Playhouse Presents Anouilh's 'Antigone'

East Carolina 'First Premiere' In McGinnis Next Wednesday

Premiering next Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. in McGinnis Auditorium will be the East Carolina Playhouse production of Anouilh's Antigone. East Carolina's first Greek tragedy will run for three days through May 12.

The plot of Sophocles masterpiece involves Antigone, the heroic daughter of King Thebes. Antigone insists on burying her brother who was named a traitor to the City of Thebes. In carrying out plans Antigone risks her life because this is in violation of the ancient custom forbidding burial to enemies and traitors. The conflict lies between Antigone, who is tied to her family, and Creon, who believes that the laws of state are the most important. The climax of the tragedy, the scene of the greatest contrast, is the encounter between the two characters. The feeling of contrast is heightened by the chorus who represents the loyal people of the city. Throughout the play the chorus portrays the "typical man on the street."

Directing his first Playhouse production, Claude Garren has a cast of thirteen participating in this unusual Sophocles drama. Starring as the beautiful heroine is Lois Garren, who has performed in two of this year's past productions. Completing the conflicting twosome is Greon portrayed by Dr. H. D. Howe, to be remembered for his dual role in Separate Tables. Sanford Peele is cast as Haemon, Antigone's love interest and Creon's son. In the role of Ismene, Antigone's beautiful but weak sister, is Sue Stocks Taylor, who appeared in the last Playhouse production, Separate Tables. Both characters play important parts in the fate of Antigone.

The chorus is being handled by Tom Hull and Dr. Ralph Rives. Portraying the nurse is Charlotte Donat and Ray Tolley, Claude Taylor and Jim Roberts as the three guards. Rounding out the cast are Bob Christensen as the messenger and Shirley Morse in the role of Eurydice.

One of the most difficult and interesting sets has been arranged.

'Rebel' Art Editor Displays Graphics

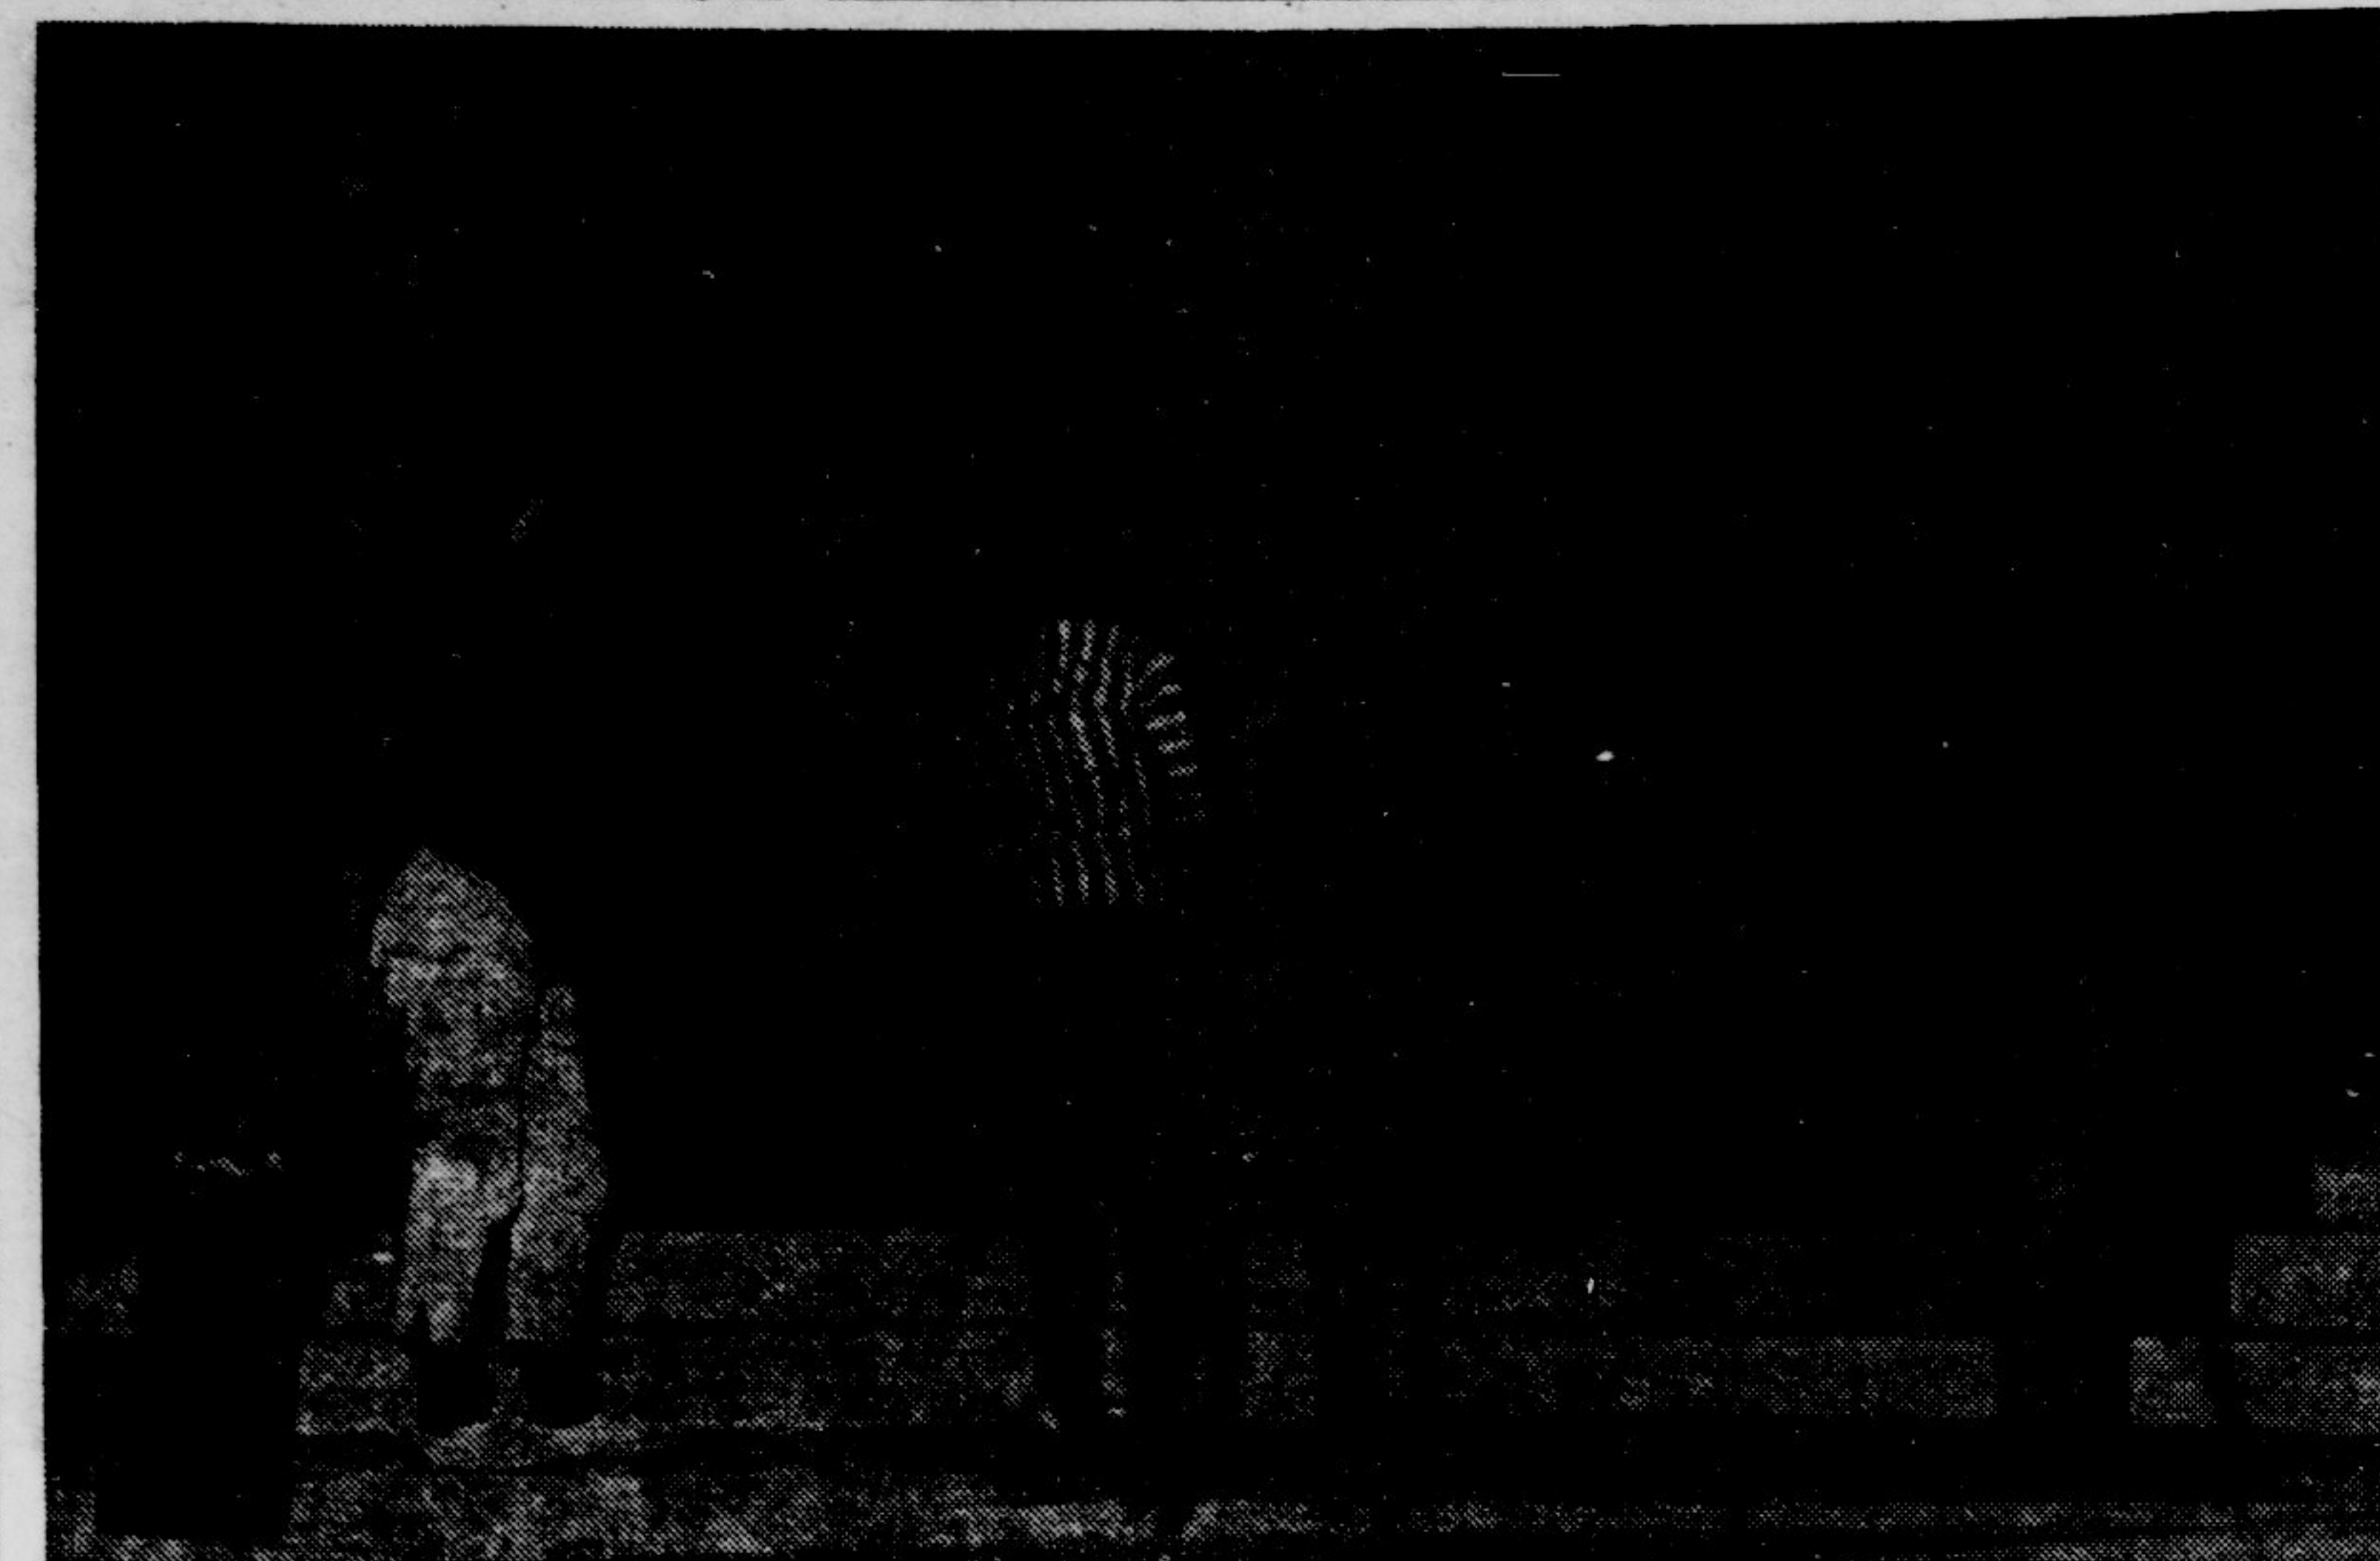

Nelson Dudley, senior student of art, is now staging an exhibition of his work in the Kate Lewis Gallery, Rawl building, at East Carolina College. The show, sponsored by the department of art, will be on view through May 6.

Included in the exhibition are woodcuts, etchings, and lithographs. Three of the works were previously displayed at the Twenty-second and Twenty-third Annual State Art exhibitions in Raleigh. They are "Forms of Water," a color woodcut; "The Lamp," an etching; and "The Resting One," a lithograph.

Dudley is majoring in art and specializing in graphics. His work, which has received favorable notice both on and off the campus, encompasses both a figurative and a non-objective approach to graphics.

He has acted during 1960-1961 as art editor of the student literary magazine "The Rebel." A number of his works have appeared in the publication. He is also vice president of the college Art Club and a member of the honorary art fraternity Delta Phi Delta.

The East Carolinian needs copies of the March 29 issue of the newspaper (issue number 23) for its files. The first student to bring the issue to the office in Wright Building will receive a reward of one dollar.

"Father, you must not let Antigone die!" cries Haemon as he denounces his father for his action against Antigone. H. D. Rowe listens to the words of Haemon as portrayed by Sanford Peele, right. Mr. Rowe plays the role of Creon, King of Thebes, in the Playhouse production of "Antigone," which will be in rehearsal and will open in McGinnis Auditorium on May 10.

Jazz Concert Highlights Program Of Senior Events

By MARILYN LONG

Graduating Seniors can look forward to a number of events planned for their honor in the remaining weeks of their college career.

The first in a series of tributes to Seniors is an SGA sponsored afternoon concert May 12, featuring the music of Jimmy McPartland and his orchestra.

McPartland, one of the leading pianists of the century, features a program as was played in the Dixieland Club of New Orleans. The record-star's music ranks among some of the greatest sounds to emerge from the deep South, and some of his recordings are now collectors' items.

Following the jazz concert, all should be in a mellow mood to enjoy a delicious steak supper at 6:00 p.m. in the South Cafeteria. During the supper, Dr. Jenkins will offer the seniors some serious and sobering thoughts.

To return the program to a lighter note, "The Humorous Aspects of Graduation" will be shown by the speaker Sam Burdy. This will be followed by the awards presentations: outstanding Senior, two outstanding Seniors from each department, and the "P.H.I. Degrees."

Next, George A. Nelms, Director of the Foundation for Alumni Affairs, will speak on the privileges and responsibilities of the future alumni. Then the class gift will be given and will close the evening.

Music for the Senior Banquet will be presented by the Music Department.

Notice To Seniors

All students who plan to graduate in May are urged to inform each instructor so that grades will be in on time to the registrar's office, announced Dr. John H. Horne, Registrar. This is necessary in order for the students to graduate.

Governor Praises ECC At County 'Salute' Banquet

"East Carolina College has created for itself an unchallenged role of leadership in the field of higher education in Eastern North Carolina," Gov. Terry Sanford told a Pitt County Salute to E.C. gathering last week. The governor spoke at a banquet in the New South Dining Hall which climaxed the county's salute to the college.

Gov. Sanford said, "The scope of the work done here at E.C. can be seen and the excellence judged to some degree by pointing out that this College trains more teachers than any other college in the State of North Carolina and the fifth in the Nation."

"From its humble beginnings, East Carolina College has grown in stature as it has grown in size. Tonight it is listed on the accreditation lists of 10 major accrediting associations. One of every two faculty members here has earned a doctorate."

The presentation of a plaque expressing Pitt County's appreciation to East Carolina College and awarding of a $500 scholarship were a part of the county's salute to the college.

Chamber of Commerce president Ed Waldrop, in presenting the plaque, said, "I shudder to think what Pitt County would be like if suddenly you were picked up and moved from our midst. I'm afraid that it would leave a deep void which we could never fill."

The plaque reads: "Pitt County celebrates East Carolina College on its vigorous, intelligent, constructive growth, in education services. Its great promise of expansion in the years ahead inspires prouder appreciation and support. Presented April 26, 1961 by citizens of Pitt County."

In accepting the plaque on behalf of the college, Dr. Jenkins said, "I would indeed have to be a great orator to thank all the people for all they are doing for the college."

Sue Worthington, a sophomore from Winterville was recipient of the $500 scholarship given by the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co.

R. W. Howard, senior vice president of the bank, in presenting the scholarship said that a Scholarship Committee was set up by the college and the committee chose Miss Worthington as an outstanding Pitt County student to receive the award.

Presentation Of College Awards Scheduled For Thursday, May 11

"This year's Awards Day will be a gala affair" commented Jayne Chandler, chairman of the special events committee. In the past, Awards Day was held in Austin Auditorium in the late afternoon. "No one came, even the students who were to receive awards," she added. This year, classes will be excused at 10:00 am to avoid the previous afternoon conflicts.

Awards will be presented on a new, highly selective basis. Only the persons who have contributed greatly to a certain group on campus will be recognized with an award.

Jim Speight and Dr. James Tucker are working with Jayne to make the program a successful one. The EC Concert Band, the College Choir, the glee clubs and the ROTC Color Guard will present the program. This is the first year that entertain-

Jim Speight stated, "This year's Awards Day will be different and entertaining. All students are urged to attend and join in the recognition of fellow students who have excelled."

Persons receiving awards will not be informed until the last possible moment. Approximately 30 awards are to be presented. Departmental awards will be presented by the department head to the individual student who is considered most outstanding. Three SGA awards, one publication award, two fraternity awards, and one sorority award will also be announced at the special morning event. Additional organizational awards will be presented and the senior "Who's Who" students are to be recognized.

Queen Kathryn Reigns Over Greek Bacchus

By DAVE NANNY

The New Carolina Warehouse shook uneasily Saturday night, April 29 with vibrating sound emitted from "The Most Explosive Band In The World,"—that of the Fabulous Count Basie. Clad in semi-formal attire and possessed by light spirits the fun-loving Greeks thrived on festivities.

Entertainment began at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon with Tom Gwaltney and his "Stars of the Virginia Beach Jazz Festival." Featured with Gwaltney was singer Ann Rayburn who sang seductive numbers like "You Make Me Feel So Young," "Lover Man," and "Love For Sale."

Also featured with Gwaltney was "Jeep" Bennett who played such tunes as "Undecided," "St. Louis Blues," "Tangerine," and the Newton Thomas Trio with "Love Walked In," "Spring Is Here," and "Swanee River."

The afternoon event took place in the Farmers Warehouse with the Greeks relaxing on blankets spread over the cement floor surrounded by bottles, ice, radios, and paper cups, and dressed in bermudas, sweatshirts, t-shirts and drinking hats.

Students were divided in their opinions of Gwaltney. The afternoon performance was rather slow at the beginning and no immediate response was evident. Most thought him quite good, but some turned thumbs down.

But in the evening the screaming trumpets of Thad Jones, Eugene Young, Leonard Johnson, George Coin, and blaring trombones of Quintin Jackson, Henry Coker, and Benjamin Howell along with guitarist Freddie Wayne, tenors Bud Johnson and Frank Foster, altos Frank Wess and Marshall Royal, baritone Charles Faulk, singer O. C. Smith and the popular Johnny Payne at the drums gave leader and pianist Count Basie ample reason for a wide grin of pride. His band completely captivated the Greeks. This was jazz and no dissenter could be found.

Extra tables and chairs were brought in to accommodate the crowd which was estimated at better than 1500.

Bacchus Queen
Climaxing festivities at intermission was the crowning of the first Bacchus Queen. The Queen was chosen from seven representatives each from a campus sorority. Making Greek history was vivacious Kathryn Crumpler. Dressed in a purple chiffon cocktail dress, Kathryn, a senior, was so shocked that she "... almost fell off the stage!" Kathryn was crowned by Buddy Weis, IFC president, and together they led the last half of festivities with a figure dance.

Kathryn, in the past three years, has collected other outstanding honors. She represented the Alpha Phi Sorority. She has been Miss Jarvis Hall, Sweetheart of Delta Sigma Pi, and the AIFROTC sponsor.

Mr. Basie, when asked for his impression of Greenville and the East Carolina students, said only that it was a typical college group. In reference to the warehouse he stated, "It's too drafty and large; the acoustics are bad."

Many students stayed after the close of the event to meet members of the band. All Negroes, most of them had college degrees, were possessed of immense personal charm, and seemed as it were, to be a group of public relations men. When asked for their thoughts on the south all repudiated the question except one who with an easy gesture pointed to the men's restroom which was marked White Only. Said he, "I feel that a man is a man no matter what."

The week-end was a glamorous occasion. "It is," said one young lady, "an affair to be remembered."

Pitt County Honors EC; Challenge Accepted

Last week Pitt County saluted its largest industry—East Carolina College. The salute, sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees, was intended to express the county's appreciation for the college.

Greenville merchants, in showing their appreciation, contributed greatly to the salute. On Monday and Tuesday of last week free gift certificates from various merchants were distributed on campus. These numbered over 1000 and ranged in value from one to five dollars. At the open house on Tuesday business establishments sponsored for the students free coffee and doughnuts in the morning and free drinks, candy, ice cream and cookies in the afternoon. An estimated 150 business establishments (at least 90% of the local retailers) participated in the event.

This, the first tribute of its type paid to the college, will not be the last. The Jaycees plan to make it an annual event; probably not a salute each year but a similar type program.

In expressing its appreciation and promoting a harmonious relationship with the college, Pitt County has done well. Our thanks and appreciation are extended to George Coffman, president of the Greenville Jaycees, Clarence B. Tugwell, chairman of the salute, and all of the merchants and business men who contributed to the salute which undisputedly was successful.

We are proud to be thought worthy of a salute—to accept the compliments generously paid to us—and to accept the challenge to continue to be an asset to the community and to all of Eastern North Carolina.

Regulations Revision Holds Disadvantages

Currently, the Chairman of the Women's Judiciary and the Dean of Women are revising a number of regulations for women students. A probable change in regulations next year will involve freshman dating privileges and study hours.

Tentatively, freshmen women will not be allowed to date Monday through Thursday except to college entertainment, religious functions, library, etc. The hours between 7:00 and 10:00 pm on the above days will be closed study in freshmen dormitories. This is to be effective throughout the entire freshman year.

For freshmen women who need their study time budgeted and supervised for them, this will suffice to meet the need, (that is if it materializes into an effective regulation). But for freshmen girls who do not need their study time budgeted for them, this seems to be just another confining regulation.

In addition to the primary idea behind this rule it is hoped that prestige will be given to upperclass women. If this is the idea, we fear the point is not well taken. Taking privileges from one group does not add to the prestige and honor of another.

A proposed change in riding privileges will affect upperclass women as well as freshmen women. Freshmen women will be allowed to ride on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday beginning with the Fall Quarter.

Upperclass women will be allowed to ride at any time, regardless of grade average. Henceforth, riding privileges will not be determined by a 'C' average. Bravo!

As long as 'riding' has the spotlight, why not dispense with the signing out on special permission cards when riding off campus in the daytime? Returning to the dormitory at all hours of the day to sign out to go uptown or other places in Greenville can be a tremendous bother.

There are many occasions when this is very inconvenient. Riding off campus in the daytime, it seems to us, should not necessitate signing out on special permission cards. This is a revision that, if made, would be long overdue.

Student Trial HUAC Hearings Draw Criticism

(UPS)—A key witness in the trial of University of California student Robert Meisenbach last week contradicted House Committee on Un-American Activities accounts of student violence in last spring's HUAC San Francisco hearings.

Under defense cross-examination, Patrolman Ralph Schaumleffel acknowledged that fire hoses had been turned on before—not after he encountered Meisenbach.

The HUAC accounts, contained in both a printed narrative report by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and the widely-circulated film "Operation Abolition," declare that night stick attack on the officer "touched off the flame of violence."

Contradiction
Schaumleffel maintained, however, that Meisenbach did attack him, despite defense attempts to prove that the officer's injuries came from a fall on the slippery marble floor. The officer contradicted himself in relating his account of the incident as the trial moved into its second week in San Francisco City Hall.

On direct examination the patrolman maintained that Meisenbach raised his arm with billy in his hand, as though he were about to strike. So, he said he had "ducked my head, hunched my shoulders, and threw myself at Meisenbach." On cross examination, the officer changed his account of the attack and told the jury that Meisenbach "advanced toward me with the billy."

Question Raised
The police officer's admission that the student did not attack him until after the hoses had been turned on raises another question about the Committee's film, already under heavy attack for alleged distortions. The film insists that a student did attack a police officer to incite the riot. But the defense provide the court with a series of photographs which show the tall, bespeckled student leaning against a wall far in the rear of a crowd of students, as police turn on the hoses.

'Outstanding Professor' Expresses Appreciation

To the Editor:
I wish to express my gratitude to the students for selecting me to receive the Outstanding Instructor Award. The honor is deeply appreciated and will always remind me of the great generosity of the students at East Carolina College. My association with young people over the years as a teacher has been a rewarding and satisfying experience.

I wish to thank the Ward Vending Company for the beautiful plaque, the attache case, and the academic apparel.
Sincerely,
Hubert A. Coleman

Political Science Professor Says Eichmann Trail Serves People's Interest In Justice

(ACP)—Current world-wide controversy concerning the Eichmann trial is reflected in collegiate press commentary.

"The question . . . is not, does the Eichmann trial violate existing international law but does the Eichmann trial serve humanity's interest in justice and only Israel's conduct of the trial can answer that question." This is the conclusion of Dr. Curt F. Beck, assistant professor of political science, University of Connecticut, writing in DAILY CAMPUS.

Concerning the suggestion that trial be by an international court, he explains:
". . . the fact simply is that there is now no international court with criminal jurisdiction over such a case as that of Eichmann. It would take many years to create one.

"It should be borne in mind that international law, unlike domestic law, is constantly undergoing great changes. The cataclysms of the twentieth century have no precedents. War crimes and murders have occurred of course in the past. But genocide, the murder of entire nations, practiced by Eichmann on a monumental scale thanks to the application of modern scientific methods is a new experience

"Little More Space To Live"

Student Cheers About Recent Editorial

Dear Editor:
The editorial in last week's paper pertaining to rules and regulations of the alcoholic consumption of students deserves merit. Maybe some more "hell-fire and damnation" type editorials directed to the rules establishing committee will give this institution's women a little more space in which to live.

I can cite from personal experience, a time when, while a staff reporter for the East Carolinian, I was advised by a member of the administration, that, in essence, there was no need in the paper's investigating the problem at hand—that being the ever popular bermuda short issue.

Several weeks ago I visited on the campus of the University of North Carolina, and our party escorted a young lady from that institution for the weekend. Needless to say, the members of the party from EC were amazed at the simple procedures incurred in signing out for the weekend. There was no special letter from the girl's home directed to the Dean telling of all the whys and wherefores of the trip. All that was needed on the simple form (a simplified equivalent to EC's Off Campus Permit) was the name of the "specific destination," and name of the hostess with whom she was to spend the time. In short, this means that the girls at UNC are allowed to go or to come as they personally see fit in comparison to the letter writing and detailed forms of EC.

Thus the question: Why not a similar privilege allowed to the Junior and Senior women students of EC as it is the case of the upperclass women of UNC?

It is our feeling that the majority of the student body wants a change in the regulations. The above situation is just one of the many bottlenecks which needs the attention of a policy committee's investigations. However with the administration's experimenting with new ideas, a solution to these problems and the many others at hand, may be dealt with sooner than has been one in previous years.

Our psychology department teaches that there is some method of satisfaction for most needs. East Carolina College's rules and regulations for female students have definite needs. Will these needs be satisfied?

Yours very truly,
James B. Kirkland, Jr.

Travelers to outer space may have to grow their own food en route, reports the May Reader's Digest. It is estimated that a space traveller will need about seven pounds of food and water per day. Since this need would make long trips impractical, scientists are studying the possibility of using sunlight to raise nutritious, fast-growing algae during flight.

Last year, for the first time in history, personal income paid Americans averaged a billion dollars or more a day.

Students Reveal Integration Views

(UPS)—The results of a canvassing of the student body of the University of North Carolina during Brotherhood Week last month has revealed that, over 80 per cent of the students questioned (1879) at that University would continue to patronize local theaters if they were open to persons of all races.

The poll, conducted by a volunteer student group, was intended to find out if claims of theater owners that their business would fall off if they were to integrate were valid.

Students in each living unit were given a questionnaire, the completion of which was optional. Four alternatives were presented:

1. I request that the Chapel Hill theaters be open to all persons without discrimination.
2. I am not strongly in favor of opening the theaters to all persons, but would continue my patronage.
3. I disapprove of the opening of the theaters to all persons, but would not withdraw my patronage.
4. I strongly oppose opening the theaters to all persons, and would withdraw my patronage in protest.

Reports the UNC Daily Tar Heel, "Although the poll can by no means be considered conclusive, it does indicate that the number of segregationists willing to forego the often dubious pleasures of the local flicks is much smaller than the managers would lead us to believe."

Of the 1879 returned forms, 888 (47.3 per cent) indicated the No. 1 choice requesting the opening of the theaters to all. 28.18 per cent checked the No. 2 alternative indicating that they would continue patronizing the theaters. 14 per cent checked the No. 3 choice, indicating opposition to the policy but stating that they would continue patronage.

The paper also cites, as indication that theater seats are "growing cold" under the present segregated arrangement "the recent practice of offering free discharge to faculty and faculty groups during prime evening hours of the Carolina Theater."

Jethro's Proud

'Them Boys Done Good'

By ROY MARTIN

The two men stood near the fence in the black-robed figures began to file on the field. "Listen to that there music, Jethro, ain't that somethin'?" Jethro, his eyes clenched tightly in the corner of his mouth, turned to his companion. "God knows, Herman, this is shore a bunch better than the there carnival music we heard that day we was in Raleigh . . . don't you think so?"

The sun moved from behind the clouds of clouds. The two men lifted their hands to shield their eyes from the glare. "Uh, the sun shore is mighty bright there, Jethro, reckon we ought to move over there in the shade?"

"Well, we can, Herman, but I shore would like to stand here so I can catch a glimpse of 'ol Billy when he comes by."

"Well, all right . . . Jethro, do you want a Pepsi? There's a station over there across the road." "Naw, I don't believe I care for one—but why don't you go get you one if you want to?" Jethro answered, shifting his eyes to the other side of his mouth.

"I just thought you might want one," Herman mumbled.

"Our boys shore have done mighty well up here at this school," Jethro said, taking the cigar from his mouth and flipping the ashes behind him.

"Yep, you're shore right about that, Jethro . . . Yes sir, boy, they've shore got their old men to shame. All them grades . . . I shore wish I'd had the chances that our boys have had!"

Jethro turned and propped himself up against the fence with his arm, repeating "Yep, you're right there, Herman."

Herman moved away from the fence and elevating himself on his toes exclaimed, "Look there, Jethro, there goes Billy . . . and there's J. T. over there, right behind him . . . do you see 'em?" Jethro dropped his cigar to the ground, crushing it with the heel of his shoe, and moved quickly to the side of his companion "Where are they? . . . yeh, see 'em now, over there by that girl with that ribbon around her."

The line had stopped. The two men began walking towards the bleachers which were set up at the end of the football field. "I shore am mighty proud Herman," Jethro said as he walked. Herman stopped for a second to adjust his tie, saying, "I know how you feel Jethro; I feel the same way." The music began again; this time the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" signalled the start of the procession. "Jethro, let's see if we can see them boys of ours again," said Herman turning to view the line again. "Look there, Jethro, you see that man beside Billy? Look, he's taking him by the arm . . . now he's walking up to your boy . . . he did the same thing to him . . . Yes sir, them boys shore have done good . . . they're going to get a special honor."

Count Basic Not Enough

By PAT HARVEY

Not even the Fabulous Count Basic could keep the students away from the Pirates Jamboree this past weekend. Although there were many sisters and brothers here for the expensive Bacchus weekend, many left in favor of a weekend of liquid rather than music. Gripes are heard everyday about the students' activities fee is spent; but very few are griping about this ten bucks.

Undoubtedly, the SGA has had their fill of incompetent officials. After reading the list of grounds for impeachment, it looks as though they will have very little trouble accomplishing their feats. The idea sounds quite reasonable but one part seems a little too steep. Impeachment charges can be brought against an officer with a petition signed by one third of the senate members. Any grudge could be taken care of and considering the way most of the members like to vote, the so-called law breaker could be released unfairly. One half the senate sounds much more reasonable.

After reading the controversial letters concerning "Operation Abolition," practically the entire student body should be there. Publicity such as this is just too much to ignore. Everyone will want to go and many as was stated in one of the letters, will be impressed; but let's hope we are impressed by the photography rather than other materials.

Very seldom is a department praised for their work; but in the case of the Art Department, praises should be given. Although most of the art work is far above the layman's conception of what good art is, just the fact that they are working is enough to make them an outstanding group. In fact, they seem to be more interested in their classroom field than any of the other departments.

The World Affairs Institute is coming to our campus and as usual an unusually interesting program will be missed by many of the students. We are the people, the youth of America, who are supposed to hold the reins of the future; but we seem to know less about what's going on in the world than our less fortunate peers. Perhaps we should try to devote an hour of our busy schedule to at least one of the discussions.

Where Do They Go?

Each year an estimated one million Americans vanish—most of them deliberately. Lt. John J. Cronin, former chief of New York's Missing Persons Bureau, says in the May Reader's Digest that the chief reason for such disappearances is "to escape a problem which looks overwhelming." Spring and fall are the peak seasons for vanishing. More men vanish than women, and married women disappear more frequently than single ones.

Campus Broadcasting Entertains, Educates

By JEAN PEACE

AT THE CONTROLS . . . Campus TV workers produce the college TV courses.

The voices of WWWS, Campus Radio and TV, originate from the same studio but they are entirely separate organizations.

Jerry Winberry, under the supervision of Miss Rosalind Roulston, serves as station manager of Campus Radio. Jerry works with a staff of 56 "interested" student volunteers. Aiding Jerry is the assistant manager James Shuman and program director, Chuck Lancaster.

Campus Radio operates on both AM and FM. Charlotte Donat is program director of the FM phase which is all educational. Tapes are played and classical music broadcasts are made each evening.

Chuck Lancaster is in charge of programming the AM shows. "AM radio," explained Jerry Winberry, "is strictly for college entertainment. Request shows and popular music is characteristic of the AM station. We try to satisfy the campus radio listeners . . . play what they want to hear."

A poll was taken on campus concerning radio listening. Campus radio captures 2/3 of the total of the listener's preference.

The staff is separate from FM. Broadcasting is carried on 22 hours daily.

Self-Supporting

The AM station is self-supporting and also supports the FM station. The radio announcers are not paid. "We just enjoy radio work," commented Jerry Williams, an announcer. "I think it adds a great deal to EC and will continue to do even more for the school in the future."

James Shuman commented, "You might say our purpose is to train, entertain and educate." In the next four years it is hoped that EC will have a communications school.

At present, space is needed for growth. Plans are now being made to occupy the entire east wing of Joyner Library.

Fast Growth

Growth has been fast and lasting. The FM station began broadcasting activities in 1954. AM followed in 1956. Since that time there has been no decline, only advancement.

Jerry Winberry stressed that anyone may audition, and interested persons can add much to campus radio. Commented Jerry, "I would like to thank the students as well as the staff for cooperation and support without which accomplishments would be few."

TV Staff Employed

Walter Johnson is president of the TV Guild at EC which carries on the livelihood of campus TV. Dr. Corine Rickett aids Walter in conduction of the activities.

The TV courses offered at EC originate from this station with students producing the show. Unlike radio, these students are employed under the self-help plan. They are the closed circuit workers. The campus TV staff includes twenty-five, and they produce the three TV classes now being televised.

Recently a new show, which relates only campus news has been inaugurated. Jerry Winberry serves as producer, and Bob Parsons serves as news commentator. Any campus news or announcements can be sent to the station for broadcast.

The TV workers expressed much enthusiasm about the new show and hope that it will mean a step forward in a variety of shows offered.

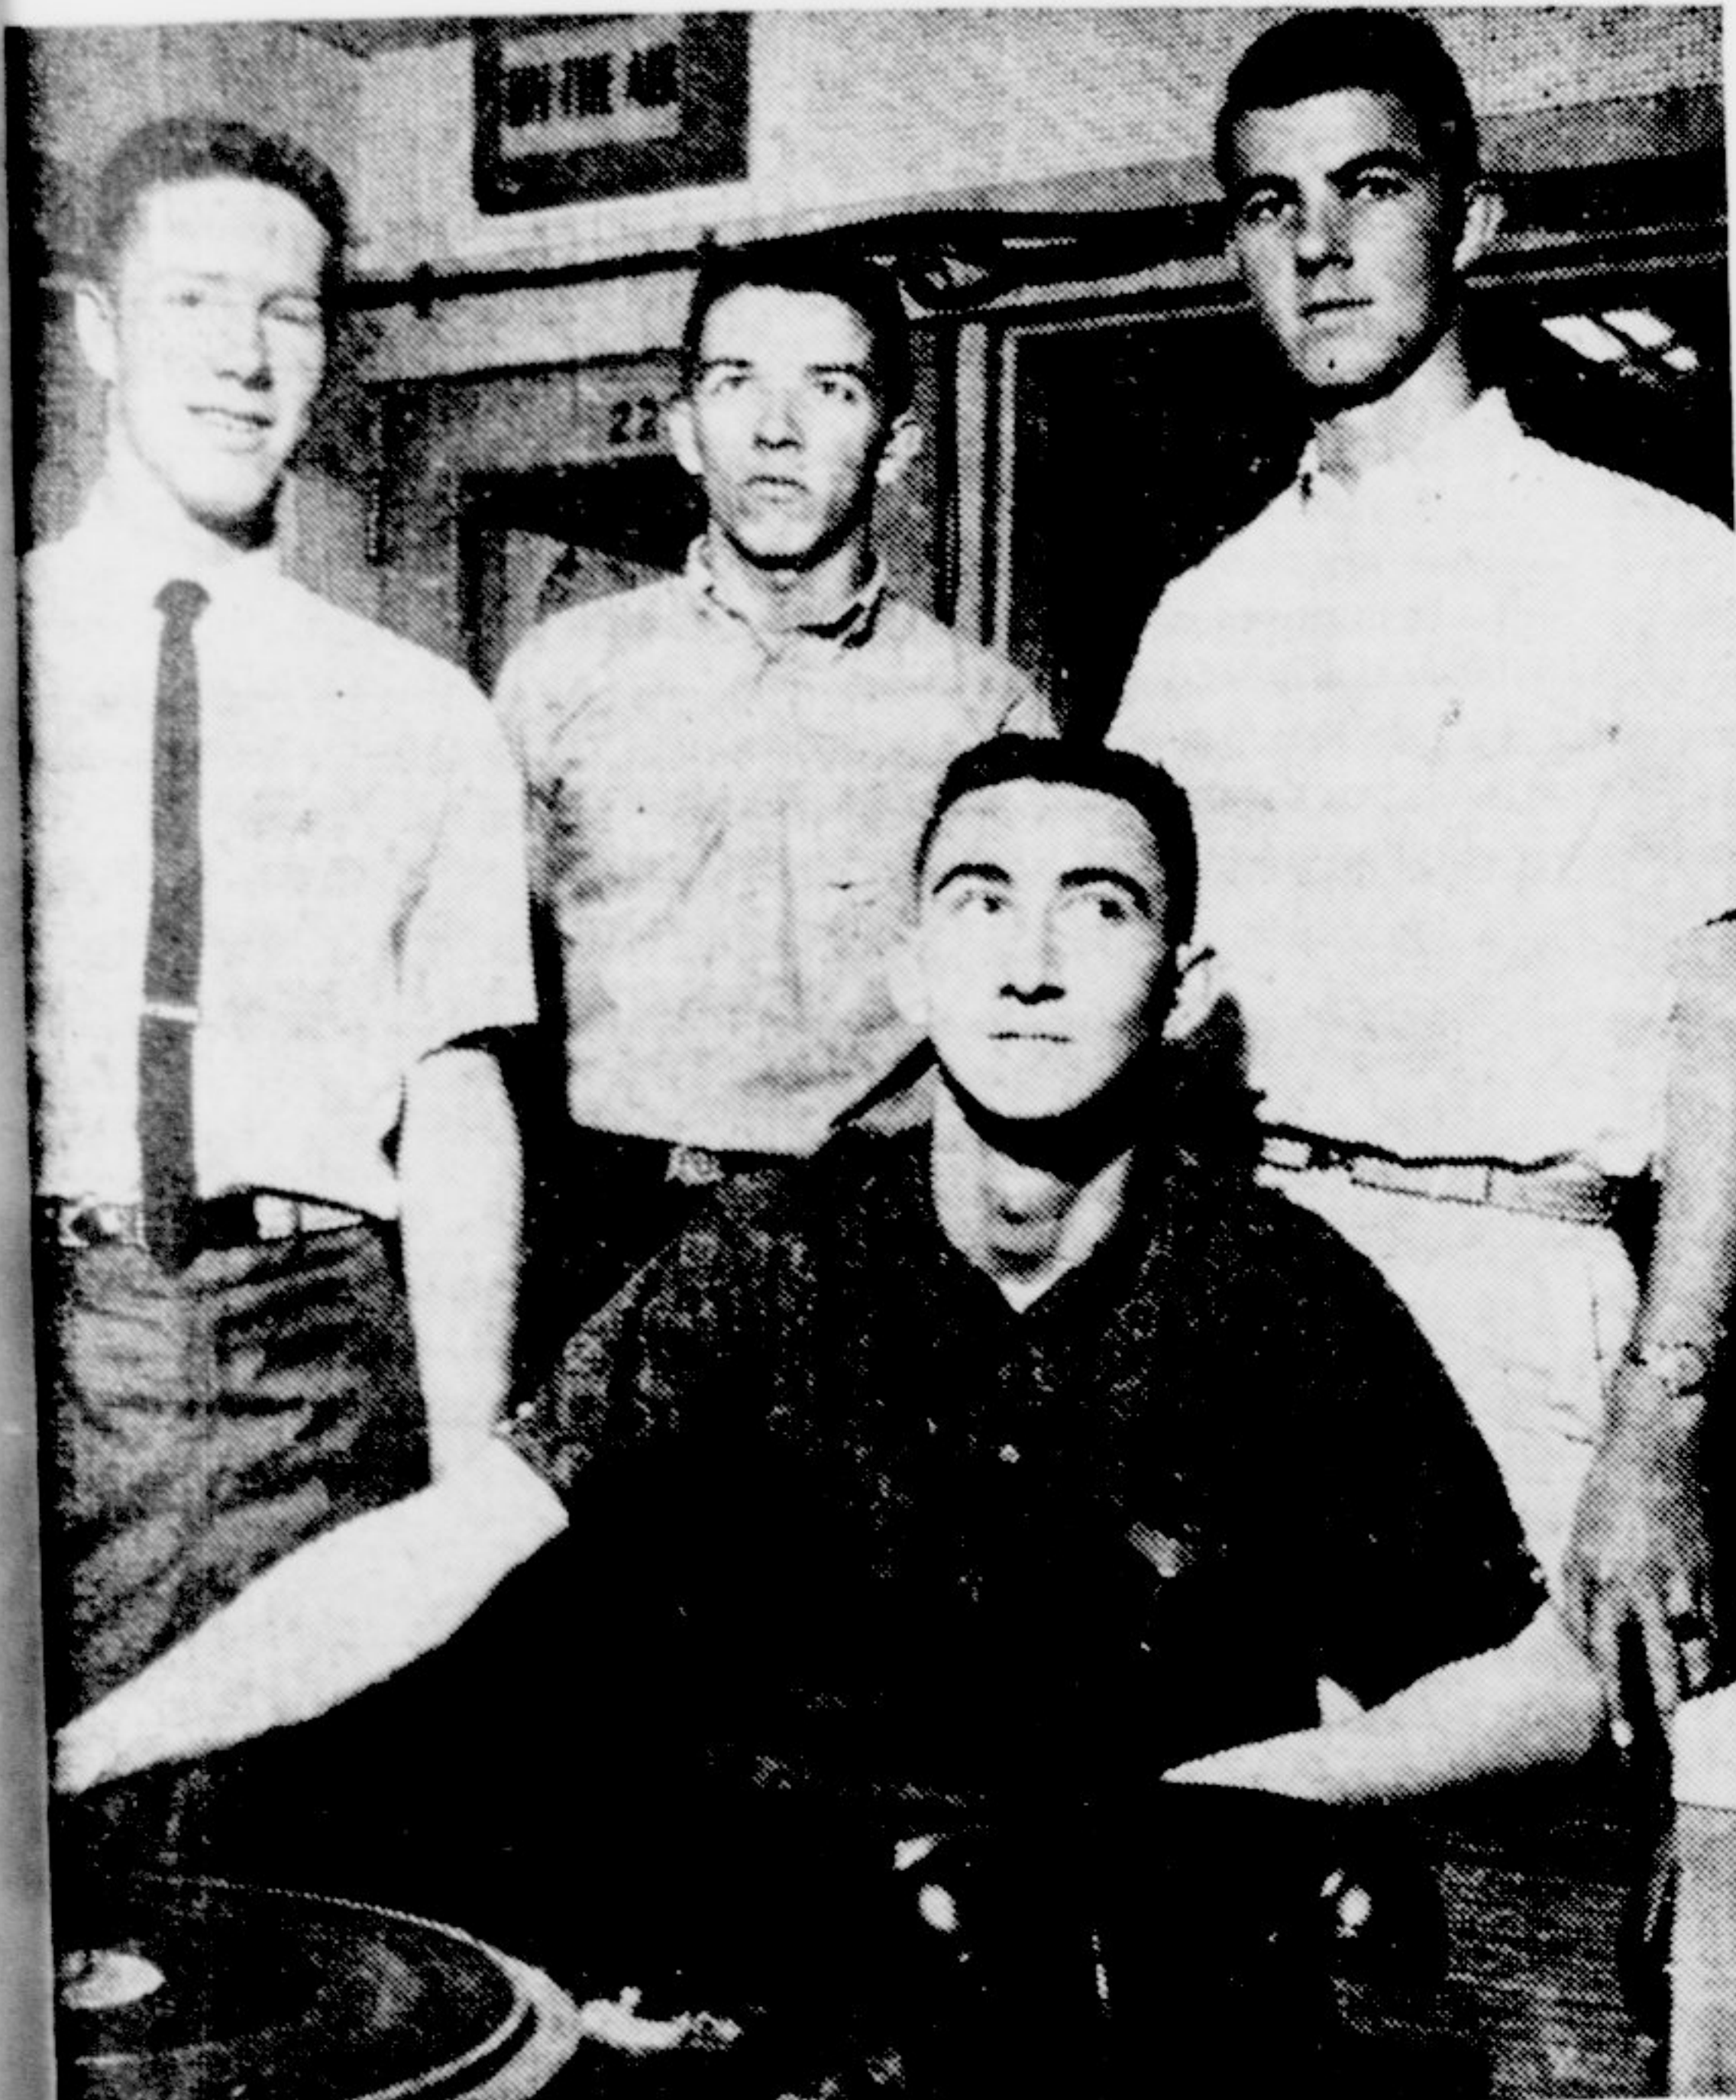

More Space

Walter plans for expansion. "We need not only to have more space, but also more programs of drama and variety. Our closed circuit area will be expanded next year also."

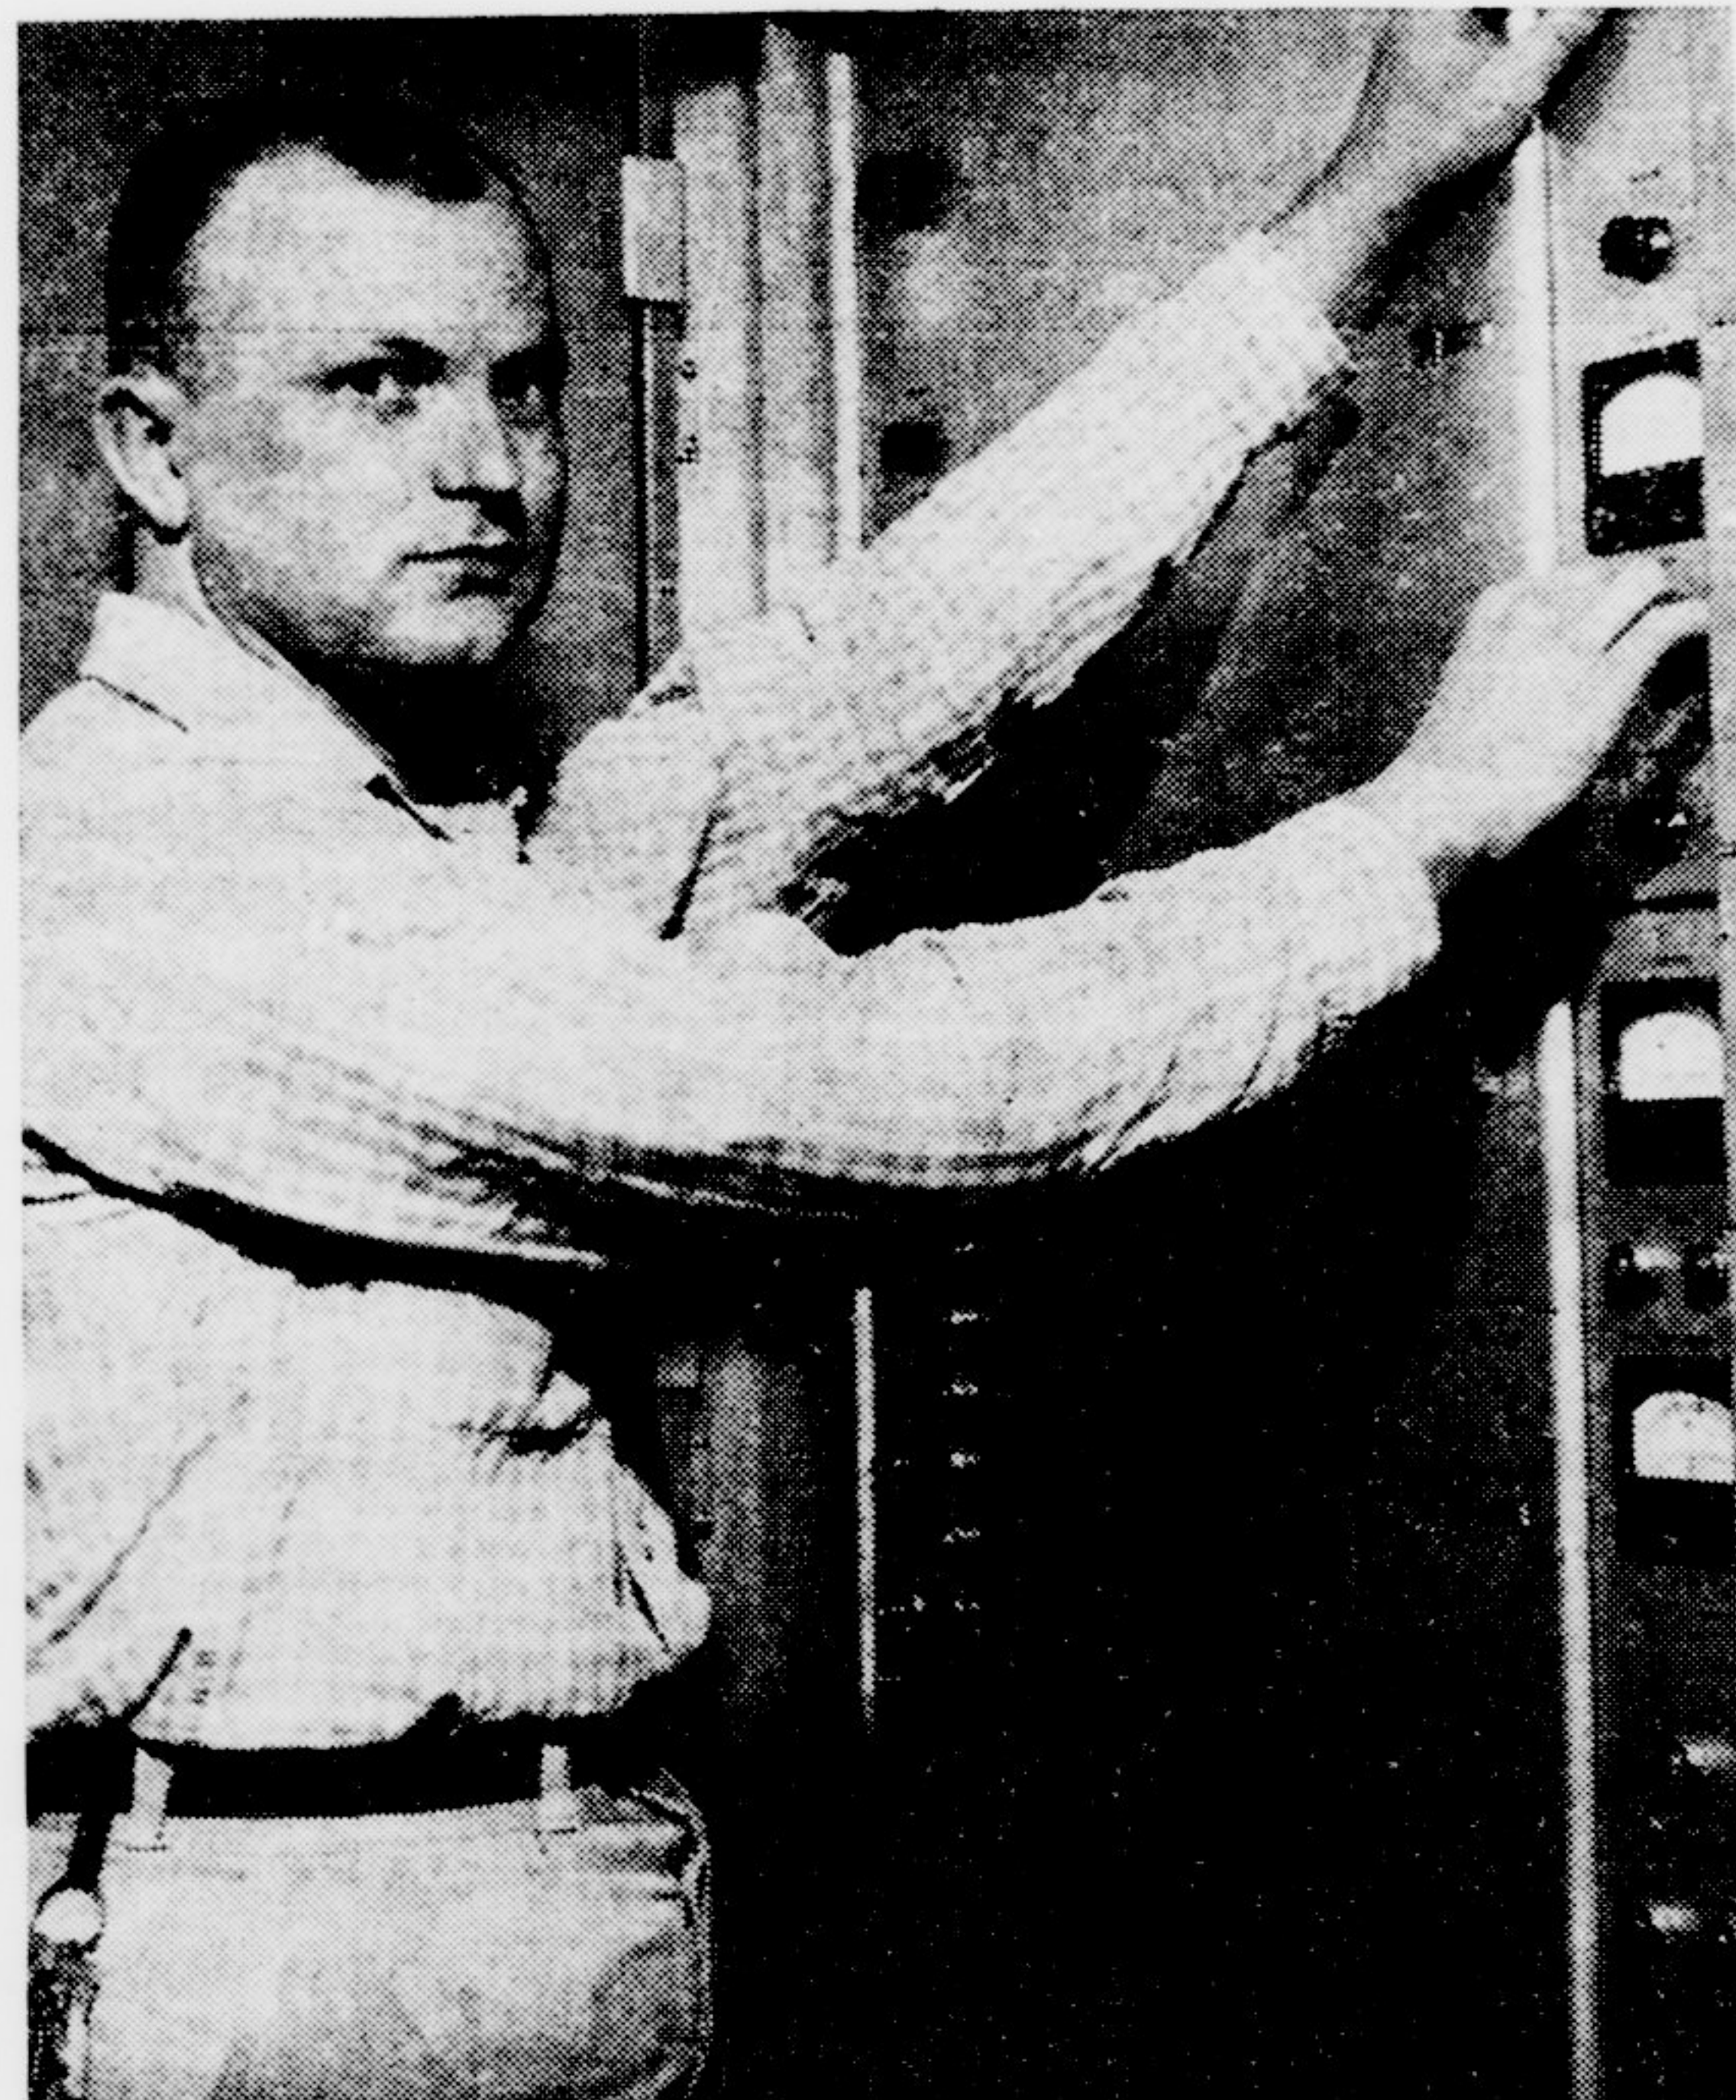

Campus TV has great potential as an educating organ here at EC. We are growing and will continue to grow with support."

Planning Board Finds Jobs For Returning Peace Corps Volunteers

The Peace Corps has established a Career Planning Board to help returning Volunteers find jobs at home. Top leaders of business, labor, government and education have already agreed to work with and serve on the new Board.

"Volunteers must come home to the United States with a good prospect for a good job," Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver said recently. To accomplish this, the Career Planning Board was established. Board members now include:

Ralph Lazarus, President of Federated Stores; Joseph Beirne, Vice President of the AFL-CIO and head of Community Services and President of the Communications Workers of America; Roger Jones, Undersecretary of State for Administration; Benjamin C. Willis, Chicago's General Superintendent of Schools and President of the American Association of School Administrators.

"These men," Shriver said, "and the others who will be associated with the Board in the future, will give their time, energy and talents voluntarily to develop appropriate job opportunities for all Peace Corps Volunteers returning home."

Under the plan, a returning Volunteer may consult with the Board about his career. If a Volunteer requests help in finding a job, the expert in his chosen field will assist him in locating work.

Shriver said he hoped that some Volunteers would desire to remain in Government service after completing their Peace Corps assignment. Others, he said, may choose to apply for positions with the Peace Corps staff in Washington or become field supervisors.

Individual Board members already have indications from business concerns interested in hiring returning Volunteers. These firms reason the selection and training process plus the maturing experience of the manitarians overseas service will prepare Volunteers for rapid advancement.

Turmoil Creates Instable State

(Editor's Note: The following article is from the News, student newspaper at Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Georgia.)

(ACP)—"The eye of a hurricane is a vacuum of calm. We inside are not beset by torrential rains or winds that wreck destruction.

"We are yet a part of the phenomena and can hear the not-too-distant threatening disturbance—'Two-four-six-eight, we don't want to integrate!'—Jesus died to make men holy, let us strive to make men free. Don't shop at Rich's! And we can see the black-faced effigy tossed in the turbulence of a mob of our contemporaries.

"Thus the realization of our involvement in the whole should puncture our calm of complacency. 'We cannot remain aloof, untouched by the bitterness raging about us. We sense the timeliness of the poet-prophet Wordsworth: 'But this is a passion over-near ourselves, Reality too close and too intense. And intermixed with something . . . of scorn and condemnation personal.

"Separate but equal,' the legal appeals based upon the Constitution's tenth amendment, interposition, and pupil-placement—all of these are but tombstones marking the South's path of retreat. 'We have witnessed the slow but inevitable decomposition of a body—a body of manners, mores and discriminations. The Holmes-Hunter vs. Danner decision has translated 'in-avoidable' into 'now.' 'Stripped of the slim chances of final appeal and the irrationality of closing state institutions, the finality of the court order, 'Now,' confronts Georgia.

OLD GRADS NEVER DIE

In just a matter of weeks many of you will be graduating—especially seniors.

You are of course eager to go out in the great world where opportunities are limitless and deans nonexistent. At the same time your hearts are heavy at the thought of losing touch with so many classmates you have come to know and love.

It is my pleasant task today to assure you that graduation need not mean losing touch with classmates; all you have to do is join the Alumni Association and every year you will receive a bright, newsy, chatty bulletin, chock full of information about all your old buddies.

Oh, what a red-letter day it is at my house, the day the Alumni Bulletin arrives! I cancel all my engagements, take the phone off the hook, dismiss my chiropractor, put the ocelot outside, and settle down for an evening of pure pleasure with the Bulletin and (need I add?) a good supply of Marlboro Cigarettes.

Whenever I am having fun, a Marlboro makes the fun even more fun. That filter, that flavor, that pack or box never fails to heighten my pleasure whether I am watching the television or playing back euchre or knitting an aghan or reading Mad or enjoying any other fun-filled pursuit you might name—except, of course, spearfishing. But then, how much spearfishing does one do in Clovis, New Mexico, where I live?

But I digress. Let us return to my Alumni Bulletin and let me quote for you the interesting tidings about all my old friends and classmates:

Well, fellow alumni, it certainly has been a wing-dinger of a year for all us old grads! Remember Mildred Cheddar and Harry Camembert, those crazy kids who always held hands in Eoon II? Well, they're married now and living in Clovis, New Mexico, where Harry rents spearfishing equipment and Mildred has just given birth to a lovely 28-pound daughter, her second in four months. Nice going, Mildred and Harry!

Remember Jethro Brie, the man we voted most likely to succeed? Well, old Jethro is still gathering laurels! Last week he was voted "Motorman of the Year" by his fellow workers in the Duluth streetcar system. "I owe it all to my brakeman," said Jethro in a characteristically modest acceptance speech. Same old Jethro!

Probably the most glamorous time of all us alumni was had by Francis Macomber last year. He went on a big game hunting safari all the way to Africa! We received many interesting post cards from Francis until he was, alas, accidentally shot and killed by his wife and white hunter. Tough luck, Francis!

Wilma "Dadsays" Macomber, widow of the late beloved Francis Macomber, was married yesterday to Fred "Sureshot" Quimby, white hunter, in a simple double-ring ceremony in Nairobi. Good luck, Wilma and Fred!

Well, alumni, that just about wraps it up for this year. Keep 'em flying!

Old grads, new grads, undergrads, all agree: The best new number cigarette in many a long year is the King-size Marlboro. Marlboro Cigarettes. Marlboro ahead!

LUCKY STRIKE PRESENTS:

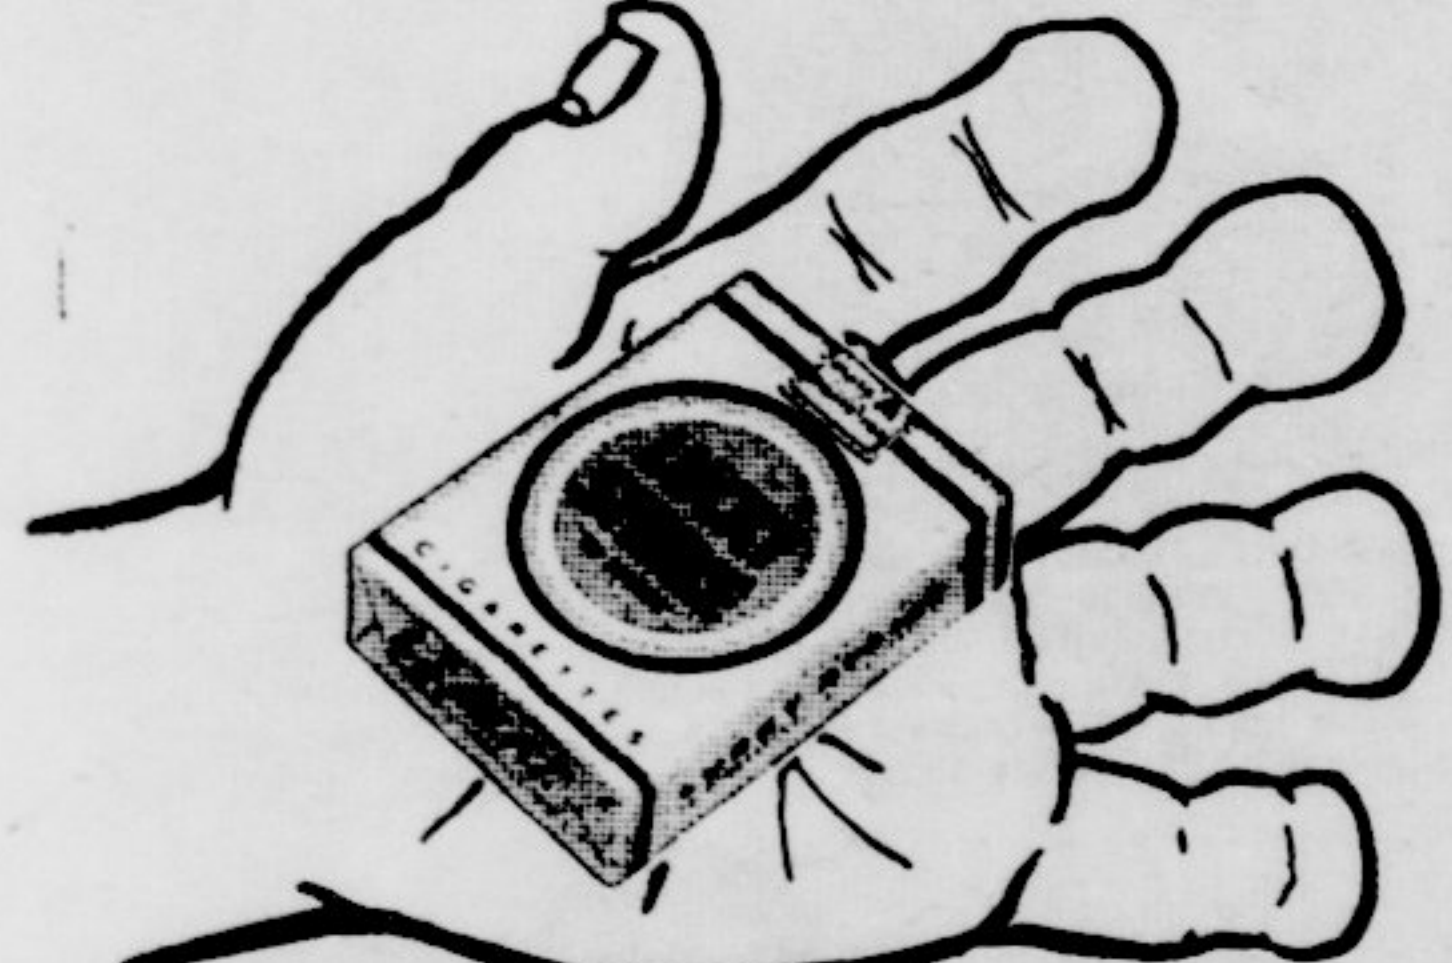

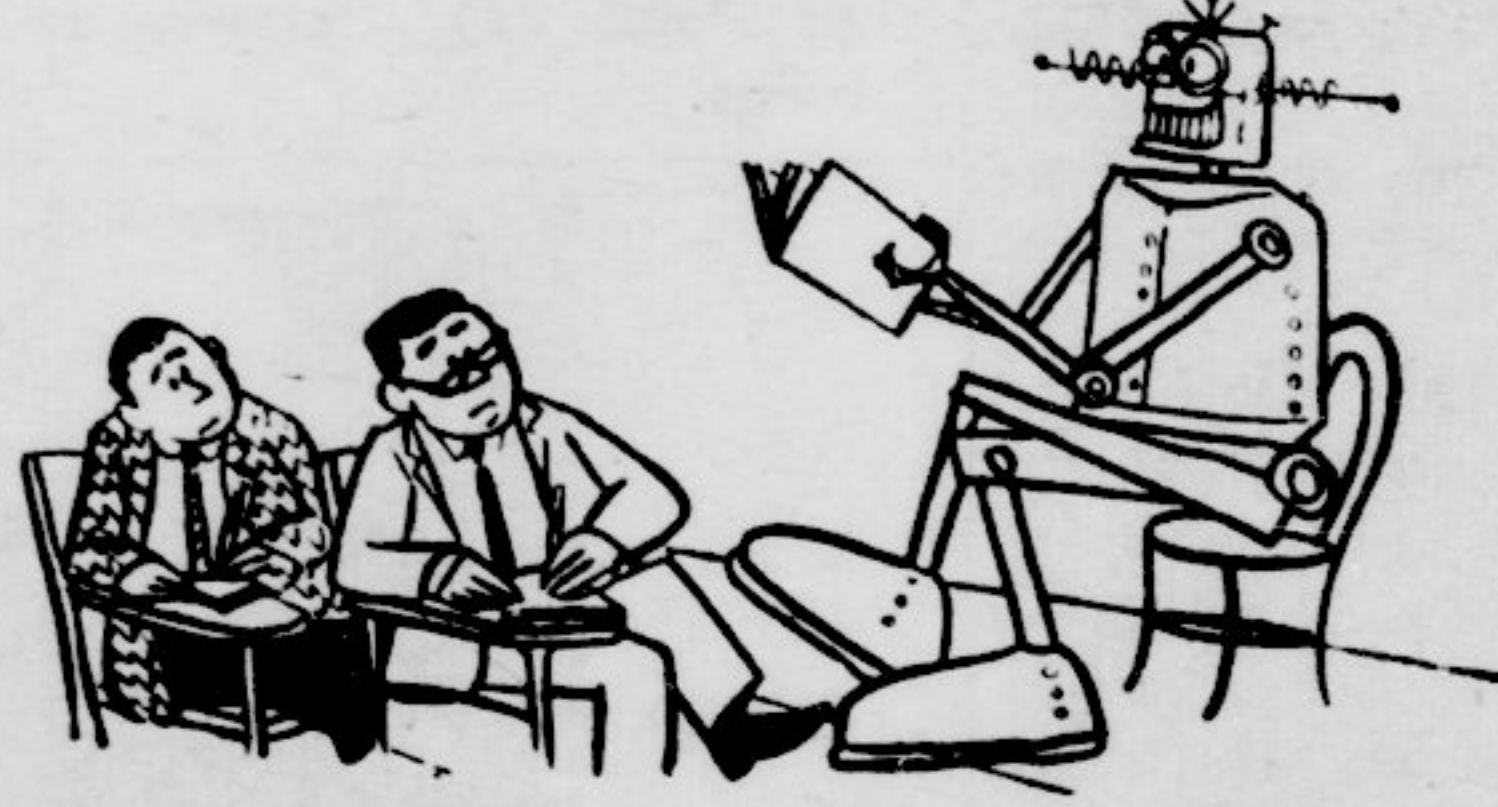

DEAR DR. FROOD:

DR. FROOD'S THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: BEWARE OF SUBLIMINAL ADVERTISING!

LUCKY STRIKE LUCKY STRIKE LUCKY STRIKE LUCKY STRIKE LUCKY STRIKE LUCKY STRIKE LUCKY STRIKE LUCKY STRIKE LUCKY STRIKE

Dear Dr. Frood: I've been reading a great deal about automated teaching devices. How long will it be before they come up with machines to replace professors?
Professor

DEAR PROFESSOR: Just as soon as they get one that can rap the knuckles of a sleeping student, give humiliating answers to foolish questions and spring surprise tests whenever it happens to be in a bad mood.

Dear Dr. Frood: My problem is fat, stubby fingers. As a result, I am exceedingly awkward with my hands. My manual dexterity is so poor, in fact, that I can't even get a Lucky pack open. What can I do?
Fingers

DEAR FINGERS: Simply strap ordinary sewing needles along both of your index fingers. Now cup the Lucky pack in your hands, grasp the little red tab in your teeth, and yank. Next, place the pack on a flat surface and secure it between two unabridged dictionaries. Then, with the right-hand needle, carefully, carefully carve a one-inch-square opening at the top right-hand corner. Finally, place the points of the needles firmly against the sides of a Lucky and lift. That's all there is to it. A word of warning though: Try to be careful when shaking hands.

Dear Dr. Frood: In the four years I've been at this college I've done some pretty horrible things. I am guilty, for instance, of [redacted] into and around the home of Professor [redacted]. I'm also ashamed of [redacted] the Board of Regents, and completely [redacted] the campus policeman's [redacted]. But the worst thing I did was [redacted] after hiding all night in the [redacted]. Can I, in good conscience, even accept a diploma from dear old [redacted]?

DEAR [redacted]: You can if you send $500 in unmarked bills to Dr. Frood, Box 2990, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N. Y. If you don't, I'll print your letter without the little black lines.

Dear Dr. Frood: Don't you think it's wrong for a boy and girl to marry while they're still in school?
Soc. Major

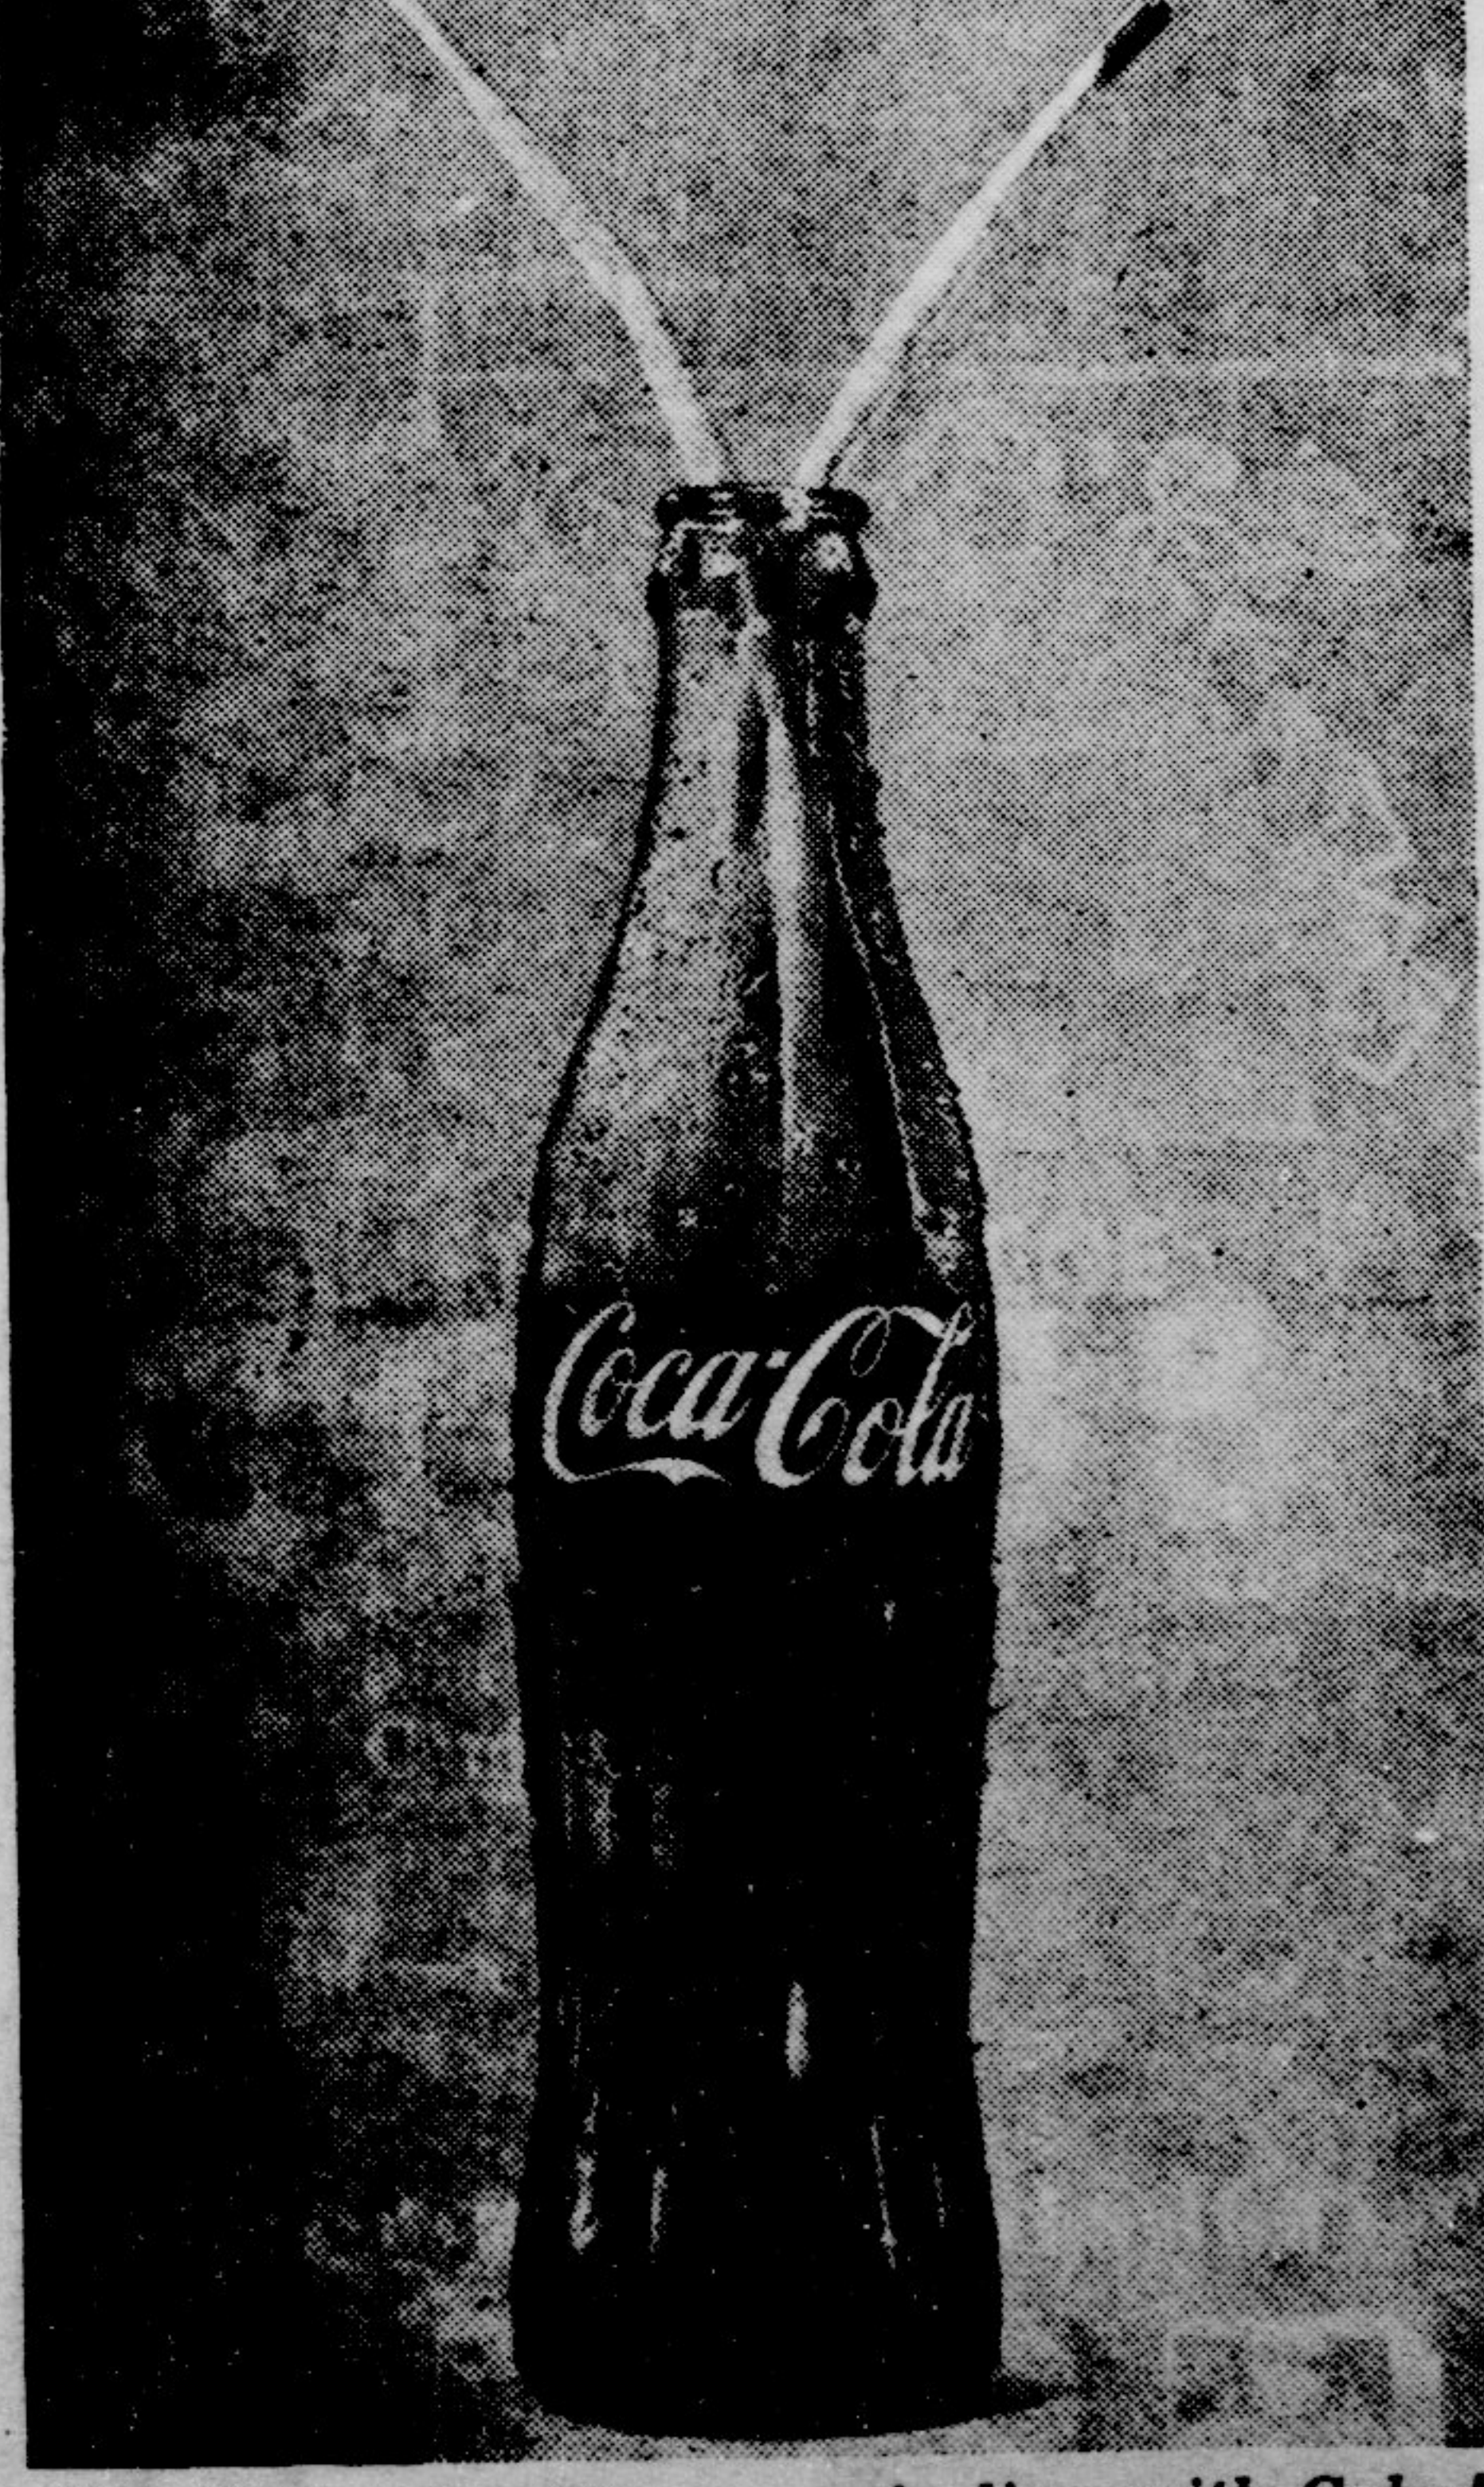

DEAR SOC.: Yes, they should at least wait until recess.

THE HANDWRITING IS ON THE WALL, says Dr. Frood. Or, more exactly, on the blackboard. It's appearing on college blackboards everywhere: "College students smoke more Luckies than any other regular." Why is this statement showing up on college blackboards? Because I am paying agents to put it there. For you must remember that Luckies are the cigarette with taste—the emphatic toasted taste. Try a pack of Luckies today.

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!

EC's Best Athletes
During the 1960-1961 campaign the Buc athletic teams have produced some athletes who have been nothing short of sensational, to say the least. During the football season it was versatile Glenn Bass, Clayton Piland and Sonny Basinger, among many who shared the spotlight with their efforts on the gridiron.

The cage season found Cotton Clayton and Don Smith appearing among a predominant list of North Carolina Athletes titled All-North State Conference, 1960-1961. At present, Coach Jim Mallory's hardhitting hardball diamonders have exhibited several stars and their particular talents account largely for the present 1 and 2 over-all record. All-North State Conference honors may be reaped by Larry Crayton, Nathan Greene, Glenn Bass, Jim Martin, Wallace Cockrell and Gary Pierce, or at least several of them.

On the Pirate Cinderpaths Freshman Ned Pickford from Washington, D.C. has led Coach Odell Winborne's cindermen this spring. On the tennis court Al Webb, Bert Stafford, and Ralph Felton have aided the Buc netters. Two victories over Wake Forest have highlighted the tennis season.

Of course, there are plenty of fine athletes that have helped their respective teams that have not been mentioned. But the Pirates mentioned above have received high honors for their competitive play. Probably the two best athletes in school based on their efforts this season are Glenn Bass and Cotton Clayton. The former's showing in the Buc backfield was sufficient in that the St. Louis Cardinals made him an early draft choice. On the diamond Glenn is currently the second leading hitter on the team with an average close to .400 and the all-conference shortstop has been superb in the fielding department.

Cotton Clayton's basketball playing easily established him as one of the best all-around players in the state. Cotton's ability on the baseball diamond has been used in rightfield by Coach Jim Mallory. The slender southpaw swinging slugger has belted two homers prior to the Pfeiffer contest Saturday night and was batting close to .350.

100 Yard Dash

EC's track team will not have the best cinder squad in history by a good margin, but the sprinters for the Bucs of 61 will be well worth watching for the future. Especially in the 100 yard dash Ned Pickford and Tom Michell have raced in this event in 10 seconds flat. For first year performers in the collegiate ranks this is a fine showing.

The school record for the 100 yard dash is 9.8 seconds set by Jim Henderson of Portsmouth, Virginia in 1957. Probably not this season, but certainly next year Pickford and Michell, both grid iron performers may challenge this record. Incidentally, Henderson who was a star performer on the football field as well as in the dashes happens to be head football coach at Frankleton High School.

Another Coach Leaving

EC's 1961 football team will suffer a severe blow this Fall with the announcement of backfield coach Frank Madigan's acceptance to a new position at Frederick College in Portsmouth, Virginia. The Buc assistant will join another Pirate coach, Bill McDonald, on the Lion staff.

Frederick College in its first full year of senior football competition is looking for the best and apparently viewed their eyes in the proper direction when obtaining McDonald and Madigan. The latter returns to his home soil in Portsmouth where he attended Woodrow Wilson High School and starred under the late Dick Eisele in the latter 40's.

Proceeding graduation from Wilson, Madigan entered East Carolina where he played under Jack Boone for four years. Upon graduating from EC he served in the United States Air Force where he proved to be a successful coach.

Coach Madigan, after receiving his discharge from service, attended the University of North Carolina where he completed his Master's Degree and served as an assistant at a Raleigh High School. In 1957 Coach Madigan rejoined his former coach Jack Boone as an assistant coach this time and has held this position since.

The EC backfield coach deeply regrets leaving the college campus and his many friends. He claims that Coach Boone was

Powerful Bucs Battle Catawba Saturday At Guy Smith Stadium

Coach Jim Mallory's conference leading diamonders hit the road yesterday to battle dangerous Elon. Today the highly rated Bucs were supposed to meet LR's Bears in Hickory. Coach Mallory's two aces, left-handed Larry Crayton and right-handed Nathan Greene, will in all probability receive the starting assignment for the two contests.

Saturday night, Catawba Indians come to Greenville to play ECC in Guy Smith Stadium in an arc light encounter. Game time for the Indian vs. Pirate clash will be 8:00 p.m. There will be two more conference tilts against AC and Elon in home games next week before the Bucs conclude their campaign against Wake Forest next Saturday night. On the 10th of this month Atlantic Christian visits Guy Smith Stadium, and on the 12th Elon's Christians play the Pirates at the stadium. The rest of the home games will be at night.

Pfeiffer Loses

After completing a six game road trip in which the Bucs claimed five conference wins and a firm grip on first place, EC returned home Saturday night to smoother helplessness Pfeiffer 12-0. The losers found the going rough in the pitching department as 14 bases on balls were issued against the league leaders. Meanwhile Nathan Greene and Larry Crayton hurled a 6 hitter at Pfeiffer.

Besides taking advantage of the visitor's wildness on the mound, the defending North State Conference champions added some vital hits to aid their cause. Charlie Johnson's booming two run triple in the first inning started the ball rolling. Jim Martin also singled in a tally in the initial frame.

The visiting pitchers could not control the ball in the second frame as the opposition walked in three Pirates, and Johnson's sacrifice fly added still another run. A three run third inning saw Spencer Gaylord and Glenn Bass walk, and this was followed by a Cotton Clayton single, followed by a Cotton Clayton single, and a Jim Martin—two run-one bagger.

This proved to be the highlights of the scoring situation in this contest but there was no scoring for the visitors as the Buc aces Nathan Greene and Larry Crayton combined their efforts for a three hit shutout. The former fanned five and gave up 5 hits in 6 innings of work, while the southpaw Crayton allowed one hit while fanning 6 Pfeiffer hitters.

PIRATES NOTES OF INTEREST

Gary Pierce now has five homeruns to his credit. The husky outfielder's tremendous year with the stick has netted him an average of .447 following the Pfeiffer game Saturday night. Cotton Clayton is behind Pierce with an average of .429. Jim Martin's solid .400, and Floyd Wickler's .382 follow the hot bats for Pierce and Clayton. The Pirates have the best hitting team in the state cooled off only by Wake Forest.

In the pitching department, Larry Crayton has posted the most wins in EC history. The stocky junior southpaw's 21-4 mark in three years of toting the rubber is incredible. Among Larry's efforts was the no-hitter thrown at Appalachian in a home contest earlier this season. Last year the southpaw fanned 106 enemy batsmen in 89 innings, compiled an earn run average of 0.89 while posting a 9-2 record.

Nathan Greene, Lacy West and Crayton have all pitched shutouts for the all winning Pirates. It is evident that EC will be North State loop champions again, but a victory over Wake Forest in the final game of the season would make the season complete.

Pierce's Homeruns Aid Pirate Wins

Recovering remarkably like true champions, EC's strong baseball nine whipped High Point 17-5 and 7-0 after a 13-0 loss to Wake Forest. Gary Pierce, who has been slaughtering the ball this Spring, smashed three homeruns and pushed his batting average to .460.

In the High Point game Larry Crayton hurled the 17-5 win, and righthander Lacy West shut out the losers 7-0 in the other half of the twinbill. It was Crayton's fifth win against only one setback and the victory marked Lacy's second against no losses.

In the Wake Forest game the whole story was that the Deacons started their ace lefthander, and he gave the Buc hitters a hard time with his effective work. It was just not the Buc's day, but the tides may change when the Demon Deacons visit Guy Smith Stadium next Saturday night. Nathan Greene or Larry Crayton will in all probability get the starting nod from Coach Jim Mallory.

The Buc mentor was unable to use his ace against the Wake team because of having five conference tilts in between the game at Winston-Salem.

GARY PIERCE belted three homeruns against High Point.

Madigan Named PE Director At Frederick

Frank Madigan, defensive coach for the East Carolina football teams for the past four years, will leave his post here after the present school year to assume a new position as Director of Physical Education at Frederick College in Portsmouth, Virginia. The contract calls for the popular assistant coach's duties to become effective as of September 1st of this year.

Madigan, a native of Portsmouth, will be returning to his home soil to reside for the first time since departing from there in 1949 to attend EC.

A graduate of Woodrow Wilson High School of Portsmouth, the stocky crewcut played his football under the late Dick Eslick. In his senior season, Madigan was chosen to the All-Tidewater team.

He entered here in the fall of 1949, where he played defensive linebacker on the Pirate squad for four years under present head coach Jack Boone. During his senior year at ECC, Madigan was given the departmental award and the Christenbury Award. The latter award honored him as the athlete with the most outstanding academic average for his four years in school.

Madigan graduated from East Carolina in the spring of 1953. From there, he immediately took a year as assistant football coach at John Jay High School in High Point, N.C. His stay there was a short one year and then he entered the U. S. Air Force.

While in the service, Madigan was named as backfield coach of the Air Force team in Misawa, Japan in 1954. The next year he was named coach of the Misawa team, which went undefeated in 1955.

Madigan also coached the Air Force All-Stars in the Rice Bowl at Tokyo, Japan in 1956, and was chosen "Service Coach of the Year" in the Far East.

Madigan was discharged from the Air Force in February of 1956, and he immediately enrolled at the University of North Carolina, where he began work on a master's degree.

Madigan split his time between Chapel Hill and Raleigh for the year, doing graduate work in U.S. and serving as assistant football coach at Raleigh's Needham-Branford High School. He completed his M. A. degree in the summer of 1958 and returned to EC in the fall of the same year.

Pirates Head Toward NSC Championship

East Carolina's defending North State Conference baseball champions returned home to play April 29, after a six game road tour which saw the Bucs capture five wins, all over conference foes.

Coach Jim Mallory played Pfeiffer College, the newest member of the North State in the first night game of the season for the Bucs.

The contest was the eighth conference game for the Pirates, who are currently leading the league race with a 7-0 slate. The Bucs have won conference games over Appalachian, High Point, and Western Carolina College twice, and Catawba College once.

Other teams in the league have been knocking each other off like flies, and nothing could be more pleasing to Mallory and his corps. They have been North State Champs for two consecutive seasons and with their present record speaking for them, may well be on their way to their third straight crown.

Pirate pitching ace, Larry Crayton, continued his winning ways last week, hurling two games and winning both to boost his record to 5-1. The chunky southpaw has retired a total of 46 men via the strikeout
