

ECU Bill Passes Senate, 34-12

By WALTER F. HENDRICKS, III

East Carolina came one step closer to the changing of the name of the Greenville campus to "East Carolina University" through the passage of the Henley Bill in the Senate, of the North Carolina General Assembly by a vote of 34-12, Tuesday afternoon.

Although generally regarded as a compromise bill, college officials were happy to see the measure pass with such little opposition. Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland, author of the bill, pushed the bill through comparatively light opposition along with the help of Sen. Robert Morgan, chairman of EC's Board of Trustees. The bill, if it passes the House, will elevate East Carolina, Appalachian State and Western Carolina to a new level of regional universities, placing the schools in a category between the state's senior colleges and the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

The North Carolina senators attempted to include four amendments to the bill, but only two were successful. These two were to permit the Board of Higher Education to study the system and to spell out what the regional university should do in extensions, for example health programs. An amendment that was defeated was to include North Carolina A & T College in the bill. Sponsors of the bill stated that since A & T College was in an area where there was a branch of the Consolidated University, the college would be ineffective as a regional university.

The bill is expected to be voted upon in the House this week. Sen. John Henley stated when asked about the bills chances, "I think it will pass. The tally in the House shows the majority favors it."

Meares, Morrisette Head 1967 Summer School SGA

The Student Party made a clean sweep of the SGA executive offices in the SGA campus elections held Thursday, June 15. Elected were John Meares, President; Steve Morrisette, Vice President; Caroline Riddle, Secretary; and Brenda Bullock, Treasurer.

These officers were installed Monday afternoon at the first meeting of the Student Legislature.

Elected to the Summer School Student Legislature were Ada Sanford, Ikey Breedlove, Don Benson, Arlene Murphy, John Reynolds, Tone Elam, and Bill Richardson, members-at-large. The dormitory representatives are Ned Kimsey, Scott; Toby Sue Hoppe, Garrett; Marie Gerlach, Fletcher; and Mitzie Tharrington, Cotten.

Only fifteen percent of the student body voted in the election. Much interest was created by the write-in candidate for Treasurer, Ikey Breedlove.

There were not enough candidates for the Legislature to fill the positions of members-at-large. The Legislature will appoint four people to fill the vacancies when they meet Monday afternoon.

Several received write-in votes for the Legislature but due to the fact that no one received a significant number of votes, they were invalidated.

When asked about his victory, Meares stated, "This is great. This is one of the happiest moments of my life. This is a real victory for the Student Party. I appreciate the confidence that the students have placed in me. I hope that I can live up to this honor."

Morrisette, the new vice-president said the following concerning his election, "I was happy with the large turn out. I think this shows the interest of the majority of the student body in the SGA. I hope I can do a good job that will fulfill the confidence placed in me."

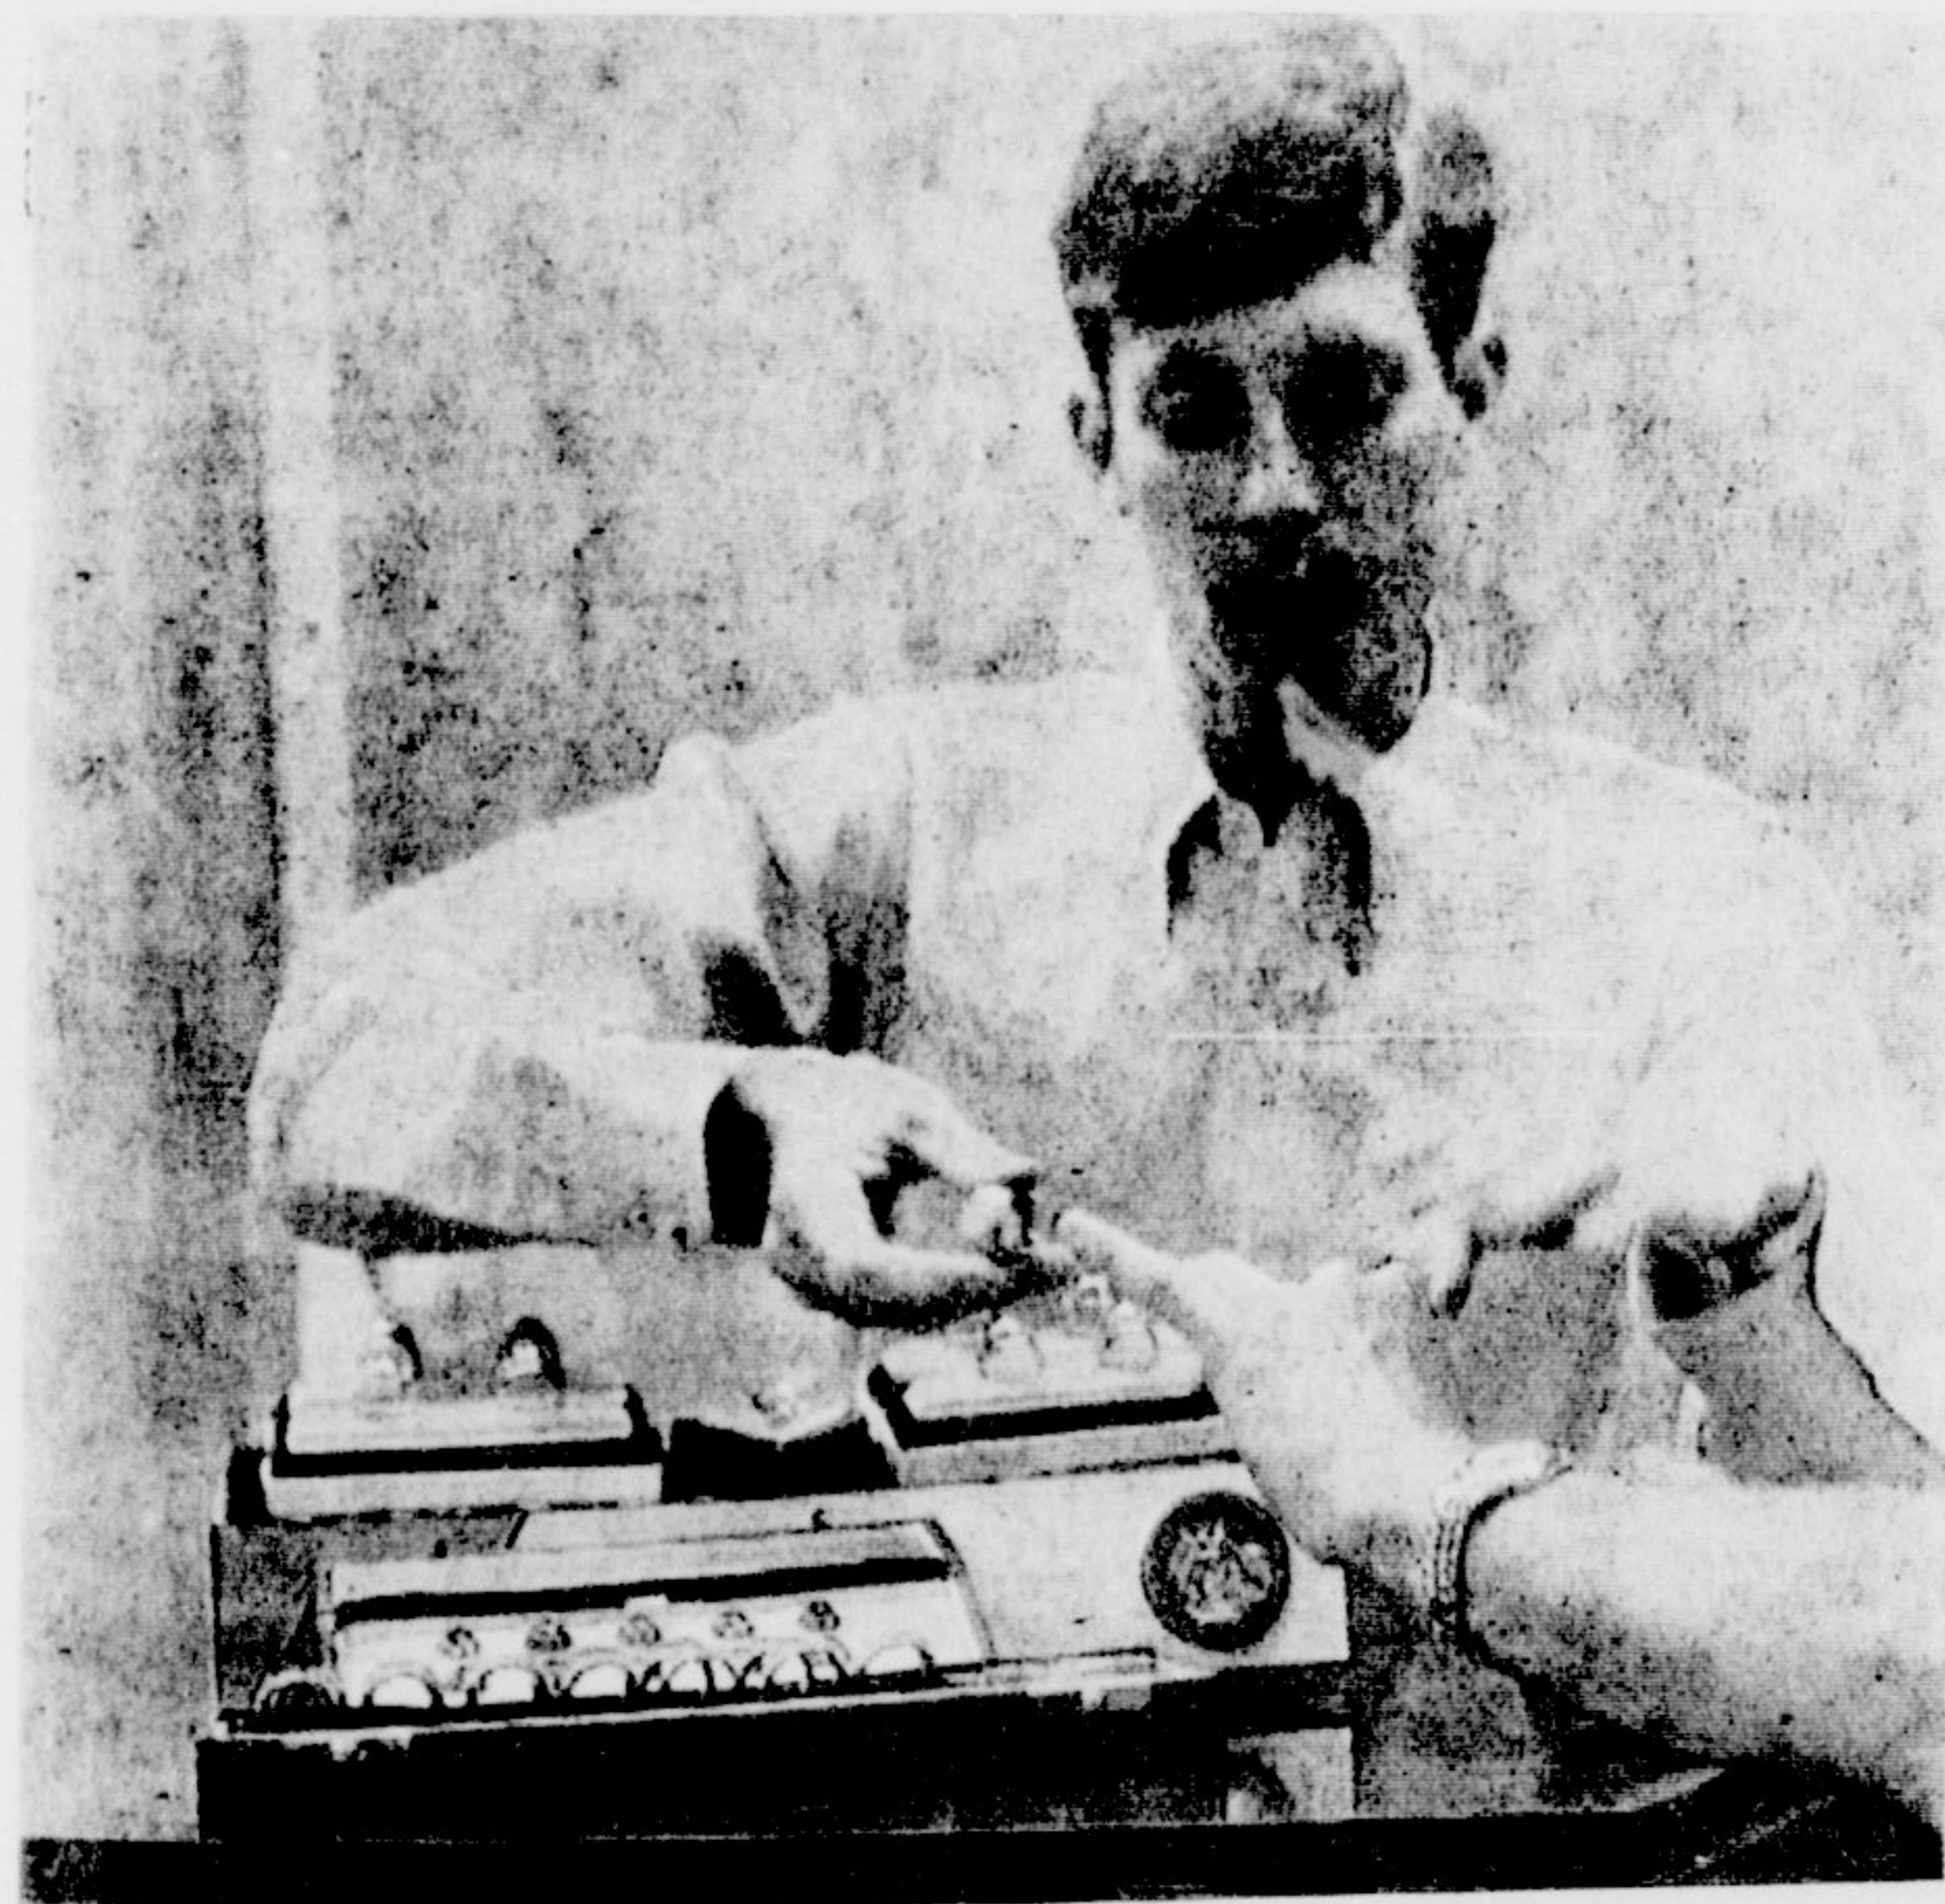

Brenda Bullock, commenting on her new office, said, "I appreciate the interest shown by the student body in the election. It speaks well of Ikey Breedlove that so many people took the time to write in his name on the ballot. I realize the task involved in handling the student's money and only hope I can live up to the confidence they have placed in me."

The total tally was as follows:
President: John Meares (SP) 428, Bill Elam (UP) 263.

Vice-president: Steve Morrisette (SP) 402, Paul Shannon (UP) 276.
Secretary: Caroline Riddle (SP) 358, Becke Barrow (UP) 317.
Treasurer: Brenda Bullock (SP) 458, Ikey Breedlove (UP) 174.

John K. Meares of Roanoke Rapids, North Carolina and newly elected President of the Student Government Association swears in the legislators who were elected in last week's election. The installation took place Monday, the first legislative meeting of the summer.

David Lloyd, Vice President of the Student Government Association during the 1967-68 academic year attempts to measure the ring size for a junior. The new ring has undergone many changes, including a change in the school's name.

New Class Ring Contract Marks Style Improvements

A new five year College Ring contract was signed in June although a student may not purchase a ring until he has 96 hours credit. The Class Ring is one of the most important symbols of a college career and therefore is necessary to know and understand.

There are other "East Carolina Rings" however the only official Class Ring is sold by the Student Government Association on campus.

The new mens' ring this year will have a high crown top which is more modern and stylish than the rounded top. Many changes have been made to update the ring to university style. The Seal and Wright Fountain still appear on the band with changes being made in the class year and degree markings.

The girls have a selection of four different rings; a dinner ring, a miniature dinner ring, a miniature boys' rings, and a black onyx ring with the ECU seal engraved upon it.

The prices on the rings have also been reduced during the new five year contract. Beginning this Fall a sample case of the rings will be on public display in the College Union.

David Lloyd SGA vice president and ring chairman stated, "With this new class ring design plus the added styles in girls' rings many added styles in girls' rings we can now really begin to promote the Official Class Ring of East Carolina."

Men & Women Judicial Systems Include Most Of Yearly Court

The judicial system for Summer School includes most of the courts used in the regular term. These include House Council, Judiciary, and Honor Council for the women and Honor Council for the men.

The women's dormitory House Council is organized and has the same functions as in the regular school term. The dormitory residents elect a President, Vice-President, and Secretary for the girls living in the Dormitory. Hall Proctors are elected by the residents living on the hall.

Demerits are the only penalty the House Council has the authority to give. Cases tried involve violation of minor dormitory rules.

The Judiciary for Summer School is composed of the Presidents of the dormitories. These girls are approved by the Legislature. The officers are elected from among the Judiciary members.

The members of Women's Judiciary this summer are: Chairman, Charlene Tietelbaum; Vice-chairman, Kay Thigpen; Secretary, Patsy Evans. Other members include Linda Cameron, Emma Lou Rouse, and Paulette Allen.

The Judiciary handles more serious offenses which are not violations of the Honor Code. Penalties given by this court range from demerits to social restriction.

The Honor Council will be appointed if needed. This court handles violations of the Honor Code which include lying, stealing, and cheating.

The Men's Residence Council, Men's Judiciary, and Men's Honor Council which are the three courts used during the regular term are combined into the Men's Honor Council which handles all violations during Summer School.

The Appeals Board will not be set up in Summer School unless the need arises. This court is set up to hear appeals from either Honor Council and, in Summer School, is composed of three faculty members appointed by the Dean of Men and Dean of Women and three students appointed by the Vice-president of the SGA.

Student Legislature Meets; Discusses Summer Budgets

The first meeting of the 1967 Summer School Student Legislature was held Monday in the Legislative room of the SGA offices. Summer School SGA President, John Meares presided.

Dr. James Tucker, Dean of Student Affairs administered the oath of office to Meares, who, in turn, installed the other members of the Summer School Executive Council and the members of the Legislature.

Meares then read the names of the people the Executive Council were recommending to fill the vacancies as members-at-large. These were Nancy Kuhn, Kathy Marshall, Robbie Wages, and Wayne King. They were approved and duly installed.

Ada Sanford was appointed Chaplain and John Reynolds was appointed Parliamentarian of the Legislature for the summer.

Meares then appointed a committee to study the Summer School SGA constitution and to recommend revisions to correct current discrepancies.

The main item of business was the Summer School budget. The expected income from activity fees was estimated at twenty to twenty-two thousand dollars. The Movie, I.D. cards, Entertainment, and East Carolinian budgets were approved. Another meeting of the Legislature was called for Thursday afternoon to consider the remainder of the budgets which the Legislature must approve.

It was announced that the Legislature would be each Monday at 4:00 p.m.

Complimentary Tickets Available To Students

Free student tickets for East Carolina Summer Theater are being offered by the Student Government Association. One hundred complimentary tickets will be available the week prior to each performance. They may be picked up in Wright Annex, SGA office 303, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on the "first come, first serve basis."

Students must present ID and temporary activity cards. After these 100 tickets are given out, a student may purchase a ticket at the box office in McGinnis Auditorium for $1.50 with ID and temporary activity cards.

An Outstanding University

We are happy and excited, with reservations, over the Tuesday victory of the university bill which passed the senate 34 to 12.

Certainly, if the bill passes the House as presently expected, East Carolina will be the strongest university in the independent university system. With a higher student enrollment than the combined totals of the other two institutions under consideration plus three two year branches in other cities, the number of people reached and the curriculum offered at East Carolina will be superior to any independent university in this state for several years to come.

East Carolina has a larger percentage of instructors with a doctorate degree, larger facilities, and a library with more volumes than the two totals of the future universities in the west.

The road to university status and university oriented education is a long and complex one. Thus far, East Carolina has traveled from teacher preparatory, to a teachers college, to a general college, to a college offering the masters degree, to the verge of university status. The way was not easy and very few steps were bypassed along the route.

The academic studies have been and are in continual change. Within the last two years majors in at least four new fields have been offered. A larger addition to Joyner Library has begun, the School of Music complex has been built, the School of Nursing, Department of Physical Education, and Division of Science facilities are under construction.

Students are beginning to have a larger voice in the structure of the academic programs with faculty evaluations, added departments, and new courses.

Let it be understood clearly that this is not intended to be a condemnation of the two institutions of higher learning who soon may become our sister universities. It is rather, a genuine conviction of pride in an institution which, through certain far sighted objectives, has brought and will, we are sure, continue to bring a well planned, well laid out, and well presented program of education to over 14,000 students per year from North Carolina and most sections of the nation.

It was once stated that legislation alone will not make a university. We agree and conclude that East Carolina has far more than just legislation on its side.

Disinterest

Monday the Student Government Legislature met for the first time this summer. The members made plans for the summer sessions and appropriated nearly $20,000 for student activities. Yet only four students, outside of the SGA officers, attended the meeting. Out of 5,000 students on this campus no one else appeared interested in how his money is spent.

If the majority of students are willing to allow others to handle their money without any interest, why should we worry? The legislators are certainly among the most qualified student leaders on campus. The programs derived from the SGA are of fine calibre. Then why do we challenge and criticize the lack of student interest? Because of the necessity to be informed. The informed student knows and understands himself and his college environment. It is a must to keep up with changing campus news and ideas.

With more people participating, more ideas are being exchanged, a larger degree of action and change is produced thus enlarging even more the power (and privilege) of the student to govern and regulate his campus environment.

A well balanced and enjoyable life on campus is relative to the degree of academic success. To balance and enjoy that life, a student must be informed. Casual learning of governmental processes does not require one to become involved in forensic politics. The student who does not wish to speak out or act directly on an idea has several open channels. Letters to the editor, discussions with friends or professors, and talks with the students' representatives in the SGA Legislature provide a means for the student to express his ideas and suggestions for better campus functions and facilities, resulting in a better place to live and study.

SGA Elections

I would like to offer congratulations and best wishes to John K. Meares newly elected SGA president and his executive officers. A wise and devoted student leader, John will, I am certain, conduct an excellent summer program.

Both campus parties conducted an excellent and "clean" campaign during the elections. Every candidate is to be commended for a well run campaign whether he won or lost. The field of candidates of both parties was of a fine choice that the elections were a credit to the Student Government.

A real credit to the election was the voting which was "substantial" for any summer election. Congratulations to the new SGA executive and legislative members, may you have the best of success.

President Abdul Nasser made the political move of the year recently when he resigned as President of Egypt. He then returned by popular demand to rule again. Maybe President Johnson will resign so that he can raise his dwindling popularity?

The Dodd censure case is moving slowly through the Senate as the case is becoming quite a fiasco. Senator Long is the chief supporter of Dodd, and his recent speech of seven hours couldn't have done more to destroy Dodd's chances. Many have come out in Dodd's defense, although the great singer Everett Dirksen has said he would vote to censure Dodd. A new album could be in the making entitled: "The New Morality".

The current riots in Boston, Cincinnati, Tampa, Watts, and Montgomery show the continued unrest of the ghetto Negro. Fortunately some Negro citizens have been able to control the rioting, while others such as Senator Edward Brooke and Justice to-be Thurgood Marshall are holding together the prestige.

The Viet Nam war continues, although at a slower pace. Estimates now indicate that well over a half a million men will be in Viet Nam by next January. South Vietnamese leaders have indicated that more troops will be needed to stop the Communists — specifically American troops. Reserve call-up is a possibility.

The six percent surcharge proposed by President Johnson could be raised. The expanding military budget is causing a large deficit, and economists now think that a higher tax will be necessary. Look out economy!

The new draft law is good news for students as deferments will be granted to undergraduates until graduation or until one reaches his 24th birthday. Inequity continues though as the 24 year old men will be put into the pool of 19 year olds, with no method of determining in what ratio those men will be inducted. Stretch those schedules.

The railroad strike has been halted by a railroad promise not to strike until Congress can work out a compromise between management and labor. Possibly the railroads will break down before then?

Premier Kosygin speech was not unexpected, although some had hoped for something better. His condemnation of Israel was in the typical Russian style, and Israel reproached Russia for her non-objectivity. It is going to be a long time before the United Nations will provide a workable solution. Possibly there will never be a solution.

East Carolina University is finally a reality. Hopefully the regional system is a success. Hello Education!

More From The U. N.

By Jerry Atkins

The recent military encounter between Israel and its Arab neighbors appears to have ended. Nevertheless, bickering still continues to take place at the United Nations; this time in the General Assembly. On Monday, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin addressed the General Assembly in an hour long speech asking for U.N. condemnation of Israel. He charged that the Israelis had been the aggressors and reiterated his previous indictments that the United States had complied with Israel in the war. In addition, Kosygin introduced a resolution demanding complete withdrawal of Israeli troops from the areas they now hold as a result of the fighting.

Even though no official peace documents, allowing for boundary settlements, have been signed, Israel seemed to be the definite victor. And inasmuch as the United States was said to have supported her in the war, Washington could silently rejoice in somewhat of a victory also. However, many pessimistic Americans now see the chance that the U.S. could come out on the losing end after all.

Those observers see that Kosygin has an excellent opportunity to further degrade American foreign policy in the eyes of the world. They base this possibility on two main points. First of all, they see that the Soviets were able to keep the Arabs united in their hatred of the West and to become even more intent on non-recognition of Israel's right to statehood. Second, they suspect that Kosygin will try more than ever to gain support from the Afro-Asian nations in the United Nations. If he is able to gain their bloc support alone, he will have majority backing since they control 65 of the 122 votes in the General Assembly. It is not unreasonable to think he will be successful, either, since Soviet propaganda has tried to make them seem downtrodden underdogs along with the Arabs. In this way, their alignment would offer strong support not only in Kosygin's present endeavor to win back prestige, but also in all future problems in which the Soviet Union becomes involved.

While it will, of course, be unfortunate for the U.S. if the General Assembly adopts Kosygin's resolution, Washington should be more concerned about keeping Israel's present and most worthy alignment with America. It should not be forgotten that Israel still holds the upper hand in the Middle East, and the United States should support her in keeping that supremacy. Such a stand would not sever diplomatic relations with other countries any more than they already are, and it would increase Israel's chances of remaining the power in the Middle East, thus helping prevent future events like those of earlier this month.

Letters To The Editor

Unhappy Review

Dear Editor,

As a visiting student from Elon College, I have been both pleased and dismayed by my experiences since I arrived here a few weeks ago.

The first obstacle thrown at me was the highly disorganized system of registration that this institution uses. I was shuttled back and forth by various and sundry persons between various and sundry offices by well meaning but totally confused "helpers". When I finally arrived at the desk to pick up my card, I was told that the class that I wanted, in fact the only course that stands between me and a diploma, was closed. Since they already had my money, which was the first thing that they collected, there wasn't much I could do but go to drop-add and hope that someone would drop the course that I needed. I arrived at Wright Auditorium at 7:30 in order to have a good place in line. When the doors were opened at 9:00, I made great haste to get to the desk that I needed a card from; I was sure that I was in for a lengthy vigil. To my great surprise and relief a card was available for me then. Why, if the class was closed at 11:30 the day before and no one had dropped the course, was I able to pick up the card? Obviously the course had not been closed. My registration was complete after twenty-six hours. It took me five minutes at U.N.C. - CH last summer.

There is one minor thing that I would like to bring up. This may seem at first glance to be a trivial gripe, but it is not so trivial to those of us living in Scott Hall. The problem is this: there is only one water fountain in the entire dorm. This dorm houses around four hundred men. The only place to get a cool drink of water is in the lobby, which is on the second floor. When the guys on the second, third, or fourth floor want a drink they have two choices, (1) walk down to the lobby and use the water fountain there or (2) get water from the bathroom sink. This second choice would not be too bad if, (1) cups were provided, and (2) the water was cold, but alas they don't and it's not. J'ai soif.

This has been a rather lengthy and critical letter but believe it or not I find East Carolina a rather enjoyable place. The people that I have met have been most friendly.

Thank-you,
Thomas R. Ward

Dr. Weigand Helps Students; Offers Study Skills Course

By SANDRA RABHAN

The East Carolina faculty has one of the most noted authorities on academic success through effective study methods in the eastern part of the United States. This distinguished author of several books in the field of study methods is Dr. George Weigand, head of the Counseling and Guidance Department.

Dr. Weigand has recently written a book, How To Succeed in High School, which is in no way limited to the high school level. The majority of Dr. Weigand's research has been done with college students, but he is interested in the high school as well as graduate levels.

The fact that Dr. Weigand has used his book as a text book in teaching courses on effective study methods in junior high, high school, college and graduate school, illustrates the applicability of the book. Several schools in which he has taught are the U. S. Department of Agriculture Graduate School, Washington, D. C. and the University of Maryland, Baltimore.

Dr. Weigand offers a course here every quarter and during the first session of summer school as a service to the students, who enroll on a volunteer basis.

Dr. Weigand's course is not designed exclusively for the poor student, but is also extremely beneficial to the conscientious student who is not satisfied with his work, or who would like to do better.

In several recent nationwide surveys of college freshmen, the most common complaint was not knowing how to study. This can be a definite problem to the college student. Many students spend too little time on studies and learn too little. Still other students seem to study constantly and get no beneficial results grade-wise. Dr. Weigand has helped many such students learn techniques of studying so as to get the most knowledge out of the time spent studying. As is pointed out in the Study Skills class, a student can work out a plan for adequate study time and still have time to set aside for things he wants to do. This is exactly what you can do in your studying.

Personal Experience

This writer would like to relate her association with Dr. Weigand and his course. I went to Dr. Weigand's Study Skills course with a 1.6 average, and in less than a year I had a 2.7 average. In the course of one quarter I learned that points as seemingly trivial as proper lighting and studying in a straight chair as opposed to reclining on a bed or sofa are extremely important factors in getting the most from the time spent studying.

Not only did Dr. Weigand give innumerable study tips, but a certain portion of the lecture hour was spent in increasing speed of reading and comprehension. It was astounding to actually experience, in such a short time, almost doubling my rate of reading speed.

I am confident that I am not the only student who can give such a testimonial. I have met many students who have received help from Dr. Weigand and have, consequently become much more successful students in the academic aspect of college.

Counseling Services

Dr. Weigand offers help in study skills not only through the reading of his book and his study course, but any student can make appointments to consult Dr. Weigand in his office which is located on the second floor of Wright Auditorium.

Dr. Weigand and the other quite competent counselors in the Guidance Department are here to serve the students with academic problems, personal problems, and vocation selecting.

The department offers numerous tests for the benefit of those who need them. Among the tests are vocational, interest, and personality oriented ones.

Dr. George Weigand, Director of Counseling and Guidance, pauses for a moment during an interview with a staff member in which he discussed his effective methods for studying.

From Weigand's Desk

Tips For Effective Studying

(These tips are from a manuscript by Prof. George Weigand of East Carolina College.)

Budget your time. Set aside certain periods of the day to study certain subjects, but make the schedule your servant, not your master. Don't overlook short, unexpected chances to study. Fifteen minutes of quick review today may be worth two hours of cramming next week.

Plan to watch your favorite television program. Even if it comes during a time set aside for study. Chances are you'll watch it anyway, and if you plan for it you'll also plan to do your studying another time.

Don't try to do all your studying on one long, unbroken session. Psychologists say that 40 or 50 minutes of work followed by 10 minutes or so of rest or change, is about right.

Work to increase your reading speed. Most high school students (and many college students) read at the rate of 200 to 250 words per minute.

You should be able to read 600 or more words per minute, and many students can handle that rate. The best way to learn to read faster is to practice so faithfully and for so long that it becomes an ingrained habit.

Don't just read; read with a purpose. Ask yourself questions before you start, then look for the answers in your reading. After you read a section of the textbook (it can be a paragraph, a page or several pages) stop and review what you have read. How much of it do you remember?

Learn to MAKE notes, not take them. Don't try to write down everything the teacher or professor says. Get the highlight down in your own words.

As soon as possible, read over your notes, fill them out or reorganize them. They may make sense to you an hour after you write them down, but be complete gibberish a week later.

You are probably 50 percent more efficient in the morning than in the evening. Studying late at night can be almost completely ineffectual; you'll find yourself reading the same thing over and over. Do the most difficult assignments as early in the day as possible.

Don't try to kid yourself that you can study better if you have a radio or phonograph playing quietly in the background. Turn your desk away from the window, there's nothing out there but distraction. Have a quiet, well lighted place in which to study.

In reading a text, or making notes in a lecture, watch for such tips-offs as: "The four main causes..." "Most experts would agree that..." This is the author's or the teacher's way of telling you that something is important. Get it now, because you'll get it in a test later.

For note making, use a large three-ring notebook. Use only one notebook for all your classes with cardboard dividers between the subjects. Number and date the pages.

A special note for those taking a foreign language and chemistry: You can fall behind in history, economics, biology or literature and catch up later (although this isn't recommended). But if you fall behind in a foreign language or chemistry, you're really in hot water. You've got virtually no chance to catch up.

Above all, review and review until you learn something so well that it sticks with you, whether or not you try to remember it. There's nothing unusual about it, you do it all the time with popular songs.

Here's an example of the importance of review:

You have just been given more than a dozen tips on how to study. Chances are that right now you don't remember half of them. Unless you review by tomorrow you won't remember more than three or four.

EC Offers Self Help Programs; Varied Types Of Work Available

"Without a doubt, I could not go to school without this program. This program has kept me in school."

"The work I am in has helped me a great deal toward my understanding in business, which is my major."

These are a few comments concerning what the students have to say about E. C.'s self help programs.

E. C. offers two programs where a student may obtain a summer job. The College Work Study Program is sponsored by the Office of Economic Opportunity, an agency of the federal government. The second program is the Regular Self Help Program, assisted through the aid of the state supported college. The federal program is based on financial need and those in a particular economic bracket may qualify. The second program is based also on need, but also on qualifications. It is for the student who "really wants to work". Although the students are in different programs, they will work side by side.

There are no definite programs whereby a student may obtain a summer job downtown, but occasionally a merchant will call Dr. Tucker's office and the office will give names of students who are on file. Usually, the student goes to the merchants himself if he would like a job downtown.

The student may go about getting a summer job by contacting Dr. Tucker, Dean of Student Affairs who will process and approve the student once he fills out an application.

The different types of work are clerical work in offices of the Administration, Alumni, Library, and almost any other department on campus. Also work in the computer area of the math department and laboratory work with the science department is available.

The average pay of the self help program is $1.25 an hour for College Work Study Program and $1.00 an hour for Regular Self Help Program. A student usually works fifteen hours a week and not more than 160 hours a quarter.

COACH HENRY VANSANT

Vansant Named New Line Coach; Little Takes Over Frosh Team

Freshman Coach Henry Vansant has been elevated to the position of varsity offensive line coach, and John Little, III of New Orleans, Louisiana has been selected as his replacement as freshman coach for 1967.

Vansant, who joined the Pirate coaching staff in 1962, is a native of Hampton, Virginia and a graduate of East Carolina College where he received his B. A. and M. A. degrees. While an undergraduate at East Carolina, he was an outstanding defensive linebacker. He coached one year at Hopewell, Virginia High School prior to joining the East Carolina College staff. Last year the freshman team was undefeated with a 5-0 record. Through his coaching efforts, many qualified and talented football players have moved up to the varsity during his years as freshman coach.

John Little, who served as a graduate assistant coach with the freshman team last year, received his A. B. degree from Davidson College and is in the process of completing work for his Master's degree in psychology at EC. While at Davidson, he participated in four intercollegiate sports, lettered three years in football, and won the "Wildcat Loyalty Award" in 1965.

Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich, who announced appointments, was highly enthusiastic with "lauds" for these two men. "Henry Vansant who has guided the Baby Bucs during the past five years will be coaching the varsity offensive line in 1967. He was a lineman while in college; thus resulting in much attention being given to his line coaching with the freshman squad. During winter drills and preseason workouts, he has coached the varsity line; therefore he is capable and experienced in this area and will make a very valuable contribution to our varsity football team in the future."

"John Little is an outstanding young coach, who received a great deal of praise from Coach Vansant while working with the freshman squad in 1966. It is with confidence and the assurance of his ability that he is appointed as head freshman coach at East Carolina College."

Quinn Recruits Top Players Builds Up Basketball Odds

Coach Tom Quinn has signed on two top players for the 1967-68 basketball team. Mike Dunn, a 6-4, 200 pound basketball star from Silver Spring, Maryland, has signed a grant-in-aid with East Carolina College.

Jim Gregory, a 6-7, 200 pound All State football and basketball player from Gary, West Virginia, has signed a basketball Grant-in-Aid to East Carolina College.

Dunn, who starred for Bullis Prep School, averaged 29.4 points per game during the 1966-67 season. He also set a record for the highest points scored in a single game last season (57 points) and was prep school champion for the Washington metropolitan area during the last season. Dunn was also high scorer for one of the metropolitan prep tournaments at the end of the regular season last fall where during three games he bucketed 82 points.

Mike was named to the Washington Star, Washington Post, and Afro-American "All Metro" teams.

East Carolina Head Basketball Coach Tom Quinn commented upon Dunn's signing with East Carolina. "Mike is an exceptionally talented athlete who possesses the skills and desire to become an outstanding college basketball player and student. We feel that Mike could become one of the finest offensive players in the area and one of the best ever at East Carolina."

Gregory made the Big All-State basketball team and was an All-State end on the State Championship football team at Gary High School. Jim was the only athlete to collect three All-State awards at the recent Victory Awards dinner held in Wheeling, West Virginia. Gregory averaged 21 points and 20 rebounds per game as a senior. He had a three-year career total of 1,221 points.

Quinn said of Gregory, "We feel most fortunate to have signed a student-athlete of Jim's calibre. With his overall agility and size as definite advantages, Jim will become a strong cornerman in our league. Concentration in only one sport will spell quick improvement in his game."

EC-West Virginia Game Televised

The East Carolina - West Virginia basketball game will be televised next January 27, from the new Mingos coliseum here, over a regional network of at least 18 stations covering North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

This telecast will be one of ten Southern Conference games which will be televised during the 1967-68 basketball season by the TVS Sports Network of Patterson, New Jersey.

Adding the Southern to its itinerary this year for the first time, TVS is already televising the Southeastern Conference, Big Eight, Mid-American, and the top ten NCAA games of the season.

North Carolina stations carrying the network are: WITN, Washington; WSJS, Winston Salem; WRAL, Raleigh; WAVY, Wilmington; and WSOC, Charlotte.

Pirate Football Squad Looks 'Better' For Fall Schedule

The 1967 East Carolina football team can be assumed better this year. Although the squad lost four men on the offensive team through graduation, the freshmen seem more than adequate to fill this need. Lost from the Offensive team were Bill Bailey, tailback; Walter Bostic, guard; Leroy Cobb, tackle; and John Crew, center. From the defensive team three players graduated, Peter Crane, end; Churchill Grimes, end; and Bob Ellis safety.

Dropped from the squad for other reasons were Myles Hunnicutt, end; Skipper Oliver, fullback; Bill Livermore, tackle; Fella Rhodes, halfback, and Dwight Flanagan, safety.

From a physical stand point the team at this time looks as well as, if not better than any other.

Lettermen will be available except at offensive center defensive tackles and at safety, twenty-two returning from last year's squad. The experienced personnel includes 14 seniors and 9 juniors. Thirty sophomores from last year's undefeated freshman squad can be expected to bolster the chances of finding good replacements and depth.

The questionable spot in the backfield will be the tailback spot. Dennis Young, who played well last year at this position until he was injured during the Southern Illinois game, will be back but still must blossom as a regular.

The other backfield posts will have experienced men back from last year's team. If some of the sophomores come through, the 1967 offensive backfield could develop surprising depth.

The Offensive team should be as good as last year's and possibly better because of improved end play and experienced fullbacks and blocking backs.

Defense was too weak in 1966 and must be better this year in order to insure a winning season. Safety could be a problem, but other positions should be as strong or stronger than in '66.

Overall, 1967 will be better; but the ten-game schedule will be just as tough as the 1966 slate.

Red Sox Causes Commotion In Young American League

The Boston Red Sox under their new manager Dick Williams have caused quite a commotion so far in the young American League season. They have been solidly entrenched in the first division since opening day, and with their fiery manager at the helm, they hope to stay there.

The big worry for the club has been pitching, but with youngsters Jim Lonborg - already 7-2 -, Gary Waslewski, Bill "One-Hit" Rohr, and John Wyatt the future looks bright. The older pitchers are also showing their worth with Gary Bell, recently acquired and 2-0 so far as a Soxer, Dennis Bennett, Lee Stange, and Jose Santiago all pitching quite well. If the pitching holds up the Sox should be battling for the pennant.

Hitting has not been a problem with the Sox for many years, and this year is no different. Carl Yastremski has been hitting the ball very well, and recently socked his 15th homer of the year. Carl is also close behind in the race for most doubles and hitting average as he has been hitting the short left field wall at Fenway quite frequently. George Scott and Joe Foy, both prize rookies a year ago, have finally come off of slumps and have been hitting furiously in the last couple of weeks.

Shortstop Rico Petrocelli has also been playing excellent, despite the fact that he has had some arm trouble. Rico has been batting over .300 since opening day and surprisingly has already hit eight homers. Rookies Mike Andrews, Mike Ryan, and Reggie Smith have added new and exciting faces to the Sox lineup. Jose Tartabull has also been playing regularly, and he has inspired the Sox fans with his daring on base path.

The Red Sox are a different ball club. They are playing baseball with the hit and run, sacrifice, and squeeze; something that Boston clubs have not done in many years. Attendance has risen greatly and Bostonians are again becoming baseball conscious. If the pitching holds up, and the hitting continues, look for the Boston Red Sox near the top.

First Summer Session Enrollment Will Top Previous Records

East Carolina College officials expect another record-breaking on-campus enrollment for the summer session now under way.

By the time figures are in for special workshops and institutes, college officers say, the enrollment will top 4,300. The previous record, reached last summer, was 4,225.

In addition to the on-campus students, the Extension Division has already enrolled 1,424 students in various off-campus locations. That figure is expected to reach 2,500 by mid-August.

As in past summers, the on-campus enrollment includes many graduate students, among them a large number of teachers who are renewing teaching certificates or working toward advanced degrees.

Some 220 faculty members are teaching this summer's courses.

The summer term started June 5. Its first six-week session will close July 11; a second six-week session is scheduled July 12-Aug. 17.
