Laundry on credit

Students at Rutgers University will no longer have to collect quarters to do their laundry at the local laundromat. The university has installed the first computerized laundry system, which allows students to open an account with the college housing officer or building manager.

The students must deposit at least $50, which allows them to carry a "Laudercard." Each time the student does a load of laundry, the card is credited, and the student receives a printed receipt indicating the account balance. The card also opens the door to the laundry room, which promotes a safer environment for the students.

Editors argue censorship

The editor and managing editor of the student newspaper at Palm Beach Atlantic College were fired for publishing "sexually suggestive" poetry, and an anonymous letter poking fun at the school's policy prohibiting homosexuality.

Lou Maglio and Kattie Stuart were told they were fired after an unsigned letter ran in The Rudder, with permission from the administration. Large parts of the letter were blackened with "censored" printed on the top.

"They don't teach free thinking here... some of these people threw out 800 copies of the newspaper, like it's their constitutional right to decide what people can read," Maglio said.

Two students murdered

A Fresno State University football player and his girlfriend were found dead in an apartment Jan. 3.

Police say Melvin Johnson, 21, was shot in the chest, and his girlfriend, Lisa Kelly, 19, was shot in the head as she was trying to leave the apartment.

Police do not know all of the details yet. "It was a domestic dispute. Basically what happened was there were two men fighting over the same girl," Sgt. Robin Heizenrader said. Johnson was an offensive lineman and a starter on the team.

Female reporter restricted

Indiana University basketball coach Bobby Knight barred a female reporter from the men's locker room in December, stirring controversy in the NCAA.

Associated Press reporter Beth Harris tried to enter the locker room after Indiana played Notre Dame to get an interview with some of the players. Harris said she has interviewed players there before.

According to the sports information office, school policy prohibits reporters of the opposite sex to enter football and men's and women's basketball locker rooms. But the policy allows for players to be available for interviews outside the locker rooms.

NCAA rules encourage equal access to locker rooms but allows for schools to decide what their individual policies should be.

Burglars choose Greeks

Several fraternity houses were burglarized and vandalized at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill over the Christmas break.

Bill Taft, a Beta Theta Pi member, said the burglar broke a window and then kicked in all but three of the doors inside the house.

"We had been broken (into) over Thanksgiving, so we knew we were a high risk," Taft said. "We nailed the doors shut."

The estimated damage to the house was $1,000.

University denies discrimination

By Jeff Becker
Staff Writer

The university's Equal Opportunity Officer (EEO) has found no evidence to support a sexual discrimination complaint filed by an instructor in the department of communication.

Catherine Wickern, who is in her fourth year of teaching in the communication department, brought a discrimination complaint to the attention of Dr. Mary Ann Rose, the EEO officer, on Oct. 14. The complaint charged unequal pay for equal work dating back to the summer of 1990.

In a letter sent to Wickern dated Dec. 3, Rose stated her findings in the investigation.

"I examined the salaries of other members of your department who are in comparable positions, i.e., having a lecturer or instructor rank, holding the master's degree but not the doctorate, and holding a nine-month contract....

"The salary data demonstrates that, while there are men in comparable positions making a higher salary than yours, one woman makes a salary higher than theirs and the salary of one man is less than yours. Based on these data you do not appear to be the victim of illegal discrimination on the basis of gender."

Rose said she could not discuss the issue. "I cannot comment on specific cases," she said. "The results are confidential."

Wickern said she first became concerned about her salary in June of 1990. She said her office mate glanced over her shoulder as she read her paycheck, laughed, and said he made more money than she did. According to Wickern, the co-worker had finished his master's degree the semester before and had less professional experience than she had.

Wickern took the matter to the acting chairperson of the communication department, Dr. Marie Farr, who gave Wickern a small raise. Wickern said the raise led her to believe the issue was resolved.

Then in August of 1991, the communication department hired two male instructors. Wickern said after she learned the salaries of the new instructors, she again went to the chairperson of the department, a position now held by Dr. Harrell Allen.

The discussion with Allen led to a series of letters and meetings with several university administrators in an effort to resolve the matter, Wickern said.

According to documents obtained from the department of human resources, the two new instructors were hired on a temporary basis and both signed four-month contracts for $13,000. Wickern signed a nine-month contract for $25,625.

"This is my fourth year here," Wickern said. "There is no way after four years that two new people should be making more money than I'm making. There is no justification for it and they can't blame me for that because I am not a good negotiator. What does equal pay for equal work mean, nothing?"

Community salutes local heroes

By Elizabeth Shimmel
Staff Writer

Street vendors sold popcorn and cotton candy, police cars sounded their sirens, and 15,000 people lined the streets of Greenville to pay tribute to a group of local heroes: The 1992 Peach Bowl champion ECU Pirates.

The football team was honored Saturday in a victory parade that started on Elm Street and wound its way up Fifth Street to its end at Mendenhall Student Center.

"I think the parade gave the town of Greenville a chance to recognize the team for their accomplishments and gave fans a chance to show their appreciation," Pirate fan Chip O'Rear said.

And show their appreciation, they did.

Fans packed the parade route wearing anything purple and waving yellow sabers while chanting the words that are now common in any football fan's vocabulary, "We Believe."

The Pirates returned home from the New Year's Day Peach Bowl with an 11-1 record for the season and ranked ninth in the nation in the Associated Press poll.

Head Coach Bill Lewis, who led the Pirates through their dream season, was not at the parade.

He had already left for Atlanta and his new coaching job at Georgia Tech. Lewis went to Atlanta only a few days after the Peach Bowl and did not return to be with his players for their day of hometown glory.

But the fans were not disappointed.

FDA bans breast implants

By Amy Humphries
Staff Writer

The nation has suddenly become concerned about the effects of silicone breast implants. A moratorium issued by the Food and Drug Administration no longer allows silicone breast implant operations.

Silicone gel-filled breast implants have been used for about 20 years. At present, about two million women in the U.S. have them.

After several problems with the breast implants were reported, the FDA asked the maker of the implants, Dow Corning Corporation, to initiate studies.

It is possible that silicone may trigger problems in some women who are especially prone to immune problems, according to the FDA.

One problem is that the insertion of silicone into the body can cause fibrous tissue to grow around the implant. The growth makes breasts hard and sometimes causes pain. This condition, called capsular contracture, occurs in about 10 percent of women with implants.

Another more serious concern is that breast cancer cannot be detected as quickly in women with implants because X-rays cannot pass through the silicone gel.

The Dow Corning study reported that, "It is important for women to tell the examining physician of X-ray technician the type of implant and its placement (in front or behind the chest wall muscle) before the mammogram is taken."

Researchers also looked into the hazards of silicone leakage.

SGA passes resolution in favor of Kittrell

By Julie Roscoe
Assistant News Editor

A resolution in support of Capt. Stanley Kittrell was passed Jan. 13 in SGA with only one vote against it.

The resolution states, "that the ECU SGA goes on record in support of Captain Kittrell and questions the soundness of any retaliation, if such has occurred against Captain Kittrell for his stand against unethical and illegal acts at our university."

Kittrell reported the illegal wiretapping of an ECU employee's phone and has filed a lawsuit against the University, Chancellor Richard Eakin, Vice-Chancellor for Business Affairs Richard Brown, Chief of Police for Public Safety Ron Avery and Public Safety director James DePuy.

The suit concerns retaliations Kittrell alleges occurred after he reported the wiretapping to the FBI.

Matthew Gilbert, vice-chair of Rules and Judiciary Committee, is the author of the resolution.

This resolution was amended from an earlier edition.

"I'm glad that it finally passed," Gilbert said.

Gilbert said he wants Kittrell to know that the student body is through the SGA legislation supports him.

"The SGA is more than a rubber stamp for appropriations," Gilbert said. "It is a body that can make a statement for students on campus issues."

The original resolution said, "that the ECU SGA goes on record in support of Captain Kittrell and in so doing condemns the action of certain administrators who would punish a person for his brave stand against unethical and illegal acts at our University."

There are five mandates listed on the resolution. They are the officials involved in the wiretapping settlements. Copies of the resolution will be sent to those people.

The questionable retaliations stated in the resolution concern actions taken by Kittrell's officials after he contacted the FBI.

The lawsuit says that Kittrell was stripped of his 42-officer staff, had his office relocated to a rarely used building, and became a uniformed officer.

Gilbert said after he read the court records of the Kittrell case he decided to rewrite his resolution.

"The main reason I wrote the resolution is for publicity," Gilbert said.

"I hope in the future other members of SGA will come out and make a statement on other issues."

Service offers career guidance

By Julie Roscoe
 Assistant News Editor

Career Services has helped over 70 percent of ECU students who register with them receive jobs in past years, and especially in this economy, students need all the help they can get.

Last year, 1600 students registered with Career Services, which is located in the Bloxton House, said Margie Swartout, assistant director.

"It's not the sole purpose [of Career Services] to place students in jobs but to be between the students and the employer and help students with the skills to enter job market," Swartout said.

The first step in receiving the assistance Career Services offers is to register. This is possible Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The following services and information are available to registered students: a directory of employers hiring college graduates, a career planning guide, a monthly newsletter, career counseling and advice, resume and interview skills workshops, referrals of resumes to employers, access of files with employment references and campus interviews.

"Starting here is a really great way to get a job," Swartout said. "The workshops will help tremendously in job search strategies, to enter the workforce and to better able students to make the transition from college student to career."

Career Services, located in the Bloxton House, offers students interview skills workshops, career advice and assistance in locating employers hiring college graduates.

On-campus interviews are available and an advantage for students. Pre-screening and open sign-ups are the two procedures to follow in obtaining these interviews.

For the pre-screening interview process, a student must turn in their resume approximately two weeks before the interview date. Employers will then select the students they want to interview and a list of names will be posted.

A second way to participate in an interview is to sign up. Employers list the criteria that they want in an applicant and post this in Career Services. Those who meet the qualifications may sign up for an interview.

Career Services is available for all majors but according to Swartout, the health care field is the one where the most jobs are available and there is the lowest supply of applicants. Also, special educators and teachers are "in-demand majors."

"Those students in programs or areas where jobs are not in very much demand need to look at alternative careers where they can use the skills they have developed," Swartout said. "They need to search from the standpoint of skills instead of major."

Swartout says that the purpose of Career Services is to assist "any student who wants to develop the skills they need to better market themselves in the very competitive job market."

"In weighing the possible long-term risks of silicone breast implants it is important to bear in mind that not being able to completely rule out a risk doesn't necessarily mean there is one," the FDA reported.

Millions of women around the world have had breast implants and are happy with them. For women who already have silicon breast implants, the FDA recommends that the implants be left in unless problems occur.

Wickern

After receiving no help from university administrators, Wickern said she took the advice of a co-worker and went to the Equal Employment Opportunity Office. According to Wickern, even the EEO investigation has not resolved the issue.

"There is no discrimination because a woman in our department made more than I made, with the same qualifications," Wickern said. "So therefore, it is not based on sex; so, therefore, the EEO cannot do anything about it."

"I felt just like another door got slammed in my face. Everybody is saying 'too bad,' but nobody is doing anything about it."

Wickern said the results of Rose's investigation contain some discrepancies. In the Dec. 3 letter to Wickern, Rose stated that Wickern's salary is comparatively low. "I do note, however, in spite of your high performance ratings you appear to demand a low salary relative to other individuals who made the comparison. I would suggest that you matter with your chair Harrell Allen."

Wickern said she waited until next year to know if her efforts had any effect. "There is nothing (Allen) because the dean's office did anything until a contract," she said.

Allen said Rose's investigation determined there was no matter based on gender matter is out of his hands the time of Wickern's

Allen said Rose's investigation determined there was no discrimination based on gender and the matter is out of his hands. He said at the time of Wickern's re-negotiation he will make a recommendation to the dean of the College of Arts and Sciences concerning Wickern's salary.

"The dean looks at what I recommend, and we go from there," he said. "As far as I am concerned, the issue is behind us and we can now go forward."

Wickern said the University blames her for earning a low salary because she signed a contract. However, she said she cannot be held responsible because the university does not pay her an equal salary.

"It's my fault because I'm not a negotiator," Wickern said. "But you know what, they hand you a contract with a number on it. I didn't know that you could say 'No, I don't want that one.'"

Instead, they rallied behind Steve Logan, Lewis' offensive coordinator who was recently named to replace Lewis as head coach.

Signs along the parade route read, "Congratulations to the ECU Pirates and Head Coach Steve Logan," showing Pirate fans' hopes for another winning season in 1992.

"I've seen almost every game for the past 14 years, and I'm happy they've had a really good season. I hope next year will be just as good for them, they've got a good thing going," O'Rear said.

The future of the football program was not the issue Saturday as the Marching Pirates band led the 1991 football team through the streets filled with screaming fans.

When the parade reached its end, the senior Pirate players planted a tree at Mendenhall to mark their victory, and naturally, it was a peach tree.

The end of the parade did not mean the end of a day of recognition for the players and coaches. Later that evening, they were all honored at a football gala; a banquet at Minges Coliseum that included a guest speaker.

It was only fitting that the guest speaker should be football guru, Lee Corso, who predicted a loss for the Pirates in the Peach Bowl.

The day of celebration was sponsored by the Pirate Club, with the City of Greenville/Greenville Chamber of Commerce and ECU as contributing agencies.

After receiving no help from university administrators, Wickern said she took the advice of a co-worker and went to the Equal Employment Opportunity Office. According to Wickern, even the EEO investigation has not resolved the issue.

"There is no discrimination because a woman in our department made more than I made, with the same qualifications," Wickern said. "So therefore, it is not based on sex, so therefore, the EEO cannot do anything about it."

"I felt just like another door got slammed in my face. Everybody is saying 'too bad,' but nobody is doing anything about it."

Wickern said the results of Rose's investigation contain some discrepancies in the Dec. 3 letter to Wickern. Rose stated that Wickern's salary is comparatively low.

"I do note, however, that despite your high performance appraisal ratings you appear to command a low salary relative to the other individuals with whom I made the comparison. Since I am unable to account for this fact, I would suggest that you discuss the matter with your chairperson, Dr. Harrell Allen."

Wickern said she will have to wait until next year before she knows if her efforts have paid off.

"There is nothing (Allen) can do because the dean's office won't let him do anything until I re-negotiate a contract," she said.

Allen said Rose's investigation determined there was no discrimination based on gender and the matter is out of his hands. He said at the time of Wickern's re-negotiation he will make a recommendation to the dean of the College of Arts and Sciences concerning Wickern's salary.

"The dean looks at what I recommend, and we go from there," he said. "As far as I am concerned, the issue is behind us and we can now go forward."

Wickern said the University blames her for earning a low salary because she signed a contract. However, she said she cannot be held responsible because the university does not pay her an equal salary.

"It's my fault because I'm not a negotiator," Wickern said. "But you know what, they hand you a contract with a number on it. I didn't know that you could say 'No, I don't want that one.'"

Wickern said she will be interested in how the school handles her contract re-negotiation this summer. "There is a figure that I will not accept a dime less than, and they will lose one hell of a teacher if they don't give it to me," she said.

She said if she does have to find another job, at least she will know how to handle her salary negotiation.

"I will certainly know to go in and say 'oh, no, that number isn't big enough, give me a bigger one,'" she said.

Wickern said she does not regret anything she has done. "I teach ethics, and if I didn't stand up for what I believed in, then I wouldn't feel like I was capable of trying to teach young people how to deal fairly in the business world and deal fairly with individuals," she said.

Instead, they rallied behind Steve Logan, Lewis' offensive coordinator who was recently named to replace Lewis as head coach.

Signs along the parade route read, "Congratulations to the ECU Pirates and Head Coach Steve Logan," showing Pirate fans' hopes for another winning season in 1992.

"I've seen almost every game for the past 14 years, and I'm happy they've had a really good season. I hope next year will be just as good for them, they've got a good thing going," O'Rear said.

The future of the football program was not the issue Saturday as the Marching Pirates band led the 1991 football team through the streets filled with screaming fans.

When the parade reached its end, the senior Pirate players planted a tree at Mendenhall to mark their victory, and naturally, it was a peach tree.

The end of the parade did not mean the end of a day of recognition for the players and coaches. Later that evening, they were all honored at a football gala, a banquet at Minges Coliseum that included a guest speaker.

It was only fitting that the guest speaker should be football guru, Les Cose, who predicted a loss for the Pirates in the Peach Bowl.

The day of celebration was sponsored by the Pirate Club, with the City of Greenville/Greenville Chamber of Commerce and ECU as contributing agencies.

After receiving no help from university administrators, Wickern said she took the action of a co-worker and went to the legal department of the University. According to Wickern, the EEOC process did not resolve the issue.

"There is a legal obligation to make a reasonable accommodation for a person with a disability," Wickern said. "If you cannot accommodate a person with a disability, you cannot employ that person."

Wickern said she was not aware of any laws that would require the university to make such an accommodation.

I support Ms. Wickern 100 percent, and I feel that her claim is a tip-off that other problems exist. Ms. Wickern says that she's learned a lot from this experience, and I suppose that will have to suffice for now.

I learned a lot also at ECU, Ms. Wickern. I learned that teaching is not always emphasized at ECU and takes a back seat to creative activities and publishing papers.

I learned that some tenured professors get paid a lot no matter how poorly they do their job. I learned that part-time instructors can be hired to help out even when they have no teaching qualifications. I learned that some chairpeople simply don't care what goes on in their departments and I learned that the good guys and gals don't always come out on top.

ECU can say that there is no justification for Ms. Wickern's complaints. What they should do is take a good, hard look at some of the people who are teaching here. Check into how they're teaching and whether or not their salary is equal to their performance. I think there might be some surprises over there.

EAST CAROLINA UNIVERSITY FRATERNITY LOCATIONS 1991 RUSH January 21 -24, 7-11pm GO GREEK

ΘΧ

Theta Chi was first chartered at East Carolina on March 15, 1958. We are an established Fraternity with over 50 active brothers who pride themselves on the concept of unity and closeness within the Brotherhood. Theta Chi strives among the top in athletics and scholastics and is a catalyst for individual accomplishment. We challenge you to be a part of our continued success and extend an invitation to rush Theta Chi. Our new house location is 312 East 11th St. (758-ΘΧΘΧ). Be a part of the Greek leader of the 90's. ROLL CHI!

ΔΣΦ

Delta Sigma Phi was chartered at East Carolina in April of 1971, and has continually given what it could to better the ECU Greek system. Delta Sig is based on three simple, but loyal principles: Leadership, Scholarship, and Brotherhood. Brotherhood is a phenomenon that can be felt and witnessed much better than it can be explained. It is a deep friendship with men who can always be depended upon to help when there is a need, and to be here to share the experience of self growth in the incredible complex world of college life.

ΠΚΑ

Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity was founded on March 1, 1868 at the University of Virginia. Pika at ECU is a fraternity that takes great pride in their involvement on the campus and around the community. Pika was rechartered at ECU six years ago and has flourished to be one of the great supporters of the Greek system. If you're thinking of going Greek this year, check out Pi Kappa Alpha...it may be one of the best decisions of your college life.

ΚΑ

The Kappa Alpha Order was chartered on September 26, 1958 at East Carolina University. At KA there is a deep tradition in preserving the quality of the Southern gentlemen. Kappa Alpha's athletic program is known for its consistent rate of success. Our brotherhood would like to extend an invitation to all interested men to attend rush at our house. We are looking forward to meeting you during rush.

ΦΚΨ

Phi Kappa Psi is the newest fraternity on the ECU campus still in colony status. Nationally founded in February of 1852 at Jefferson College, Phi Psi has been on the ECU campus for two years and is fast becoming a working part of the Campus Greek system. During rush, if you are interested in rushing a fraternity, try Phi Kappa Psi. We might be just what your looking for in your college life.

ΒΘΠ

Beta Theta Pi is one of the oldest fraternities in the nation; founded on August 8, 1839. From a small town in Ohio has stemmed one of the greatest fraternities ever. Here on this campus we strive to combine all aspects of fraternity life: social, academic, athletic as well as many other activities which show the day-to-day life of a very tight brotherhood.

ΑΣΦ

The Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity was nationally founded on December of 1845 at Yale University. Alpha Sig has been a strong growing chapter on the campus of ECU for many years. They give annually to the American Lung Association and enjoy a very active intramural, academic and social life. If you are interested in rushing a fraternity go by and visit Alpha Sigma Phi.

ΛΧΑ

Lambda Chi Alpha is a fraternity of honest friendship. We have over 210 fraternity chapters nationally. Being a Lambda Chi means becoming a part of a brotherhood of men whose friendship will last a lifetime. Being a Lambda Chi means knowing that there will always be someone who cares about you, someone who will be anxious to help you over those rough spots in life. The Lambda Chi's invites you to become a part of their association. Come by and look us over, we think you will be glad you did!

ΦΚΤ

Your college years are prime opportunity to challenge yourself. This means making the most of the classes, people and situations you encounter. Fraternities encourage this; ΦΚΤ is comprised of a solid brotherhood involved in a wide range of campus activities. We are also very strong on a national level, with over 100 chapters across the country and about $50,000 in academic scholarships awarded annually through our headquarters. The advantages of fraternity memberships do not end upon graduation. ΦΚΤ graduates have the opportunity to get together at the house every year at alumni events, such as Homecoming. So go ahead and challenge yourself, get involved with a fraternity.

ΚΣ

Kappa Sigma was founded on the East Carolina Campus on November 22, 1966. Since then, the fraternity has strived to represent the Greek system of ECU well. Located on Tenth Street directly across from campus, the fraternity offers a convenient spot for its members to gather between classes, as well as being in easy walking distance from the residence halls. The basis of Kappa Sig fraternity is its brotherhood, and through brotherhood we will continue to grow and prosper long into the future.

ΠΚΦ

Pi Kappa Phi was chartered at East Carolina in 1963. Since the beginning, we have proven to be a strong force in the development of fine young men to serve our campus. We offer a variety of activities to excel in, ranging from a strong athletic program to community service and projects for the handicapped. We are known to have a very strong social program and hold many major events throughout the year. We have a very strong alumni association that helps in our endeavors. Our scholarship program helps to develop our brothers as students. So remember, when you're in a rush to the only way...GO PI KAPP!

ΣΝ

At East Carolina, Sigma Nu is a combination of rich tradition and new membership. First chartered in 1959, the Eta Beta chapter of Sigma Nu is among the oldest of all Fraternities at ECU. Fraternity life at Sigma Nu offers many things for all its members: an active social life, strong support for athletics, community service and academics. Nationally, Sigma Nu is among the best in all categories. With over 230 chapters and 130 thousand brothers, it is the third largest fraternity internationally. Its comprehensive Educational Foundation (L.E.A.D.) provides many scholarships and offers many great leadership development programs. We encourage you to rush Sigma Nu and above all, GO GREEK!

ΣΦΕ

At Sigma Phi Epsilon we believe that as well as providing numerous opportunities during the college years, the fraternity experience continues throughout one's life. Sig Ep provides an environment where a brother develops and learns many important social skills such as sportsmanship, scholarship and communication among many others. We pride ourselves on being one of the best fraternities at East Carolina as well as in the nation. Sigma Phi Epsilon has been named ECU's most outstanding fraternity two out of three years. On a national level the North Carolina Kappa chapter has been recognized as one of the best all-around Sig Ep chapters in the nation. Sig Ep is looking for balanced men who excel not only in academic, but in athletics, leadership and social skills as well. We extend an invitation to all interested, qualified men with a desire to become part of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

ΣΠ

The Eta Kappa chapter of Sigma Pi was the second fastest chapter in Sigma Pi International history. Sigma Pi currently has forty members and is the up-and-coming fraternity on campus. Sigma Pi is known for its diversity among members yet has a very strong brotherhood. Sigma Pi is very cooperative with each and every fraternity on campus and with your help will become an even more dominant part of the Greek system at East Carolina. If you want to go Greek, experience a great brotherhood, meet lots of people, and have a good time then go Sigma Pi.

ΣΤΠ

Sigma Tau Gamma has a long and proud heritage of offering young men the opportunity to broaden their lives through fraternal brotherhood. With over 100 chapters across the country, Sigma Tau Gamma is recognized nationally and has its home office in Warrensburg, MO. Our national office works closely with our chapter here at East Carolina which maximizes our bonds to one another and the community. Come see what makes Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity the most unique and diversified on campus. Sigma Tau Gamma - taking tradition to tomorrow.

ΤΚΕ

Tau Kappa Epsilon, founded in 1899, has become the largest international fraternity with around 305 chapters in the US and Canada. ΤΚΕ calls itself "the fraternity for life" and over 100,000 members worldwide are proving it through their interest in the fraternity that continues long after graduation. ΤΚΕ participates in activities ranging from sports and scholastics to community projects. If you like what you hear, come on down to the bottom of hill to the ΤΚΕ house and find out if ΤΚΕ is for you.

ΔΧ

Delta Chi is the newest fraternity on the ECU campus. Colonized in April of 1991 ΔΧ already enjoys a membership in excess of 50 men. Members share friendship, strong academics and athletics, and have an earnest desire to make the college experience as meaningful as possible.

Administration settles wiretapping lawsuits

(Editor's Note: The following article was compiled from reports written by Matthew Jones, The East Carolinian's managing editor, and published by College Press Service)

(CPS)—ECU has settled two lawsuits for $10,000 each and may deal with at least 15 more after a wiretapping scandal involving more than a half dozen administrators.

Now, some believe that the wiretapping discovered last fall in the school's Public Safety and Human Resources department was not an isolated incident.

A private attorney is investigating allegations of illegal wiretaps across campus that are unrelated to the 1990 wiretap case involving the former chief of Public Safety.

The initial lawsuit, filed by former Chief of Public Safety John Rose, claimed that several administrators illegally recorded his telephone conversations with Brooks Mills, a former telecommunications employee, without his consent during the summer of 1990.

According to the North Carolina State Auditor's report on the incident, Ted Roberson, at the time the director of telecommunications, said he tapped and taped conversations on Mill's phone line because he suspected Mills had dealings with illegal drugs. Those allegations were never substantiated.

This October, the university stepped in to settle the lawsuit, filed by Rose against Roberson and Mills, to save time and money and because, according to university attorney Ben the university found the employee of the university with actual knowledge that she was violating the law.

The university paid settlement and the settler another employee, Lois Br on the same charge of an wiretap out of a special, city account that specifically handles legal settlements.

According to copies transcripts of the original tap, at least 15 additional are entitled to settlements under federal law, a party who communication is over a phone line without is entitled to $10,000 in damages. An additional has resulted from the Capt. Stanley Kittrell of the safety department, they discovered the transcript wiretap and reported information to the Federal Investigation, claims, punished by supervising reporting the crime.

According to information sent to Carolinian, Kittrell was moved from the Public Building to a rarely used building shortly after contacted the FBI in 1990. Prior to the incident, was in charge of 42 staff, but his staff was reduced after internal reorganization. November last year. At the incident, Kittrell plainclothes officer, is required to wear a

State searches for more organ donors

By Marjorie Pitts
Staff Writer

Every 30 minutes a person is added to the donor list in need of a heart, kidney, lung, pancreas or liver. A third of these people will die each year.

In the United States right now, there are 24,795 people waiting for an organ. In North Carolina on Nov. 30, 1991 there were 673 people waiting for an organ.

Laura Richard, public and professional relations manager for the Carolina Organ Procurement Agency said: "Being an organ donor gives you the chance to save someone's life. ... Give someone their life back."

It is recommended that potential organ donors should discuss donation with their families. All donors should register at the Department of Motor Vehicles. A "Yes" will then be inserted in the box marked "Donor" on your driver's license. Organs are often used after someone has died in a tragic death such as a car accident.

Most people in America say "No" to organ donation because they have no concept of the plan. Being an organ donor costs no money and saves another person's life.

Many people believe the body will be mutilated after the death of an organ donor; that is untrue.

When a person who is an organ donor dies, they are kept alive by life support systems until after surgery. After the person dies, blood tests are performed that check for the HIV virus, hepatitis and infectious diseases.

After the tests are performed, surgery is conducted. An incision in the chest cavity is made and the organs are taken out. The chest cavity is then sewn up. This procedure takes from 24 — 36 hours. After the organs are taken out of the body, the regular procedures for death are taken.

Organs are placed according to medical emergency, blood tissue and geographic location.

There were 13,398 transplants performed in 1990. If all of the potential donors said yes, the number of transplants would be much higher.

Because of ignorance to the concept of organ donation, many people will die.

ECU student Nicole Pratt strongly supports organ donation. "My boyfriend's father has been waiting for a heart almost two years," she said. "People shouldn't die selfishly."

For more information about becoming an organ donor, contact Richard at 757-0090.

This October, the university stepped in to settle the lawsuit, filed by Rose against Roberson and Mills, to save time and money and because, according to university attorney Ben Irons, the university found that "no employee of the university acted with actual knowledge that he or she was violating the law."

The university paid Rose's settlement and the settlement of another employee, Lois Braxton, on the same charge of an illegal wiretap out of a special university account that specifically handles legal settlements.

According to copies of the transcripts of the original wiretap, at least 15 additional people are entitled to settlements. Under federal law, a party whose oral communication is intercepted over a phone line without consent is entitled to $10,000 punitive damages. An additional lawsuit has resulted from the wiretap. Capt. Stanley Kittrell of the public safety department, the man who discovered the transcripts of the wiretap and reported the information to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, claims he was punished by superiors for reporting the crime.

According to confidential information sent to The East Carolinian, Kittrell's office was moved from the Public Safety Building to a rarely used campus building shortly after he contacted the FBI in November 1990. Prior to the incident Kittrell was in charge of 42 staff members, but his staff was reduced to zero after internal reorganizations in November last year. Also before the incident, Kittrell was a plainclothes officer, but now he is required to wear a uniform.

State searches for more organ donors

By Marjorie Pitts
Staff Writer

Every 30 minutes a person is added to the donor list in need of a heart, kidney, lung, pancreas or liver. A third of these people will die each year.

In the United States right now, there are 24,795 people waiting for an organ. In North Carolina on Nov. 30, 1991 there were 673 people waiting for an organ.

Laura Richard, public and professional relations manager for the Carolina Organ Procurement Agency said: "Being an organ donor gives you the chance to save someone's life. ... Give someone their life back."

It is recommended that potential organ donors should discuss donation with their families. All donors should register at the Department of Motor Vehicles. A "Yes" will then be inserted in the box marked "Donor" on your driver's license. Organs are often used after someone has died in a tragic death such as a car accident.

Most people in America say "No" to organ donation because they have no concept of the plan. Being an organ donor costs no money and saves another person's life.

Many people believe the body will be mutilated after the death of an organ donor, that is untrue.

When a person who is an organ donor dies, they are kept alive by life support systems until after surgery. After the person dies, blood tests are performed that check for the HIV virus, hepatitis and infectious diseases.

After the tests are performed, surgery is conducted. An incision in the chest cavity is made and the organs are taken out. The chest cavity is then sewn up. This procedure takes from 24 — 36 hours. After the organs are taken out of the body, the regular procedures for death are taken.

Organs are placed according to medical emergency, blood tissue and geographic location.

There were 13,398 transplants performed in 1990. If all of the potential donors said yes, the number of transplants would be much higher.

Because of ignorance to the concept of organ donation, many people will die.

ECU student Nicole Pratt strongly supports organ donation. "My boyfriend's father has been waiting for a heart almost two years," she said. "People shouldn't die selfishly."

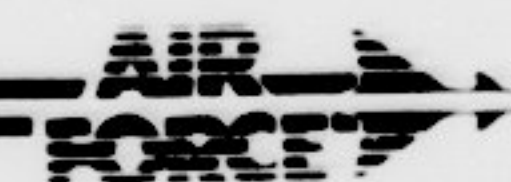

For more information about becoming an organ donor, contact Richard at 757-0090.

Private collection agencies search for deadbeat dads

(AP) — Peggy MacMillan's ex-husband hasn't paid a penny of the $35,000 in child support he owes his 10-year-old son. But she can't count on financially strapped Massachusetts to help her collect.

So she and hundreds like her are looking to a new breed of debt collectors: professionals who hunt down the deadbeats — fathers in 92 percent of the cases — and firmly urge them to pay up.

The private collection agencies gained considerable clout this winter by forming a national network, the Child Support Collection Association, that enables them to track deadbeat dads from state to state. The network has 29 affiliates.

Nearly half the women in America who should be receiving child support aren't. Deadbeat dads owed $19 billion by the end of 1989, according to the most recent statistics available from the Census Bureau.

Debt collectors, once recipients of scorn and abuse, say the new business is improving their image. It's their chance to do good — and make a bundle.

"We're so confident in our ability to collect, our fee is based only on our success," said Bill Lodge, president of Hoyt, Winston & Carter of Norwood, which is tracking MacMillan's former husband. Like other members of the network, Lodge's firm charges a percentage of the money it collects. The cut ranges from 20 percent to 33 percent and sometimes includes a $25 application fee.

"For me, getting a percentage is better than nothing," said MacMillan, 38.

Association members say they rely on professional and often secret methods to find absent parents and persuade them to pay. Collectors will negotiate payment plans if the parent truly can't afford the court-ordered amount.

"But a person who tells you they're broke and owns a Mercedes — that tells you something," Lodge said.

Armed with little more than a name, Social Security number and perhaps the man's favorite magazine, the agency starts hunting. It is not uncommon for Lodge to find a debtor by examining client lists bought from such companies as Sports Illustrated and Domino's Pizza.

Jim Jones, president of Child Support Services, which has 350 active cases, said once the father is found, his staff of seven goes right for the heartstrings — mentioning the children's names repeatedly in conversations with the parent. "We want those children to be on his mind," Jones said.

Charles Drake, the Texan who came up with the idea for the national network, takes it one step further.

"I can make his life literally a nightmare, like he's been doing to his own children," Drake said. He said he doesn't hesitate to call deadbeats in bars, at work, or in the middle of the night. "I am not only a thorn in their side, but probably their worst nightmare."

Some fathers argue it's unfair for businesses to get money intended for their children.

"The thing that hurts is it's supposed to be going for my kids," said Ron Shirley of Portsmouth, Va., who is paying through a collection agency. "That's 25 percent going down the drain."

Drake's business, Children's Support Services, is handling about 1,400 cases and expects to collect $1.5 million this year.

The product of a divorced couple who watched his mother become a "part-time bill collector," Drake views unpaid child support as much more than an overdue bill.

"This isn't a credit card debt or a car loan," he said. "This is their kids."

Woman serial killer enjoys power, control over men

(AP) — An admitted prostitute who told of killing seven men who picked her up along Florida roadways repeatedly shot one victim out of a need to feel power over men, a prosecutor said Friday.

The defense countered that Aileen Wuornos killed businessman Richard Mallory in self-defense because he subjected her to hideous abuse.

In opening statements in the first of five murder cases brought against her, State Attorney John Tanner contended that she shot Mallory four times "because she didn't want to leave a witness."

"She liked control ... tremendous power. ... She'd been controlling men for years and she took everything Richard Mallory had, including his life," Tanner told jurors.

Wuornos, 35, was charged with first-degree murder in the death of Mallory, 51, whose decomposed body was found near Ormond Beach, north of Daytona Beach, in December 1989. Mallory owned an electronics repair shop in Clearwater.

Prosecutors said they will seek the death penalty if she is convicted. Although Florida has never executed a woman, there are three women on death row.

Investigators say Wuornos went on a 13-month killing spree of men, and have described her as the nation's first female serial killer to be brought to trial.

Wuornos has been jailed since her arrest in January 1991.

Authorities say Wuornos confessed in a lengthy videotaped statement to killing seven men. As yet, she is charged in five of the deaths.

Assistant Public Defender Tricia Jenkins said Wuornos shot Mallory in self-defense after accepting a ride from near Tampa to Daytona Beach.

"Mallory was inflicting abuse. He wanted to see her pain," Ms. Jenkins said, telling the jury they would "hear evidence of bondage, rape, sodomy and degradation."

"Lee Wuornos is not guilty," Ms. Jenkins said. "She defended herself. She had had enough."

Library offers unique resources

From Staff Reports

Students looking for current information concerning hot topics like hazardous waste disposal, public school reform, adolescent pregnancy, child abuse, day care, coastal resources management, or water pollution in North Carolina, there is a good chance you will find it in the North Carolina government document microfiche collection.

The collection can be found in Joyner Library's North Carolina Collection.

The North Carolina Collection is a complete depository for state documents on microfiche.

Since 1988 the North Carolina State Publications Clearinghouse, located at the State Library in Raleigh, has sent the North Carolina Collection regular shipments on microfiche.

The collection includes annual or biennial reports, research studies, and journals or newsletters published by major state agencies, including universities and community colleges.

For the first time since the program began, monographic titles in the collection are now accessible on-line through Joyner Library's LS2000 catalog.

Subject, author or title searches will turn up documents in the microfiche collection.

Nation celebrates Martin Luther King Day

(AP) — Martin Luther King Jr.'s widow called for an end to poverty, residents of Oakland, Calif., demanded an end to drugs, and a New York congressman urged stiffer penalties for bias crimes as Americans marked King Day.

Coretta Scott King challenged the Bush administration to erase poverty and re-awaken hope in the poor. In her annual "State of the Dream" speech Sunday, she called on the government and the private sector to increase job-training and child and health care programs.

"Our nation cannot do less," she said. "The time has come for us to civilize ourselves for the total, direct and immediate abolition of poverty."

Mrs. King and Winnie Mandela, wife of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, planned to lead a march through the city today.

Elsewhere: — New York Gov. Mario Cuomo planned to attend a march in Albany, N.Y., accompanied by actor Harry Belafonte and Shen Tong, chairman of the Democracy for China Fund.

"We not only honor the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., we re-affirm our vow to stem racism and pursue social justice through reconciliation and healing, just as this extraordinary man taught us," Cuomo said Sunday.

— A "Freedom Train" with an estimated 4,000 riders was expected to kick off the holiday in California. It was to travel from San Jose to San Francisco, where a march was scheduled. In Los Angeles, a 14-foot sculpture honoring King was to be unveiled in the city's Watts section.

— In Arkansas, Daisy Bates, who was an adviser to the nine black students who integrated Little Rock's Central High in 1957, was to be honored with a portrait in the state Capitol.

— In Michigan, William Harris, 37, planned his annual march through New Haven, 35 miles northeast of Detroit. Every year the march concludes with his impersonation of King delivering his "I Have a Dream" speech.

King was assassinated on April 4, 1968, in Memphis, Tenn. He would have been 63.

In Oakland, Calif., about 80 residents marched Sunday to reclaim their neighborhood from drug dealers. "Drugs are just another form of slavery. I can't think of a better way to honor Dr. King than to do this," said Gilda Baker, 39, a mother of two.

Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., proposed legislation to increase prison terms for federal offenses motivated by racial, ethnic, religious or gender bias.

Mrs. King on Sunday presented Mrs. Mandela with an award from the King Center for Nonviolent Social Change for the progress the Mandelas made in fighting apartheid.

Mrs. Mandela accepted the award and left. Mrs. King said Mrs. Mandela was ill, but didn't elaborate.

In her speech, Mrs. King stopped short of directly criticizing President Bush, who traveled to Atlanta on Friday and laid a wreath at King's tomb. Instead, she told about 850 people that government hasn't done enough — especially for young Americans.

"Brothers and sisters, it's time for an all-out campaign to put America back to work," she said.

Family Stand

By Dana Danielson
Assistant Entertainment Editor

A mix of jazz, rhythm and blues, rock and hip-hop? Unpleasant to the ear would be the first imaginable result, but New York based band, The Family Stand, has made an art of this seemingly odd melding.

Released in October 1991, Moon in Scorpio (East/West Records America) is the band's third album.

Each one of the 16 cuts off Scorpio provides the listener with fulfilling lyrics, melody and rhythm. The unusual mix of music styles is responsible for the uniqueness and individuality each song presents.

"If there's a theme to our albums as a whole, it's that of regeneration and resurrection," said Peter Lord, keyboardist and lead/backing vocalist. "It also relates to the idea of exposing and seeing things that have been hidden. Some of the songs deal with politics, but underneath even those, there are human relationships. That's the dichotomy that The Family Stand deals with."

A refreshing aspect of this latest album is the way in which the band approaches controversial issues from different angles and perspectives.

Issues dealt with in Scorpio include global change, media control, cultural apartheid, intimate relationships, the need for cultural identity, adoption and child molestation.

"It's one hellacious sonic experience, packing killer grooves, lethal guitar and stirring, sensual vocals," said the band members.

As musicians, The Family Stand claims to draw upon an ever widening array of rhythm and blues/rock/pop traditions. Though harkening back to the '60s and '70s, the band keeps their feet planted firmly in the present.

Chinese art exhibit provides new perspectives of Far East

"Nuwa," painted by Hui Zhang, is proof that a person need not be able to hear to appreciate beauty and mystery in the world.

By Jim Shamlin
Staff Writer

The Far East has always fascinated Westerners. We attempt to appreciate the beauty and simplicity of an exotic culture, only to be confronted by aesthetics that are diametrically opposed to our own.

As a result, a conflict arises that generally results in frustration or in awe — an experience that defies verbal expression.

This experience has been brought to the United States by the Global 2000 project of the Carter Presidential Center, which has sponsored an art exhibition by deaf students of the people's Republic of China. The exhibition will be on display in the Mendenhall Student Center gallery through Jan. 31.

The exhibition features an array of works created by students, ages 16-20, at the Shanghai Vocational Technical School for the Deaf. The paintings on display demonstrate a variety of styles and media.

Zhenfei Lin's "A Beautiful Girl of Ancient Times," a Chinese watercolor, represents the traditional artwork, while Weiping Li's "Mother and Son," a lacquer painting, incorporates modern stylistics more familiar to Western audiences.

In addition to the typical landscapes and portraits, there are abstract and expressionistic works that one might not expect to find in a gallery of Oriental art.

Several of the works contain religious and political overtones — sentiments that would seem impossible to express under the watch of a totalitarian government.

Regardless of style or medium, each work contains a distinctly non-Western element that defies Western criticism. Audiences who look for meticulous planning and complex composition will be confounded by works based on simplicity and spontaneity.

Geometric perfection is utterly absent in works that are designed to be asymmetrical by artists who believe that negative space around the objects in a work are as important as the objects themselves.

Like Chinese philosophy, these works of art seem to violate every principle in Western thought, yet they possess a mysterious beauty that can only be understood through experience.

'Ramblers' perform folk music

By Pamela Oliver
Staff Writer

For those looking for a place to escape the downtown bar scene and find a group of friendly people with which to unwind, search no further than the Folk Arts Society.

The Folk Arts Society of Greenville has the answers for this search. Every month, the society hosts a performance of dance, storytelling, music and anything else involving folk art.

Last Thursday, the society hosted a live musical performance at the Upper Crust Bakery, located downtown on Fifth Street. The show was a group of four folk musicians who call themselves "Swamp Cat Ramblers."

The musicians have been playing together for about fifteen years around the Greenville area and various other areas in North Carolina and Virginia. Just recently, they made a name for themselves in Galax, Virginia, at the Galax Fiddlers Convention.

The members of "Swamp Cat Ramblers" are a warm, friendly group of guys. During the break and after the performance, they talked to almost everyone in the bakery. They seemed to know everyone and everyone seemed to know them, because all four live around Greenville and all have regular jobs. "If we didn't have other jobs," John Booker chuckled, "we wouldn't have any money. You just can't make a living playing in a band." Booker sings the lead vocals on most of the songs and plays acoustic guitar. His home is in Ayden, which is where the band usually practices; however, he works a regular nine to five job at Courtney Square Apartments here in Greenville.

Lane Hollis provides tenor harmony and plays the fiddle and the banjo. He is from Williamston, N.C., which is near Farmville.

Mother's Finest), Dave Fields, trumpeter Tyrone Cox and rapper Guy Route (from Aftershock).

The band's initial release, Chapters: A Novel By Evon Gaffries And The Stand, features cuts like "Stand and Deliver" and "Why Does It Hurt When We Kiss." This was followed by a second album, Chain. From this, the single "Ghetto Heaven" ascended to No. 2 on the U.S. rhythm and blues chart; in Britain, it climbed into the pop top 10 and topped the dance charts.

During the summer of 1990, The Family Stand assembled their support group and performed live for the first time. In addition to opening for Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers on a string of U.S. dates, they performed on their own in the States and Japan.

Despite this, The Stand is best known for the songwriting and production team for Paula Abdul's "Spellbound."

Striving to be known as a "black rock 'n' roll band," The Family Stand is made up of V. Jeffrey Smith (lead and backing vocals, keyboards, bass, drum programming, saxophones and the flute) and Sandra St. Voctor (lead and backing vocals), in addition to Peter Lord.

The Family Stand has lived up to the challenge of transcending categories and stereotypes to make music on their own terms. Moon in Scorpio reflects the band's imagination, intelligence and, in the broadest sense of the word, soul.

Wilson finished his act with his version of the Leon Jackson Black Acting Troupe Medley. Doing bits like "Lil' Hamlet" - "What it be or what it not be..."

Comedian finds humor in Hamlet

By Joe Horst
Staff Writer

Last Wednesday night, the Attic held another of its side-splitting Comedy Zone nights to an overflowing crowd.

The Attic hosted Lorenzel Wilson and Lance Montalo for its acts. Wilson has worked the Comedy Zone tour before and Montalo appears regularly on the Arts and Entertainment network comedy shows.

Wilson opened the night and kept the audience laughing throughout. Talking about his trip down to Greenville, Wilson related the one thing he hates about highways in North Carolina.

"Road construction. It's like two miles of cones and one guy with a broom. Of course, there's seven guys in the truck with a joint, you know. They're passing it around and going, 'Hey, one of those cones moved!'"

Wilson then went on to talk about politics and the candidates running for the presidency. He also commented on the Thomas hearings and the Kennedy-Smith trial.

"I think they should have him (William Kennedy-Smith) in one of those car commercials. You know, first you see this bridge in the background. Then the camera moves to a shot of this car slowly sinking into the river. Kennedy-Smith is swimming away from the car, saying, 'That's not my father's Oldsmobile!'"

"Heck, if he'd been really smart, he would have had Uncle Ted drive the girl home. No witnesses!"

Wilson finished his act with his version of the Leon Jackson Black Acting Troupe Medley. Doing bits like "Lil' Hamlet" - "What it be or what it not be..."

- and "Lil' Julius Caesar" - "Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me yo' ears. I come to bury Caesar - because he's dead!," Wilson left the crowd to thunderous applause.

Montalo took the stage and began what will hopefully be a trend — both comedians being funny. Montalo talked about the Gulf War to start his routine.

"These missiles are great," Montalo said. "They're laser-guided with cameras on them!! They go right up to your door and then, 'Knock-knock!' You're like, 'Who's there??' They answer, 'Dominoes' ... 'Pizza Hut' ... 'Land Shark.'"

"The Gulf War had to change its strategy for the new breed of soldiers," Montalo said. "Drill sergeants are going, 'Okay, now which one of you boys was good at ... Nintendo's Duck Hunt? You? All right, you'll shoot the Stingers.'"

Montalo continued with talk about celebrities and Hollywood.

"Did you hear the new joke? Ray Charles goes into the doctor's office for a checkup. The doctor comes out after it's done and says, 'I'm sorry, Mr. Charles, but I've got good news and bad news.' Charles goes, 'What's the bad news?' The doctor says, 'Well, you have cancer in your left testicle and it's gonna have to come off.' So Charles goes, 'Well, then what's the good news?' ... You got the right one, Baby. Huh-huh!"

Having lived in Louisiana, Montalo then went on to talk about Cajuns and their lifestyles.

"Cajuns are the only people you'll see with loaded shotguns standing on the side of the highway next to a deer crossing sign. 'Ayup, this here sign's a damn good idea.'"

Chinese art exhibit provides new perspectives of Far East

By Jim Shamlin
Staff Writer

The Far East has always fascinated Westerners. We attempt to appreciate the beauty and simplicity of an exotic culture, only to be confronted by aesthetics that are diametrically opposed to our own.

As a result, a conflict arises that generally results in frustration or in awe — an experience that defies verbal expression.

This experience has been brought to the United States by the Global 2000 project of the Carter Presidential Center, which has sponsored an art exhibition by deaf students of the people's Republic of China. The exhibition will be on display in the Mendenhall Student Center gallery through Jan. 31.

The exhibition features an array of works created by students, ages 16-20, at the Shanghai Vocational Technical School for the Deaf. The paintings on display demonstrate a variety of styles and media.

Zhenfei Lin's "A Beautiful Girl of Ancient Times," a Chinese watercolor, represents the traditional artwork, while Weiping Li's "Mother and Son," a lacquer painting, incorporates modern stylistics more familiar to Western audiences.

In addition to the typical landscapes and portraits, there are abstract and expressionistic works that one might not expect to find in a gallery of Oriental art.

Several of the works contain religious and political overtones — sentiments that would seem impossible to express under the watch of a totalitarian government.

Regardless of style or medium, each work contains a distinctly non-Western element that defies Western criticism. Audiences who look for meticulous planning and complex composition will be confounded by works based on simplicity and spontaneity.

Geometric perfection is utterly absent in works that are designed to be asymmetrical by artists who believe that negative space around the objects in a work are as important as the objects themselves.

Like Chinese philosophy, these works of art seem to violate every principle in Western thought, yet they possess a mysterious beauty that can only be understood through experience.

"Nuwa," painted by Hui Zhang, is proof that a person need not be able to hear to appreciate beauty and mystery in the world.

"Ma Gu," a traditional Chinese painting, was created by Lu Xie, a 17-year-old student from the Shanghai Vocational Technical School for the Deaf.

King's Dominion holds open auditions

'Ramblers' perform folk music

By Pamela Oliver
Staff Writer

For those looking for a place to escape the downtown bar scene and find a group of friendly people with which to unwind, search no further than the Folk Arts Society.

The Folk Arts Society of Greenville has the answers for this search. Every month, the society hosts a performance of dance, storytelling, music and anything else involving folk art.

Last Thursday, the society hosted a live musical performance at the Upper Crust Bakery, located downtown on Fifth Street. The show was a group of four folk musicians who call themselves "Swamp Cat Ramblers."

The musicians have been playing together for about fifteen years around the Greenville area and various other areas in North Carolina and Virginia. Just recently, they made a name for themselves in Galax, Virginia, at the Galax Fiddlers Convention.

The members of "Swamp Cat Ramblers" are a warm, friendly group of guys. During the break and after the performance, they talked to almost everyone in the bakery. They seemed to know everyone and everyone seemed to know them, because all four live around Greenville and all have regular jobs. "If we didn't have other jobs," John Booker chuckled, "we wouldn't have any money. You just can't make a living playing in a band." Booker sings the lead vocals on most of the songs and plays acoustic guitar. His home is in Ayden, which is where the band usually practices; however, he works a regular nine to five job at Courtney Square Apartments here in Greenville. Lane Hollis provides tenor harmony and plays the fiddle and the banjo. He is from Williamston, N.C., which is near Farmville. See Folk, page 10

Family Stand offers variety

By Dana Danielson
Assistant Entertainment Editor

A mix of jazz, rhythm and blues, rock and hip-hop? Unpleasant to the ear would be the first imaginable result, but New York based band, The Family Stand, has made an art of this seemingly odd melding.

Released in October 1991, Moon in Scorpio (East/West Records America) is the band's third album.

Each one of the 16 cuts off Scorpio provides the listener with fulfilling lyrics, melody and rhythm. The unusual mix of music styles is responsible for the uniqueness and individuality each song presents.

"If there's a theme to our albums as a whole, it's that of regeneration and resurrection," said Peter Lord, keyboardist and lead/backing vocalist. "It also relates to the idea of exposing and seeing things that have been hidden. Some of the songs deal with politics, but underneath even those, there are human relationships. That's the dichotomy that The Family Stand deals with."

A refreshing aspect of this latest album is the way in which the band approaches controversial issues from different angles and perspectives.

Issues dealt with in Scorpio include global change, media control, cultural apartheid, intimate relationships, the need for cultural identity, adoption and child molestation.

"It's one hellacious sonic experience, packing killer grooves, lethal guitar and stirring, sensual vocals," said the band members.

As musicians, The Family Stand claims to draw upon an ever widening array of rhythm and blues/rock/pop traditions. Though harkening back to the '60s and '70s, the band keeps their feet planted firmly in the present.

Moon in Scorpio also boasts some noteworthy guest stars such as Vernon Reid (from Living Colour), Ronnie Drayton (from

The Family Stand provides their listeners with a wide variety of music and lyrics. The group's music contains influences from every form of music. As a result, the album has a little something for everyone.

Mother's Finest), Dave Fields, trumpeter Tyrone Cox and rapper Guy Route (from Aftershock).

The band's initial release, Chapters: A Novel By Evon Gaffries And The Stand, features cuts like "Stand and Deliver" and "Why Does It Hurt When We Kiss." This was followed by a second album, Chain. From this, the single "Ghetto Heaven" ascended to No. 2 on the U.S. rhythm and blues chart; in Britain it climbed into the pop top 10 and topped the dance charts.

During the summer of 1990, The Family Stand assembled their support group and performed live for the first time. In addition to opening for Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers on a string of U.S. dates, they performed on their own in the States and Japan.

Despite this, The Stand is best known for the songwriting and production team for Paula Abdul's "Spellbound."

Striving to be known as a "blackrock 'n' roll band," The Family Stand is made up of V. Jeffrey Smith (lead and backing vocals), keyboards, bass, drum programming, saxophones and the flute) and Sandra St. Voctor (lead and backing vocals), in addition to Peter Lord.

The Family Stand has lived up to the challenge of transcending categories and stereotypes to make music on their own terms. Moon in Scorpio reflects the band's imagination, intelligence and, in the broadest sense of the word, soul.

Comedian finds humor in Hamlet

By Joe Horst
Staff Writer

Last Wednesday night, the Attic held another of its side-splitting Comedy Zone nights to an overflowing crowd.

The Attic hosted Lorenzel Wilson and Lance Montalo for its acts. Wilson has worked the Comedy Zone tour before and Montalo appears regularly on the Arts and Entertainment network comedy shows.

Wilson opened the night and kept the audience laughing throughout. Talking about his trip down to Greenville, Wilson related the one thing he hates about highways in North Carolina.

"Road construction. It's like two miles of cones and one guy with a broom. Of course, there's seven guys in the truck with a joint, you know. They're passing it around and going, 'Hey, one of those cones moved!'"

Wilson then went on to talk about politics and the candidates running for the presidency. He also commented on the Thomas hearings and the Kennedy-Smith trial.

"I think they should have him (William Kennedy-Smith) in one of those car commercials. You know, first you see this bridge in the background. Then the camera moves to a shot of this car slowly sinking into the river. Kennedy-Smith is swimming away from the car, saying, 'That's not my father's Oldsmobile!'"

"Heck, if he'd been really smart, he would have had Uncle Ted drive the girl home. No witnesses!!"

Wilson finished his act with his version of the Leon Jackson Black Acting Troupe Medley. Doing bits like "Lil' Hamlet" - "What it be or what it not be ..."

- and "Lil' Julius Caesar" - "Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me yo' ears. I come to bury Caesar - because he's dead!!" Wilson left the crowd to thunderous applause.

Montalo took the stage and began what will hopefully be a trend — both comedians being funny. Montalo talked about the Gulf War to start his routine.

"These missiles are great," Montalo said. "They're laser-guided with cameras on them!! They go right up to your door and then, 'Knock-knock!' You're like, 'Who's there??' They answer, 'Dominoes' ... Pizza Hut' ... Land Shark."

"The Gulf War had to change its strategy for the new breed of soldiers," Montalo said. "Drill sergeants are going, 'Okay, now which one of you boys was good at ... Nintendo's Duck Hunt? You? All right, you'll shoot the Stingers!'"

Montalo continued with talk about celebrities and Hollywood.

"Did you hear the new joke? Ray Charles goes into the doctor's office for a checkup. The doctor comes out after it's done and says, 'I'm sorry, Mr. Charles, but I've got good news and bad news.' Charles goes, 'What's the bad news?' The doctor says, 'Well, you have cancer in your left testicle and it's gonna have to come off.' So Charles goes, 'Well, then what's the good news?' ... You got the right one, Baby. Huh-huh!"

Having lived in Louisiana, Montalo then went on to talk about Cajuns and their lifestyles.

"Cajuns are the only people you'll see with loaded shotguns standing on the side of the highway next to a deer crossing sign. 'Ayup, this here sign's a damn good idea.'"

Miller enjoys over men

Wuornos has been mailed since her arrest in January 1991. Authorities say Wuornos confessed in a lengthy videotaped statement to killing seven men. As yet, she is charged in five of the deaths.

Assistant Public Defender Tonia Jenkins said Wuornos shot Mallory in self-defense after accepting a ride from near Tampa to Daytona Beach.

"Mallory" was inflicting abuse. He wanted to see her pain," Ms. Jenkins said, telling the jury they would "hear evidence of bondage, rape, sodomy and degradation."

"As Wuornos sobbed guiltily," Ms. Jenkins said, "she defended herself, she had had enough."

Howard Hill, a farmer from Ayden, plays the fiddle upon which the rest of the music is played.

Charlie Pickford plays banjo and mandolin for the band. He is originally from up north, but has since moved to eastern North Carolina.

The rest of the crew love to give him a hard time about being a Yankee.

The members of the Swamp Cat Ramblers have grown up with folk music. "All of us have," Booker explains, then grinning, "except for maybe Charlie over there, seeing as how he's from New York or New Jersey or somewhere up there."

The Swamp Cat Ramblers play a variety of styles. They perform bluegrass, old time traditional and country to name a few. Bluegrass and old time tunes, however, are their favorites.

Some of their favorite composers of Bluegrass and old time are Flatt and Scruggs, Monroe Brothers and Stephen Foster.

They also like to play country tunes by George Jones, Merle Haggard and Vern Gosdin. "I don't reckon you can get much more country than Vern Gosdin," Pickford joked as he introduced Gosdin's "Walkin' the Floor."

They also played a song called "Greenville Trestle High," written by Jim Jett from Clayton, a small town close to Raleigh. Jett had grown up in Greenville watching the trains roll by every day. His song is a sentimental one about how there aren't as many trains coming and going these days. Plus, now that he has grown up, the trestle no longer seems so high.

The Swamp Cat Ramblers played a handful of fiddle tunes, which are tunes written especially to allow the fiddle players to be in the spotlight.

Hollis and Pickford got a chance to show off their talent. It was truly amazing to watch the dualing fiddles fly through the pieces, not missing a single note.

The audience was quickly caught up in the spirit of the evening and participated in the show. Sharon Bowen, a friend of the band, sang harmony on "Songs of Life," by Ronnie Crowell.

Near the end of the performance, the band played a waltz at the request of a member of the audience. Consequently, several couples pushed back their tables and chairs and waltzed.

On another occasion, a faster tune was performed and two cloggers jumped up and performed one of their routines.

The next performance hosted by The Folk Arts Society will be on Feb. 20.

Storyteller Joyce Gear will give a free performance at the Parks and Recreation Teen Center.

The talent scouts from Kings Dominion and Kings Productions are hoping to fill openings for 11 live shows. The live shows are made up of Broadway-style stage productions, traditional song and dance with magic shows, illusions shows and character shows for children.

Kings Dominion also has country and western shows and pop music shows.

The newest production at the theme park is called "It's Magic." "It's Magic" is a music and magic extravaganza co-produced by nationally acclaimed magician Mark Wilson.

The newly selected performers and technicians should enjoy excellent growth and opportunities at Kings Dominion.

"It's a great place to practice your craft and working at a theme park can be a great stepping stone," said Paul Haught, Kings Dominion's manager of entertainment. "Our performers have gone on to work on Broadway touring shows, cruise ships and Las Vegas revues."

R 'n' R Hall of Fame inducts new members

NEW YORK (AP) — The Yardbirds, the Jimi Hendrix Experience, Johnny Cash, the Isley Brothers, Sam and Dave, Booker T and the MGs and Bobby "Blue" Bland were inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame on Jan. 15.

The names of the seventh year's inductees were announced Nov. 4 in Cleveland, where a Hall of Fame building is to be built. They all made recordings at least 25 years ago.

Also inducted at a Waldorf Astoria dinner were songwriter Doc Pomus; Leo Fender, creator of the Fender guitar; rock impresario Bill Graham, who died in a helicopter crash Oct. 25; and two early influences on rock 'n' roll, blues guitarist Elmore James and New Orleans pianist Professor Longhair.

The Yardbirds formed in 1963 in England. The band's influence was greater than its success. Its records are now collector's items.

The Jimi Hendrix Experience comprised Hendrix, the legendary guitarist, and British musicians Noel Redding and Mitch Mitchell.

ISO and the BOBS tantalizes audience's imagination

By Joe Horst
Staff Writer

ISO and the BOBS gave a rousing performance Friday to a near-capacity crowd at Wright Auditorium.

The modern dance and song troupe started out on a high note and sustained it magnificently throughout the night. Combining fast-paced songs and intricately choreographed dances, the show kept its initial pace and captured the audience's attention and love straight from the beginning. With their marvelous range and fluidity of movement, ISO and the BOBS treated the audience to a show that is sure to be remembered and cherished.

Their opening piece, "In The Beginning," entertained the audience with eye-catching lighting effects. Silhouetted behind a white curtain, the performers flashed in and out of view, drawing rapt attention to their entrance and starting the show with a bang.

ISO's first singular dance piece, "I Do," mixed harsh and smooth overtones to create a mesmerizing piece. Peter Schulthorpe's mixing of deep cello-like notes and high-spirited violin swings combined with the dancers to develop a piece that captured sight and sound perfectly.

"The Blind Venetians" treated the audience to a snapshot effect about humanity. Cleverly using life-sized venetian blinds on stage, the troupe took a break from dance and song to present a hilarious view of life in general.

One of the highlights of the first act, as well as the night, came with the troupe's dual ensemble, "Temptation Hymn" and "Temptation." A foot-tapping and hand-clapping feat, these two pieces combined to bring smiles and laughter from the crowd. Jamey Hampton danced superbly, and with a little help from an audience member in the front row, frolicked his way into the hearts of the audience.

"Drive By Love" delighted the assembly with a hip-hop beat, bringing back memories of the '70s. The age-old story of love from afar, "Drive By Love" showed the many talents of the BOBS' range and ability.

The troupe finished the first act with a marvelous dance routine, "Captain Tenacity," performed by Ashley Roland. Richard Wagner's heart-rousing music joined perfectly with the dancer's poses and movements. The height of the piece occurred when Roland struck various poses on a black backdrop, seemingly suspended in mid-air. Cleverly engineered, with Roland's costume somehow adhering to the backdrop, the poses served as the climax of the first act.

"Helter Skelter," the band's second piece in the second act, regaled the viewers with an eclectic dance and song piece. With the dancers moving in perfect time through a plastic sheet, they held the audience spellbound.

"Linguini Arms" gave a perfect example of the high degree of talent that these dancers have. Clad in bodysuits with streamers connected at the hands and feet, Jamey Hampton and Morleigh Steinberg moved in silent fluidity to perform a spectacular dance. Hampton and Steinberg concluded the piece in a symbolic version of birth and life.

"DNA" enthused the audience with three separate parts that ran along the tunes of the Big Band era.

The dance troupe finished the night with their rousing finale, "My Shoes," that left some audience members on their feet in appreciation. This piece showed the troupe's exemplary skill and their obvious years of experience.

ISO and the BOBS exceeded all expectations and performed with the audience's pleasure always first in mind.

It's no wonder that they have been playing in the United States and Europe for so long; and hopefully, a repeat performance is not far in the future.

ECU'S #1 Fraternity

Sigma Phi Epsilon

A lodge, a crest, a handshake - none of these ever made a fraternity. The things that are seen are merely the beginning. The invisible things - the brotherhood, the friendship, the loyalty, the honor - are the foundation. Together they develop the fraternity, and strengthen the individual. Sigma Phi Epsilon is not looking for just anyone. We are searching for a man who is willing to commit himself to the principles and goals of our fraternity. A man who wants to associate with an outstanding brotherhood. We are looking to the future - your future and our future.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON:

Accomplishments:

1988/1989-90 - We were again honored by winning the award for outstanding fraternity chapter at East Carolina University.

1987-89 Honored as being one of the top 20 overall chapters (out of nearly 300) in the nation, receiving the Buchanan Outstanding Chapter Award.

1984-89 Completed 5 year dominance of ECU intramurals by winning the Chancellors's Cup 5 years straight.

1984-90 We have been represented on the Student Government Association by the past two SGA presidents.

1991 Won the Order of Philas Brotherhood Unity Award - Only second award ever given, received by our chapter over 300 others.
