I am the ugliest guy on campus. My face looks like 90 miles of bad road. When I go to a party someone always steals my date. I worry about this. Can you help me? Loveless

Dear Loveless: Take heart. Any girl who would go out with you isn't worth worrying about.

Dear Dr. Frood: I think this ink blot looks just like rabbit ears. My friends say I'm nuts. What think? Bugs

Dear Bugs: It's your friends who are nuts. Those are clearly rabbit ears. And the long shape extending down is the rabbit's trunk.

Dear Dr. Frood: I have invited three girls to the dance this Saturday. How do I get out of this mess? Upha Creek

Dear Mr. Creek: Tell two of them to dance with each other until you cut in.

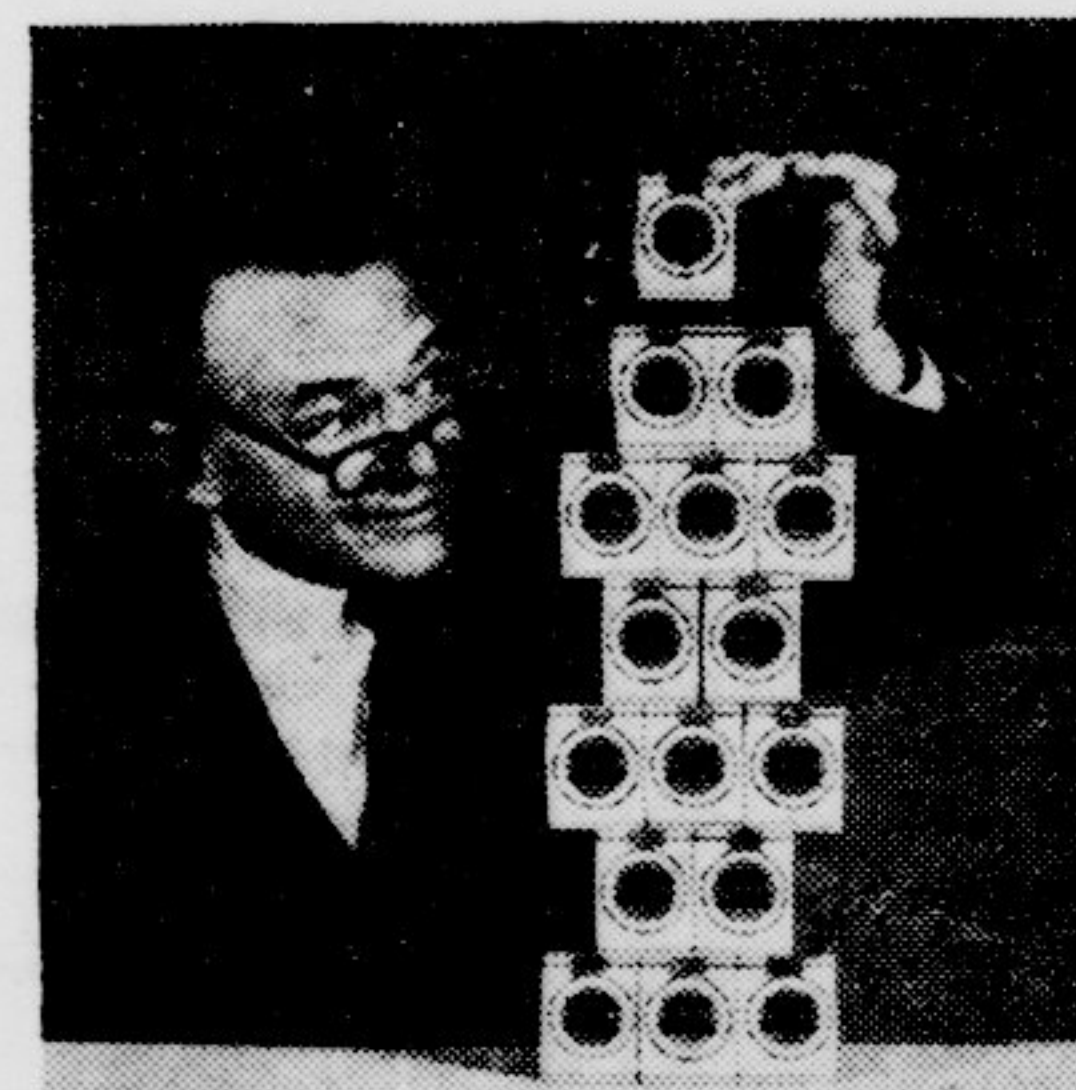

Dear Dr. Frood: I have been dating one girl but I am so good-looking and so popular that I have decided to spread myself around a little more. What should I do about this girl? Dashing

Dear Dashing: Tell her the good news.

Dear Dr. Frood: My roommate always wears my clothes. What should I do? Put Upon

Dear Put Upon: Cover yourself and stay indoors.

Dear Dr. Frood: My mother and my brother don't like my boy friend, but my father and my sister do. His father and two brothers don't like me, but his mother and his other brother do. What should I do? Miss Muddle

Dear Miss Muddle: Tell your father to talk to your mother and tell your sister to talk to your brother. Then tell your boy friend's mother to talk to his father and tell his brother to talk to his brothers. If that doesn't work, then talk to your mother and brother yourself. Maybe they know something you don't know.

Pirate Tankmen Host Strong Florida; ECC-ACC Rivalry Tonight At Wilson

By LEONARD LAO

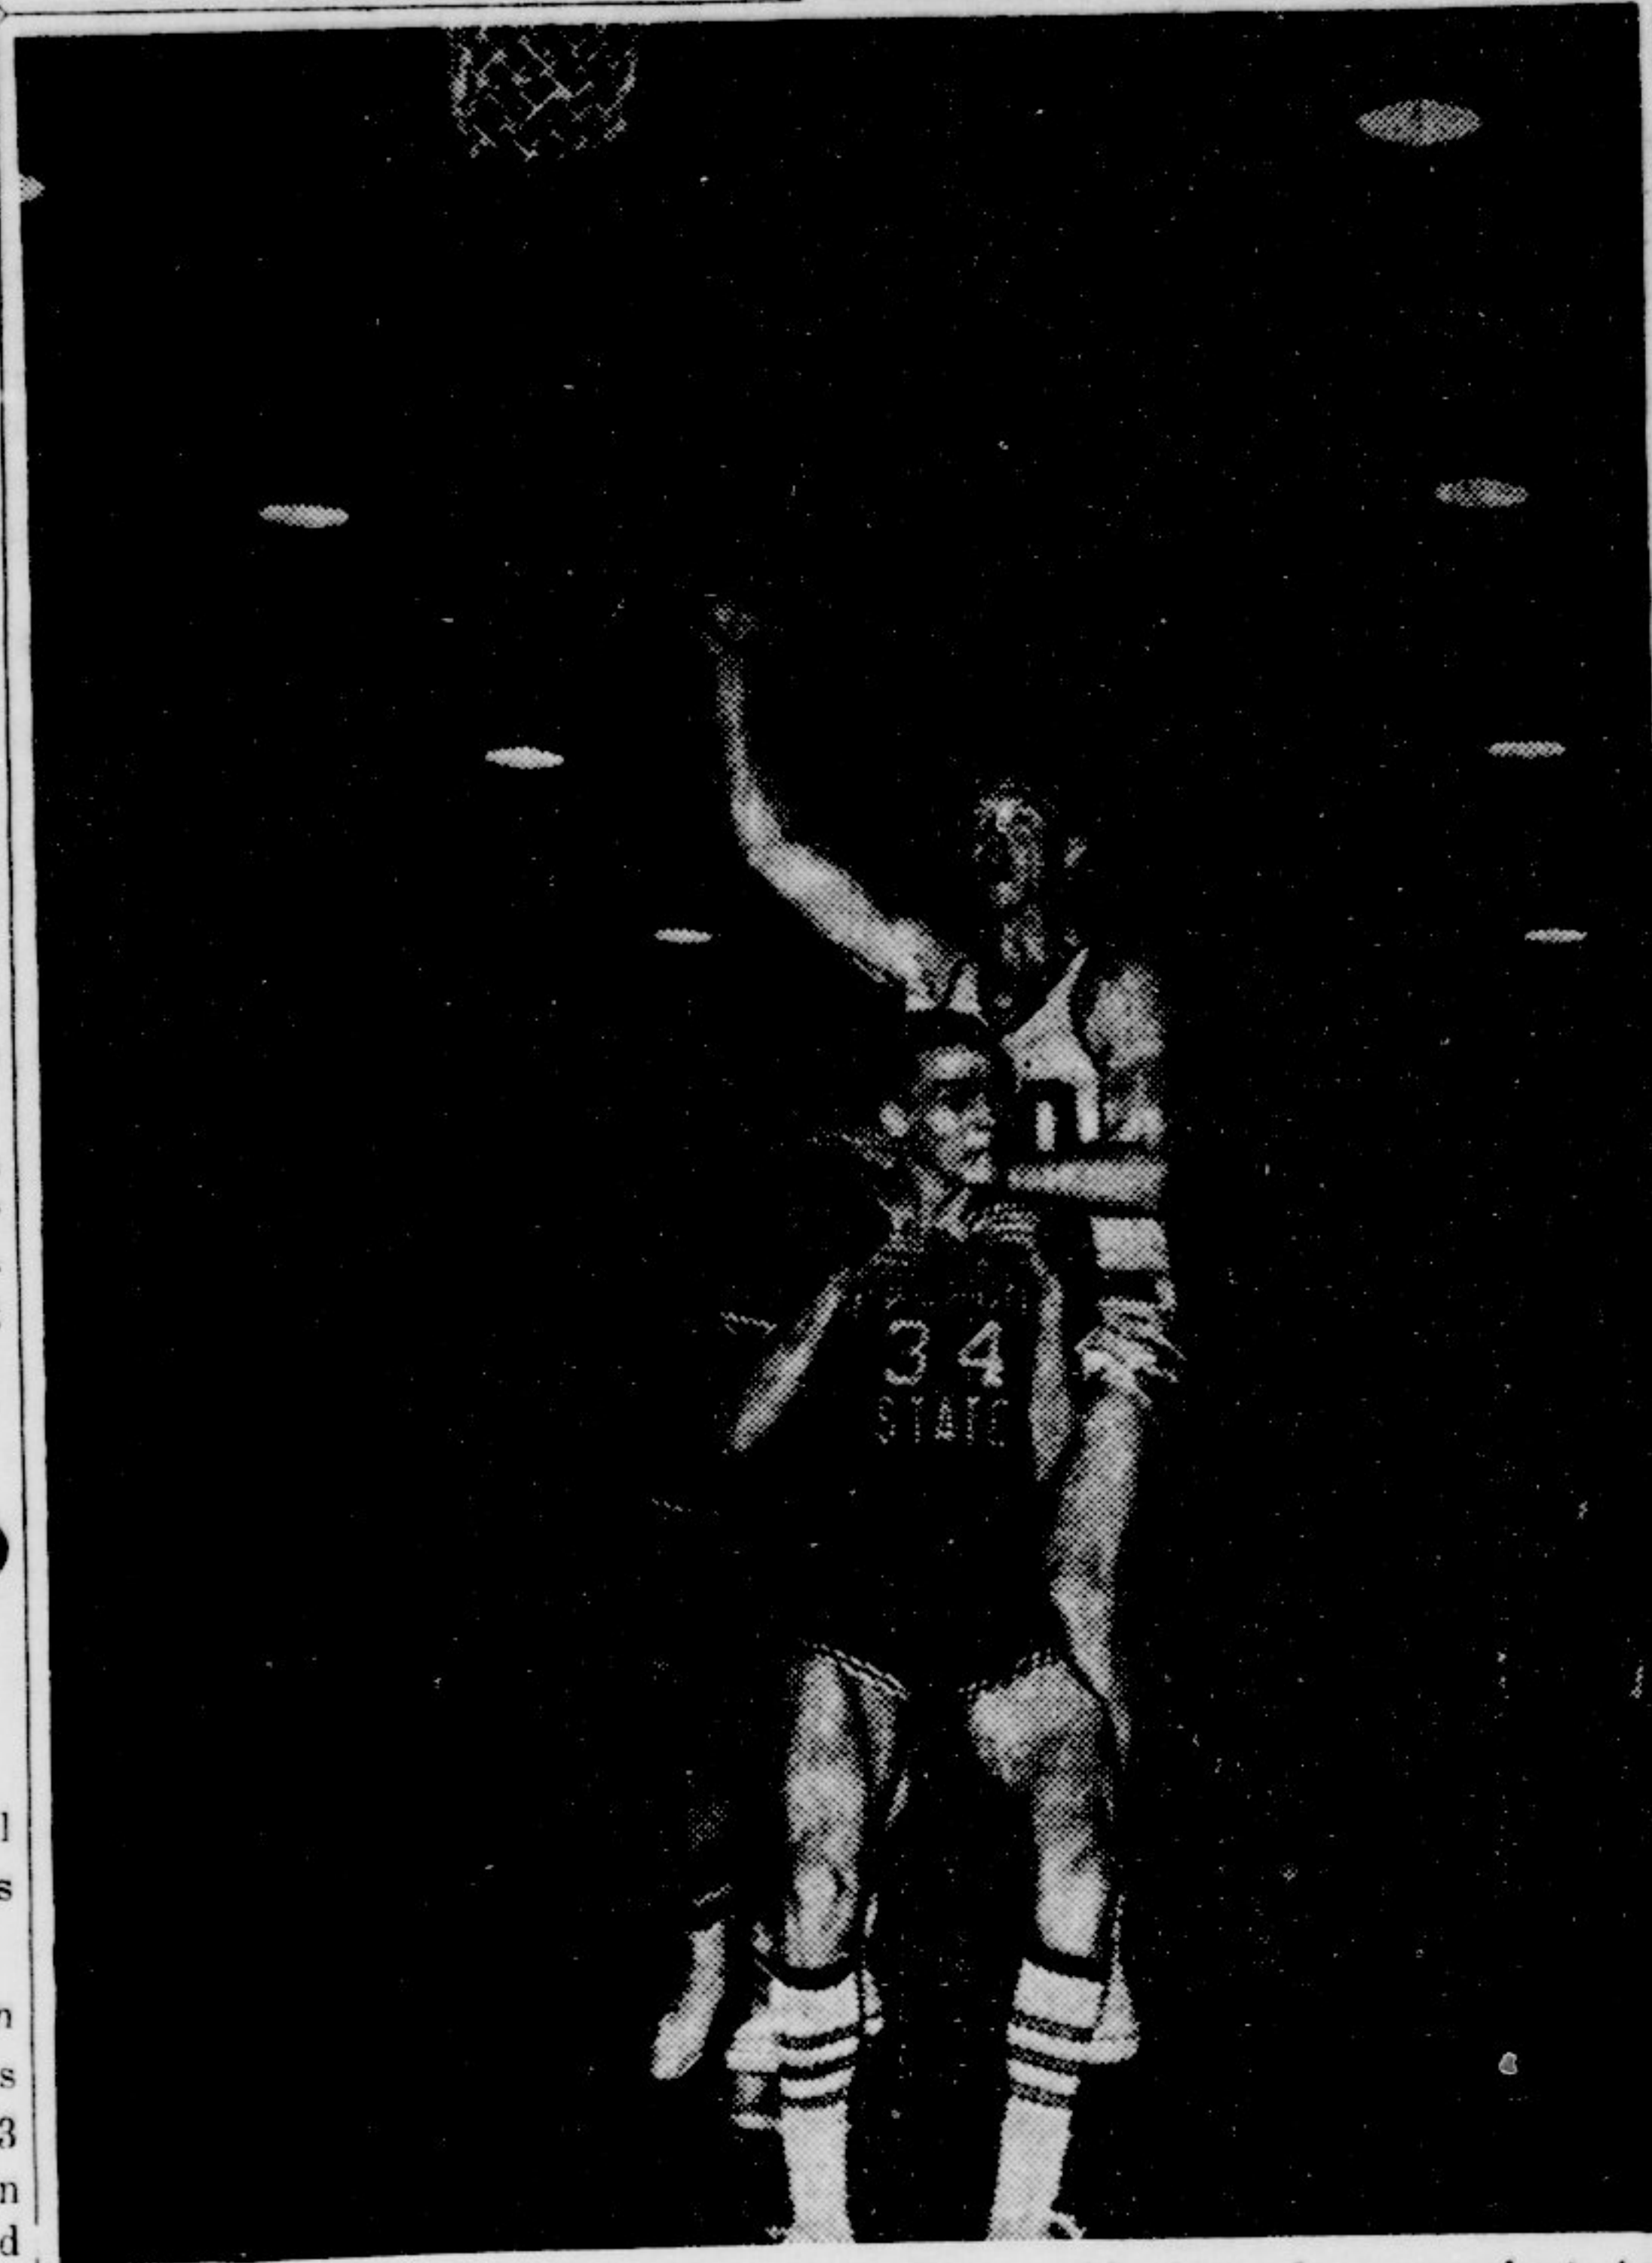

Tonight at 8:00 p.m. in Memorial Pool, the EC swimming team will play host to a strong University of Florida team. The boys from the sunshine state will invade Greenville in hopes of sweeping a match from the Bucs in route to their upcoming contest with the Tar Heel tankmen of the University of North Carolina. The Florida team, one of the best in the schools history, is the only team who has been able to defeat the strong University of North Carolina squad.

Pirate swimming coach Ray Martinez is very optimistic concerning the engagement with Florida. The Martinezmen have proved that they will be no pushover. Earlier in the season, the Buc swimmers met Carolina, Atlantic Coast Conference champions, and lost by the slimmest of margins—one point. The Pirate underwatermen have been tremendously handicapped in the past few weeks with injuries and illnesses. Team co-captain and free-style artist Jake Smith missed the exciting meet with the Tar Heels because of the flu. Another outstanding performer, Jack McCann, who is currently undefeated in the breast-stroke, has also been hampered with an illness. Coach Martinez has been working these two boys out in the past and he is confident that they will be on tap for the Florida contest.

A win for the Pirate contingent over the strong University of Florida boys would be a definite upset. But Martinez has a good squad. Also expected to share in a possible upset win are Tommy Carroll, Bob Connolly, Jeff Faucette, Jimmy Meads, Butch Edwards, Glenn Dyer, Bob Kingery, and Tommy Tucker.

The ECC-University of Florida contest was originally scheduled for tomorrow night, but upon the request of the Florida coach, the meet was moved up to tonight.

A FREE RIDE . . . Cotton Clayton hitches a ride for a layup against Appalachian Monday night. The Pirates defeated the Apps to gain third place in the loop standings.

Coach Earl Smith and his Pirate basketball team journey to Wilson tonight to battle with arch-rival Atlantic Christian College. This first meeting of these two eastern teams should prove to be an exciting contest for local fans.

The Bucs, riding high on successive defeats over Western Carolina and Appalachian, boast a 7-4 conference mark. The win over Appalachian boosted EC into third place in the North State loop. Led by All-Conference candidate Ike Riddick, that Pirate hoopsters will be out to close the gap between themselves and second place High Point. Riddick, who poured in 33 points against Appalachian, is the big gun on the EC squad. His superb backcourt play along with his ability to drive, has distinguished him as one of the better players in the North State Conference. He leads the Buc scorers with a 24.2 average in 17 games.

The Bulldogs of Atlantic Christian are trying to recover from the loss of freshman starter, Jerry Fritz. Fritz was one of ACC's leading scorers, but was lost at mid-semester due to his scholastic average. But the Bulldogs are not to be sneezed at. They hold a 3-6 won-lost conference record, including an impressive win over Western Carolina. They are tough on their own floor and will be particularly out to upset the Pirate apple-cart.

As usual, there will probably be a host of East Carolina fans attending this rivalry, and if this contest has the air of excitement that is usually prevalent when these two teams meet, the fans should get more than their money's worth.

Barring last minute changes, the starting Pirate quint should be composed of Riddick and "Cotton" Clayton at guards, Don Smith and Lacy West at forwards, and Benny Bowes at center.

Pirate Courtmen Sweep Two Wins From WCC, Apps

Resulting to spasmodic offensive patterns, the East Carolina basketball team ground out two more of its "grudge" wins over Western Carolina and Appalachian.

Friday night, the Pirates, led by Ike Riddick, swamped the Cata-mounds of WCC to the tune of 80-52, to avenge the 74-73 overtime loss to WC at Cullowhee. Paced by Riddick, once again, the Bucs came back to their stomping grounds on Monday to drop Appalachian by a score of 81-73.

Earlier in the season, the Pirates took defeats from Western Carolina, Appalachian, Lenoir Rhyne, and High Point. Since that time, the ever-improving Bucs have won "revenge" contests from all but High Point. They will be next on the EC "grudge" list when the Pirate hardwoodmen journey to High Point on February 17.

Riddick, the EC "Bread and Butter man," was the center of attraction in both wins. He bucketed 22 points against WC, and then came back to garner 33 against the Mountaineers. The scrappy Greenville kept the crowd on the edge of their seats with his startling drives and outside shots.

Against the Apps, Riddick hit on 12 out of 16 shots from the floor for an amazing 75% accuracy. Scoring on numerous layups on the Pirate fast break, which is something to behold in itself, Riddick also dropped 9 out of 10 tosses from the charity line.

Trying to overcome a 41-26 half-time deficit, the Apps were game. Several times it looked as though the mountain boys were going to pull it out of the fire, but their efforts were to no avail.

Two all-Conference selections, Don King and Rick Howe, joined forces to cut the EC lead to 46-40 with 13 minutes on the clock. But Cotton Clayton and Benny Bowes added three points to the Pirate cause to put EC ahead by nine points.

Howe and King again cut the lead to four points, but this time, it was Riddick, who started the fire. Picking up a couple of loose balls, Riddick widened the margin to 12 points. Refusing to give up, the Apps narrowed the lead to 8 points, where it remained until the final gun sounded.

CAMP COUNSELORS TO MEET

Students interested in becoming camp counselors are invited to a meeting in the gymnasium February 8 at 4:30 p.m. Sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association, a Camp Club will be organized.

Openings in organizational and private camps will be discussed at this first meeting. The club will also aid interested students in making applications for jobs and in finding jobs at camps.

Gay Hogan, instructor in the Physical Education Department, reports that if there is enough student response further meetings will be conducted to discuss camping problems and techniques. The club will require no dues. Interested students should contact Miss Hogan or attend the meeting.

Pirates Close Gap On LR, High Point

Picking a North State winner is like finding a needle in the haystack and the situation changes very little as the teams head into the final stretch of their regular season activity.

Better balanced than in many a year, North State clubs continue to roll along with a new leader almost every week. Lenoir Rhyne's 74-66 win over High Point Saturday night vaulted the Bears into the top spot ahead of the Panthers.

Although Lenoir Rhyne and High Point lead the pack, Catawba and East Carolina have caused the biggest rumbles in recent weeks. Off to a slow start this season, Catawba has moved up the North State ladder steadily since Christmas and sounded warning once again Saturday night, disposing of Elon 92-69. The Indians have posted wins over High Point and Appalachian.

East Carolina has seen its freshmen come of age and the Bucs have surged into fourth place with five victories in their last six games. Included in the winning skein has been a triumph over Lenoir Rhyne in Hickory.

Taking the biggest slide this past week was defending champion Western Carolina. The Cats found the eastern domain of East Carolina and Atlantic Christian nothing like their mountain hideout, losing a couple of games on their road trip.

The loop has a number of feature games on tap for this week and the complexion of the race is subject to form an almost new picture when the final dust dies down Saturday night.

Coach Earl Smith and his battlers journey to Wilson Thursday night for a tradition-laden game with arch-rival Atlantic Christian.

The Apps, with a busy week ahead, wind up their week's activity Saturday night, hosting Lenoir Rhyne. Giant-killer Catawba gets another shot at the "big dogs," meeting High Point Saturday.

PIRATE'S DEN

By JOHNNY HUDSON

"Look out Lenoir Rhyne and High Point." That's the chant that would have caused the walls of Memorial Gymnasium to ring Monday night as East Carolina poured it on Appalachian to capture third place in the conference.

For the rest of the season, it's Katie-Bar-The-Door for the Pirates from the eastern belt are going to be hard to sink. Three straight wins and six victories in the last seven games have given pirates plenty of reasons to drop the label of "darkhorses" from the East Carolina prize package. They now rank the Bucs as title contenders and by tournament time, the local five may rank among the tournament favorites.

Ike Riddick gets better every game and should be headed for All-Conference and All-State honors. The Greenville sharpshooter is by far the best that this corner has seen in the conference, excluding none.

Cotton Clayton, Don Smith, Lacy West, and Benny Bowes have been worth their weight in gold. The four, along with Riddick, form a closely-knit quintet. They get better with experience and there is little reason to believe that they won't be in the main scuffle come tournament time.

Despite the recent success of the Bucs, there has still been a couple of glaring weaknesses. First, the club is still lacking the big man that can take charge of the backboards. Bowes, Clayton, Smith, and West are good rebounders but have to scrap for every loose ball. Bowes, a sophomore, has been real tough in the pivot for Coach Earl Smith but lacks the height of many of his competitors.

Second, the club is faced with a definite depth problem. Charlie Lewis is the only experience reserve and he has not seen a great amount of duty. Most of the bench is made up of freshmen and Smith hasn't had the opportunity to use them in many games. His depth problem has taken added importance in recent weeks when injuries and illness cutting a deep gash. Dave Strickland, 6-5 center, has been lost for an indefinite period and Fred Fowler, Earl Fornes, and Mel Boyette didn't dress for Monday's game due to sickness.

Coach Earl Smith has done a tremendous job in building a strong club this season. Ike Riddick was the only returnee but the veteran took his left-overs, added a few freshmen, and tossed them in with Riddick for a formidable ball club. Few expected to see the Bucs come along this fast even fewer would be surprised now to see Smith's "one-year wonder" capture the forthcoming tournament. Though the headmaster, Smith, has not supplied all the brain work and sweat. Coach Wendell Carr, serving his first year here, has helped to Pirate cause considerably.

As far as Coach Ray Martinez is concerned, this is the big one tonight for his swimmers. The defending NAIA champions meet the U. of Florida in one of the few night meets of the season.

The meet was originally scheduled for Friday but was moved up on request of Florida officials. The Gators match strokes with Carolina on Saturday and wanted a little more time before jumping into deep waters with the Tar Heels.

Florida is undefeated this season although reports claim that the club is weaker. Last season it halted Carolina's long-time winning streak and was the only team to edge the nationally-ranked Tar Heel tankmen.

Jack McCann is still undefeated this season and the local driving ace of Glenn Dyer and Bob Kingery have been almost untouchable. Jim Mann, Jake Smith, Jeff Faucette, Tommy Carroll, Butch Edwards, and Tommy Tucker are a few of the other cogs that push the local water machine.

Two national champions in three years is a credit to any coach at school. The 1960 club doesn't have the depth of last season but Martinez has been very successful in utilizing his talents to their fullest extent. The boys deserve a following so try and take in the meet tonight.

Ed Emory, All-State tackle and one of the most active members of the Varsity Club, is afraid that the Alumni-Varsity game won't get enough plugs this spring.

With a smile that spreads from ear to ear, Emory contends that this will be the year that the Varsity meets its match. Ed is joined by some other Alumni spokesman such as Lee Atkinson, James Speight and Kapp Zehring.

Recent years have seen the Alumni boast of their many talents at each time finish on the short end. Yet, they appear to be bursting from the seams with former stars this year—the best collection yet. The game which is scheduled for February 20th, should be a thriller and will offer students a glimpse of the 1960 grid forces.

One of the feature concerns of Emory and his Varsity brethren are the selling of tickets for the classics. Let's set aside the next week as Ed Emory's week so everybody buy a ticket from the "mau-mau." How about that.

Kilpatrick Cops No. 1 Spot In Mens Singles Tournament

Norman Kilpatrick hit his way through the defense of Charles Munn to win the championship in the finals of the Winter Quarter Men's Singles Table Tennis Tournament, conducted January 27 in the College Union.

Kilpatrick's steady backhand and forehand drives, and quick backhand flicks, pierced Munn's blocking defense, 21-10, 21-18, 21-11. Kilpatrick's fast moving attack was in trouble only in the second game when Munn's well placed block shots forced Kilpatrick to miss four backhand drives in a row, to tie the score at 13-all. However, Kilpatrick slowed the pace of his attack and finally took the game 21-18.

Munn, making his second straight appearance in the men's finals, had to win his semi-final match the hard way again, as he stopped Zull Bailey's hard hitting backhand attack 25-23, 21-17, 27-25, 21-12. The tourney's most tense play found Bailey leading 2 to 1, and 25-24 in the fourth game, when Munn hit two forehand kill shots through Bailey's defense, and then forced him to miss a block shot, to win 27-25. In the final game, Munn's steady play was too much for the 1959 doubles champion, as Munn took the match 21-12.

In the other semi-final play, Kilpatrick and Charles Holliday exchanged drives and counter-drives in a good looking match, which saw Kilpatrick forced back on defense 15-20 feet from the table several times. The champion finally won 21-14, 21-12, 21-13 by hitting through Holliday's backhand defense. The absence of Fall Quarter Champion Ike Riddick gave the semi-finalist an easier draw than expected, but the tourney nevertheless had the largest draw of any men's singles tournament held in over a year.

Other top tournament matches were Bailey's hard fought win over the chop defense of Albert Davis and Munn's 21-11, 16-21, 21-12 victory over Hubert Leggett. The steady play of Davis had given him a small lead in his final game with Bailey when Bailey used a series of big topspin lobs, which forced Davis to try enough inaccurate forehand smashes to win the game and match 21-17, for Bailey. Another close match was James Branton's defeat of Steve Beck, 9-21, 21-15, 21-18 in first round play.

Earl Marshburn won the consolation event over Ray Watson 21-13, 23-21, after having rallied to defeat Sammy Watson in the semi-final 21-16, 7-21, 21-15. Marshburn had lost his regular singles match to Davis, 21-10, 27-25.
