Fourteen Busted In College Hill Raid

By LARRY ZICHERMAN
Assistant News Editor

A top candidate for defensive team captain on next year's ECU football team was among 14 persons arrested in an extensive drug raid yesterday.

Jeffrey Warren, 21, a junior resident of Belk Dorm, is the Pirates' top returning linebacker. He was charged with one count of sale and possession of marijuana and one count of sale of cocaine.

The raid capped an undercover operation mounted jointly by the Greenville Police Department and the State Bureau of Investigation. The operation has been conducted over the last several months, according to Greenville Police.

In all, 12 students and two non-students were arrested on a total of 37 charges of drug-law violations, according to a police spokesman. SGA President Brett Melvin has attempted to secure bail for those students involved who were unable to secure it any other way.

"I became involved because it seems to me that this is the same type of operation as ABCAM, with an SBI agent moving into the dorm and posing as a student," said Melvin. "I feel that this type of investigation is wrong. Because of that, if there is anything the Executive Branch can do to help, we will do."

"Students were awakened at 5:30 a.m. They are students, and I don't think that it should have been handled that way, so we are doing whatever we can to help," continued the SGA president. "About all we can do is arrange for the bond of those who can't get it."

Melvin urged anyone who can assist in securing bail money or a bail bondsman to call him at the SGA offices.

Other students charged in the raid, according to police, were:

Steven Charles Pace, 18, of Jones Dorm, one count of sale and possession of LSD; one count of sale and possession of Methaqualone; one count of sale and possession of Quaaludes, and two counts of sale of cocaine.

Thomas Christopher Niver, 19, of Scott Dorm, one count of sale and possession of marijuana and one count of sale and possession of cocaine.

Timothy W. Gaye, age unknown, of Aycock Dorm, two counts of sale and possession of cocaine and two counts of sale of cocaine.

Steven W. Williams, 21, of Aycock Dorm, two counts of sale and possession of cocaine.

Stacey A. Duncan III, 20, of Scott Dorm, three counts of sale and possession of cocaine.

Benjamin Green, 20, of Aycock Dorm, one count of sale and possession of Quaaludes.

Orlando Nathaniel Jones, 20, of Scott Dorm, one count of sale and possession of marijuana and two counts of sale of marijuana.

New Hours Planned By Mendenhall For Spring

The Mendenhall Student Center staff has announced that the Student Center will have extended operating hours during Spring Semester exams.

Operating hours will be extended until 3:00 a.m. on Tuesday, April 29; Wednesday, April 30; Thursday, May 1; Sunday, May 4; and Monday, May 5. Nearly all areas of the Student Center will be open for use.

Areas which will be open until 3:00 a.m. include the reading room and music listening rooms, as well as the billiards center and table tennis center. Conference rooms will be available for group study upon request. A limited variety of school supplies will be on sale at the Information Center. The Snack Bar will be open from 10:00 p.m. until 2:00 a.m. in addition to its regular operating hours and will provide coffee and light snacks.

The Mendenhall Student Center has extended the hours for the purpose of facilitating both study and relaxation during exam period.

Whether students are looking for a quiet place to study or a pleasant place to relax, Mendenhall will be open for their use until 3:00 a.m. If response is good and students indicate that they want and need this service, extended hours during exams will probably become a standard practice.

Board of Trustees Approve Proposed Student Fee Increases

By TERRY GRAY
News Editor

The ECU Board of Trustees approved all proposed student fee increases in their Tuesday afternoon meeting, raising annual fee costs by about $76 per student.

Three attempts by SGA President Brett Melvin to reduce the amount of some increases died for lack of seconding motions. Melvin had asked to cut $3.50 from the $19.50-annually athletic fee increase, $1.00 from the $21.00 Health Services proposal and $5.50 from the Mendenhall Student Center's request.

Trustee Louis B. Singleton was the only board member to support the proposed cuts.

ECU Chancellor Thomas Brewer defended the increases, saying that current ECU fees were low in comparison to the other 15 universities in the UNC system, and that student services at ECU had been deteriorating due to inflation. According to Brewer, the fee hike will raise total student costs per year by 7.6 percent.

In other business, the board voted to change the name of the Wellington B. Gray Art Gallery, located in the Jenkins art building, to the East Carolina University Art Museum, Wellington B. Gray Gallery. Chancellor Brewer noted that the change was necessary for the university to qualify for certain types of federal grants.

The board also voted to buy smoke alarms that will be placed in dormitories.

Mr. Donald Lemish, vice chancellor for ECU's Office of Institutional Advancement and Planning, reported to the trustees that the university has received close to $4 million in research grants during the present fiscal year, and that alumni contributions were on the rise.

Dr. Elmer Meyer, vice chancellor for student life, reported that the school's program for handicapped students was going well, and that ten more handicapped students have applied for ECU admission. Meyer also noted that $4 million in financial aid has been paid out by the university in the present fiscal year, and that the number of applicants was rising.

Mr. Cliff Moore, vice chancellor for financial affairs, said that contracts to repair the roof of Minges Coliseum will be let on April 3. He also reported on the completion of new parking lots on campus and announced that ECU has acquired three houses near the school that will be razed to make room for more parking space.

After the meeting's official business, Dr. Walter J. Pories, Chairman of the surgery department at the ECU medical school, delivered a presentation on the treatment of obesity.

Taking it to the Air

Area Station Plans Forum

The recent drug bust at East Carolina University will be a topic of discussion on an area radio show Sunday night.

Twelve ECU students and two others were arrested in an early morning raid on College Hill Wednesday on charges ranging from marijuana sale to sale and possession of cocaine. The raid was an SBI-Greenville police joint operation.

Allen Handelman's Forum, which airs on WITN-FM 93 Sunday evenings from 10:00 p.m. until 1:00 a.m., will invite calls from anyone interested in talking about the ECU bust and the laws, attitudes, culture and paraphernalia surrounding drug use.

According to Handelman, the show will feature a nationally known expert on drug use or drug laws.

Handelman said Wednesday that due to such short notice, he was not able yet to name who the guest would be.

Three possibilities are Keith Stroph, founder of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML); Jim Lawson, a Massachusetts attorney with extensive experience in drug cases; or Larry Sloman, author of Reefer Madness, a book about the marijuana culture. All three are former guests on his show, said Handelman.

Handelman added that the telephone conversations will be aired between selections of rock music.

WITN-FM is located in Washington, N.C., but Handelman noted that Sunday evening telephone rates were low.

"If anyone calls in and our lines are tied up, we'll get their number and call them back," said Handelman. "That way they'll save the cost of waiting."

For anyone interested in talking with Handelman and his guest, the numbers are 946-2162 and 946-2163.

Price Of Education Keeping Abreast of High Inflation Rate

The same inflation that is squeezing family budgets is boosting the cost of going to college, with prices at some schools nearing the $10,000-a-year mark for the coming academic season.

The Chronicle of Higher Education recently reported that double-digit increases in prices for tuition, room and board will be common this fall. The average boost will be about 13 percent — about equal to the increase in the Consumer Price Index in 1979.

"We've been hit with inflation like everybody else," said Steve Kezerian of Yale University. "That, and higher energy costs and faculty salary increases."

A student at Yale during the 1980-81 academic year will face bills totaling a minimum of $9,110 — up 12 percent from this year's $8,140. The biggest chunk of the money — $6,120 — will go for tuition.

Prices generally are lower at public universities than they are at private ones, but the state schools are not immune from rising costs.

Officials at Florida State University in Tallahassee estimate that a student will spend an average of $3,990 next year on tuition, room and board, transportation, books and supplies and miscellaneous expenses. That's an increase of about 6 percent from this year. Dormitory rents alone are rising an average of $50 because of utility costs, the school said.

Ed Marsh, the financial aid director at the university, said the amount of money available to help students pay the bills has increased sharply. In 1978-79, he said, FSU provided $13.5 million in aid; this year, the school gave out $20 million, an increase of almost 50 percent. Marsh said he expected up to $23 million in aid would be available for the 1980-81 year.

"Forty-five percent to 55 percent of the students get financial aid now," said Marsh. "If you take a look at the cost of ... school, for the average family, it's got to present some kind of problem. Financial aid is not just for poor folks anymore."

The situation at Yale and Florida State is typical, according to an Associated Press spot check.

Robert H. Strotz, president of Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., announced recently that tuition for the 1980-81 year will be $5,985 — a 10.5 percent boost from this year. It is the 13th straight year of tuition increases. Strotz also said that room charges would increase by 14.5 percent and food bills would go up 11.2 percent.

William C. Tempelmeyer, Northwestern's housing director, said the increase in room and board charges was "the largest that I can recall." He blamed the rise on an assessment to pay for new dormitories and on higher utility rates, adding that water cost alone increased 67 percent this year.

Richard Conklin, a spokesman for the University of Notre Dame, said the school plans a 14 percent increase in tuition, although the amount of the boost must be approved by the board of trustees in May. The cost for room and board will increase about 17 percent. Overall, next year's students will pay $6,490 for tuition, room and board, compared to $5,630 this year.

"The main pressure point on us ... is that we're labor intensive," said Conklin. "It's all faculty salaries. Of course food and energy costs were a factor too. We're very successful in conserving energy, but we're paying more for it than we used to."

Conklin added: "Our student aid allocations are not really keeping pace with the percentage increase in tuition and fees and room and

Threat Of Trial Hovers Over Hostages

By The Associated Press

The majority of Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council wants to put the American hostages on trial if the shah and his fortune are not returned to Iran, the council's first secretary, Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, said today.

Famed Texas surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey was on his way to Egypt, meanwhile, apparently to operate on the exiled and ailing Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. Cairo newspapers said the shah's doctors have confirmed he has cancer of the spleen.

Beheshti, who also is Iran's justice minister, told reporters at his weekly news conference in Tehran that he advocates breaking diplomatic relations with the United States.

The ayatollah said trying the hostages is "the general idea in Iran" and most members of the Revolutionary Council are behind it if the shah is not brought back to stand trial for his alleged crimes. Pahlavi avoided extradition proceedings in Panama and flew to Cairo Monday.

The threat of such trials was raised often after young militants seized the U.S. Embassy last Nov. 4 but had not been made for many weeks. It was revived Monday by Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali, a leading revolutionary and former chief judge, who said that after the new Iranian Parliament meets those Americans accused of being spies would be judged by revolutionary courts and sent to prison if found guilty, while the others would be freed.

Tens of thousands of Iranians demonstrated outside the embassy Tuesday in support of the militants, and many signed a petition calling for hostage trials.

But Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said Tuesday there were no plans to try the Americans, and those demanding they be tried were "irresponsible people."

Ghotbzadeh said, however, that the shah "will either have to return to Iran" to face trial "or die." He did not elaborate.

He said the shah's flight to Egypt made the release of the hostages "extremely difficult" because it might turn more members of Iran's new Parliament against freeing them.

The 50 hostages were in their 144th day of captivity today.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the U.S. government was continuing "to examine available options that have not been exercised" to free the hostages. He said formal imposition of economic sanctions — essentially a symbolic gesture since U.S.-Iranian trade is virtually cut off — will "always be available as a non-violent option," but breaking relations with Iran would be counter-productive.

Cost Of Education Increases

board... We are trying to parcel out our existing funds to more people.

"Our market here has always primarily been a Catholic, middle-class market. We're concerned that we not price ourselves out of that market. But quality education is expensive."

Slippery Rock College in Pennsylvania now charges $950 a year for tuition and $1,210 for room and board. "We were told by the (Pennsylvania) secretary of education there would be a $150 increase in tuition (next year), but there is a move by some legislators to keep it where it is," said Pam Shingler, a spokeswoman for the state school. Ms. Shingler said the money the school gets from the state "is just not enough to cover the increase in expenses" for things like salaries, maintenance and the coal-fueled heating system.

C. Lee Winder, provost at Michigan State

University, said the school is waiting to find out how much money it will get from the Legislature before it determines 1980-81 fees. Winder added, however: "The economic indicators for this state are not very encouraging... It does seem fair to assume there will be an increase in tuition."

Winder said that tuition has risen by about 7.5 percent to 10 percent every year since 1976-77. It is now $1,250 for a full-time undergraduate who is a resident of Michigan and about double that much for a non-resident.

The increased costs of college have forced families to change their thinking about paying the bills. Joe Paul Case of the College Scholarship Service of the College Board said that most people use to finance college from accumulated savings and current savings. Today, he said, the money comes "from current income and accumulated future debt."

This Newspaper's Opinion

Throw Away The Axe?

Does a falling tree make a sound if no one hears it fall?

Apparently not, and it is discouraging. The time and effort that went into preparing and answering the recent SGA survey on student fee increases was, like it or not, a waste of time.

A broad cross-section of over 1600 students tried to send a message to the ECU board of trustees last week, via SGA President Brett Melvin's survey. With one notable exception, that distinguished group was in no mood for any such interference as they voted on the increases Tuesday.

Students are often criticized for their apathy. Everyone talks about involvement, about participation, about the so-called "student voice".

According to the SGA survey, a majority of ECU students voted "no" to most of the proposed hikes in their student fees, especially the 55 percent jump in athletic fees and the 45 percent jump in health services fees.

Now, that doesn't mean that the students are against the programs per se, or that they don't realize the pressure of inflation on program budgets. The important issue was the size of the increases. The message that students sent — the tree that fell — was that maybe the trustees could do a little trimming here and there.

Silence. Not a red cent was cut. Every single one of the proposed fee increases were approved carte blanche, despite Brett Melvin's almost symbolic attempts to cut a dollar here, fifty cents there. The only trustee who spoke out against the increases was Louis Singleton, who voted accordingly.

Chancellor Brewer sought to justify the vote by citing a "deterioration of services" on campus. Never mind that the student survey indicated a willingness to make certain sacrifices — we were going to get those services whether we wanted them or not.

People and politicians all across America are busy talking about belt-tightening and fiscal responsibility. ECU students tried to make it clear that they expected no less of some of their own service organizations, but most of the trustees ignored them.

The tree was a small one, and no one expected much of a crash. The discouraging part is that the effort to make even a small sound was, in a word, futile.

It's enough to make you want to throw away the axe.

Don't Trash Our Books

State government, which is not well known for its excessively efficient manner of doing business, has done itself one better — it is currently causing the unneeded waste of knowledge among students at its institutions of higher learning.

Recently, we reported that some students found a dumpster behind the library crammed full of old (and reportedly "worthless") books. Such a sight alarms us, because it was reported that because of certain governmental regulations, that was the only way that the books could have been disposed of.

Whose fault is it? It is certainly not the fault of Library Director Dr. Eugene Brunelle or any of his staff. They have consistently made efforts to build up a university library that we can all be proud of. To do this, it became necessary to move old and damaged volumes out and make room for new ones.

The library itself has tried in the past to give the books away to other state institutions, such as prisons and workshops for the handicapped, but those institutions usually don't want them. Students want the books, but the only way, it seems, for them to get them is to go rummaging through a trash dumpster after they have been thrown away.

The ideal would be to sell the books to used book dealers, and use whatever small proceeds that come from the sale to buy new books. This way, the books might possibly bring more money than they would if they were sent to a paper recycler.

Another possibility would be to give the books away to someone who could make use of them, such as state or county hospitals, nursing homes, or other institutions where people can benefit from them.

It seems to us, however, that an author's best efforts should be read and studied by as many people as possible.

To this end, then, no book should ever end up in a trash heap, solely because the state can't help find a better use for it.

Letters To The Editor

Writers Endorse Sherrod, Mann

To the Editor:

The usual excuses for not voting for student government officers range from "I didn't know when the elections were held" to "I did not know any of the candidates." I would be apt to use the latter. The elections are Wed., April 2, and I will not need an excuse. During this year, I found that Charlie Sherrod represented my opinions as a student at ECU and also supported our efforts to rebuild the North Carolina Student Legislature delegation at ECU. He is personable and shows concern for the individual student. As Student Government President, he will work to improve situations that will directly affect student life (improve the student banks, food service, parking, transit system ...) I needed more information about his year as Vice President of the SGA so he allowed me to look at his record. If you have any questions, he is glad to respond. As a student, it is your obligation to find out about the candidates and cast your vote to the student that will represent your opinions.

Support Of Mann Voiced

To the Editor:

I would ask all students concerned with the overall academic improvement of our University to support Mr. Drake Mann's effort in the upcoming SGA election.

I have known Mr. Mann as a student for two years and believe his desires to improve the scholarly activities of the ECU student body to be genuine. Mr. Mann would like to 1) increase student research activities by having allocations in the SGA budget for such and 2) improve the interchange between nationally and internationally recognized scholars and the constituency at ECU.

Selfishly, I would also like to see Mr. Mann's desires implemented. For these reasons, I ask all those concerned with improvements of the academic quality of student life to support him when voting on Wednesday.

A "Thank You" Would Have Been Sufficient

By ROBERT M. SWAIM

Seldom, as you faithful readers know, do I write a column and venture onto the editorial page of this newspaper where I have worked for the past four years. Only when the spirit moves me do I sit down at the typewriter and try to crank something out.

Well the spirit (or maybe the spirits) moved me at the Inter-Fraternity banquet this past Tuesday.

It was the typical banquet. If you've seen one you've seen them all.

I'm sure that everybody has noticed that during the course of the year this newspaper has gone to great pains to promote any and all IFC sponsored events, especially their concerts, happy hours, and rush. Never before has the newspaper devoted so much space, effort and time to the Greek system.

Thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of free advertising were donated to help make all of the IFC events a success. There is the strong feeling here that some if not most of the IFC events would have flopped had it not been for the tremendous promotion that the paper gave them.

We do not seek lavish praise for our efforts. However, we do feel that a very simple "thank you" was due the newspaper at the IFC banquet.

My mild disappointment turned into a furious rage when James B. Mallory, advisor to the IFC, took the podium and in his first remark attacked the newspaper referring to a story we had printed earlier as "garbage." "That's all it was, pure and simple garbage," said Mallory.

The spectacle of an administrator standing in front of a crowd of some five hundred people and calling the newspaper "garbage" was disgusting.

Mallory was quick in his condemnation of the newspaper that just a month ago editorially praised, defended, and commended Greeks on this campus.

It was even more distressing that my own fraternity brother, the outgoing IFC president, did not come to our defense and did not offer a thank you to the newspaper. The whole affair was a bitter pill to swallow.

The newspaper staff can recall many a night when the IFC president would come hot footing it into the newspaper office requesting, and at times almost demanding that we donate unbelievably large amounts of our space to accommodate the IFC, and we always did it.

For all of this we got no thanks, only an insult from Dean Mallory. There is no worse feeling than getting kicked in the teeth by the folks you've devoted so much help to.

I think it also appropriate here to give honorable mention to the Student Union.

I also attended that banquet. Again we have an organization that is heavily indebted to this newspaper for tons of free publicity.

With the exception of Charles Sune, no one at the Union, in my memory, has ever said "thank you" to the paper.

It was frustrating to sit there at that dinner and hear all the thank you's coming out; the notably absent thank you was the one due the newspaper.

Now more than ever, we know who our friends are, and, more importantly, we know who isn't. I have a long memory and I don't forget.

We will remember those who have abided by the golden rule of doing unto other as they do unto you, and we will remember even longer those who have not.

Televised Religion Pulls In The Masses And The Money

By CHARLES GRIFFIN
National News Bureau

Don't get me wrong. Religion is not such a bad thing. It should be observed or practiced in small doses, in private, away from small children who might be adversely affected by irrational adult behavior.

Religion should be whatever a person wants to believe, based on his or her personal study of whichever religious, or even philosophical, texts turn him on.

But that is not the way of the world. Religion is the property of a hierarchy, a special set of people who take the well-meaning words of ancient and safely-dead reformers, teachers, and philosophers and reinterpret them to suit the bends and twists of their own organization, their own goals and ambitions; these people do this to achieve power and wealth through the influence of God, Allah, Jesus, Ormazd, Buddha, Vishnu, Zeus, Thor, or Manitou, rather than through legality or any form of hard work.

The only differences between Billy Graham and Ruhollah Khomeini are their titles, their cultural backgrounds, and their targets or opportunity. Graham enjoys the friendship of presidents and the fruits of that association in a country that attempts to maintain a separation of church and state. Khomeini has spent his life in opposition to a ruler who led a state founded and deeply dependent upon religion. In attempting to shed the bonds of religion to a small degree and modernize Iran, the Shah destroyed the base of the religious leaders who supported him, and failed to consider the ability of the opposition to overcome him.

In the United States, a man like Graham or Jim Jones is free to exploit religion without having to worry about the government. Although politicians court the favor of religious leaders, they are not at liberty to tax or comment upon their activities. The same is not true in a nonsecular government such as that of Iran or Saudi Arabia. There the revenue and the legislation of the nation are often inextricably bound to the rules and leadership of the national religion.

That Jones went off the deep end should not be considered an exception by any means. There are a number of charismatic leaders of religious movements who have been accused of or confessed to behavior that is — according to their own precepts — less than ideal.

Graham can easily be said to be the best known and least offensive evangelist in the world. He may also be the richest. Wealth in itself should not condemn a man or his movement, but the men by whose words most of humanity live led their lives close to austerity. No holy man in history that I can recall ever set any store by what he could acquire for himself; what benefit came his way went directly out to others. Even Mohammed, whose creed encouraged plunder and slavery, kept little for himself when spoils were divided, but spent his portion for the religion.

Contrast that to the head of a "Television Ministry" whose organization was in financial trouble recently; he readily accepted, from a follower, a love gift of a new house that cost about three times as much as the $50,000 home he had for the needs of him and his wife.

Of course, he made a television appeal for more money. And he got what he asked for. In the United States, it seems to be easy to raise money for religious purposes if you use the radio or television.

A few months ago, while I was changing channels on a Sunday morning, I flipped past the face of a grown man crying. I switched back to see what tragedy had taken place.

He was saying: "Friends, we must have your help if we are to continue our worldwide ministry. All or programs will go down the tubes if you do not send money now. There is a toll-free number at the bottom of your screen. Call it now. We have young men and women waiting for your call around the clock. They will take your pledge as soon as you call. You don't even have to have cash. Just tell them your Master Charge or Visa card number and how much you want to give. We will do the rest."

And he was crying all the time. I suppose he cried on the way to the bank, too.

When things get quiet and attendance and donations drop at your hole-in-the-wall Church of the Blessed Redeemers Savings and Loan, the resident witch doctor figures it is time to have a revival. He calls in a hot young speaker to bring in the members and raise their spiritual emotions and lift their monetary burdens.

Any fakir, priest, monk, preacher, or reverend doctor who is in the business to make a living is a parasite, or a con artist with a legal scam. It was Robert Heinlein who wrote that the profession of shaman was the most lucrative and least productive of any that man had ever invented.

These are the people who always want to set your morals, to plan and guide your education, to tell you whom to love and how, to tell you who should lead you, and with whom you should war. And for the favor, you get to support them in a style you will never be able to afford.

But you get your reward in heaven, don't you?

As bad as it is, it could be worse. Look at the governments and standards of living in countries that are ruled by or heavily influenced by a priesthood: Iran, India, Spain, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia, Turkey, and Bangladesh, just to mention a few. Other third world countries with as many problems have reactionary governments that are as harsh as they are because of their opposition to the entrenched and fanatical religion inhabiting their nation.

At some time, you will read or hear someone say that Khomeini is sincere in his faith and does not understand the twentieth century. I say, BULLSHIT!

One of the strictest prohibitions of Mohammed was the use of images, the idolatry of some living individual. Khomeini and his ilk — the power- and money-hungry opportunists of the Moslem world — parade and plaster their faces whenever and wherever they can.

The Koran be damned. If you are going to pull in the masses, you need a good press and an excellent photographer.

Jack Daniels Silver Cornet Band performed Monday evening taking the audience back to the Charleston and Dixieland Jazz eras.

Daniels Gives Intoxicating Performance

By MARK KEMP
Staff Writer

All the posters said Mr. Jack Daniels was coming. But all I knew of Jack Daniels was his smooth, and mellow whiskey for which he's so famous.

So Jack Daniels was coming ... coming where for God's sake? Hell, he comes to see me most every weekend. Unfortunately, this was probably the reaction of most other students. The show just didn't get the correct type of promotion.

As I wandered into the auditorium that evening, it was as if I had walked up to a small-town, outdoor gazebo some time during the latter part of the 19th century. A grey-haired fellow was sitting in a rocking chair casually talking to the audience as if he were an old friend. He gossiped about Mr. Jones and Mrs. Smith and told of church meetings and the square dance scheduled for Friday night on the old town square.

After a few minutes, a group of casually dressed men and one woman walked on stage with their instruments. They looked as if they had just walked away from a hard day's work — farming, smithing, or whatever. As they sat down with their instruments, the old fellow approached them. After he introduced them, the excitement began to build.

These fellows may have looked like laid-back old farmers, but believe me, they were all fine musicians in their own rights. They played the best turn-of-the-century cultural music I have had the pleasure of hearing in quite a while.

Dave Fulmer, the grey-haired man, is the recreator of the band. He is a historian, a musician, an actor, and a writer. With a grant from the Jack Daniels Distillery, Fulmer researched the old original band for about three years, eventually recreating an almost exact replica. As the lead character of the show and the conductor of the band, Fulmer made Tuesday evening a memorable event. Unfortunately, the turnout was sadly disappointing.

The band played a few old ragtime tunes such as "Dixie," and other later songs like "The Charleston." Between songs you could hear the quiet chirping sounds of crickets in the background. It set the mood for some of the quieter,

Carrboro Company Faces Misconceptions

By PAM KELLEY
Daily Tarheel Staff Writer

Reprinted, with permission, from The Daily Tarheel, March 19, 1980.

At first glance, the vice president of sales' office looks rather nondescript.

A large desk occupies most of the space, and bookshelves line part of one wall. Most people wouldn't be able to figure out what kind of product the company sells. Unless, of course, they notice the large orange vibrator on top of the bookshelves.

The vice president of sales is O.C. Bushnell. The company he works for is Adam & Eve. It claims to be America's largest mail-order retailer of contraceptive products, and it is located right in UNC's back yard — on U.S. Highway 54 West outside Carrboro.

Through advertisements sent to the 500,000 people on its mailing list and placed in about 100 publications ranging from Penthouse to Psychology Today, Adam & Eve sells a variety of condoms, vibrators, sexy lingerie and sex manuals. Bushnell estimates the company sold between 3.5 million and 4 million condoms last year alone and grossed $4 million-$5 million in total sales.

Despite the risqué nature of Adam & Eve's wares, Bushnell maintains that the company itself is quite conservative. Its product line is pretty tame compared to the products of some sexual paraphernalia companies.

"Some customers want more graphic things than we sell or care to," he says. "People have a misconception about us. They think we must be a swinging place to work for. But we don't have any orgies in the back room."

Even though some people may judge Adam & Eve as a swinging place, Bushnell says its office on Highway 54 has never received complaints from local residents — about what it sells or anything else. "We're well-liked in the neighborhood," he says.

And Adam & Eve is liked with good reason. It employs 40 full-time and 40 part-time people from the Chapel Hill-Carrboro area and also contributes to local charities, such as Carolina Challenge and United Way.

Bushnell says he's sure the company is accepted much more readily today than it would have been 20 years ago. He doesn't get negative responses from acquaintances to whom he explains the nature of his work, and he even explained what he does at a recent family reunion. He's still a member of the family.

Even though Carrboro residents don't seem to mind their unusual neighbor, both Carrboro and North

Health. They were working on their master's degrees and were testing new ways of promoting and distributing birth control products. Prior to 1970, no one had considered distributing contraceptives by mail, but those students made studies which shows that such underdeveloped countries such as India and Kenya, was an outgrowth of that project and is still run by one of the UNC graduates. Although Adam & Eve also grew out of Population Services International, it is independent now and attempts to make a profit.

The company purchases its line of products from many different manufacturers, but it doesn't actually produce anything. In its offices, orders are processed, put in packages (the standard plain brown wrappers) and shipped to customers.

Adam & Eve once worked out of a warehouse in Carrboro, but it outgrew its space there and moved to its present site in 1978. The company sells by mail, but Bushnell says if a customer makes the trip out to Adam & Eve's offices, employees will sell products directly even though it interrupts their processing system.

Adam & Eve has been successful because it offers unusual and high quality merchandise, Bushnell says. Customers like the privacy of the mail, and they can call in orders toll free. Everything carries a money-back guarantee, too.

The company's product line has expanded since it began operating.

Besides carrying condoms of every style, shape and size, Adam & Eve features products such as edible panties, jaguar-print santin sheets and crotchless panty hose in its full-color catalogue.

"But contraceptives remain a major part of our product line and corporate philosophy," Bushnell says. "We want to make condoms fun, part of lovemaking instead of just a drag. If people are having fun, whether they know it or not, they're using contraceptives. And there will be less unwanted children."

Bushnell, along with other employees, tries to think of just about every way possible to make condoms fun. Although they don't manufacture them, they suggest ideas to companies that do. Their best selling products, Bushnell says, are Score, a condom designed with "pleasure probes," and Texture Plus, another condom billed as "a perfect blend of contraceptive and French tickler."

Even though economists predict a recession, Bushnell says condom sales may even increase during bad times. His rationale: "If you're out of a job, you have more time to fool around, and you don't want any more children."

"People have a misconception about us. They think we must be a swinging place to work for. But we don't have any orgies in the back room."

Carolina seem unlikely locations for a national sexual paraphernalia company. Adam & Eve came to be located in Carrboro simply because it was the outgrowth of a research project begun in 1970 by two UNC students in the School of Public distribution would be well received.

"The principle was to market birth control, to make it a desirable product," Bushnell says. Population Services International, a non-profit organization that distributes contraceptives in overpopulated and

'Coal Miner's Daughter' Review

By ANDREA DIEHL
National News Bureau

"Coal Miner's Daughter" is a diamond in the rough — romantic, yet sharp and tough, sparkling through the dirt. That the film is an almost gem is a tribute to the woman upon whose life it is based, Loretta Lynn.

Hers is not a difficult story to translate to film: Dirt-poor coal miner's daughter falls in love with older boy, gets married at age 13, is a mother of four at age 18 and of twins years later, starts with a guitar and her husband's dream and becomes a country music superstar, her innocence, basic goodness and Butcher Hollow accent in abundance, answering questions about how it feels to have one's life up on the screen.

"I didn't see the movie until three weeks ago," says Lynn, "when me and my husband walked in alone and watched the movie. The only scene I could remember after is of me cooking at the stove. I guess the rest was just too close."

Loretta Lynn draws her tiny frame closer in the overstuffed chair, and tucks a jeans leg under. A denim vest covers a flowered shirt; her leather boots are not quite Western. She wears a necklace with the initials IWMAO on it, a reply to those who ask how she got where she did ("I worked my ass off"). She does not look like a woman who has had six children, nor like a superstar.

Neither does Sissy Spacek, who plays Loretta in the movie. Spacek perches on a cane chair a suite away in the Essex House in New York. Her hair, dyed brown in an attempt to make Sissy look even somewhat like Loretta ("It was more important that someone talk like me and was like me," says Loretta), is back to its natural straight blonde. Her eyes are watery blue, and she wears no makeup, not even lipstick. She looks like a wisp of a 16-year-old, trapped temporarily in the worldly garb of a white silk shirt, grey corduroy pants and a cowboy belt. A blue sweater is loosely tied, preppy-style, around her shoulders; a gold tank watch and several rings are the only evidence that this is no teenage waif.

After a day with Loretta again, Sissy's old Texas-born twang has switched to Kentucky-style speaking. "It's much harder to stop talking like Loretta than to start," she says with a giggle. She adds that, while catching Loretta's speaking style was easy, hooking into her famed singing style was a bit less so, even though Spacek had been sing-

'Book-Trader' Has New Idea

By ROBERT ALBANESE
Assistant Features Editor

There's a store in Greenville where you can buy "Freak Brothers" and other underground comics, select from back issues of the National Lampoon, and buy best sellers for 60 percent of the cover price — the "Book-Trader" on Dickinson Avenue.

"I used to teach school," explains proprietor Mary Atkeson, "and then I had a baby. I didn't want to give her up to a baby-sitter, and I wanted a business that would let me keep her with me. So I opened the 'Book-Trader and Nostalgia Newsstand' over on Evans Street. Now I have this store, a nicer one in Rocky Mount, and I'm thinking about another one."

Atkeson has a selection of some 20,000 paperbacks, including best-sellers, romance novels, mysteries, science fiction and classics. She doesn't buy books, but she'll give you 20 percent of the cover price of the book toward a trade. Throughout the business day, customers come into her small, "no frills" store with armfuls of paperbacks they want to exchange for works they haven't read yet.

"I got the idea for this kind of store in Jacksonville (N.C.), where servicemen brought it back with them from Europe," explained Atkeson. "This is already very popular over there, and as the price of pulp for paper rises, it'll get more popular here."

Comic collectors and amateurs can go to the "Book-Trader" and choose from the largest comic book selection in the state east of Charlotte. Available are some titles from the 'Silver Age' of comics; some early editions of The Incredible Hulk, The X-Men, and The Avengers, for example. These collector's items can be had for $10 to $20 per copy.

"There are two kinds of people who buy The Hulk, Atkeson commented. "Either they're young kids or older, mature collectors."

"I don't make a lot of money," she continued, "but I am able to pay the rent. We do get a lot of books in. One advantage to running this type of operation is that you get books that have gone out of print. That's almost impossible to do otherwise."

Atkeson, the wife of ECU history professor John Atkeson, recently sold a romance novel to a publishing firm in California. "Now I'm working on a science fiction short story," she said, "which I'm pretty excited about. I'm going to send it to Isaac Asimov."

A European idea has come to Greenville, and if you have champagne reading tastes on a draft budget, its time has come. Vive la paperback!

SGA Elections '80

Election Procedures

The election for 1980 SGA officers will be held on Wednesday, April 2. Students may vote in the following polling places: Allied Health Building, Student Supply Store, the Croatan, Minges Coliseum, Mendenhall Student Center, and all residence halls. Election results are expected to be announced on the same night.

Candidates For President

Drake Mann

Student government has got problems. It has for several years, but if I can help it, it won't next year. For three years I have worked hard in the SGA's Judicial Branch and have carefully studied the other branches of student government. I know where things work and how they work. As attorney general, I have made sure that the judiciary has been freed of its past political ties. My work as chairman of the Joint Judicial Board has resulted in a reorganized Judicial Handbook and the formation of a new board which will check the activities of the University Police bi-weekly. Never before have steps like this been taken.

If students see a candidate with reasonable realistic goals they will support him. Here is my platform. I will push for an East Carolina student seat on the Greenville Utilities Commission. I would like to cure the transit problems by buying used city buses to replace the long-distance equipment we now have. We don't need a new version of the old problem. There should be a Student Research Forum to fund student independent research. If the administration won't do it, we need to support student scholarship ourselves. The SGA administration should work to replace the walk-in vending machines like Soda Shop No. 2 with worthwhile food facilities. Along this line, Allied Health recently held a holistic health conference which captured the spirit of the progressive changes that students today want.

We need to unite with all facilities of the university to make our work at East Carolina valuable.

Charles Sherrod

We all know that politicians at the school level are disgusting. In many cases they are some of ECU's inferior students that perform in a manner that has given our student government a stinking reputation.

Last year I won vice-president claiming to be a positive-activist. During my term I personally had four wrecker services to lower rates for towing by $10.00. With the help of the Washington, D.C.

Police Department, wheel boots now appear to be a good alternative I proposed to replace tow trucks. My idea to open Mendenhall parking lot to all student vehicles was accepted. By becoming a Notary Public I have already saved the students $100.00 and by changing the academic catalogue student teachers now have better working rights. A Fall Break now is closer to reality due to my efforts.

These accomplishments could have been done by anyone if they were willing to work to improve the East Carolina Way of Life. When you vote Wednesday consider that my accomplishments are concerned with the day-to-day problems we face as students. Don't accept the garbage, the important issues are where can I park, will I get towed, or is the bus coming so I can save the gas in my car that costs $2.00 a gallon.

I ask everyone to find someone who knows me and find out if Charlie Sherrod is deserving of your vote. I believe they will tell you that I dispense with the crap and try to alleviate the little headaches we face day-to-day as students in college.

They will tell you that I am a positive-activist.

Candidates For Vice-President

Lynn Calder

From having been in the legislature for two years as dorm and day representative, and having been SGA secretary this year, I've acquired an understanding of student government and the vice-presidential position. One of the most important factors is that the vice-president has time to work with students. There are very few specific responsibilities of the job, and this officer has the opportunity to take up student gripes and problems and concentrate on resolving them. One of the definite duties of the vice-president is working on the Athletic Council, which is a chancellor's advisory committee. With the newly passed athletic fee increase, I'm excited about the possibility of having an input in the way these fees are used in behalf of students. I hope that the increase can be used partially in behalf of women's sports and the Marching Pirates as well as supporting current programs.

The most important goal that I have for student government and East Carolina is the initiation of innovative and imaginative ideas. So many new concepts and concrete changes, such as a more pro-student book buying policy by faculty and the book store, can be put into effect with a little dedication. I am sincerely ready to be dedicated to the job of vice-president, as I have been to SGA for the past three years. Also, with this past experience as well as being from Greenville, I have become acquainted with campus administration and feel I can work with them successfully. I have great confidence in SGA and what it can accomplish for students; and I'm very optimistic about a positive 1980-81 Student Government Association.

Al Patrick

As a general class of people, vice-presidents have not been noted for their excitement for their job nor has the office itself ever accomplished anything noteworthy. This has not been the case with the job of SGA vice-president nor should it be allowed to be. I am excited about the job of vice-president and will continue to be excited about it. My two years experience in the legislature have been productive ones and they have shown me that hard work is the way to accomplish necessary goals. I propose to use this experience as I have in the past to further the best interests of the students of ECU.

The welfare of the students at ECU has long been a major concern of mine. Relying upon my two years experience as chairman of the Student Welfare Committee, I feel that through the office of vice-president, a productive relationship can be established and nurtured between the executive and legislative branches.

I feel that through my invaluable prior experience, I am aware of the needs of the students. I promise to continue this awareness and to enhance it by the maintenance of an open door policy. Students' needs have always come first with me and will continue to do so.

SGA Elections '80

Candidate For Secretary

Marianne Edwards

My name is Marianne Edwards, and I am running, with no opposition, for the SGA office of secretary. I feel the best way to demonstrate my abilities as a secretary is to tell you of my experience as one. I have worked in the office of the Secretary of the Army located in the Pentagon. There I received high recommendations from both the Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization and the Assistant Secretary of the Army's office (Civil Works). Presently, I am the Administrative Assistant for the Alpha Phi Sorority. This elected office deals primarily with secretarial duties.

For two years now, I have served in the legislative positions of dorm and day student representatives. I have also served on the Rules and Judiciary Committee as secretary for two years.

If elected to the office of SGA secretary, I will be available to the students to listen and help them in any way I can.

Thank you! Vote Marianne Edwards for SGA secretary.

Candidates For Treasurer

Danny O'Connor

Like most students, I am tired of hearing promises from politicians who have no intention of fulfilling their campaign obligations. I am not a politician. I have never served in the legislature, and I'm not a part of any political faction. It's time for an outsider, one who has the knowledge of the job to be done, as SGA treasurer. I have that knowledge and the needed fresh insights.

In order for anyone to be an effective leader, they must first make the necessary commitment of time.

The SGA treasurer must be available to all students. This may seem elementary, but I think it's worth mentioning. Too often student leaders have failed to carry out this fundamental responsibility.

The SGA Confidential Loan Fund or the Abortion Loan Fund, as it is more commonly known, is basically sound, although the procedure for acquiring such a loan badly needs revamping. It is not necessary for the SGA treasurer to be involved in the approval of such loans. The legislature has already established the loan fund. After a licensed physician has verified the pregnancy, the treasurer need only be responsible for the dispersal of funds. The least "governmental" involvement is best.

The SGA Emergency Fund needs to be expanded to meet the needs of today's students. I propose using some of the additional revenues that will be received from the unfortunate recent increase in student fees to provide more emergency loans and to increase the maximum amounts to $35 each.

The position of SGA treasurer is in need of new blood. I believe I am that new blood. The "debating society" image of SGA needs to be changed. As an outsider I believe I can work to destroy the club image and establish an organization that will benefit all students.

Kirk Little

Historically, the job of SGA treasurer has consisted of making periodic reports to the Legislature, signing checks, and being one of the three members of the Summer Legislature. These and other duties are entrusted to the treasurer by the SGA Constitution. I propose to continue to carry out these duties in addition to relying upon my legislative experience to further serve the needs of the students.

Paramount among the needs of the students is a revamping of both the SGA Confidential Loan Fund and the Emergency Loan Fund. It is imperative that the Confidential Loan Fund be restructured to virtually guarantee complete and total confidentiality and at the same time speed up what appears to be mind-boggling bureaucracy. The Emergency Loan Fund needs to be examined to ascertain a more efficient method of collection of past-due loans.

The SGA has had to "write-off" too many of these past-due loans from their books, loans that are derived from student fees.

The SGA Legislature this past year appropriated in excess of $100,000 of student fees. Too often the Legislature was unsure of the circumstances surrounding a bill and, on occasion, even how much money it had left to appropriate.

Through my experiences as both a legislator and a class president, I realize these problems and will work with the Legislature to alleviate them in a cooperative and productive atmosphere.

Odom Gets Extension And Increase

By CHARLES CHANDLER
Sports Editor

The contract of East Carolina basketball coach Dave Odom has been extended and increased, it was announced yesterday by Athletic Director Bill Cain.

"We're very proud of what Coach Odom has done," Cain said. "I'm glad to say that we can reward him with a salary increase."

Odom's reward came after his first ECU team finished a surprising 16-11 last season, the first winning mark in five years for the Pirates.

The happening is welcome news to persons concerned with the Pirate program as there had been little or no satisfaction with ECU basketball for nearly five years before Odom's arrival last summer as the new head coach. He replaced controversial Larry Gillman.

Cain mentioned that the event was big news. "People won't believe it," he said jokingly. "an East Carolina basketball coach who gets his contract extended instead of cut."

Odom is the third head coach at East Carolina in four years. If yesterday is any indication, he may last quite some time.

"Coach Odom has laid a strong foundation," said Cain. "We look forward to the future of Pirate basketball with enthusiasm."

Odom, naturally, was happy with the news. "I'm elated," he claimed, "that the administration and athletic council have shown pleasure with the job we've done."

"I take this extension on behalf of everybody who worked with the program so diligently this past season—especially the staff and the players."

The ex-Wake Forest aide gave much of the credit for the team's success to his young, but hard-working assistant coaches. "We must have the most sincere, hard-working young coaches in the country," he said. "I wouldn't trade them for any three assistants anywhere."

Odom's aides are George Felton, an ex-South Carolina Gamecock; Eddie Payne, once a star guard at Wake Forest; and David Pendergraft, the youngest of the three and a former player at Catawba.

"It's something the way they work together," said Odom. "It's really amazing how close they are to one another after having worked together for only one year. It's almost like one is an extension of the other."

The always-modest Odom also gave credit to the Pirate players for their efforts in the recent successes.

"The guys did all we asked of them," he proclaimed. "I especially want to pay tribute to our seniors. They wanted to go out on a good, classy note and I feel they most certainly did."

The five seniors that Odom spoke of included the team's top three scorers and two of the top three rebounders. Their loss creates a void that Odom and his staff must fill.

"This is a crucial recruiting year for us," he said. "We have to get some guys in here who can help right away because of the loss of five players."

Odom commented that the 1980-81 Pirate schedule would resemble the one from this past season. "They should look a lot alike," he said. "It should, though, have more a traditional flavor. It will also be more balanced as we won't have as many voids in it as last year."

Odom also claimed that it was a necessity that the Pirates follow up this year's success with another winning season next year. "We must establish a tradition," he claimed. "We will be young but it is imperative that we have a winning season."

Two recruits have already committed themselves to the Pirates and several others are on the verge of it. Jeff Best, 6-8 from C.B. Aycock, and Quan Roseboro, a guard transfer from Florida, are both commitments.

Softball Team Takes Double

By JIMMY DuPREE
Assistant Sports Editor

East Carolina outlasted Pembroke State 8-7 in the second game of a Tuesday doubleheader after downing the visitors 7-2 in the opener.

Third sacker Maureen Buck opened the second game with a drive which shot past the PSU leftfielder for a triple. A single by Yvonne Williams drove Buck to the plate and freshman Mitzu Davis whipped a triple down the right field line to plate Williams.

The Pirate offensive continued with freshman Cynthia Shepard legging out another triple to score Davis. Shirley Brown's single to left drove Shepard in for the final ECU run of the inning.

Pembroke leadoff L. Huntley scored their only run of the inning after reaching base on an error and was driven in on a single by P. Lee. Freshman catcher Fran Hooks opened the second with a single and later scored on a single by pitcher Angie Humphrey.

Davis reached first on an error to open the third and Shepard followed with a single to left. Robin Faggart's single cleared the bases as the Pirates took a commanding 7-1 lead, but Pembroke State had not made the trip to surrender without a fight.

The visitors made their first assault on East Carolina in the fourth with four runs on just one single and a pair of costly errors by the Pirates.

Humphrey, who was credited with her first win of the season, reached first on an error in the fourth and crossed the plate on a later error on Williams drive to the second baseman.

Pembroke continued to cut at the East Carolina lead, scoring a run in the sixth on three singles and another in the decisive seventh three consecutive errors by the Pirate defense.

ECU survived the seventh despite runners on first and second with momentum in Pembroke State's favor.

The first game was a domination by the Lady Pirates from the initial pitch.

Senior first sacker Teresa Whitley came through in the first inning with a two-out single to drive in Davis and Shepard. Davis forced an error by the PSU second sacker and Shepard followed with a single.

Shepard again singled in the third and scored on a single by freshman Ginger Rothermel.

Pembroke plated the first of their pair of runs in the fourth on a single by K. Little, another by M. Hinton and a sacrifice by P. Lee.

East Carolina's bats remained silent until Davis, an all-state prepster from Taylorsville, pounded out the first of her triples. Steady Shepard Davis across the plate with a sacrifice as the Lady Pirates padded their lead at 4-1.

Sophomore shortstop Mary Powell and freshman leftfielder Terry Andrews singled to open the sixth for ECU. Powell scored on a sacrifice by Williams and Andrews crossed home when Hooks reached first on an error. Hooks tallied the final Pirate run on a single by Shepard.

D. McMillan singled in the visitors half of the seventh scored on A. Blake's single to right, but it was too little too late as ECU senior Mary Bryan Carlyle picked up her third win in as many outings. She also earned a save in the second game as she came on in relief of the victorious Humphrey in the fifth.

"We certainly made more than our share of the errors in that second game," said coach Altona Dillon. "Errors get to be kind of contagious."

"If you play poorly and still win, then you know you're going to be all right."

East Carolina, now 5-0 on the season, travels to Cullowee to compete in the Western Carolina Tournament Friday and Saturday.

Wolfpack Shuts Out ECU Women

The East Carolina women's tennis team lost to N.C. State 9-0 Tuesday — at least that's what the history books will show. The lady Pirate netters may have gained a moral victory in the process, though.

"They played their hearts out and played the very best they could," said a satisfied ECU Head Coach Barbara Olschner. "That's hard for an athlete to say, that they played their best even though they lost."

One singles match typified the Pirates' overall effort.

In the first flight match, ECU's Lynn Grosvenor was defeated by Suzanne Nirschl 4-6, 7-5, 6-1. After Grosvenor had won the opening set, she built a 5-4 lead in games in the second set and needed only one point to win the set and the match.

On the next serve, Grosvenor hit a cross-court approach shot to Nirschl's backhand. Nirschl's return shot hit the tape and bounced away from Grosvenor and the game went to deuce. Nirschl eventually won both that game and the set, then went on to win the match.

In other singles play, Karen Jeffreys lost to Sarah Harmer 6-0, 6-1; Laura Redford was ousted by Susan Sadri 6-1, 6-2; Debbie Christine was defeated by Inza Walston by identical 6-1 scores; Claire Baker fell to Dawn Maybeck 7-5, 6-2; and Karen Legette was downed by Carol Knapp 6-3, 6-2.

Olschner commented that she felt the Pirates could have won at the number one, four or five position in the singles competition.

The doubles action found State's Sadri and Nirschl defeated Redford and Grosvenor 6-0, 6-0 in the first flight matchup.

The second flight pair provided the most entertainment of the match as State's Harmer and Walston edged by Christine and Baker 7-6, 2-6, 6-4. The match took two hours to complete as each side took turns controlling the action.

State's Maybeck and Knapp came out on top over Hannah Adams and Jeffreys 6-1, 6-3 in the final event of the afternoon.

State Assistant Coach Chuck Fahrner stated, "Today they (State's women) may've had a little more experience to draw on."

"We've scheduled some of the toughest teams around," he continued. "We're happy for our team to play well and get a victory."

State picked up its first win of the season after two defeats. ECU dropped to 0-4.

Maynor, Krusen In Tourney

PIRATE POOP:

East Carolina basketball senior stars George Maynor and Herb Krusen are competing this weekend in the Portsmouth Invitational Tournament, a four-day gathering of outstanding college senior players.

Eight teams of the all-stars play in the tournament, which is set up to benefit some of the country's better players that are not considered to be first round draft choices.

"This is a springboard for some of the lesser-touted kids," said PIT committee member Lindell Wallace. "We have scouts here from nearly all the NBA teams and many from the Continental League overseas."

Wallace said the tourney was strictly for the benefit of the players. "We hope to give them the chance to show the scouts what they can do," he said. "Many of them will go on to the NBA and most of the rest will play somewhere."

Last season ECU's Greg Cornelius participated in the event and was successful enough that he plays now in the professional league in Italy.

Some of the more recognized names in the tourney come from the North Carolina Tar Heels of the Atlantic Coast Conference. No less than four Tar Heel seniors, all of the Heels' seniors except Mike O'Koren, are participating.

UNC's Dave Colescott, John Virgil, Jeff Wolf and Rich Yonaker join UCLA's Gig Sims, N.C. State's Clyde "The Glide" Austin, Carl Nicks of 1979 NCAA runnerup Indiana State, Jonathon Moore of Furman, James Tillman of Eastern Kentucky and South Carolina's Cedric Hordes and others in the four-day event.

The competing players are divided into eight teams, all sponsored by different Portsmouth, Va. merchants. Krusen and Maynor's team played last night (Wednesday) with three other clubs.

The winners of the two games move on to further competition and are allowed to pick up two players each from the two losing teams. Players on the losing teams who are not picked up are finished for the tourney.

Performing impressively in the Portsmouth tourney is most important to the 6-3 Maynor.

The leading Pirate scorer in 1979-80 with a 17.0 average, Maynor must soon decide whether to sign with the NBA's Chicago Bulls (who drafted him as a "future" in the fifth round last year) or to place his name back in the draft for this year.

"If George plays well," said ECU coach Dave Odom, "he will wait and let his name go back in because his stock will have risen. If not he will probably go ahead and sign with Chicago."

The Bulls are quite interested in signing Maynor said Odom and they have made him an attractive offer. Already playing with Chicago is Maynor's ex-ECU running mate at guard, Oliver Mack.

Lady Pirate basketball whiz Kathy Riley is in the running for the U.S. Olympic women's team.

Riley was one of over 200 girls invited to the Olympic tryouts and is now one of the final 25 in the running. Twelve regulars and three alternates will be selected for the squad. Already secured a place on the squad is Nancy Lieberman of national champ Old Dominion and ex-Player of the Year Carol Blazekowski, among others.

Recruiting for the ECU basketball coaching staff is in full gear now. Already committed to the Pirates is guard Quan Roseboro, a Florida U. transfer and 6-8 Jeff Best of C.B. Aycock High School.

St. Augustine Wins

By ALEX CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

A very talented St. Augustine tennis team defeated the ECU mens' squad 9-0 yesterday at the Minges Courts.

As often occurs in tennis, the team score does not indicate the individual match scores. That was the case in yesterday's match. Every Pirate netter played hard and "hung in there all the way," commented Coach Rose.

In the number one singles bracket, Kenny Love fell to Tony Mmoh 6-0, 6-3. Mmoh is an All-American in the NCAA Division II ranks and the number two player for the Nigerian Davis Cup team.

At the number two spot, ECU's Henry Hostetler lost to Bullus Hussaini (the number four Davis Cup player from Nigeria) 6-2, 6-3.

In other singles action, Keith Zengle was dropped by Arthur Drumwright 6-2, 6-4; Ted Lepper gave Abu Abdullahi, the defending West African National Junior Champion, a run for the money before losing 6-4, 7-5; Mark Byrd was set back in a close match by Sanjeen Kassar 4-6, 6-4, 6-1; and Barry Parker lost to Ivo Niosa 6-3, 7-6.

In doubles, the number one ECU team of Hostetler and Love lost to Mmoh and Hussaini 3-6, 6-2, 6-4; Zengle and Lepper were edged by Drumwright and Abdullahi 6-3, 7-6 (5-0); and Parker and Norman Bryant were defeated by Kassar and Niosa 6-2, 6-2.

Semopr Hostetler felt it was a good match. "We could have played better, though," he claimed.

The Pirates, 2-3 on the season, play today at UNC-Wilmington. The next home match will be Sunday, against Slippery Rock College at 1:30 p.m. on the Minges courts.

mellow songs. One very interesting song was a kind of instructional number called, "How To Build A Band." It was a humorous song featuring every group of instruments on solo ventures. The two sets were somewhat chronologically arranged so that the audience could detect changes in style. They covered just about everything from old war songs like "Bill Bailey" to improvisational jazz to smalltown songs about whiskey stills. Most of original band's hometown, Lynchburg, Tenn.

I know a lot of students at ECU are into nothing but sex, drugs, and rock 'n' roll. I can dig that; however, Tuesday night's performance was worth the time because it was a unique cultural experience. Face it, if it weren't for the evolution and synthesis of various styles of past music, there would be no rock 'n' roll today.

Music Students To Perform

Pianist Stephanie Batson of Wilmington and vocalist Cynthia Denise Moore of Alton, Va., senior students in the ECU School of Music, will perform in recital Friday, March 28, at 9 p.m. in the Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

Their program will begin at 9 p.m. and is free and open to the public. A student of Tongsook Han of the ECU keyboard faculty, Ms. Batson will perform the J.S. Bach Prelude and Fugue in F Minor, Debussy's Sarabande from "Pour le Piano" and the Mozart Sonata in A Major.

Ms. Moore, a student of Antonia Dalapas of the ECU voice faculty, will sing an aria, "The Letter Song," from Moore's Ballad of Baby Doe, and several songs: "Mein schoner Stern" and "Der Nussbaum" by Schumann, Faure's "Les Roses d'Ispahan," Chausson's "Les Papillons" and "Le Charme," "I Love All Graceful Things" by Thiman and "To One Who Passed Whistling through the Night" and "When I Was One and Twenty" by Gibbs. She will be accompanied by pianist Janice Joyner.

student of Harold Jones of the ECU percussion faculty.

In a campus recital Friday, March 28, in Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall, Asten will perform several selections he prepared for the MTNA competitions.

His program will include Matt Ward's "Recitative and Imbroglia," William Draft's "Encounters IV," arrangements of the J.S. Bach "Kom Susser Tod" and Partita III, a Toshiro Mayuzumi xylophone concertino and a modern jazz piece, Felix Arndt's "Nola." He will be assisted by trombonist George Broussard, pianist Carol Wolfe and percussionists Mark Ford and Bruce Smith.

The recital will begin at 7:30 p.m. and is free and open to the public.

'Coal Miner's Daughter' Portrays Real Life

ing, writing songs, and playing the guitar for years and years. "The hardest thing to do," Spacek admits, "is to sing with the accent and phrasing of someone else."

On separate floors of the hotel sit Michael Apte, the charming British director making his U.S. film debut with a story so American it should have been frightening, and Tommy Lee Jones, the surly, sour co-star who plays husband Mooney to Spacek's Loretta. The press is playing musical chairs, going from one to the other, fielding anecdotes and discovering some of the problems of making a film about the story of someone's life who is still very much alive.

"I didn't want to see them film any of the family stuff," Loretta says in her soft, very slightly slurry Kentucky accent. "On the last day of filming, when they were doing the last scene in our house, I walked in and almost had to walk off."

"I think it's pretty hard to put the time from age 13 to 43 (her age now) in one movie," Loretta continues. "It wasn't a success story really. It was a story of a relationship from the time I was married."

Indeed, the film starts in a gritty town in the coal mountains of Kentucky when Loretta is 13. (The press material stated that, to look 13, Spacek had lost 20 pounds. Nonsense. "If I lost 20 pounds, I'd weigh 70 to 75 pounds," says Spacek. "I'm 30, but it's not hard to act 13. It's mostly body movements, something's always moving.")

Apte had to build, in Kentucky, the set for Butcher Hollow, not because the poverty level had decreased any, but because he couldn't find a town in Appalachia that didn't have electricity lines and mobile homes all over it. And although Apte did aptly catch the dirt, the despair, the strength of family life in Butcher Hollow, he did miss one terrific and true scene: Loretta's grandpa and brother Junior, she tells us, for entertainment in front of the family, would play the banjo with their toes.

That isn't the only thing that Apte missed, according to Loretta. "There was one thing in the movie that I didn't like. It wasn't true to begin with," insists Loretta. "And that was when I first met Patsy Cline (who became her best friend until she died in a plane crash), when they have her drinking a beer in the hospital (after a previous accident). It was a much more touching scene in real life. All of her face was wrapped but one eye and she was crying.

And she certainly wasn't drinking. She didn't drink that much. Patsy Cline was as good as gold."

"The problem is," counters Apte, "that Patsy Cline was a very tough, raunchy, sexy, beer-drinking, manizing woman. But Patsy in Nashville is a legend, she is held in tremendous awe. Loretta can't distinguish between telling the truth and keeping up a legend. I was determined not to sentimentalize Patsy."

Oddly enough, when the British director began the project, he had heard of Patsy Cline, but not of Loretta Lynn. With the opening of the movie and with her previous best-selling autobiography of the same name, it's probable that few people will not have heard about Loretta in a couple of months.

That's certainly a long way from her publicity jaunt, when she and her husband took a list of country music stations (2600 stations in 1961) and drove to each one of them and forced them to air Loretta's one record. A naive approach, but one that worked because of the naivete of the couple. "Once, when we were promoting the record at first," Loretta recalls, "I was on some radio program in Louisiana where people call in and ask questions. They kept asking how old I was, but I wouldn't tell. But then about 50 calls of this type later, someone asked what year I was borned (sic) in, and I rattled it right off. I went back to the car where Doo (her nickname for her husband) was listenin', and he said that I was the silliest thing he'd ever seen."

But, in the true American way, the sweetness and light didn't last forever, and Loretta's wild road touring led her to popping pills to calm her down between gigs. She is again naive — or guarded — in talking about that stage now.

"I never had no uppers," she contends. "I just looked around and had lost everything trying to reach something that was not my idea to begin with. I wanted to sleep, I didn't want to wake up. I'd get off stage and do nerve pills, and wake up long enough to do the show.

"I was sleeping with one bottle and my husband with another — my husband's was just a little bigger," she says with a laugh. "That's when I had my little spill onstage — about four years ago."

The scene she refers to has Sissy start a concert before a packed audience; she breaks down and can't remember any words to her songs, and tells the audience that she can't go on.

"The audience thought that Sissy was really going to sing," says Apte. "It never occurred to me to tell them that it was the breakdown scene. The audience didn't know. Every single shot used in the film is from that first take — and it shows."

It does show, and it is moments of truth in the film like this that cause the movie to be less "A Star Is Born" than a portrait of a refreshing, courageous woman, an unusual, strong relationship, and an incredibly rich ethnic slice of Americana.

Top Ten Honored

Ten top-ranking senior students in ECU's College of Arts and Sciences will be honored April 8 by the local Phi Beta Kappa Alumni chapter.

Each student will be presented with an appropriate gift at a 4 p.m. reception in the VanLandingham Room of the Home Economics Building. The students have achieved the highest academic grade point averages among ECU seniors in major fields of study recognized by Phi Beta Kappa.

The students are: Milbrey Cate of Houston Texas and Dawn Colwell of Millers Creek, N.C., biology; William Ballance of Fremont, N.C. and William Ball of Kinston, chemistry;

Laura Adcock of Fuquay-Varina, foreign languages and literatures; Virginia Outlaw of Wilson, science education; Barney Jernigan of Colerain, N.C., mathematics; Terry Campbell and Rhonda Hooks of Greenville, psychology; and Virginia Johnstone of Chestertown, Md., anthropology.

ECU Tracksters At UVa Meet

By JIMMY DuPREE
Assistant Sports Editor

With the thought of a cold, windy voyage to Richmond only a memory, East Carolina's women's track team journeys to Charlottesville, Va. Saturday for the University of Virginia Invitational.

Team leaders returning from a year ago include All-American Cookie McPhatter, long jumper Roz Major and distance specialist Linda Mason.

McPhatter posted a 2:14 in the 800 meter event at Richmond, which coach Laurie Arrants characterized as satisfactory.

"Cookie didn't run a 2:14 until the last few meets last season," said Arrants. "So for her to run a 2:14 in the first meet this year and under such extreme conditions is very good."

"Cookie is a much smarter runner than she was at the first of last season."

Arrants, now in her sixth year at East Carolina, explained that national qualifying time for the 800m this year was lowered from 2:11 to 2:09; a mark McPhatter should be able to accomplish with little difficulty.

Mason in the 5000m and Debbie Mulvey in the 1500m each posted personal best times at Richmond, according to Arrants. She added that Mason should qualify for the nationals before the end of the season.

Junior Dawn Henderson returns to add strength in the 220 and to participate on the 400 relay.

Freshman Irdie Williams of Fort Bragg joined the squad in January and will compete in the 220 and 400 meter events. "She has a very smooth, natural stride," analyzed Arrants. "She should add a lot to the team."

Eve Brennan, a native of Arlington, Va., and Gwen Cancey will be counted on to add depth to the Pirate thinclads' attack.

"Eve had a bad weekend," said Arrants, "but she has a lot of potential."

"Gwen had more technique to learn than Irdie, but I can see down the road she will be a valuable addition."

The Lady Pirates will again be fortunate to have the services of junior Lydia Rountree who competed as a freshman but sat out the 1979 campaign to concentrate on basketball. The Elm City native will compete in the 100m sprints and will be counted on as the anchor of the 400m relay.

"I agreed with Lydia's decision last year and I still do," says Arrants.

"Looking back, it was the right thing to do. We're glad to have her back and I think she's probably in better condition than she was as a freshman."

Top teams in the U.Va. Invitational will be Maryland, East Tennessee State, Pittsburg, Delaware State and UNC-Chapel Hill.

"We're not after team titles this year," said Arrants. "We don't have the personnel to go after the team titles so we want to win as many individual titles as we can."

"We'd like to win five this weekend and continue to build during the season."

Arrants particularly includes the long jump, 400m, 800m, mile and sprint medley relays in the list of hopeful victories.

"I feel like we've probably got the strongest sprint medley relay team in the state," says Arrants.

The Lady Pirates have three other meets before the NCAAIAW Championships in Chapel Hill.

Schembechler Complains

DETROIT (AP) — Bo Schembechler says team discipline is nobody's business but his, and the Michigan football coach says the media "maliciously crucified" five players suspended for alleged training violations.

"We must maintain discipline. When I do discipline anyone, I want it kept in the family," Schembechler said Friday as he addressed a luncheon of the Adcraft Club of Detroit.

Schembechler added there has been "tremendous media damage in reporting every little thing whether it be true or not and they (the media) are not held liable. I tell our football players that they are not regular students and everybody wants a piece of them."

"If they were regular students, we wouldn't have had this thing two weeks ago," he added.

The five players were suspended for training violations believed to have involved drugs.

Pizza Hit Classic Set

WICHITA, Kan. — East coach Ray Meyer of DePaul needed a center and a guard to balance his squad for the Ninth Annual Pizza Hut Basketball Classic, and West coach Tex Winter of Long Beach State needed a pair of big men for his squad. Each got what they needed in the at-large selections which complete the rosters for the charity game scheduled for March 29 in Las Vegas.

In the East, All-Americans Roosevelt Bouie of Syracuse and Reggie Carter of St. John's were named to the team. Bouie is a 6-11 center and Carter a 6-3 guard. Kurt Nimphius, a 6-10 center from Arizona State, and Michael Wiley, a 6-9 forward from Long Beach State, were named to fill the West roster.

Eight spots on each squad are determined by fan balloting at Pizza Hut restaurants across the country and two spots are filled as at-large selections.

Two other players, Marquette guard Sam Worthen and Mississippi State center Rickey Brown, have been named to the East team because Purdue's Joe Barry Carroll and Kentucky's Kyle Macy, both of whom finished in the top eight in voting for the East, elected not to participate.

In addition to those named to the squad today, the East boasts Louisville guard Darrell Griffith, Indiana forward Mike Woodson, North Carolina State forward Hawkeye Whitney, Ohio State guard Kelvin Ransey, North Carolina forward Mike O'Koren, and LaSalle forward Michael Brooks.

Emory Tabs Bengala Asst.

Jim Bengala has been named by East Carolina head football coach Ed Emory to take over the assistant coaching position vacated last week when Steve Schnall resigned to take a coaching position at Princeton University.

Bengala, who will coach the offensive backs, is a graduate of Miami (Ohio) University. He completed his collegiate playing career in 1971, playing under coaches Bo Schembeckler, now of Michigan, and Bill Mallory. He served as team captain his senior season.

From 1973-74 Bengala served as quarterback and receiver coach at Western Connecticut State University. He moved to Michigan and served under Schembeckler as a graduate assistant in charge of defensive backs.

For the past five years, he has been the offensive backfield coach at Western Michigan University.

Bengala and his wife, Deborah, have one daughter, Beth.

Hines Sets Records

Two international records were set by Reggie Hines of Wilson, a sophomore at ECU, as he paced the U.S. Soccer team to a second place finish in the World Games for the Deaf Qualifying Tournament in Mexico City.

Selected as one of the tournament's four outstanding players, Hines set the record for the most shots at goal with a total of 17, including two goals. He also scored the first goal made by the U.S. team in the competition.

The matches were played to determine which nation will represent Group I in the 14th World Games for the Deaf (Deaf Olympics) at Cologne, West Germany in August, 1981. Group I is comprised of the United States, Canada, Mexico and Australia.

In taking second place, Hines and his teammates defeated Australia 6-4, won by default against Canada and lost to Mexico 4-0.

His participation in the tournament was sponsored by J.D. Little Construction Company of Wilson.

A transfer student from Averett College in Danville, Va., Hines is pursuing a double major in physical education and social work at ECU. He also participates in the ECU he becomes eligible
