Do you think the U.S. military should be involved in policing the international drug trade?

Helen Colevins
Graduate, Art

"No, even if it were a military action we shouldn't get involved in another country's affairs."

Christine Norfleet
Senior, Marketing

"I don't see anything wrong with it because the cocaine situation has gotten out of control; so drastic measures are called for."

Melannie Wilson
Senior, Communications

"I think they should because drugs are coming in easily and if the military is used it might help."

Jackie Armstrong
Junior, Psychology

"I don't think so because if they send all the world's troops over there, drugs will still get through."

Brooke Stonesifer
Junior, Industrial Technology

"I think the U.S. should be there to help cut back the drugs in the U.S."

Bryan Gaiser
Junior, Industrial Technology

"Yes, as long as Bolivia agrees I think we should be there."
