Some were lucky enough to take advantage of the warm weather while it lasted. But beware, winter has turned cold on us again. Today's forecast includes rain and a high of 40 degrees.

Committee Begins Its Search

By PATTI KEMMIS
Assistant News Editor

The search has begun for a new chancellor of ECU after present Chancellor John M. Howell confirmed that he plans to retire no later than June 30, 1987.

According to the ECU Board of Trustees, the person they are looking for must hold certain characteristics. Being physically, emotionally and morally capable of withstanding a sustained and heavy workload; possession of a personality which will help him/her in the performance of duties; and a strong personal identification with ECU and surrounding areas are the basic traits the Search Committee is looking for in nominees.

Besides having broad experience in his/her field, the new chancellor is desired to have a good liberal education, a terminal degree, and a management philosophy consistent with the goals of the University. Anyone can and is urged to nominate someone who they feel not only fits these qualifications, but shows strong academic leadership.

The Search Committee will review nominations and make recommendations to the board. The eleven member committee consists of three members appointed from the faculty, members of the board of Trustees, and representatives from both the student body and the alumni of ECU. The three faculty members consists of one from the major academic areas of the Arts & Sciences and professional schools, one from the School of Medicine and a minority representative which could be a woman. Jo Ann Bell will serve as Executive Secretary of the committee.

Although the initial period for receiving nominations before screening will be from the first of February until the middle of April 1986, nominations will be accepted until a chancellor is chosen. After screening and off site interviews are completed, a visitation committee will begin to visit the candidates' home institutions. Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Ralph Kinsey Jr., hopes to conduct the visitation from the last of October through the first of December.

No later than January, 1987, the Search Committee will make recommendations to the Board and upon the approval of the recommendations, two candidates will be presented to the President of the UNC System. The new chancellor will be named after the president's recommendation has been approved by the Board of Governors.

The Search Committee will be a working one with complete independence. All decisions or recommendations will be based on what is best for the university and free from outside pressure. This will be a hard-working committee," Kinsey said. "The schedule is strenuous."

According to Dr. Kenneth Wilson, head of the Faculty Senate, the committee should be selected sometime in February. When this is completed, the search for a new Chancellor of ECU will be underway.

Improvement Sought; Upgrade Expressions

By CAROLYN DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

A committee was formed during yesterday's meeting of the Media Board to "look into ways of improving Expressions (ECU's minority affairs publication) as a separate medium...to increase minority student input and to better meet the needs of minority students on campus," according to Michael Smith, chairman of the Media Board and president of the Student Union.

In addition, the Board placed Expressions in a "state of moratorium," states Smith. In effect, all operations within the organization are frozen until organizational problems are resolved by the committee.

"The Media Board has given Expressions time and patience," explains Jeffrey Canady, general manager of the magazine. "But because of student apathy and failure to be consistent the Board has decided it could not be feasible for one or two people to continue Expressions. The reason they've formed the subcommittee is to get students involved and establish consistency within Expressions."

Expressions, most recently published one week ago, has come under attack by certain members of the Media Board. In fact, it was initially suggested that Expressions should be phased out and integrated with the East Carolinian. However, not all Board members were in agreement on this proposal. Instead, the committee to improve the magazine was formed.

In light of the criticism generated at yesterday's meeting and the action taken by the Board, Smith stresses, "This is not an issue, it's a publication. We are dealing with it as we would any other publication... (The Board's action) was not in any way a criticism of the present staff. We recognize this is a difficult situation and we are trying to improve Expressions for the future."

In an attempt to emphasize the intentions of the Board he continues, "The Board has recognized that the problems have been going on for a long time and decided it was time to take action. What was done was in the best interest of minority students."

States Canady, "The time is passed for all minority students to become involved and have a voice. Another minority organization is being phased out...most of the Expressions staff has done an excellent job giving time and total devotion, but the Media Board has taken Expressions out of our hands and put it where it belongs — on the shoulders of the minority students."

In response to the Board's decision, Jimmie Hackett, editor of Expressions says, "I think the magazine is well on its way toward working out the major problems of the organization. I look forward to the time when Expressions becomes a powerful voice for the minority students."

The committee to improve the magazine will consist of Media Board members Keenan Ward, Michael Smith, Kirk Shelley, Chris Tomasic, Dean Alexander, General Manager of the Expressions Jeffrey Canady and Tom Luxner, general manager of the East Carolinian.

Bacchus Plans Future Help

By PATTI KEMMIS
and
JILL MORGAN

The Campus Alcohol and Drug program has now affiliated with the National Organization BACCHUS, a student group that stresses responsible drinking.

Karen Palmer, co-president of the organization says, "The program is not an anti-alcohol program. Our purpose is to promote the importance of the responsible use of alcohol and to keep students out of trouble."

BACCHUS, which stands for Boosting Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students, originated in Florida. One of the reasons that the ECU organization became affiliated with BACCHUS was to get national attention and support.

With the legal drinking age being raised to 21 in October 1986, 90 percent of ECU students will find themselves illegal. Senior Keith Kaut, co-president of ECU's chapter of BACCHUS, stressed that the changed drinking age is going to directly affect the campus.

BACCHUS meets every other Thursday at 5:15 in 242 Mendenhall. Their next scheduled meeting is February 20. Not only are students urged to attend the meetings, but also invited to stop by their office, 301 Erwin, to find out more information about the group.

BACCHUS's main concern is counseling students recommended to them by Dean Speier. A recommended student attends a workshop, provided by and run by the members of BACCHUS, and then has a follow-up interview with someone from the group. If a student has a second offense dealing with alcohol or drugs, he/she goes through a judiciary procedure.

Dean Ron Speier, Associate Dean of Students and advisor to fraternities, noted that this year he was working more closely with the program to encourage a more professional attitude. He is also encouraging more involvement in other programs like Outreach.

"What's neat about this program is that it's a peer group. It is an organization run by students, for students," says Speier.

The 1986 ECU Handbook will outline the changes that will be made in campus procedures concerning alcohol. One of these changes is that alcohol will be banned from campus beginning with the fall semester. Dean Fulghum of Student Life says approximately 4,900 of 5,500 students in the dorms will be underage."

BACCHUS hopes to aid the situation by providing educational information on the new laws. BACCHUS also plans to sponsor activities for the students where alcohol is not the main source of entertainment and to give non-drinking students a fun, sober, social atmosphere.

Phi Kappa Phi Offers Fellowships

By MIKE LUDWICK
News Editor

The ECU chapter of Phi Kappa Phi National Honor Society is inviting outstanding seniors to apply for a Graduate Fellowship of up to $6,000 for first-year graduate or professional study. An additional 30 students will receive Honorable Mention Awards of $500 each.

"The purpose of these awards is to encourage people of high scholastic ability to enter the graduate school of their choice," said Fred Broadhurst, professor in Industrial Technology.

Each Phi Kappa Phi chapter may nominate one student for these awards. Accordingly, Phi Kappa Phi requests faculty to encourage graduating seniors with outstanding academic and leadership abilities to apply for these scholarships. Information about the scholarships and application process may be obtained from individual departmental offices or by contacting the Fellowship Committee Chair, Trenton Davis at 757-6242.

Broadhurst said the Phi Kappa Phi chapter at ECU was established 15 years ago. "Our purpose is to encourage scholarship among students from all disciplines. We have the same basic standards as Phi Beta Kappa but Phi Kappa Phi accepts students from all disciplines," Broadhurst said.

Besides nominating a student for the Graduate Fellowship, Phi Kappa Phi sponsors annual symposiums on topics of current interest.

"We choose a topic of world interest, and then we distribute a call for papers to students and faculty. From the students' papers we select one student paper to include in the proceedings of the symposium," Broadhurst said.

Broadhurst said that because of an overhaul, the symposium will not be held this year.

Tax Time Strikes

By DAWN STEWARD
Staff Writer

A time feared by most students is here once again — tax time.

Taxes must be filed by April 15, 1986 for students who wish to receive a refund from the government. "Although students are to receive refunds, they must file in order to receive the money. Most students forget this," says Jan Kanemsky of H&R Block. She also adds "students must be certain to endorse the forms; otherwise, the forms will be automatically bounced."

Students must file taxes according to these monetary guidelines: if gross income is: single: Federal $3,430 or State $1,100; married (filing together): Federal $5,620 or State $1,000; married (filing separately): Federal $1,040 or State $1,000.

A helpful word of advice to students is make sure for all jobs,

Future Medical Loans Cut

Legislative member Gordon Walker vigorously down-graded the program and explained why the University should incorporate an insurance policy program.

"The SGA has put money, money, money into this program and it has been an embarrassment from the very beginning," Walker said.

"If the University would incorporate an insurance policy for all the students, the premiums would be minimal," he continued.

Tony Braswell, SGA Treasurer said, "many students will be left high and dry because it will take time for the policies to get through committees and red tape."

But member Mark Eagem said that "there should be no administrative hang-ups and anyway, the fund is not terminated until the end of the school year."

Mark Simon simply stated that the University would take care of the students regardless.

In other business, the body appropriated $200 for an honorarium for a seminar by a former Vietnam POW to be held in room 244 Mendenhall, Thursday.

Also, projects to beautify the campus will be enacted in the near future.

Study S

Ithaca, N.Y. (I.P.) — A letter of recommendation that is less confidential is likely to be less positive than one that is not confidential, according to a Cornell study that examined the effects of confidentiality on reference letters written by college faculty. In fact, researchers have found that students are rated an average of 35 percent lower when they waive their right to inspect letters written about them.

As a result, many faculty tend to devalue nonconfidential letters, believing that their colleagues often inflate recommendations when they know the students will read them. Yet those same college faculty members are reluctant to admit that they themselves write different letters, depending on their confidentiality, according to Stephen J. Ceci, an associate professor in the Department of Human Development and Family Studies.

With Douglas Peters, an associate professor of psychology at the University of North Dakota, Ceci recently conducted a study and follow-up survey on letters of reference and confidentiality. They asked undergraduates seniors at various universities to request three letters of reference.

I have heard a lot about acquaintance rape lately. How does that differ from rape by a stranger and what can I do to avoid being raped?

Rape, whether by a stranger or an acquaintance uses a sexual act to establish power and dominance over another person. A rapist may not always be a stranger in some dark alley. More often, he may be an acquaintance of the victim. The trauma of rape is devastating, especially when the attacker is an acquaintance. Trusting someone who then betrays her makes the victim question her own judgement. A woman, therefore, often feels responsible for not preventing a sexual assault. More important, though, she is not to blame. Her decisions in no way justify the destructive act of others.

The surest way to avoid acquaintance rape is to protect yourself. It takes time to get to know people; moreover, be cautious when giving out personal information and be aware of your drinking limit when out meeting new friends at parties or in bars. Never accept a ride alone with someone you have just met, and if you become involved in a sexual interaction that makes you feel uncomfortable, trust your intuition: immediately and directly leave or confront that person.

Remember: forced sexual intercourse is rape, not seduction. Men should know that:
• rape is a crime of violence
• it is never okay to force yourself on a woman, even if you think she's been teasing and leading you on
• whenever you use force to have sex, you are committing a crime

Study Shows Forms Differ

Ithaca, N.Y.-(I.P.) — A letter of recommendation that is confidential is likely to be less positive than one that is not confidential, according to a Cornell study that examined the effects of confidentiality on reference letters written by college faculty. In fact, researchers have found that students are rated an average of 35 percent lower when they waive their right to inspect letters written about them.

As a result, many faculty tend to devalue nonconfidential letters, believing that their colleagues often inflate recommendations when they know the students will read them. Yet those same college faculty members are reluctant to admit that they themselves write different letters, depending on their confidentiality, according to Stephen J. Ceci, an associate professor in the Department of Human Development and Family Studies.

With Douglas Peters, an associate professor of psychology at the University of North Dakota, Ceci recently conducted a study and follow-up survey on letters of reference and confidentiality. They asked undergraduate seniors at various universities to request three letters of reference for graduate school at different times from the same professor.

Some recommendation forms were marked confidential while others were not. Those marked confidential were mailed to a rented post office box in the town of the graduate school; the nonconfidential letters were picked up by the students a week later.

"We found that if a professor categorized a student in the top 15 to 25 percent of the class in an open, nonconfidential letter of reference, the professor would tend to rank that student much lower, say only in the top half of the class in the confidential letter," says Ceci, who teaches in the State College of Human Ecology.

These findings that confidential letters are harsher may also be applicable to other types of nonconfidential letters, such as for jobs, promotions, and tenure, although Ceci points out that this is merely a hunch because he has no data on these other contexts.

Among the stipulations of the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, also known as the Buckley Amendment, institutions receiving federal funds must allow students or applicants to read files about them.

Students also have the option to waive that right. Even though students who waive their right to inspect letters of recommendation appear to be at a disadvantage, Ceci feels that students should request confidential letters.

"There's some evidence that faculty who receive letters that were written under nonconfidential conditions tend to 'discount' them by about the same amount that they've been inflated," Ceci says. "There is reason to believe that students will actually fare better in the opinion of the reader when the letter is confidential, despite the lower rating."

In other words, when faculty receive letters of recommendation, they tend to look to see if they are confidential or not. If they're not, the faculty often assume that the recommendations are more favorable than they would have been if the letters had been confidential.

In a nonscientific, follow-up survey of 1,000 randomly chosen faculty, Ceci and Peters asked professors if they devalue nonconfidential letters. About 70 percent felt that their colleagues tended to write inflated letters when they were not confidential. However, about 60 percent of those surveyed believe that they themselves would write the same letter regardless of confidentiality.

Specifically, faculty in the natural and physical sciences were overwhelmingly opposed to allowing students to read their letters, and the vast majority admitted to discounting nonconfidential letters. Many stated they would not even consider a nonconfidential letter, but would call the letter writer for a "candid" evaluation. "More and more, we are witnessing a shift from letters to phone conversations," Ceci says. Faculty in the humanities and the arts, on the other hand, supported the right of students to inspect their letters, yet they still admitted that most teachers probably inflate nonconfidential letters.

The surest way to avoid acquaintance rape is to protect yourself. It takes time to get to know people; moreover, be cautious when giving out personal information and be aware of your drinking limit when out meeting new friends at parties or in bars. Never accept a ride alone with someone you have just met, and if you become involved in a sexual interaction that makes you feel uncomfortable, trust your intuition: immediately and directly leave or confront that person.

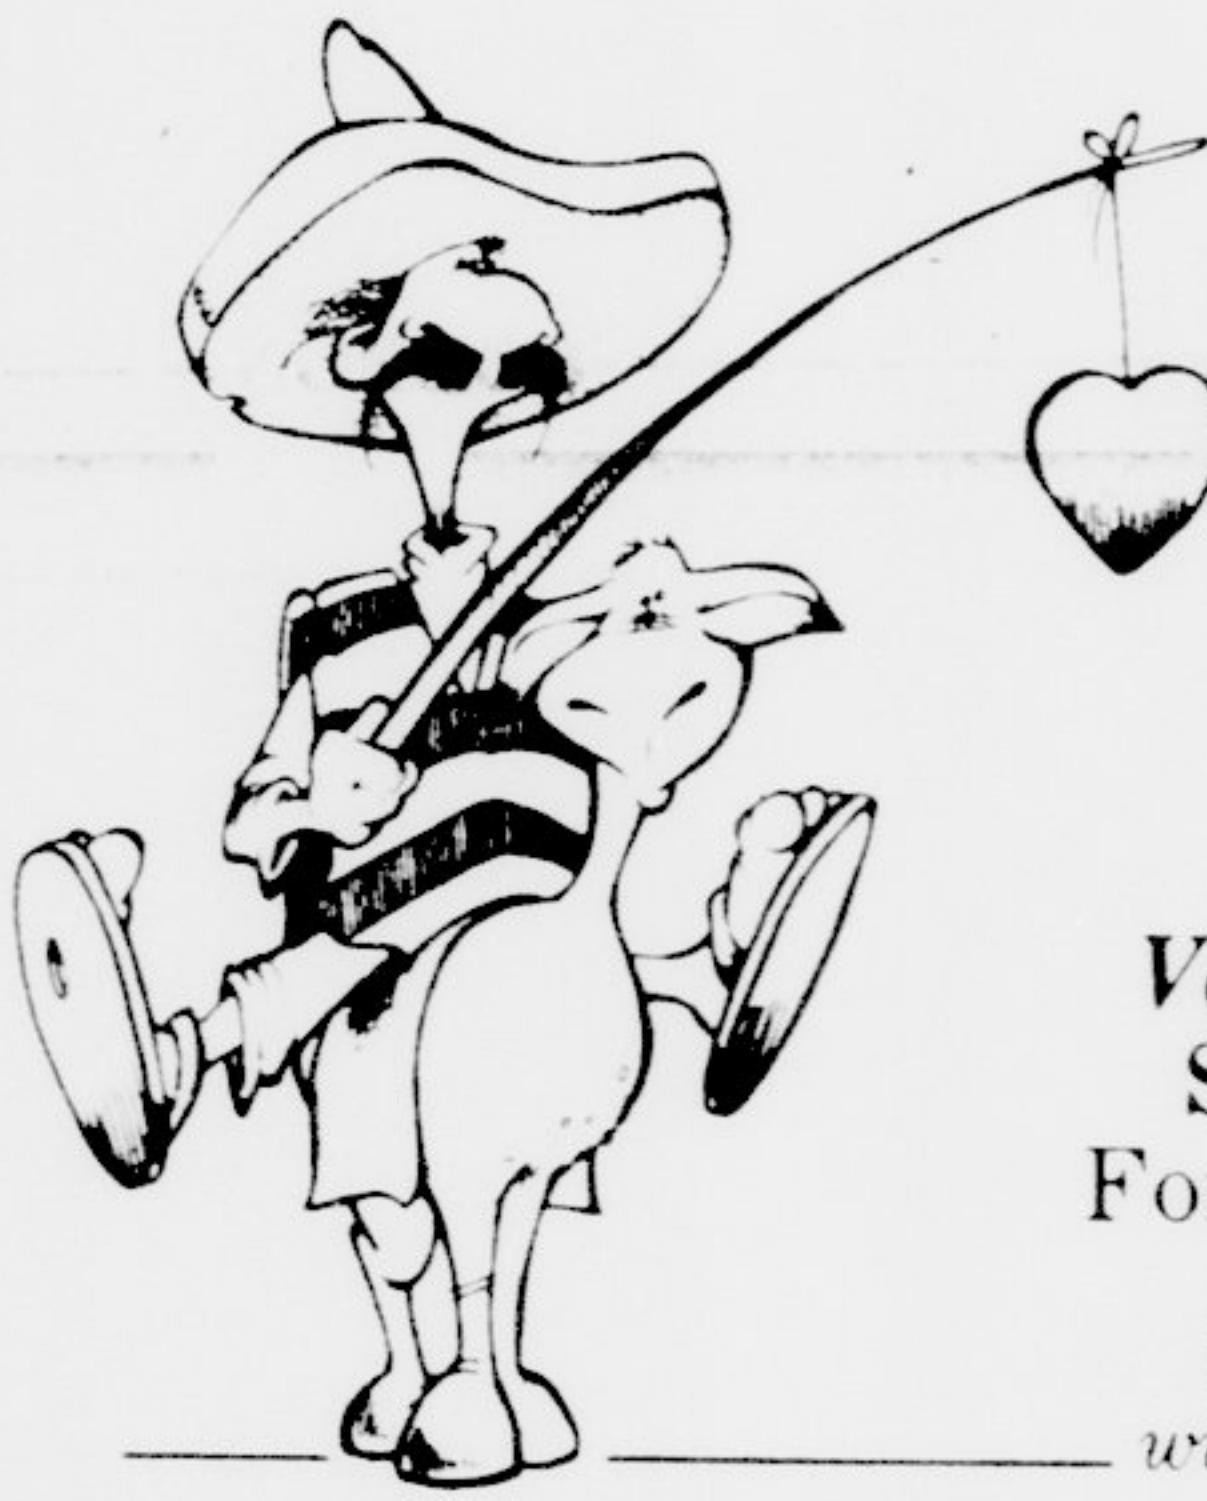

Remember: forced sexual intercourse is rape, not seduction.

- Men should know that:
- rape is a crime of violence
 - it is never okay to force yourself on a woman, even if you think she's been teasing and leading you on
 - whenever you use force to have sex, you are committing a crime called rape — even if you know the woman or even if you've had sex with her before.

- If you are raped:
- remember that YOU committed no crime; the person who attacked you committed a crime
 - contact a friend or someone for support
 - seek medical attention at once.

All injuries are not immediately apparent. Since all emergency rooms have rape evidence kits, do not bathe, douche, change your clothes, or rinse your mouth. If there is any possibility that you will report the crime, you don't want to destroy the evidence. It's important to seek medical attention as soon as possible.

Expressions

Minority Publication Threatened

There is a plan, allegedly under consideration by the Media Board governing all campus media at ECU, that would disband Expressions magazine and force its staff to merge with The East Carolinian. The reasons which The Media Board has ostensibly given for the plan are not wholly without foundation.

Expressions has, in fact, been consistently late in meeting its production deadlines and sporadic in its publication as a result. Moreover, the latest issue of the fledgling minority affairs magazine was over budget by an astronomical sum. And, in some quarters, it has been charged that the quality of Expressions is simply inferior to that of other campus publications.

These problems have been compounded by the almost constant infighting which has marked the relationship of the Managing Editor and General Manager of the magazine, Jimmie Hackett and Jeff Canady respectively. The friction in the relationship has most recently resulted in Hackett's being fired by Canady and, immediately afterwards, in his petitioning the Media Board to reinstate him to his job.

All of this may sound rather petty and uninteresting to most people, yet what is ultimately at stake is important: Will ECU have a separate and independent minority publication? Many people say that, based upon the past performance of Expressions, the answer to that question should be no.

Yet, most black students resist the notion that the school's only minority publication should be eliminated. Without it, they fear, minority news will not be adequately covered and black students will not have a fair shot at getting the kind of experience that aspiring journalists need. Instead, minorities will be relegated to the same kind of back of the bus status that characterized their position in society prior to the civil rights movement of the 1960s.

Critics of Expressions believe that this argument is marked by an unreasonable paranoia. They maintain that the whole debate surrounding the minority affairs magazine revolves around economic considerations. The school, it is said, is not getting a good return on its money. Moreover, the critics claim, minorities would be treated fairly on today's more racially egalitarian ECU campus.

While it is true that the present staff here at The East Carolinian cannot be characterized as a group of klansmen, it is also true that genuine racists have held prestigious positions here in the past and might again in the future. No one can guarantee that in an institution that is all or even predominantly white blacks will be treated fairly and equitably. More importantly, in regard to production problems, Expressions is a relatively new publication created only last year. Certainly, The East Carolinian has had its share of problems over the years since its inception.

But, the criticisms that are of some interest are those that have been made by the publication's own General Manager, Jeff Canady. Canady alleges that the problems Expressions has had have largely been due to the apathy of minority students. NAACP Vice-President Eric Hughes says that the same problem has plagued many of the minority organizations on campus. It is unrealistic, they say, for black students to sit back and remain uninvolved and then blame the leaders of black organizations for the failures of those same organizations.

Yet, it must be said that students on this campus appear, as a whole, to be apathetic and uninvolved. And with black students comprising less than 10 percent of the total population it should not come as a surprise that there are not enough of them who are active to run the many organizations that they are asked to staff. In the end they may have to make some hard decisions about what their priorities are and which groups they might consolidate and which ones they want to see eliminated. Nevertheless, for my part, I don't want to see Expressions go the way of The Ebony Herald, its predecessor. I think this is particularly true since the latest issue appears to me to be the best to date, expensive as it admittedly is.

Reagan's New Budget Bankrupts

"Hard choices" is the altruistic label the Administration gives its budget. "Bad choices" is the kindest label that seems accurate.

Expenditures for human capital are cut. And social capital already accumulated is put on the block to lower the rate of increasing debt.

I, for one, can "do without" in the interest of the greater good. And I'm worried about the deficit.

But reducing the deficit seems to have low priority. The contras are losing in Nicaragua? "Hard choices" budgeting would find millions for them. El Salvador already gets $1 million a day for its civil war. A South-African-supported group wants money for another war, and the President is listening. Also he wants a trillion or so dollars for an "impenetrable" shield against ICBMs. Cruise missiles fly low enough to get under? Well, the research could lead to more Tang or Teflon.

Nuts! Let's have a SENSIBLE budget, one that will improve our schools and transportation and quality of life. Let's invest in things that produce usable goods AND more jobs per dollar. Let's balance the budget.

The arms race is loading a wealthy nation with debt and forcing otherwise comfortable nations to live like poor ones. Fortunately, Gorbachev is wise enough to recognize a no-win situation and strong enough to do something about it. The window of opportunity is open. Let's stop building this suicidal nuclear stuff while he has the inclination and power to cooperate. In this case, what's good for Soviets is good for Americans.

Abortion

One unfortunate aspect surrounding the abortion issue as observed in this column has been a tendency to confuse opinion with intelligent opinion. The difference is the difference between "spouting off", a kind of verbal tantrum aimed at making the writer feel better, and a considered observation aimed at influencing other reasonable adults. The former tends to polarize readers into confrontational camps of "us" and "them", while the latter is a genuine attempt at resolving complicated and volatile issues.

To begin, it should be observed both the "right to life" and the "right to choose" elements contain sincere and compassionate individuals dedicated to what they believe to be humane goals. The question is primarily how these goals should be observed; as a matter of choice or of legislation. This turns on certain claims concerning from what point forward in pregnancy is the existence of a human life determined. "Right to choose" advocates usually defend viability as that point, while "Right to life" advocates generally believe life begins at conception.

Viability (Webster's definition of a fetus: having attained such form and development of organs as to be normally capable of living outside the uterus; "a 7-month viable fetus") is legally and scientifically the most broadly accepted point for distinguishing between potential human life and actual human life. It is the basis of the Supreme Court ruling which bans third trimester abortion and allows states to restrict second trimester abortion. This ruling is a compromise between totally banning abortion and "abortion on demand".

The "right to life" advocates' insistence upon conception as the point from which a human life is determined often confuses religious conviction with scientific evidence and produces logically flawed, if earnestly inspired, arguments. Although one can reject abortion personally on non-religious grounds, the push to legislate a ban on all abortion is principally a religious push. This is one reason a Constitutional amendment is being sought by the "right to life" advocates, for it is presently un-Constitutional to legislate religious beliefs.

I feel the present Supreme Court ruling is a just and moral reflection of the best objective evidence we have for when a human life begins and when it should be protected. I also feel the movement to ban all abortion is an unnecessary violation of free choice and an attempt to legislate morality. The latter is not only misguided in this pluralistic society, but would most likely not achieve its ends if instituted.

The religious community which sees this as a moral cause should continue to vocally address itself to the individual consciences, but not seek legislation. A precedent of establishing religious principles in law to be enforced upon others could not guarantee which religion might be the basis of tomorrow's laws, nor how their enforcement might affect our own personal convictions.

Facilities Inadequate

I would like to bring up an issue that I'm sure has been brought up before; it concerns the facilities at East Carolina University. With the increased enrollment at the school, obviously all facilities are overcrowded.

My main concern, and many others, is the athletic facilities at ECU. East Carolina holds two, just two racquetball courts on this campus of approximately 15,000 students plus faculty. N.C. State, for example, holds fourteen courts plus an additional twelve just erected. This is ridiculous considering both schools are state funded. ECU also lacks in basketball courts, weight rooms, and many other indoor facilities that other schools so enjoy for the student fees they pay.

I feel that if this problem is brought up by enough students and faculty alike that maybe the school might do something about this issue. If not, I also think that maybe the students and myself should get an explanation for ECU seemingly ignoring this obvious problem.

If East Carolina is going to expand its student body, they must also appropriate facilities to compensate for this increase and action should be taken immediately. And if no action is taken, I think a letter of explanation should be submitted to the students and faculty. Thank you.

Bad Words For Bern

This is a response to Bern McCrady, the liberal who thinks he is the author of the definition of conservative, and his inane remarks. Definitions are relative to a person's perception. The College Republicans consider ourselves conservatives. As a member of the State Executive Committee of the N.C. Republican Party, along with quite a few other College Republicans, we are viewed by our colleagues as conservatives and the future of the party. We are quite responsible.

You claim most conservatives don't hold the basic views stated in Mr. Hardin's letter as I said that they do. Then you use a quote as evidence that neither Mr. Hardin nor I have ever said. It's becoming a waste of my time defending myself against ignorant arguments from liberals like you. Please go to one of your professors for help in defending yourself from cogent arguments; you need it.

Next, about Sen. Goldwater and Mr. Buckley, your reaffirmation and emphasis aren't proof, so I have done the research you were incapable of doing for yourself. Being an avid reader of Buckley's articles, columns and magazine, and an attentive viewer of Firing Line, I can tell you Mr. Buckley doesn't support tax increases because liberals like yourself would have the government spend double the increase. However, he does support a special surtax that is only to be spent on the government's debt, so liberals like you won't spend it on the many failed government programs that liberals won't let responsible conservatives dismantle. I'll give you the benefit of the doubt on Barry Goldwater and I am a voracious reader, but it is impractical for me to read a COMPLETE text of EVERYTHING these men have said. You misquoted me on that, but it has come to be expected of you.

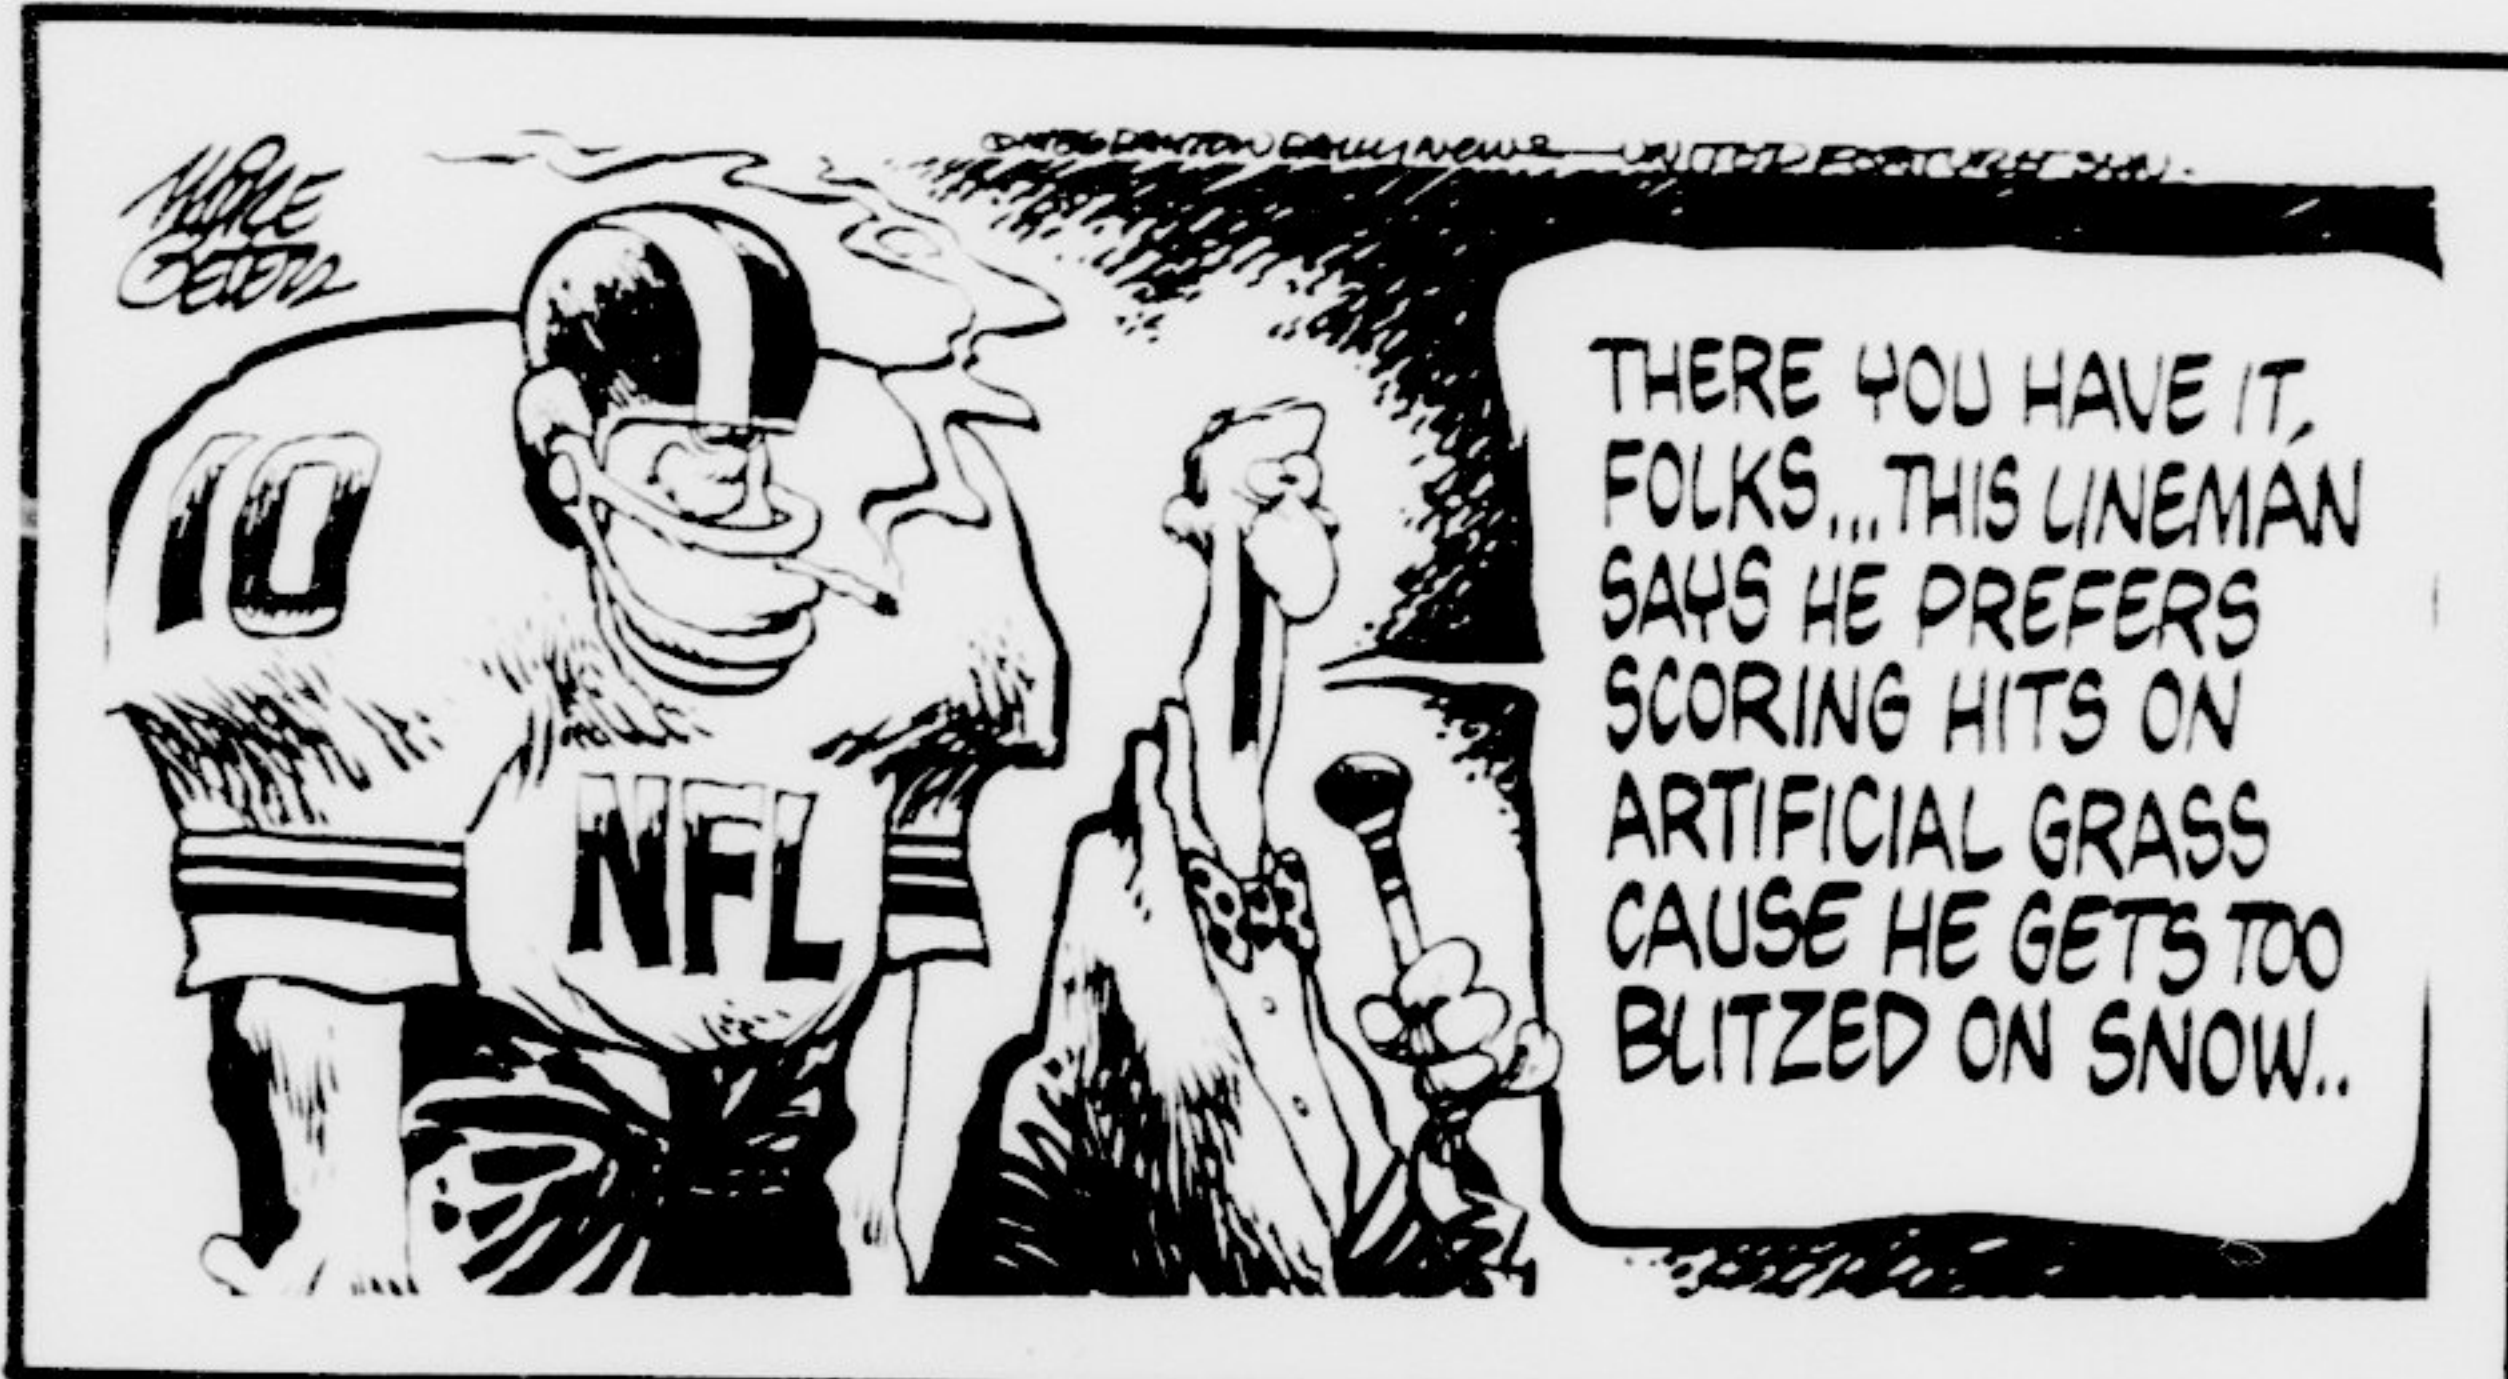

As for the disagreements Goldwater, Buckley and Jesse Helms have, this shows conservatives can intelligently debate the important issues of our day and come up with practical solutions to our problems. You can make fun of Ms. Averett's patriotism, but she is willing to love her country and accept the responsibilities of citizenship instead of doing like liberals, many of whom, maybe not all, are selfishly only worried about their rights and hate America, and always blame America first for the world's problems.

Yes, Mr. Bern McCrady, suicide is a national travesty. That is why conservatives wish to keep it illegal, but many, not all, in the self-proclaimed intellectually enlightened liberal community want to see suicide and "mercy" murders legalized. But to consider suicide humorous is a sick abomination. What kind of sick person would consider suicide humorous as you did? I pray you didn't mean it!

Yes, there are many of superior intellectual ability in the political science department, especially when compared to the ability you have shown. I will not get into the few examples of inability in the department for we all make mistakes and are human made imperfect by our Lord.

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Capital punishment opponents concede they are having difficulty arousing sympathy for condemned murderer John Roark and fear his Valentine's Day execution could signal a new wave of state-sanctioned death.

"They picked some high profile cases that were ready to go and I think you will see a much increased use of the (death) chamber," said Raleigh lawyer Joe Cheshire.

Cheshire represented James Hutchins, the first person put to death in North Carolina after the death penalty was reinstated in 1976. Hutchins died by lethal injection in 1984, as did Veina Barfield.

Roark has also chosen lethal injection and will die Friday, unless the Supreme Court issues a stay for Gov. Jim Martin, a proponent of the death penalty.

Capital Punishment Constant Debate

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Capital punishment opponents concede they are having difficulty arousing sympathy for condemned murderer John Rook and fear his Valentine's Day execution could signal a new wave of state sanctioned death.

"They picked some high profile cases that were ready to go and I think you will see a much increased use of the (death) chamber," said Raleigh lawyer Joe Cheshire.

Cheshire represented James Hutchins, the first person put to death in North Carolina after the death penalty was reinstated in 1976. Hutchins died by lethal injection in 1984, as did Velma Barfield.

Rook has also chosen lethal injection and will die Friday, unless the Supreme Court issues a stay or Gov. Jim Martin, a professed death penalty opponent, grants him clemency.

"It's kind of a cyclical thing," said Cheshire. "People get used to it and they start killing a whole bunch of people and then they get sick of it and then they quit again. The reason they quit is it's barbaric. It just takes people a little while to remember how barbaric it is."

Cheshire maintains the first three condemned prisoners — all white — were chosen for "expedited death" because their executions would be more palatable to the public.

Law Hurts Universities

By PATTI KEMMIS
Assistant News Editor

The Gramm-Rudman Bill, which is a budget balancing instrument, could mean cutting college funding by some 4.3 percent by March 1, 1986.

Translated into a $244 million drop in the amount of federal student aid available this spring, the 4.3 percent would be raised up to a 50 percent cut by August.

Even though the cutback is not definite, colleges around the country are not sure how they will compensate for the loss.

Some ways of compensation may include raising tuition, increasing the amount they charge students to process student loans, and intensifying their fund-raising efforts.

"There are too many unknowns. We don't know what we are up against until we see the president's budget," says Bob Aaron of the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges.

Here at ECU, one cut back has already been felt. A three year proposal in its second year was just cut by 13 percent.

"No one knows the impact the law will have, or if it will even last," said Robert Franke, Director of sponsored programs at ECU. "If it does last, it's going to hurt, but we don't know yet what areas or how much."

Broyhill and Howell Discuss Plans

By JAY STONE
Managing Editor

In a closed meeting with Chancellor Howell yesterday, senatorial aspirant Jim Broyhill said he would work to see that funding for student work study programs not to be eliminated.

Broyhill made his remarks after Chancellor Howell expressed concern over the Reagan administration's proposed budget and what effect rumors of cuts in financial aid might do to enrollment, particularly among minorities. The Reagan budget would end all financial assistance for one million college students and it would halt interest free loans for those students eligible to borrow.

Howell also questioned how much money would be available in the new budget for research. He expressed particular concern about ECU's Medical School.

Though Broyhill replied that everyone had to look at the funding problem in terms of what the budget deficits do to the country, he said that he didn't believe research money would be cut.

"There is a general recognition that research is where the new jobs are coming from," Broyhill said.

After his meeting with Chancellor Howell, Broyhill who has served in Congress for 23 years, shook hands with students and answered questions in the ECU Student Supply Store.

In response to claims that the current battle between he and David Funderburk for the seat being vacated by Senator John East will weaken the North Carolina Republican Party, Broyhill said that his campaign was doing well. "We're far ahead of where Martin was in 1984. My campaign is getting a positive reaction." He added "we are attracting Republicans, Democrats, and Independents."

Congressman Broyhill was invited to ECU by Chancellor Howell and Mark Simon of Students for Broyhill.

Parents may claim their students as dependents, even though the student files regardless of the students income, as long as the parents are paying half of the full-time students support. "The parents receive exemptions because they have students in higher institutions of learning (even if the student is in school out of state); the parents, however, must be North Carolina residents," explains Kanetsky.

If a student needs advice many avenues are open to him: The North Carolina Department of Revenue, located near the Green Street Bridge; the Internal Revenue Department, located on the corner of First Street and Green Street; the accounting office of East Carolina located in Rawl.

Filing taxes does not have to be painful, after all, just time consuming.

Florida Plans to Clean-up Act

DAYTONA BEACH, FL (CPS) — The capitals of spring break hedonism — Daytona Beach and Fort Lauderdale — are trying to change their images.

Both communities are sponsoring organized activities aimed at somehow moderating student drinking during the spring break weeks of March and April.

"What has gone on before was a Sodom and Gomorrah affair," says Jerry Nolan, spokesman for Daytona's National Collegiate Sports Festival, which is supposed to draw students into activities more constructive than with those with which Sodom, Gomorrah, Daytona and Fort Lauderdale generally are associated.

"The festival demonstrates that we are getting away from the tarnished image of the past," he says.

Daytona and the other vacation spots in Florida don't have much of a choice.

This is the first spring break during which the state's new 21-year-old minimum drinking age law is in effect, and rising insurance costs are forcing communities to find ways to minimize the wild partying that has led to injuries and even deaths in the past.

Fort Lauderdale, for one, is sponsoring an "Olympics" featuring volleyball, a tug-of-war and various dance and trivia contests.

City officials actively are discouraging excessive drinking, and have banned alcohol consumption on the strip along the beach.

Daytona Beach hopes to attract up to 20,000 students to its first National Collegiate Sports Festival.

The festival, scheduled for March 8 through April 6, will feature about 20 different sports ranging from rugby to golf.

Four national corporations — including Walt Disney — and about 30 Daytona businesses are supporting the events.

Nolan hopes the festival also will encourage more corporations to support intramural programs on campuses. IM sports, he notes, can use some fund-raising help.

But no one pretends the activities are not intended to moderate revelers' drinking.

"We hope the level of drinking will be lower than in the past," Daytona Chamber of Commerce representative Betty Wilson says.

Daytona also will mount a poster and radio campaign to promote sensible alcohol consumption.

"Any planned activity will be advantageous in (controlling) how students party," maintains Beverly Sanders of Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students (BACCHUS), a group that runs "alcohol awareness" programs on campuses around the country.

Yet the hard-partying spring break tradition is still a favorite of some local businesses.

"These kids are going to come down, party and raise hell. At least I hope so," says Tommy Fuquay, manager of The Other Place, a popular Daytona Beach club. "It's the only time of the year we make money."

Most of the national beer companies, as well as long-term spring break visiting corporations like Playboy, plan to return to the area, too, to promote their wares.

Coming, too, is Michigan inventor Ronald Rummell to market his new product: a vest allowing its wearer to carry six beverage containers and keep them cold.

"It's an alternative to bulky coolers," he explains.

Alternative Sentences Work

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI)

An Institute of Government study shows alternative sentencing programs can be effective in diverting non-violent felons from the state's overcrowded prisons, officials said Wednesday.

Such programs have been criticized as siphoning off criminals who likely would have been sentenced only to probation for their offenses.

"If they do that the prison population still climbs and probation people get more services," said Dennis Schrantz, former Executive Director of Repay Inc., an alternative sentencing program that operates in the 25th Judicial District.

But the study found non-violent offenders who participated in the Repay Inc. program were less than half as likely to get active prison time as those in a statistically similar control group.

"The study proves the question of whether our program actually affected sentencing, and the results are pretty good," said Schrantz.

Schrantz, now a state employee who helps set up local alternative sentencing programs, said 64 percent of felons admitted to prison each year are convicted of non-violent crimes.

Programs like Repay Inc., which operates in Cawtawba, Burke and Caldwell counties, aim to convince judges to divert some would-be inmates into community programs which feature restitution to victims.

But Schrantz said to be successful such programs must avoid enrolling people who would never have been sent to prison in the first place.

The Institute of Government study found 31 percent of non-violent convicted felons in the Repay Inc. program got active prison sentences, compared to 77 percent in the control group of convicted felons not enrolled in the program.

Florida Plans to Clean-up Act

DAYTONA BEACH, FL (CPS) — The capitals of spring break hedonism — Daytona Beach and Fort Lauderdale — are trying to change their images.

Both communities are sponsoring organized activities aimed at somehow moderating student drinking during the spring break invasions of March and April.

"What has gone on before was a Sodom and Gomorrah affair," says Jerry Nolan, spokesman for Daytona's National Collegiate Sports Festival, which is supposed to draw students into activities more constructive than with those with which Sodom, Gomorrah, Daytona and Fort Lauderdale generally are associated.

"The festival demonstrates that we are getting away from the tarnished image of the past," he says.

Daytona and the other vacation spots in Florida don't have much of a choice.

This is the first spring break during which the state's new 21-year-old minimum drinking age law is in effect, and rising insurance costs are forcing communities to find ways to minimize the wild partying that has led to injuries and even deaths in the past.

Fort Lauderdale, for one, is sponsoring an "Olympics" featuring volleyball, a tug-of-war and various dance and trivia contests.

City officials actively are discouraging excessive drinking, and have banned alcohol consumption on the strip along the beach.

Daytona Beach hopes to attract up to 20,000 students to its first National Collegiate Sports Festival.

The festival, scheduled for March 8 through April 6, will feature about 20 different sports ranging from rugby to golf.

Four national corporations, including Walt Disney, and about 30 Daytona businesses are supporting the event.

Nolan hopes the festival also will encourage more corporations to support intramural programs, sports, IM sports, he notes, can use some fund-raising help.

But no one pretends the activities are not intended to moderate excessive drinking.

"We hope the level of drinking will be lower than in the past," Daytona Chamber of Commerce representative Betty Wilson says.

Daytona also will mount a poster and radio campaign to promote sensible alcohol consumption.

Any planned activities will be advantageous, an Everglades law student says. "I'm mainly Beverly Sander of Band Alcohol Consumption. Concerning the Health of University Students (BACHS), a group that will 'educate' students' participation in campus alcohol consumption."

Yet the hard-partying spring break tradition is still a favorite of some local businessmen.

"These kids are going to come down party and raise hell. At least I hope so," says Jimmy Egan, manager of The Other Place, a popular Daytona Beach club. "It's the only time of the year we make money."

Most of the national beer companies, as well as long-term spring break visiting corporations like Playtex, plan to return to the area, too, to promote their wares.

Coming too is Michigan inventor Ronald Rummell to market his new product: a vest allowing its wearer to carry six beverage containers and keep them cold.

"It's an alternative to bulky coolers," he explains.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — An Institute of Government study shows alternative sentencing programs can be effective in deterring nonviolent felons from the state's overcrowded prisons, officials said Wednesday.

Programs like Repay Inc., which operates in Kalamazoo, Burke and Caldwell counties, aim to convince judges to divert some felons from prison to probation or other sentencing alternatives.

But Schrantz said he is skeptical about programs that divert felons from prison to probation or other sentencing alternatives.

The Institute of Government study found 41 percent of felons sentenced to prison in 1981 were convicted of non-violent crimes.

Repay Inc. is a private, non-profit organization that provides probation services to the state. It is one of several alternative sentencing programs operating in North Carolina.

NASA Reviews Documents

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A presidential review board called a secret meeting today to review documents that reportedly show NASA knew of potentially dangerous problems with shuttle rocket boosters before the fatal launch of Challenger.

The rupture in Challenger's right-side booster rocket allowed its base to rip away from the shuttle's external fuel tank, triggering a titanic explosion, an aerospace magazine reported today.

The space agency, which has had little or nothing to say about its internal investigation of history's worst space disaster, refused comment Sunday on reports listing agency documents that chart a history of trouble with crucial seals between fuel segments of the solid rocket boosters.

But officials privately acknowledge discovering eroded booster seals after many if not all shuttle flights.

Challenger's external fuel tank exploded January 28, blowing the shuttle apart and killing its seven member crew after an apparent rupture at or near a seal between the bottom two of the four fuel segments that made up the ship's right-side solid rocket booster.

Navy divers stood by today to resume searching for shuttle wreckage on the ocean floor where one of the two solid rocket boosters is thought to be resting. NASA believes Challenger's right-side booster has been located in 1,100 feet of water about 40 miles east of the Cape.

Former Secretary of State William Rogers, chairman of the presidential panel investigating the Challenger disaster, Sunday responded to a New York Times report by asking NASA for all its documents relating to solid rocket booster seals.

ECU Student In Operation Raleigh

JOHN SHANNON
Staff Writer

Ironically, to most North Carolinians the epithet "Operation Raleigh" implies regionalism, summoning images of the state's sprawling piedmont capital. Though it happens to be headquartered in Raleigh, this expeditionary project is named for Sir Walter Raleigh in recognition of his exploratory spirit, and makes the transcendence of national boundaries one of its primary goals.

Firoz Mohamedali, an ECU senior majoring in philosophy, is in the process of raising $5,500 in order to be a part of this international expedition. A far cry from the expensive vacation many students envision as an appropriate capstone to their undergraduate career, Mohamedali's upcoming journey will be hard and possibly dangerous work. In addition, he will benefit himself and others in important ways, perhaps advancing the causes of science and community service.

Operation Raleigh is the fulfillment of a set of values instilled in many young people by experiences in Scout and Explorer troops. These youths are interested in serving the community (local and global), experiencing the outdoors, and benefiting nature. The Operation Raleigh expedition combines these interests and adds a component of real adventure to appeal to the most qualified applicants possible.

Becoming involved in the project requires more than simply filling out the application forms, however. One must be selected from a pool of candidates after demonstrating the ability to get along well with people, swim, and survive numerous tests of courage, initiative, and endurance during a grueling selection weekend. Participants are put in stressful and arduous situations so that their reactions to fatigue and hunger can be evaluated.

Firoz Mohamedali has already been through the selection process, which for him was in Camp Bowers (near Raleigh). He will be leaving for Australia this summer provided he can raise the fees. But $5,500 is a distant goal to most college students, and Firoz is no exception. He has already raised over one hundred dollars by participating in a bike-a-thon in Florida, but predicts that much of the money will still have to be raised door-to-door, through sponsorship and individual donations.

Mohamedali is confident that he will be able to raise the money somehow, and will be working with aborigines, exploring the Great Barrier Reef, helping build a national park, or something equally worthwhile and exciting this summer.

"When I return, I plan to give talks on my experiences. I want to share what I learn of other cultures with people here, in order to clear up some of the misconceptions they may have."

Don't be surprised if Firoz Mohamedali knocks on your door sometime this month or next. He is a qualified Venturer, and he needs some help to do the work which England's Prince Charles says may "help to break some of the barriers of prejudice and intolerance which have always existed, but which seem to be even more obvious in today's world."

Grizzard Waxes Irreverent

(UPI) — Bestselling humorist author and nationally syndicated columnist Lewis Grizzard says people are getting so sensitive that no matter what he writes these days, someone will be offended.

In an interview, the Atlanta Constitution columnist also said his three ex-wives appreciated his humor, he doesn't plan to make commercials, and the women's movement needs a sense of humor.

Grizzard is the author of seven books including the bestseller, Shoot Low Boys — They're Ridin' Shetland Ponies. Other titles include, They Tore Out My Heart And Stomped That Sucker Flat, Elvis Is Dead And I Don't Feel So Good Myself, and If Love Were Oil, I'd Be About A Quart Low.

"Things are more complex today and I think humor has changed a great deal," Grizzard said. "People are more sensitive today. I can tell from my mail that no matter what I say, somebody is going to be offended — you know, left-handed Chinese astronaut association or something."

"I think people are a lot more sensitive than they used to be. And quite rightly so. I don't think we should be using racial jokes and things like that. You go back a few years there have been so many gaffes. Earl Butz got canned for telling a joke."

Grizzard, who is 39 and already had two "valve jobs," said humor is more sophisticated today, yet it is narrowing.

"Like the women's movement. They need a sense of humor more than anyone in the world. All of them going to start having heart attacks like us. I don't worry about it. People write letters and say you are biased. I am. They pay me to have my opinion."

"It's like teasing somebody on the school yard. You are going to pick out the one that reacts. Columnists have been doing this forever. When everybody starts saying things are great and you say wait a minute. A little irreverence is always important to being a columnist. I try to do that."

Grizzard said he hasn't had many columns killed because of taste.

"I've had a few that weren't tasteful, but I've taken on the women and the gays. I've taken on 'em all. That's really my job."

Grizzard was asked how does one become a sage, as he is sometimes referred to.

"I don't know that I am one. I just made a big career change when I was 30 or 31. I decided I had been an editor for 13 years and hadn't written a line. I wore a tie, went to meetings, worked on budgets and things like that. I had to deal with computers and unions. It just occurred to me this isn't why I got into this business to start with. I decided to see if I could write."

Grizzard, who also speaks on the banquet circuit, was also asked about the difference between southern humor and that in other parts of the country.

"Humor is universal. People laugh at the same things. I think southerners have more of a penchant for telling a story. The south was sort of a front porch society for so long that people entertained themselves telling stories. Jerry Clower once told me I don't tell funny stories, I tell stories funny."

"If I speak out of the south, I change it a little bit. There's a line I always use: 'When my last wife left she took my dog.' And I say, 'A woman who would take your dog would cut you.' We in the South have always said people got cut. They don't say that in the north. You got a shive in the back or something. I've used it in the South they roll. In the north they just look at me."

Is there going to be a Lewis Grizzard bourbon or videos?

"I think the first thing I am is a newspaper columnist. I've had numerous offers to do commercials, endorse products. The paper I'm sure has a policy against it but if they didn't I wouldn't do it. You can do a Lite Beer commercial, that's just an example, you do one, you write a

Three Comedies For Opera

By TONY RUMPLE

Three one-act comedies will be presented by the ECU Opera Theatre Feb. 20-22, in three nightly performances scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

Each evening's program will include Trial by Jury by the famed British operetta team of Gilbert and Sullivan, The Music Cure by Philip Hagemann (a southeastern premiere) and Gallantry by Douglas Moore.

The three operas represent "stepping stones, even if uneven ones, into the latter half of the 20th century," said Dr. Clyde Hiss, Opera Theatre director.

Trial by Jury, an early result of Gilbert and Sullivan's collaboration and their first success, was first produced, as a "curtain raiser" for a D'Oyly Carte production of La Perichole.

The Music Cure is a setting of a George Bernard Shaw play, satirizing several elements of modern society, as Gilbert and Sullivan satirizing social and political trends of their day. Direct quotes from classic composers highlight the work.

Gallantry, subtitled by its composer "A Soap Opera in One Act," presents a series of "daytime serial" hospital scenes interwoven with the obligatory "commercials" in a parody of modern daytime television. Composer Moore, best known for his The Ballad of Baby Doe, has written several other operatic works.

The ECU Opera Theatre, a company sponsored by the ECU School of Music, includes advanced voice students, faculty members and singers from the local community in its regular productions. All works presented by the Opera Theatre are sung in English.

Tickets for the February comedies production are available at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center, at $4 for adults and $2.50 for ECU students. Reduced rates on adult tickets are available for persons in groups of ten or more.

Battle Of The Bands

WZMB's Anniversary

By JOHN SHANNON
Staff Writer

WZMB will be celebrating its four year anniversary tomorrow night at the Attic. The event is the Battle of the Bands, and it's going to set an eclectic and electric tone for the ECU alternative radio station's fifth year on the air.

Every year WZMB holds a benefit. The purpose is twofold — to promote the station and its operating philosophy to potential listeners, and to raise money (WZMB is non-profit.) Part of WZMB's philosophy is to get music that's not well-known out to students, so this year's benefit is particularly appropriate — the bands performing are all local, and have not received major exposure before. And since WZMB is student-oriented, it makes sense that the judges for the event will include students from the School of Music as well as local musicians.

Five area bands will perform:

PBS — Jazz, R and B

CENTAUR — Heavy Metal

OFF CENTER — Original, Progressive Rock

PHANTOMS — Rockabilly, R and B

GRAY WING — Rock and Roll

The doors will open at 8 p.m. Wednesday night at the Attic, but the bands will start at 7:30. Admission will be $2.91, including free beer while it lasts. This is a one-of-a-kind opportunity to participate in your own local music-scene, so support WZMB and come out for the Battle of the Bands.

It's dinner time and you've just returned from your local fitness club. You're starving but don't want to put back on what you've just burned off. Jack Spratt's could be your answer.

Jack Spratt's is the newest edition to the fast food restaurant chains in Greenville. What separates Jack Spratt's from Wendy's, Burger King, and McDonald's is the amount of calories in their food.

At the bottom of Jack Spratt's menu you'll find the Jack Spratt Calorie Counter. This is a three column list of calories for all of Jack Spratt's "slimwiches," soups, salads, spuds, beverages, "splurges," spirits, and even condiments.

Spratt's "slimwiches," such as chick filet, fish filet and leanburgers, are served with a low calorie, high fiber bun of either sesame-seed or multi-grain bread.

Comparison of a Wendy's burger and a Jack Spratt's leanburger reveals the calorie difference. Wendy's — 472 calories, Spratt's — 224 calories. Of course Spratt's leanburger doesn't include the amount of condiments usually added to a fast food burger.

Spratt's "salad patch" is a complete salad bar featuring over 20 fruits and vegetables to choose from, with low-cal and regular dressings.

Spratt's spuds are baked potatoes with a wide choice of toppings, such as bacon bits, cheddar cheese, broccoli and beef. Spratt's thin shoestring fries are made from Idaho potatoes and cooked in pure vegetable oil to reduce calories.

And for dessert, Spratt's "splurges" include frozen yogurts in a cup with less calories and cholesterol than ice cream. This comes with a choice of toppings too, such as sliced almonds, flaked coconuts and granola. There's also a fruit cup with no added sugar.

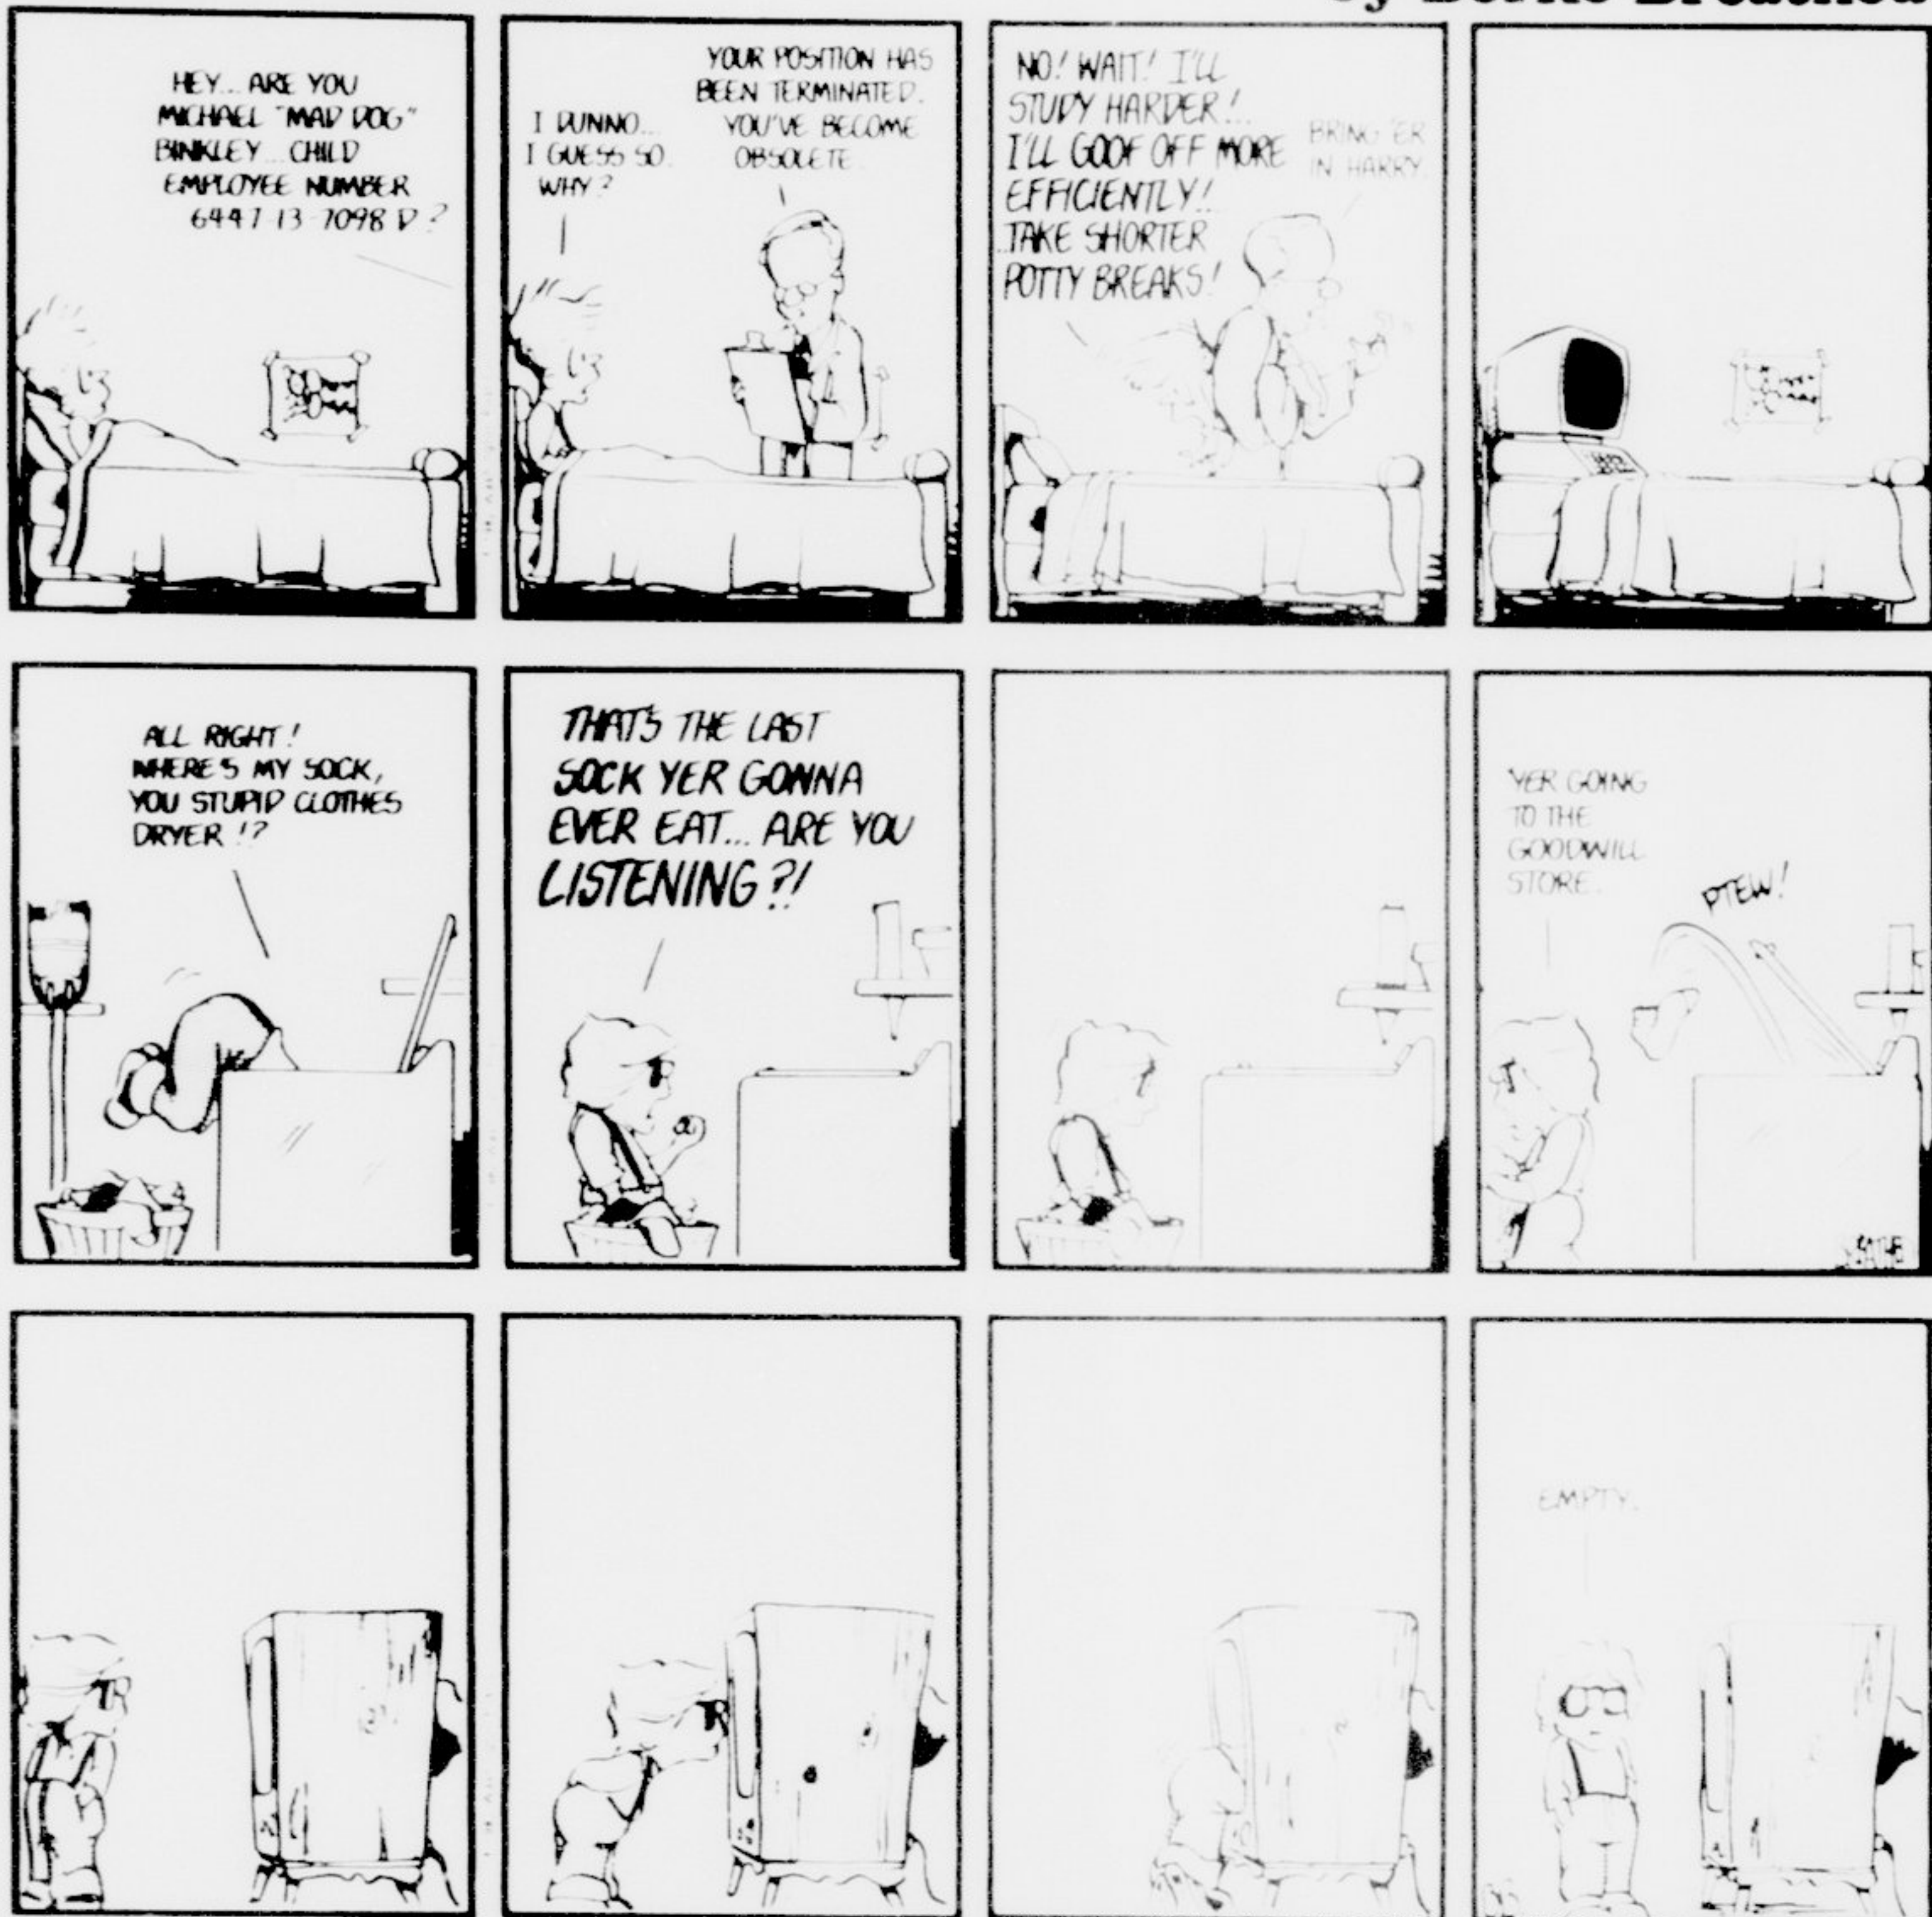

For the spirited Spratt's dieters, Miller Lite, lite rose, and lite chablis are offered. The only catch is that Spratt's Spirits are served with food orders only.

The atmosphere in Jack Spratt's is fresh and airy. The interior is decorated with green furniture, ceiling fans, and lots of plants, producing the illusion of eating in a greenhouse.

Jack Spratt's caters to people ready for a fresh idea in fast food.

ward, who also speaks on the banquet circuit, was also asked about the difference between southern humor and that in other parts of the country.

"Humor is universal. People laugh at the same things. I think southerners have more of a penchant for telling a story. The usual was out of a front porch society but so long that people embarrassed themselves telling stories. Jerry Clower once told me I don't tell funny stories, I tell stories funny."

"If I speak out of the south, I change it a little bit. There's a line I always use. 'When my last wife left she took my dog.' And I say, 'A woman who would take your dog would cut you.' We in the South have always said people get cut. They don't say that in the north. You get a shove in the back or something. I've used it in the South they roll. In the north they just look at me."

Is there going to be a Lewis Grizzard hour on video?

Coffee Hounds Face Crisis

(UPD) — Oil prices are coming down while the cost of coffee is on the upswing.

Each drop in the price of oil presumably means lower gasoline prices. Although some analysts doubt motorists will realize full benefits at the pump, certain questions do arise.

Are we nearing the point where a gallon of gas and a cup of coffee will cost approximately the same? I sincerely hope not. It could lead to drastic changes at nearby coffeehouses and other places where we go for a quick fix.

For one thing, coffeehouses will likely install self-service counters. You fill up your mug and then pay a cashier in a bullet proof cage.

If you plan on using a Folger's or a Maxwell house credit card, you occupy a different stool, of course.

The thing I fear most is what will happen to those of us who put cream and sugar in our coffee. Extras are hard to come by in self-service lanes, you know, and the same may be true at self-service counters.

I'm afraid the waiters and waitresses who now bring us cream and sugar will vanish like the gas station attendants who used to check under the hood.

Will coffee condiments become as difficult to obtain as a clean windshield and air in the tires?

For the answer to that question, wait until coffee houses start posting four prices — one for regular, one for drip grind, one for instant and one for decaffeinated.

The next step will be for grower nations to get together and form an international cartel to bolster the world coffee market. OCEC, it will be called — The Organization of Countries Exporting Coffee.

Congress, naturally, will create a new federal agency to deal with the matter — the Department of Blahs, or DOB, as it is known, for short.

Thanks to DOB's conservation campaigns, Americans stop drinking so much mountain-grown coffee, switching to less expensive brands, and the United States is flooded with coffee making machines that use more water.

As a result, average consumption per person falls from almost three cups a day to below two cups. There also is an attempt to develop alternate beverages, such as tea, for that doesn't amount to much save for federal subsidies to tea raisers.

For a period, OCEC members move in lock-step and prices soar. But one country breaks ranks on production quotas and begins dumping coffee on the open market.

Soon there is worldwide disaster and coffee prices start falling again.

The big danger is what the decline will do to the domestic economies of OCEC members, some of whom have borrowed heavily, using future crops for security.

Default on the loans could cause panic in banking circles, and we certainly don't want that.

One sure way to deepen the latter part of this scenario from coming true is to drink more coffee. I don't care if it does make you irritable, keeps you awake all night and gives you the jitters. You owe it to your friendly, neighborhood international banker.

Lewis

Continued from page 8 column about Lite Beer and they say he's on the payroll. You lose your credibility."

Asked about whether his three ex-wives thought he was funny, Grizzard quipped they did not think it was when he didn't come home at night.

Grizzard's third wife, he said, is writing a book about her life with the writer. "I don't think she's going to chop me up too bad. I think it will be funny."

He said writing a column is rewarding but demanding.

"You can write the best column in the world on Monday and it does you absolutely no good on Tuesday. There is no way to win. You just write until you are tired, then fire you or you die."

By DAVID MCGINNIS

The Pirate swimmers came off their best dual meet win over ECU history with a double win over conference rival Richmond University last Saturday.

The Pirates went into the meet knowing that their men were fully capable of winning. In order to make the competition close, Kube had his men swim in events that were not their specialty. Even so, the men captured a first-place finishes and had to meet with three events left to swim.

"We got in and wanted to win (the meet)," Kube said. "We weren't concerned at all with our times."

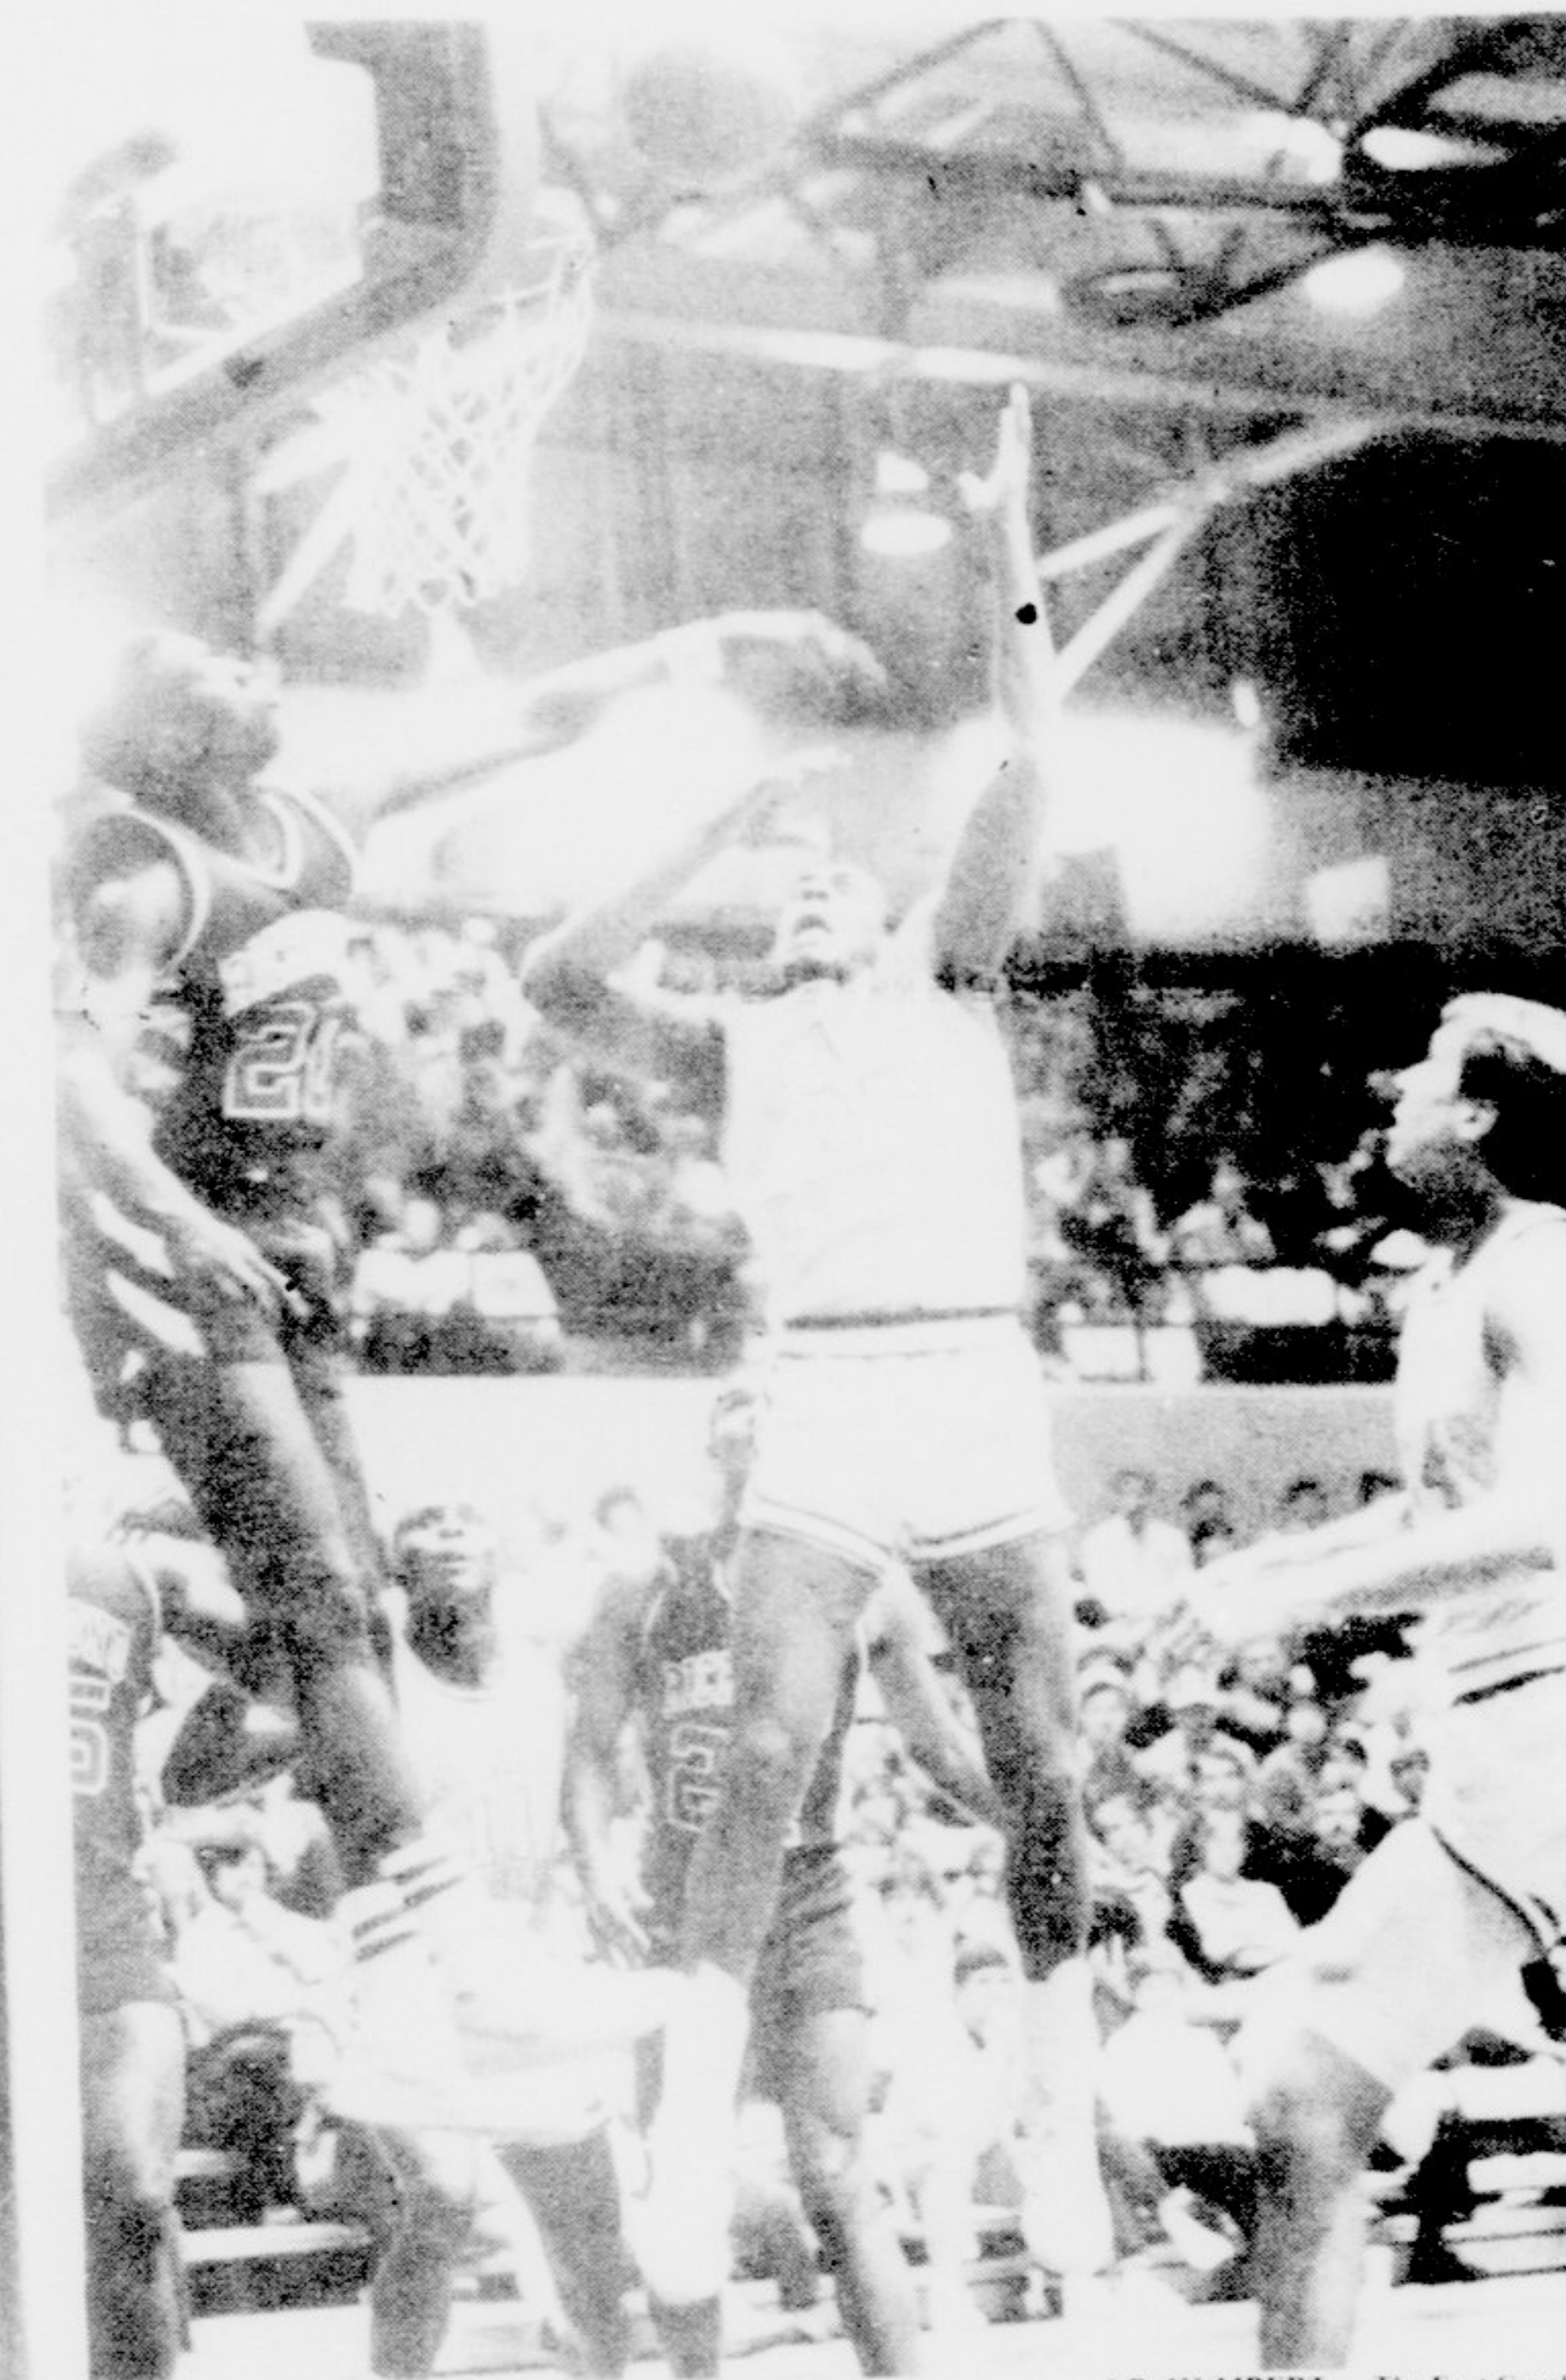

Senior ECU swimmer Ken Spaut expressed his opinion of the Spider swim team. "They're really in our league in terms of talent," Kaut said.

The Richmond women provided a good deal more competition for ECU, and the lady Bucs did not have the meet clinched yet.

Pirates Split CAA Pair

By SCOTT COOPER
Sports Editor

Curt Vanderhorst's 16 points, including a clutch jumpshot late in the game, was enough to give the ECU Pirates a 52-47 Colonial Athletic Association victory over William & Mary last night.

The win marks the first time that ECU has beaten the Indians twice in one season: the Pirates defeated the Tribe 54-52 on Jan. 13 since 1975.

With his game-high 16 points, Vanderhorst moved past Herb Krusen into eighth place on ECU's all-time scoring list with 1,126 career points. Marchell Henry was the only other Buc player in double digits with 14. Keith Sledge and Scott Hardy each had six points and five assists.

The win gives ECU an 11-12 record with a 5-5 mark in the CAA. The 11 Pirate victories matches the total number of wins for ECU during the past two seasons (ECU was 11-48 from 1983-85).

William & Mary was coming off a big win over UNC-Wilmington (Feb. 8), which saw the Tribe connect on 63.2 percent of their field goals against the Seahawks.

The Indians were ready for the Pirates, forcing ECU to retain its composure to pull off the victory. ECU coach Charlie Harrison was pleased to get the win, and praised a tough W & M squad.

"It's a nice win. Any win is a good win," Harrison said. "They (W & M) never ever get impatient. This team's a helluva lot better than the team we played in Williamsburg."

"If they ever get you playing, they can put you to sleep," Harrison added. "They want to keep you on defense. They try to get you to shoot outside."

Defense seemed to dictate the first half as both teams shot particularly cold from the floor. ECU connected on 40 percent of their first-half attempts while the Indians hit 37 percent.

After trading baskets in the early going, a Vanderhorst 16-foot jumper knotted the game at 10-10 midway through the first period. However, over the next four minutes, the Pirates outscored the Tribe 10-2. A Manuel Jones layup with 7:36 left in the half gave the Bucs a 20-12 advantage.

Senior guard Scott Coval brought William & Mary back by connecting on some long-range jumpshots. A Mark Batzel shot in the lane cut the Pirate lead to two (24-22) at the half.

The Indians remained close throughout the contest and even tied the game twice in the second half. However, the Pirates managed to maintain their lead.

ECU forward Keith Sledge felt that the Pirates' lost a bit of their aggressiveness in the second half. "In the first half, we did what we had to," Sledge explained. "In the second half, we were a little tentative — we weren't pressing the issue."

"We're used to an up-tempo game," Sledge added. "They like to slow things up, so they can get the easy basket at times."

William & Mary's Ken Lambiotte had a chance at a three-point play as he tied the game at 26-26. Lambiotte's foul shot missed and the Tribe lost their opportunity to take the lead with 16:29 remaining to play.

The Pirates quickly opened a 34-26 lead with 12:54 left to play on baskets by Hardy, Sledge, Vanderhorst and Henry.

The Indians showed their poise as they outscored ECU 11-4 over the next five minutes of action. Lambiotte did most of the damage, scoring five of those points during the run.

The Pirates were once again able to turn the momentum as a Hardy steal and layup opened a 46-39 Buc advantage with 3:53 left to play. This lead diminished thanks to a Coval 'garbage basket' and jumpers by Batzel and Lambiotte. The Pirate lead was just one (46-45) with 1:32 left.

The Indians had four fouls to commit before putting ECU in the bonus situation. Vanderhorst connected on a clutch 17-foot baseline jumper with :24 seconds remaining, giving ECU a 48-45 lead.

The Indians quickly answered and then sent Henry to the line. His free throws hit nothing but net as the Pirates went on to win 52-47.

Although the Pirates were victorious, ECU coach Harrison noted the demanding routine that his players' experience.

"The kids have responsibilities. It's really tough on 'em sometimes," Harrison explained. "Basketball is the toughest — with all the traveling and the schedule...It's a helluva demanding thing."

Sat. Feb. 8, 1986

John Newman's 26-point performance was too much for ECU Saturday night as the CAA's league-leading Richmond Spiders dumped the Pirates 71-42.

Although the Spiders connected on 52.8 percent of their field goals, it was their dominance on the boards that gave Richmond their ninth conference win without a defeat. The Spiders grabbed 36 rebounds (22 of which came in the second half) compared to 22 for the Bucs.

"The story of the game really told on the backboards," ECU coach Charlie Harrison said. "Richmond is an awfully tough basketball team. They execute well (on offense), and their defense can cause you a lot of problems."

Richmond, who is fifth in the nation in scoring defense, came out hot as the 4,000 Minges Coliseum fans did not have much to cheer about early.

The Spiders ran off the first six points before a pair of Leon Bass free throws made it 6-2 with 17:48 remaining in the opening period. Richmond quickly opened a 14-point advantage (18-4) on John Davis' free throws eight minutes into the game.

ECU battled Richmond over the next six minutes of play as they outscored the Spiders 14-8 during that span. A Curt Vanderhorst 15 footer cut the Richmond lead to 26-18 with 6:45 left in the half.

The Pirate fans then had a moment to cheer about. With ECU making a run, Scott Hardy got a steal and hit Vanderhorst on the break. Vanderhorst's layup was too strong and the trailing Marchell Henry slammed the rebound home, cutting the Spider lead to 26-20 with 6:32 until the intermission.

ECU was able to cut the Richmond lead to four (26-22) when Scott Hardy nailed a 16 footer with just seconds left on the :45 second shot-clock. After a pair of Jack Turnbull layups, the Pirates

Lady Pirates Edge Richmond

By TIM CHANDLER
Sports Writer

The Lady Pirates continued to stay hot on the heels of CAA leader James Madison, posting a 67-59 win over Richmond on the road Saturday night.

The win gave the Lady Bucs a 17-6 overall and 7-1 conference record. JMU has a perfect 8-0 mark in CAA play.

The Lady Spiders outshot ECU from the floor, shooting 51.1 percent. The Lady Bucs only managed a 45.6 shooting percentage.

Turnovers proved to be a big factor in the game. Richmond turned the ball over 26 times, while ECU lost control on 13 occasions.

The Pirates only connected on 15 of 30 attempts at the free-throw line. The Lady Spiders, who went to the line 17 times, managed to chip in 13 of those.

The Pirates had a very balanced scoring attack, as they placed four players in double figures.

Leading the way was sophomore center Alma Bethea with 15 points, and a team-high eight rebounds. Sylvia Bragg was close behind Bethea with 14 points. Also in double figures were Lisa Squirewell with 13 and Delphine Mabry with 11. Mabry also managed to come away with four steals.

Rounding out the scoring for ECU were Loraine Foster with six points and a team-high four assists. Monique Pompili and Rose Miller netted three points each, while Pam Williams and Jody Rodriguez had one point apiece.

Look in the Thursday edition of The East Carolinian for results of last night's game against William & Mary.

Bucs Cap Record Season; Crunch Spiders

The second to last event. They were all swimming within their respective specialties, since the level of competition was close.

Among the standouts for the women were Scotia Miller, with wins in the 200- and 1000-yard freestyle. Caycee Poust had a first in the 200-yard backstroke. Susie Wentink took first in the 200-yard breaststroke as Angela Winstead nabbed a win in the 50-yard freestyle. Susan Augustus won the 200-yard butterfly event.

Sherry Campbell contributed a win in the three-meter diving and a second place in the one meter.

With the win, the Buc men move to 9-3, while the women are 12-2, for an overall team record of 21-5. The previous win total has never exceeded 17 for any ECU swim team. Although the number of wins is not the only indicator of a good season, coach Rick Kobe feels that 1985-86 is the Pirates' best year ever.

"A lot of things go into making a 'best season,'" said Kobe, "winning a lot of meets is only part of it. It's also important to swim fast whether you win or lose, and just about the most important thing is for the kids to have fun."

"The last couple of years have been great," Kobe continued, "but this season was just awesome."

Indeed, not only have the Pirates netted a record number of wins, they have broken ECU record times all through the conference tournament, which begins this Thursday. The ECU men are ranked No. 1 along with James Madison University. These two schools are pretty much the only ones in the running for first place, so the remainder of the CAA schools will be battling for third.

"I don't think JMU is as good as we are," said Kaut. "I think

"A lot of things go into making a 'best season', winning a lot of meets is only part of it."

—Rick Kobe

"If we win this, and win big, then it will set a good precedent for future ECU swimmers."

—Keith Kaut

season, which is something of a surprise to their coach.

"It's not usual to break records during the season," Kobe said, "and since the kids have been breaking them all during the year, we know they'll just get faster."

Now the dual-meet season is behind them, and the Bucs can concentrate completely on their

we have the best talent in the conference."

In the women's division, JMU is the heavy favorite. ECU, Richmond and William & Mary will probably fight it out for second place. However, each of those three teams has what Kobe calls, "an outside shot at winning the conference." But according to Kobe, "It will take a great meet," for any of those three to win it.

The Pirates have some definite team goals for both their men and women.

The men want to: 1. win the conference championship; 2. have eight individual first-place finishes; 3. win all three relay events; 4. qualify a swimmer for the NCAA championships; 5. swim four ECU varsity records.

The women's goals are to: 1. finish in the top two teams; 2. have four individual first-place finishes; 3. finish all five relay events in the top three, winning at least two; 4. set eight ECU varsity records.

The entire team is really getting psyched up, according to Kobe. Since this is the first CAA conference tournament, winning it means all that much more.

"They're really pumped up," Kobe declared. "To have a chance to win the first conference championship is always special."

Kaut feels that the CAA tournament will mean a lot as well. "If we win this, and win big, then it will set a good precedent for future ECU swimmers," Kaut said. "Also, it's neat to know that the winning times will become the conference tournament records."

As far as scoring is concerned, the guys will probably win more events, according to Kobe. They have more outstanding front-line swimmers. The women, on the other hand, have the advantage of a team with excellent depth, so they can be expected to score solidly throughout the tournament.

For the women, this tournament will be their last chance to compete this season. But the ECU men who make the qualification times will go the Independent Nationals, held Feb. 27 through Mar. 1 in Columbia, SC. Also, if one of the swimmers should perform well enough, he/she might qualify for the NCAA championships, the meet with the fastest times in the world.

The following are the men's and women's times from the ECU/Richmond meet which was held last Saturday.

Hardy Leader For Bucs

By JANE SIMPSON
Sports Writer

"Scott does a great job running our team. He pushes the ball when he can and he knows when to slow it down. He comes to play every day and I think that makes the rest of us play harder. He's a very vital part of our team. He's our leader," stated teammate Jack Turnbill of his senior guard Scott Hardy.

A leader, but not just any leader, a very special one. The position of point guard on a basketball team is vitally important, and ECU's is in very capable hands. These capable hands belong to none other than senior co-captain Scott Hardy.

Hardy's basketball playing days began in Northwestern High School in Hyattsville, MD. He then attended Hagerstown Community College.

The two year's Hardy spent at Hagerstown laid the foundation for his current two years at ECU. It was quite a firm foundation too. While at Hagerstown, he averaged 11.8 points, 5.8 assists, and 1.9 steals a game while leading the team to an overall record of 52 wins and only 13 losses.

Second-team All-Maryland Junior college honors were won his freshman year, but a first-team selection came during his second.

Hardy's high school career was star-studded as well. He was voted first-team all-county twice, along with all-area, and honorable mention all-Metro honors. His averages were 16.0 points, 6.0 assists, and 2.0 steals a game.

Hardy felt attending a junior college first helped him adjust to school and basketball on the Division-I level.

"Hagerstown was like a trial basis for me," he said. "Going to school there helped my game become better and it also helped me academically."

A couple of things helped to bring Hardy to ECU. Included in these were the coaches and the opportunity to get to play. "ECU had a young coaching staff, which really appealed to me as well as an opportunity to start right away," stated Hardy. "I'm also a physical education major and I liked the P.E. program here."

Hardy always dreamed about playing basketball at the Division-I level. "I've always dreamed about playing basketball at the Division-I level. ECU gave me that chance," stated Hardy.

Hardy feels that this year's team is better than that of a year ago. "This year's team is really improved over last year's. We're alot more mature and really more aggressive," said Hardy. "Now we're making things happen instead of wishing they were happening."

Hardy is praised as a great defensive player, but he gives almost all of the credit to his teammates.

"I'm a better team defensive player than single stopper. I get a tremendous amount of help from my teammates because it's them who allow me to take the gambles. I can take a chance and maybe get beat, and I know there will be someone to back me up," Hardy stated. "Defense is something that has always been successful for me."

ECU coach Charlie Harrison believes Hardy is an important part of the team. "People don't realize what Scott means to the team," Harrison said. "He always comes up with the big steal."

Being a co-captain is something Hardy takes a great deal of pride in. "Senior leadership is very important to a team. Your leadership doesn't stop when you step off the basketball court either, it continues off the court as well. You have to provide a positive example," expressed Hardy. "Sure everyone is going to have a bad day once in a while, but just knowing that you helped the younger guys to grow up and mature makes all the lack you catch from the coaches worthwhile."

"Leadership and the position of point guard go hand-in-hand because it's the point guard who runs the team on the court," Hardy continued. "It just makes you feel really good to know that the coaches had the confidence in Marchell and I to appoint us as team captains."

The whole team had one major adjustment to make before the season started this year. New assistant coaches could only help a team if the transition goes smoothly. "We had to adjust to the new assistant coaches coming in," stated Hardy. "You have to adjust to a whole new way of doing things and all. Considering how the season has gone so far though, you can say our adjustment went pretty well."

ECU's home game against James Madison was really special for Hardy. It gave him the chance to be the hero.

"The James Madison game was my highest point production (15) as well as a great defensive effort. I finally got the opportunity to be the hero," stated Hardy with a smile.

Hardy has two other special events that stand out in his mind. One took place while he was at Hagerstown and the other is currently happening in this year's campaign. "We were ranked No. 2 in the country and we're playing Allegheny Community College — our worst rival," Hardy explained. "We beat them and went 16-0. The win was the first one over them in eight years!"

Hardy is pleased with the Pirates success of late. "I'm glad to see us doing so well in the conference," Hardy said. "I want to go out a winner. I believe that this team may be a building block for bigger things to come for East Carolina basketball. I want people to be able to say 'Scott Hardy was there when it all started.'"

Hardy attributes much of his inspiration as well as his success to his parents John and Diane. "My parents are my biggest inspiration," Hardy stated. "It is so important that your parents believe in you and what you're doing."

Hardy has future plans of a possible coaching career. "When my playing days are over, I'm going to miss it," he said, "then I'm going to go into coaching at the college level. I want to be able to give back what all my coaches gave to me."

With all the recognition that Hardy may receive, he "wants to be remembered as a person with a pleasant personality that gives off a friendly warmth."

Scott Hardy bombs away in early-season action.

Thomas Car

Past W

DALLAS (UPI) — In a game of All-Star game dominance, the ages of spectacular dunks, passes and layups, the only player to score 6-1 Isiah Thomas prevailed.

"This was a high level game," said West coach Tom Riley after Thomas led the Pistons to a 139-132 victory Sunday.

"His nature is to attack and he creates so many opportunities when he penetrates."

The Detroit Pistons outplayed the Pistons in the fourth quarter, scoring 12 of 15 points in the fourth quarter. One of them during a spate of 10-point late in the game. He was named unanimously as the game's Most Valuable Player award he also won in 1984.

The victory gave the Pistons a 24-12 edge in the all-time All-Star series. The West has won 11 of the last seven contests.

Down the stretch, Thomas played with four teammates 6-9 or above, negating the West advantage of Thomas having to guard his close friend, 6-9 L.A. Laker sensation Earvin "Magic" Johnson.

Johnson had 15 assists, 10 of them in the first half as he and went into the locker room trailing 32-28.

In the second half, both teams traded baskets early as Bawkey's side jumper with 17:18 made it 36-32. From this point forward, Richmond showed their strength as they outscored the Pirates 18-6 over the next seven minutes. A Newman layup with 10:39 remaining gave the Spiders a commanding 51-32 lead.

Richmond remained in control throughout as ECU could only come within 15 points (57-42) at the 6:21 mark. The Spiders built as much as a 23-point lead as they went on to win 71-52.

Marchell Henry led the Buccaneers attack with 12 as Vanderhorst added 10. Turnbill, who has only seen action in nine games this year, was four of five from the field for eight points.

The loss for the Pirates is only their second defeat in Minges. The first was a 67-62 loss to Navy on Jan. 6.

Thomas Carries East Past West All Stars

DALLAS (UPI) — In an NBA All-Star game dominated by images of spectacular dunks, passes and layups, the cool efficiency of 6-1 Isiah Thomas prevailed.

"This was Isiah's type of game," said West coach Pat Riley after Thomas led the East to a 139-132 victory Sunday. "His nature is to attack and he creates so many opportunities when he penetrates."

The Detroit Pistons' star guard scored 12 of his game-high 30 points in the fourth quarter, four of them during a decisive 8-0 spurt late in the game. He was named unanimously as the game's Most Valuable Player, an award he also won in 1984.

The victory gave the East a 24-12 bulge in the all-time All-Star series. The West has lost six of the last seven contests.

Down the stretch, Thomas played with four teammates 6-9 or above, negating the West advantage of Thomas having to guard his close friend, 6-9 L.A. Laker sensation Earvin "Magic" Johnson.

Johnson had 15 assists, 10 of them in the first half as he and Laker teammate James Worthy wowed a sellout crowd of 16,573 at Reunion Arena. But Johnson was hampered by foul trouble in the second half.

"This kind of game is tailor-made for Isiah," Johnson said. "When he's in the open court, nobody can contain him or stop him."

"Playing against Magic is hard and it's fun," Thomas said. "He's so good, it's extremely difficult, but it makes the game so exciting."

Larry Bird added 23 points and seven steals for the East. Moses Malone had 13 rebounds and 16 points, seven of them in the fourth quarter as the stronger East continually pushed the ball inside. Sidney Moncrief also had 16 points for the East.

SEMESTER IN SPAIN

Not just for Spanish majors only, but for everyone: beginners, "in between" students, and advanced. Put some excitement into your college career!

BEGINNER OR ADVANCED: Cost is about the same as a semester in a U.S. college $3,670. Price includes jet round trip to Seville from New York, room, board, and tuition complete. Government grants and loans may be applied towards our programs.

Live with a Spanish family, attend classes four hours a day, four days a week, four months. Earn 16 hrs of credit (equivalent to 4 semesters taught in U.S. colleges over a two year time span). Your Spanish studies will be enhanced by opportunities not available in a U.S. classroom. Standardized tests show our students' language skills superior to students completing two year programs in U.S. Advanced courses also.

Hurry, it takes a lot of time to make all arrangements.
