Student Candidates Prepare For Elections

By GREG RIDEOUT
Managing Editor

Students will have a field of 12 candidates to choose from in the March 20 SGA Executive Election. On the ballot will be three candidates each for president, vice president, secretary and treasurer.

Candidates ended their filing the Friday before spring break, and official campaigns were underway after Monday evening's official candidates meeting.

The three candidates for SGA president are David Brown, Mike McPartland and Kirk Shelley.

Brown, 22, is an environmental health major from Raleigh, N.C. He is a senior with a 2.8 gpa. "I want to be SGA president because it's the best way for me to serve the students of ECU," Brown said. "I've been here four years as a student at this university, and I've seen a lot of changes that need to be made. As president, I can make these changes." Brown has been a member of the SGA and is now director of Pirate Walk, the campus escort service.

McPartland, 21, is a business marketing major from Raleigh, N.C. He is a junior with a 2.4 gpa. "With the experience I have gained as SGA vice president, I wish to continue serving the students of ECU," McPartland said, answering the question of why he wants to be SGA president. "I have enjoyed working with the SGA and major attractions committee, and now I'm ready to concentrate my efforts toward the position of president." McPartland is involved with the Student Union and is SGA vice president.

Shelley, 21, is a political science major from Greenville. He is a junior with a 3.0 gpa. Shelley said he wants to be SGA president "to serve the students of ECU by using my experiences in SGA to bring their ideas into practice. Also, I would like to improve student life by upgrading the number of parking facilities and cut text book cost by expanding the book exchange." Shelley is involved with the North Carolina Student Legislature and is speaker of the SGA legislature.

Candidates for vice president are Lee Lane, Bryan Lassiter and Chris Tomasic.

Lane, 20, is a political science major from Wilmington, N.C. He is a junior with a 2.7 gpa.

Lassiter, 20, is a computer science major from Severn, N.C. He is a junior with a 2.7 gpa.

Tomasic, 22, is a history major from Durham, N.C. He is a junior with a 2.6 gpa.

Grant Smith and Dwayne Wiseman.

Braswell, 20, is a computer science major from Smithfield, N.C. He is a junior with a 2.6 gpa.

Smith, 21, is a music education major from Chesapeake, Va. He is a junior with a 2.5 gpa.

Wiseman, 23, is a finance major from Fayetteville, N.C. He is a junior with a 2.6 gpa.

The three candidates for secretary are Lisa Carroll, Maryvonne Draper and Ann Barlow Scarborough.

Carroll, 18, is a physical therapy major from Jacksonville, Fla. She is a freshman with a 2.8

gpa. Draper, 19, is an English major from Suffolk, Va. She is a sophomore with a 3.2 gpa.

Scarborough, 21, is a math and science education major from Hookerton, N.C. She is a senior with a 2.7 gpa.

All candidates are allowed to spend up to $200 on their campaigns. There is no door-to-door campaigning allowed in the dorms.

The East Carolinian will hold a candidate forum along with the SGA on Tuesday, March 19 at 12:30 on the mall at central campus. Students will be encouraged to ask questions.

New Registration Will End Card Use

By JENNIFER JENDRSIAK
News Editor

Computer cards and long drop-add lines should be the victims of a new, computerized registration system to be used for the first time this semester.

"Hopefully, we'll never see computer cards again," said ECU Registrar Gil Moore. He said at least 54 terminals have been purchased and tested. These terminals will be linked with a Sperry-Univac system to facilitate on-line registration, which will take place March 25 to April 12.

"The students will have to work along with us" to make the system work, Moore said. "We're trying to get them out of long lines and get them the best schedule possible."

Moore said each academic unit on campus has a terminal and the Registrar's Office will have at least 12. In order to use the on-line registration system, students must fill out a schedule form with no more than 18 hours of primary courses and 15 hours of alternate courses.

Students must also secure any special permissions necessary prior to beginning the registration process.

Upon completion of the registration form, students may go to any one of the terminals to have their schedules keyed in. Although students are strongly advised to go to their major department to get their schedules, only veterans and petition students are required to go to the Registrar's Office.

Students will be allowed to register by classification, with graduating seniors registering first, and then the other students by class. Students may not go before their assigned time, but will be permitted to register at any time after that point. Moore pointed out that all registration will be done by using social security numbers instead of ECU ID numbers. "Students will need to know their social security numbers," Moore said, adding that those without numbers have had them assigned and should obtain them from the Registrar's Office.

Once the schedule is keyed in, it will be the student's guaranteed schedule for the next semester, provided fees are paid. Courses will be selected from the primary and alternate selections and if a student rejects a schedule, he will not be permitted to take a partial schedule, but will have to return and try again. The only exception will be students who need special permission to enter a closed section of a course.

After registration, students will be sent tuition bills. When paying of these bills, students will receive computer printouts with their activity cards, schedules and their bill on one sheet.

Terminals should be open at least four hours a day in each department, Moore said. The Registrar's Office will have terminals in operation from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. throughout the registration process.

Moore said the schedule of terminal operation has been devised in order to ensure that "we allowed sufficient time for everyone to get familiar with the system." He said that in test runs the average student takes only five minutes to complete the process.

"The big change will be in drop-add," Moore said. Students will be allowed to change schedules only if they have failed a course, not completed a prerequisite, or have a medical excuse. "Once a decision is made, we won't be able to change the schedule," Moore said.

Provisions have been made for possible computer failure, although a failure is not likely, Moore said. "If the system goes down, we have been assured it will not be down for an extended period of time," he said.

Moore said his advice to students and faculty is to "be patient. We are continually reviewing the whole process and it is a learning experience for all of us." He said he would welcome any suggestions or criticism.

As Part Of A National Series

Lectures Focus On World Relations

By BRETT MORRIS
Staff Writer

In order to inform students and faculty about foreign policy issues, ECU will be presenting The Great Decision series beginning March 12 and continuing through the remainder of the spring semester.

The foreign policy education program is a 31-year-old series that has been appearing on campuses throughout the nation. It is the largest series of its kind and more than 200,000 people are expected to participate this year. The local series is being sponsored by the political science and geography departments, the Forums Board of the ECU University Unions and the Political Science Student Society. The program is being financed by appropriations from the SGA and the campus related organizations.

Dr. Maurice D. Simon, chairman of the political science department at ECU, is organizing the series. "I feel this is a significant opportunity to consider some of the major international issues of our time with a set of well-known specialists who have interesting and sometimes controversial points of view," he said.

Students of all majors as well as the public are invited to attend, Simon said. "We hope that if university and community participation merits, it will become a permanent feature of the spring semester calendar of events."

The series will consist of six prominent speakers throughout the nation and abroad beginning at 8 p.m. today.

The recent death of Konstantine Chernenko, former General Secretary of the Soviet Communist Party, will have a great effect on future United States-Soviet relations. Dr. Jeffery W. Hahn, a political science professor at Villanova University will present: "Soviet Leadership in Transition: What Impact On Superpower Relations?" Hahn is the author of numerous articles on Soviet and East European politics. Other speakers involved in the ECU Great Decision Series include:

- Dr. James Leutze, March 19, "Future of the Atlantic Alliance: Unity in Diversity?"
- Dr. Henry R. Nau, March 26, "Budget Deficit, Trade and the Dollar: The Economics of Foreign Policy."
- Donald E. Schulz, April 2, "Revolutionary Cuba: Toward Accommodations or Conflict?"
- Dr. Jerry Pubantz, April 9, "Iran-Iraq War: what role for the U.S. in the Persian Gulf?"
- John Maisto, April 16 (tentative), "The Philippines: What Future for Democracy?"

The programs are scheduled to be held in Brewster C-103.

Orientation Staff Members Needed

By DALE SWANSON
Staff Writer

Remember that helpful orientation counselor who helped you through your first experience at ECU? Well, now is your opportunity to pass on many of the things that you have may have learned about college life to a new crop of ambitious young freshmen.

Applications are now available in the office of the associate dean of students for positions on this summer's student orientation staff. The positions offer a salary of $800, along with room and board during freshman orientation, June 12 through July 11.

According to Ronald Speier, associate dean of students and director of student services, positions on the staff are especially lucrative for representatives of student groups and organizations because of the special opportunity they provide for recruiting new members from among the incoming freshmen. "We are looking for a good cross-section of students," Speier said. He emphasized a desire for students with strong leadership backgrounds to apply, people living in residence halls, commuters, Greeks, as well as student government leaders.

Students who would like to apply for the 16 positions must have completed 24 credit hours, plan on returning to ECU in the fall of 1985, and not be on any type of academic or disciplinary probation, though no minimum gpa is required.

Orientation counselors will live on campus and eat in the cafeteria during each of the seven sessions, but will not be allowed to stay in the dorms during breaks between sessions. There will be a training program for counselors in April where information such as student activities, academic requirements, the SGA handbook, and the new registration procedure will be covered.

During the orientation sessions, the counselors will be required to help with checking in new students in and out of the dorms as well as giving tours of the campus, assisting in the registration procedures, and answering any questions a student may have.

For application packets and more information, stop by 210 Whichard Building.

Graduates Face 'McEducation' Schools

(CPS) — Students at McDonald's Hamburger University in Oak Brook, Ill., live in McLogans and earn degrees in Hamburgerology.

But they also work with state-of-the-art technology, endure rigorous training in management, communications and business skills and can earn up to 18 credits toward a food service management associates degree.

And slowly but surely, a recent report on how much companies spend to re-educate college grads includes corporate schools like Hamburger U.

McDonald's is one of some 400 corporations spending millions each year on employee education programs to fill in the gaps left by traditional education, and to provide specialized training for specific jobs.

"The typical college graduate has accrued a degree and a good academic education," explains Donald Conover, spokesman for AT&T's Corporate Education Center in New Jersey.

But students "need a transition from a broad college base to the more specific applications necessary to do a job," he adds.

Corporate courses range from high school basics to specialized operations training, and students include dropouts and PhDs.

"The age of high-tech has moved in rapidly," says Nell Eurich, author of the recent Carnegie Institute study of corporate classrooms. "It's necessary to educate workers in advanced information, to give additional instruction constantly."

"It's an extension of the life-long learning concept," explains Jim Pavlakis, developer of Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone's corporate education program. "Even if schools are doing a beautiful job, employees need opportunities to avoid job obsolescence."

Nearly 8,000 of C&T's 30,000 employees currently use one of three corporate education plans: in-hours or home study courses in specific job training and basic education, or tuition aid, providing access to all schools in the area.

The company expanded its initial tuition aid program 15 years ago to include undereducated and entry level employees, Pavlakis says.

"In 1969, it became a huge program attempting to provide basic skill education to help employees qualify for better jobs," he notes. "Then affirmative action pressure convinced us to offer non-traditional job training."

AT&T began corporate education in 1895, Conover says "accelerating the concept at about the same rate as knowledge accelerated."

This year, the company will log 360,000 student-days of training at three large corporate education centers and 12 regional facilities.

Many are stressing basic skills courses more and more, Carnegie's Eurich contends.

"It's a question of getting basic skills," she says. "Corporations are doing a lot of work in basic instruction, in reading, writing math, effective listening and speaking.

Polaroid's 30-year-old program stresses reading, writing, grammar, and career planning and counseling, in addition to management and high-tech courses, says public relations spokeswoman Maria Wilhelm.

Nearly 2,500 students per semester fill over 100 courses, most taught by Polaroid employees, she adds.

Corporate education's influence on traditional higher education is mushrooming quickly as the phenomenon itself, claims Sylvia Galloway, American Council on Education spokeswoman.

Last year, ACE performed accreditation evaluations for nearly 150 corporate education programs, she says, and many "look comparable to programs offered in traditional college settings."

"It's no reflection on higher education," AT&T's Conover insists. "Universities provide the fundamentals, foundation and advanced work in a field at a theoretical level."

The corporations move "theory into practice, focusing on applications in the context of a particular corporation," he adds.

Colleges

Is It Academics or Athletics?

What came first, the NCAA or Harvard University?

Well, sadly, most people would say they don't care, unless their school's team would go on probation for not answering the question.

This is the world of Athletics v. Academics, the latest court case in town. The evidence for athletics winning, or at least settling out of court, is mounting. Just open your eyes and look. At N.C. State a star basketball player is admitted with a Scholastic Aptitude Test score of 470. At Clemson University, President Bill Atchley resigns because his emphasis on academics ruffled athletic-boosting trustees. Also at Clemson, drug scandals forced coaches to resign.

Across the nation, sports-crazed America has turned our nation's institutes of higher learning into minor leagues for professional sports. Because of the megabucks involved (heck, the College Football Association, which ECU is a member of, signed two TV pacts worth $55 million), schools can't resist. Academics has become the horse being pulled by the athletic cart.

Even schools that you wouldn't think make exceptions do. Newspaper reports say every school lowers their standards for athletes, even Ivy League teams. Duke University, where the average SAT is more than 1200, admits student athletes with SAT scores as low as a 1000. ECU makes exceptions, although Dr. Howell is rumored to have been tough on Ed Emory, who, according to sources, wanted several below-standard athletes admitted each year.

But now, with all the furor over recent events, a movement is underway to put athletics in perspective. No one will disagree that learning shouldn't come first, but try to tell them that their beloved team can't have this player and therefore won't be in the NCAA tournament next year, well, you'll have a fight on your hands. As you can see, it's not going to be easy to put the horse back out in front of the cart.

The movement, of course, should start from within. Schools should just force themselves to accept only athletes that can cut it academically. Booster clubs, including our Pirate Club, should not demand winning teams if the people comprising those teams are academic losers. The students who cheer for those teams should be cheering for fellow classmates, not a bunch of pros in school colors.

If the conviction is there on the inside, the movements already started outside will work. A recent convention attended by Dr. Howell in Miami was called to address the common problems of big-time sports colleges. The goal, according to Edward T. Foote, president of the University of Miami and the coordinator of the conference, is to make further reforms that reflect the primacy of a university's academic priorities.

From outside and from inside, we can stop athletics from taking over our campuses. We don't want big-time sports to go away. No one does. We just want them a little less tainted.

Did You Know — Colleges continue to reap financial benefits from the Los Angeles Olympics. L.A. community colleges recently reported that it got $5-million worth of improvements from the games.

Also, the L.A. organizing committee donated sports equipment to five colleges in the area. Sports, we guess, just makes money in every way for colleges.

Are Aid Cuts Cool?

By MICHAEL KINSLEY

The Reagan administration regularly proposes reforms in student aid, and regularly backs down in the face of protests that are louder than anything ever heard in defense of welfare or food stamps.

As the rules were rather thoughtlessly amended during the late 1970s, anyone can now get an interest-free loan of $2,500 a year while in college and a subsidized interest rate during repayment after graduation.

That deal is worth $6,000 to a $100,000-a-year family with two kids in college.

Of course it's wrong to judge any social policy on the basis of horror stories. But President Reagan's latest proposed cutbacks in student aid deserve to be measured against the reasons we tax some people in order to help pay for other people to go to college.

There are two such reasons. One is to assure all citizens an equal opportunity to advance themselves through education. The other is that each individual's education also benefits society as a whole.

Along with some long-overdue administrative reforms, Reagan would institute two major changes. Students from families making more than $32,500 a year would not be eligible for government grants, bargain loans or subsidized jobs. (The cutoff for grants would be $25,000, which is about the median family income.) Second, no one would be able to get subsidized loans, jobs or grants worth more than $4,000 a year.

Attending the average state college or university costs about $5,000 a year, including tuition, books, and room and board. No state school costs more than $8,000 a year. By contrast, 92 percent of private colleges cost more than $8,000.

Reagan's proposed ceilings, then, would have little effect on students at state schools, and certainly shouldn't deny anyone the opportunity to attend one. The bite will be felt at private institutions. Education Secretary William Bennett and others in the administration have said frankly that they see the goal of student aid as guaranteeing everyone the chance at a good college education, not guaranteeing all students the most expensive education they care to buy.

Critics have charged the administration with hypocrisy on this point. Reagan and Bennett are both ardent advocates of "choice" at the primary and secondary level. They want government to help parents pay for private schools through voucher systems and tuition tax credits. Yet at the college level, they feel the guarantee of public education is good enough.

Bennett denies any contradiction. Unlike students at private colleges, private primary and secondary students now get no help at all, "so we're trying to achieve parity." But this is disingenuous. The goal of the voucher system is to give parents an absolutely free choice between public and private schooling; tuition tax credits actually would help only private schools.

But Bennett's liberal critics are equally contradictory. While anathematizing vouchers as a threat to the public schools, they insist that financial constraints should never prevent anyone from attending a private university. It's true that public schools are part of the democratic vision in a way that public universities are not. Ideally, they are the place where people of all classes, races and abilities start out life together, wherever they might end up. Even public universities are part of the meritocratic sorting out process.

As a practical matter, though, who is actually going to be denied the opportunity to attend the college of his or her choice because of Reagan's rules?

Only about 10 percent of the 4.5 million student-aid recipients get more than the proposed $4,000 ceiling now, and most get just a few hundred dollars more. All families are entitled to $4,000 in government-guaranteed (but unsubsidized) loans on top of any other aid. Part-time and summer jobs, even at the minimum wage, can bring in another $2,000, for a total of $12,200.

The average private college costs $10,000 a year. Some top schools cost $15,000. But these are also the ones with the most generous scholarship programs of their own. By the same calculation, students from $32,500-plus families start out with $8,200 a year before their families or colleges need to cough up a penny.

Under these rules, many students and families will end up saddled with huge debts. Many may decide that the financial burden of attending a private college isn't worth it. But very few will be unable to swing it if they really think it's worthwhile. And once the question is seen as the burden, rather than the opportunity itself, it becomes a distributional issue. True, $32,500 a year isn't rich. But it's 130 percent of the median income.

Why should the average taxpayer, including the college-age guy who's already working, finance an above-average-income student on his way to becoming even more above average?

Brown Education Ed Less Than Accurate

I want to respond to the piece published in the Feb. 28 edition by Darryl Brown.

As a full-time student here at ECU, I take exception to Mr. Brown's condemnation of this university and its administration. Mr. Brown implied that ECU fails to provide its students with "the irreplaceable advantages of a liberal education." I would offer the following arguments to prove that Mr. Brown is less than accurate in this:

Incoming freshmen are (with few exceptions, as in Nursing) assigned to the General College, where they remain until they complete 6 semester hours of English Composition, one semester hour of library science, eight semester hours of either biology, chemistry, geology or physics, 13 semester hours in the social sciences — choosing at least three of the following disciplines: anthropology, economics, geography, history, political science, psychology or sociology; three semester hours of mathematics — college algebra or logic, 10 semester hours of humanities and fine arts — literature, philosophy, theatre, speech, music, and three semester hours of health and physical education (undergraduate catalogue 84-86).

These requirements are designed to give the student a general and varied background in the traditional liberal education. The idea is, I believe, to allow the student to find a discipline which interests him.

In order to minor in English, a student must complete 24 semester hours (exclusive of freshmen comp.) in selected English courses, with each student's courses planned by him after consulting the director of undergraduate studies in the department (undergraduate catalogue 84-86). There are three areas of concentration for English minors: the general English minor as above, a journalism minor and a literature minor. Each requires more than simply one course in business writing.

My final point has to do with what seemed to me to be an attack on Dr. Angelo Volpe, the vice chancellor for academic affairs. I quote Mr. Brown, "Their betrayal (Dr. Volpe and Dr. Howell) of liberal education is a tragic form of apostasy." I have had the good fortune to be employed by this university for a year in the Office of the Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs and have worked in Dr. Volpe's office frequently to fill in as receptionist. I know Dr. Volpe to be concerned with and dedicated to the students at ECU and to those students' acquisition of a full, complete and well-rounded education — in the traditional sense of the liberal arts education. Mr. Brown's vague and unsubstantiated attack runs completely contrary to the concern I have witnessed during the past year.

I would offer this to one and all: The opportunity to acquire a first-rate education in either a liberal arts or a professional discipline is here at ECU. It rests with the student to take advantage of the opportunity. The decision about which direction to take in life is a personal responsibility and cannot be transferred to another — not even to one's academic advisor — and the consequences of the choices one makes are his own.

Kilcoyne Confused

Dennis Kilcoyne's column of Feb. 21 alludes to a letter I wrote to Campus Forum Feb. 4, critical of his position on abortion. Mr. Kilcoyne found "astonishing" the statement "abortion should remain a legal option until viability of the fetus is proved." I, too, am astonished, for my letter made no such statement. Rather than assume Mr. Kilcoyne intentionally misrepresents his critics in order to appear more reasonable, I assume he is genuinely confused. What I did say was, "until viability from conception is proved, abortion should remain a legal option in early term pregnancies." I do not claim the fetus is not at some point viable; rather, the entire question is whether the point of viability is reached at conception or closer to the onset of a pregnancy's third trimester.

Viability is an important term here, and one with which I assumed Mr. Kilcoyne was familiar. However, his response to the word was "whatever that's supposed to mean." If he is unsure, he should have done what Bill Green (a Forum-writer who also objected to his use) did and look it up.

Mr. Green cited Webster's as his authority and chose definition 1a, "capable of living," with which to substantiate his criticism. Had Mr. Green more perseverance, he might have found his way to Webster's definition 1b, "of a fetus: having attained such form and development of organs as to be normally capable of living outside the uterus; 'a 7-month viable fetus.'"

I raise this point for the benefit of readers who might have been left believing, as Mr. Green and Mr. Kilcoyne may have intended, that I used the word "viable" in some strange, new way. My use of it in the context I chose was neither new nor unusual, as its acceptance by Webster's (Mr. Green's authority) indicates. Indeed, the concept has existed since the Middle Ages in English Common Law. Challenging its use as the basis of an argument against abortion is grasping at straws.

As for Mr. Kilcoyne, he has said of his column, "its most important function is not only to inform but entertain." Without more care, it will cease to do what little it has done of either.

Kirk's Kool

In my time, I've seen many candidates for SGA office come and go. On most occasions, the smooth-talking, do-nothing candidate has won, and the SGA has suffered.

Fortunately, students this year have a fabulous choice. Kirk Shelley, candidate for president, is heads and shoulders above his opponents. Unquestionably, his experience in student government exceeds that of his opponents combined. And not only has he taken on many SGA responsibilities — he has, atypically, fulfilled those responsibilities in a very professional and efficient manner.

Kirk is a first-class choice, a real man of ideas. If you want your next SGA president to be serious about tackling major issues, Kirk Shelley is your man.

Texas Students Propose Guns Instead Of Pills

(CPS) — Conservative students at the University of Texas are trying to undermine a "suicide pill" anti-nuclear weapons referendum by submitting a plan they acknowledge is only slightly less absurd.

Leaders of the Texas Review Society say they have collected 500 signatures on a petition calling for a vote on a proposal to stockpile handguns for use in case of a Soviet invasion.

"We drafted the petition after anti-nuclear weapons activists circulated a petition seeking a vote on a plan to stockpile suicide pills to dramatize the consequences of nuclear war."

"We're hoping these two proposals will cancel each other out," says UT junior John Colyandro, editor of the conservative journal, Texas Review.

The proposal to stockpile suicide pills is at least the third of its kind to be drafted since students at Brown University originated the idea last fall.

Brown students endorsed the plan by a 60 to 40 percent margin in mid-October.

Later that month, however, the idea was rejected by a 58 to 42 percent margin in a student referendum at the University of Colorado.

Leaders on both sides of the debate at UT expect that backers of the suicide pill referendum will be able to gather sufficient signatures to put the proposal on the March 5-6 ballot.

Still, the leader of the suicide pill referendum, graduate student Bernard Roth, says he resents the attempt by the conservatives to thwart his proposal.

"They have no constructive goals," Roth told the UT student newspaper, the Daily Texan. "They just want to confuse people, misdirect them."

"They're taking a kindergarten kind of attitude and they're playing kindergarten games."

Colyandro contends the proposal to stockpile handguns makes more sense because a Soviet invasion is more likely than a nuclear attack.

Moreover, he says, the handguns would demonstrate that UT students "are not so cowardly so as to resort to suicide pills."

He acknowledges, however, that the purpose of the proposal is to undermine Roth's.

Low-Level Radiation Disposal

Rules Concern Researchers

(CPS) — A number of colleges in recent weeks have said they're worried governmental footdragging could leave them holding a radioactive bag by the end of the year.

Rising costs and the lack of a place in which to dump the low-level radioactive waste they generate in campus research could mean some colleges will have to halt all their nuclear research after Jan. 1, 1986, some college officials fear.

"We don't want to shut down research," says Charles Bockelman, Yale's deputy provost, "but it's a threat."

About 40 campuses that have some sort of nuclear engineering, nuclear medicine or licensed nuclear research are facing the same threat.

The number of students and faculty members affected may be much larger. Stanford, for example, has some 300 nuclear lab experiments going on at any one time, the Stanford News Service estimates.

Even some biology and chemistry classes that use and need to dispose of some low-level radioactive isotopes could be threatened.

The reason is a new law meant to force states and regions to set up their own radioactive waste dumping grounds, and to stop shipping all their wastes to Nevada, Washington and South Carolina, which host the nation's only large nuclear waste dumps.

But if the states and Congress don't start moving more quickly toward creating new dump sites, colleges conducting nuclear research will have no place to dispose of radioactive waste.

"Universities don't have large areas to store waste like nuclear power plants do," explains Sue Gagner, spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

"They want to get rid of it as quickly as possible."

But no one has actually established new dump sites for the schools.

State legislators have yet to find new radioactive waste sites for the universities of Arizona and West Virginia, despite intense lobbying from educators there.

"There's no place where people won't be upset by (having a dump next door). Radioactive waste is a most unwelcome neighbor," Bockelman said.

In Texas, where the University of Texas system produces 70 percent of the state's low-level radioactive waste, a two-year legislative study has just narrowed the site location to South Texas.

Nationwide, nuclear power plants generate about 60 percent of the waste. College and government labs and industry produce the rest of it, Gagner says.

If the three current dumps in Beatty, Nev., Richmond, Wash., and Barnwell, S.C. do turn away waste from other states, "states without compacts or sites of their own will have no place to go with their radioactive waste," Gagner warns.

"We're concerned about what will happen if these sites are closed to us," Yale's Bockelman says.

"The federal government is trying to set up the regional pacts, but the politicians worry about it," he notes. "Radioactivity is a frightening concept to people."

There's a lot with which to scare people. Yale produces 500 30-gallon drums of liquid radioactive waste and 750 drums of dry waste per year. Bockelman says, largely through the medical school and the biological science department.

"Disposal has been a problem since the first radioactive experiments began at Yale 20 years ago," he adds.

"It's a big business," declares

William Properzio, the University of Florida's director of environmental health and science.

"Any research institute has to deal with this. When a researcher designs an experiment, the cost of disposal has to be written into the proposal."

While the NRC regulates most campus nuclear research, it leaves disposing of the resultant waste — and the payment for it — up to the schools, Gagner explains.

The NRC also grants licenses to campuses, adds Donald Turner, West Virginia University's radiation health technician.

"The licenses specify disposition of radioactive waste, and we're sent a list of companies that handle the waste," he says.

Other waste-handling companies can process the waste for transport, Turner comments, but, for the time being, they can bury it only at one of the three existing dumps.

Some schools get around the current regulations by storing certain kinds of radioactive waste themselves.

"With a half-life of 65 days or less, we decay it here," Turner says. "After we wait 10 half-lives, the radiation is one-one thousandth of what we started with, and we can just put it in the trash without violating EPA standards."

Nevertheless, it still costs West Virginia $20,000 to transport and dispose of the 68 55-gallon barrels of radioactive waste it sends to the South Carolina dump, Turner notes.

"In recent years, cost of disposal has increased by a factor of three," adds James McLaughlin, UCLA's radiation safety officer. "Cost varies depending on the burial cost, and goes up because of federal regulations on burial sites."

Federal regulations change rapidly, he continues, "because of the terrible misbehavior of the industrial sector."

Typing Course Keeps Up With Computer Age

By JENNIFER JENDRSIAK
News Editor

Students who have a hard time programming computers because of their lack of typing ability have been offered a solution this fall with the scheduling of a keyboarding course by the ECU Department of Business Education.

The course, BUED 1000, will be offered three times a week for seven weeks. It carries one academic hour of credit. According to Bill Durham, chairman of the Department of Business Education, the course is designed "for somebody who has never had any typing classes."

Durham said the course is designed to teach students to type approximately 30 words per minute.

"We don't intend to produce speed demons," he said. "We think it's very utilitarian for someone who is not interested in being a typist."

Durham added that the course was titled keyboarding because it is designed to relate to computer use. Instead of teaching secretarial skills, he said, it is structured to aid students who will be using computers or typewriters in jobs or classes.

Two sections of keyboarding have been scheduled for the fall semester. The first will meet Aug. 26 to Oct. 9, the second from Oct. 14 to the end of the semester. An attempt will be made to schedule more sections if there is enough interest, Durham said.

Beating Blubbery Build-Up

By ELIZABETH JENNINGS And ROBIN HAMRICK

With warm weather quickly approaching, it's time to shed those thick wool sweaters, oversized coats, and maybe a few extra pounds. Come on, admit it, we all tend to gain a few during the winter months.

Suddenly we are hit with spring fever, and the natural instinct is to throw on a bathing suit, T-shirt and shorts. But, for some odd reason, those favorite pair of shorts don't seem to make it past your hips. And the bathing suit that looked so great last summer somehow accumulated a few extra bulges while tucked away in a drawer.

Well, face it, the problem is probably not your clothes but your body. Several Greenville health clubs offer various types of weight loss and body building systems. With regular exercise and a balanced diet, your body can get in shape again.

School Offers Tour To Great Britain

Imagine watching the Changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace in London, strolling the streets of the old university towns of Cambridge and Oxford, kissing the Blarney Stone, watching craftsmen make Waterford Crystal, sketching or photographing old castles and spending a few days visiting in Dublin and Edinburgh. Imagine spending 16 days touring the British Isles by motorcoach this summer, and perhaps even earning three semester hours of college credit for the trip.

For a small group of travelers, this vision will become more than a daydream July 10 to July 25, 1985. The 16-day trip, Great Britain Passages, is being coordinated by Mindy Machanic, assistant professor of environmental design, and optional undergraduate or graduate-level college credit will be offered through ECU Continuing Education. The trip price of $1895 includes round-trip airfare from New York, all transportation and tours within the British Isles, hotels, all breakfasts and some dinners, a complimentary flight bag, and admission to some special sightseeing locations, as well as tourguides. All tour arrangements are being handled through Passages, Inc., a San Francisco agency. For those who wish to earn college credits, three semester hours of either undergraduate or graduate credit are available through ECU Continuing Education for ART 5500: Independent Study in Art. Fees for registration and tuition are separate from trip fees, and cost $155 for undergraduate credit or $185 for graduate credit. There is no difference in price for in-state or out-of-state residents. The trip is open to anyone over 16; teenagers 12-15 who are accompanied by an adult are also welcome to travel. Efforts will be made to find roommates for those traveling alone who do not wish to pay a single supplement of $160 for a private room. According to Machanic, an experienced group leader, "The trip will be a leisurely and interesting way to see the British Isles, because we will be driving through it rather than flying over it. We'll have lots of time for both sightseeing and shopping. Because the group will be contained on one bus, there shouldn't be the problem of overcrowding that there is on some tours." Worth Worthington of ECU's Continuing Education feels that "for those who need a few extra units toward their degree, or for professionals such as teachers who need Continuing Education credits, this trip is a wonderful opportunity. It's also a good way for people to visit 'the old country,' since so many people in this region have ancestors who came from some part of Great Britain."

For more information about the Great Britain Passages trip, write Mindy Machanic, ECU School of Art, Greenville, NC 27834, or call Worth Worthington, ECU Continuing Education, at 757-6143.

Bob Hope — Healthy, Wealthy And Very Wise

By JAY & ELLIOTT KRAVETZ

With 62 films to his credit, Bob Hope, the master entertainer who has become a legend in his own lifetime and has been called America's only walking national monument, would like to make another feature film.

"My last film was a cameo in 'The Muppet Movie,'" Hope told us during a recent interview. "I signed to star in 'The Walter Winchell Story' a few years ago. We hope to begin filming soon. I will be playing Walter Winchell. I'm looking forward to doing it."

He is currently extending his humanitarian touch with performances for "Fight For Sight," the Cancer Society, USO, The Leukemia Society, and Youth Clubs. He'll also participate in benefit golf tournaments for the Eisenhower Medical Center and various other charities.

"I do about 32 charity events a year," he said. "Usually I do them in sets. This weekend, I did cancer last night, I do a dinner for a hospital tonight and I'll be doing the Parkinson's Dinner tomorrow night. I've been doing that dinner for 25 years."

"Hope has been hailed as the 'only performer who has triumphed in all five major show business media: vaudeville, stage, radio, motion pictures and television. His first film was Big Broadcast of 1938 which catapulted him to fame along with his Academy Award-winning theme song, 'Thanks For The Memory.'"

"After my parents came to the United States from England, where I was born, I worked as a delivery boy, a soda fountain clerk, a shoe salesman, an amateur boxer under the name Packy East and a newspaper reporter," he recalled.

"When I left high school I earned enough money to take dancing lessons from a couple of local instructors and was so good I was even able to substitute for one of my teachers when he was ill," he continued. "My mother, Avis, was a concert singer."

"I decided on a singing and dancing career and made my first professional stage appearance in a Fatty Arbuckle show with George Byrne," he recalled. "I inherited my singing voice from my mother."

"I discovered I liked entertaining and between numbers it was necessary to do a monologue and I discovered I was very funny," he continued. "The comedy was natural to me. After my first professional stage appearance, George and I were booked into a show called 'Hurley's Jolly Follies.' After our second season with Hurley, we broke into vaudeville in Detroit."

Hope came from modest beginnings. He was born Leslie Towns Hope in Eltham, England, May 29, 1903, the fifth of seven sons. From his appearances in vaudeville, he moved to the stage.

"Months after we started in vaudeville we auditioned for 'The Sidewalks of New York,'" Hope recalled. "After 'Sidewalks' closed, George and I split up and I decided to go solo. My first hit Broadway play was 'Ballyhoo.' After that I appeared in 'Roberta,' 'Say When,' 'The Ziegfeld Follies,' and 'Red, Hot and Blue.'"

With all his stage successes Hope soon decided to move into the new medium of radio, which led to television. He was also busy making films.

"My radio career was launched when I was a guest on Rudy Vallee's Thursday night program," he recalled. "I got my first radio show in 1938, and made my television debut on Easter Sunday, 1950."

Hope's radio show led to his USO tours which started before World War II and continued through the Vietnam War.

"I did my first radio show for servicemen in March, 1941, at March Field, California," he recalled. "After that we did a regular Pepsodent radio show at army, navy and marine bases until June, 1948."

"We did the show throughout World War II and continued it throughout the Korean and Vietnam conflicts," he added. "I think I've entertained more than 10 million troops."

Little Havana Welcomes Andy Garcia Home

It is a Saturday in early March. It is warm in Miami, but not as hot, humid and sultry as the days depicted in The Mean Season. It is the beginning of "Carnaval Miami," a week long Mardi Gras type celebration which began three years ago in the Little Havana section of this city, but now encompasses the entire city.

For actor Andy Garcia this is a homecoming. He is being inducted into a Celebrity Hall of Fame by citizens of the Little Havana community and the future looks bright for this 28-year-old Cuban-born actor who, with his family, moved to Miami in 1961.

"I've got some things working," Garcia told us before the "Carnaval Miami Spirit of '85 Celebrity Luncheon." "I am working on a project with Steve Bauer (Scarface/Thief of Hearts). We are working out in Los Angeles together." Bauer and Garcia grew up together in Miami.

Garcia's latest film is The Mean Season, in which he co-stars as Homicide Detective Raymond Martinez. The film was shot entirely in the Miami area, with locations chosen to integrate the script and reflections of a changing city.

"I just auditioned for the part," Garcia explained. "I live in Los Angeles now, but I grew up here in Miami. I always wanted to be an actor. I was into basketball and sports in high school. When I got out of high school I drifted into theatre and studied acting. I couldn't develop into a professional basketball player so I needed to find something to do."

His early work in theatre was done in Florida, though his roles in film and television have all come since his move to Los Angeles.

"I've done a lot of stage work in college and a little in Los Angeles," Garcia said. "The role is important. A good role is what I want. I look for dimension, color, and depth in a role." Garcia attended Florida International University in Miami.

He has appeared in the films The Lonely Guy, directed by Arthur Hiller, A Night in Heaven, directed by John Avildsen, Blue Skies Again and Guaguasi.

"If you want to be an actor you have to study," Garcia explained. "You have to get the proper training and assistance. A lot of people on many different levels have helped me. People I've studied with, my family, my wife, my friends. Just general positive support all the way around."

On television, he has been seen in the movie, "Murder of Sherlock Holmes" and the pilots of "For Love and Honor" and the hit series "Hill Street Blues." He also appeared in a number of subsequent episodes of "Hill Street Blues," "Que Pasa, U.S.A.?" and the series, "From Here to Eternity."

"I am looking for more positive stuff like Ray Martinez," he said. "Well-drawn characters that, in the process of doing them, I can grow from. I enjoyed being in 'The Mean Season' very much. They were a good group of people and a talented group of individuals. I was very fortunate."

He has received extensive training in classical theatre, comedy and mime including his work with David Perry of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts and with David Proval. His theatrical experience is as diverse as to include performances in "Lovers and Other Strangers," Chekhov's classic "The Cherry Orchard" and improvisational comedy at Los Angeles' famed "The Comedy Store."

"My goals are to risk," Garcia proudly explained.

85 And Still Going Strong

For those services, Hope has received awards from the USO, Fraternal Order of Eagles, The American Legion and the Presidential Gold Medal of Freedom from President John F. Kennedy who called Hope "America's most prized ambassador of goodwill throughout the world."

With 62 films to his credit, Hope does have some favorites. "They are all really my favorite, but the ones that really stand out are all the 'Road' pictures with Bing (Crosby) and Dorothy (Lamour). I also enjoyed 'The Lemon Drop Kid,'" Hope said.

The "Road" pictures include: The Road to Bali which had Bob and Bing saving Dorothy from an evil princess and jungle perils; The Road to Hong Kong with Bob and Bing as con men who become involved in international intrigue and space travel; The Road to Morocco with Bing selling Bob to a slave-trader in mysterious Morocco and both going after princess Lamour; The Road to Rio which has Bob and Bing as musicians trying to wrest Dorothy from a sinister aunt; The Road to Singapore which has Bing and Bob swearing off women and hiding out in Singapore where they meet saronged Lamour; The Road to Utopia with Bob and Bing in the Klondike; and The Road to Zanzibar with Bob and Bing as circus performers traveling through the jungle with Lamour looking for a diamond mine.

The Lemon Drop Kid stars Hope as a racetrack tout who owes big money to a gangster and must pay or else.

At 81 years old, Bob Hope says as long as his health holds out he will not retire.

"A few years ago, when my eyes were giving me trouble, I thought about it," he said. "But I love to work and I enjoy what I'm doing. As long as I am enjoying myself and my health holds up, I'm not going to retire."

Alma Betha (30) and Lisa Squirewell (31) celebrate after the Lady Pirates' Championship season. Squirewell was named all-conference for the second consecutive year.

First Round Action In ECAC Tourney

In other first-round action...

Clutch shooting by Kelvin Johnson and John Newman led the University of Richmond to a tough 74-68 victory over American University.

Johnson finished with 25 and Newman scored 22. John Davis added 12 points and grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds for the Spiders.

The game was close throughout as American even led 60-58 with 4:39 remaining to play. A pair of Greg Beckwith jumpers gave the Spiders a lead they would not relinquish.

For the Eagles, Frank Ross was outstanding as he hit 10 of 17 shots from the floor for 20 points. He also grabbed 10 rebounds. Freshman Center Eric White was eight of 10 from the floor for 16, while Steve Nesmith added 10 points on five of seven field-goal shooting. The Eagles finish their season with a 9-19 record.

American head coach Ed Tapscott believes the "ECAC South has more talent and better athletes" than that of last year's East Coast Conference (American University's conference affiliation last year).

A balanced scoring attack from William & Mary paced the Tribe to a 68-61 victory over James Madison University.

Tony Traver had 16, all-conference selection Keith Cieplicki scored 15, Kevin Richardson added 14 and center Matt Brooks chipped in nine for the Tribe.

Despite scoring the first 10 points of the game, William & Mary only led by three (27-24) at the half.

The Dukes were close early in the second half, as they cut the Indian to 42-36 with 11:36 remaining to play on an Eric Brent jumpshot. However, sharp shooting by Cieplicki and good free-throw shooting enabled the Tribe to escape with a 68-61 victory.

For James Madison, second-team selection John Newman had 23 points and seven rebounds. Darrell Jackson added 12 points and eight boards. Brent chipped in 10 for the Dukes. JMU finishes their 1984-85 campaign with a 14-14 record. This is the worst record for the Dukes' in their school's history.

In the final game of the opening night, Carlos Yates led George Mason University to a 70-67 victory over UNC-Wilmington.

All-conference selection Yates scored 18, while Rob Rose added 14 points and 10 rebounds to pace a balanced GMU attack. All-league second-team selection Ricky Wilson and Brian Miller each chipped in 11.

Despite a Wilmington halftime lead, 27-20, the Patriots got their running game going and took the lead for good on a Yates 15-foot jumper with 12:58 remaining. From that point, Wilmington could get no closer as GMU built up as much as a 12-point lead. The Seahawks were able to cut the GMU lead to 68-65 on a George Durham slam dunk with :06 seconds remaining.

Second-team conference selection Brian Rowsom led Wilmington with 24 points and nine rebounds. Durham added 11. The Seahawks finished the season at 12-16.

Manwaring Honored

Lady Pirates Win Tourney

By RICK McCORMAC

The Lady Pirate Basketball team successfully defended their ECAC South Tournament championship by defeating George Mason and James Madison over the break.

ECU received a bye into the semifinal round by winning the regular-season championship.

In the semifinals the Lady Pirates stormed to a 44-18 lead at the half against George Mason. ECU displayed a balanced scoring attack as 11 players scored in the 77-54 drubbing of the Lady Patriots.

Leading the way for ECU was junior guard Lorraine Foster who had 15 points. Also in double figures were Sylvia Bragg and Alma Betha with 12 and 10 points respectively.

The ECU defense limited GMU to 30-percent shooting for the contest, and ECU outrebounded the Lady Patriots 60 to 41.

In the finals ECU faced James Madison in a battle of the two top teams during the regular season.

The Lady Bucs opened up a 35-26 advantage at the half and went on to win 65-59.

ECU used full court pressure to disrupt the taller Dukes offensively. Rebounding once again told the story as ECU outrebounded JMU 41-36.

Lisa Squirewell led a balanced ECU scoring attack, finishing with 17 points and a game-high 12 rebounds. Foster added 16 points while senior center Anita Anderson contributed 14. Bragg was the final Lady Pirate in double figures with 12 points.

ECU, who finished 20-9 on the season, swept the majority of post-season awards.

Head coach Emily Manwaring won ECAC South Coach-of-the-Year honors, while three Lady Bucs were named to the all-conference squad.

Junior guard Sylvia Bragg was named to the all-league squad at the guard position. Junior forward Lisa Squirewell was a repeat performer on the all-conference team. Freshman forward Monique Pompili was the final Lady Pirate to receive all-league honors.

The Coach-of-the-Year award for Manwaring marked her 11th time receiving such honors in only 13 seasons of coaching. Manwaring attributed her team's success to their balanced attack.

"We have good individual players," Manwaring said. "But, also I think we had the best blending of talent into a team. We were the most balanced team in the league, and didn't have any weaknesses."

Manwaring was especially pleased with her team's season despite not receiving any post-season tournament bids.

"The team reached our goals," she said. "We said we were going to win the conference, have a 20-win season and play a fast paced exciting style of basketball and we did." Manwaring continued. "A post-season bid would have been the icing on the cake, but I'll settle for the conference championship."

Also named all-conference was Jody Thornton, a sophomore guard from American University and Gwen Austin a senior center from UNC-Wilmington. Austin, who was the league's leading scorer and rebounder, was also named Player-of-the-Year.

Naval Academy Downs Bucs

By SCOTT COOPER

The Midshipmen, led by ECAC South's Player-of-the-Year David Robinson, knocked off ECU 94-73 eliminating the Pirates from the conference tournament.

The 6-11 sophomore sensation set a Naval Academy record by scoring at least 30 points eight times during the season. He connected on 12 of 12 shots from the floor to set a tournament record. Robinson also grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds and blocked three shots.

Navy had three other players in double figures. Junior forward Kaylor Whitaker scored 20 points and Vernon Butler added 16 and snagged six rebounds. Freshman Cliff Rees connected on five of six shots from the field and was four of five from the line for 14 points. Doug Wojcik only scored two points, but set a tournament record by dishing out 14 assists.

Although the Pirates outrebounded Navy 17-15 after one period of play, the Middies' inside game proved to be the difference — according to ECU coach Charlie Harrison.

Charlie Harrison

"Their inside game really hurt us," Harrison said. "We had to rebound with them as much as we could. But they controlled the boards."

The Midshipmen responded with tough inside play as they grabbed 20 rebounds, while holding ECU to 14 in the second half.

After a Robinson short-baseline jumper, William Grady netted a 12 footer from the corner to make it 2-2 with 19:24 remaining in the first half. During the next four minutes, Navy took command by scoring seven consecutive baskets and moved ahead 16-2 with 14:59 left in the first half.

The Pirates would not fold. After long-range jumpers by Curt Vanderhorst and Keith Sledge, Herb Dixon's three-point play with 12:24 left in the first period chopped the Navy lead to 22-11.

The Pirates knew they couldn't match up very well with the Midshipmen's inside game, so they began to utilize the quickness of their guards. The Pirates began a slow but sure comeback.

With 7:46 remaining in the period, a Vanderhorst steal and layup cut the Navy advantage to 31-25. Vanderhorst repeated his thievery one-minute later, and missed the layup but Scott Hardy was able to make the follow shot, cutting the Navy lead to 31-27.

ECU was able to get as close as three points (38-35) on Roy Smith's follow-up shot in the lane with 3:00 left until intermission. After Butler and reserve Carl Liebert scored to open the Navy lead, Peter Dam's follow shot before the buzzer pulled ECU to within five (42-37) at the half.

Although Robinson finished with 33 points, he only had 13 by halftime. The key to the Pirates' first half success was their double and even triple-teaming of David Robinson.

"They played tough defense," Robinson said. "I didn't feel to offensive in the first half. They were playing real physical and took me out of the game."

In the second half, Rees hit a pair of free throws and Grady and Vanderhorst answered for ECU with jumpshots, cutting the Midshipmen lead to 44-41.

Some Controversy occurred with about 17:30 left in the game. The Pirate bench was hit with a technical foul after there was some contact during a Grady shot attempt, however no call was made by the officials. Whitaker converted the two free throws and gave Navy a 48-42 advantage.

Coach Harrison felt that he had a legitimate right to argue the call.

Herb Dixon (21) attempts to shoot over Navy's David Robinson in ECAC South Tournament action.

"I thought William was hit on the arm," Harrison said. "I've got a right to protect my players. I'd rather go down fighting, than let them have it easy."

Robinson then began to turn it on as he struck for seven of Navy's next nine points, putting the Middies up 62-50 with 13:29 remaining to play.

When Vanderhorst cut the lead to 62-52 on a 15 footer, the Naval Academy broke the game open by scoring the next eight points — despite missing two front ends of one-and-one's.

The Pirates kept fighting but were unable to dig into the large Navy lead. The closest ECU could get was 16 points (76-60), which came with 7:30 left when Vanderhorst scored from the right wing. Robinson built up his statistics in the latter part of the second half. He scored nine of Navy's last 14 points as the Midshipmen cruised to a 94-73 victory.

Navy coach Paul Evans was pleased with his team's performance, particularly in the second half.

"We played better in the second half," Evans said. "We were also able to get the ball to David easier — his concentration was unbelievable."

For the Pirates, Vanderhorst led with 24 points and had four assists. Dixon scored 18 and also had four assists. Sledge was six of nine from the field for 12 points. Dam had five points and grabbed a team-high six rebounds.

ECAC South Conference Basketball Awards

Paul Evans of the Naval Academy was named ECAC South Coach-of-the-Year by a panel of broadcasters, sports writers and coaches.

Evans, whose 67-24 record over the last three years tops all ECAC South coaches, guided the Midshipmen to a 22-5 regular season mark and the regular-season conference championship.

Navy, a fifth-place preseason pick in the ECAC South after losing three starters from last year's 24-8 club, is the only service academy in history ever to post consecutive 20-win campaigns.

David Robinson, Navy's 6-11 sophomore sensation, has been named the 1984-85 Player-of-the-

Year in the ECAC South by a vote of the media and coaches.

Robinson, a three-time Player-of-the-Week pick in the ECAC South as well as Sports Illustrated Player-of-the-Week, attracted national attention in leading Navy to the conference championship.

Robinson leads all NCAA Division I sophomores and freshmen in scoring (24.0), rebounding (11.6), field goal percentage (64 percent) and blocked shots (4.3), ranking in the top 15 nationally in each category.

A native of Woodbridge, Va., who played just one year of high school basketball, Robinson broke John Clune's 31-year old single season scoring record of 634 points at the Naval Academy.

Peter Woolfolk, a 6-5, 225-pound center/forward from the University of Richmond, has been named ECAC South Rookie-of-the-Year.

A three-time Rookie-of-the-Week selection during the 1984-85 season, Woolfolk led all conference newcomers in rebounding (6.1) in addition to averaging 10.1 points per game.

A reserve for the Spiders' first ten games, Woolfolk came on strong during the final two-thirds of the season as UR posted a 13-4 record in games he started.

Richmond's leading rebounder in 10 games, Woolfolk finished the season as the top board man in the Spider's last five regular season contests and averaged 12.6 points and 6.8 rebounds as a starter.

The ECAC South Conference athletic directors have selected George Mason University in Fairfax, Va. as the site for the 1986 men's basketball championship. The semi-finals and championship game will be held on Friday, March 7 and Saturday, March 8. Times for the contests will be determined at a later date.

In a move which differentiates from past tournament history, it was decided that all first-round games for the 1986 conference championship will be played at on-campus sites. The tournament's four higher seeds will serve as hosts for those contests. The first-round games will take place on Saturday, March 1.

Butler Leads Navy To ECAC South Crown

The Naval Academy, led by tournament MVP Vernon Butler's 17 second-half points, defeated Richmond 85-76 in the ECAC South-Championship game Saturday at William & Mary Hall.

The quicker Spiders led by as many as eight points in a well played opening half. Both teams hit 64-percent of their field goal attempts, but Richmond outrebounded the taller Middies 18 to nine to take a 44-39 lead to the lockerroom.

Kelvin Johnson and John Newman inflicted most of the damage, with Johnson scoring 21 first-half points and Newman netting 11.

In the second half, Navy's inside game began to take its toll on the Spiders, and the Midshipmen switched to a triangle-and-two defense to limit Johnson and Newman.

With Richmond leading 62-57 with 12:10 to play in the game, Robinson and Butler led a 10-0 Navy run to give the Midshipmen a five-point lead.

Robinson started the Navy spurt with two consecutive slam dunks off of feeds from Butler. Butler then hit a five footer that was followed by another Robinson basket. Butler then converted on both ends of a one-and-one to put Navy up 67-62.

Navy led 69-66 with 5:33 remaining when Newman hit a 12-foot bank shot to pull the Spiders within one. After a Navy miss, Greg Beckwith hit both ends of a one-and-one to give Richmond their final lead at 70-69.

After Robinson scored on a goaltend, Butler took over to put the game away for the Middies. Two consecutive layups by the powerful junior-forward put Navy up 75-70.

From that point on, it was a foul shooting contest as Richmond was forced to foul in hope of a comeback. Navy hit most of their free throws and went on to win by nine.

"The key was (Vernon) Butler," Navy coach Paul Evans said. "He was a man amongst boys out there in the second half."

Richmond Coach Dick Tarrant agreed that Butler was an important factor. However he thought the key was Navy switching to a triangle-and two defense, with three people playing in a zone while the other two guarded Newman and Johnson man-to-man.

"Butler was a strong, determined player in the second half. He got a lot of stickbacks," Tarrant said. "The triangle-and-two defense hurt us. We hadn't seen that before."

Butler led Navy with 29 points, while Robinson, who joined teammate Butler on the all-tournament team added 24. Freshman guard Cliff Rees and freshman sixth-man Carl Liebert each contributed 10.

Johnson led Richmond with a game-high 31 points, while Newman added 23 before fouling out. Both players were all tournament selections for their play over the three-day tournament. Rounding out the all tourney team was senior guard Keith Cieplicki of William & Mary.

The final was a rematch of last year's championship game, with Navy gaining sweet revenge for last season's defeat.

Navy, who despite finishing

24-8 last season was overlooked by both the NCAA and NIT Tournaments, will get an automatic bid to the NCAA tournament.

Richmond, who finishes at 20-10, has now won 20 games in two consecutive seasons. This is the first time a Richmond team has had back-to-back 20-win seasons in 31 years.

"I'm very proud of that," Tarrant said. "That's something that's unheard of at Richmond."

Tarrant's wait for the phone call was a much happier one, as the Spiders were invited to participate in the National Invitational Tournament.

Mason, who shot 29 percent from the field in the second half (37 percent for the game), was led by Carlos Yates' 20 points. The Patriots finished their season with an 18-11 record.

game, when Navy went on an 8-0 run to take control of the game. Cieplicki kept the Indians close, scoring 16 of his game-high 31 in the last eight minutes of play. The Middies managed to ice the game by hitting 11 of their last 12 free-throw attempts.

Kevin Richardson contributed 23 points and 10 rebounds for the Indians who finished their season with a 16-12 record.

In the nightcap, John Newman scored 27 points to lead Richmond to a 77-64 drubbing of George Mason University. Peter Woolfolk contributed 15 and Kelvin Johnson added 12 points. John Davis scored seven points but grabbed a team-high 10 rebounds for the Spiders.

Richmond, who led 34-27 at the half, scored the first 10 points of the second half to blow GMU off the court. The Spiders built up as much as a 25-point lead before coach Tarrant emptied the bench.

Mason, who shot 29 percent from the field in the second half (37 percent for the game), was led by Carlos Yates' 20 points. The Patriots finished their season with an 18-11 record.

Richmond Blasts George Mason; Navy Upends William & Mary

In the Semifinals... Despite an outstanding performance by senior guard Keith Cieplicki, Navy eliminated William & Mary 89-83, in the opening game Friday night.

Kylor Whitaker, picked up the slack when Robinson was hampered with early foul trouble. Whitaker was eight of 13 from the field and finished with 25 points. Junior forward Vernon Butler was a perfect six of six from the field and scored 20 on the evening. Robinson added 14 despite going scoreless in the opening period.

The Tribe had the lead 57-55 with 11:00 remaining in the game, when Navy went on an 8-0 run to take control of the game. Cieplicki kept the Indians close, scoring 16 of his game-high 31 in the last eight minutes of play. The Middies managed to ice the game by hitting 11 of their last 12 free-throw attempts.

All-campus basketball finals begin this week. Sneaker Sam predicted the women's-divisional champions to the tee as the action concluded before spring break.

In the ladies residence hall division, Umstead Jockettes continued their winning ways in a game against Fleming Flashers. Final score 31-23. The independent title matched up two seasonal powerhouses in the Thrillers and Enforcers. Thrillers, picked No. 1 for the all-campus championship, defeated Enforcers 30-20.

The sorority dual between Alpha Delta Pi and Alpha Phi ended in a rout for the sisters of ADPi as they defeated Alpha Phi 32-17.

In the men's league, Unknowns II shocked the Sultans of Swat out of the all-campus championship 33-32. Omega Psi Phi took it to the men from Alpha Sigma Phi in the 'A' division. Final score 44-23.

Totally dominating the men's residence hall division are the newly formed Road Warriors. Blowing Umstead Sky Force out of the championship. The Road Warriors head to the all-campus finals after a sound 50-37 win.

The faculty staff finals ended with the Blue Knights robbing the Steelers 45-35.

In the 'B' fraternity league, Phi Kappa Tau defeated Alpha Sigma Phi 34-25. Good luck in this weeks all-campus finals.

Baseball Win Streak Ends At Five Games

The ECU baseball team took advantage of spring break and the warm temperature to post a 4-2 mark during a flurry of early-season activity at Harrington Field.

The Pirates added four straight after their first win to total a five-game victory streak before bowing to a powerful pitching performance by N.C. State's Paul Grossman in a 6-0 shutout on Friday.

ECU started the break with a 5-1, 6-2 double-header sweep of St. Augustine. Winfred Johnson had another two-run homer in the first inning of the opener to again pace the Pirate offense. He also pitched his first game and picked up the win, though giving up a homerun to James Quick in the third inning.

In the nightcap, Chris Bradberry opened the Pirates scoring in the first inning with a solo homer, which was followed by three unearned runs. Jay McGraw's two-run double closed out the frame with a four-run lead.

Mike Sullivan doubled in the third, and scored on a Mark Cockrell single to make it 5-0. St. Augustine got two runs in the fifth, including one homer. The Pirates closed out the scoring in the sixth with a bases-loaded walk. Jim Peterson picked up the win in his first start of the season.

ECU had the dubious distinction of taking a record breaking 27-15 win over Atlantic Christian College on Wednesday March 6. Winfred Johnson came on in relief to finally quell the ACC scoring with innings of hitless pitching, to pick up the victory.

ACC watched unbelievably as their 9-1 lead disappeared in the bottom of the third under an 11-run blitz by the Pirates. The Bulldogs responded with two runs in the fourth. The Pirates then responded with one run of their own, giving ECU a 13-11 advantage in the fourth.

ACC retook the lead with four runs in the top of the fifth for a 15-13 lead. Jim Riley then tied the game (15-15) with a two-run homer in the bottom half of the frame.

The Pirates closed out the scoring with an ECU record of 12 runs in the sixth inning. The total of 27 runs is also a Pirate high. Each team used five pitchers and gave a combined total of 33 hits and 31 walks for 42 runs. The teams left 12 runners apiece stranded in this non-pitchers duel.

ECU gained a dramatic extra-inning win over Virginia Commonwealth University Thursday with a Mark Cockrell homer in the bottom of the tenth inning. Mike Christopher posted a complete game in picking up his second win against no losses. Winfred Johnson slammed his fourth home run in the fifth and went four for five on the afternoon.

The Pirates did most of their scoring in the first, pushing three over. A bases-loaded walk followed by a two-run John McGraw single, Johnson's homer made it 4-0 through six innings of play, but VCU rallied for two on a Chuck Downs homer in the seventh. The Rams then added two more in the top of the ninth to tie the game, 4-4. Cockrell then ended the game with a shot over the fence in the bottom of the tenth.

The ECU win streak abruptly halted Friday with an excellent pitching performance by Paul Grossman. Grossman handcuffed the Pirate batters, giving up only six singles in throwing a complete game. ECU starter Daniel Boone gave up three runs and was relieved by Danny Culpepper after two outs in the first inning.

Culpepper did his job well. However, a number of Pirate errors, including a wild pitch, added two unearned runs to make the Wolfpack's total of six.

In blanking the Pirates, Grossman only allowed three hits in the first eight innings and gave up just three walks throughout the contest.

The Pirates had 10 hits of their own, including a run-scoring double by Winfred Johnson. ECU could only collect one more run while being charged with five errors. Greg Hardison went three for four and Johnson batted .500 for the game to highlight ECU's efforts. The loss drops the Pirate season mark to 5-2.
