TROY W. PATE, chairperson of the ECU Chancellor Search Committee

Chancellor search still on

By BILL HARRINGTON
Assistant News Editor

Over 200 applications for the Chancellorship at ECU were received by the November 30 deadline, according to Troy W. Pate, Chairperson of both the ECU Board of Trustees and the Chancellor Selection Committee.

Pate would not release any of the candidates' names saying that the committee is forced "to operate under very strict confidentiality."

According to Pate, if the names of some of the candidates under consideration were made public, they would almost certainly ask to be withdrawn from consideration.

The search for a new Chancellor is definitely not limited to the state of North Carolina, according to Pate.

Pate said the Chancellor Selection Committee had advertised the availability of the position in newspapers and educational publications nationwide.

The committee has written letters "to presidents of colleges and universities across the nation," said Pate, "and some of them have made nominations."

According to Pate, in most cases the Chancellor Selection Committee is submitted a nomination and then the person nominated is contacted "to see if they would allow us to consider them as a candidate."

When asked what qualifications the committee is looking for in a new Chancellor, Pate said, "We're looking for the best qualified person we can find to fill the Chancellor's position at ECU."

Pate said that since "so many people with varied backgrounds and criteria," are being considered, "it's very ticklish" to attempt to narrow down the exact qualifications being looked for in a candidate.

The board of trustees Selection Committee is to submit two names from the 200 candidates to the President of the Consolidated UJC System, William Friday, according to Pate.

These two names will then be submitted to the UNC Board of Governors, who will give their final approval to one of the names sometime in March 1978, Pate said.

Pate said he is aware of the student body's concern about who will replace Dr. Lao Jenkins, and asked that they "have faith in the system."

Sessoms vetoes marching band bill

By CINDY BROOME
News Editor

SGA President Neil Sessoms vetoed the Marching Pirates bill Tuesday after the legislature passed it during the November 21 session. The bill was for $7,706.

The SGA usually appropriates the band approximately $8,000, and the athletic department usually gives $8,000 also, according to Sessoms, but this year, the athletic department gave the band approximately $15,000.

Sessoms said money is needed in order to improve band equipment.

"This is not a good year to ask the SGA for money for improvement," said Sessoms. "If the band is having financial difficulties, I will consider a much smaller bill."

"In order to appropriate that much money, we would have to use summer school fees. I'm trying to avoid that."

Sessoms said he wholeheartedly supports the band, but due to the financial situation of the

THE LATE DR. Wellington B. Gray

School of Art dean dies of heart attack

By SCOTT BARNES
Staff Writer

Dr. Wellington B. Gray, dean of ECU's School of Art, died of a heart attack at 2 p.m. Tuesday after being admitted to Pitt County Memorial Hospital Monday for chest pains.

Gray, 58, came to ECU in 1956 as chairman of the art department which consisted of approximately 50 students. At that time the art department was located in the old Austin building which stood where the new Jenkins Fine Arts Center is now.

With Gray's dedicated leadership, the three room art department, with sculpture and ceramics in the basement, grew into a school of art with nine departments.

A native of Albany, N.Y., Gray earned his B.S. degree from Kutztown State College in Pennsylvania, later receiving his M.S. and Ed.D. degrees from New York University.

He taught at New York University and at Edinboro and Alliance Colleges in Pennsylvania before coming to ECU.

Dr. Robert Gowen receives R.L. Jones Award

By MARENA WRIGHT
Staff Writer

"Hurry up, I can't hold this corny pose forever!" And indeed, the pose is corny.

The professor stands, pens protruding from his pockets, hands hovering and his face ponderous with the sincerity that proclaims his deep respect for the subject he is lecturing on.

The students help participate in the 'Shenanigans' by running to fill up the empty front seats. All quickly and quietly adopt serene, inspired faces, owed by the enlightenment of receiving the Sermon-on-the-Mount of class lectures.

The camera clicks. The whole reverent scene erupts into laughter and chaos.

It is becoming an unusual class period for Dr. Robert J.

Gowen of the History dept. It is not everyday that pictures are taken or your class observed for reference. Yet, this is happening because Dr. Gowen received the R.L. Jones Award - he is also an Outstanding Professor.

The students reluctantly return to their seats having thoroughly enjoyed the charade. Dr. Gowen, hands shoved in pockets, gazes absently.

"Ah...almost like Socrates and his disciples," he murmurs wistfully.

A couple of students snicker and Dr. Gowen searches half-heartedly for the guilty culprits.

"Alright gang, so what we have is theoretical equality versus elitism. What about it? Is it fact versus theory?"

The class is caught back up in the high-energy forcefield of knowledge. The students become students again, but they are unusually alert and prepared with a string of answers.

They have absorbed the knowledge that Dr. Gowen has the ability to transfer and it is to his credit that they prove themselves to be a bright class. It is this ability among others which the R.L. Jones Award recognizes.

The award honors him as being an Outstanding Professor with a high degree of teaching excellence. It is one of two annual awards given in this field by the ECU Alumni Association.

Dr. Gowen's teaching status is also supported by the fact he holds a B.A. in history from the University of Alberta, Canada and a Ph.D. in Asian History from the University of Chicago.

His publications include several articles and historical material on Asian International relations. He holds 10 years of teaching to his credit at ECU, three years of teaching at the University of Alberta, and three years at the University of Toledo.

Dr. Gowen seemed excited about the award but surprised as he laughed and gave his initial reaction upon learning that he was a recipient.

"Yeah...I was surprised!"

Nazi hunter Beate Klarsfeld speaks at MSC

By LORI MOORE
Staff Writer

Approximately 150 persons Tuesday heard Beate Klarsfeld claim that World War II Nazis in Germany should be brought to trial for war crimes.

Klarsfeld, 39, has spent about 10 years documenting World War II Nazi criminals, according to her own accounts.

She spoke in Mendenhall Student Center to both students and Greenville residents.

Klarsfeld said she lacks knowledge of the Nazi movement in the U.S., but claimed it is necessary to bring former Nazis to trial in Germany.

"By bringing these criminals to the public's attention, we are not merely fulfilling a moral imperative obliged by the murder of six million Jews," said Klarsfeld.

"More importantly, we are ensuring that the triple menace of Nazism, genocide, and anti-Semitism will never again threaten to destroy the Jewish people."

Klarsfeld's career began by publicly slapping the Chancellor of West Germany, Kurt Kiesing-er, in 1968. His Nazi background was then brought to the world's attention.

Klarsfeld's anti-Nazi campaign bore fruit as Kiesinger lost the election in 1969 to Willy Brandt.

She cited Kurt Lishka, head of the anti-Jewish service of the Gestapo in Berlin before the war, as a prominent living Nazi. Lishka was also head of the Gestapo in France and was responsible for the deportation of 80,000 Jews to death camps.

Herbert Hagen was the political head of the SS in France from 1937 until World War II and was a bureaucratic assassin, according to Klarsfeld.

A film crew working with Klarsfeld once confronted Hagen.

"You have no right to come to my street and film me," said Hagen, caught off guard by the Klarsfeld filming a few years ago.

"No one asked you to come to France and do more horrible things to Jews than film them," replied Klarsfeld's cameraman to Hagen.

Prominent judges, lawyers and a mayor have been unmasked by revealing Nazi records, according to Klarsfeld.

In 1975, the German Parliament ratified the Franco-German accord for the trial of Nazi war criminals in Germany.

This action was forced because of Klarsfeld's research, protests and demonstrations.

Although the accord makes such trials legal in Germany, it provides no stipulation that these trials will ever take place.

Klarsfeld and her husband, Serge, have given extensive files on 23 Nazis to French and German authorities in hopes of creating the right political climate for the German government to call for a trial.

"German society does not consider them criminals because they have been living quietly since 1945. The rehabilitation of these criminals can only disgrace Germany," said Klarsfeld.

"German society must be forced into self-examination, however painful that may be.

"These men stand for principles and actions that must be opposed at all costs while there is still time."

In 1977, in appreciation of her activities, Israel nominated Klarsfeld for the Nobel Peace Prize.

The Klarsfelds have written and published these books in order to increase the pressure on Germany.

Hard to believe

SGA Pres. Neil Sessoms Tuesday vetoed a bill passed by the Legislature which would appropriate an additional $7,706 to the ECU band, the Marching Pirates. But this veto should not have been necessary. The Legislature should never have passed the bill in the first place.

Several weeks ago, FOUNTAINHEAD advocated SGA funding for the Marching Pirates because, at that time, the Athletic Dept. said the band would receive no more funding from it than the usual $8,000. (In past years, the Athletic Dept. and SGA gave the band $8,000 each.)

But after Pres. Sessoms so strongly recommended the Legislature give no funds to the band considering the SGA financial situation, and because the band only serves athletics, the Athletic Dept. did appropriate $15,000 to the Marching Pirates. As a result, the SGA appropriated an additional $1,200 which was $200 more than necessary even then.

Now the band has returned and asked the SGA for $7,706 more. This money would be used for "improvements" and would come out of "anticipated summer school revenue," i.e., money the SGA does not have now and can only guess at for the future.

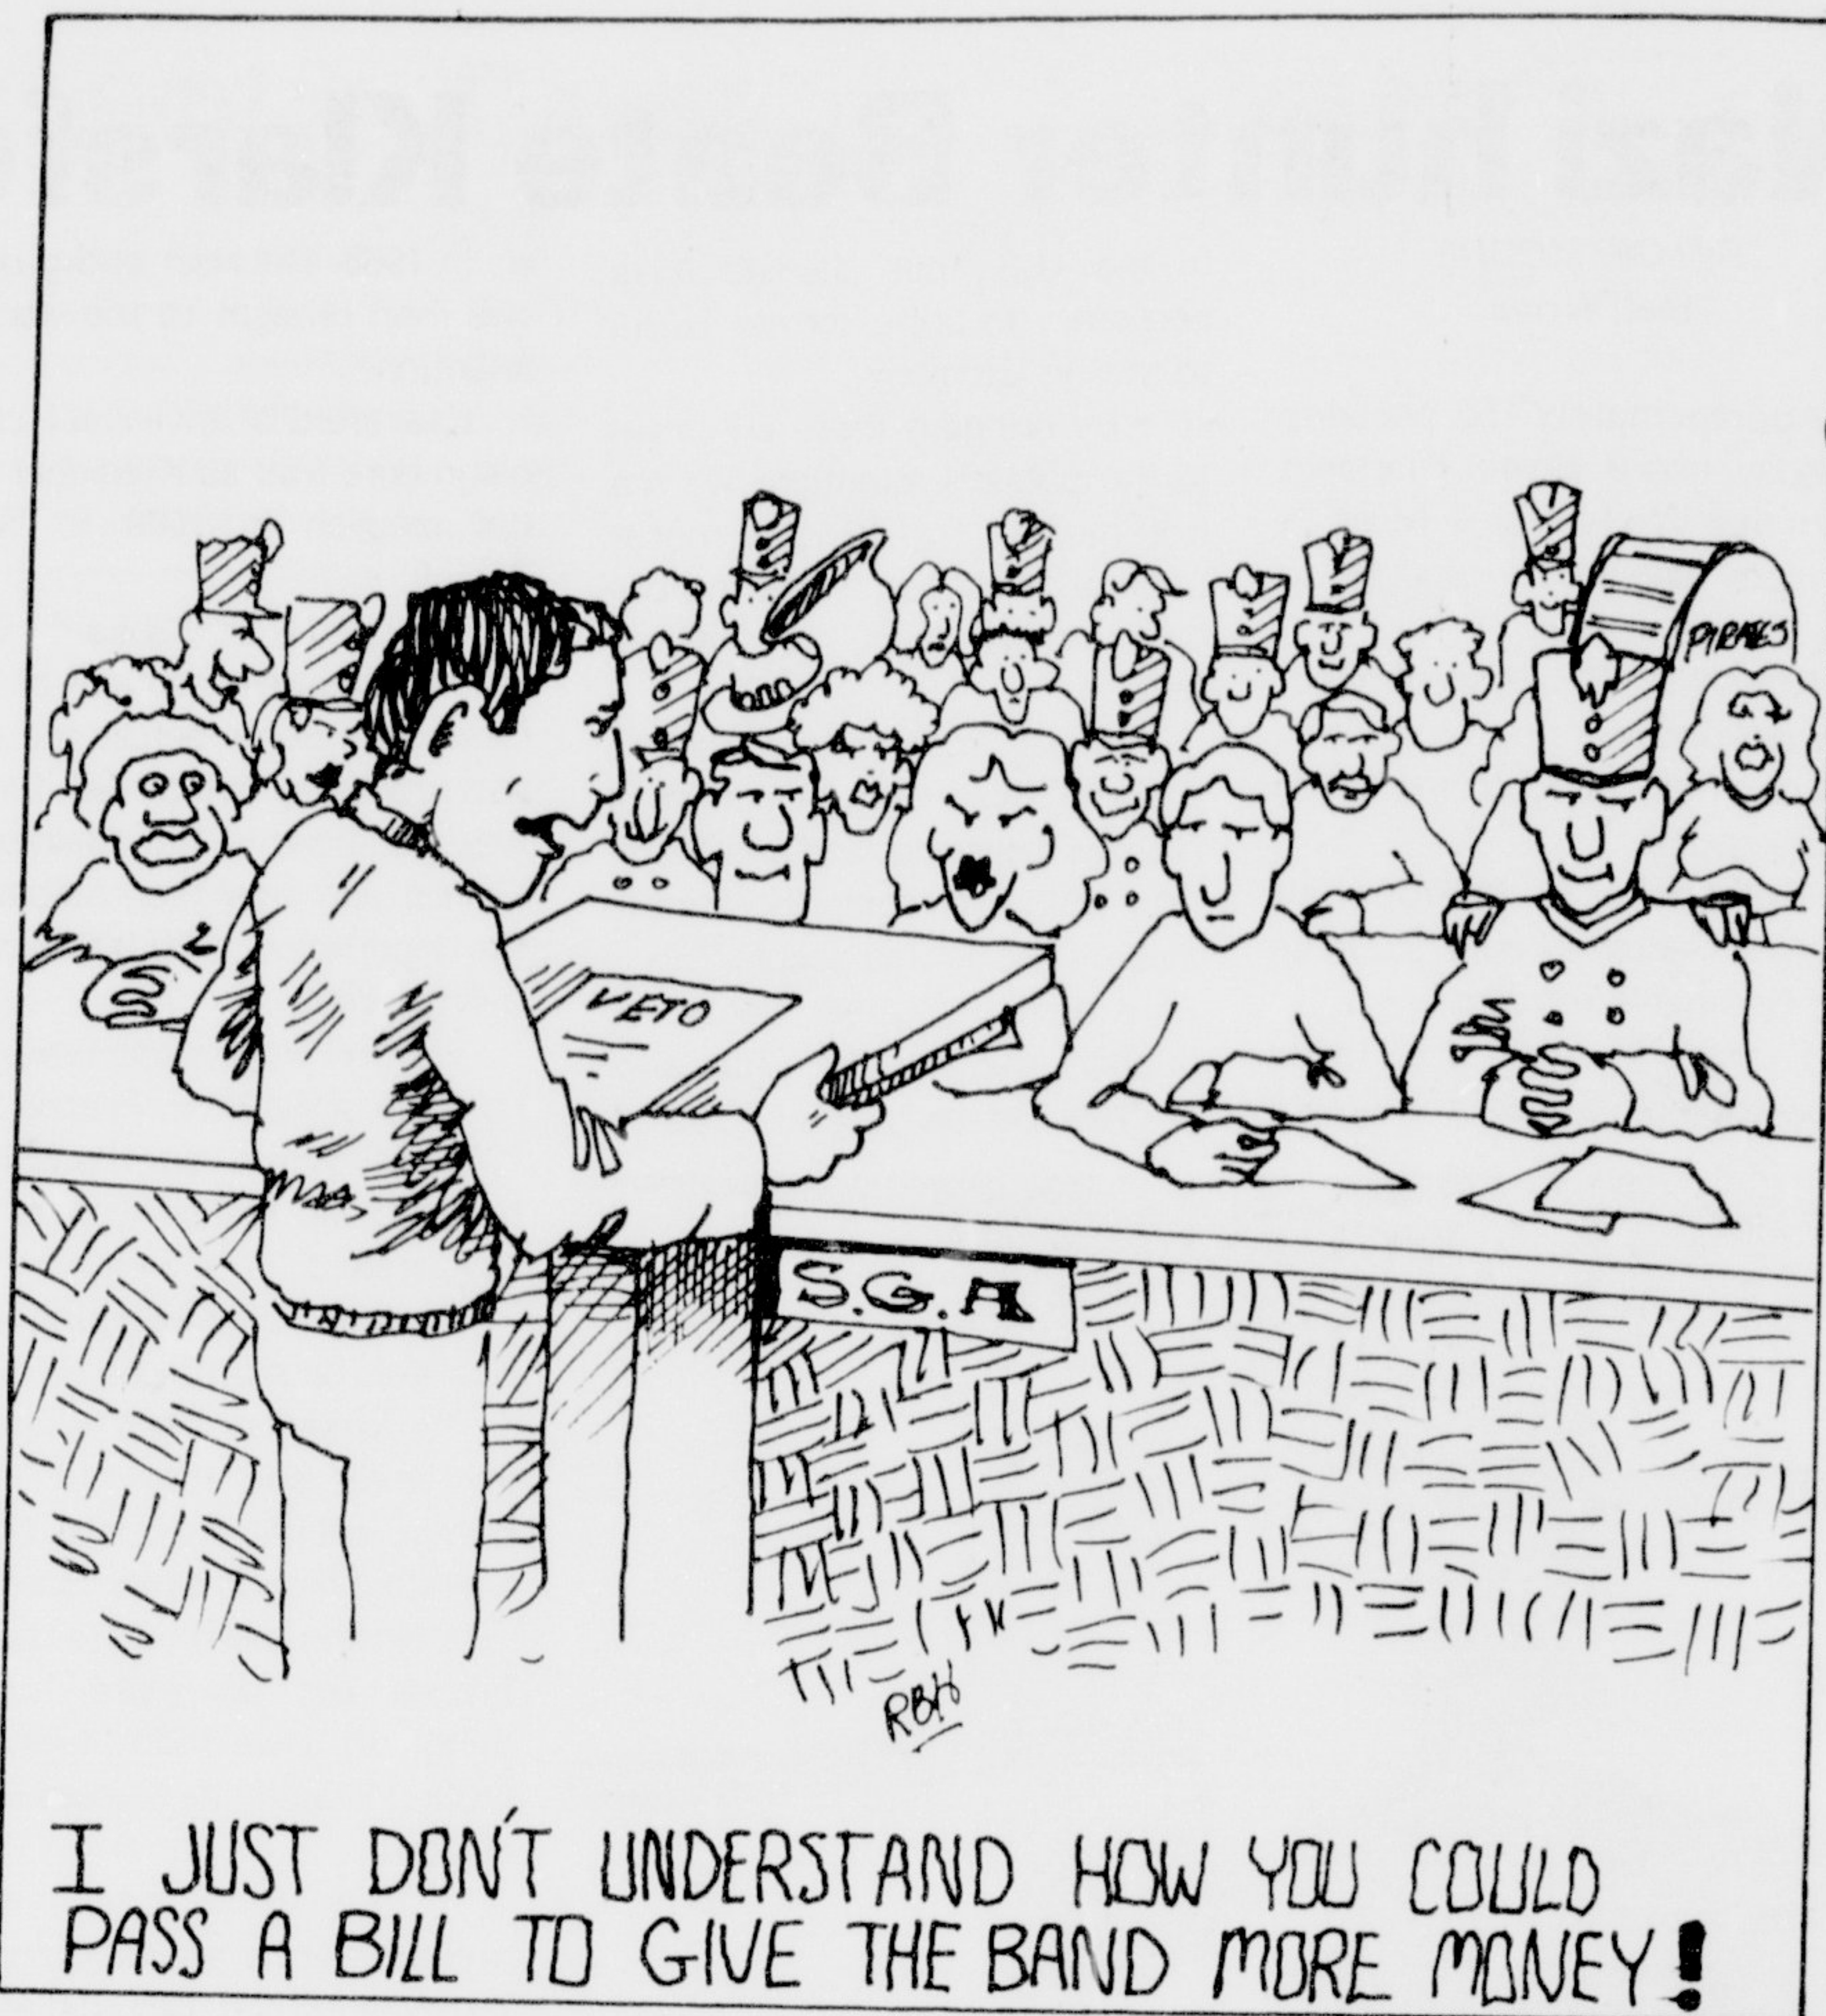

Perhaps the Marching Pirates should not be blamed for trying to squeeze every penny they can out of a legislature which has already been $200 more generous than it should have. But after SGA Treasurer Craig Hales has reported at every meeting of the Legislature on the critical state of SGA finances this year and has asked--no, begged the members to be rational and make cuts in spending wherever they possibly could, it is nothing short of astounding that the Legislature would even consider this bill, much less pass it.

Whenever other organizations have gone before the Legislature this year for funds, the Appropriations Committee has made it crystal clear that they could not have or ask for anything new which would require more money than usual. For example, Pete Podeszwa, head SGA photographer, was practically kicked out the door for wanting an additional photographer on his staff. And now the Legislature wants to give $7,706 more to an organization it shouldn't be funding at all?

During Spring Semester and summer school the SGA will know exactly how it stands financially for those terms and may be able to throw out more cash to whomever desires it. Perhaps the Marching Pirates can get new instruments or whatever "improvements" they need then. But now, since football season is over and the SGA still doesn't have any more money than it did four months ago--as a matter of fact, only less--this veto must stand.

The ECU Marching Pirates are certainly a vital asset to this university. They have been a fine reflection on ECU, throughout the football season and should instill nothing but pride in the students they represent, not to mention the football team they support so well. They deserve the best in everything, including instruments, so they can maintain the quality in their performances that they have demonstrated this year.

But Pres. Sessoms' veto on this particular bill is merely his way of doing his part to keep the SGA out of the red. Fortunately, the Athletic Dept. has helped by giving the band $1,500. The state of financial affairs in the SGA may be unfortunate but, nevertheless, it is fact. Now, hopefully, the Legislature will not repeat this incredible blunder and ECU's student government will, indeed, stay financially afloat.

Forum

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

Some things just boggle the mind. A case in point: Why would an FM station heralded by the entire campus community for its album format, its community service (Halloween riot discussions), and its believable (real human) sounding announcers, suddenly decide to switch to, hey

More to pay

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

I'm a Senior and about to graduate this semester. God only knows how much money I've forked over to this university during the past four years between tuition, books, dorm rent, etc., etc. I would hate to figure it up because I'm sure it would be extremely depressing.

So here I am, about to graduate, and I find out, of all things, I'm going to have to give this school $10 more before they'll let me out!

I do not understand this in the least. What would happen if someone didn't pay the $10? Would that person not be allowed to graduate to be locked in the Math Lab for eternity?

Well, I've paid my $10--I'm allergic to math anyway--and they're going to let me out. But I'm quite certain that I wouldn't get more than one dollar at most for the worth of that pretty piece of paper they're going to send me

Sincerely,
Broke

man, Disco Top 40?!

Is it money? It doesn't seem like that could be the cause. After all, if you change to a format that no one any longer listens to, it doesn't seem as if the station could charge more for advertising time, now does it?

Somebody messed up bad. From its inception until this summer (a slick time to change, since the majority of the student body wasn't here to raise hell over the decision) WRQR was the station to listen to at ECU. From dorm windows, cars, and stereos throughout their broadcast range, WRQR rained forth and reigned supreme. But alas, all that is over now. Leon Russell and Little Feat have been replaced by Staircase and the Sylvers. The human sounding announcers we used to all love have been replaced (with one exception) by a bunch of Steve Martin imitators. But, c'est la vie. We'll all live...but not quite as pleasurably as when the good old WRQR was around.

Now when I drive around in my car, rather than listen to some disco crap I sing...and sing pretty badly too I might add. But on my worst day I sound infinitely better than "Disco Duck."

Candidate for Senate to speak here in Jan.

By STEVE BACHNER
Staff Writer

Luther Hodges, Jr., Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, will arrive on campus January 16 to discuss topical issues as part of his campaign for office. His appearance will be sponsored by Beta Kappa Alpha.

"This will give students an opportunity to meet with Hodges, to ask questions, and to get involved with the political process," said Butch Patrick, an ECU student representative for Hodges.

Hodges has chosen Greenville attorney Charles "Sonny" McLawhorn, an ECU graduate, as his campaign manager for District One, the largest district in the state.

"ECU has the only student banking fraternity in the United States," said McLawhorn. "And they (Beta Kappa Alpha) have asked Hodges to speak on the social responsibility of bankers. I think he plans to relate to the students as a young person himself."

Hodges, 40, resigned as chairperson of the board of the N.C. National Bank, the largest bank in the Southeast, last June to run for the Senate. His father, the late Luther H. Hodges, was governor here from 1953 to 1960. He also was Secretary of Commerce under former President John Kennedy.

According to McLawhorn, Hodges plans to talk to students about jobs, energy, and inflation. Since Republican Senator Jesse Helms is already a favorite with many students, McLawhorn considers Hodges' toughest objectives to be the youth vote and the tobacco vote.

"I think young people are drawn to politicians who are sensitive, intelligent, and well-spoken," said McLawhorn.

"Luther Hodges is sensitive to the point that he doesn't feel easy answers to justice to difficult questions."

"Hodges is an educated man, but he is far from being an elitist. An elitist attitude once hurt McCarthy who, I think, said that all the college graduates were going to vote for him and all those who didn't finish high school were going to vote for Bobby Kennedy. That didn't help his campaign any."

McLawhorn said the personnel involved with Hodges will run a positive campaign and that there will be no mudslinging.

"Any candidate who picks on the incumbent will begin drawing fire," said McLawhorn. "And I think the Democrats look forward to unifying the party after the primaries in May. Historically, our party has reached out and drawn in the common man to form a party of uncommon leaders."

With four other Democrats in the running, and one more (Insurance Commissioner John Ingram) on the way, party unity seems like a distant prospect.

McLawhorn said he feels that Ingram would certainly pose the biggest threat to Hodges' in the primaries and Ingram's political coordinates are daily making it more evident that he will run.

"Ingram will try to run a populist campaign," said McLawhorn.

'Volunteer Greenville' records texts for blind students at Pitt

By RICKI GLIARMIS
Staff Writer

Volunteer Greenville is tape-recording academic textbooks this semester for blind students at Pitt Technical Institute in a project designed to help the students keep up with their classmates, according to Nancy Harrington, director of Volunteer Greenville.

A master tape is made of each chapter of a textbook. From this tape, the students make their own recordings.

The blind students stay a few chapters ahead of the class in order to have adequate time to prepare their work.

The recording program is receiving good response from Greenville citizens and ECU students, according to Harrington.

Another program being started by Harrington is a skills bank.

Harrington said she got the idea of the skills bank from the organization's slogan, "Turn spare time into share time—volunteer."

She said, because of the slogan, too many people think of volunteer work as work for housewives who have nothing else to do.

The skills bank, however, is a file of names of people with certain skills. These people must be willing to use their skills to help others.

"I hope to be able to reach retired and working people through the skills bank," Harrington said.

The development of Volunteer Greenville was influenced by VISTA (Volunteers In Service To America) and was started in October, 1975, through funding by a federal grant.

When the grant expired, the program was taken over by the City of Greenville with the help of the citizens.

"Basically, things are going real well for us," she said. "But we want to see it grow."

"We're more interested in quality rather than quantity," said Harrington when asked about the number of volunteers.

SGA, now is not the time to ask for money for improvements.

"Since the season is already over, and considering how broke the SGA is, it's obvious that many of the bill supporters are using it as a political ploy to appeal to a large segment of voters," Sessions said.

The athletic department originally appropriated the band $7,700, this year according to SGA Vice-President Reed Warren and then gave an additional $8,000 which came from money obtained by television coverage.

"Mr. Cain said the athletic department next year would give at most $1,000 more than it gave this year," said Warren.

"We're broke," said Warren. "We're in no position this year to help with improvements."

Warren said he hopes a smaller bill can be worked out.

Dept. gets approval to test local water supplies

By JIM BURKE
Staff Writer

The ECU Environmental Health Laboratory has been granted interim approval by the federal government to test local water supplies for contamination.

Under the direction of Dr. Barney Kane, the laboratory serves both as a testing center for water and a training ground for students in the ECU school of environmental health.

According to Dr. Kane, Greenville has its own system for monitoring the water supply in the community, and the testing done by the Environmental Health Lab is mostly for water sources outside Greenville.

"We look for small organisms called coliforms which get into the water through human and animal waste," said Kane explaining the testing procedures.

"The coliforms themselves are not necessarily harmful, but if they are present, we can assume the water is contaminated," said Kane.

The water sources, such as wells for individual homes, are usually inspected by the county health department to see if they are adequate and properly constructed. Then, samples of the water are sent to the lab for analysis, if necessary.

Kane said that, although students are involved in the work, they cannot officially conduct the tests. However, they do learn the techniques involved.

The analysis is done according to the National Interim Primary Drinking Water Regulations.

Kane said the regulations are a set of guidelines proposed a couple of years ago by the Environmental Protection Agency.

"These regulations are constantly being reviewed and changed by the federal government as new evidence accumulates, and they are called interim until a definite set of standards is finalized."

Kane explained that there are no federal funds involved in the project.

WNCT changes format

By LYNN MALADOWITZ
Staff Writer

WNCT-TV (Channel 9, Greenville) is currently in the initial phases of a multi-million dollar expansion project, according to Blake Lewis, station vice president.

Effects of the project can be recognized in the new "Nine Alive" news format.

The new news format is only a part of the project which began a month ago. It includes a new "Nine Live" music theme, and a live approach to news.

Lewis said the project is the means for a new television concept.

"The purpose of "Nine Alive" is a concept, an exciting, young way to convey our image—a quality image—to the people," said Lewis, who became station manager late last summer.

In order to reach more people, WNCT petitioned the Federal Communications Commission for permission to build a 2,000 foot transmission tower in Grifton.

The present transmission tower is 850 feet and is in Greenville.

The tower would increase WNCT's coverage area by 50 per cent and would sharpen the existing signal.

Lewis said it would be a year before the tower is built, if it is approved by the FCC.

The expansion project also includes new production equipment, mobile production units, and electronic news gathering equipment.

According to Lewis, remodeling and expansion of the studios are also parts of the new concept.

PROFESSOR

Honestly, I thought someone was pulling a practical joke on me when I got it."

"I don't know...My honest reaction when I thought about it a little bit was that I think maybe in times past I might have earned something like that. I have a feeling that I was a whole lot better teacher before than I am now. It was nice to get it, though."

The award being for teaching excellence, Dr. Gowen was asked to explain his teaching philosophy.

"That's easy for me to answer because I don't have one as such. I think if I ever got to the point that I'd start to philosophize about my approach to teaching, I'd probably be hurting."

"It's one of these things that's instinctive matter. When you stop and begin to meditate and refine, you know - I am this and I am that - you're probably really living on past things. So, I just take it day by day."

"Some days you win and some days you don't. I guess I'd like to say after 13 years of teaching that if you do give a bumper lecture, it still bothers me."

"You can't win 'em all, but you have to stay in there plugging I try to do the most professional job I can, but that varies from class to class."

Dr. Gowen was asked what it was like to work (as the award indicates) as a professional at ECU and how the University atmosphere affects his teaching.

"I think there are a lot of advantages at ECU. Sure, I've heard the students talk about the party image but there are two things you can say about it."

"First, the ECU students themselves are really great. They are a nice student body. They will meet you more than halfway if you have a bum class, and they don't try to sharp-shoot you and really don't give you grief."

"If I had to work up a motto I'd say 'Thank God for the students'."

"Second said Dr. Gowen, this school and the administration as far as I've been able to judge, have really tried with slender resources to promote teaching. It has really struck me. This school isn't Harvard. It's not Yale."

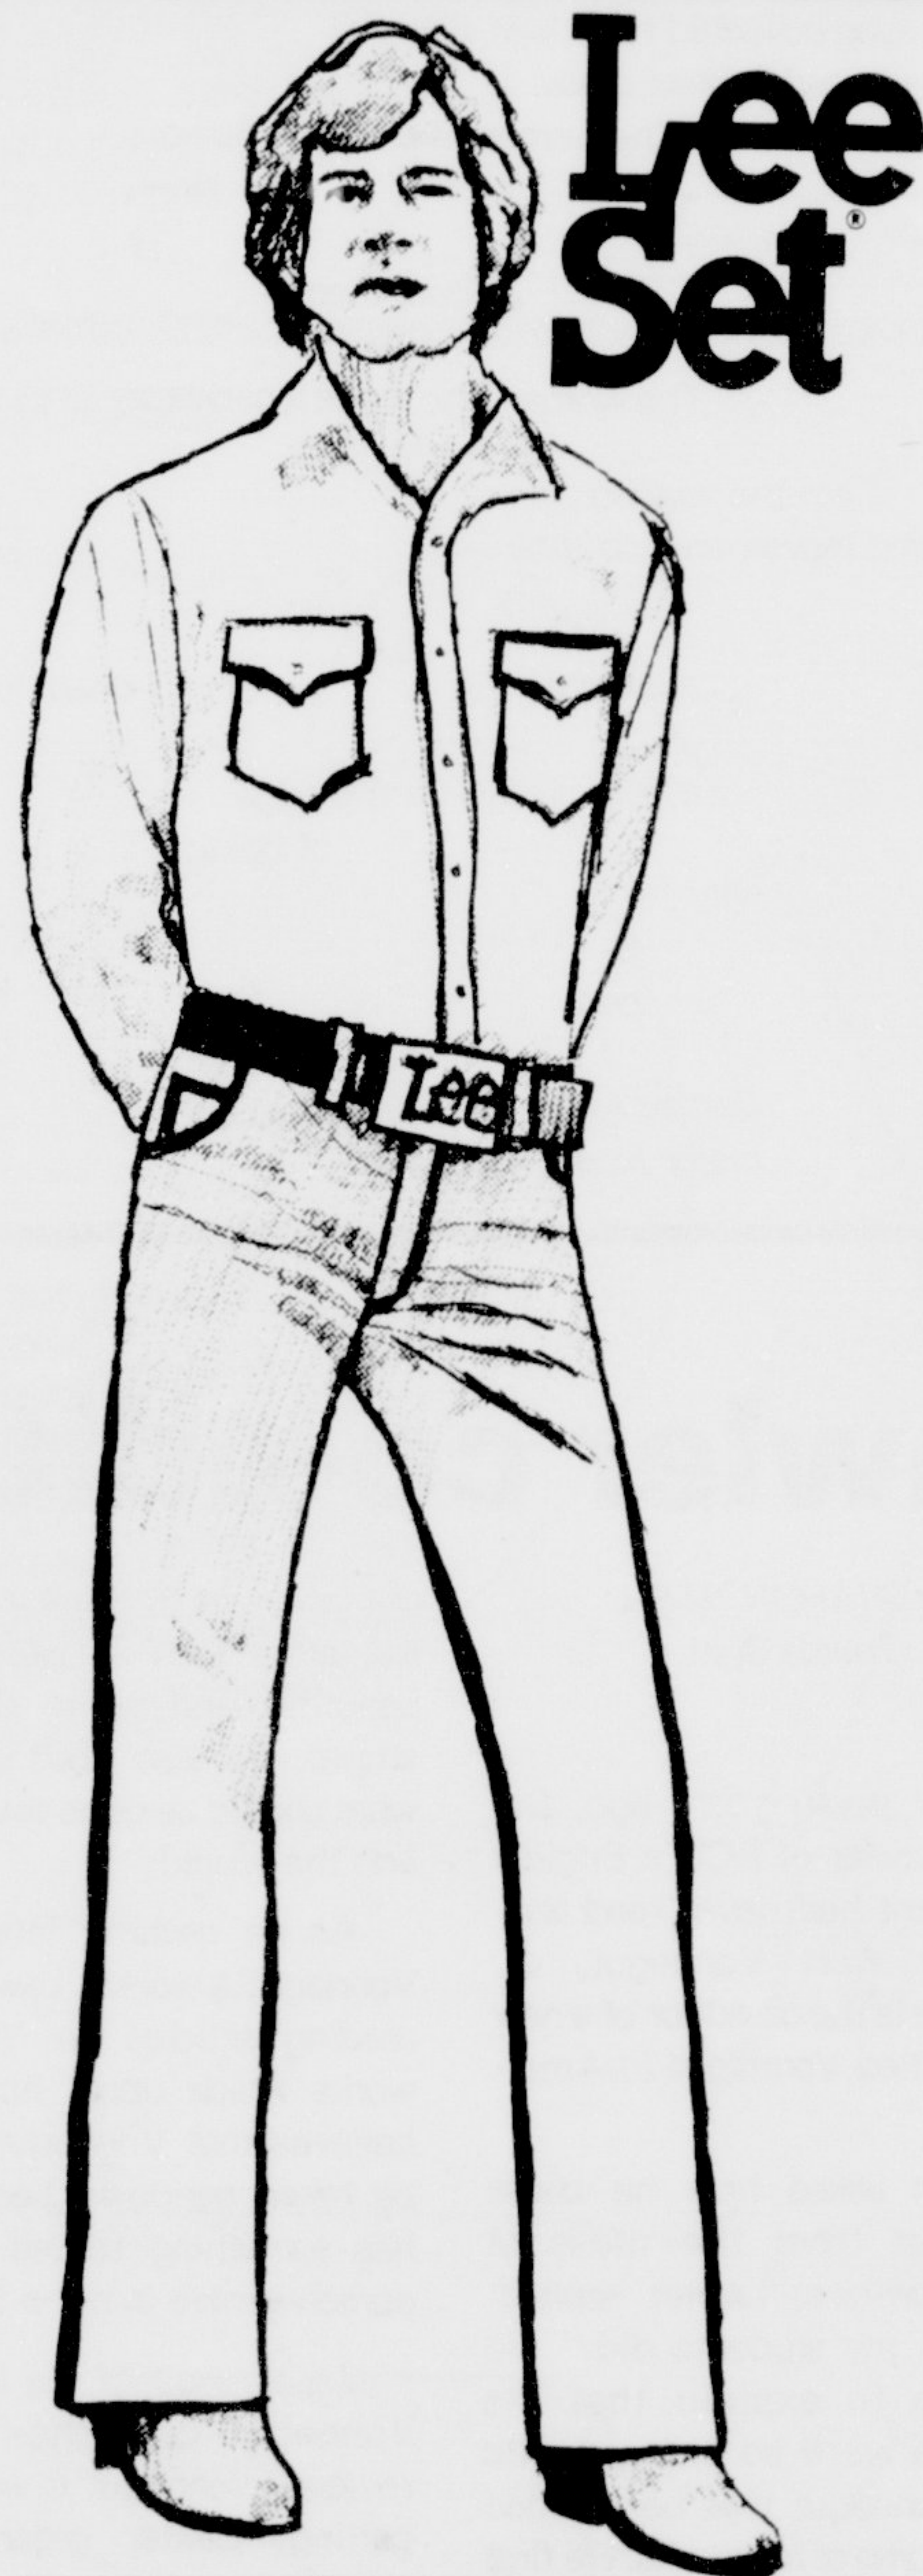

"It doesn't have the money or endowments of state schools. It operates under restrictions, but they still encourage you. I like that part of ECU."

"In terms of students and the atmosphere the school tries to create it is good."

Dr. Gowen took the $500 that he received as a stipend with the award and gave two parties to which the faculty and his students were invited to show his appreciation for the award.

Shakespeare thrice on Sunday

On Sunday, December 4th, Mendenhall Student Center will present three film adaptations of Shakespeare's plays. "Macbeth," directed by Roman Polanski, will be the first movie shown at 4 o'clock.

Kathleen Carroll, of the New York Daily News says, "Macbeth is Shakespeare translated the way he would have liked it, in bold, virile terms! It is unusually cinematic...Roman Polanski has created an altogether perfect setting!" In this movie, about the dangers of over-ambition, Polanski does not hesitate to show visually all the gore that Shakespeare so vividly describes in dialogue.

Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton star in The Taming of the Shrew, directed by Franco Zeffirelli, who also directed the tender and beautiful film adaptation of Romeo and Juliet. This movie will be shown second at 6:25. Cyril Cusack, Michael Hordern, Alfred Lynch and Alan Webb complete the list of major characters in the film.

Of Tony Richardson's Hamlet Frances Herridge of The New York Post says "A splendid film! Nicol Williamson's remarkably fresh interpretation of Hamlet has been skillfully transferred to the screen! Exciting action, jumping instantly from one scene to the next!

These films will be shown free of charge to East Carolina Students with a valid I.D.

Lawler co-edits book on Kurt Vonnegut

By SHARON NASH
Trends Staff

Six or seven years ago, Dr. Donald Lawler of ECU's English Department had never read anything by Kurt Vonnegut, Jr. Today, he is the co-editor of a new book entitled Vonnegut in America.

When asked how he chose Vonnegut from the mass of current writers, Lawler replied, "I didn't, my students did." He went on to explain that his students were so enthusiastic about Vonnegut that he decided to read some of his works. He first read Slaughter House Five, which he described as "an interesting experience." He explained that Vonnegut took some getting used to because he breaks so many of the literary conventions. "The reader must accept Vonnegut on his own terms."

Once he began studying Vonnegut, he discovered that he is a satirist of the caliber of Twain and Rabelais of our modern society. He describes Vonnegut as "a major moralist, who will probably be remembered for the profound things he has to say."

Lawler explained how Vonnegut forces us to think in "universal terms such as we aren't all beautiful and some of us are stupid. He also goes on to ask, what should be done with the ugly and the stupid."

As he became interested in Vonnegut's works, Lawler began reading articles on Vonnegut's works which upset him. Lawler believes that Vonnegut needs to be taken seriously because "he has something to tell us about ourselves. He is not a fad."

As a result of his interest in Vonnegut and the types of reviews Vonnegut's works were getting, Lawler organized and chaired a MLA seminar on Vonnegut in 1975. The purpose of this seminar was to raise the level of criticism performance on a writer Lawler thought deserving.

When asked when he first got the idea of the book, Lawler replied, "Five minutes after the seminar was over! The seminar was so good it took me by surprise. They all (the papers) seemed to fit together."

Jerome Klinkowitz, Professor of English at the University of Northern Iowa, who was a panelist at the seminar and Lawler got together to plan their book, and in less than a year Vonnegut in America, Lawler's first book was finished.

The book is a collection of the papers written by the seminar's panelists plus a transcript of the seminar discussion and related essays. The book also features an excellent section of photographs by Jill Krementz, a close friend of this one.

He does, however, have another book coming out in January, entitled Approaches to Science fiction, this book will be the first of its kind. A genre study, the book attempts to define the field of science fiction.

'Starship Invasions': spin-off of Star Wars

By DAVID W. TREVINO
Trends Editor

The enormous financial success of Star Wars made the production of a lackluster retinue of spin-offs an unfortunate inevitability. Like so much flotsam, Starship Invasions has washed up in Greenville.

The plot involves a struggle for planet earth between a race of evil space rapists in black leotards led by Captain Ramses (Christopher Lee) and the benevolent aliens who live in a pyramidal bordello on the ocean's floor. The good aliens are aided in their efforts by a courageous astronomer, Professor Duncan (Robert Vaughn) who believes in UFO's and his skeptical friend, the computer expert.

ched to their fingers that go off and cause their foes to fall down. Disregarding the crash of a metal bowl into an erecter set the most spectacular visual effect created in Starship Invasions is the glowing plastic with which the aliens control their space ships, decorated their pyramid and do almost everything else with.

Even more ridiculous is the way the aliens communicate by telepathy. While a voice over tells their thoughts, the aliens' faces are varied in expression by an alternating pattern of contortions and twitches. Much of this inability to act can be rationalized by the clay bulbs some of the aliens wore as heads, however

The issue of whether or not mankind will be killed off by the terrible "extermination device" Ramses is using to cause the earth's people to commit murder and suicide is finally resolved in a battle in deep space in which the special effects are only marginally superior to those in Godzilla on Monster Island. The aliens kill each other with flashbulbs attached to their fingers that go off and cause their foes to fall down. They wear helmets with a glowing plastic bar at the eyes and walk with their legs stiffened. It's offensive in its absurdity.

most are not so encumbered.

With the visual effects such an abject failure there is a great deal of emphasis on sex and violence in a vain attempt to maintain interest past the initial five minutes. Ramses and his crew abduct and have sex with a farmer and a family of three. Even the good aliens run an inter-galactic cathouse in a pyramid on the ocean bottom. And the interest taken by Professor Duncan in UFO's has rendered him uninterested in his frustrated wife.

The "extermination device" causes humans to be driven to kill themselves and occasionally others in conventional, earthling ways: by stabbings, slashing wrists, with guns, in auto accidents,...

The Earth finally wins out and all the right people are saved in the end. Starship Invasions may be entertainment for the fanatical science fiction buff, but most will find it little more than distasteful swamp gas.

That slab of white chalk against that black surface
Black and white, together to make a constructed result
Uniting with ease, they hardly ever clash

But man (black and white) doesn't realize his purpose
For he is like the blackboard

Cross country meet held

East Carolina's annual cross country race was held last Monday and there was a turnout of 101 runners for the event.

The cross country event was run for the first time over the new ECU intramural marathon course through campus and the contestants showed a great deal of stamina in their efforts. The men's course measured 2.8 miles and the women's course measured 1.6 miles.

The winning time for the men's course was turned in by Allen Vail. Running as an independent, Vail toured the 2.8 mile course in a time of 14:13.3, outdistancing runnerup Jim Joffe of Lambda Chi Alpha. Mike Acree of Jones Dorm finished third and teammate Jeff Mitchell finished fourth.

Spurred by the efforts of Acree and Mitchell, Jones took the team title with 45 points. Scott Dorm was runnerup in the team competition with 79 points. Belk Dorm was third and Aycock Dorm was fourth, with Stuart Wagoner pacing his team with a fifth-place finish. Lambda Chi Alpha had the best finish of any fraternity group with a fifth-place team finish and a total of 156 points. Sigma Nu was next among the fraternities, finishing seventh just ahead of Kappa Sigma. A total of 13 teams and 75 runners competed.

In women's competition Donna Daggs of Fleming Dorm led the field with a time of 11:04.5. Daggs' teammates finished third and fourth in the three-women team competition. Jarvis Dorm finished second and the Independents wound up third. Alpha Xi Delta led the sorority entries with a fourth place finish, entering nine of the 18-women field.

Two special categories were held for faculty women and faculty men. Carol Own ran as the only women faculty member and had a time of 12:07.6 while Mr. Whitehead won the men's faculty division in 17:34.5. Eight men competed in the faculty division.

This year's field was much larger than last year's and the new route seemed to help the performance of the runner.

The women's volleyball finals finished last Tuesday night and Hypertension won in straight sets over a strong Alpha Xi Delta squad. Hypertension defeated the Alpha Xis in two sets, 15-9 and 15-13. In the dormitory championship decided separately from the all-campus crown, Jarvis Dorm defeated Fleming Dorm, 15-9. The competition ended another season of intramural volleyball.

Phi Kappa Tau and the Aycock Giants met last night in one semifinal match and the Belk Embalmers and Tau Kappa Epsilon met in another semifinal match to decide who would meet tonight at 7:30 for the Intramural Team Handball men's title and the right to represent East Carolina against Appalachian State in a two-day Handball tournament to be held here on Thursday, December 1 and Friday, December 2. The ECU champs will meet the ASU champs in two matches. The first match will take place at 5 p.m. on Thursday and the second will be played at 3 p.m. on Friday. Both games will be in Memorial Gym.

In quarterfinal play in the Intramural Handball tourney, the Giants beat the Belk X's and O's 21-18 as Bob Pear scored 10 points for the winners and Gene Smith led the losers with seven points.

In the other quarterfinal games the Embalmers dropped the Time-Ins 17-15 in another close match as Chastain led the victors with nine points and Dennis Belammy led the losers with eight points; Teke beat the Scott Time OUs by a similarly close 17-15 score; and the Phi Taus whipped Kappa Alpha in the only easy match, 14-8. Bill Bugbee led the Phi Taus with seven points.

The Rugby Mules will reign as the intramural men's soccer champions for this season, after downing Phi Kappa Tau 2-0 in the finals. Jack Simonean was named the game's Outstanding player.

In the women's finals, the Fleming Foxes won the all-campus crown over the Tri Sigma sorority as Sylvia Jones scored both goals in a 2-1 win and was voted the Most Outstanding Player in the championship games.

ECU's Karate Club won the Southeastern championships held this weekend of November 19-20 in Atlanta, Ga. Al Fiore led the victory with his fifth straight victory in the Black Belt division. Other winners were Steve Daughtridge, Willie Everett, Richard Oxendine, Jan Dixon, Morry Burnett and Dorethea Blunt. The Karate Club is coached by Bill McDonald, a fifth degree Black Belt.

Seahawks tonight

By CHRIS HOLLOWAN
Sports Editor

This Thursday night the Pirates of East Carolina open their 1977-78 home basketball schedule against the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. Then this Monday the Pirates will host the Battlers of Alderson Broaddus College from Philippi, West Virginia. Both games will start at 8:00.

The game with UNCW looms as another tough test for a young Pirate team. To many students and alumni the game with the Seahawks looked like a break after the Indiana game but by no means is this true. In fact the Pirates will play a team that is probably every bit as tough as the Hoosiers were.

In games thus far this season the Seahawks have made themselves known. First of all last Saturday UNCW dedicated their new 6,100 seat Trask Coliseum losing a close game to Wake Forest University. The final score was 83-79 but it was apparent that Wilmington dominated their ACC visitor throughout the game. In fact Rod Griffin who was not expected to play at all had to come into the game to save the sagging 17th ranked Deacons from defeat.

On Monday night UNCW played a highly regarded Georgia Tech team and almost pulled off an upset. Once again the Seahawks dominated most of the game until Tech was able to pull the game out of the fire in the last two minutes. This game has added significant in that it was played on Georgia Tech home court.

The Seahawks have only been in the NCAA's Division 1 for two years but have made a fast transition from their former affiliation with NAIA's district 29. In fact last year Wilmington finished with a 16-10 record. One of those 10 losses came at the hands of East Carolina last year in a close 56-54 setback in Minges Coliseum.

The Seahawks of course would like to make up for that heart-breaking loss last year and certainly they have the fire power to do so. The standouts for UNCW are their twin guards Billy and Bobby Martin. Both are 6'11" and both are very quick. In fact, against Wake Forest, the Martins had a field day stealing the ball from the Deacon guards. Probably the biggest irony of all is that much of their defensive skills were gained in high school when their head coach was Pirate assistant coach Billy Lee. Coach Lee is very familiar with the twins style of play and knows that they have great talent.

"Both Billy and Bobby were excellent basketball players at New Bern High," Lee said. "They play great defense and are constantly good scorers. They will be tough to play against and even tougher to beat."

Other standouts for the Seahawks are Denny Fields a 6-8" center, Lonnie Payton a 6-3" guard and freshman Jimmy Denton a 6'6" forward.

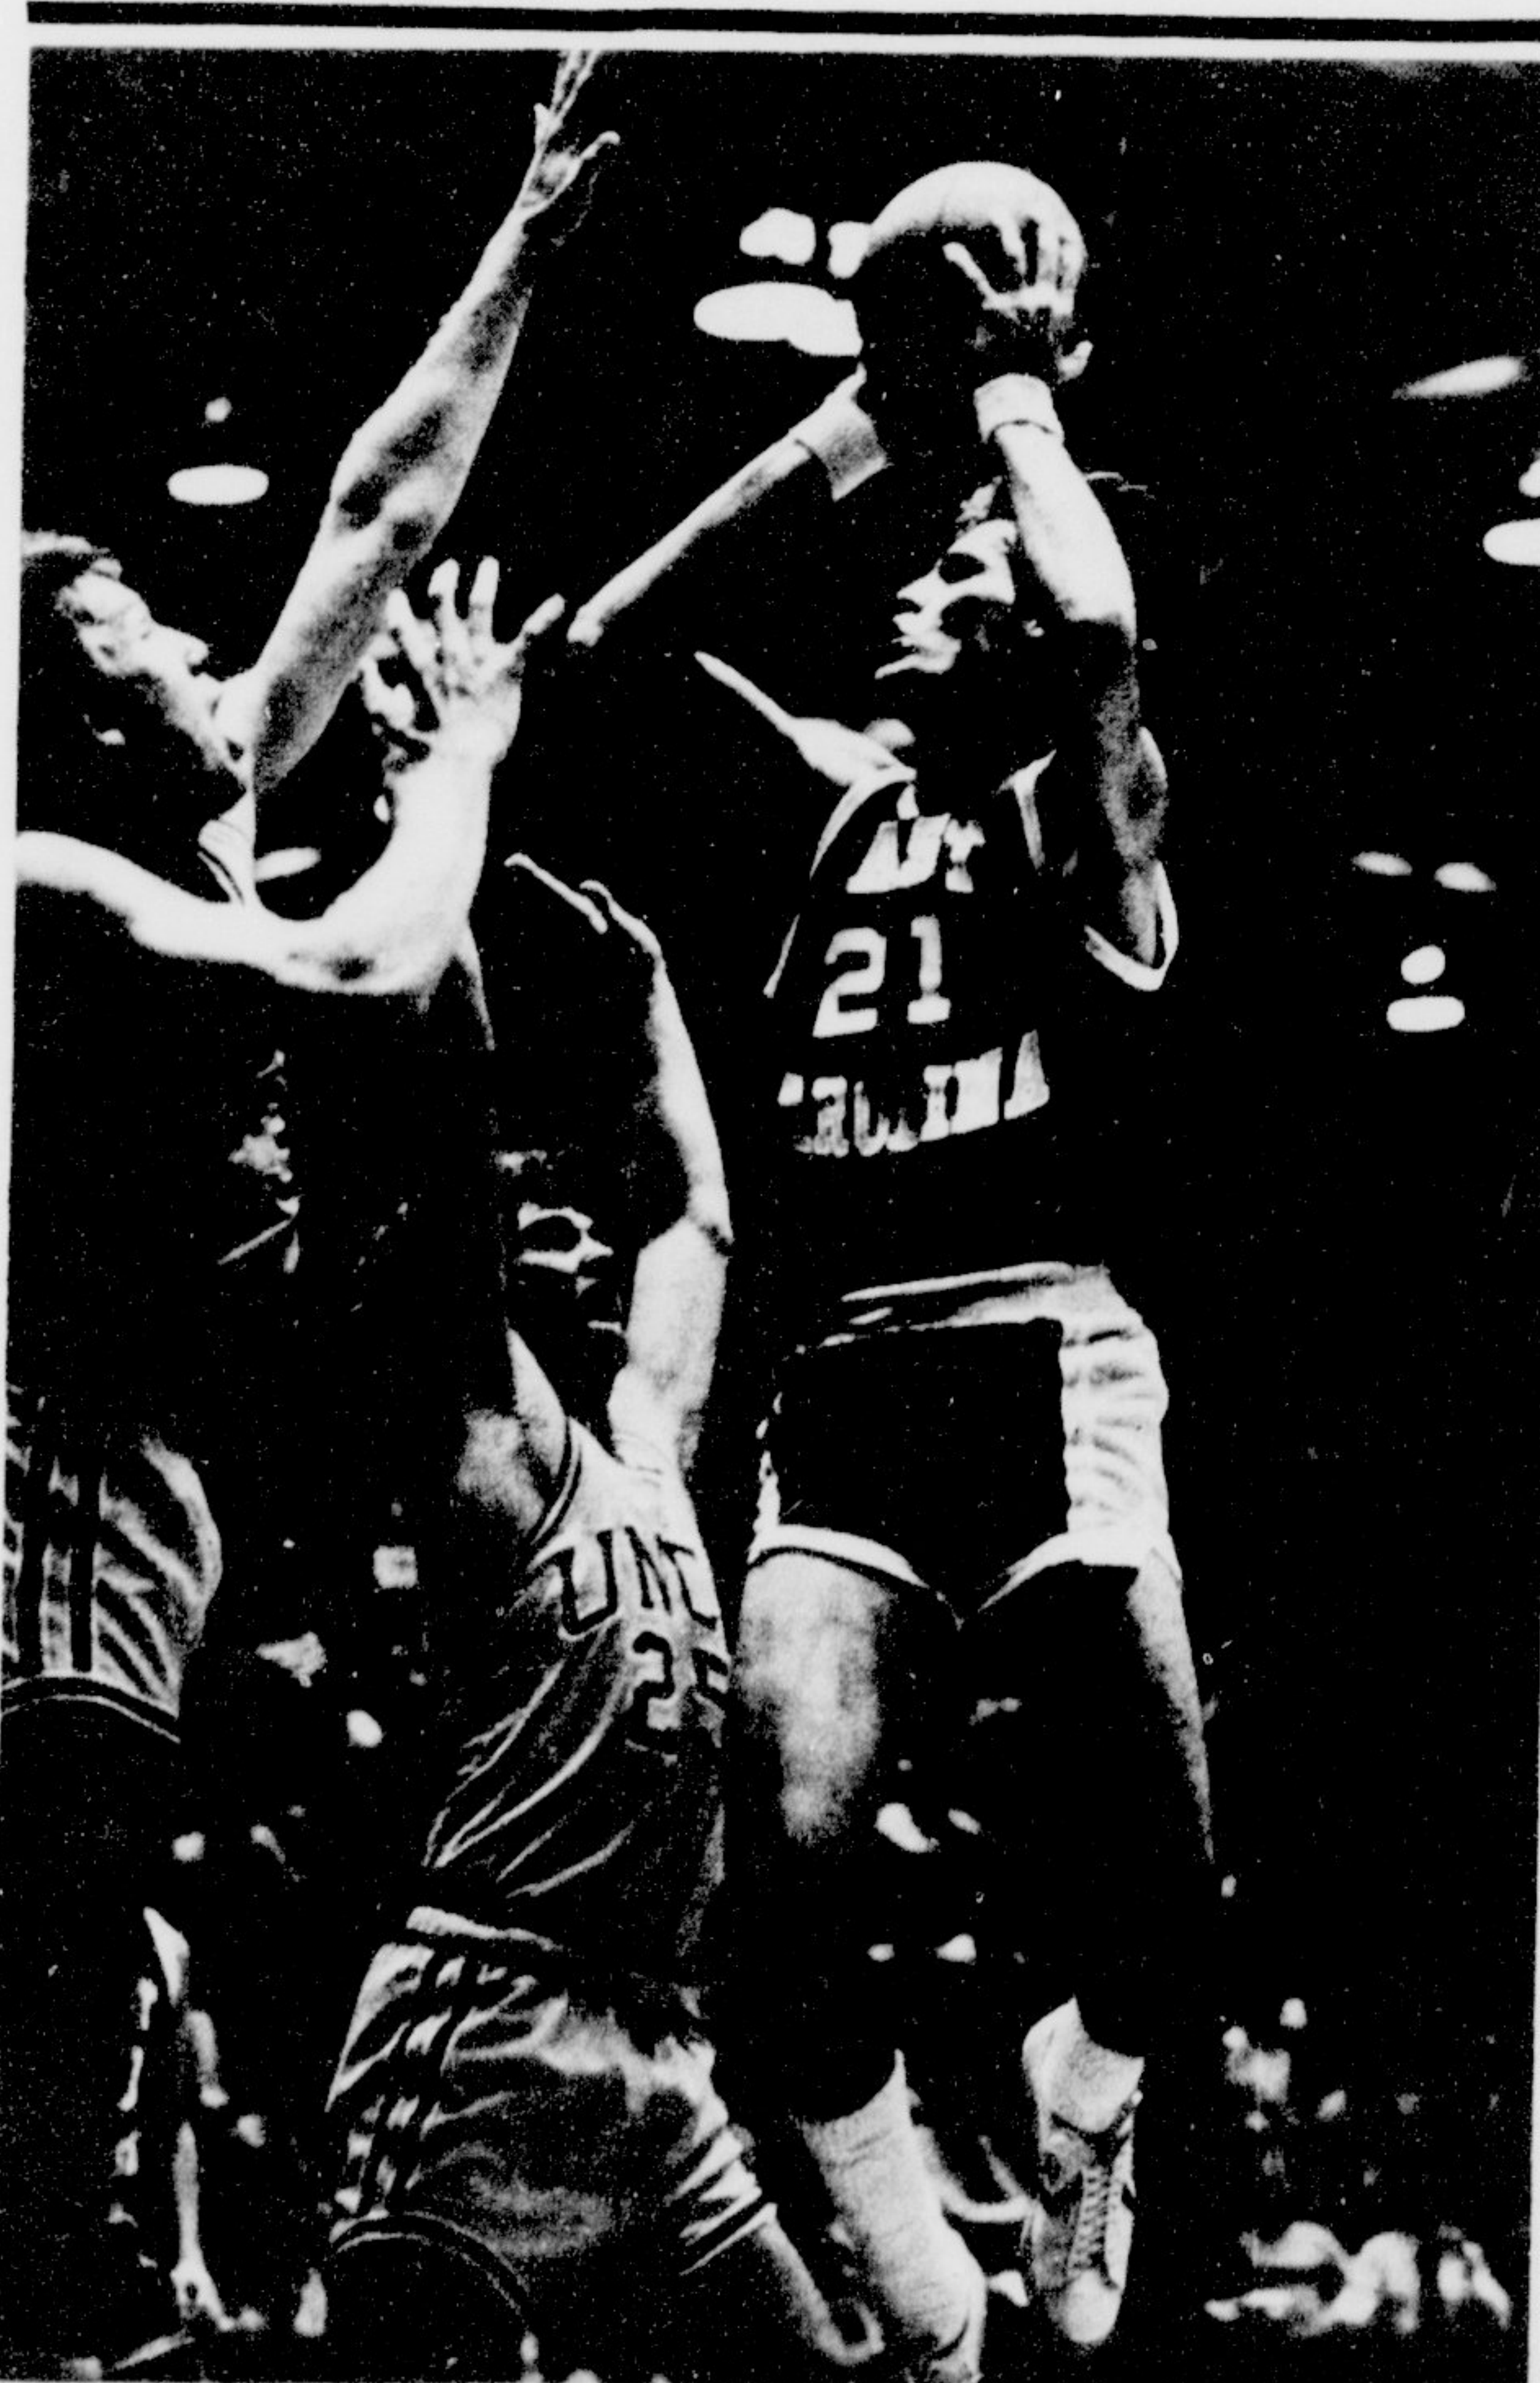

UNCW is coached by former Western Carolina star Mel Gibson. His assistant is Rick Holdt who played on N.C. States' 1973 27-0 club.

Monday the Pirates will be home again to face Alderson Broaddus.

Pirates defeat Campbell 69-67

By STEVE BYERS
Assistant Sports Editor

The women's basketball season opened their season last night with a win over the Campbell College Camels, 69-67.

Rosie Thompson, a 5'9" junior from Blounts Creek, N.C. led scoring with 23 points followed by freshman Lydia Rountree of Elm City with 18.

Coach Catherine Bolton was particularly impressed with Rountree and fellow freshman Marsha Girven. Girven led the board play with 12 rebounds. "They were very good in their first game, as freshman," added Bolton, "They will get even better during the year."

Debbie Freeman, senior all-America candidate, was held to 10 points and coach Bolton expects a much more productive game Saturday against Duke.

The Pirates led 40-32 at the half before the Camels fought back to the final 2 point deficit.

The Pirates next home game is Saturday against Duke.

"We have two big conference home games this Saturday and Monday and we could use some fan support," said Bolton.

The Duke game is at 7:00 while Monday's game is the opening game of a doubleheader with the men starting at 6:00.

Martin honored

GREENVILLE* N.C.—A year ago, the soccer program at East Carolina was in trouble. There were suggestions made to drop the sport, but a decision was made to give it another chance.

Although the team finished with a disappointing 3-10 mark, the season recently developed a bright side to it, as sophomore forward Phil Martin was named honorable mention all-state by the Greensboro Daily News.

The Pirate standout finished the season as the team's leading scorer, collecting nine goals and three assists for a total of 21 points. His nine goals were exactly half the team total.

"Phil was our offense," stated ECU head coach Brad Smith. "We depended on him to run the offense for us, and he did. He displayed a great deal of maturity in carrying our offense like he did."

"I would have to say," continued Smith, "that if Phil continues to improve as he did this season, he will have a good chance of being East Carolina's first all-South player."

For the Greensboro native, Martin, the selection marked the highest honor he had ever received in soccer.

"I was the MVP of my high school team (Page High) my senior year," Martin noted, "but this is the highest honor I've ever received."

Pirate swimmers in Penn State Relays

By SAM ROGERS
Staff Writer

Quite a few number of changes will certainly be evident on the East Carolina Swimming team Saturday when the Pirates open their 1977-78 season at University Park in Penn State relays.

From a positive point of view, the Pirates return 14 lettermen from last year's team including four Southern Conference champions. Ross Bohlken who was named the Outstanding Swimmer in the 1976 Southern Conference Championships returns after a year's absence and will be back for his final season. Six highly touted freshmen will add plenty of depth in the Pirates lineup this season.

However, from a negative standpoint of view, the Pirates lost breastroker and co-captain David Kirkman along with Steve Reudlinger through graduation. Also gone are Tomas Palmgren who decided to give up his final year of eligibility, along with versatile Stewart Mann and Southern Conference butterfly champion Keith Wade who both quit the team. Plus the fact, East Carolina will have no Southern Conference Championship to peak for since the Pirates abandoned the conference last year.

But overcoming problems and frustrations is nothing new for head coach Ray Scharf, now in his 11th season at the helm of the Pirate swimming program. The Newark, N.J. native has guided the Pirates to ten consecutive Southern Conference Championships and has an impressive 68-39 dual meet record during that time.

"We lost some quality performers last year," says Scharf, "but we've got a talented group of individuals returning and some freshmen who should help us before the end of the season. We've got an extremely tough schedule, but we will certainly be competitive in every tournament and dual meet we swim in this season."

Saturday's Penn State Relays will provide a warm-up test for the Pirates before they return home next Tuesday to face the University of North Carolina in a dual meet. Last year ECU finished in eighth place, its worst finish ever in the Penn State event.

"We look at the Penn State relays as a fun meet," said Scharf. "It gives us a chance to look at a lot of people and gives us an insight into the coming season."

Heading the list of the Pirates top performers from last season is sophomore Ted Nieman. Last year as a freshman the Winter Park, Fla. native won the 200, 500, and 1650 freestyle events in the Southern Conference Championships and was named the outstanding swimmer in the tournament. Nieman set ECU varsity records in the 200, 500, 1000, and 1650 freestyle yard events and qualified for the NCAA Championships in the 200 yard freestyle. He also swam on the 400 and 800 yard relay teams in the nationals.

Also returning are freestylers John McCauley and Billy Thorne along with medley specialist John Tudor. McCauley, a three year letterman from Charlotte, N.C. won the 50 yard freestyle in the Southern Conference last year and qualified for the nationals in the 50 freestyle and also swam on the 400 and 800 yard relay teams in the nationals. He also holds the school record in the 50 freestyle with a time of 20.85.

Thorne, a senior from Greensboro, was the conference champion in the 100 yard freestyle and also swam on the Pirates 400 and 800 yard relay teams in the nationals.

Last year Tudor captured the conference 200 and 400 individual backstroke and the 200 individual medley events.

"We'll be extremely strong in all the freestyle events," said Scharf. "I'm confident with just about any lineup we use and I'm sure we will qualify for the nationals again this year in several of the freestyle events."

Scharf will also use Ross Bohlken, Doug Brindley, Joe Kushi, Barry McCarthy, and Pierre Ouellet in the freestyle events.

Mark Lovette and Ronnie Schnell along with highly touted freshmen George Bowers and Joe Murtagh will be used in the butterfly. Bowers was a two-time state champion at Clearwater High School in Largo, Florida while Murtagh prepped at Plainview High in Long Island N.Y.

Mack to leap over tall building ?

By STEVE BYERS
Assistant Sports Editor

Can Oliver Mack move with the smoothness of Phil Ford? Can Herb Gray improve on last week's 24 point performance against Indiana? Will Greg Cornelius and Roger Carr dominate the boards? And will Larry Gillman keep up his career average of one technical foul per game?

Find out the answer to these questions and more as the Pirates face UNC-Wilmington in Minges Coliseum tonight at 7:30.

Coach Larry Gillman boasts the most exciting team in East Carolina Basketball history and hints they will be glad to come home to Minges. As he said earlier in the year, "This team is anxious to prove they are better than last year's performance."

A new pep band has been formed for the game and a large turnout is expected to give a loud welcome to Gillman and his crew.

This game and Monday's stint with Alderson-Broadus are billed as warm-ups to the December 7 game at Maryland but Gillman insists this won't be the case, "They have a pair of twins at the guard position that are quick, and the team was #2 in the nation in field goal percentage last year."

Gillman expects few changes in Thursday's line-up except that Herb Krusen should play more. Krusen did not play in the opener at Indiana which Gillman said was dictated "by the type of team we played." Krusen scored over 30 points in two Pirate exhibition games.

An interesting contest may take place between UNC-W's 6'-8" center Denny Fields and the Pirates 6'-9" junior Greg Cornelius. Fields averaged 22 points a game last year and Cornelius played a strong rebounding game at Indiana. Roger Carr a 6'-6", 230 pound freshman may also contribute to the Pirate cause.

Swimmers show promise

John Tudor, David Moodie, and Barry McCarthy will be the Pirates top performers in the backstroke.

Freshmen Dan Newhaller from Maitland, Florida and Robert Skurla from Charlotte, N.C. will be counted upon to replace graduated David Kirkman in the breaststroke.

Junior Lund Sox and freshman Thomas Bell will provide plenty of depth and experience in the one and three yard diving, an event the Pirates have been extremely weak in since the departure of Jack Morrow. Rick Bright is the new diving coach.

"Overall we'll be rather weak in the backstroke and breaststroke events and the medley relays," noted Scharf. "But our tremendous strength in the freestyle events is a real plus. We've got quite a schedule in front of us, and I think we'll improve as the season moves along.

Bell, a native of Rockville, Maryland was a prep school All-American and prepschool champion last year at Lyola.

East Carolina will face ACC powers N.C. State, North Carolina, Duke and Maryland along with nationally ranked Alabama this year.

THE DEAN OF BEER'S FINAL EXAM.

(Or, was yeast really responsible for the fall of the Roman Empire?)

As your Dean of Beer, it is my scholarly opinion that just knowing the one word for beer is not enough. You must also know the reasons why. Because only then will I, Siglinda Steinfüller, be satisfied that you have graduated from Remedial Beer Drinking.

QUESTIONS:

Q: 1. The best water for beer comes from:

- a) Big Duck Mountain.
- b) Underground from Tijuana.
- c) A small store in Macon, Ga.
- d) None of the above

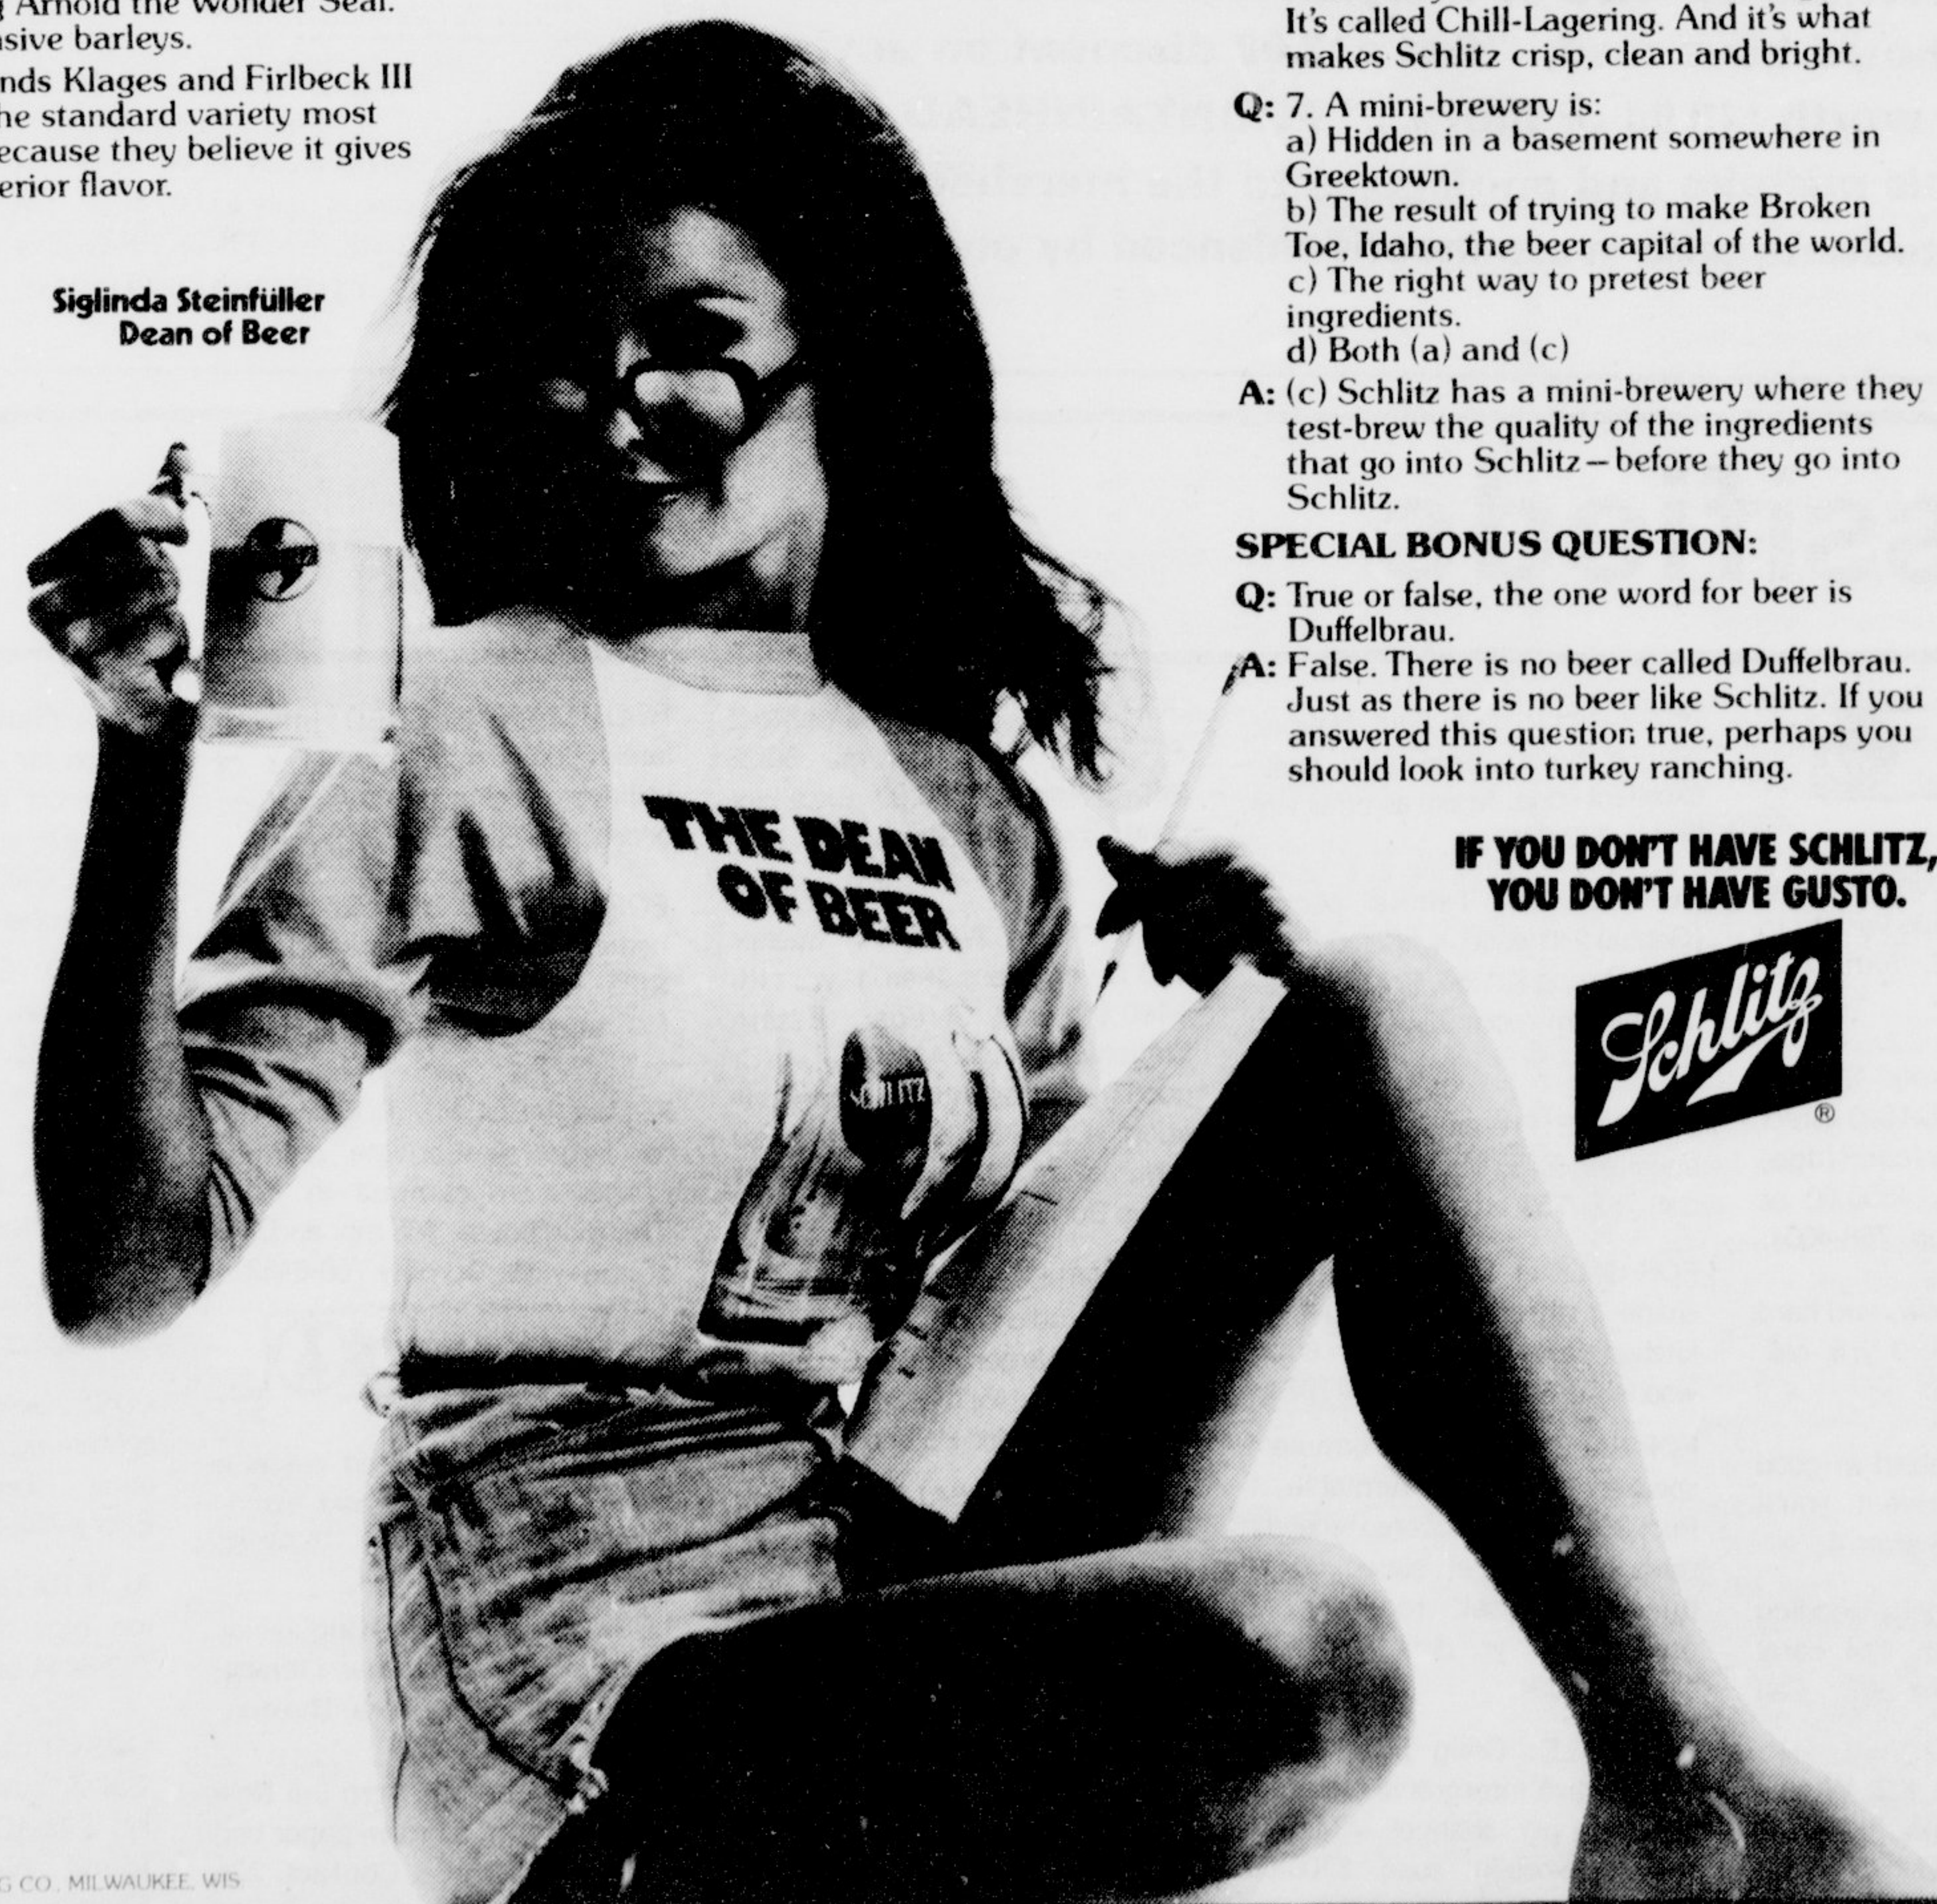

A: (d) No matter what you hear about "naturally pure" waters, virtually all brewers filter and further purify their water. But Schlitz doesn't stop there. They filter their water and then filter it again. So when they're through, it's purer than the purest springwater.

Q: 2. Klages and Firlbeck III are:

- a) Composers of famous beer drinking songs like "I Left My Shoes in Heidelberg."
- b) Owners of the world's largest unknown brewery.
- c) Serving time in Sonoma, Calif., for impersonating Arnold the Wonder Seal.
- d) More expensive barleys.

A: (d) Schlitz blends Klages and Firlbeck III barleys with the standard variety most brewers use because they believe it gives their beer superior flavor.

Siglinda Steinfüller
Dean of Beer

Q: 3. Hops are notorious for:

- a) Their lack of intelligence.
- b) Always getting to work late.
- c) Losing their keys.
- d) Being difficult to keep fresh.

A: (d) The freshest hops make the best beer. That's why Schlitz vacuum-packs and refrigerates their hops. So they're as fresh at brewing time as they are at harvest time.

Q: 4. The best adjunct to beer is:

- a) Rice.
- b) Corn.
- c) Either rice or corn.
- d) What's an adjunct?

A: (c) Every American brewer uses rice or corn to lighten the flavor of their beer. This is called an adjunct. But Schlitz knows how to use either grain interchangeably. So they're never at the mercy of an unfavorable crop. And neither is the taste of their beer.

Q: 5. The biggest misconception about yeast is:

- a) Carrying some in your pocket is good luck.
- b) It is good for hernias.
- c) It was responsible for the fall of the Roman Empire.
- d) To ferment beer, all you have to do is drop it in the vat.

A: (d) To make beer taste right consistently, Schlitz believes the yeast has to be evenly distributed during fermentation. That's why Schlitz gently stirs in their yeast. It's part of their Balanced Fermentation process. And they're the only American brewer who does it.

Q: 6. Chill-Lagering is:

- a) A popular German country and western singer.
- b) A Scandinavian winter sport played without clothes.
- c) A new ethnic TV comedy about the owner of an ice cube factory.
- d) The right way to age beer.

A: (d) When Schlitz ages beer, they age it cold—very cold—down to 29.5 degrees. It's called Chill-Lagering. And it's what makes Schlitz crisp, clean and bright.

Q: 7. A mini-brewery is:

- a) Hidden in a basement somewhere in Greektown.
- b) The result of trying to make Broken Toe, Idaho, the beer capital of the world.
- c) The right way to pretest beer ingredients.
- d) Both (a) and (c)

A: (c) Schlitz has a mini-brewery where they test-brew the quality of the ingredients that go into Schlitz—before they go into Schlitz.

SPECIAL BONUS QUESTION:

Q: True or false, the one word for beer is Duffelbrau.

A: False. There is no beer called Duffelbrau. Just as there is no beer like Schlitz. If you answered this question true, perhaps you should look into turkey ranching.

IF YOU DON'T HAVE SCHLITZ,
YOU DON'T HAVE GUSTO.
