Reagan Wounded In Washington

By DEAN REYNOLDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) A young gunman ambushed President Reagan at close range Monday and fired half-dozen shots, one of them piercing the president's lung inches from his heart. Doctors removed the bullet in a two-hour operation and said Reagan would recover.

The would-be assassin, identified as John Warnock Hinckley Jr., 25, of Evergreen, Colo., was tackled and pinned to the pavement, whisked away in a squad car and charged with attempted murder. Officials said that last fall during the presidential campaign Hinckley had been arrested for carrying three guns.

The shots outside a Washington hotel, crackling through a dismal rainfall like balloons bursting at a child's birthday party, gravely wounded presidential press secretary James Brady and left a Secret Service agent and a police officer in serious condition.

The shooting stunned the world and a nation whose citizens seem unable to shake the stigma of seemingly mindless murder of public figures.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who buried two assassinated brothers including the last president shot, deplored the incident: "Violence and hatred are alien to everything this country is about. With our prayers must go our resolution to rid our society of violence and its cause."

But Reagan himself took the event in stride, joking with bystanders as he walked into the hospital under his own power. At 8:50 p.m. he handed doctors in the recovery room a hand written note paraphrasing W.C. Fields: "All in all, I'd rather be in Philadelphia."

Doctors at George Washington University Hospital said the 70-year-old Reagan is an excellent physical specimen with the body of a young man and his survival never was in doubt.

The prognosis for complete recovery is "excellent," and Reagan should be able to resume presidential duties Tuesday morning from his hospital bed.

And Vice President George Bush, ordered back to Washington from Texas, said "I can reassure this nation and a watching world that this nation is functioning fully and normally."

The stunning murder attempt occurred outside the sprawling Washington Hilton Hotel, one mile from the White House, where Reagan had just delivered a speech to a union convention.

Waving and smiling, Reagan neared the bulletproof presidential limousine when the gunfire cracked. The grin on Reagan's face turned to frozen horror as a Secret Service agent shoved him into the car.

Pandemonium erupted. Bystanders screamed in horror. Guns were drawn in an instant. Hinckley was buried immediately under a mass of agents.

And the bloody bodies of Brady, Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy and District of Columbia police officer Thomas Delahanty were sprawled on the rainswept pavement.

An attorney for his family said Hinckley had a history of psychiatric care. Federal law enforcement officials said he was arrested in Nashville for carrying firearms near the time both then-President Carter and Reagan were to make campaign appearances in Tennessee.

William Brissey, captain of the Nashville, Tenn., Airport security police, said Hinckley had been arrested Oct. 9 for trying to board an airliner with three handguns and 50 rounds of ammunition in a suitcase.

There was no immediate indication how a person once so detained by authorities could have placed himself, without detection and carrying a .22 caliber handgun, 10 feet from Reagan.

Brady's prognosis was grim. Doctors said the bullet had entered his skull over his right eye and passed through his brain, and Dr. Dennis O'Leary said even if the 40-year-old press secretary lives, permanent brain damage is likely.

The Academy Awards Oscar presentation scheduled for Monday night was postponed until Tuesday night because of the shooting, ABC television announced.

Atlanta Toll Reaches 21

Another Body Discovered

ATLANTA (UPI) A young man trying out a new outboard motor found the body of a black youth floating in the Chattahoochee River Monday and police said it was the 21st victim of Atlanta's child killers.

Fulton County Police Chief Clinton Chafin said identification of the body, "that of a young black male," was unlikely before Tuesday.

But when he was asked if it was the latest in a string of murders of black children that began 20 months ago, he said "I don't think there's any question about that."

The body was pulled out of the river in a rural, sparsely-populated area of southwest Fulton County, about three miles from the spot where the body of Lubie Geter, 14, was found Feb. 5. Chafin said a young resident of the area was on the river trying out a new boat motor when he saw the body floating on top of some debris.

The corpse, clad only in underwear, "seems to be in reasonably good shape," Chafin said, but authorities said its features were unrecognizable due to decomposition and Chafin said "I would not think the body will be identified until tomorrow. It will take other means than personal identification."

He said it was impossible to determine immediately how long it had been immersed, but he said "everybody agrees it's been in the river for several days."

Assistant Medical Examiner Dr. John Feegel said "I think it's been in the river for a long time."

Only a one-lane, dirt road led to the spot where the body was found and authorities finally had to resort to four-wheel-drive vehicles to get the body out and deliver it to the Fulton County morgue.

Of the 22 children on the list being handled by the task force, 20 have been found dead and two are listed as missing. One of them, Darron Glass, vanished in September and authorities said it was highly unlikely that his body would be intact by now.

The other missing child on the list is Joseph Bell, 15, who disappeared March 2. Timothy Hill, 13, has been missing since March 13, but police have remained convinced that he is a runaway and have not turned his case over to the task force, although the Missing Persons bureau has assigned several officers to his case.

W.R. Beddenfield, a farmer who lives near the spot where the body was found Monday, said the corpse was clothed only in jockey shorts and appeared to be 5-feet-5 to 5-feet-6 tall, and weigh about 120 pounds.

Bell was 5-5' and weighed 110.

Monday's discovery was the first since March 6, when the body of Curtis Walker, 13, was found in the South River in DeKalb County, on the opposite side of the metropolitan area. Walker, who vanished Feb. 19, had been suffocated.

Walker, too, was clad only in his undershorts. Most of the children's bodies have been fully clothed when found.

Walker's was the third body to be found in a river.

Aid Application Processing Halted

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS) — In an attempt to make families contribute more to their offsprings' college education, the Reagan administration has imposed an unprecedented temporary freeze on processing federal financial aid applications.

Last week Secretary of Education Terrel Bell announced the government wanted to change certain eligibility requirements for Pell Grants (formerly Basic Educational Opportunity Grants), and would not process any more applications for the grants until Congress voted on the change in requirements.

Congress has until April 28 to react to the proposed rules changes, though Rep. Peter Peyster (D-NY) of the House Postsecondary Education Subcommittee hopes to debate the proposals sooner than that to minimize the freeze's impact.

If the requirements are changed as Bell requested, "maybe 100,000 students" would be knocked out of the Pell Grant program, estimates Skee Smith of the U.S. Department of Education's Student Special Services office.

In the meantime, the freeze effectively stops the awarding of all federal financial aid for the moment because Pell Grants are used to determine students' eligibility for other forms of financial aid, says Dallas Martin of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators.

Martin calls the freeze a "travesty. They're going through a process both questionable and illegal."

The freeze is a new procedure, concedes a House education committee staffer. "Normally when final regulations are printed (as Pell Grant regulations were printed in January), they are not withdrawn for reconsideration."

"I am sure (the freeze) will be an inconvenience for many financial aid officers," Smith understates.

The House of Representatives is expected to conduct hearings into the legality of the administration's maneuver.

The administration's aim is to change the way families figure their eligibility for Pell Grants, and to make families contribute more toward their kids' education.

A December, 1977 study by the College Entrance Examination Board found that the wealthier the family, the less willing it is to pay more than is needed for its offspring to qualify for student aid.

"We don't think we ought to be subsidizing the very wealthy in this country," Bell explained on the "Good Morning, America" television show.

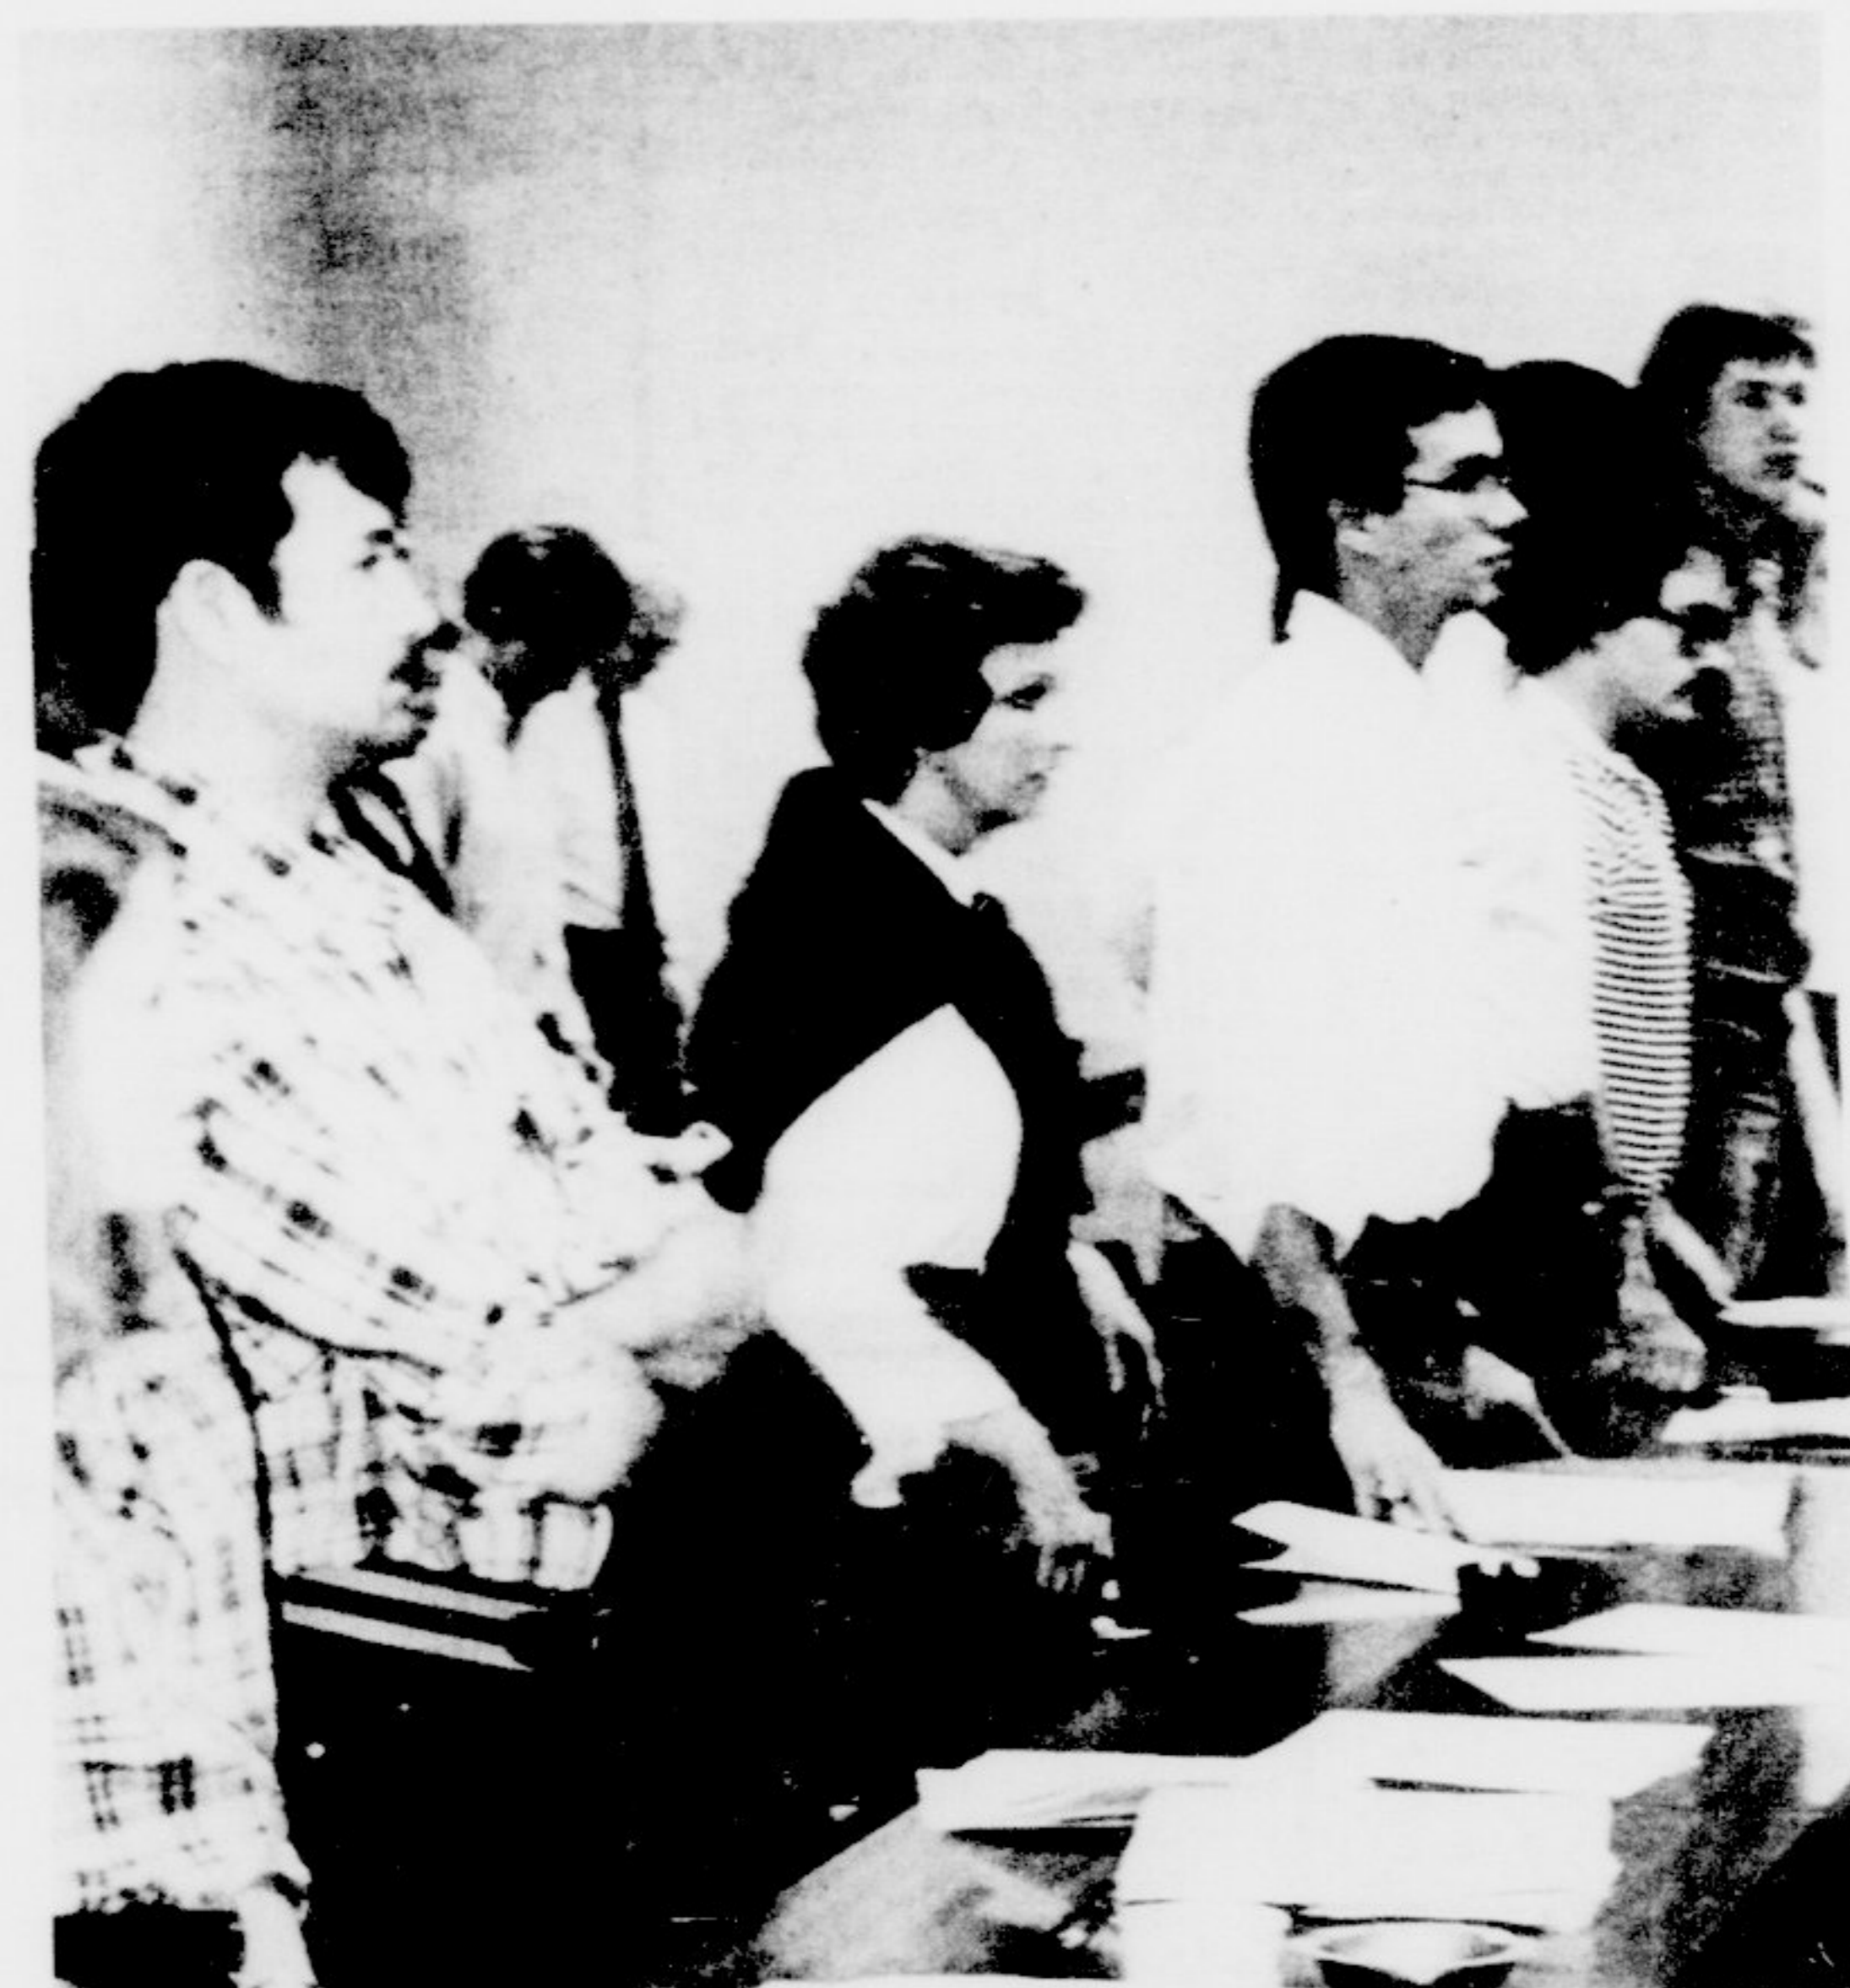

At present, a family's eligibility for aid is calculated by subtracting certain living expenses from total family income. Regulations say families can increase their living expenses estimates by 12 and one-half percent to cover inflation.

The administration, however, wants to scrap the 12 and one-half percent increase, thus saving $183 million in the next fiscal year.

By figuring eligibility the administration's way, more families would show higher net incomes, and thus become ineligible for Pell Grants.

Secretary Bell also wants to set upper limits on how much a student can deduct from his or her income estimate. New regulations would set maximum amounts on how much a student could spend — at least for purposes of determining eligibility for Pell Grants — for housing, books and related school expenses.

Talk about changing the rules of getting Pell Grants, Martin says, is affecting other federal financial aid programs. Administration promises to reform the Guaranteed Student Loan program are "frightening" some banks, which are waiting to make student loans until the issues are settled.

The SGA Legislature observed a moment of silence Monday for President Reagan and those injured in the assassination attempt.

Reappearance Slated For Ebony Herald

By OTIS ROBINSON
Staff Writer

After a one-year absence, the Ebony Herald is scheduled to begin publication in the fall.

Lamont Byrd was named editor of the minority newspaper by the East Carolina Media Board. He will have the responsibility of re-establishing the publication.

"The purpose of the paper is to inform people living at the International House and any ethnic group that is a minority," Byrd said. "We want to cover activities about minorities on campus which are not reported in the East Carolinian."

Byrd has been working with the ECU Media Board to finalize a budget for the newspaper. The budget is expected to be completed in April.

"We want to see how much money is needed and how many people we can employ," Byrd said. "We're planning on getting the staff together next week."

Byrd has named Edward Nesbitt to aid him in selecting students for the newspaper's staff.

David Creech, chairman of the Media Board, said, "We are working with him (Byrd) on putting together the figures for the paper."

The figures have to be kicked around in the Media Board before we can propose a budget.

"The advantage of the Ebony Herald is that it will be another medium. We need a publication for the minority students on campus. I think the paper will be able to cover events that the East Carolinian for some reason or another has been unable to cover."

Gracie Wells, president of SOULS added, "I think it can only be an asset to the students. There were a few problems with the other paper, but I'm sure that this one will be a better paper."

Students wishing to apply for positions as writers for the paper can pick up applications at the Media Board office.

Harvard Historian To Speak On Economics At ECU

ECU News Bureau

A prize-winning Harvard historian will be a featured speaker at a business and economics related Humanities Conference April 9, sponsored by the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources and East Carolina University.

Dr. Albro Martin, editor of the Business History Review published at Harvard,

Further Tests Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) Rep. Charles O. Whitley, D-N.C., has asked for further radioactivity tests at a farm near Faro, N.C., where an Air Force bomber with two nuclear bombs aboard crashed more than 20 years ago.

Whitley said he was sure the area was safe, but wanted to reassure residents.

"I've got faith in the Air Force," he said. "I don't think the Air Force would have left a hazardous situation."

A B-52 carrying two 24-megaton atomic bombs from Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro crashed on Jan. 24, 1961 on the farm of Buck and Ellen Tyndall near Faro. One bomb was apparently recovered, but the second split apart and parts of it were never recovered.

Whitley said last week he accepted the Air Force's contention that the unrecovered piece of the bomb poses no threat to residents.

Many details of the crash are still classified, and the Defense Department has refused to say how large a fragment of the second was not recovered.

The crash site was monitored extensively for several months after the test, but the testing was discontinued years ago.

The 1961 crash resurfaced in the news last year with reports that one of the two bombs on the plane nearly detonated, but Whitley said his request is focused only on the possibility of lingering radioactivity.

"I raise no question whatsoever in terms of the likelihood of a nuclear explosion in 1961," Whitley said. "That is really whipping a dead horse."

"But it is a legitimate inquiry to ask what assurances we have that there is no residue of radioactive material," he added.

will speak on "The Role and Responsibility of Business in Creating Public Expectations and Modifying Values."

Martin also teaches business history in the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

His PhD dissertation at Columbia University entitled, "Enterprise Denied: Origins of the Decline of American Railroads, 1897-1917," won the first Allan Nevins prize in Economic History. A Martin article, "The Troubled Subject of Railroad Regulation in the Gilded Age," won the Binkley-Stephenson Prize of the Organization of American Historians for the best article published in 1974 in the Journal of American History.

In 1976 Oxford University Press published his "James J. Hill and the Opening of the Northwest," a definitive biography of one of the major business leaders of the nineteenth and early twentieth century. He is now at work on a book on the social and cultural impact of the railroad and telegraph.

The Humanities Conference scheduled at ECU's Willis Building is open to business and professional men and women, civic leaders and others concerned with economic and cultural development of eastern North Carolina.

"American business is confronted with a new challenge," the sponsors said. "A new understanding of civic responsibility, and the impact of technological and commercial development on community values, is essential."

conference will be "Private Institutions and Public Good: An Exploration of How the Humanities and Sound Business Practices Can Complement and Inform One Another."

East Carolina University Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer, himself a business historian, will be moderator.

Dr. William Bloodworth, professor of English at ECU, will discuss "A Critical View of Business and Culture in America."

Dr. Henry C. Ferrell Jr., professor of history at ECU, will speak on "The Impact of Industrial and Commercial Development and the Resulting Implications for Traditional Community Values in Eastern North Carolina."

Issue To Be Decided

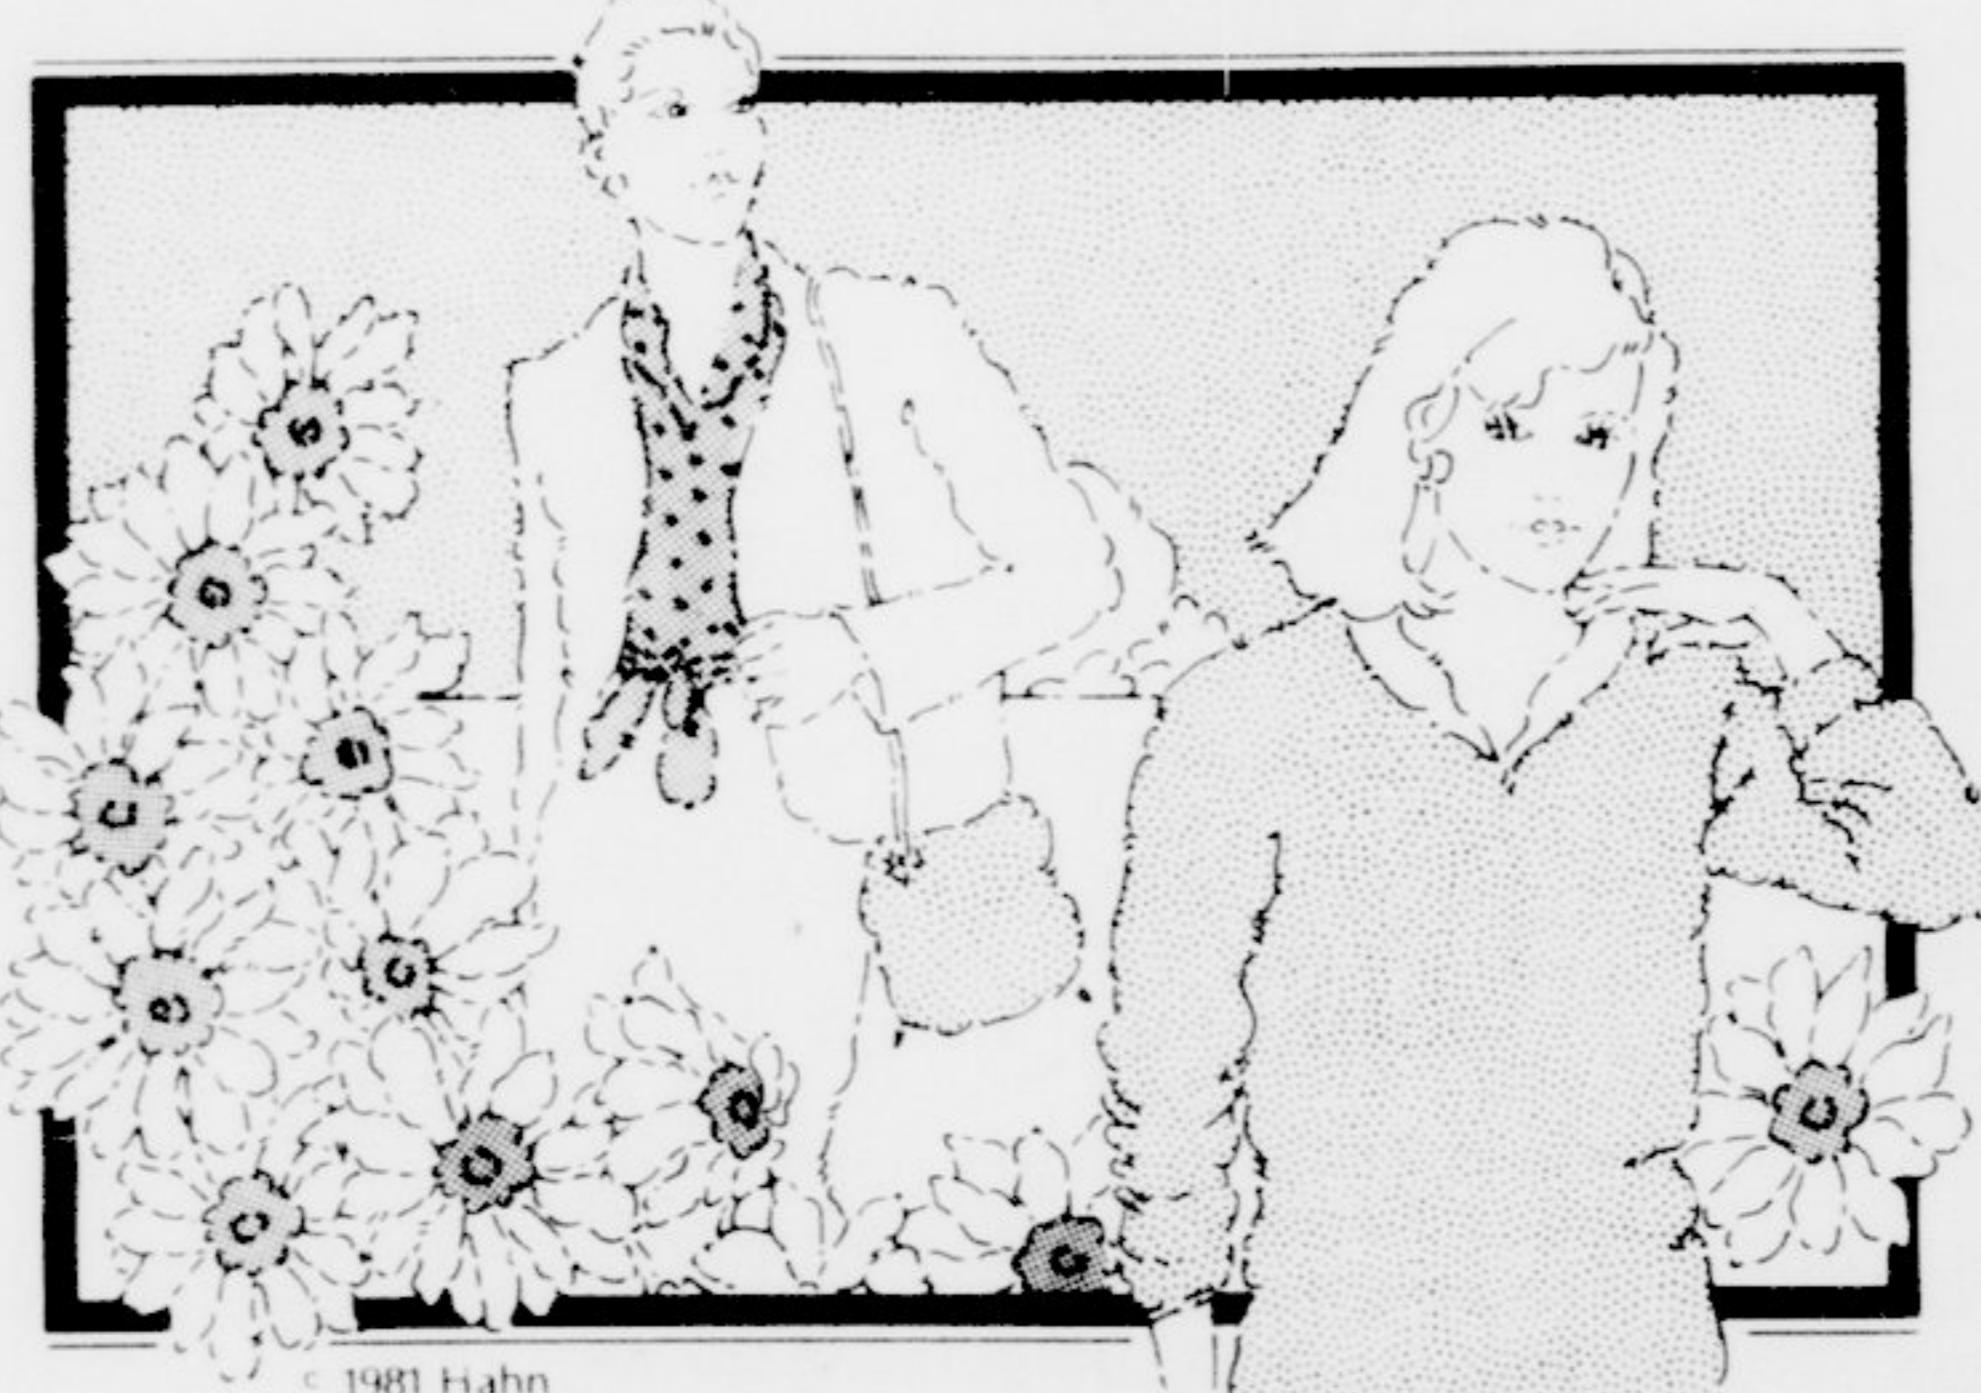

(CPS) — The fate of all federal college programs for helping handicapped students will be in the balance when the U.S. Supreme Court decides the case of deaf student Walter Camenisch, who wants the University of Texas to pay $1,245 a year for his sign language interpreter.

The court two weeks ago gave the U.S. Department of Justice permission to defend Camenisch.

Texas claims that schools are not required to spend money to accommodate handicapped students. That view, if validated in court, would change the standard interpretation of the 1973 Rehabilitation Act, the high court said.

Under Section 504 of that act, federally-funded schools can't discriminate against otherwise qualified handicapped persons.

ECU Board Oversteps Bounds

SGA President Charlie Sherrod announced last night that he is appointing Robert M. Swaim to take over his seat on the media board for the remainder of his term as president.

An amendment of the Media Board Constitution was passed last year that allows members of the board to appoint people to serve in their place if they so desire. Sherrod's appointment of Swaim was made under the provisions of that amendment.

Swaim, a veteran newspaper employee who was a driving force behind the creation of the Media Board said that he was "humbled and honored" by the appointment.

Swaim resigned from his position as assistant to the general manager of The East Carolinian Monday afternoon to later accept the appointment.

Last week, the board heard comments, remarks, and criticisms concerning personnel matters at The East Carolinian. Instead of setting forth its findings in the form of suggestions to the general manager Chris Lichok or actually bringing formal charges against the staff member(s) involved, the Media Board decided to use pressure to force Lichok to resolve the matter to its satisfaction. This area is clearly out of the realm of control of the board although they deemed themselves a judicial body and found the accused guilty, denying him any due process of law.

Actions taken thus far by the board set a grim precedent. At no time in the stormy history of the Media Board has that organization so blatantly exceeded their constitutional authority.

If any outside board or authority is permitted to have such great control over personnel matters at The East Carolinian, this newspaper may lose its freedom and become merely a rubber-stamp newsletter, answering to the whims of the controlling board.

Secret Service's Actions Prevent National Tragedy

As the United States and indeed the entire world recovers from the shock of an assassination attempt on the President, it becomes apparent that terrorism has replaced diplomacy as the most affective means of gaining recognition and acceptance.

The bullets which would have ended the life of Ronald Wilson Reagan on Monday March 30, 1981 marked the first assassination attempt against the chief executive since a pair during the Gerald Ford term of office.

The Secret Service should be applauded for their prompt action to prevent further injury to the President. Many people watching the videotape of the incident are shocked by their sense of duty to prevent injury to the commander-in-chief.

This group is trained to surrender their lives rather than permit harm to come to the President. Their actions Monday may very well have saved George Bush from the ominous task of leading a nation in mourning. For this accomplishment, the people of the United States will be eternally in debt.

Campus Forum

Run-off Candidates Present Platforms To Students

EDITOR'S NOTE: The first four entries in today's "Campus Forum" are the platforms of the candidates involved in the SGA run-off elections which will be held tomorrow. Kirk Little and Angela Pepe are competing for the office of treasurer, while Marvin Braxton and Peggy Davison are up for vice-president. These platforms were submitted to The East Carolinian by the individual candidates and we are proud to provide this space for their publication. We hope that all ECU students will take the time to vote April 1.

A big job with lots of responsibilities. That is the only way to describe the job of SGA Treasurer. I know, I've been holding that job for the past year. Some people might try to pull the wool over your eyes by telling you that anybody can hold the job of SGA Treasurer even if they have no qualifications or experience. Don't be fooled. They have probably never even seen a meeting of the SGA Legislature. I have. They haven't stayed up late at night trying to find solutions to getting the most money appropriated to the most groups. I have. They haven't had to implement, from scratch, effective policies where none have existed before. I have. Over this past year I have demonstrated that I have the commitment and the resolve to see that the SGA is in the best financial situation possible. This past year, I have utilized all that I have been taught in the School of Business to implement effective procedures and guidelines for the best administration of your money. By these actions, I have proven myself as an effective administrator.

Students involved with the performing and visual arts might wonder what my attitude is toward their respective field of study. Quite simply, the Arts could not have a better friend in the SGA. Last fall, when many members of the SGA were busy doing everything they could to keep the Visual Arts Forum from receiving an appropriation, I was the lone executive officer who spoke in behalf of the VAF urging the Legislature to grant them an appropriate sum of money. You don't need to guess where I stand, I am staunchly behind the performing and visual arts.

By holding office this past year, I have acquired the experience and proven the leadership necessary to fulfill the office of SGA Treasurer. I would appreciate your vote of confidence in me in my bid for re-election on March 4th.

KIRK LITTLE

I have been a student at ECU for over three years and I want to become involved in Student Government. As Treasurer, I feel I would enter a position which I have the competence, capability, and knowledge to excel.

I am a junior Finance major with an Accounting background. As current Treasurer of Sigma Sigma Sigma Sorority, I have to deal with ledgers, receipts, and disbursements in supervising the financial transactions of the organization. Through other official sorority positions such as director of intramurals, parliamentarian, social chairman, and Executive Board and Rho Lambda member, I feel I have proven a leadership ability.

In not having been involved with Student Government in the past, I am not as politically inclined as some other candidates. However, I feel the Treasurer should concentrate on running the business end of SGA and restrict most political opinions to Executive Council meetings.

I am sincere in wanting to work hard and do a good job for East Carolina students and would appreciate support on March 4th.

ANGELA PEPE

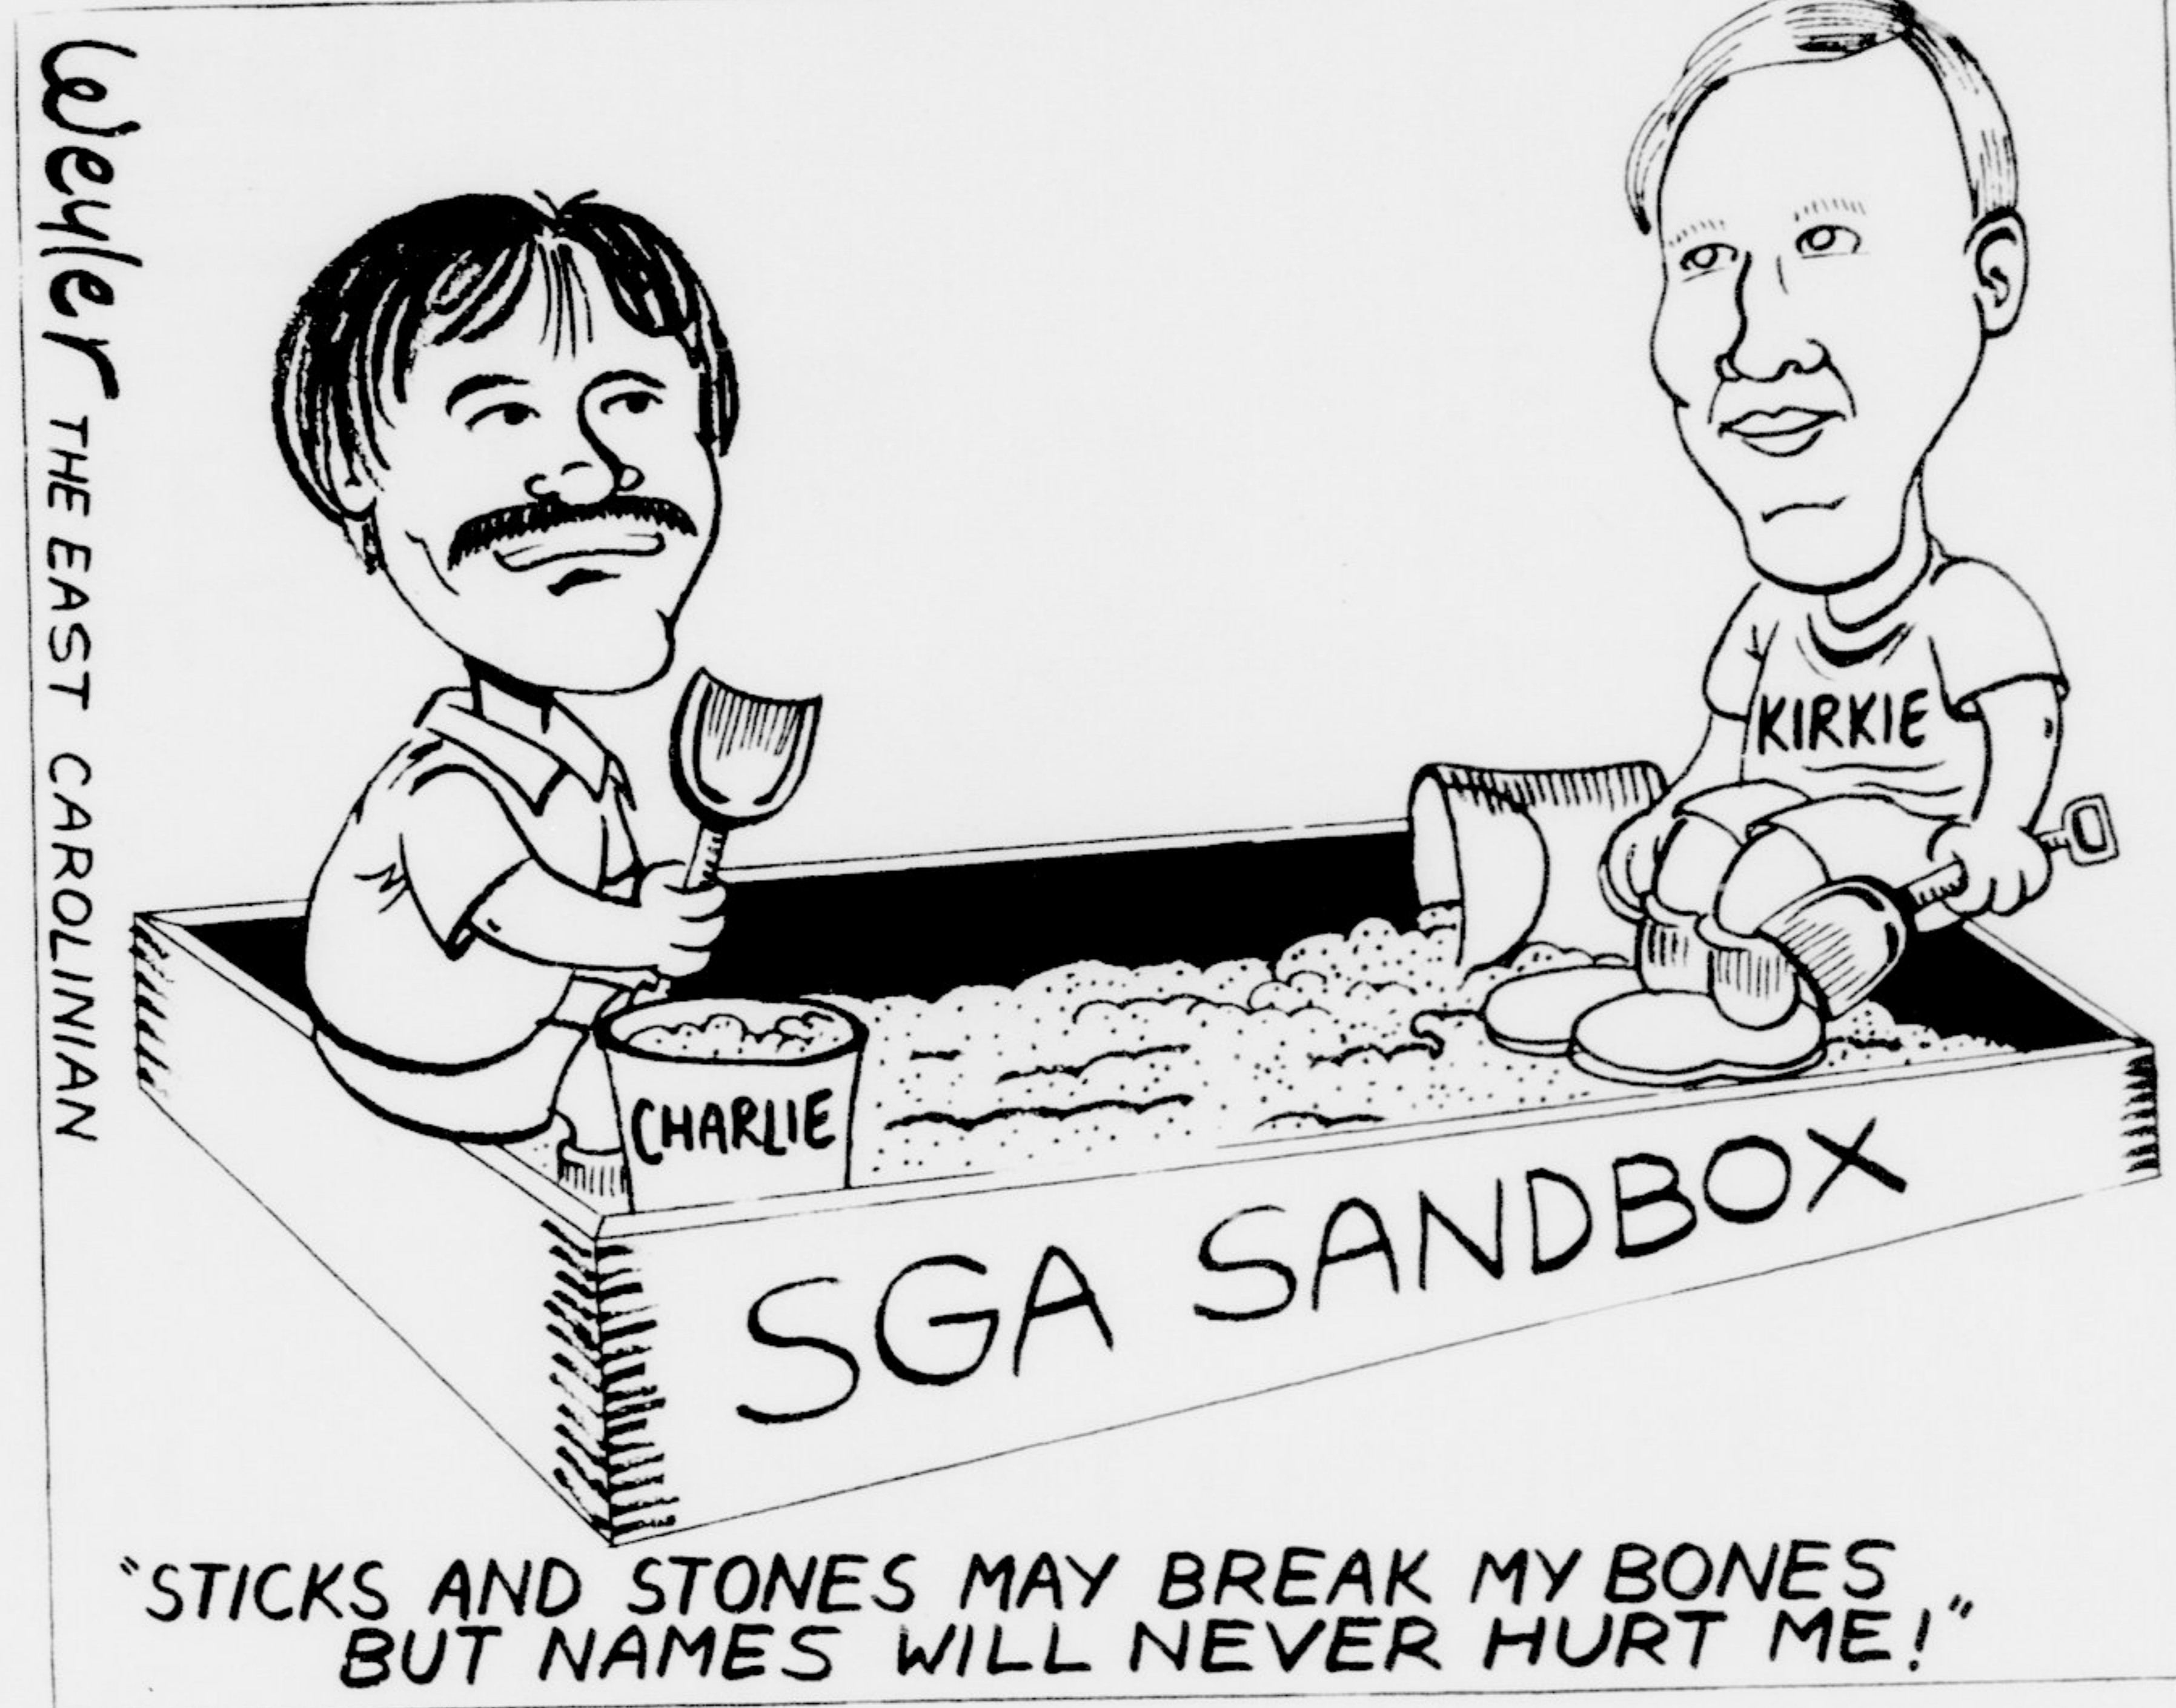

My name is Peggy Davison and I'm a candidate for SGA Vice-President. I'm a junior majoring in foreign language.

I have been involved in the legislature since I've been at E.C.U. I was elected vice-president of the sophomore class, and then due to the resignation of the president, I took over. This past fall I was elected Speaker of the Legislature.

The vice-president's powers are not specified in the constitution; they are delegated by the president. My basic goal if elected is to make the students aware of what is going on at E.C.U. The students need to know what is going on here and why things are happening. I don't feel like there is enough communication between the administration and the students, and communication is necessary if this University is to grow, not only in number but also in stature.

PEGGY DAVISON

I've noticed during the time period I have attended E.C.U. there seems to be a lack of communication between the administration and the students. Everybody is aware of the recent controversy over the firing of work-study students and I think it is a shame that

Pentagon Prepares US Hospitals

By DAVID ARMSTRONG

When clouds of war fill the sky, they sometimes gather thunderously, other-times in portentous silence. Thus, while Ronald Reagan and Alexander Haig issue their clamorous pronouncements on world affairs, the Pentagon is working quietly behind the scenes, preparing Stateside hospitals to receive large numbers of wounded GIs in a lightning-swift foreign war of the near future.

This discreet effort is part of a Pentagon program called the Civilian-Military Contingency Hospital System (CMCHS). Designed to handle expected overflow wartime casualties by setting aside unoccupied beds in advance — or by emptying beds of unfortunate civilians, pronto, once war breaks out — CMCHS is eventually expected to enlist 1,000 major hospitals in 13 cities, including Washington, D.C., Baltimore, St. Louis, Denver, Seattle, San Francisco and San Diego.

In a 43-page booklet distributed to hospital administrators in early March, entitled "CMCHS: In Combat, In the Community, Saving Lives Together," the Pentagon introduces CMCHS and provides its rationale. "It is no secret that the Soviet Union's awesome military power poses a threat to the United States," the booklet begins. Adding that, "We assumed there would not be an attack on the U.S. homeland," the unnamed authors go on to state that, "a future large scale war overseas will probably begin and end very rapidly and produce casualties at a higher rate than any other war in history," due to the spread of sophisticated modern weapons.

The devastation of the next war thus established, the Pentagon booklet goes on to ask hospitals to join CMCHS "independently of emergency war legislation" (i.e., a draft of doctors and military appropriation of hospitals). As advantages of the program, the authors promise interesting wartime medical problems ("the types and severity of injuries and illnesses...will present a challenge to your hospital staff") and improved community relations ("the public has always been supportive of a strong national defense.")

The Pentagon wants 50,000 beds, at minimum, for CMCHS. Just how this extensive program will be financed goes unexplained in the booklet. The military is more forthcoming about public relations aspects of the program, providing administrators with a sample letter with which to convince employees of the merits of the plan, and a sample press release for officials who decide to reveal their hospital's participation to the media.

Although CMCHS has been lightly covered in the mass media (the small Antioch, Calif. Daily Ledger revealed the program's existence in its March 13 issue), CMCHS is sparking considerable heat in medical circles. Its defenders see the program as patriotic and humanitarian, while critics are worried about ethical questions posed by participation in CMCHS.

"This is in-keeping with the president's desire that the nation have a maximum defense capability," said Edward Leibson, an Oakland health official. "We ought not to dramatize it beyond that." Other medical professionals are less sanguine about the program. Dr. Walter Carr, a California public health official, said that "There has been a concern by some physicians (about) getting ready for war and all that means. There's a dichotomy on preparations for war and preparations for peace." Carr also wondered aloud what moving out civilian patients on the 24 to 48 hour notice the Pentagon would require in time of war would do to those patients.

According to the Daily Ledger, the CMCHS plan originated last summer in the office of John M. Maxley III, the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health Affairs. Since then, Pentagon lobbying for the program has gone quietly and persistently forward, with hospital administrators around the country invited to view slide shows on the Soviet military and attend Department of Defense briefings on CMCHS.

In addition to worrying many medical people, the CMCHS plan has boggled minds in official Washington. David Passage, a State Department spokesperson, called the program "almost incredible" in a brief interview with the Oakland Tribune, averring that "The State Department has nothing to do with this." Could it be that the left hand of government doesn't know what the right hand is doing — again?

Other questions remain. For example, who is going to pay for what promises to be an expensive program involving 1,000 major hospitals, their administrators, and military coordinators for each hospital? Can we believe the disclaimers certain to come from the Pentagon that this sudden need for empty hospital beds has nothing to do with U.S. plans for intervention in Central America or the Persian Gulf? The prognosis — for getting straight answers, and for peace in our time — doesn't look good.

students weren't notified ahead of time, even in the private sector they give you more than 5 days prior notice if they are going to terminate your employment.

The relationship between the city council and students seems to be strained as shown by the treatment of the Kappa Deltas and the negative press students received during the liquor by the drink referendum, according to the press we're a campus at 13,000 alcoholics. I think it's time for the S.G.A. to exert its influence in such matters, and I feel that if I am elected I can provide competent leadership within the power allotted to me to give students a much needed voice as to their special needs. I would appreciate your vote on March fourth and I hope you join me in my desire to make E.C.U. as great as it should be.

Little Supported

I would like to take this opportunity to remind everyone who is involved with the Arts (whether art, music, or drama) that there is a candidate running for re-election that has been a constant and consistent supporter of the arts ever since he was in the legislature. SGA Treasurer Kirk Little has helped and supported us in the past, now it is up to us to help and support him on Election Day.

DASHA K. EFIRD
Senior Class Vice-Pres.

Davison Backed

As the present SGA Secretary and with three years experience in Student Government, I know SGA politics. There have been many times when I have lived and breathed nothing but Student Government. I know what it takes to win and more importantly, I know what it takes to make a leader.

Peggy Davison is a winning leader. When she is elected to the office of SGA Vice President this week, Peggy will represent the students in an enthusiastic manner that will keep the students of East Carolina proud.

Peggy Davison is experienced. Twice, she has been elected to represent day students as a Day Student Representative in the Legislature. She has served on the Rules and Judiciary Committee. Yet, most importantly Peggy Davison has been elected from the members of the legislature this year to represent them as their leader! Peggy has run the legislature this year efficiently and effectively as Speaker of the Legislature.

In this week's race for the office of SGA Vice President, there is NO alternative. Peggy Davison is the choice for SGA Vice President.

MARIANNE EDWARDS
Junior, Business

I have only known Peggy Davison for one year but within that year I have gotten to know her very well. I personally feel that her three years in the Student Government Association has provided her with the necessary knowledge of the duties of the SGA Vice-President. Her own enthusiasm and rapport in the community gives her the best chance to serve the students of East Carolina University. I urge you, the students, to vote for Peggy Davison for SGA Vice-President.

Spring Starts Campaigns

COLLINSVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — It's spring and Dakin Williams is plotting yet another political campaign.

The Illinois lawyer is nearly a perennial candidate. Four times he has sought the governorship and the Senate, usually as a Democrat but once as a member of George Wallace's defunct American Party, and four times he has lost.

But that has not affected his humor. One year he ran for office on the back of a motorcycle. Another time he dragged a plastic foam cross around the state to dramatize his opposition to abortion.

During a gubernatorial campaign, Williams called a news conference, served tequila surprises to the assembled reporters and solemnly promised if elected to move the state Capitol to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Chicago. The press room, he said with a twinkle in his eye, would be in the hotel's posh bar.

But that's all past. Williams is going for greater goals: The 1984 Democratic nomination for president. And he says he's going to win.

"If (Sen. Edward) Kennedy is my only opponent (in the New Hampshire primary), I'll have an advantage because the editor there, (William) Loeb, hates Kennedy," Williams said gleefully.

"The only way Carter could get back in the White House is by breaking and entering. Mondale? George McGovern is an example of what you can do running from a small state."

Williams, the younger brother of playwright Tennessee Williams, plans to campaign on what he calls the "no sweat" platform.

The 62-year-old lawyer speaks Chinese and said Americans can learn much from studying Oriental customs.

"One of the reasons Chinese don't have problems Americans have, such as ulcers and high blood pressure, is that they have mei yao guan chi," Williams said. "It means 'no sweat' in our translation."

Williams said disarming would be the "hallmark" of his administration.

"In other words, we're going to make love, not war," he said.

"The Russians are in a position where they can't afford both bread and bullets. As president, I would go to Russia and put the cards on the table: 'I'll make a deal with you. We'll throw our arms in the river, or lake, if you do the same thing.'"

Despite his former affiliation with the conservative American Party, Williams said the current political climate requires that he be more liberal.

"I'll be an aging flower child in this campaign," he said. "I'll be a lot more liberal. It's not going to be a dull campaign if I'm in it."

Program Helps 'Junkies'

CHICAGO (UPI) — At the age of 11, Monica Penez and David Kahn were addicts. They spent most of their waking hours satisfying a habit in front of a glowing box.

Television had taken control of their lives so that the youngsters could not stop themselves from automatically switching on the set.

But with the help of a new psychology program at DePaul University, Monica, David and dozens of other children — all of them television junkies — have been able to get rid of the habit that once ruled their world.

"I couldn't get away from it," recalled Monica, who once watched at least five hours of TV daily. "My homework wasn't getting done. I just forgot about all my friends."

Said David, a 10-hour-a-day addict, "Once I got hooked on it, I couldn't get off. I just watched any show."

David and Monica now watch an average of no more than three hours of TV daily. Some days they don't watch any. By the end of the DePaul program, the children should be watching no more than two hours of TV on weekdays, and three hours on weekends.

North Carolinians Accept Increase

RALEIGH (UPI) — North Carolinians responding to a poll would accept a small increase in the gasoline tax or other taxes if persuaded it was necessary to maintain the state's highways, Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. says.

Hunt said Sunday he commissioned a poll earlier this month to gauge the public's views on declining highway revenues, and denied reports the survey found overwhelming opposition to tax hikes.

The poll showed opposition to a "steep" increase in gasoline taxes, but acceptance of a small increase if necessary, Hunt said in a prepared statement.

He did not say how much of an increase would be acceptable.

The Greensboro Daily News said Sunday the poll conducted earlier this month showed residents want highways maintained, but do not want to pay higher gasoline taxes. The newspaper said sources revealed the poll results.

"The poll shows that people are opposed to a steep increase in gasoline taxes, but they are willing to pay some additional taxes if they are convinced it is necessary," Hunt said.

Drummer Bun E. Carlos keeps the Cheap Trick pace, while impossibly pretty lead singer Robin Zander gives "the Look." In Japan: "When Carlos, smoking his eternal cigarette, ended 'Surrender' with a mighty roll of baseball-bat-sized sticks—well, a night worth of critical apprehensions got pummeled."

Japan Tour Students 'All Shook Up' Over Cheap Trick Concert

Tickets are selling fast for this Saturday night's Cheap Trick-UFO concert at Minges Coliseum. Student tickets, priced at only $6.50, are moving especially fast.

"It is advisable for anyone interested in going to purchase their tickets by Thursday. Response to the pairing of these two groups for a 'once only' North Carolina appearance has been great thus far," according to Major Attractions Chairperson Charles Sune.

Public tickets are still available in Greenville at both Record Bar locations, Apple Records, as well as the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center.

The following is an excerpt from the June 14, 1979 issue of Rolling Stone magazine (pages 48-49; reprinted by permission). The article was written following Cheap Trick's massive tour of Japan:

Cheap Trick wasn't making a lot of money the first few years after they formed in 1974, but they always carried themselves as if they would someday. Midwest rock scene regulars remember seeing them arrive at club dates in a white limousine with the best-looking women in town. This is not to say Cheap Trick was spoiled or lazy; indolence is a hard trait to develop when you're playing one-nighters in places like Waukesha, Wisconsin. But from the beginning it was evident that Cheap Trick was being groomed for the top.

And they had Ken Adamany behind them. The son of Lebanese immigrants, Adamany had abandoned a musical career (he played keyboards with Steve Miller and Boz Scaggs in a band called the Fabulous Knight Trains) to become a powerful booking agent in the Northern Illinois-Southern Wisconsin area. Insiders and rivals nicknamed him "the millionaire playboy of Janesville, Wisconsin" (his hometown). By the time Cheap Trick and Adamany joined forces, he controlled a hefty chunk of the club and concert traffic in the region; needless to say, Cheap Trick had no trouble getting booked.

Adamany held out for two years before signing Cheap Trick to label — Epic Records in August 1976. Soon afterward, the band cut its first album with Jack Douglas (Aerosmith, Starz). Cheap Trick was a tour de force of heavy-metal

AFROTC Remembers Past

Developing Heritage Wall To Honor Alumni

By BILLY D. TUDOR

East Carolina University's Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC) is one of the oldest and most successful programs in the country, and officials here are planning to honor some of the sacrifices and achievements made by former cadets from Detachment 600 (as the ECU unit is known) who have made significant contributions to the freedom of our country.

"We are developing a 'Heritage Wall' to commemorate some of the sacrifices and achievements of ECU alumni who were commissioned here as Air Force officers," said Lieutenant Colonel James C. Thomas, himself a 1954 graduate of ECU and currently the AFROTC Commander. "People from ECU have given their lives in service to their country, or made significant accomplishments and contributions to our freedom in other ways, and we want to create more awareness of their efforts."

Examples cited are Captain Glen Dyer, an All-American Diver from ECU who was killed in Southeast Asia (SEA) in 1964, and Major General Charles E. Woods, a 1950 graduate who served two SEA tours, flew 100 missions over North Vietnam, and is presently Commander of the Air Force Commissary Service. General Woods will speak at the commissioning ceremony on May 8 and also preside at the ceremony to officially open the "Heritage Wall."

In tracing the history and purpose of AFROTC, Colonel Thomas pointed out that the Air Force was established as a separate military service in 1947, and one year later Detachment 600 was formed, making this one of the oldest AFROTC units in the country. It is one of the 47 detachments where only the Air Force program is offered, and in 1969 it was chosen as one of only five detachments in the United States to accept women.

Today, approximately 25% of the cadets here are female, and during the past 32 years thousands of students have participated in the ROTC program at ECU, many of them being commissioned as Second Lieutenants in the United States Air Force.

This summer when 30 cadets receive their commissions from Detachment 600, they will join approximately 3,000 other new officers from AFROTC units across the country. These officers will become part of the 43 per cent of active duty officers, including 247 generals, who are ROTC graduates.

Students at ECU who are interested can choose between a two- or four-year program. Freshmen and sophomores in the four-year program enroll in the General Military Course (GMC) and study the history of military aviation and the contemporary Air Force, each a one-hour course. Juniors and seniors enroll in the Professional Officer Course (POC) and study principles of management and national security in contemporary American society.

Entry into the POC is competitive, based on a national screening system. Only after being accepted into the POC, or accepting an Air Force paid scholarship, do cadets become obligated to serve on active duty upon commissioning.

Freshmen and sophomores in the GMC can "look-see" to determine if the program is suitable for their goals, or perhaps enhance their possibility of a scholarship, all without incurring any obligation or commitment.

Classroom instruction for all cadets is provided by active duty officers.

Pianist To Appear

Pianist Charles Rosen will appear in concert in the Hendrix Theatre on Thursday April 2 at 8:00 p.m. Tickets, available in the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall are $2.00 for students and $5.00 for the public.

Film 'Grand Illusion' Rescheduled

Due to drama department rehearsals of the play "Julius Caesar," the special film "Grand Illusion" will not be shown this Wednesday night, April 1, as originally intended. The classic French drama has been rescheduled for an April 22 showing at 7 p.m. in Mendenhall Student Center's Hendrix Theatre. Following "Grand Illusion," the regularly scheduled film "Peppermint Soda" will be shown, as planned, at 9 p.m.

The American comedy "It Happened One Night," cancelled last Wednesday, will be shown as the first half of a double feature at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, April 15 in the Hendrix Theatre.

Director Edgar Loessin and cinematographer Carlton Benz prepare special visual effects for the ECU Playhouse production of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." The production, to be performed in modern dress with a variety of special effects, remains true to the original language. Loessin says his version will emphasize the political intrigue in the drama's plot.

Playhouse Presents 'Julius Caesar'

"Julius Caesar," one of Shakespeare's most powerful and compelling dramas, will be presented by the East Carolina Playhouse April 7, 9, 10 and 11 at 8:15 p.m. in Hendrix Theatre, Mendenhall Student Center.

The production will not be a traditional interpretation of the celebrated classic. Director Edgar Loessin has assembled a cast of 30 actors and as many technicians who will present a chilling version of the play which relies heavily on such techniques as motion picture film, recorded music and bold lighting effects.

Efforts have been underway for several months to furnish Hendrix Theatre with the necessary equipment and stage scenery. Scaffolding for the lighting instruments, lighting control boards and sound equipment have been brought in from around the state to augment the theatre's already extensive film facilities.

"We want to make the play live in the ambiance of Hendrix Theatre," said Loessin. "We hope to achieve a sense of the political cycle that is so evident in 'Julius Caesar.' This is a play that speaks directly to some of our recent politics in this country, a

Dinner Theatre Play Is Good Entertainment

By JOHN WEYLER
Staff Writer

Last night the Mendenhall Student Center Dinner Theatre premiered its production of Paul Zindel's "And Miss Reardon Drinks A Little." Zindel is known for his unusual works with names such as "The Effects of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds" and "My Darling, My Hamburger." His reputation is proved by this play, a bizarre but entertaining tale of three sisters, all warped in one way or another.

The story revolves around Anna, a teacher who recently suffered a nervous breakdown in school and is the cause of much commotion.

She is paranoid, obsessed with death and has a phobia against meat, fur, and anything animalistic. She lives with sister Catherine, a wise-cracking woman who seems the most normal of the three, but has her own dark secrets. This terrible trio is completed by Ceil, a cold, guarded gargoyle.

The rest of the major cast consists of Fleur and Bob Stein, a feather-brained guidance teacher and her bellicose bear of a husband.

They stop by Catherine and Anna's apartment, the setting of the entire play, for an enjoyable evening of shouting, invective and near-anarchy.

Entertainment is provided by a blank-loaded gun that is loudly fired at people, Bob's telling of why he hasn't used his own apartment's bathroom in nine years of marriage (because Fleur steals all the bathroom supplies from school), a feast of raw meat, zucchini, and ground-up kiwi fruit and kumquats, and general hysteria from all concerned.

The play ends on a happy note with the reconciliation of Anna and Catherine. Apparently the theme of this production is that everyone is insane, so don't worry if you are.

All of the cast is competent and some are excellent, including Julie Haskett, who had to take on an extra small part, as well as her regular role of Fleur, due to a cast member's illness.

Karen Baldwin stands out as Catherine, flawless and funny throughout, resembling a cross between Jane Fonda and Anne Meara. Dianne Pickett is excellent as Anna. Marie Farr as Ceil and Dwight Eastwood as Bob deliver pleasing professional performances.

The show will continue through Saturday, April 4. Performances through April 1 will be dessert shows at 7:15 p.m., curtain at 8:00 p.m. The final three performances will be full dinner shows with seating beginning at 6:30 p.m., curtain at 8:00 p.m.

Tickets are on sale at the Central Ticket Office. For information call 757-6611, ext. 266.

TV Trivia Quiz For 'MASH' Fans

By DAVID NORRIS
and
WILLIAM YELVERTON

"MASH" is one of the most popular shows on television today, as shown by the number of reruns available every day. Since everyone can watch "MASH" two or three times a day, the following twenty questions shouldn't be too difficult.

1. What does "M*A*S*H" stand for?

2. What was Frank Burns' nickname?

3. Name B.J.'s wife?
4. Name Hottlips' ex-husband.
5. What is Hawkeye's real name?
6. Speaking of Hawkeye, what town does he hail from?
7. What happened to Henry Blake after he was transferred home?
8. Name the psychiatrist who periodically visits the MASH unit for poker games.

Cheap Trick Hit Bigtime In Japan

rock & roll; raw, loud guitar tones offset by witty songs and arrangements. Critics liked Cheap Trick's intelligent rock & roll, but the album never found its audience. Too smart for Kiss fans, too loud for AOR, Cheap Trick sold about 150,000 copies.

Barely six months later, Cheap Trick tried again, this time with Epic staff producer Tom Werman. In Color had a cleaner, pop-oriented sound; Werman turned down the guitar and brought the melody up front. Around this time, reviewers began making Beatles-Cheap Trick comparisons. In Color sold slightly better than the first LP, but not enough to make a difference. Meanwhile, Cheap Trick was performing, according to Ken Adamany, an average of 250 one-nighters a year, opening for Kiss, the Kinks, Santana and Boston.

Maybe American didn't jump on Cheap Trick's bandwagon, but 6,000 miles away, Cheap Trick mania was in full force. "Clock Strikes Ten," from In Color, reached Number One on the Japanese charts, followed by "I Want You to Want Me." The press, more influential in Japan than in the U.S. made Cheap Trick its darlings. Two months after the release of In Color, the major Japanese music magazines began clamoring for interviews.

The break-through, when it came, surprised everyone. Cheap Trick had recorded two performances from the tour in Osaka and Tokyo and released a record called Cheap Trick Live at Budokan for the Japanese market. It was a rough, hastily prepared recording ("Some of the songs," Zander remembers, "were single takes," but it contained the best songs from the three studio albums. Import copies sold so briskly in the U.S. that Epic rushed it out and later released a live version of "I Want You to Want Me." Budokan is now just shy of the platinum mark. "I Want You" is rising on the charts, and Cheap Trick's completed studio LP, Dream Police, is being held back until Budokan's popularity fades. Thanks to Budokan, Cheap Trick is now a major U.S. concert attraction; their spring-summer tour of large halls and stadiums is their first full tour as a headline act.

It's ironic that Cheap Trick should get their first big hit by fluke; from the beginning, very little in their career has been left to chance. They've toured incessantly, created four quirky, distinct personas and have marketed themselves with savvy. The Cheap Trick logo, a bleeding typeface designed by Peterson with the help of artist friend Christopher Crowe, adorns everything from album covers to underwear crotches. A

Chicago-based writer remembers seeing logo stickers in every tollbooth on the Chicago-to-Rockford portion of Interstate 95 as early as 1975. "Everywhere, people were saying, 'Who are these guys?'"

"Isn't it much more interesting this way?" Rick asked me last year, after I'd interviewed him for a half-hour and gotten a half-hour of quick quips, fantastic fibs and not-so-serious stores.

I had to agree. As every performer knows, the best way to keep them entertained is to keep them guessing. Cheap Trick does the Kiss routine one better; they don't need the makeup. Music, marketing, a carefully crafted image — it all adds up to one smart, irresistible rock & roll package. But who are these guys?

play that shows what happens when personal judgment tries to move exclusively on a political plane, where issues are simplified and distorted.

"Julius Caesar" clearly points out how men come to deliver themselves to illusion and how they construct for themselves a world in which they inevitably come to disaster."

Even though the ECU production will be a unique presentation of the drama, it will retain the original language and make no specific political references.

Playhouse General Manager Scott Parker commented that the "excitement" the production has generated around eastern North Carolina "has been wonderful."

"We will have nearly 2,000 high school students bused in from as far away as Raleigh and Elizabeth City," he said.

Tickets are available for all evening performances and will go on sale Monday, March 30, at the ECU Central Ticket Office, telephone 757-6390.

Greek Week Planned

A number of events are scheduled this week as part of Greek Week.

The Interfraternity Council Banquet is scheduled for 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, March 31.

The Sigma Tau Gamma Tug-O-War is planned for 2-8 p.m. Wednesday, April 1.

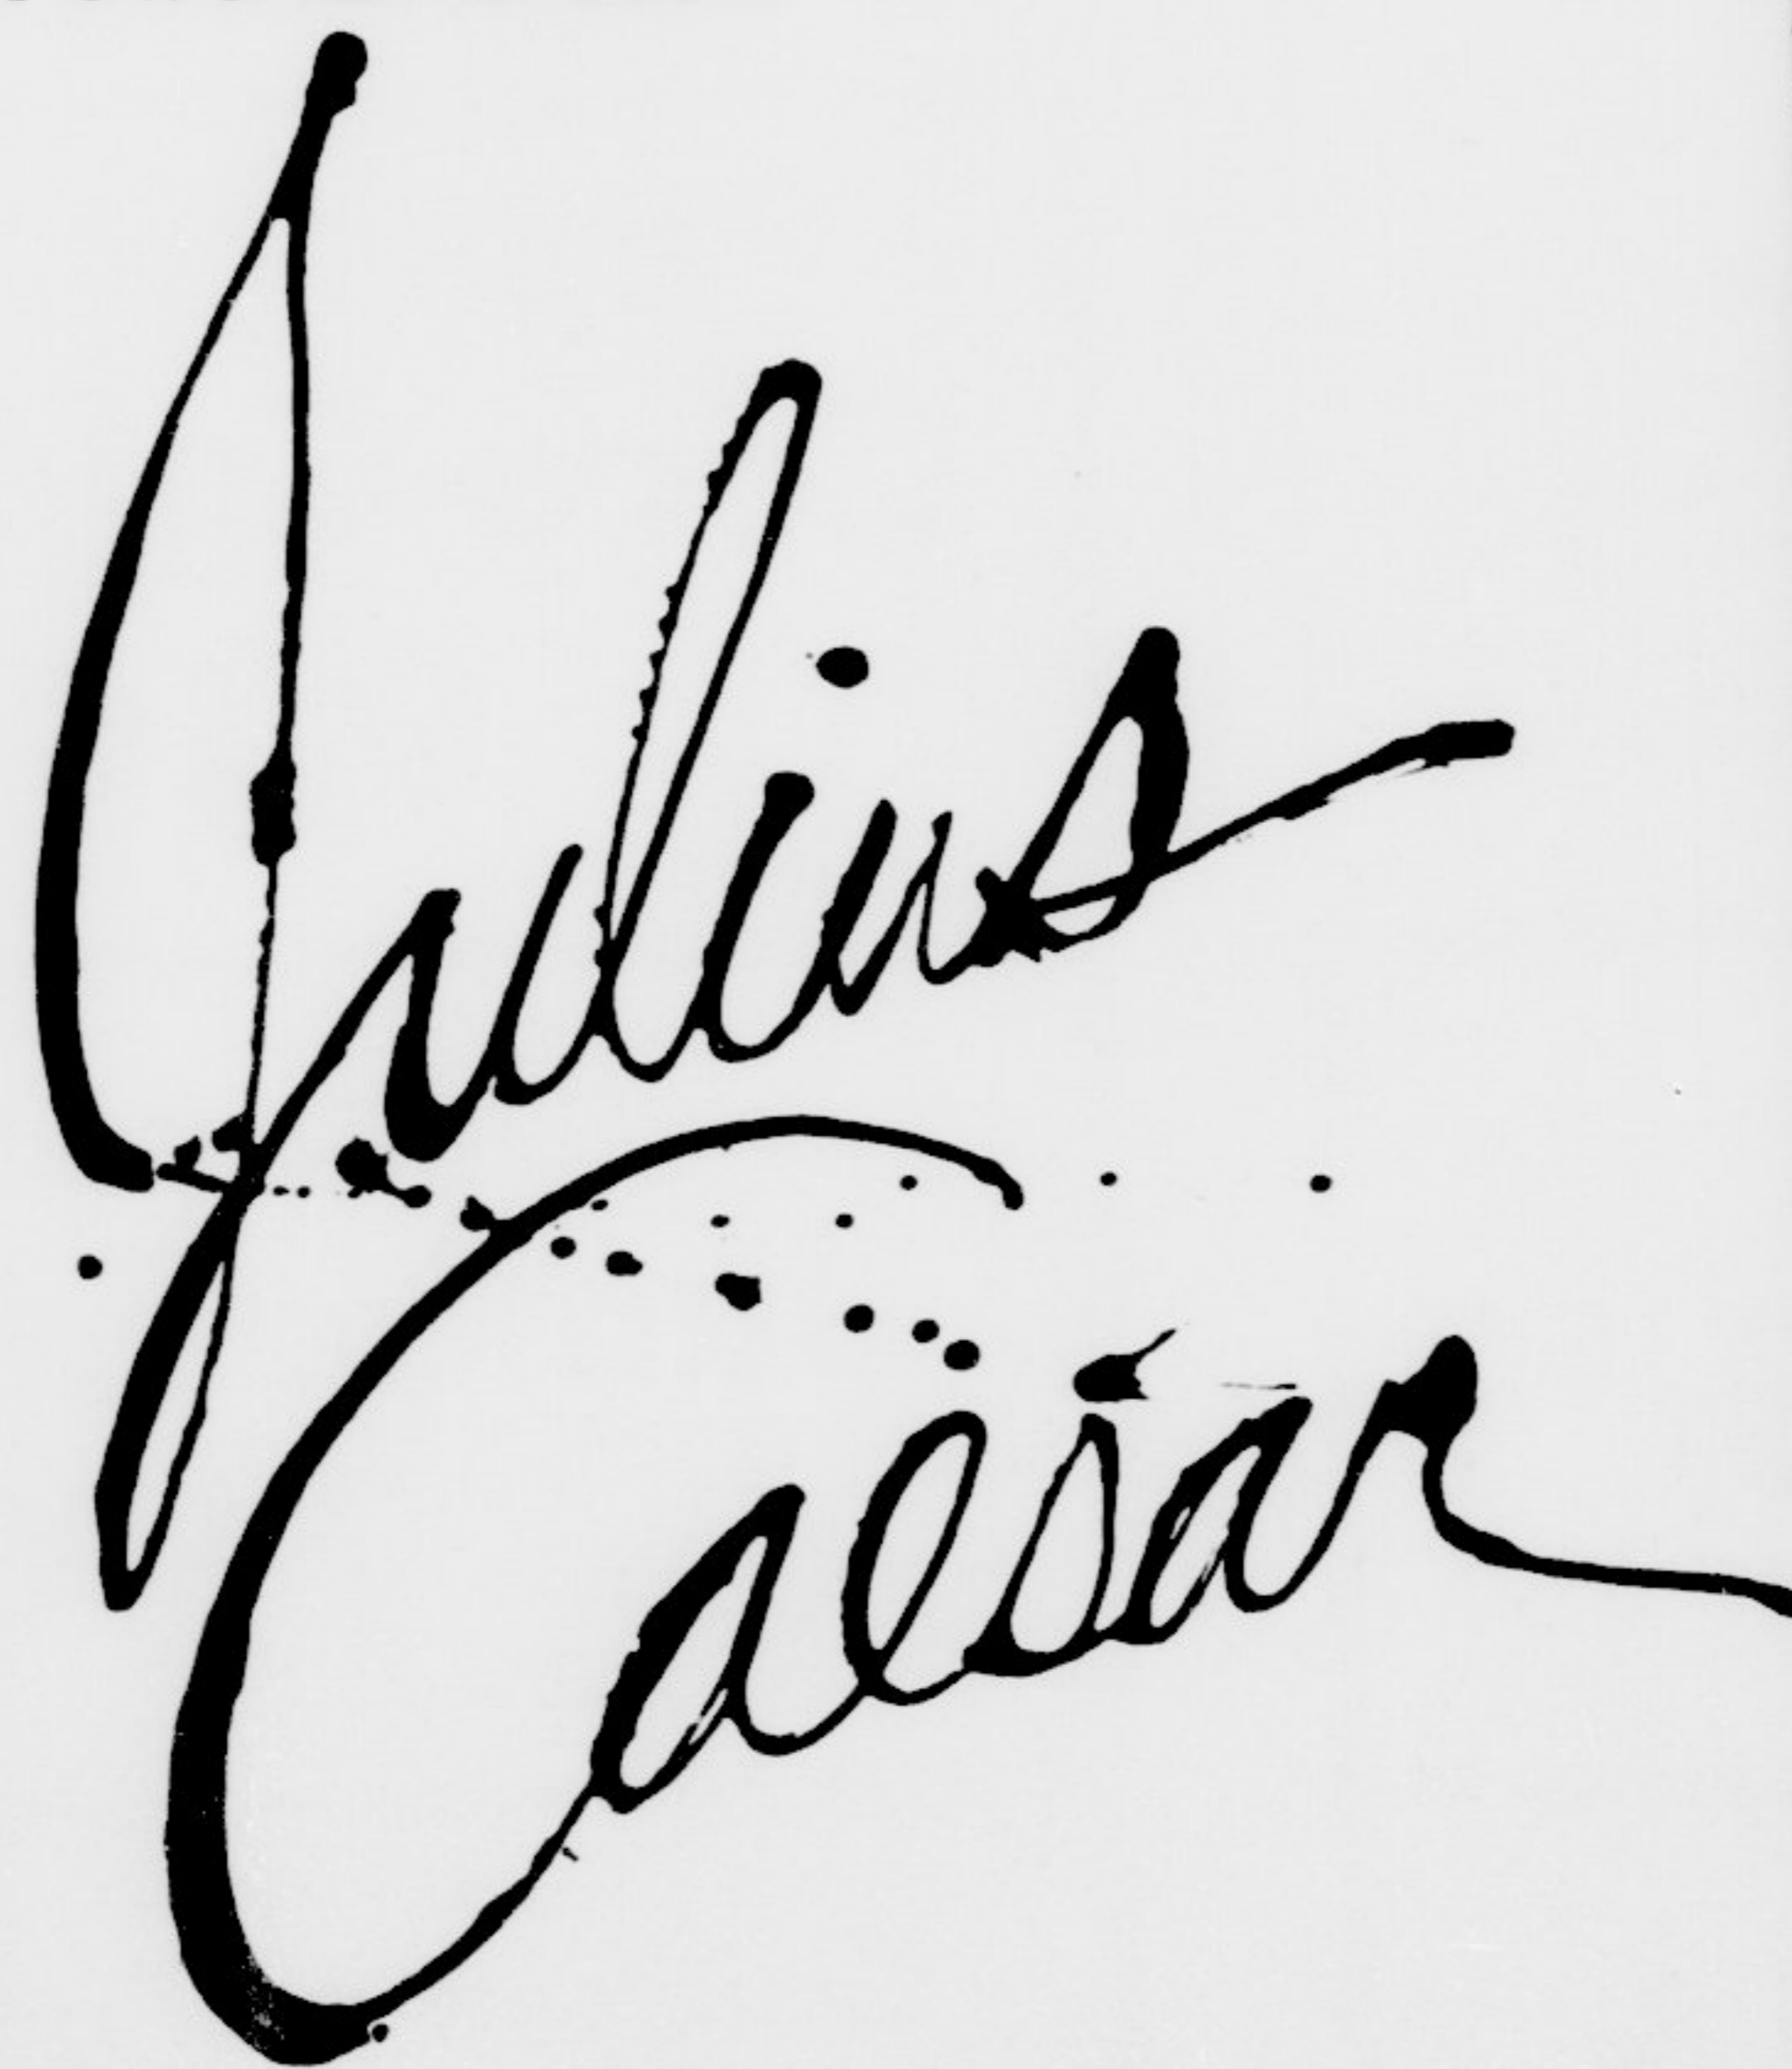

This event is sponsored by Miller Brewing Company.

The Kappa Sigma "Funky Naussau" party begins at the Kappa Sigma House at 3:30 p.m. on April 2. Among the events is a chugging competition for sororities and fraternities.

The Phi Kappa Tau "Spring Fling '81" will be held at the Phi Kappa Tau house on Friday, April 3, from 3:00-6:30 p.m. It's an all-campus event with kegs of beer and music.

The annual Moser's Farm event will top off the week on April 4. Open to all fraternity and sorority members, Moser's Farm keg party is sponsored by the IFC and Pan-Hellenic Council.

 officers who have completed master degree programs in a variety of curriculums, as well as professional military courses, including academic instructor training designed to prepare them for the college environment.

Selection of instructors is based not only on academic status, but also takes into the consideration the diversity of previous assignments.

For example, Major Billy D. Tudor, an Assistant Professor, has accumulated more than 5,000 hours of flying in various aircraft, some of which circled the globe and visited more than 30 countries. He has served at Headquarters Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center where he was responsible for the assignment of 17,000 officers. Major Tudor also has 238 combat hours in Vietnam as an Air Commando.

Lieutenant Colonel James C.

Thomas, Chairman of the Aerospace Studies Department, has fourteen years experience on the faculty at the Air Force Academy where he was a tenured professor.

Other staff members have similarly varied backgrounds in missiles and security police.

The Air Force provides more than 6,000 scholarships to college students in the ROTC program. Cadets can compete for four-, three-, and two-year scholarships, with the majority going to those students majoring in math, physics, computer science, or business administration with a concentration in quantitative methods. Cadets on scholarship and all POC cadets receive $100 per month tax free.

During the last decade some important people-related developments have occurred in the AFROTC program at ECU. For example, enrollment of minority cadets has increased to 37 percent, and since 1969 when the Air Force opened ROTC to women, the number of females enrolled and commissioned through the AFROTC program has steadily increased.

What does all this mean? It means that AFROTC is an integral part of campus and community life, and the curriculum is closely related to the needs of today's society. And from the looks of things in ECU's Detachment 600, AFROTC is facing up to the challenges of the 80's.

Student Publishes Review

A book review by Chad Buffkin of Whiteville, an East Carolina University student, appears in a recent issue of "Challenge," a journal published by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Buffkin's review discusses Bruce C.

Vadeck's "Unloving Care: The Nursing Home Tragedy." The published version of Buffkin's review evolved from a class assignment in an ECU English class in advanced writing for business and industry taught by Dr. Bertie Fearing.

At the time his review went to press,

Buffkin was working as a H.U.D. writer intern, under sponsorship of the ECU Office of Cooperative Education.

Now enrolled on campus as a full-time student, Buffkin is a candidate for the bachelor's degree in English with a concentration in technical writing.

Lady Pirates Win Tourney, Now 19-2

By WILLIAM YELVERTON
Assistant Sports Editor

If you like to watch'em knock down fences, you should have been in Cullowee this past weekend.

With an offensive attack that would have made General Patton proud, East Carolina's Lady Bucs, led by MVP Mitzi Davis, cruised to six wins in the Western Carolina Invitational.

The Bucs defeated N.C. State three times in the tourney, twice on Saturday for the crown, and upped their record to 19-2.

Pirate outfielder Davis was selected most valuable player in the tournament, as she batted out 11 hits in 19 tries and was the tourney leader in putouts.

"I'd have to say we looked pretty darn good," remarked head Coach Alita Dillon. "We hit the ball really well, and I feel like we are gaining momentum as the season goes on."

In Friday's first game, the Lady Pirates whipped Catawba 10-3, as Kathy Riley drove in five runs with a homer and a double. Cynthia Shepard, Angie Humphrey and Lydia Rountree each chipped in with two hits. Humphrey also picked up the win, her sixth against one loss.

Home run was the name of the game in the afternoon's second contest, as the Lady Bucs belted six long balls in the 11-0 romp. The Bucs were led by Davis' two shots, and by Riley, who had her second of the afternoon. Shirley Brown and Jo Landa Clayton each had one round-tripper.

Dillon says Davis was a worthy choice for most valuable player. "She's been really steady. She had an excellent arm and most of all, she really thinks out there."

In the win over the Seahawks, Davis, Riley and Shepard were all 2-3, and Humphrey notched her seventh win of the season.

In the third game, the Bucs had to rally with four runs in the bottom of the sixth to edge N.C. State, 8-5. Riley hammered a double and drove in three runs in the hard-fought contest.

Shepard also was 2-3, including a double, as pitcher Jeanette Roth upped her record to 9-1.

In Saturday's first game, the Bucs downed arch-rival Western Carolina, 6-1.

The second game proved to be a marathon, as the Pirates nipped State in a 12-inning slugfest, 14-13. The Bucs scored four runs in the bottom of the sixth to tie the game at seven all. The teams remained tied until the 10th when State picked up four more runs and took an 11-7 lead.

Again the Lady Pirates battled back by scoring four runs in the last half of the inning. The Pack picked up one more in the top of the 11th, but once more the Pirates came back to tie the game, 12-12.

In the top half of the 12th, State picked up another run to take a 13-12 lead. The Bucs came back again and scored two runs in the bottom of the inning to win, 14-13.

"This was a crucial game," Dillon said. "We were determined we weren't going to lose. This game showed me a lot about our girls. We had to come back so many times, and our team just wouldn't knuckle under."

The Bucs were led by Shirley Brown and Ginger Rothemel, each chipping in with a 4-6 performance. Roth was the winning pitcher as she relieved Humphrey in the fifth and picked up her 10th win.

The Lady Pirates downed the Wolfpack later in the afternoon 7-4, to capture the championship. The Bucs were led by Shepard and Clayton, each collecting three hits. Mary Powell chipped in with a 2-4 effort.

Humphrey was the winning pitcher—her eighth of the season.

State finished second in the double-elimination event, with Western Carolina third and the Tar Heels of North Carolina fourth.

Dillon feels the team is playing up to their capabilities, but they must be cautious. "We must keep playing steady," she insists. "There are still a few more weeks to go, and on any given day anyone can win. No one is invincible. "From here on out, we must take it one game at a time. We can depend on our bench more this year. That's the main difference between this year's team at this point in the season and last year's."

The Lady Bucs will try to continue their winning ways when they meet UNC-Greensboro this afternoon in Greenville. Dillon is aware UNC-G is not as powerful as the Pirates, but she stressed they are still dangerous. "They have some good players, and we can't afford a let-down."

The Lady Pirates also meet the Wolfpack of N.C. State at the ECU softball field Wednesday. Both games begin at 3:00.

Coach Is Upset With Showing

By WILLIAM YELVERTON
Assistant Sports Editor

After his team had broken a school record in the sprint medley, you'd think the coach would be pleased. Not Coach Bill Carson, though. He wasn't pleased at all.

"We just did poorly this weekend," Carson said, referring to the Pirates' performance at the Florida Relays in Gainesville. "It was very disappointing. When one guy messes up in the relays, the whole event is usually messed up."

The Bucs' sprint medley team broke the school record of 3:25 with a time of 3:24.9 and captured fifth place in the race. Shaun Laney turned in a strong performance by running a third leg of 47.5.

"We were very pleased with Shaun," Carson said. "He probably had the best performance of any of us at the meet. His time was very good."

Clint Harris led off the race with a time of 21.2, and Doug Jackson, running second, had a 23.6. Bill Miller ran the final leg of the race and finished with a time of 1:53.4.

The Pirates also captured sixth place in the mile relay with a time of 3:13.6. "Keith Clarke just ran too hard on the lead leg," Carson said. "Cephus was running real well until his knee started to bother him again. It is getting better, though."

Clarke turned in a time of 49.9 and Cephus ran a 48.4.

Also running in the mile relay was Craig Rainey who had a 47.8, and Carlton Bell who turned in a time of 47.8.

In the 4 X 100 relay, the Bucs finished seventh behind Houston's 39.82. The Bucs ran a 41.19.

In the half mile, Miller turned in a time of 3:51, but it was not good enough to place.

This weekend the Bucs will be participating in the Colonial Relays. "It will be a tough meet," Carson said. "There will be excellent competition there."

The Pirates will be running in the 4 X 200 relay, an event they did not participate in at the Florida Relays, the sprint medley and the mile relay.

Lady Netters Lose To Both Guilford, ACC

By CANDICE MATHEWS
Staff Writer

East Carolina's AIAW tennis team had a busy schedule last week, playing two top Division II teams and one Division I team.

Tuesday, the Lady Netters met with Guilford College, last year's Division II runner-up. As was expected, Guilford took the match, 8-1. Karen Jefferys, the number four single's player, took the only win.

The match was played indoors, which was quite a change for ECU. "It was difficult for our players to adapt," said Coach Caroline Brown. "We didn't adapt as quickly as I would've liked us to."

On Thursday, the team played their first home meet of the season against Atlantic Christian College. ECU fell to ACC, 5-4. "We were down 4-2 at the end of the singles," said Brown. "This put us in a difficult position. We should have been at least 3-3."

In order to win, the Lady Netters needed to win all three of their doubles. They took the third and second matches, but lost their number one match in a split set, 6-3.

"We came from behind, and we were almost able to achieve a win," said Brown. "This was a big plus for us."

On Sunday, ECU played Division I team N.C. State. The Wolfpack won the match, 7-2. Singles players Tracey Eubank and Karen Jefferys won their matches. The number three doubles team of Kellie Adair and Jefferys won their match also.

"I scheduled State as a tool for program and talent assessment," said Brown. "We went beyond my expectations. I really didn't think we had the talent to compete with State due to their competitive experiences."

The Lady Netters take on Peace College Wednesday in a scrimmage match. Then on Saturday they play Davidson College at home. Davidson was last year's Division II

Comeback Pushes Bucs Past Fairfield

The East Carolina baseball team scored nine runs on ten hits to beat Fairfield, 9-6, Saturday at Harrison Field.

Fairfield led 4-1 after four innings, gathering one run in the first on an RBI single by first baseman Fred Dana that scored centerfielder Bill Albino, who had singled to lead off the game.

Fairfield went on to add three more runs in the fourth.

Second baseman Al Zappola walked in the top of the fourth and advanced to third on an error on a fielder's choice by ECU third baseman Todd Hendley. Designated hitter Chris Tiso singled home Zappola and third baseman Joe Develis followed with another RBI single.

Tiso later scored on an error by ECU catcher Jay Carraway.

The Pirates scored four runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to give them a 5-4 lead that they never relinquished.

A solo homer in the fourth by Buc leftfielder Todd Evans opened the scoring for ECU. Second baseman Mike Sorrell added a two-run shot in the fifth.

Todd Evans followed Sorrell's blast with a single. Mike Sage and John Hallow then walked to load the bases. A fielder's choice and a wild pitch by Fairfield hurler Tim Kenny made it possible for Sage and Evans to score.

The win pushed the Buc record to 12-5 on the season. Following the game head coach Hal Baird said that he was pleased with his team's ability to comeback in the game but was disappointed with some other areas.

"We seem to be falling into a habit of coming back," he said, referring to several other such games this season. "But, overall, I was not satisfied with our defensive play."

"We executed several maneuvers as well as we could draw them on a chalk board," he claimed. On the other hand, we had several occasions where we really looked bad. That's the areas we need to concentrate on."

The continued unsettled situation in centerfield also was a concern of the second-year Buc coach.

"Defensively, we know Robert Wells is solid," he said. "But he's not a prolific producer from an offensive standpoint. We'll just have to juggle people at that position depending upon our needs."

The Pirates next game is today (Tuesday) at Atlantic Christian. On Thursday the team travels to Raleigh to take on Atlantic Coast Conference leader N.C. State.

The latter contest has drawn much of Baird's attentions of late.

"This is the first time in memory that we can say we've beaten State three in a row," he remarked. "I know they'll have a lot of incentive Thursday. They'll have revenge in mind. Also, they're playing real well

Indiana Wins Game Nearly Cancelled

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — On a night that should have belonged to Indiana, basketball was the least of the nation's concerns.

In a game nearly postponed because of an assassination attempt on President Reagan, All-America guard Isiah Thomas scored 23 points and Indiana, a team toughened to tournament pressure, won the NCAA championship Monday night with a 63-50 victory over North Carolina. Thomas, who scored 19 points in the second half, was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Ordinarily the premier spectacle in college sports, the title game lost much of its edge in light of the shooting of President Reagan.

The start of the game was in doubt until 30 minutes before tipoff. Wayne Duke, Chairman of the NCAA Basketball Committee, then announced the game would proceed as scheduled.

"Based upon reports we have obtained in the past several minutes," Wayne said, "we have decided to proceed as planned with the championship game. The two coaches of the competing teams were consulted separately."

Duke met with NCAA President Jim Frank, NCAA Secretary-Treasurer John Toner, and the presidents, athletic directors and faculty representatives of both schools as well as Athletic Coast Conference Commissioner Bob James.

Duke said NBC, which televised the game to a viewing audience of about 50 million, did not take part in the final decision.

Before the start of the game, Dr. Donald Fulton gave a prayer before the sellout crowd at The Spectrum. A moment of silence followed. In the consolation game, Jeff Lamp scored 25 points and Lee Raker added 21 to carry Virginia to a 78-74 victory over Louisiana State.

Duke said the consolation game was staged as usual because early reports indicated the President was not seriously hurt.

The Hoosiers, in a successful return to the site of their previous championship, have now won two titles in the last six years. Their title seasons were 1940, '53 and '76, the last coming in Philadelphia.

"I never thought we couldn't get here," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "When it was 16-8 it didn't look good. I thought we might get blown out right there. But they hung in there the way they have all year."

"I told them at the half they had put themselves in position to win the ballgame and they went out there the first two minutes of the second half just the way they did Saturday."

The Tar Heels, yet to win a championship for Coach Dean Smith, now have fallen short six times in the Final Four since Smith took over the team 20 years ago.

"Thomas' second-half performance (7-of-10 from the field) was just too much," Smith said. "Indiana's defense was very active. I don't think we played as well as we could but I'm very proud of this year's team. Indiana was better tonight."

In light of the shooting in Washington, Smith said he was unsure of the status of the game.

"We didn't know we were going to play for sure until we took the court," he said. "It was tragic — a real tragedy."

Reagan, recovering in a Washington hospital and in good spirits after surgery, reportedly handed a note to one of his doctors which read: "All in all, I'd rather be in Philadelphia."

CO-REC BOWLING

Co-Rec Bowling drew to a finish Sunday, March 29. Eight teams participated in the playoffs from a division total of 24. These teams were chosen based on their respective records during regular season play.

Results from the first round included a 4-0 sweep by "BOPARASM" over "ASSORTED NUTS." RICHARD PARRISH led his team with a fine 470 series. The "Misfits" triumphed by a 3-1 score over "Wild Bunch 1." BOBBY JONES rolled a 458 and LARUE YOUNG had a 389 series to secure the victory.

Other first round scores included a 4-0 sweep for the "Rolling Rocks" over the "Strikers" and a 3-1 victory by "BSU" over "Bolton's Pin Busters."

The semi-final round again saw the Rocks and Misfits score wins. JUDY GODDARD rolled a fine 451 series to lead the Rolling Rocks. She received able support from teammates CHUCK HILL, BUZZ CHADWICK and SUSIE BOYD. JEFF WAGSTAFF and ALICE HINES led the misfits over BSU in the other semi-final match. WAGSTAFF bowled a 505 series while HINES had a 362.

In the finals it proved difficult for either the Misfits or the Rolling Rocks to gain much of an advantage. After the Rocks won the first game by 65 pins, the Misfits came back to win the second game by 75 pins.

Therefore, going into the final game only 10 pins separated the two teams.

Both teams bowled superbly and only a big 10th frame by the Misfits assured the victory by 11 total pins. High scorers for the Misfits were BOBBY JONES with a 464 and LARUE YOUNG with a 409. CHUCK HILL led the Rocks with a 430.

The IM Department would like to congratulate to Misfits and all the bowlers on a great season.

CROSS-CAMPUS FUN RUNS

Lady Pirates Send Four

By CANDICE MATHERS
Staff Writer

Competing in less than perfect weather conditions, ECU's AIAW track team sent four people to the finals in the University of Virginia Invationals Friday.

All three freshmen advanced to the finals in their events. Carolyn Moore won her heat in the 200, taking seventh in the finals. Felicia Warren took second in the hurdles, placing her in the finals. Anne Hartman placed sixth in the 400 meter hurdles.

coach Laurie Arrants. "However, considering the weather conditions, I wasn't too disappointed."

The Lady tracksters travel to Raleigh this weekend to compete in the NCAAIAW Cham-ionships.

"We don't expect to score well team-wise since we have such a small team," said Arrants. "Instead, I'm going to be looking for good individual scores."
