Helms Speaks

N.C. Sen. Jesse Helms made one last campaign stop in Greenville Saturday at a rally at Cannon's warehouse. Helms spoke to a crowd of over 1,000 and voiced his support for the state's tobacco program.

Observers Sent To State Polls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department said Monday 358 federal observers will be stationed at polling places in four Southern states today, with most going to Mississippi.

The observers are being assigned to make sure voters have a fair chance to cast their ballots, the department said. A spokesman said that in most instances, local officials requested the aid.

There will be 307 observers stationed in Mississippi, the largest number ever sent to that state. Eleven will be in Alabama, 18 in Georgia and 22 in North Carolina, the first time observers are being sent to that state.

Justice Department spokesman

John Wilson said Mississippi was getting a lot of observers because of problems anticipated by local election officials and minority community leaders.

He said the decision to send observers to 11 Mississippi counties also was based on reports from federal observers in previous elections.

While Wilson declined to comment on specific problems in the Mississippi counties, every one in which observers are stationed has a black-white contest for Congress, county office of the local school board.

Ten of the 11 counties fall in the 2nd District where veteran state Rep. Robert Clark, a black Democrat, is challenging Rep. Webb Franklin, a white Republican. The race is a rematch of a 1982 contest between the two men. Since the last race, the district has been redrawn by a federal court. Blacks now comprise 53 percent of the population, compared with 48 percent before.

The previous record for federal observers in Mississippi was 244 in 1968, the first presidential election covered by the Voting Rights Act. There were 201 observers sent to Mississippi in the 1980 election, according to Wilson.

Mississippi has had a long history of voting rights problems.

Last year civil rights activist Jesse Jackson persuaded William Bradford Reynolds, head of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, to make a fact-finding trip to the state to see the problems first hand.

The observers will watch and record the election process during voting hours and also will observe the tabulation of the vote after polls close.

In addition, special telephone numbers are available to receive complaints about racially discriminatory voting practices. The numbers in North Carolina are: (919) 832-2131 or (919) 832-2416.

Race Closes With Commercial Blitz

RALEIGH (UPI) — Sen. Jesse Helms and Gov. James Hunt closed their rough-and-tumble Senate contest with a blitz of television commercials — 7,000 between Oct. 1 and Monday.

Hunt ran hundreds of 10-, 30- and 60-second spots during the final weekend of the campaign. And now the two-term governor bought air time for a half-hour documentary.

Helms has been running ads throughout each day, including hundreds of less expensive 10-second spots. The 7,000 television commercials that the two candidates ran between Oct. 1 and Monday, the eve of the election cost more than $2 million.

In the closing weeks of the race, Helms' ads were expected to appear at least 5,259 times, to 2,536 for Hunt.

Helms outspent Hunt on advertising in the final month of the campaign. The most recent campaign finance records indicate Helms has spent nearly $1.1 million and Hunt, about $967,000.

"That is just an incredible amount of time and money for a five-week period," said Rick Silver of Chernoff, Silver and Associates, which places ads across the Southeast. "I can't think of anything to compare it to."

Since the candidates started running ads last year, Helms has outspent Hunt on TV by a 2-to-1 margin, according to a study by The News and Observer of Raleigh.

"I'm sure they're still ahead of us," said Hunt spokesman Will Marshall. "They are inundating us with ads."

The candidates bought about $700,000 in commercial time in Charlotte, the state's largest television market, because the area is considered thick with undecided voters.

"The Piedmont is critical," said Marshall. "That's where 40 percent of the people live. It's an area of opportunity."

New General Manager Named

By HAROLD JOYNER
Assistant News Editor

The ECU Media Board Monday selected Tom Norton as the new general manager of the East Carolinian. He will succeed Hunter Fisher, who is resigning effective Dec. 31.

"I'm glad to be chosen," Norton said. "I really look forward to assuming Hunter's position. He has done a fine job as general manager."

Norton has worked for the East Carolinian since Sept. 1983 and has been the paper's credit manager since Dec. 1983.

Media Board Chairman Glenn Conway said Norton presented excellent proposals to the board. "The board's decision was a difficult one to make," Conway said, "but I feel Tom's managerial skills, which he has exhibited as Credit Manager made him most qualified for the job."

"I think Tom was an excellent candidate for the position of general manager. Not only does he have a fine academic record and the support of the East Carolinian staff, he also has the experience necessary to fulfill this position," said Rudolph Alexander, associate dean and director of university unions.

Norton, 22, is a senior accounting major. He said his plans for the East Carolinian include extending Fisher's current projects and expanding coverage of campus events. "Right now, I feel the present coverage of campus events is adequate, but there is always room for improvement," Norton said.

Fisher said he expects the transition to be smooth. "Tom is very qualified for the position," Fisher said, "and I feel he has a good working relationship with the staff and superb managerial skills, which will enable him to adequately pursue programs I've established during my tenure as general manager. I am glad the board chose such a qualified candidate."

"I am also pleased with the fine staff I have had the opportunity to work with. All of them should be commended for their dedicated labor, commitment and patience for the paper. They have all been very helpful and I am grateful to have had the opportunity to work with them."

Norton

Fisher said. Norton said he felt privileged to obtain the position of general manager. "The East Carolinian has always been a first-class paper produced through the work of many dedicated and hardworking students. I hope to continue making The East Carolinian a first-rate organization."

NC Student Leaders Support Jim Hunt

By HAROLD JOYNER
Assistant News Editor

Student leaders across North Carolina showed their support last Friday for Gov. Jim Hunt's commitment to educational programs and loans at the college level.

ECU student David Brooks, chairman of Students for Hunt spoke on the governor's commitment to education. "Education has been the centerpiece of Jim Hunt's two terms as governor and will continue to be one of his key priorities as a U.S. Senator," Brooks said.

Brooks pointed out that federal government plays a significant role in assisting more than 90,000 N.C. college students with aid and loans. "At ECU," he said, "there are 4,600 recipients of federal assistance programs or loans this year. That means approximately one-third of the student body is benefitting from federal help in some way."

"Educational officials say between 20,000 to 40,000 college students would be forced to drop out if federal assistance was eliminated, as Sen. Helms proposed in a recent debate with Hunt."

Also speaking on Hunt's education program was Scott Wharton, a UNC-Chapel Hill student who is involved with Hunt's press office. "Hunt calls for strengthening student loan programs. Annually, state college students receive $147 million in federal assistance and loans. The federal government provides $268 million for collegiate research and $277 million of support for the state's elementary and secondary public schools."

"Economists believe that subsidizing education for those who can not afford it and are qualified pays off with greater social opportunities," Wharton said. Stan Broadway, executive director of the N.C. Educational Assistance Authority, believes the removal of federal money would have absolutely disastrous effects for the state's colleges and universities and there would be significant enrollment declines. "Saying Hunt's track record on education has been nationally hailed, Brooks listed Hunt's contributions to education. "Not only did Hunt begin the competency test program, but there are 5,000 less high school dropouts this year."

Honors Program Offers Spring Seminars

By ELAINE PERRY
Staff Writer

The Honors Program, under the direction of Dr. David Sanders, will offer a variety of seminars during the spring semester.

The honors program began nearly 20 years ago when a group of students asked faculty members to meet with them to discuss great books. The group met informally until it gradually became incorporated into a credit system. The program has become coordinated during the last five years under Sanders.

Most departments have upper level courses for the honors student. Practicums also are honors kinds of courses. Sanders wants to "encourage more departments to develop upper level honors courses."

The seminars sponsored by the honors program are an alternate to regular General College courses. They "offer all the general education requirements to exceptional students and offer honors sections at regular courses" said Sanders.

The seminars provide small classes for the exceptional student. Several of the faculty including Dr. Holly Matthews, Anthropology, Dr. Marie Farr, English and Dr. Robert Gowen,

Record Voter Turnout Expected

The 1984 election season will officially end tomorrow when millions of voters arrive at polling places to select their candidates.

In North Carolina, a record voter turnout is expected. As of Oct. 8, 3,270,933 North Carolinians had registered to vote in the general election. This number is 18 percent higher than the number registered in 1980.

State Elections Chairman Alex Brock said he expects most state polls to be extremely busy. "I would ask the voters to just consider the fact that we all have to stand in line to buy license tags and to pay taxes," Brock said.

Polls in Pitt County will be open until 8:30 p.m. to accommodate the large number of voters.

Vote

Go To The Polls Today

Once every four years Americans have their say. Today is that day. Election Day. And as university students, your right to vote should be turned by you into an obligation. As both Democrats and Republicans have been saying all year, never has the choice been so clear for the American public. Students from North Carolina have a chance to shift or not shift our state's views on three different levels. It is important to make that choice.

Vote. You, as students, above all should value and cherish the privilege to pick your nation's leaders. Our country began because of a cry for representative government. We believed in the people ruling the people, not a monarch with supposed God-given rights who tell other men what to do. Our founding fathers had the wisdom and confidence that we could govern ourselves. So they let us have a vote.

Today democracy is still a minority form of government in the world. Most people live under dictators or Communist-type regimes. We are the world's bastion of freedom, telling the peoples of every land to have faith and hope; believe, we tell them, you can — if given the chance — govern yourselves.

Over the years, suffrage has been expanded in our country to cover everyone over the age of 18. That includes you — the college student. Our heritage demands that you use your freedom to choose who you want to represent you as your governor, senator, state legislator, representative, president, etc. Pick who decides how your army is used and how your laws are drafted. If one chooses not to choose, then you are forgetting the words of Jefferson, Paine and Lincoln.

Their words tell us to decide in this most decisive of years. Now more than ever before there are opposite ends of a political spectrum lined up against each other in our nation's presidential contest. The incumbent, Ronald Reagan, has shown us that he can be true almost all of the time to his conservative beliefs. He represents less government, a strong military, reduced spending on social programs and morality imposed by law. The challenger, former Vice President Walter B. Mondale, is liberal. He calls for a government with less defense spending, more social spending, a reduced deficit and one that sees an activist role for government.

The choice is one of the clearest ever. You must decide. But above all do decide. Send who you think is best able to bring this country into the 21st century. If a conservative government is in order, then by all means give us one, but if one with more action by government is needed, send that one instead.

In our U.S. Senate race another major decision is in order. Does our state want to keep our maverick senator, Jesse Helms, whose votes are among the most conservative in Congress. Or do you want a change and wish to opt for Gov. James B. Hunt, a moderate southern Democrat who represents the progressive South. There is clearly a distinction. Choose one.

The chore in the governor's race is less distinct but important in the appearance of who we want to run our state. Will we opt for a progressive conservative, Rep. James Martin, or do we wish to stick with the traditional Democrat, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten? Do we wish to show the rest of the country a Democrat or Republican? The choice is yours. Consider the issues. Read about the candidate's positions. And Vote Today!!!

Switch Before Debt Derailment

By CHARLES SUNE

The issue is not just that Ronald Reagan has signed up for $850 billion of debt or that on his watch he is giving us a debt that will be equal to that of all past presidents before him combined. The issue is not just that the debt will approach or exceed $200 billion a year for as far as the eye can see or that the interest alone on the debt will exceed $200 billion by the year 1989. The real issue is that he doesn't think we have a problem. — Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass.

The presidential election of 1984 is perhaps the critical election of our lifetime. Never before has the choice been as clear-cut and have the consequences of our decision been more profound. Young people — like no other voting group — have the most at stake in this election, for it is we who will suffer the long-term dire consequences of the Reagan debt. The issue is not "Are we better off today than we were four years ago," but rather, "will we be better off four years from now?"

In spite of Ronald Reagan's pledge to balance the federal budget, we have the most out of balance budget in our history. What is more significant is the impact this will have on our future prosperity and more importantly, what impact this will have on young people as they enter the job market. Martin Feldstein, formally President Reagan's chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors (CEA), said recently, "The longer the deficits are allowed to persist, the greater are the risks to our economy."

So why has the deficit become such a hindrance to economic growth seemingly overnight? After all, we have lived with deficits before. The answer lies in the size of the deficits and the effect its enormous size has on real interest rates. The size is not only increasing in nominal terms, but is increasing in real terms. Congressional Budget Office (CBO) analysts project the deficit to comprise five percent of the gross national product (GNP) by the end of the decade unless present spending is curtailed and/or government revenues are increased. This compares with deficits which in previous decades comprised between two to three percent of the GNP. Similarly, the CBO notes that if no tax laws had been changed during the Reagan years, the budget would be in an $11 billion surplus by 1989, instead of the current projected deficit of $240 billion. In nominal terms, the cumulative deficit will have increased from one trillion in 1980 to 2.3 trillion in 1989 by Reagan's optimistic projections. Reagan, in eight years, will have more than doubled the deficit.

As government finances the ever-increasing deficit, real interest rates, (interest rates minus inflation) will grow higher than ever. The cost of borrowing funds, in real terms, has already risen significantly, in some cases three to four percent, and there is a consensus among economists, both conservative and liberal, that this is due to current high deficits. As Time noted recently, there is "...fear among money men that the Government will borrow so heavily that less funds will be available for consumers and business." In other words, when consumers borrow money, they will be paying more for that money because of higher deficits. What is even more concerning is that these interest rates show no sign of coming down. "Real net-of-inflation interest rates will remain high as long as there is an extraordinary pressure for credit to finance the huge federal deficit," noted Martin and Kathleen Feldstein in The Washington Post recently.

As we analyze the costs of the Reagan deficit we must realize too that the deficits have aggravated the already problematic trade deficit. Feldstein has not only contended that deficits force up interest rates, but additionally, cause the U.S. dollar to be overvalued internationally.

Jane Bryant Quinn put everything in perspective in a recent Newsweek column: "Record inflation has given way to record budget deficits, record trade deficits, federal spending on an even more Olympian scale and a nail-biting burden of real interest rates." As young people, students in particular, decide who to support in this election, the decision can be reduced to a level of economic imperative: Can we afford to risk our future with Ronald Reagan?

Peace Thanks Republicans

We would like to thank the College Republicans and SGA for bringing Mr. Solomon to ECU to present his views on the Grenada invasion during Central America Awareness Week. As many people know, the College Republicans and the ECU Peace Committee have differing views on many issues, and certainly U.S. policy is one example in which we hold different opinions.

Our primary goal was and is to make people more aware of what is happening in Central America so they can more informatively make their own decisions about U.S. Foreign Policy in that region.

"Americas in Transition," an academy award-winning PBS film, will be shown Nov. 8 in Joyner Library, downstairs in the Media Board Room at 7 p.m. We ask anyone who would like to join us for the film and discussion to please do so as only through dialogue can we hope to find a solution to our problems in Central America and other troubled sections of the world.

ECU Peace Committee

Hey, Bern

In response to Bern McGrady's letter to the editor of Nov. 1, I would like to show Bern just who has been asleep lately. Throughout the past administration, the "stronghold" of the U.S. government in various areas has been severely lessened and the true leadership has been brought back to a realistic level. This can be accredited to President Reagan's placing of importance upon an individual's perspective and unique right. If one were to study the U.S. government during the administration of James Carter and Walter Mondale, they would see very clearly that the importance of governmental strength was placed on the chiefs and directors of various organizations in the government. Ronald Reagan has gotten us away from the waste that can be attributed solely to these directors and chiefs because of lack of zeal and competence.

Bern, you said that President Reagan will have to "raise taxes to try to reduce the deficit." This statement is so utterly ridiculous and is typical of a Democratic liberal. If you recall, during the Carter administration, inflation was at a sizeable double-digit rate. Since that time, President Reagan has reduced inflation to a very low single-digit. What do you attribute this to? Luck? On the contrary, this administration has created numerous new jobs and various tax cuts which has enabled the inflation rate to fall drastically. These same new jobs and tax cuts have created a renewed spirit of patriotism and a love for the United States. People are now beginning to make their "breaks" because the "land of opportunity" has been re-established, and they are once again able to "see the light at the end of the tunnel."

In reference to Mr. McGrady's view of our peace force in Lebanon, I would just like to have him look at the situation from the point of view of a Lebanese citizen looking for peace. The peace force has enabled them to see that the United States truly cares about the outcome of their incumbent problems and that we are willing to give our lives for them. Yes, that means me also.

Lastly, I would like to address Bern's obnoxious comment which was addressed toward Jerry Falwell. Who gives you the right to make such a severe comment in calling Falwell a "religious fanatic?" Jerry Falwell is a man trying to work towards a cause. He feels Ronald Reagan is the best candidate and thus endorses him. Why bring in his so called "fanaticism?"

On Nov. 6, the United States will be voting for the office of president. As it appears due to present polls, Ronald Reagan is firmly ahead. This just shows the intelligence of the majority of people in this country. I just thank God that Reagan will, as Bern so bluntly put it, "kick ass."

N.C. Funding Ranks Fifth In Nation

(UPI) — North Carolina ranks fifth in the nation in per capita funding for higher education, according to a survey published this week in the Chronicle of Higher Education.

The survey, based on figures compiled by an education professor at Illinois State University, also said the state ranks 8th nationally in total spending for colleges and universities.

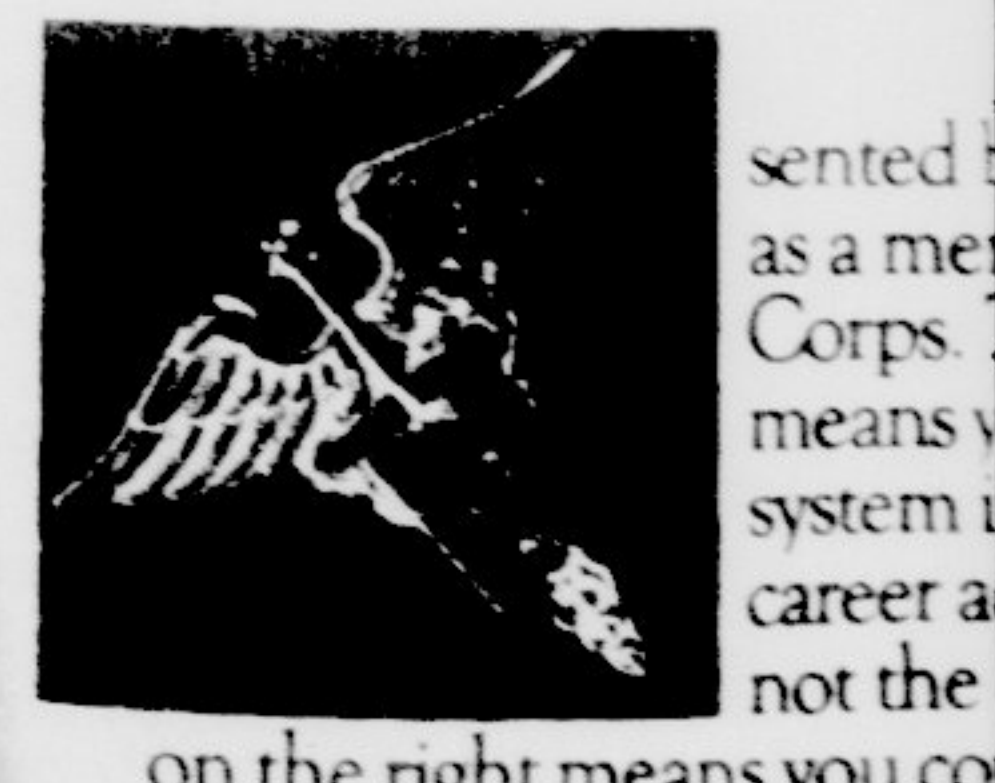

In 1984-85, according to the survey by M.M. Chambers, North Carolina appropriated $960 million for about $160.70 per capita to its 16 public colleges, 58 community colleges and technical institutes and in aid to private colleges.

In per capita spending, North Carolina ranked only behind Alaska, Wyoming, Hawaii and North Dakota. Alaska spent $366.02 per capita on higher education.

Chambers has monitored state spending on higher education for the past 26 years. His study shows that for the 1964-85 school year, the 50 states appropriated more than $28 billion for college and university operating expenses. That figure does not include state funding for capital improvements or money from student fees and federal and local governments.

North Carolina ranked fourth in how its higher education spending related to per capita income. Chambers said, behind only Alaska, Wyoming and New Mexico.

Credit Card Theft Increases

Crime Column

On March 7, 1982, a coed's purse was stolen from her car which was parked in the 5th and Reade St. freshmen lot. The purse contained a credit card from a major oil company. From March until June 27 of that year the card was used by the thief three times in Greenville, three times in Williamston, three times in Vanceboro, three times in Plymouth, twice in New Bern, once in Rocky Mount, once in Havelock and once in Morehead City. Finally, in response to a bulletin issued by the ECU

Department of Public Safety to other law enforcement agencies in eastern North Carolina, the card was recovered at a gas station in Plymouth.

During the same school year, two freshmen coeds from Greene dorm stole several purses from unlocked rooms in the dorm. One of the purses contained a credit card which was used at several stores in Greenville before it was recovered. The suspects were arrested by campus investigators and prosecuted.

Credit and bank card frauds are a steadily increasing crime on college campuses. Students are especially susceptible to this crime because thieves know that students are not likely to take normal precautions against the theft and use of their cards.

Common mistakes which lead to the theft of credit cards include leaving room doors unlocked, even for "just a minute," and leaving purses inside the passenger compartment of vehicles. Account numbers of all credit cards should be recorded and the phone number of the credit card company should be readily available. In case of theft, the victim should immediately notify the credit card company and file a report with the police. Most credit card companies will hold the victim responsible for purchases made on the card from the time of theft until the time of the report. Many require that the victim be responsible for the first $50 in charges against the card after the theft, even if a report is made.

Along with credit card fraud, automatic teller cards have become a source of easy income for thieves. Up to $200 per day can be removed from an account with an automatic teller card. If the card is used to draw on a checking account, chances are that the victim will find checks bouncing before realizing that money is missing from the account.

Automatic teller fraud can be easily prevented. The cards can only be used by keying in an individual code assigned to the card owner by the banking institution. If the code is protected by the card owner, the card is worthless to a thief. However, in five cases of automatic teller card fraud reported to public safety investigators within the past two years, the victim allowed the thief access to the code. In two cases, the code was written on a piece of paper which was carried in a purse or wallet with the card. In one case, the code was kept in a desk drawer in a dorm room and was stolen at the same time as the wallet containing the card was stolen. In another case, the victim allowed several persons to watch as she keyed the code into the machine; and in one case, the victim had written the code on the back of the card.

On several occasions, the cards have been used by roommates or friends and returned to the victim's room before they were missed. The victims learned of the crimes only after receiving their bank statements.

Automatic teller card codes should be memorized. They should not be written down and kept anywhere. The owner of the card should never allow anyone, not even close friends, to watch automatic teller transactions. If a card is stolen, the victim should make an immediate report to the banking institution and file a police report.

Penalties for credit card fraud and credit card larceny have been stiffened in recent years in an attempt to cope with the increase in reported incidents. Credit card fraud is punishable under North Carolina law with a maximum of a $1,000 fine and one year in prison. The larceny of a credit card is a felony and is punishable by up to three years in prison or a fine at the discretion of the court or both.

Playhouse Plans 'Ozma Of Oz'

The East Carolina Youth Playhouse will present the delightful children's classic Ozma of Oz: A Tale of Time on Nov. 13 at 7:15 p.m. in McGinnis Theatre. Loosely based on the zany characters and improbable situations of L. Frank Baum's book of the same title, Ozma of Oz explores the relationship between teenaged Dorothy and her elderly but magnificently spirited Uncle Henry.

The curtain rises to find Dorothy and Uncle Henry on board an old and rusty cargo freighter bound for Australia. Soon, a large storm approaches and Dorothy and her uncle are swept off the boat and whirled away on an adventure of discovery in the wild and dazzling Land of Oz. Along the way they encounter Bill, a giant wisecracking chicken, the wacky Wheelers, the vain and vivacious Langwidere, and finally, the superstrong and wonderfully wise Ozma.

"We try to pull out all the stops for Youth Playhouse productions," explains Director Doug Ray. "The costumes and lights are of bright colors, the scenery is from the world of fantasy and the mood is one of enchantment — everything that will help capture the enthusiasm of our young audience and reinforce the theme, which, in this case, is one of caring and understanding between children and adults."

There are other performances of Ozma of Oz; however, Tuesday evening, Nov. 13, is the only show which has not already sold out. All tickets are $2 and may be purchased at the McGinnis Theatre Box Office. The box office is open Monday through Friday, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Telephone reservations are also accepted by calling 757-6390.

Brian Cottle, Hall Wells and Christi Garrison prepare for the playhouse production of Ozma of Oz.

The Challenge: Quit Smoking For A Day

"I don't know why smokers wait until New Year's to stop smoking, when they receive nation-wide support November 15th during the Great American Smokeout," said Joan Boudreaux, Pitt County Chairperson of the American Cancer Society's yearly event.

Preparing for Pitt County's fourth (America's eighth) annual Smokeout, Boudreaux said that in spite of the tobacco economy in Pitt County, the response to the 24-hour cold turkey from cigarettes has gained momentum during the four years she has chaired the event.

The Great American Smokeout is sponsored by the American Cancer Society every year to encourage smokers who would like to kick the habit and vow not to smoke for 24 hours.

"Last year more than one in every three smokers in the United States (36 percent) participated in the smokeout. Of these, over eight percent did not smoke all day, over four percent reported that they were not smoking still one to 11 days later," said Rose Richards, director of the Pitt County Chapter of the American Cancer Society. Richards hopes that people who smoke will let one of their non-smoking friends adopt them smokeout day. "They can go by the American Cancer Society office on 112 Pitt Street for the adoption papers," Richards said. The papers are to be filled out and signed by both non-smoker and smoker, the former pledging to help by hiding the smoker's cigarettes and furnished chewing gum or fruit; the latter pledging to adhere by following the suggestions printed on the Adopt-A-Smoker card.

The Alpha Phi Omega fraternity will man a table at the Student Supply Store Nov. 14, the day before the smokeout. According to Danny White, president of the fraternity, the members will aid all those interested in eliminating the weed for 24 hours.

People who are interested in quitting smoking will be asked to fill out a pledge card agreeing to "solemnly swear to give up smoking for the Great American Smokeout, Nov. 15." The pledge card also requests potential quitters to promise not to smoke for 24 hours (and maybe longer), or to help a friend quit.

Those who agree to the 24-hour trial period are also given various information sheets, bookmarks, buttons, and a red rubber band (with J.R. Ewing's picture attached), which is worn on the wrist and is designed to help the participants quit. "When ever you want a cigarette, instead of striking up a match, you just snap the band," is the advice written on a card attached to the band, quoting J.R. (Larry Hagman).

The bookmarks have a quote from the 1984 report on smoking and health from the Surgeon General's goal: "A smoke-free society by the year 2000."

A fact sheet to be given out the day before the Great American Smokeout notes that the number of smokers who have quit is rising steadily from 1.8 million in 1978 to over 33 million in 1983. Of those Americans who still smoke, nine out of ten polled claim they would like to quit.

According to Boudreaux, people have a better chance to quit smoking if they have a "support group" to help them. Boudreaux, who quit smoking herself several years ago, sees the American Cancer Society's campaign as providing such support on the national level.

"It is an upbeat, good-natured effort on the part of the American Cancer Society to encourage smokers to stop smoking for at least 24 hours," Boudreaux said. She said that people who choose should attempt to quit while they have a day of national support. "If for no other reason, to prove to themselves they can do it."

Boudreaux added that people who choose to keep smoking, using Pitt County's economy as their excuse, need to be applauded for their sacrifice. "I commend North Carolina smokers for being devoted enough to R.J. Reynolds to give their lives."

Local supporters of the Great American Smokeout are inviting successful quitters to join in the festivities to help support potential quitters whose thoughts turn to cold turkey Nov. 15.

If you need an extra boost, call the "KWIT line," a national "900" number which will give 1984 smokeout participants encouragement.

Shakespeare To Join American Smokeout

(UPI) — The American Cancer Society, sponsor of the "Great American Smokeout" coming up Nov. 15, has published a number of familiar quotations to help nicotine stained wretches refrain from lighting up that day.

The citations include Mark Twain's famous two-liner: "To cease smoking is the easiest thing I ever did. I've done it a thousands times." And also Fred Allen's zinger: "When you smoke cigarettes, you're likely to burn yourself to death."

Nowhere did I note any reference to the author who may have had the most to say on the subject. I refer to William Shakespeare, whose plays, poems and other writing have helped millions kick the habit.

As my contributions to this year's smokeout I have gone through Bartlett's and picked out some of the Immortal Bard's relevant comments.

If the following "interview" doesn't make you want to give up the weed for at least 24 hours, nothing will:

Q. Mr. Shakespeare, are you planning to participate in the Smokeout?

A. "Must I hold a candle to my shames?"

Q. Not unless you are out of lighter fluid. I'm merely asking if you intend to refrain from taking a puff on Nov. 15.

A. "Sometimes hath the brightest day a cloud. That's a day longer than a wonder lasts."

Q. It certainly will be a wonder if you don't smoke all day. But 24 hours is only twice around the clock. Hardly a lifetime.

A. "What's o'clock? 'Twere well it were done quickly."

Q. Are you looking forward to the challenge?

A. "It goes much against my stomach. I had rather be a dog and bay the moon."

Q. How will you and your fellow smokers spend the day?

A. "From hour to hour we rot and rot. We'll have a smashing and a martial outside, as many other manly cowards have. There is no vice so simple but assumes some mark of virtue on his outward parts."

Q. What happens to a smoker who fails to make it through the day?

A. "They'll give him death by inches. Men prize the thing ungain'd more than it is. But screw your courage to the sticking-place, and we'll not fail."

Q. Are you taking any steps to psyche yourself up?

A. "I mean not to sweat extraordinarily. A man can die but once."

Q. Why in the light of all the statistics do you continue to smoke?

A. "I am a tainted wether of the flock. My affection hath an unknown bottom, like the bay of Portugal."

Q. I understand the bay has now been sounded, sir. And may

I point out that one day is hardly a monumental exercise of will power. Are you sure that is long enough for a true test?

A. "Enough, with overmeasure."

Q. You mean your resolve is a bit tentative?

A. "Tetchy and wayward. Like a drunken sailor on a mast, ready with every nod to tumble down."

Q. I see. Do you have any comforting words for the millions taking part in the Smokeout?

A. "Bid them wash their faces, and keep their teeth clean. At least we'll die with harness on our back."

Heyward Moves On To Better Things

By DAVID WITHERINGTON
Staff Writer

North Of A Miracle is Nick Heyward's first solo album. Heyward was a member of Haircut One Hundred until about six months ago. Now, it's easy for me to see why Heyward left the group. Surprisingly, he is a decent songwriter. The crass bubblegum sound of Haircut One Hundred was holding back his passion for intelligent pop music.

The bouncy optimism of Pelican West, his only album with his former mates, is nowhere to be found on his solo outing. Instead, Heyward is portrayed as an introverted dreamer through a series of tunes ranging from upbeat, finger-snapping melodies, brassy productions, and Latin jazz.

"Atlantic Monday," "The Kick of Love," and "Take That Situation" are all perfect for the radio with their carefully structured pop melodies, and just the right dosage of rock and roll.

On the other side of the coin, "The Day It Rained Forever," "Blue Hat for a Blue Day," and the brilliant "Whistle Down the Wind" are slow lush ballads embellished by orchestral maneuvers and a touch of the blues.

This brings us to "Two Make It True," a number that will definitely have you on your feet. This is a midtempo song with an irresistible hook that grabs and doesn't let go. The sinewy lyrics build to a crescendo with a fiery repetition: "Never giving you up/Always putting you down." This is an ironic line that often rings true for so many distraught lovers.

Not only has Nick Heyward shed the burden of being a member of a wimpy group like Haircut One Hundred (whose songs are even less entertaining than Duran Duran's boring melodramas), he has a reputable backing band on this record. Renowned percussionist Morris Pert lends a hand, as does the ever-present Dave Mattacks on drums. The bass player is Pino Palladino, a member of Jools Holland's Millionaires. Other notables include Steve Nieve on keyboards and Tim Renwick on guitar. So, if you were a bit put off by Haircut One Hundred, and quite justifiable, please believe me when I say that Nick Heyward is a new man. This album is well worth a second listen. North Of A Miracle is available at the Record Bar in Carolina East Mall and the Plaza.

Salvation Army Has It All

By ROBIN HAMRICK
Staff Writer

The Salvation Army, our modern day Robin Hood, is located under the red shield on Dickinson Avenue. When one spots the red shield, many things come to mind — a black kettle at Christmas, a helping hand to those who need it, and to college students, a thrift shop full of everything from a to z. These are all a part of the Salvation Army, but what else does it stand for and where did it get started?

In 1865, William Booth, a Methodist minister, left the church to preach in the slums of London. There he found many people in need of physical goods as well as spiritual assistance.

Because the people were somewhat wary of churches, Booth named his organization the Salvation Army. The missionaries were the "corps," the members were "soldiers," the ministers were "officers," and Booth was the "General" of the army. They held meetings in tents, wore uniforms, and flew a flag to represent their organization. The newly established army began a war against the illnesses of the society.

In 1880, the Salvation Army expanded to the U.S. where it put forth a fight against the poverty prevalent throughout New York City. As the Army grew, so did its reputation. Additions, including nurseries, food depots, and hospitals, emerged from the Army. During World War II, the Salvation Army formed the USO. Today the Army is still serving people. It now has 10,000 centers in the U.S. which help anyone in need of assistance. Its programs extend from homes for the retarded to the thrift shop.

The Salvation Army is divided into three programs — social service, church, and thrift — with each complementing the other.

The most recognized of these programs is the thrift shop. In Greenville, the Salvation Army thrift shop is located directly behind the church in a tan warehouse. From here you can purchase anything from a $150 suit to a $2 pair of Levi's. If you're in the market for a motorcycle, the thrift shop has one for $250. Patterns, whigs, chairs, tapes, books, clothing, shower curtains, rugs... anything you're looking for is probably there. As Major Ronald Davis said, "In our shop you can get something from about every store in town. We have things from Belks and Brody's as well as Kmart." He added, "It's a good place for bargains for people who like big, dumpy clothes." ECU student Margaret Sydnor said, "I bought a fun winter coat that I wear all the time."

The Salvation Army, including the thrift shop, was designed to help the needy. "We receive donations from the rich, sell to the middle class, and give to the poor," Davis concluded.

Southwestern Louisiana quarterback Don Wallace destroyed the Pirate secondary last Saturday as he completed 14 passes for 214 yards and two touchdowns.

Rajin' Cajuns Stomp ECU

By RANDY MEWS
Sports Editor

LAFAYETTE, La. — Southwestern Louisiana quarterback Don Wallace completed 14 passes for 214 yards and two touchdowns as the Rajin' Cajuns rolled past ECU 42-20 Saturday.

The loss was the seventh straight the Pirates' have suffered on the road this year, marking the first time since 1948 an ECU football team has gone winless away from home.

"Wallace picked us apart," Pirate Coach Ed Emory said. "We haven't been very good with the pass rush or pass coverage this year, and he took advantage of that."

Wallace got the Cajuns moving on their first series as he drove his team 77 yards in 14 plays. He connected on four passes during the drive, while also successfully completing all three third down opportunities. Thomas Jackson carried the ball in from six yards out for the score, while Patrick Broussard added the extra point to give ECU a 7-0 lead with 8:53 left in the first quarter.

Wallace went to work again on SW Louisiana's second possession connecting with Welton Morgan for 13 yards and Pierre Perkins for 15. Then, on second and seven from ECU's 46 yard-line, Perkins burned Calvin Adams into the endzone to give ECU their second score and a 14-0 lead.

After an exchange in possessions, ECU committed the first of five fumbles when Pirate quarterback Darrell Speed threw a bad pitch to tailback Jimmy Walden. Rennick Tuck recovered the ball just 19 yards from the endzone, and then it took the Cajuns just three plays to make it 21-0 midway through the second quarter.

After the two teams traded fumbles away, ECU finally got their offense into gear behind the direction of reserve quarterback Ron Jones who guided the Pirates all the way down to the one-yard line. Bubba Bunn got the call on first and goal, but he fumbled the ball into the endzone with 5:13 left in the half.

The Pirates were able to hold ECU on their next drive, and then came away with a 33-yard Jeff Heath field goal as time expired in the first half.

In the second half, it looked as if ECU was going to make a game of it when they marched the length of the field on their first drive. The Pirates moved the ball with relative ease, and then Jones kept on an option and raced 41 yards around the left end to close the margin to 21-10.

ECU regained possession of the ball on a P.J. Jordan fumble recovery, but the Pirate offense once again was unable to move the ball. Three running plays netted nine yards, and then Emory made the pivotal call of the game as he elected to go for it on fourth and one.

The play was unsuccessful as Jones fumbled the ball, giving ECU a first down just 22 yards from the endzone. It took Wallace four plays to guide his team for their fourth touchdown and a 28-10 lead, and from there ECU took control of the contest as the Pirates would never come closer than 35-17.

Emory called his team's performance one of the worst he's been associated with, and said if his team had any character left at all, they would end the season with a victory in the season finale against Southern Mississippi Saturday in Ficken Stadium.

Pirates Improve During Fall

By RICK MCCORMAC
Staff Writer

After completing a successful fall season, ECU golf coach Bob Helmick is looking for continued improvement from his team during the spring.

"Going into the fall, I knew we were capable of having a sound golf team," Helmick said. "But, I knew that we would have to play a lot better than we did last year. I wanted us to improve on our finish from a year ago, and in every tournament we did that."

The Pirates finished out of the top ten in both the MacGregor Invitational and the John Ryan Memorial, formerly known as the Iron Duke Classic, finishing in 16th place in each tournament last fall.

Also two years ago, the Pirates finished seventh out of 12 teams in the Wolfpack Invitational.

This fall the Pirate golfers finished ninth in both the John Ryan Memorial and the MacGregor Invitational.

In the Wolfpack Invitational, which had a larger field than last fall's tournament, ECU finished an impressive fourth. The Pirates were in contention to win the tournament, trailing the leader by only one shot going into the final round.

The only tournament the team didn't improve in was the Hargrove Davis Invitational. In that tournament, Helmick played mostly freshmen to get them tournament experience at the collegiate level.

"I view the fall season as a time to work on your game, and evaluate your talent for the spring season," Helmick said. "It gives you the opportunity to get more competition for all of your players, as everyone gets to play in at least one tournament."

Looking back on the fall, Helmick mentioned several "highlights."

• In winning the Wolfpack Invitational, Chris Czaja became the first ECU golfer in three years, and only the second in the past decade, to win individual medalist honors in a tournament.

• Mike Bradley finishing eighth at the Duke tournament. His 214 total was the lowest for an ECU golfer in a three-day tournament since 1976.

In addition to the play of Bradley and Czaja, Helmick was impressed by the play of sophomore Paul Steelman. "He is really playing well," Helmick said. "He had an accident over the summer and we were concerned as to whether or not he would be able to compete this fall."

Helmick is counting on Steelman to play a pivotal role in the team's success for the upcoming spring season.

"How Paul Steelman plays this spring will determine how the team finishes," Helmick said. "He will probably be the swing player, with his score determining whether or not we finish high in the standings."

Another sophomore Helmick

will rely on this spring is Mark Arcilesi. "His game is really coming around," Helmick said. "He is hitting the ball super, and any day I expect him to start playing superior golf."

Helmick is also looking forward to having transfer Dennis Hart become eligible in the spring. "Hart was on scholarship at the University of South Carolina, and will definitely be an asset to the golf program."

Other players Helmick expects to contribute are fourth-year player David Waggoner, and juniors Roger Newsome and Kelly Stimart.

"It will take a total team effort if we are going to continue to improve in the spring," Helmick said.

"I was really impressed by the play of Chris Czaja, Mike Bradley and Paul Steelman in the fall. They will all play major roles this spring, with Steelman's role as swingman crucial."

Harrison Hopes For Better Year In '84

By SCOTT COOPER
Staff Writer

Charlie Harrison begins his third season as ECU's head basketball coach, and in his brief stay has put a great deal of hope into the Pirate basketball program.

The Pirates had a dismal 4-24 record with just one ECAC South win last year. However, ECU was very young and lacked experience. In fact, the team has nine returning lettermen from the last year's squad. "The six sophomores that will be returning played a lot of minutes for us a year ago, and I think they now realize what's got to be done," Coach Harrison said.

Harrison brings to Greenville two prize guards to strengthen his backcourt. Scott Hardy, a junior college transfer from Hagerstown Community College, averaged 16 points and handed out 11 assists last year. "Scott Hardy is a very good point guard," Harrison said. "I think by just having him and his ability to shoot the ball is going to change the way people defense us."

The sole freshman on the ECU roster this year is Herb Dixon. A high school standout who averaged 21.8 ppg and 8.0 assists, Dixon lead his team to an impressive 17-3 record. "Herbie Dixon is a very, very talented young man," Harrison said. "He's probably as talented any kid I've recruited since I've been here."

Harrison said that Dixon is a point guard, but may not necessarily play there. "If he can fit in and shows he's the type of player I want on the floor, he's going to be competing for playing time."

The head coach sees the '84 Pirate squad as a very fast and extremely quick team. "Last year our inside game was nearly nonexistent," Harrison remarked. "This allowed teams to keep a closer eye on our perimeter people."

With their lack of size and inside strength, the Pirates will be relying on the quickness of their transition game. Harrison believes that for his team to be successful, they must utilize their quickness. A stingy, tough defense will pressure the opposition, turning in easy baskets on the offensive end.

Booters Tie Seahawks

By SCOTT POWERS
Assistant Sports Editor

The ECU soccer team, playing in their third match in as many days, two of which went into overtime, battled the Seahawks of UNC-Wilmington to a 1-1 tie at Minges soccer field yesterday.

The match went from a soccer display to all out combat as the officials let everything short of murder go uncalled as the game went on.

ECU jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first half as Brian Colgan scored what was to be the only ECU goal of the game.

For most of the rest of the game ECU controlled the tempo and the ball, but as the game wore down, so did the Pirates.

It was evident that the Pirates were a very tired team as the second half went on, as the Seahawks were able to attack the same Pirate defense that had been all but impenetrable for most of the game.

When it looked as if the Pirates were going to get their third win, the Seahawks got the break that they needed.

It came with less than one minute to go in the game when an official called an ECU player for a violation after he had apparently thwarted a Seahawk breakthrough. The official awarded the Seahawks an indirect kick from ten yards out.

The UNC-W player lifted the kick over the ECU defense for the score and regulation ended at 1-1.

The teams battled evenly during the overtime period, with ECU missing two opportunities and the Seahawks were unable to generate any offense until another penalty on a Pirate player with less than one minute to go gave Wilmington the same shot that they had had to tie the game.

This time, however, the Pirate defense held, and as soon as the ball was safely away from the net the clock expired, giving ECU their second tie of the year.

It was a disheartening loss for the Pirates, a team that has been close in nearly all of their games but has wound up on the short end in most of the close games.

With the tie, the team now stands 3-15-2 with only tomorrow's game against Christopher Minges soccer field, remaining on their schedule.

Soccer Team Second In

By SCOTT POWERS
Assistant Sports Editor

The ECU soccer team took part in the N.C. Wesleyan Classic last weekend and came away with a second place finish out of four teams, defeating Methodist College in overtime, 3-2, and falling to nationally ranked N.C. Wesleyan, 3-1.

The booters had faced each team that it played in the tournament once already this year, and once again had the same results.

It was the second overtime victory for the booters over the Monarchs this season and both wins were by identical scores.

Head Coach Steve Bradley was pleased with his team's victory. "We thoroughly dominated Methodist in the game, we just let them hang in there too long," he said.

The Pirates outshot the Monarchs 25 to eight in Saturday's match, but their inability to put the ball in the net allowed Methodist to stay close throughout the game.

"We had the chances to put the match away, but we couldn't put the ball in the back of the net," Body commented.

ECU got its first goal on a shot by Jamie Ribel with an assist from Brian Colgan and Mike Murray. Later in the game Colgan added a goal of his own on another assist by Murray.

The score was tied 2-2 going into overtime before Rand Hamilton sealed the victory for the Pirates with a goal on an assist by Larry Bennett.

In Sunday's finals, a very tired Pirate team took on N.C. Wesleyan — a team that has been ranked in the Division III top ten all season. Wesleyan had a much easier road to the finals than did ECU, advancing after Western Carolina forfeited in the first round. The day off proved to be an advantage as the tired ECU team fell by the score of 3-1.

The Pirates played Wesleyan tough throughout the day, but as fatigue set in the game began to go Wesleyan's way. The loss to N.C. Wesleyan was the second of the year for ECU.

"The day off was a definite advantage for them (Wesleyan)."

South Carolina Rallies Past Wolfpack, 35-28

Here's how East Carolina's opponents did in their games on Saturday.

Eric Thomas, the nation's sixth leading passer, suffered a hip pointer in the second quarter and on came Coker, who had only attempted one pass in four games this season, which was an incompletion. The 14th-ranked Seminoles were behind at halftime, but they took the lead for good with a third quarter surge of 21 points. Florida State is now 6-1-1.

Temple: The Owls trounced Cincinnati 42-10 on Saturday. Paul

Palmer had a hand in almost every touchdown as he rushed for scores of six, seven, nine, and 17 yards as well as throwing a 39-yard touchdown pass to Willie Marshall. Temple had 465 yards of offense to Cincinnati's 338. The Owls are now 4-5 on the season.

Central Michigan: Northern Illinois defeated the Chippewas 8-7 with a touchdown and a two point conversion with only 26 seconds left in the game. Dick Jenatempo threw a 20-yard touchdown pass to Bruce Jern and then hit Pete Ross for the extra points. Central Michigan had scored first with only 10:35 left in the game on a 10-yard run by Curtis Adams. The Chippewas got the ball back and drove to the Northern Illinois 35 yardline, where Robb Colen missed a field goal that would have won the game.

Georgia Southern: East Tennessee State defeated the Eagles 20-17 in a home game on Saturday. Georgia Southern, who in the latest division I-AA pole were ranked seventh, were intercepted six times. ETSU got field goals from Herbie Campbell of 24 and 35 yards, along with a second quarter score by Herman Jacobs on a 7-yard toss from halfback Mark Tucker to take a halftime lead. Georgia Southern came back to score two touchdowns in the fourth quarter, but not until ETSU had already kicked the game winning field goal. Georgia Southern is now 8-2, while East Tennessee State is 6-3.

N.C.State: South Carolina came back in the last 50 seconds to beat the Wolfpack 35-28. State led at halftime 15-3 on touchdowns by Vince Evans and Mike Miller and the first of three field goals by Mike Cofer.

However, the Wolfpack defense couldn't contain South Carolina's second half offense as they scored on five possessions and missed a field goal on the sixth, scoring 25 points in the fourth quarter. State had a chance to win with 3:26 left but got called for delay of game on the USC ten-yard-line on a third and one. They had to settle for a field goal to tie the game at 28. Then the Gamecocks drove 80 yards in nine plays where Thomas Dendy scored on a six-yard run to make it 35-28. South Carolina is now 8-0 while State drops to 3-6.

Pittsburgh: Syracuse defeated the Panthers 13-7 at Syracuse on Saturday. For the Orangemen Todd Norley threw a three yard-touchdown pass to tight end Marty Chalk and the Tim Green led defense stifled the Pitt offense. This was the first time since 1972 that the Orangemen have beaten Pittsburgh. The Panthers are now 1-7-1.

Tulsa: The Golden Hurricanes pounded Illinois State 28-7 on Saturday. Todd Fulton led the offense with two touchdowns, and had 128 yards rushing. The defense held Illinois State to 210 yards total offense, and picked off two Cardinal passes.

East Tennessee State: See Georgia Southern.

South Carolina: See N.C.State.

Southwestern Louisiana: See story page 10.

Southern Mississippi: Northwestern Louisiana shut-out the Golden Eagles 22-0 on Saturday. Wayne Vann of NW Louisiana threw touchdown passes of 37 yards to David Turner and 17 yards to Tim Haggerty. He also sneaked in from two yards out for a touchdown. Southern Miss only had 128 yards total offense to NW Louisiana's 319. Southern Miss is now 2-7.

Cajuns ECU

The two teams traded fumbles away, but ECU got their offense into gear when they came away with a fumble on the field on their first drive. Bubba Bunn got the one yard loss, but he fumbled the ball on the end zone with 5:13 left in the game. ECU were able to hold USL on their first drive. The Cajuns came away with a fumble on the field on their first drive. Bubba Bunn got the one yard loss, but he fumbled the ball on the end zone with 5:13 left in the Matt Hermes scored the lone goal for the Pirates on an assist from David Skeffington, as ECU fell to 3-15-1 with the loss.

The booters will wrap up their season tomorrow when they host Christopher Newport in a game that was cancelled earlier in the season.

While most intramural activities are in the midst of their games, the softball championship concluded last weekend between two highly touted teams.

The co-rec softball championship saw the Dodge City Hustlers against Sig Ep and Friends, an intense rivalry that had developed from an earlier contest. Sig Ep and Friends, begging for revenge, led the game 10-9 into the final innings. With bases loaded, one out, the Hustlers provided a threat which seemed almost impossible to stop. But, Sig Ep shortstop Mike Holmes, snagging a line drive, stepped on second and ended the inning with a spectacular double play, closing the threat of the Hustlers. Final score: Sig Ep and Friends 10; Dodge City Hustlers 9.

One-on-one basketball ended its season with two victors in the men's divisions. Maurice Thorbs in the 6'2" and over division took first place along with James Mann in the 6'1" and under division.

Although volleyball season has just gotten underway, Sneaker Sam will once again put his life on the line by choosing the top five in the men's and women's leagues.

Basketball Televised

Fifteen college basketball games from the Eastern College Athletic Conference South (ECAC-South), including the seven-game conference tournament, will be televised exclusively by Home Team Sports this coming season.

The schedule features a live Thursday night ECAC-South Game of the Week beginning January 10, plus the entire conference tournament from the campus of William & Mary, March 7-9. All but one of the 15 games will be televised live.

"This is a great addition to our winter programming, and there's more still to come," said Home Team Sports Director of Programming and Executive Producer Jody Shapiro. "The ECAC-South has really made its presence known in recent NCAA Tournaments. The conference tournament winner has eliminated from the NCAA tournament the likes of Georgetown, Ohio State and Auburn in the last three years.

"We're especially pleased, not only because this is such a fine conference, but also because it is the only major conference which is wholly contained within our region. These are some of the teams our subscribers want to see most."

"This will be a big plus for each program in the conference," added ECAC-South Director of Marketing and Promotions Larry Baldwin. "We are very happy that for the first time, our games will be packaged for television on a region-wide basis."
