SU Board positions open

By DOUG WHITE
News Editor

The two day representative positions on the Student Union Board of Directors are vacant and applications are being accepted to fill them, according to Dennis Ramsey, Student Union president.

"Applications will be taken until 5 p.m. Fri., March 30. Applicants are required to write a letter outlining their qualifications for the board and submit to an interview by the board," Ramsey said.

Applicants must also have a 2.0 grade average, according to Ramsey.

"The board is the government authority of the Student Union. It is responsible for selecting the president, approving the budget, and approving all appointments of the president," Ramsey said.

"Anyone who has any interest in campus entertainment should consider this position."

Ramsey also encouraged students to apply for positions on any of the 11 Student Union committees.

"Applications are coming in at a good rate for the more popular committees, such as films and major attractions, but some of the smaller committees such as Coffeehouse and The Entertainer, aren't getting as many applicants as we'd like," Ramsey said.

Committee applications are being accepted until 5 p.m. Fri., March 24.

Persons wishing to apply for either the Board of Directors or a committee can pick up an application in the Student Union offices, second floor, Mendenhall.

Plans to join Gov. Hunt's staff

Jenkins begins second career

By STUART MORGAN
News Editor

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, president and chancellor of ECU for the past 18 years, will soon be retiring.

After retirement, Jenkins plans to leave Greenville to establish a permanent home at Atlantic Beach and probably an auxiliary apartment in Raleigh.

"We own a condominium at Atlantic Beach, I like the people there, and they've made me an honorary citizen," said Jenkins. "They've also given me a key to city of Morehead."

"I'm going to join many organizations down there. Many people don't realize this, but Atlantic Beach is an ideal place to retire; actually, it's really a mecca for retired people," he added. But, despite the description of the seemingly ideal retirement location by Jenkins, he has decided to embark on a second career.

"I plan to join Governor Hunt's staff, but we haven't figured out in what capacity yet," said Jenkins. "As late as last Thursday, he and I talked a little bit about it, and from that discussion I believe I will serve in a position as consultant with him on many things."

"I think the chief one may be in the area of industry and industrial development in rural areas," said Jenkins. "I may also do a little work in education."

Jenkins, an achiever and a man who has a reputation for getting things done, said he would do anything he is qualified to do to benefit the state when and if Governor Hunt should ask him to.

"If he should decide at anytime that I can be of no service to him, there will be no hard feelings on my part," he added.

Jenkins said he was very grateful to Governor Hunt for his invitation to join his staff, and added he had known Governor Hunt for a long time and had a high regard for him.

"I had the pleasure of giving his commencement speech when he was in high school as a student," said Jenkins. "He has said since then that he had considered me a very audacious person at the time."

Jenkins added that Governor Hunt liked the spirit that he instilled in him as a young boy. "That things can be done if you want to do them."

"He followed that philosophy," said Jenkins.

Campus security improvements offered

Pres., vice-pres. candidates present platform

Tommy Joe Payne and David Cartwright, candidates for Student Government Association (SGA) president and vice-president, say their top priority projects will be three year adoption of textbooks and optional one semester dorm contracts if they are elected.

"We want a program that requires professors to adopt a textbook for at least three years. The way it is now a professor can require a different book from one semester to the next, which means that you might pay $15 for a book and only get a quarter when you try to sell it back," Payne said.

"With our plan you would not only be assured that you can sell your book back at a decent price but there would also be a larger selection of used books available. This would cut the cost of books all the way around," Payne said.

Payne said that students need an optional semester dorm contract to go along with the present one year contract so that students can move out of the dorms after one semester without having to pay dorm rent for the next semester on top of apartment rent.

Cartwright said that one of his major concerns is extending the bus routes so that more students can take advantage of the service and have access to more areas of the city.

"We would like to see the night bus route extended also. If we extend the night route, then students would be able to reach more shopping areas," Cartwright said.

Payne said that another possible improvement in the bus service is the construction of bus shelters at strategic points along the routes.

"It is an inconvenience to have to stand in the rain and wait for the bus," Cartwright said.

"We would like to start with one at Mendenhall and one at the bottom of the hill, since lots of students wait on the bus at those two stops," Cartwright said.

Payne said he was concerned with the present security situation on campus, especially with the safety of female students.

"It's not safe for girls to have to stand outside the dorm after the doors have been locked and wait for a campus policeman to come and open the door for them," Payne said.

"We don't have a full time night dispatcher to relay messages that are called in," he added.

Payne and Cartwright would like to work with campus security to open up jobs for students to work as dispatchers, so if there is a theft, an attack, or somebody needs to get into their dorm, a policeman can be sent to help.

This would help make the campus safer and more secure for everyone, according to Payne.

Payne and Cartwright would like to reinstate the program for SGA funded departmental retreats.

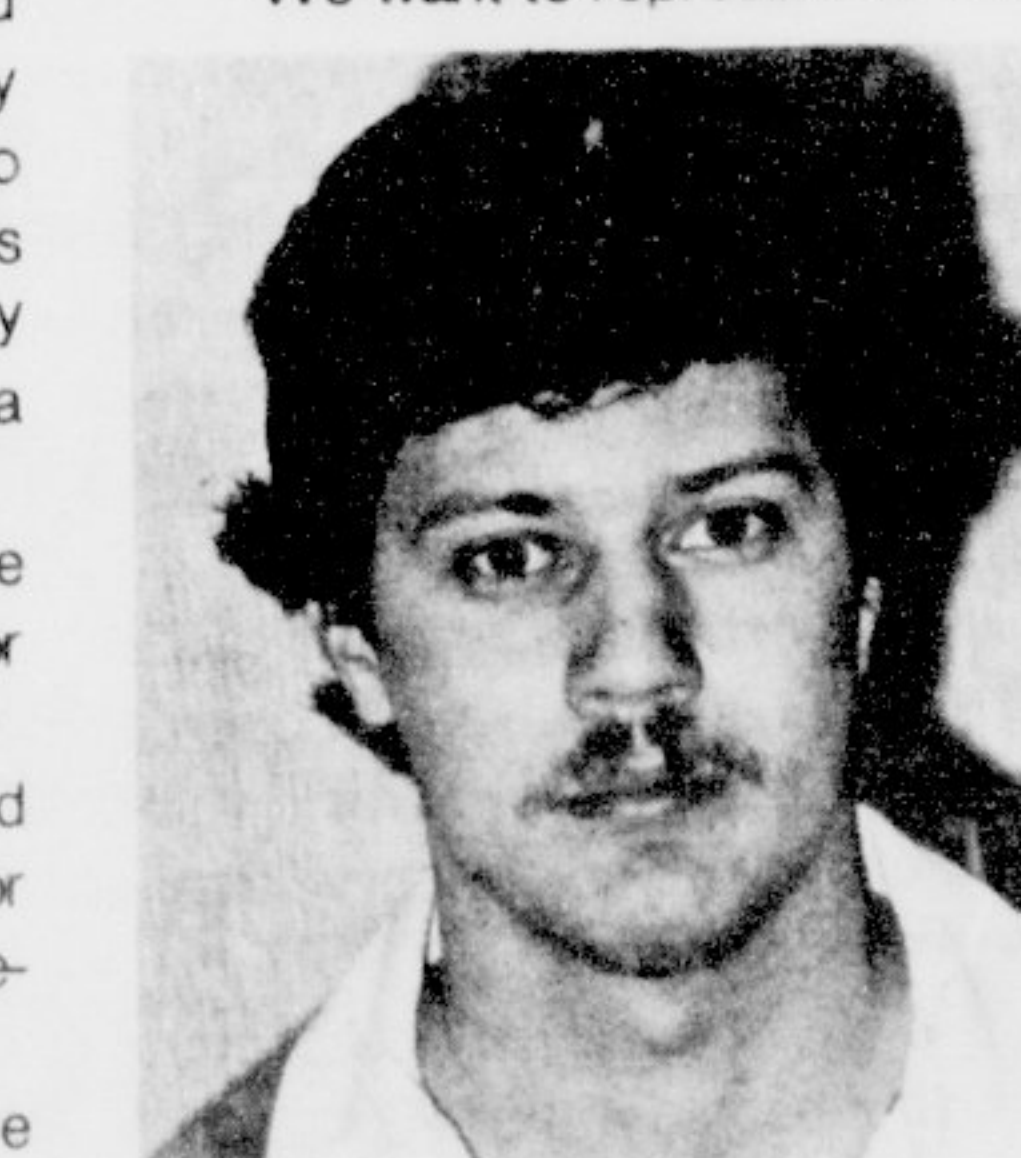

"This is a program where professors and students from any department can go to the beach and discuss academic problems, the curriculum, and have interaction that usually does not take place in the classroom," Payne said.

Payne said that he and Cartwright "don't know all the answers" and that they realize their ideas are not the only ones.

"We want to hear what everybody has to say and work for the best solution to the problems that confront all the students," Cartwright said.

"We want to represent all the Payne served on the Student Athletic Advisory Committee, and recently was appointed to serve on the Tenth Street Intersection Task Force.

According to Payne, the task force has found an alternative to an overpass which would eliminate the dangers students face at the busy intersection.

David Cartwright was elected to the legislature last fall and served as chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

Cartwright supported this year's retreat program and argued for its successful approval in the legislature.

Your vote counts

Participation. A widely used word. A participant. One who participates. Everyone participates in something. A class. A club. A game. Elections. A project. No, not elections. Only a certain number of people in the general public even bother to vote in elections.

And the general public is not the only group of people at fault. The student body at a university, for example. A good-sized student body, too. Something like the one here at ECU. Rarely does even half of the student body vote in an election.

Why? Do the students feel that they are not being represented properly in their student government? Perhaps they feel that their studies are much more important than extracurricular activities-which, of course, they should be, although these activities sometime, depending upon one's major or interest, can be very beneficial in providing one with practical experience which inevitably proves to be invaluable.

Why do so few students vote in ECU elections? Maybe they feel removed from the whole scene, that getting involved is simply not their bag.

Or maybe it's just plain old apathy. Students simply do not care that they have a voice in their government. What a pity. Suppose they did not have a voice in their government, whether it was their student government or the United States government? Only a couple of hundred years ago, our forefathers were not represented in the British parliament.

The students have a voice in their student government. They have the right to elect candidates to offices, the very offices in which is decided what will be done to and/or for the students. Yet, only a certain number of students even vote.

In last spring elections, for example, approximately 3,700 people voted. Only 3,700 out of approximately 12,000 students.

Certainly these students don't think that their vote doesn't matter. Everybody's vote matters. Every student should study all the candidates' platforms, talk to them individually, if possible, make a decision, and vote.

Students, don't think that you don't count. You do. Take advantage of your right to vote and have your ID's and activity cards ready when you approach the polls Wed., March 29.

Your vote does count.

Reader endorses Williams for president

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

After reading the Forum in Tuesday's edition of FOUNTAINHEAD, one would get the idea that there are only two candidates running for SGA president.

Maybe the students haven't noticed, and if they haven't let me inform them right now that there is a third candidate running.

His name is Jeff (Chip) Williams and in my opinion he is the best candidate for the position. In the last few years it seems that two factions have developed in the SGA.

Constant bickering has kept the SGA from operating efficiently and serving the students as it should. Jeff served in the SGA this past year as a day student representative.

I believe Jeff is a concerned and dedicated student who will bring about the changes needed in the SGA. It is time that we have a president who will look after the needs of the students and not his own interests.

Please remember to vote Wed., March 29 and vote for Jeff Williams, SGA president.

Thank you,
Debbie Grafton

Chairperson Lewis urges students to vote

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

On March 29, the SGA will have its annual Spring Executive officer elections. The Election Committee has been working very hard to assure a sound and fair election.

Many extra precautions are being taken. The purpose of an election is to leave the decision up to the voting populace, which is exactly our intention.

There will also be a constitutional amendment on the ballot. The proposed changes are "word" or stylistic changes. Many of them are needed because of the change from the quarter to semester system.

Some are to change the word President of ECU to Chancellor of ECU. This amendment was proposed by the Review Board and was approved by the legislature.

For the amendment to become law, 20% of the students must vote and 15% must approve it. Please read these proposed changes and indicate your approval or disapproval.

I would like to take this opportunity to urge each ECU student to come out and vote Wed., Mar. 29. This election is for the four Executive offices of the SGA (pres., vice-pres., treasurer, and secretary).

It has been said that SGA is the Students' voice. Of course, SGA consists of only a representative number of ECU students. But on Wednesday, the entire student body has the privilege to have their voices heard.

You, the ECU students, can decide who your SGA representatives will be. I think the old saying, "speak now or forever hold your peace" is very appropriate.

Speak your piece!!

Student endorses Payne, Cartwright for SGA posts

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

In regard to the upcoming SGA elections, I would like to endorse Tommy Joe Payne and David Cartwright as future officers.

Tommy, in the role as speaker of the house, and David, as chairperson for SGA appropriations committee, have shown themselves to be worthy of the student's confidence.

Their platform is designed to meet important student needs and it reflects their concern.

Their desire to do a personable, good job always is a strength both Tommy and David possess and it would be to each student's advantage to elect them officers of the SGA on March 29.

Thank you,
Mike Adkins

Student endorses non-partisan Williams for SGA presidency

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

For the last two years, the SGA has been riddled with controversy and petty politics. As all of us know, there are two political groups on campus who are constantly fighting with one another for control of SGA.

These two groups, the Sessoms, Warren, Payne crowd and the Sullivan bunch, have both had their day.

I believe it's time to elect an

SGA president who is his own man. We need a president who owes no loyalty to either side, a candidate who will approach the office with an open fair mind. That candidate is Jeff Williams.

Jeff is a student, first of all, and not a campus politician. He is here, like most of us, to get an education, not to play politics. Jeff is not spending hundreds of dollars and endless hours of his time to get elected SGA president, as the other two candidates are.

He seeks this office because he feels he is qualified and can end the petty squabbles which have disillusioned so many students with the SGA.

Jeff Williams is the only alternative our campus has to the partisan politics of the SGA. Jeff offers us the opportunity to reject both sides of this mundane political rivalry.

He is the sensible alternative to another year of childish politics in the SGA. With Jeff Williams as president, the SGA can get on with its business of serving and representing the student body.

Legislator endorses Payne, Cartwright for SGA posts

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

As the Election Date nears for the students at East Carolina, I feel that it is essential for each of us to take the time to consider each candidates' qualifications and attributes.

After reviewing the names for the candidacy of president and vice-president, I feel the only two men capable of performing the job are Tommy Joe Payne and David Cartwright.

Having been involved actively in student government this year, I have had the honor and privilege of working with both Tommy Joe and David. It has been an honor because both of these guys are gentlemen and take a sincere interest in the happenings of our growing university.

Tommy Joe and David not only have the student's best interest at heart, but they are listeners as well as workers.

Payne's record in SGA as speaker of the legislature is spotless in spite of the politicians who tried to ruin his good name. Cartwright has shown the qualities of a fine leader and a devoted legislator through his chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee.

These guys have some really great ideas for the future: increased campus security, dorm contracts renewable each semester, and plans to increase the parking areas.

These are just a few of their ideas, but there is one thing that makes these two candidates outstanding in my mind. Tommy Joe nor David are making promises that will never be fulfilled as candidates in the past have done.

Tommy Joe and David are just like the rest of us on campus except they are willing to work for the students and in doing so are capable of putting all students first instead of themselves.

I know they are not running for office for fame and glory because both candidates already have a record of outstanding leadership.

Many of the students who will be reading this letter know absolutely nothing about student government except what they read or hear from unreliable sources.

On March 29 when you go to the polls to vote, trust a reliable person who knows that the most qualified candidate for president is Tommy Joe Payne and for vice-president, David Cartwright.

Let's continue to make East Carolina Number One: Let's put Tommy Joe Payne and David Cartwright in office. Vote for these good guys March 29 and you will never regret it.

Reader supports Williams for SGA presidential post

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

Jeff Williams is not aligned with any of the political factions that have at times transformed SGA into a theater of the absurd. If elected, he will seek to restore the function of the SGA to that of a service organization.

You will not see his name plastered on every wall because he is a student running a student's campaign, not a hard-core politico.

Jeff is concerned with working toward reasonable goals and making reasonable promises. A student consumer advocacy board and a published review of professor performance are two programs which Jeff plans to implement.

He realizes that as SGA president he will not be omnipotent, but that he can have an effective voice in several areas of policy making.

Promises are nice but realistic promises are better. Vote for Jeff Williams and remove partisan politics from the SGA presidency.

R. David Miller

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

As a day student at ECU I would like to endorse the team of Payne/Cartwright as SGA president and vice-president.

I know much of what follows may seem repetitious but I need to state the facts related to the campaign so that the issues are clear to all students.

The main issues upon which Tommy Joe Payne and David Cartwright are for are more flexible dorm contracts, three-year textbook adoption, reinstating the retreat programs, improve security on campus, construct bus shelters, extend bus routes, and the most important to serve all students.

These issues are presented straightforwardly and show that Payne/Cartwright are running for SGA positions not for their personal gain, but to aid and represent the students of ECU.

Payne and Cartwright are a good team due to their previous experience in the SGA. Tommy Joe Payne was the speaker of the legislature while David served as day student legislator and chairperson of the Appropriations Committee.

Both guys have recently resigned from their positions so that more time can be devoted to their campaign.

One of the factors influencing me to endorse this team is their efforts to meet the students of ECU. They have been on a rigorous schedule for a week now, going from dorm to dorm, and also covering the Greek's houses.

They are giving of themselves to let the students know who they are and what they stand for.

In closing, I would like to make an appeal to the entire student body to vote March 29. I want to impress upon the day students here at ECU that you are a part of this school and your vote is of great importance!

Take a minute of your time and vote for the best team - Tommy Joe Payne for SGA president and David Cartwright for SGA vice-president.

Sincerely,
Don Williams

Reader believes in honesty, backs Payne, Cartwright

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

I believe in honesty. I believe in fairness for all students not just a select few. I believe in rational ideas and promises. I believe in strong leadership.

And, because I believe in all of these virtues, I believe in Tommy Joe Payne and David Cartwright for SGA president and vice-president.

I know Payne and Cartwright very well and am impressed with their potential leadership. These two, working as a team, make fine speakers and will be a credit to our university.

After listening to their ideas, I got the strong impression that they were not simply making promises to win our votes, but are genuinely interested in improving our campus.

They present the student body with rational, workable ideas instead of unreasonable promises which could not be kept.

Payne and Cartwright are offering this campus a challenge and a wonderful opportunity.

They are offering us a fair student government, good ideas, and the leadership that ECU need to keep growing and prospering.

Senior student endorses Sullivan for SGA presidential post

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

As a senior here at ECU I couldn't let another SGA election pass without at long last voicing my opinion.

I sat in the SGA a year ago when Tim Sullivan was president, and I saw and felt the effects of a hardworking, devoted officer.

I watched a true politician with a sincere interest in his job and the people he represented, dedicate the majority of his time to his office and its constituents.

Indeed, some toes were stepped on, as would be expected in the pursuit of any controversial issue, but the end results of success were consistent.

Tim is honest. He based every possible important decision on the opinion and support of the legislature. As a legislator, he introduced and passed numerous bills, which is an accomplishment no other presidential candidate can claim.

Tim knows student government. He perceives beneficial goals and achieves them. He not only recognizes our expectations but is now aware of his limits and what's more, he has the knowledge of past experience on which to act.

Tim is realistic. He doesn't stand on a platform which has no legs.

Talk to him when he reaches you in his campaign. If you have any doubts in his credentials, I'll guarantee assurance in his qualifications, afterwards.

I think that it's way past time that the indignation and childish animosities toward SGA end. It's time our campus organizations are again unified and that the students, not the publications or administration, run the students.

Therefore, I endorse Tim Sullivan for SGA president.

Kati Ray

Cartwright backed for vice-presidency

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

Two issues that have long been discussed and are of great concern to the student body are parking and pedestrian crossing at the intersection of Tenth Street and College Hill Drive.

Now that the SGA elections are coming up maybe some definite action will finally be taken. These two projects are perfect for the SGA vice-president's attention.

I am reasonably certain that if David Cartwright is elected SGA vice-president this coming Wed., March 29, the students may see some rapid results.

David Cartwright has served on the intersection task force and has met personally with the N.C. Sec. of Transportation, Tom Bradshaw. This kind of personal connection makes positive action almost certain. He, if anyone, can get something done to make crossing safer.

Judging from David's service as appropriations chairman, I am sure that he can work with the appropriate officials to ease the parking predicament.

Because I am concerned about these two issues, I plan to vote for David Cartwright and urge others who share these concerns to support him also.

Sincerely,
Debbie Finley

Reader supports Payne, Cartwright for SGA

To FOUNTAINHEAD:

The election of Tommy Joe Payne and David Cartwright for SGA president and vice-president would be a plus for student government on this campus.

Both of these persons have been active in student government for the past two years, and despite being harrassed by what many persons feel as unjust criticism, the two have performed their duties admirably and with a perseverance for integrity.

By their being candidates for office, the students have a clear-cut choice for two leaders who will practice honesty and fairness in student government.

I recommend that all students support these candidates for office. I firmly believe that they will represent the interest of all students, and not play favorites with any special organization.

I also believe that they will best co-operate with the new chancellor, Dr. Brewer, and his administration, in creating a good working relationship with student government and the administration.

On March 31, vote Tommy Joe Payne, and David Cartwright, president and vice-president of the SGA.

SGA CANDIDATES

Vice-President

Libby Lefler

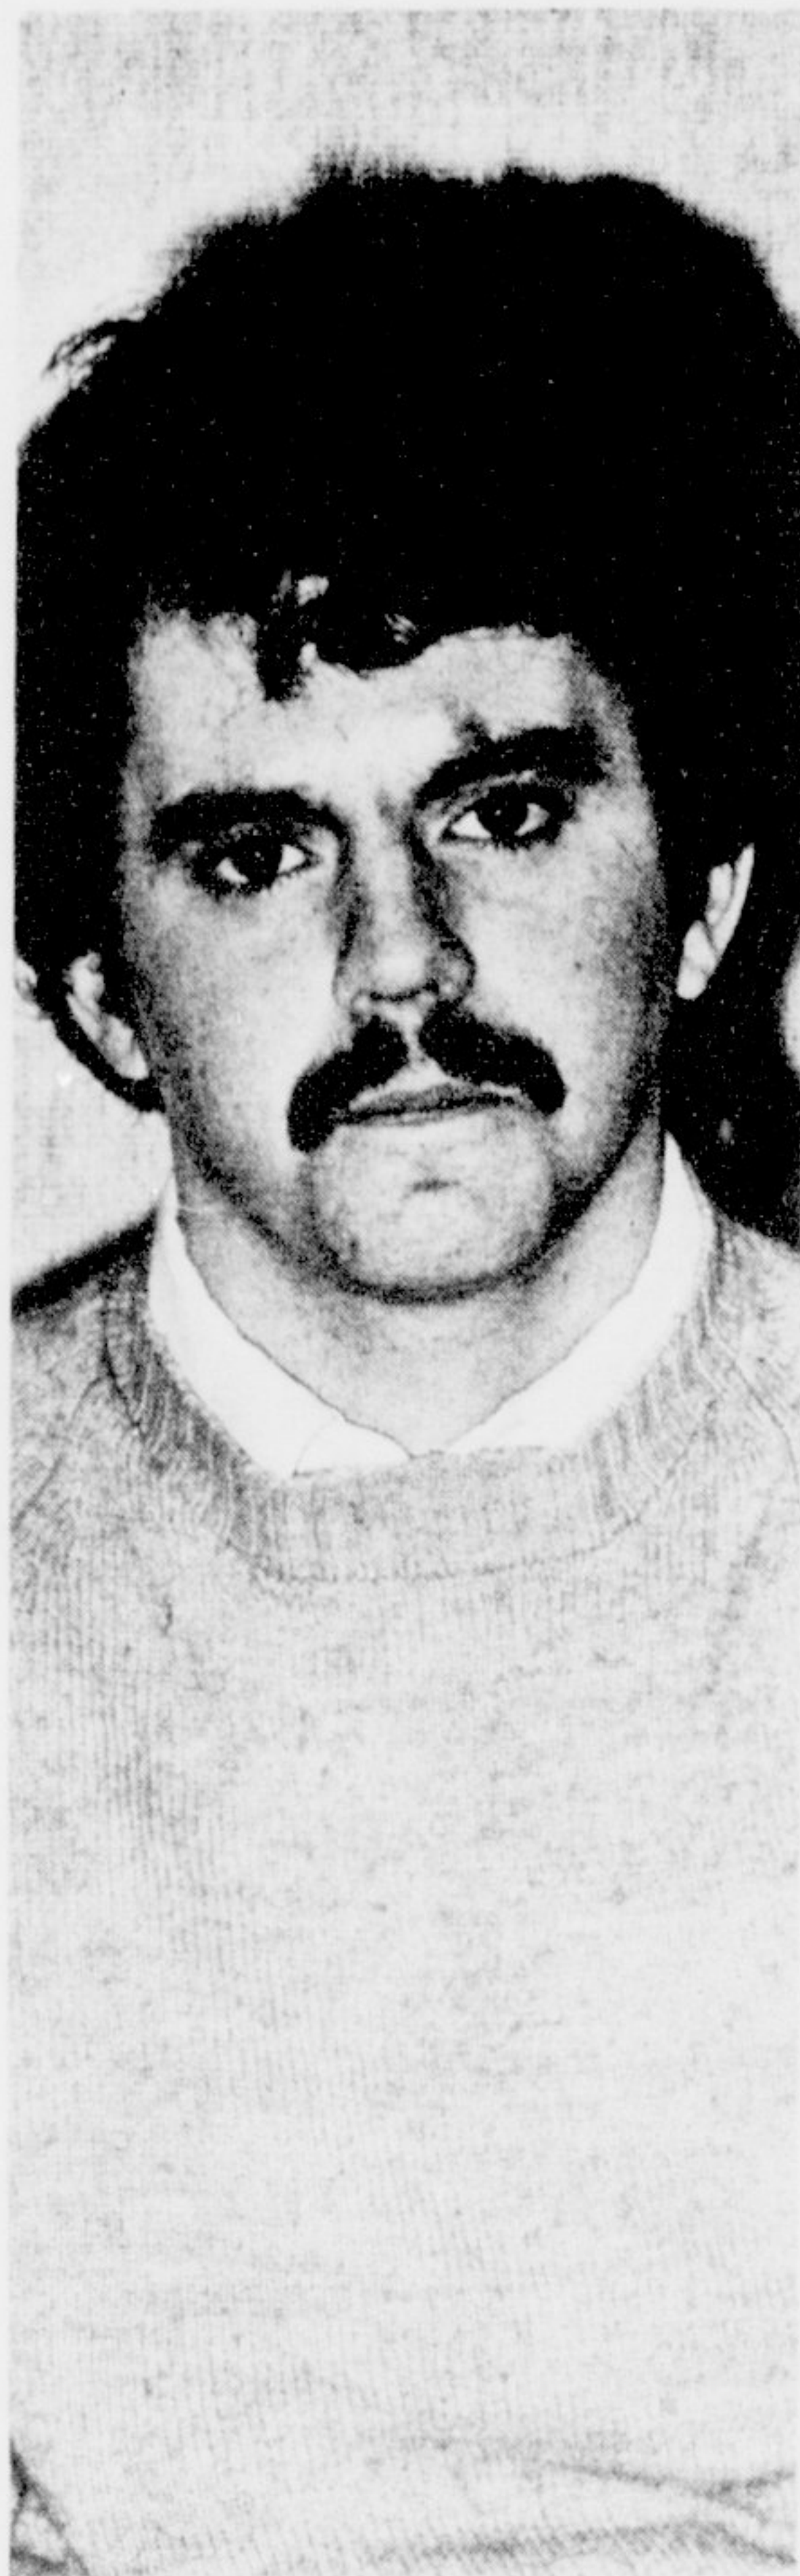

The vice-president's role in SGA is one with no set guidelines. Thus, it is one of initiative. However, along with initiative, one must be willing to take the needed time to originate new programs or simply improve the old.

I have never missed a meeting as SGA secretary and have only one absence in my two years in the legislature. This shows I am willing to devote time to SGA.

One project I am interested in is obtaining a seat on the Greenville Utilities Commission. This would allow a presentation of student views on any increase or change.

Two other pertinent issues are allowing students to decide upon the type visitation which they want in their respective dorms and improving safety on campus.

Through your support and votes, Tim Sullivan and I will combine initiative, devotion and experience to work for you, the students.

Tim Sullivan

This year has seen constant fighting between the SGA president and our SGA legislature, and the people who have been hurt most by it are the groups on campus who need funding: music, art, and academic departments.

I have served in SGA's legislature for two years, and I can work to see that the arts and others receive a fair chance.

One gripe I have heard over and over is that the student vote on our board of trustees is wasted because the SGA president doesn't represent us. Before I would ever vote for a fee, dorm rent, or car sticker increase I would hold a valid student referendum. When it comes to our money, that kind of input is vital.

I have served three years in SGA: as Freshman and Junior president in our legislature, where I have introduced (and have passed) over a dozen bills. No other presidential candidate has ever introduced a single bill.

This ability to deliver on promises is important in the election, and this experience is why I and Libby Lefler are running for office.

President

Lynn Bell

My name is Lynn Bell and I am seeking the office of SGA secretary. I am rather unique from the other candidates in this election for I am unopposed.

I feel that I am very qualified to be secretary. I have represented Clement Dorm as a legislator for the past two years. Also, I have worked closely with the present secretary on several occasions.

Most people think that the job of secretary involves only a little typing and an ability to record minutes. This is not the story. The secretary is a voting member of the Executive Council and the backbone of the Legislature.

I will work hard as secretary. I would like to see many accomplishments made next year and I will do everything possible to make SGA the voice of the students.

David Cartwright

SGA needs responsible, effective leadership to really serve the students. I feel that Tommy Joe Payne and I can deliver that kind of leadership.

I served in the legislature this past year as chairman of the appropriations committee that directly oversees the spending of all SGA funds. I feel this background is essential to informed and rational decision making as vice-president.

As vice-president, I will make it my personal full-time duty to push for increased parking. Through the special Tenth Street Intersection Task Force I served on this year, I feel I can now really get relief for the constant and dangerous problem.

Tommy Joe and I have experience and good ideas, but we will constantly seek out the student's feelings and the matters that concern them.

We want the chance to offer REAL representation.

DATES' FORUM

President

Jeff Williams

You have heard about the trouble in SGA this year.

The bickering is the result of an intense political rivalry between two factions in the SGA.

Payne is supported by one and Sullivan by the other as each vies for control of the legislature. As a legislator, I saw how they contorted issues for political gains.

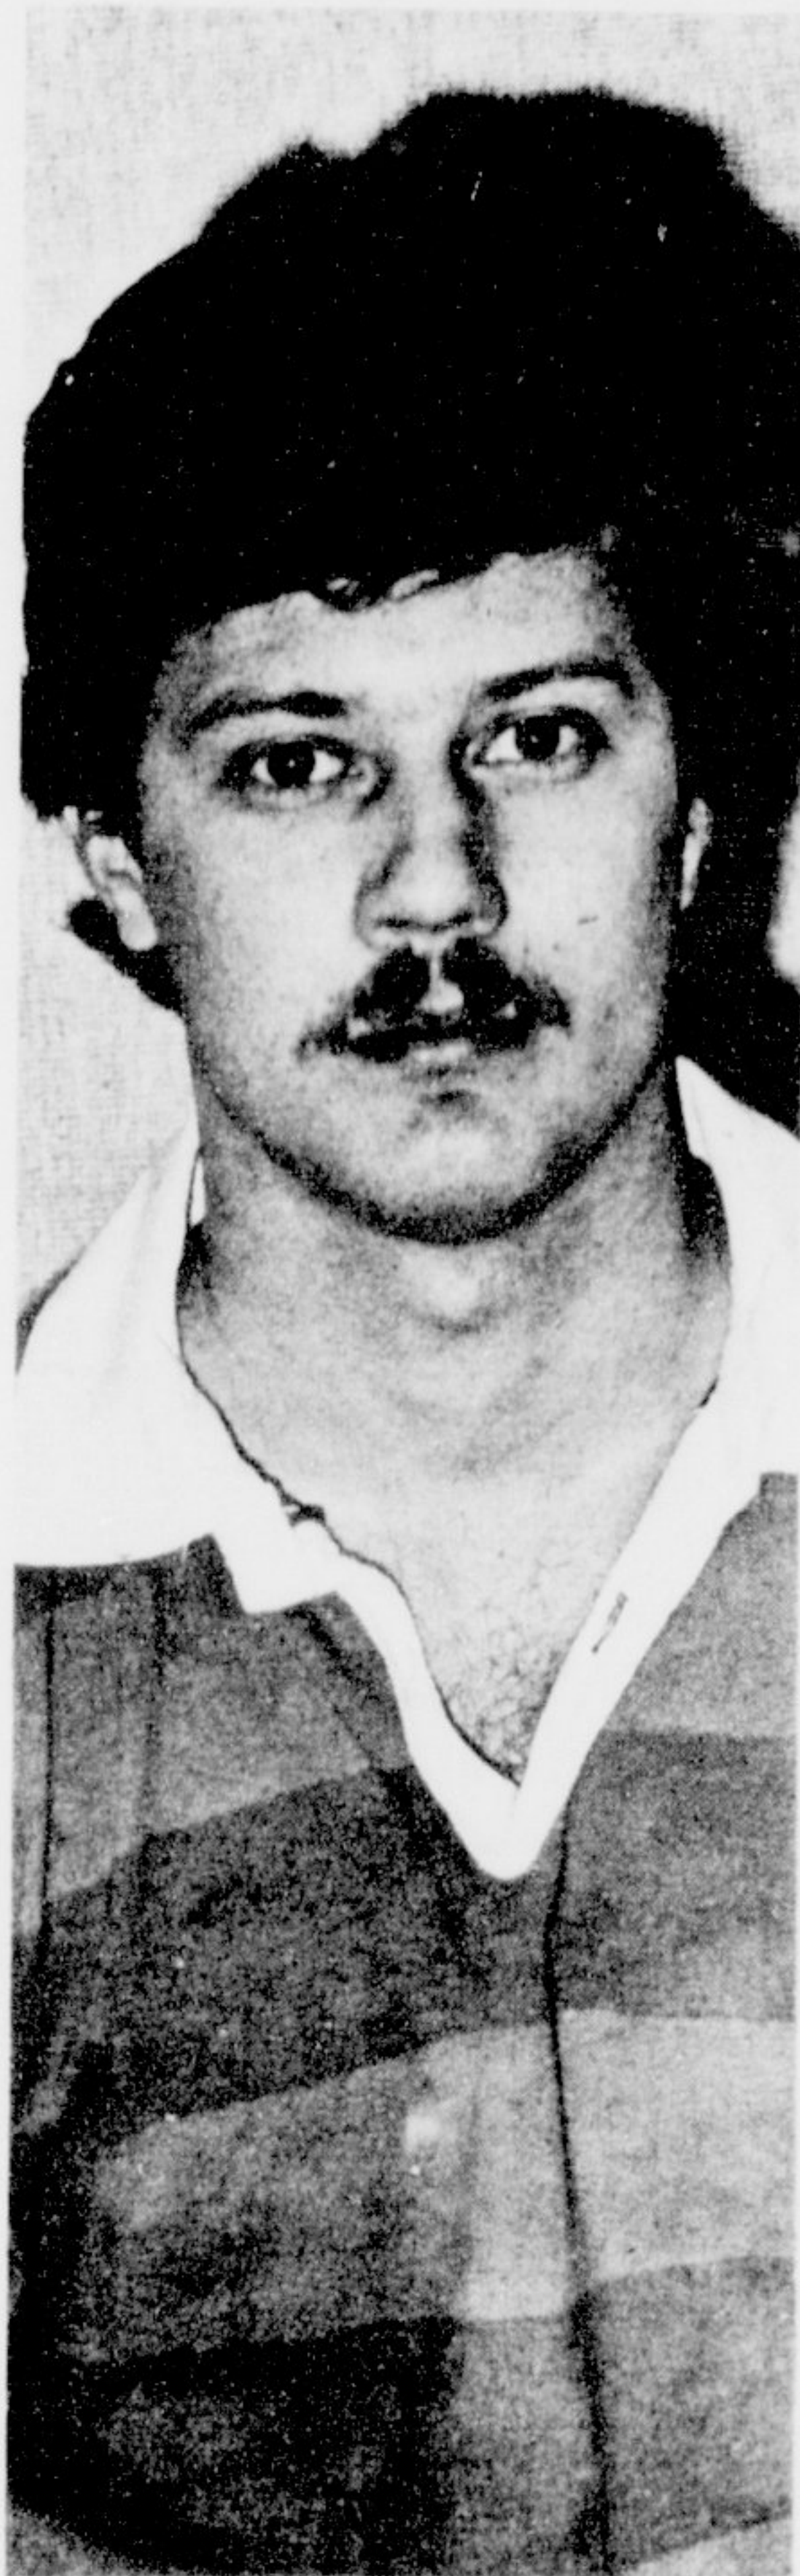

I'm running because, like you, I'm fed up with the situation. If Payne or Sullivan assume office, we will be subjected to a repeat performance.

I'm not aligned with those groups and intend to change the focus of the SGA from a political playhouse to the service organization it should be.

That is my foremost goal; others I will work for include: (1) one semester dorm contracts; (2) FM conversion of WECU; (3) extended drop period; (4) professor rating for pre-registration; (5) referendum to ascertain student priorities for SGA funding; and (6) consumer union to rate goods and services in Greenville.

Tommy Joe Payne

The SGA president, above all other things, must continually be responsive to every student's ideas and desires.

I have served in SGA for two years, but I do not pretend to know all the answers and I do not hold any special interest.

As president, I would listen to all ideas and then work toward what is best for all students.

David Cartwright, my running mate for vice-president, and I would work for you on these issues: (1) flexible dorm contracts; (2) three-year book program; (3) better campus security; (4) reinstate retreat program; (5) extend bus routes and provide bus shelters; (6) better food service on campus; (7) increased parking, and (8) serve all students, not special interests.

David and I will serve you responsibly in your SGA. Cast your vote for Payne-Cartwright for president and vice-president on Wed., March 29.

Treasurer

Wiley Betts

As Treasurer:

(1) I plan to work closely with the SGA legislature, Executive Council and others so that we might be able to reach a fair and just budget for next year.

(2) The campus is uninformed as to the procedure for applying for an appropriation from the SGA. I intend to assist anyone in their effort towards this goal.

(3) I support all academic organizations and feel that they are the backbone of society.

(4) I will do my best at working closely with the SGA legislature, Executive Council, and others so that we might be able to reach a fair and unbiased budget for next year.

(5) As treasurer, I will fulfill all my duties to the best of my ability in hopes that we may obtain an efficient, productive, financial government.

The first act I will put into effect when elected is to show the students just what student monies are being spent on which clubs and organizations. I will do this in hopes that the populus of this campus will become fully aware of the SGA's annual outlay.

In closing, I would like to state that I will remain, above all, neutral, with the ever increasing issue concerning students funds and politics, it will take a clear and logical mind to decipher the true needs from the padded needs in a budget.

Bernard Smith

The foremost important issue is the establishment of a better rapport between the Student Government Association (SGA) and the student body. The SGA is responsible to the student body as its elected representative to serve in their best interests.

This responsibility should be remembered throughout the implementation of policy decisions.

I decided to run for office because I feel that I am capable of fulfilling the position effectively.

The treasurer doesn't necessarily have an expert knowledge of business and financial matters. He must be able to relate to and understand students and their needs as well as knowing how to prepare regular budget reports.

During my stay here at ECU, I have participated in numerous extracurricular activities: NCSL, the BUCCANEER, SCJ National Honor Society, and as a brother of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

If given the opportunity to serve as your treasurer, I will strive to prove myself worthy by performing a justifiable task which my peers consider me capable of doing.

Jenkins in retrospect

'You've got to stay in the business, you've got to emphasize, you've got to do the best you can...'

By STUART MORGAN
News Editor

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, Dean of ECU from 1947 to 1960, President from 1960 to 1972, and Chancellor from 1972 to this date, will remain an important part of this university after he retires.

Critics of Jenkins will probably say, "Alas, we have the type of person we want in Dr. Thomas Brewer," his successor as chancellor here.

But, the majority of his supporters from Eastern North Carolina will almost invariably say, "It's a shame that the new chancellor isn't a second Jenkins."

Despite what anyone says, one thing is certain. While Jenkins was president and chancellor, at the helm of the administration here, this university grew by leaps and bounds.

As a result of his persistence and leadership, ECU has achieved astonishing progress in many of its programs.

HAPPIEST MOMENTS

"I think that when our medical school became accredited was my happiest moment here," Jenkins said. "That was the end of a tenure struggle."

"But, I was also exceedingly gratified and happy when we beat State, Duke, Wake Forest, and Chapel Hill in football," Jenkins added. "That was a compliment to this growing institution, our coaches and our men."

"I was also very happy to see the summer theatre become a reality, that brought a lot of happiness to a great deal of people. But, I was sorry when we weren't able to continue it because of financial difficulties," he added.

EMPHASIS ON PROGRAMS

Jenkins has often been accused of overemphasizing various programs. "That's true historically," Jenkins admitted. "At one time, I was overemphasizing art, another time music. And then, there were the accusations of my overemphasizing the athletic and medical programs."

"You've got to stay in the business, you've got to want to emphasize, you've got to want to do the best you can," Jenkins stressed.

"When a university has as many schools and programs as we have, it's necessary to emphasize various programs in their different stages," he added.

LOOKING BACK

Everyone realizes that hindsight is 20/20.

However, it is interesting to ask someone to look back retrospectively to mention the things that they would change if given the opportunity. Jenkins was asked that question.

"If I could go back, I would have encouraged faster growth," Jenkins answered. "I would have not only our people, but all people recruit more vigorously the bright minority student, and the bright economically disadvantaged white student."

"Students shouldn't have had to fight or strive for the things they wanted during that period," Jenkins said.

"It taught us the importance of freedom of movement and expression which they were fighting for and did not enjoy at the time," Jenkins added.

Jenkins said he has never seen so many students who were so polite and nice as those he has encountered here during the last four or five years.

"That's true almost without exception," he added.

Trends

"Too many times at high school commencements, I've learned of cases where attending college to such students was beyond their wildest imagination," Jenkins said. "Often, their parents were too poor, or either anti-intellectual or anti-educational."

"Now we're doing that, we have the programs which enable us and all other institutions to recruit such students," Jenkins added.

TRENDS IN STUDENTS

A little over a quarter of a century Jenkins has been in a position to notice various trends in the students here.

"It has been a cyclical thing," he said. "There was a period of the apathetic 50's, when many students couldn't care less about anything except their studies; the period of protests and nonconformity during the 60's; and then the very friendly and cooperative 70's."

"During the 60's, the spirit of unrest and dissatisfaction with the Vietnam War spilled onto our campuses," Jenkins said. "Often, I would say hello to them, and they would turn their heads."

But, Jenkins said he understood the situation and realized those students were angry.

"On three occasions, we had students march on our home and protest various things that were happening, or they gave me a list of demands and so forth," Jenkins added.

"It was a depressing and difficult period, not necessarily for me, but for my family. They too had to listen to the cat calls late at night," he added.

However, Jenkins said the situation was not unique at this university. He added that the situation exists all over the nation.

For example, he pointed out the Kent State incident where three students were killed by National Guardsmen.

"HELLO LEO!"

At the age of 65, Jenkins spends about an hour each night walking around campus where he meets students from all directions.

Often, girls waving and leaning from their dormitory windows, shout "Hello Leo!"

But, does Chancellor Leo Jenkins mind that informal greeting? "No, I think that's a compliment," Jenkins replied. "They do it in good spirits, knowing that I don't object. Occasionally, students will stop and talk to me, telling me where they're from."

"Of course, about four or five times a week someone will drive by my house and roar, 'Go to hell Leo!' But, I realize that they're just having fun," Jenkins added.

Jenkins then commended the Student Government Association here. "Historically, our student legislatures have been good," Jenkins said. "They've taken great responsibility, and we've never had any problems with money or dishonesty that I know of."

"The SGA spends money as they see fit. But, there have been times when I've disagreed with the amounts of money they've spent hiring various singers, groups, and lecturers," Jenkins added.

But, Jenkins said it was their right to spend their money as they wanted. His philosophy being that if there is going to be a student government it should be "the real thing."

The FOUNTAINHEAD, the campus newspaper, was commended by Jenkins.

"During the many years that I've worked here, I've been very happy with and proud of our student paper," Jenkins said.

"TWO WAY STREET OF COMMUNICATION"

"My greatest achievement here has been in establishing a two way street of communication with many of our publics," Jenkins added. "For example, our industrial people, rural people, farming people, professional people, students, and faculty."

Jenkins has presented numerous speeches to various organizations, including speeches at over 250 high school commencements.

He said communication resulted in such things as the nursing school, paramedical programs, business programs, and the medical school.

THE FUTURE OF ECU

When Jenkins was asked what changes he predicted for ECU in the near future, he replied:

"I think that the number of senior citizens on this campus will increase dramatically," Jenkins said. "We're giving many people the opportunity to retire after 20 or 30 years and many of them want second careers."

"We're told they're going to live longer. Men are going to live to be around 74, women are going to live into their 80's," Jenkins added. "These people are going to want opportunities, they're going to want something to do."

"Governor Hunt might ask me to return to school to take a course in state government or some other course," Jenkins said. "If so, that wouldn't be something unusual, it would be something many people have to do."

The retiring chancellor said he was very favorably impressed with Dr. Thomas B. Brewer, his successor. And, he commended the chancellor selection committee for doing a marvelous job.

"He seemed to ask the right questions," Jenkins said. "All of the faculty here who have met him, without exception, have told me that they were very pleased with him."

Jenkins said Brewer appeared to be a very understanding, intelligent, knowledgeable type of man.

"Dr. Brewer has a charming wife, she is an asset to a man in his position," he added. "She will have no problems continuing to entertain guests the way we did."

BREWER'S FIRST YEAR

Eighty-five per cent of everyone who has ever attended this university has done so while Jenkins was here. That obviously means that there will be a tremendous field of people who will be watching, comparing Brewer with Jenkins.

"It's going to be difficult for him," Jenkins admitted. "Not because of me, but because of the length of time I've been here."

Jenkins said Brewer realizes the situation he will be facing during his first year.

"His first year here will be one of the busiest years of his life," Jenkins said. "He'll be accepting numerous invitations to present speeches to various organizations, such as Rotary clubs and Kiwanis clubs, clubs of that type."

GENERALIZING COLLEGES

Jenkins said it is very difficult to generalize about any university in North Carolina. He added it depended on the program the student pursued, the teachers he receives, etc.

"You must go and judge the program," Jenkins said. "In comparing ECU with other colleges, the best thing I can say is that a third of our students come from the piedmont region."

"They pass by several colleges to get here. Often the distance is longer, but certainly we're not any cheaper," he added.

"There's something here that they're after, and we have what they want," Jenkins said. "In the future, I will say that we'll hold our own with any other institution in this state."

ADVICE TO STUDENTS

Jenkins said he would never advise the faculty or students to scratch or dig to get ahead. Instead, he said he would advise them to enjoy life, to lean back and help their neighbors.

"I honestly believe that has caught on here," said Jenkins. "I can't even recall having an argument or even a heated discussion with a faculty member here."

"I would say to students that the key thing that they'll ever live for in all of their careers is that thing called love," Jenkins said.

"Many truly successful men are nice men who are efficient. They're the ones who wouldn't dream of being ugly to their subordinates."

Jenkins said love, understanding, and faith must be carried into married life, professional life, and cultural life. Such things would most likely result in happiness, said Jenkins.

"If you try to get ugly, you'll be unhappy. There'll always be guys uglier than you," Jenkins said.

Mangione: 'his popularity has exploded'

By SUSAN CHESTON
Staff Writer

On March 29 at 8 p.m., Chuck Mangione and the Chuck Mangione Quartet will appear in concert at Wright Auditorium.

Mangione is a composer, conductor, and musician whose easy style is a blend of jazz, classical and rock, with a touch of Latin thrown in. His unique jazz is best known by the sound of Mangione himself on his ever mellow flugelhorn.

A few years ago hardly anybody could tell you who Chuck Mangione was, much less pronounce his name! (Man-gee-oh-nee.) Even last year his music was best known to a small, but fanatically loyal cult of fans. Now, however, Mangione's popularity has exploded.

With TV exposure on such sports shows as the Dorothy Hamill Special, the 1976 Olympic Games and the ABC Superstars; and on talk shows such as Merv Griffin and the Tonight Show; and with his recordings of "Chase the Clouds Away", "Bellavia", "Main Squeeze", and the new "Feels So Good," Chuck Mangione has started to win the recognition he deserves.

All this recording and performing activity has culminated in receiving the 1977 Grammy Award for "Bellavia." After seven Grammy nominations, Chuck was honored with receiving the award above such talents as Stevie Wonder, Earth, Wind and Fire, Chick Corea, Quincy Jones and Henry Mancini.

Mangione now appears with a young quartet featuring Chris Vadala on flutes and saxophones, Grant Geissman on guitars, Charles Meeks on bass guitar, and 19-year-old James Bradley, Jr. on drums. Mangione fills in with electric piano when not soloing on flugelhorn.

Greenville, N.C. is just one of the stops Mangione is making on a 9-month tour which includes sold-out performances across the nation. At a time when most well known artists are holed up in recording studios or making select appearances in major concert halls, Mangione is one of the few who still believe in "taking the music to the people."

Mangione is noted for enjoying his own concerts. He attributes his warm, relaxed concert style to the warmth and love of his early home life. One of Chuck's favorite stories reflects the support provided by his father.

"We would go hear somebody like Dizzy Gillespie. Father would walk up to them like he knew them all his life, and he'd say, 'Hi, Dizzy! My name is Frank Mangione, these are my kids, they play.' And before you'd know it, father would be talking with this guy, and would invite them over for spaghetti and Italian wine, and we'd wind up having a jam session in the living room."

If Mangione's reputation holds true, Wright Auditorium will be the scene of yet another magical jam session next Wednesday night. Student tickets for Wednesday's performance may be purchased for $3.00 at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall. Tickets for the public and all tickets at the door are $5.00.

Acclaimed chamber ensemble is next Artist Series attraction

By LYNN BEYAR
Assistant Trends Editor

The Beaux Arts Trio, an internationally acclaimed chamber ensemble, will be presented in recital on Thursday, March 30, in Mendenhall Student Center Theatre at 8 p.m. This outstanding group of musicians will appear at ECU as an additional attraction of the Student Union Artist Series 1977-78 season, co-sponsored by the School of Music FESTIVAL '78.

The Trio, comprised of Menahem Pressler, piano, Isidore Cohen, violin and Bernard Greenhouse, cello, has garnered extraordinary critical acclaim in performances all over the world. Since their public debut at the Berkshire Festival in Tanglewood twenty-one years ago, the Beaux Arts Trio has played more than 3,500 engagements on three continents and have made numerous recordings.

The prize-winning ensemble has recorded all the Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Brahms, Ravel, Tchaikovsky (op. 50), Schubert and Dvorak trios. The Beaux Arts Trio has been awarded the coveted "Grand Prix du Disque" and is at the top of every best selling classical list throughout the United States and Europe.

"Their secret lies in all the qualities listed above (virtuosity, expert coordination, unspoken communication, musical insight) in such just proportions that the listener would not have changed anything. They are three quite individual musicians who have learned to defer to each other to create a single personality for the ensemble." This quote from The Montreal Star is just one example of the incessant praise which the group has received from newspaper critics all over the world.

The group's reputation is undoubtedly well-deserved, and the members have gathered their own individual laurels as well.

Menahem Pressler had appeared as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic, and the list goes on.

Isidore Cohen has appeared with the Juilliard String Quartet, the Budapest String Quartet, and has been concertmaster of The Little Orchestra Society in New York, the orchestra at the Casals Festival in Puerto Rico, and the Mozart Festival in Lincoln Center.

Celloist Bernard Greenhouse has studied with Pablo Casals, who has written of him: "Bernard Greenhouse is not only a remarkable cellist, but what I esteem more, a dignified artist."

Tickets for the performance are $4.00 for the public and $2 for groups of twenty or more. ECU

THE BEAUX ARTS Trio will appear in the Mendenhall Student Center Theatre on Thursday, March 30 at 8:00 p.m.

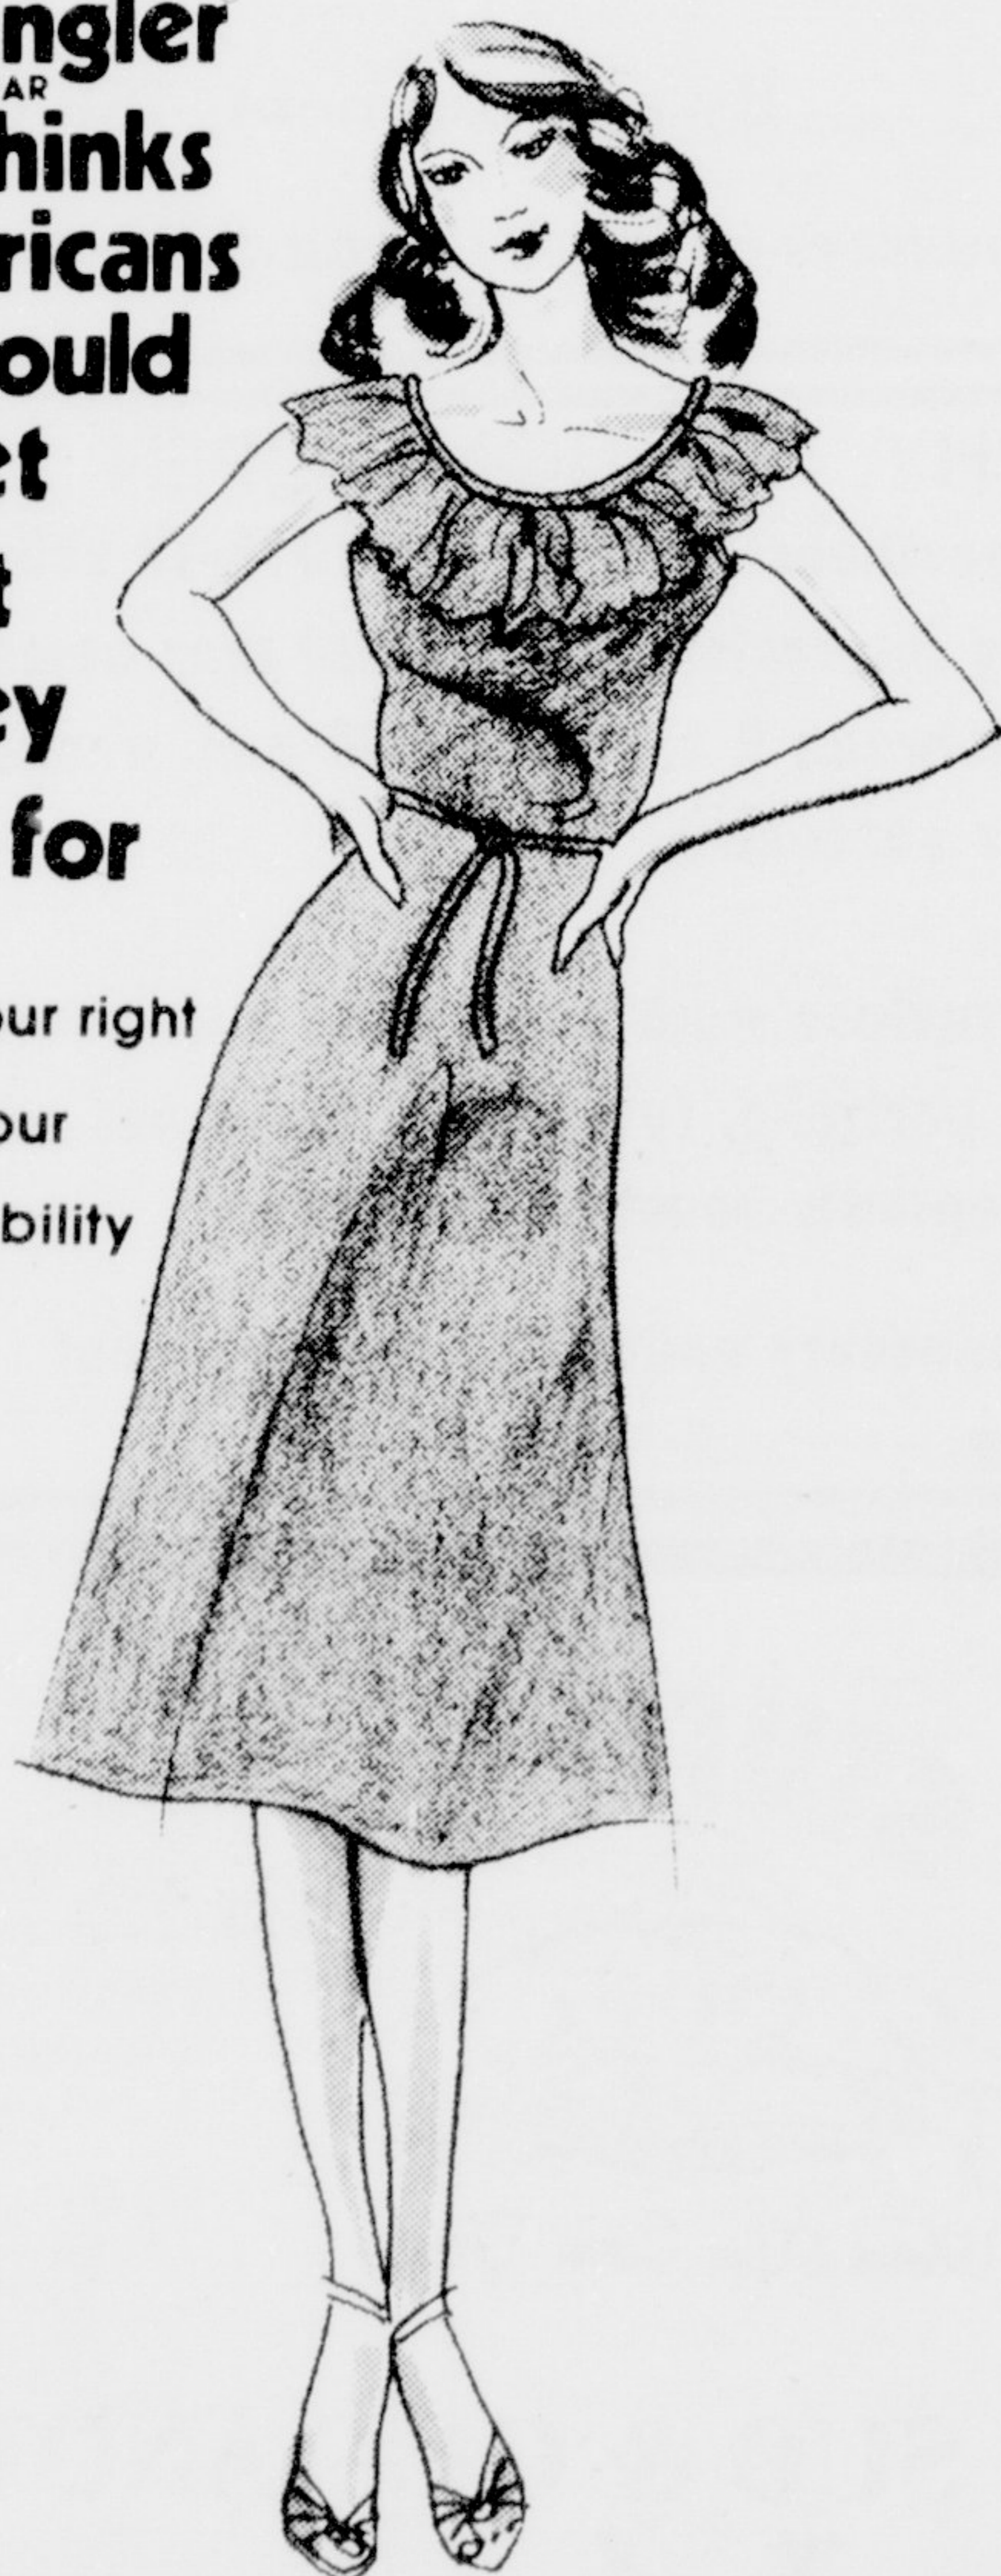

students are admitted by I.D. and Activity Card and faculty and staff by MSC membership card. Holders of Artist Series season tickets may pick up a ticket free of charge at the Central Ticket Office either prior to the performance or at the door.

Vinyl Review

by David Whitson

Chuck Mangione: Feels so Good

While I realize that mellow Mangione's style of musical expression does not mark him as a high energy player—his choice of horn itself testifies to his pursuit of the introspective rather than the dazzling in his works—this album drags.

There is a lack of vibrance in this album, especially when compared to his last A & M release "Main Squeeze." Admittedly, the orchestral range of instrumentation in the former LP (the combined effort of twenty instrumentalists and one concert master in addition to Mangione himself) allowed for experiments in instrumental interplay which reach fuque-like complexity.

"Feels so Good" by contrast, marks a return by Mangione to the tight simplicity of a quartet backup. As a result, this album is not as good for concentrated listening. Mangione composed and arranged every cut on this album, but his iron control stifles the imaginative musicianship of his last L.P.

The four sidemen who accompany Mangione on this album, namely Chris Vadala on saxes, piccolo and flute; Grant Geissman on guitars; Charles Meeks on bass, and James Bradley on percussion) exhibit a mastery of their instruments, which reveals a notable maturity of style. In fact, to call them "sidemen" is nearly an insult since some cuts, specifically "Last Dance" belong to guitarist "General Grant" Geissman.

Little hopes to turn baseball team around

PIRATE BASEBALL HEAD coach Monte Little.

By DAVID MERRIAM
Staff Writer

Almost as sure as the Spring weather upon us, ECU's baseball team is looking to continue their winning tradition, unfortunately mental mistakes and lack of aggressive play have hampered a winning start.

Second year head-coach Monte Little has been working his team into top physical condition, however problems don't seem to be in either physical training or preparation.

"At this point in the season," said Little, "my philosophy concerning the game is not coinciding with what the team is doing on the field. I pride the team in being aggressive, with little or no mental mistakes—but we haven't been aggressive enough and mental flaws on the field have kept us from being 8 and 1 instead of 5 and 4."

"We are definitely a better team than what our record shows," continued Little. "I really feel bad for the team and to the student body. They (both team & students) deserve better than what we have showed so far.

Mistakes in the mental aspects of the game seem to be the link from a poor season to post season play.

However last year's S.C. champs don't look to be out of a national tournament bid yet.

"I don't count us out yet at all," said Coach Little, "if anything we will be stronger from these losses. Now is the time to prove to ourselves we can put it all together."

A very strong factor in the Pirates season is the fact that they play a very tough schedule. College scouts as well as pro have said that ECU's schedule is by far one of the toughest in the Southeast.

All the more reason ECU must do well to receive some post season action.

"Ability wise, we have more potential than ever before," said catcher Raymie Styons. "It's just a matter of psyching ourselves up for each game. It think we all tend to look towards the next game before we play the first."

Bobby Supel, a power hitting third baseman also added, "I think we can win 35-40 games this year, we certainly have the potential and I hope we can all tighten up our act."

Fan support is essential to the performance of any sport, but in baseball it can be of great value.

In closing coach Little said, "the fans have always been good to ECU baseball, but a major complaint of last year was that fans missed so many of the first games, by the time they got involved in the season it was over. Hopefully the same mistake won't happen again this year."

Pirates sweep two from ECSC

By TERRY YEARGAN
Staff Writer

The Pirates met the Eastern Connecticut State University Warriors Monday and Tuesday nights in baseball, emerging victorious in both games.

In Monday night's contest the aggressive Pirates safely won by a four run margin (8-4).

Three of the eight runs were homers by right-fielder Eddie Gates, out fielder Macon Moye, and DH-OF Butch Davis. The hit by Davis cleared the 390 ft. center-fence mark with ease.

Senior Pete Conaty, was the winning pitcher going six innings allowing no score.

In the seventh the Warriors picked up their first two runs, and two more during the eighth.

Conaty was replaced in the ninth by Tim Stiller who got the final three.

On Tuesday night ECU took an early lead with scores by Eddie Gates, Max Raynor, and Bobby Supel in the first inning.

The second inning saw two runs scored by ECSU.

The Pirates scored one when Billy Best knocked in Jerry Carraway. This took the E.C. squad to a 4-2 lead until the sixth.

ECSU then scored one to cut the lead to one. The Pirates held on to end with a win (4-3).

Pitcher Bill Lucas was replaced in the ninth by Rick Ramey who finished the game.

Coaches Lee and Bolton resign their basketball posts

East Carolina University's Director of Athletics, Bill Cain, announced today the resignation of the women's head basketball coach, Catherine Bolton, and that of the men's assistant coach, Billy Lee.

In accepting the resignations, Cain said: "We appreciate the services rendered by Coach Bolton over the previous nine years and her outstanding teams. We accept her desire to take a new direction for her future.

"We also appreciate the outstanding contributions of Billy Lee, not only to the basketball program, but also to the athletic department, over the previous two years. His rapport with the athletic staff and supporters of our program was outstanding."

Bolton came to ECU as head women's coach in 1969-70, having compiled a 115-54 record in nine years. This year's team finished 20-11, the first 20-win season for a women's basketball team at ECU, while finishing second in the state tournament and qualified for regional tournament play.

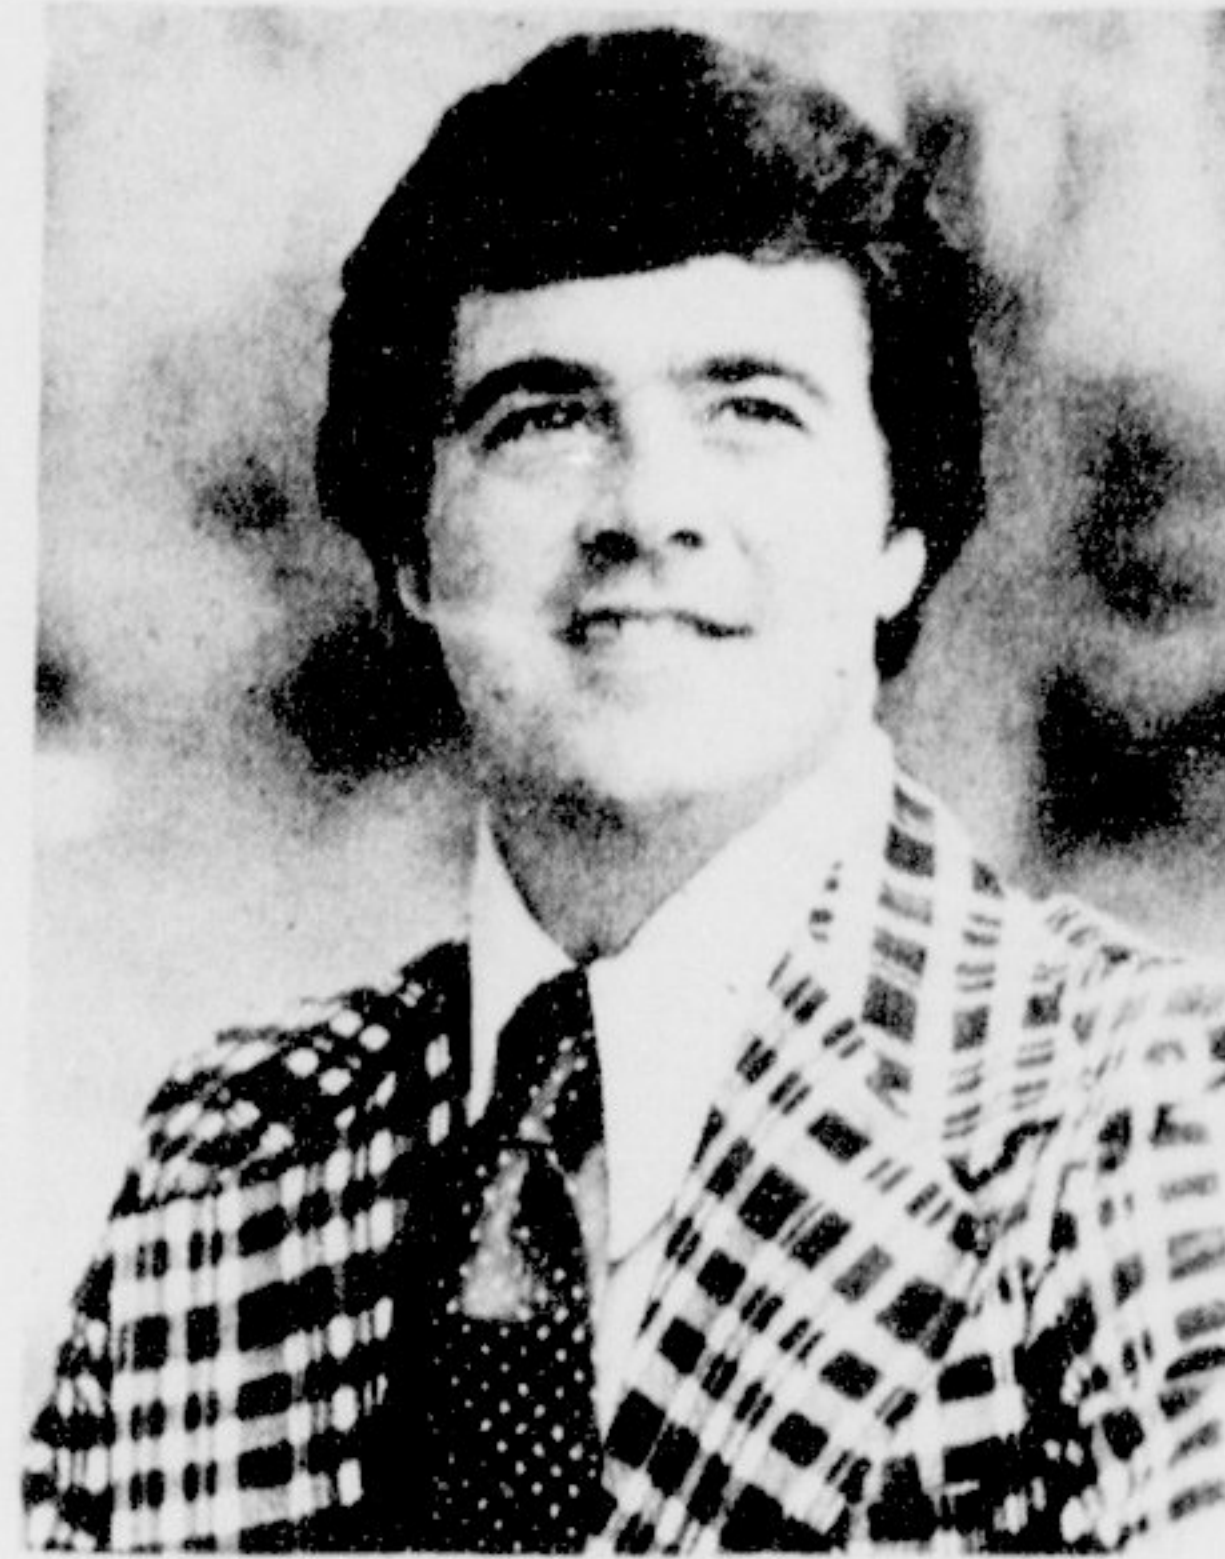

The Lady Pirates 1972-73 recorded an undefeated regular season, won the state championship, the regional championship and participated in the national tournament in Queens, N.Y. No other N.C. team has advanced to the nationals since the formation of AIAW.

"My primary function at ECU is as a physical education instructor," said Bolton. "I feel the demands on the coaching position are such that I cannot fulfill both positions. It's my hope that the athletic department will hire a fulltime coach so that we can recruit with some of the stronger programs in our area and can carry the program to excellence."

Billy Lee joined the men's basketball staff two years ago as a graduate assistant coach and was elevated to fulltime assistant this past season.

Prior to joining the Pirate staff, Lee was highly successful as head coach at New Bern High School, guiding the 4-A Bears to a 42-18 mark, best ever at the school. In 1972, he coached New Bern to the school's first 4-A conference championship and into the state playoffs.

"I resign my position with mixed emotions," said Lee, "but I think it is the best thing for my coaching career."

Cain noted that a thorough search will be conducted in seeking a new head coach for the women's program, while head coach Larry Gillman will be in charge of seeking a successor for Lee in the men's program.

Purple downs gold 7-0

By STEVE BYERS
Assistant Sports Editor

East Carolina head football coach Pat Dye had to draw one conclusion from Saturday's intrasquad at Jacksonville High School. The Pirate defense is awesome.

The purple won over the white 7-0 in a game marked by bone crunching defensive plays.

Except for one strike, a 58 yard completion from Leander Green to Billy Ray Washington, and a 38 yard reverse, by Mike Hawkins, the offensive game for both sides was relatively lackluster.

Eddie Hicks and Anthony Collins showed some flashy moves in the purple backfield while Wayne Banks looked strong on the white team. Theodore Sutton missed the game because of a sprained ankle.

During spring drills the coaches look for extra effort to determine positions when the fall comes around.

Oliver "Brute Felton" showed his credentials for the purple defense as his head hunting tactics were responsible for stopping several plays behind the line of scrimmage.
