

Why truth is the better master to be serving

NEW YORK -- After leaking the results of a grand jury report on Tawana Brawley's claim that she was sexually abused over a period of days by a gang of white men, the traditionally conservative New York Times, in an editorial, called Brawley a "liar" and her advisers "charlatans."

"I am not a liar and I am not crazy," Brawley replied, but still refused to provide any evidence that would support her claims of abduction, sexual assault and racist motives.

I, like the rest of the public, am left with my own devices to seek the truth. We may never know conclusively whether the episode in question took place or not, but there is the truth that refuses to die or go away.

All white people are not good and all Afro-American people are not bad. Conversely, all Afro-American people are not good and all white people are not bad.

But the truth is constant. When I was the dean of Howard University's School of Communications, which had five departments, I had a mural painted on the wall outside of my

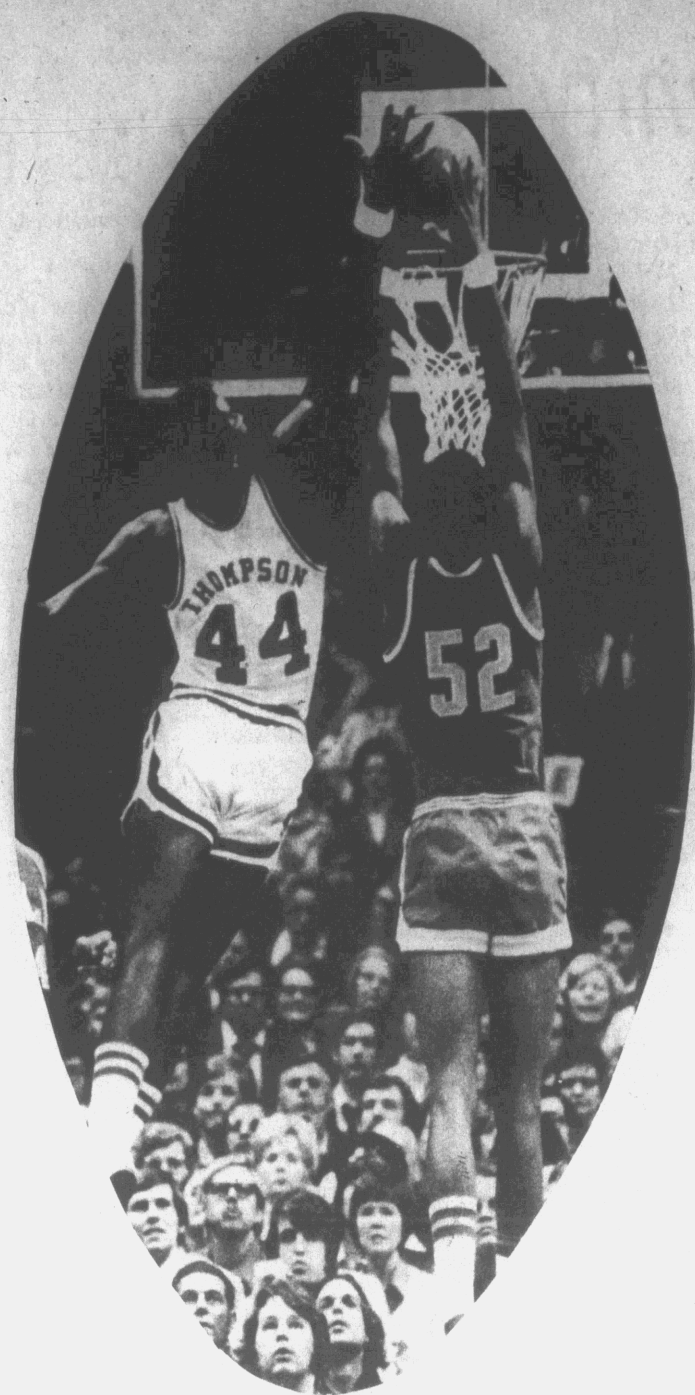

If the truth tells us that Tawana Brawley is a liar and has misused the love and trust that Afro-American people have expressed on her behalf, then we will know that one of our own has exploited our love and faith for her own egotistic hedonism. And if she has lied, she has tempted universal forces which will punish her beyond man's ability to comprehend.

Whichever we learn, we will grow. The truth must, of necessity, transform us into a force to implement God's will -- which is, acknowledge it or not, also our personal destiny.

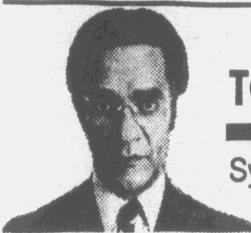

Afro-Americans much too often see what we wish to see, not the reality. Instead of finding truth, justice and equality, we find more agitation and rejection.

We want our children to be educated, so we organize a movement to bus them to white people so white people can educate them.

The truth is that Afro-Americans have not been willing to embrace the truth. Whites, for whatever reason -- racial or economic -- do not want to live with, marry, work with or other-office. It showed Frederick Douglass with a gigantic sword, shaped in letters spelling TRUTH.

Across the top it said: "A Search For The Truth." As I have said for years, "The truth has no negative connotations."

Afro-Americans will be better off when and if they find out the truth about Tawana Brawley's accusations and her character. If both pass the test of truth, we will know that once again, Afro-Americans have been robbed of decency and justice by a system that is morally corrupt.

wise be with Afro-Americans.

If we cannot love and relate to ourselves, how can we really love and relate to others?

Devotion toward whites is not sufficient to liberate Afro-Americans. There can be no liberation or salvation without an acceptance of reality.

Nobody can take us where we have to take ourselves. That place is the truth of race and racism. If we believe that all Afro-Americans are always right, we will always be victims of Afro-Americans. If we believe that all whites are always right, we will always be victims of whites.

If we accept the truth, we will always know that God is always right. That's why the truth has no negative connotations.

Bob Law to address media group

Bob Law, veteran broadcaster, writer, radio and television producer and host of the national Black talk radio program, "Night Talk," will be guest speaker at CEMOTAP's, Committee to Eliminate Media Offensive to African People, Fall media forum on Saturday, Sept. 24, at 2 p.m. at the St. Albans Family Life Center, 172-17 Linden Blvd.

CEMOTAP, based in Queens, monitors, documents and confronts racist media. It is currently focusing on racism in television news and "the offensive, racist WABC radio program, the Bob Grant Show."

Bob Law, who is heard on 31 radio stations around the nation is an out spoken advocate for the empowerment of African people. He is one of the primary organizers of the call for economic sanctions against Macy's Department Store and Sterling Drugs. His message will involve an update on the sanctions and instructions for more effective community involvement.

One area of his activism includes the highly regarded "Respect yourself campaign" for African American youth. The campaign provides a way for Black youth to help themselves and others as well.

The community is invited to attend the forum. A $4 donation is requested to offset expenses. Discounts for families are available. Call (718) 658-8359 for additional information.

North Carolina Symphony to perform on October 19

A world-renowned pianist and a world premiere of an orchestral composition will highlight the first 1988-89 season appearance of The North Carolina Symphony in Greenville on Wednesday, Oct. 19. The concert will be at 8 p.m. in Wright Auditorium at East Carolina University.

This is the first concert of the Greenville/Pitt County 1988-89 season of The North Carolina Symphony. The Greenville/Pitt County Chapter of The North Carolina Symphony Society, Inc. also is sponsoring an all-Beethoven concert on Monday, Feb. 13.

The guest pianist, Barry Douglas, captured worldwide attention on July 3, 1986, when he was the exclusive winner of the coveted Gold Medal at the Eighth Tchaikovsky International Competition in Moscow. In so doing, he became the first artist from the West to achieve this honor since Van Cliburn in 1958. Born in Belfast in 1960, Douglas studied at the Royal Academy of Music and now tours worldwide. He has recently made his debuts at Carnegie Hall and the Kennedy Center and with the Berlin Philharmonic.

With The North Carolina

Symphony Douglas will play Johannes Brahms' Concerto No. 2 in B-flat major for Piano and Orchestra.

The new orchestral composition to be premiered is On an Expanding Universe by American composer Kevin Hanlon. Hanlon, born in Indiana in 1953, is currently on the faculty at the University of Arizona. He is the recipient of numerous awards, including prizes from the Tanglewood Music Festival, Columbia University and the Eastman School of Music. He composed this composition in 1986 and has dedicated it to his wife Michele.

Under the direction of Music Director and Conductor Gerhardt Zimmermann, The North Carolina Symphony will also play Antonin Dvorak's Slavonic Dances, Opus 46.

TICKETS: For the one concert--$10 for adults, $8 for senior citizens and students. For the two-concert season subscription--$16 for adults, $12 for senior citizens and $10 for students. Tickets can be ordered from Mendenhall Ticket Center, 757-661, ext. 266 or purchased at the door.

Nutrition experts reviews Surgeon General's report

GREENVILLE—A researcher who studies foods and nutrition at East Carolina University was a reviewer for the first Surgeon General's Report on Nutrition and Health, released recently. Dr. Margie L. Gallagher, an associate professor in the Department of Food, Nutrition and Institution Management of the ECU School of Home Economics, was one of 70 nutrition experts asked to review contents of the report before publication.

The 750-page report was released by Dr. C. Everett Koop, U.S. Surgeon General. "It provides detailed information on how Americans' overall health could be improved by a few specific but fundamental dietary changes.

A primary priority given for dietary change is to reduce intake of total fats, especially saturated fat, because of their relationship to several of the chronic diseases which are leading causes of death in the United States.

"I'm in total agreement with the overall conclusion of the report," said Gallagher. "And that is if you don't drink excessively and you don't smoke then what you eat can be the most significant influence on your health," she said.

"It's pretty obvious, the evidence supports the lowering of cholesterol in diets," she said. She said diets that consist of foods high in fat but low in complex carbohydrates and fiber are associated with an increased risk of coronary heart disease. These high fat diets also increase the risk of diabetes, obesity and some types of cancer. Gallagher said she was most interested in the information contained in the report on Omega 3 fatty acids because this is an area where she has been conducting research. Found in fish oil, Omega 3 is believed to reduce cholesterol levels in humans. Gallagher studies the fish oil and Omega 3 content found in such species as stripped bass, croaker, mullet and flounder.

The Surgeon General's Report on Nutrition and Health was produced to present information to nutrition policy-makers and to effect changes in dietary guidance and education, nutrition programs and services and nutrition research and surveillance.

Copies of the publication are available for $22 from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402. Order stock number 017-001-00465-1.

TOM TAFT

Democrat

Senator Tom Taft has sponsored over 40 bills that are now law and supported hundreds of others, including bills for:

- education — for public schools, Pitt, Martin and Beaufort County Community Colleges and East Carolina University
- better and more affordable health care for older adults — and the chance to live an independent and dignified life
- fair treatment for people who are injured on the job
- action to clean up abandoned hazardous waste dumps
- the nation's first no-fault childhood vaccine program
- badly needed reforms to solve the crisis in medical malpractice insurance
- better jobs and economic opportunities for Eastern North Carolina
- fair treatment and better pay for state employees, public school teachers, university and community college faculty
- the farm economy that is vital to our part of North Carolina
- a balanced state budget

Business Notes . . .

"Peacock holds Grand Opening"

Ms. Jessie Singh (pronounced "sing") recently held a gala ribbon-cutting grand opening celebration of "The Peacock" at Carolina East Mall in Greenville. Ms. Singh, owner and operator, offers gifts from around the world for the "person who has everything."

The lady's apparel shop is the first of its kind to offer 100% pure silk scarves and dresses of exciting and vibrant colors imported from India. Once you have stepped into "The Peacock," you'll know where the name comes from, and as you begin to browse through the comfortable and relaxing atmosphere of "The Peacock" you should discover a one-of-a-kind clothingline and uniquely designed 14kt. gold, silver, and brass jewelry and hand-crafted woodenware. Ms. Singh most humbly suggests, "There is NO substitute for quality!" For the outfit no one else has, "The Peacock" is the place for you at reasonable prices.

To The 'M' Voice Readers and Its Editor

If you are a regular reader of local newspapers in the Pitt County area, you more than likely have realized that The 'M' Voice Newspaper is the only paper that has attempted to keep you informed about the on-going election process involving County Commissioner elections in Pitt County. Contrary to The 'M' Voice, other news media have ignored details leading up to elections. Except for WOOW 1340 AM Radio, very little or nothing is being aired to remind voters that important elections are right around the corner. Voter apathy is a big problem within our electoral process. It seems that someone should be saying something in the media. The 'M' Voice and WOOW are facing that civic obligation and should be saluted and commended for doing so.

cept broadcast unwholesome programs that focus on fads, fashions, music and advertising. Of course radio, TV and newspaper owners can air whatever they please within the law. But something is wrong when major segments of the media ignore the important concerns of our communities. When was the last time you heard an announcement on WKISS 102 FM concerning anything about improving the quality of life in the Afro-American community?

When was the last time that you read an article in THE DAILY REFLECTOR about the low voter turnouts or what the Board of Elections is doing to improve voter participation. How many videos on MTV or BET are really wholesome and send a positive influence to our youth. Here in Pitt County, we are in the beginning of a new era. The 'M' Voice and WOOW are trying to help lead the way. They are showing that good media can be informative and entertaining at the same time. These two voices are proving that they are very worthy of our support and our attention.

Afro-Americans living in Pitt County are exposed to more TV and Radio now, than ever before. Unfortunately, most of it is worthless garbage which pollutes the minds of our impressionable young people. Some radio stations in our area do nothing ex-

Tawana Brawley: 'I did not lie'

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) -- God let her live so she could stop the cover-up of racial injustice, Tawana Brawley says in rejecting the reported conclusion of a grand jury that she made up a story of kidnap and rape.

Speaking at a news conference Wednesday for the first time about the case, Miss Brawley declined to answer any questions remaining about the incident last November.

But she repeated the positions of her advisers and defended her charges as authentic.

"I have not deceived my advisers, my family and most of all, my people," she said.

"I am not a liar and I am not crazy. I just want justice and I then want to be left alone," the 16-year-old said. Poised as she read a prepared five-minute statement, her voice only began to quaver toward the end.

"I will give full testimony to an impartial grand jury - an impartial grand jury - or a congressional committee," said Miss Brawley, who has so far refused to testify.

"I wish to thank God for saving my life," she said of the incident. "He holds my hand and He let me live to stop the cover-up once and for all."

Tawana Brawley

Times, which revealed the panel's conclusions on Tuesday.

During an interview program broadcast on WLIB, a black-community oriented radio station in New York City, Sharpton said the three black activists would lead a protest in Brooklyn this afternoon that will "make the whole city stand still."

At the news conference in Newark, Sharpton challenged the grand jury and the New York Times to "give us one name of one witness that can establish that this was a hoax."

Mason challenged Abrams and U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani in Manhattan to "debate the racist system."

Giuliani's spokeswoman, Deborah Corley, said Giuliani issued the following statement:

"These people have proven by their irresponsible words and actions that they cannot be taken seriously. It would be inappropriate to dignify anything they say with a response," he said.

Timothy Gilles, a spokesman for the attorney general, said, "Abrams did not leak the grand jury materials to the Times and he has asked the state's special corruption prosecutor, Joe Hynes, to investigate who did."

He added, "Abrams is not going to comment on questions of whether Tawana Brawley lied or not until the release of the grand jury report." Gilles said he could not comment on when the report would be released.

Miss Brawley's mother, Glenda, and Glenda Brawley's live-in boyfriend, Ralph King, were at the news conference but did not speak.

Miss Brawley and her family recently moved from Wappingers Falls, N.Y., to Virginia Beach, Va.

If Glenda Brawley were to come to New York state, she would face arrest and 30 days in jail for defying a grand jury subpoena to testify in the investigation of her daughter's alleged abduction and attack.

Senator Lloyd Benson visited Greenville

Senator Lloyd Benson, Democratic Party Nominee for Vice President of the United States visited Greenville last week. It was a major news and political event for Greenville. There was music, free barbeque, a big crowd, television coverage by all major networks and live radio coverage by 1340 AM Radio, WOOW. Also, on the platform was almost every prominent democrat in the entire state: former Governor Jim Hunt, Secretary of Agriculture Jim Graham, and even Al Gore from Tennessee, who was himself a Presidential nominee before being defeated by Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson. Also included in the crowd, on the east side of the Pitt County Courthouse were a very few vocal Republican supporters of Presidential candidate, George Bush.

The rally which lasted almost 2½ hours was attended by an enthusiastic, but mostly white middle-class audience of office workers, executives and local political personalities.

Interestingly enough, the signs of massive black support was not visible at the Benson rally. In fact, blacks were scarce. Maybe the fact that it was a noon day affair caused most working blacks to be unable to attend. Even so, all blacks aren't working at noon time. It was therefore obvious that when it comes to getting Afro-Americans enthusiastic about Democratic candidates, the Democrats have a long, long way to go here in Pitt County.

HELP WHEREVER HELP IS NEEDED . . . The Ladies Auxiliary of the Ruff 'n Ready Volunteer Firemen's Association's twenty-eighth anniversary took place last Sunday at Selvia Chapel F.W.B. and female roles. It is the only way they can learn our values and the things that are important to us.

In many "modern" families, it is not uncommon to turn the newborn infant over to a day-care facility a few weeks after the baby is born. When the children are 5 or 6, the schools take over. The years pass quickly toward high school graduation. There is usually little parental involvement with teachers and administrators who are educating the next generation.

More importantly, it is a parent's job to be a "good role model." No one can expect a child to become something the parent is not. Lessons learned by example are the most powerful lessons learned, and who watches for example closer than our own children? Too many parents tell their children not to smoke, swear, cheat, lie, drink, etc., but lack the self-control to add the critical and convincing element of example.

Without this element, we as parents cannot truly teach those we love and cannot expect them to be what we are not.

"Let no man despise thy youth: but be thou an example of the believers. in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in purity". 1 Timothy 4:12

FIVE WAYS TO LOVE YOUR MATE...

How much love are giving in your marriage? "Husbands, love your wives" (Eph. 5:25). Paul also taught that wives should "love their husbands" (Tit. 2:4).

God wants husbands and wives to be lovers. Here are five ways to show true love for your mate. The first two ways deal with the aspect of commitment in marriage - they will solidify your marriage and place it on a firm foundation. The last three ways deal with the pleasure phase of marriage - God wants your marriage to be filled with real, deep joy.

Lovers Forever. This is "agape" love. Agape means unconditional, unselfish giving.

Commitment Produces Endurance. You should have promised in a covenant with God, on your wedding day, to love your mate unto death.

Don't Give to Get. Strive to reach the state where fulfilling your mate's needs becomes, next to your commitment to God, the predominate need of your life.

Lovers Belong to Each Other. The second way to love your mate is with the love of belonging, which will bring you and your mate closer together. God created marriage to be the closest human relationship. Yet, many married couples live together as strangers.

What is the love of belonging? This love is characterized by a bond of unity, companionship and loyal devotion. This need to belong cannot be satisfied through any other person. Whether mother, father, sister or brother, only through your mate. "Therefore a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and they shall become one flesh" Gen. 2:24.

Cleave to Each Other. God tells married couples to "cleave" to each other. Becoming one physically, mentally and spiritually should be the goal of every married couple.

Couples who are in love with each other look at one another often. The eye is the mirror of love. Create a romantic climate with your mate through eye contact. Look warmly into your mate's eyes when you talk. In public, occasionally look for your mate, catch his eye and smile or wink. You will be sending the message "love you" from your eyes to your mate's heart.

Kissing has always been a symbol of affection and warmth. You should make kissing the official form of greeting your mate. A kiss in the morning is a pleasant way to start the day. Kisses through the day are an excellent way to sustain your mate's affection.

"There is no greater way to influence how your child will turn out than by the example you set".

An old uneducated gentleman said, "Don't mess where you eat".

The word "No" means complete absence or objection to anything and it is probably the most valuable, useful word in the English language.

1. Use your library card. Say "No" to credit cards. Do you have a library card?

2. Say "No" to sex. It leads to promiscuity, an ill-timed pregnancy, possibly AIDS.

3. Brutality, child/wife abuse is a "No-No".

4. Get busy. Keep your mind alert - in school. Wishing won't do it. Dream. Push forward. Go for it. Reach your goal.

5. Say "No" to speed driving. Slow and easy is the way. By being careful, you may reach your destination. Say "No" to "showing off".

6. Say "No" to drugs, alcohol and beer, crime and wine. You can go a long time, but you will eventually get caught.

7. Say "No" to vulgar, curse words. You can be heard and seen without using expletives.

8. Say "Yes" to academics. Sports will never keep you in

New Alliance Party held demonstration on September 25

Wynonia Brewington Burke, the New Alliance Party's vice presidential candidate in North Carolina, and Emily Carter, a representative of Dr. Lenora Fulani's independent presidential campaign, along with leaders of the Robeson County Justice Committee, announced their plans to hold a demonstration on the campus of Wake Forest University at 7:00 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 25.

The purpose of the demonstration, says Burke, a Coharie Indian born and raised in North Carolina, is to protest the exclusion of Fulani from the major party-sponsored presidential debate taking place in the Wait Chapel that evening.

"Keeping Lenora Fulani out of the debate on Sunday is the same as keeping the people of North Carolina out," charged Burke. "She has traveled to Robeson County to stand up for the Indian and black communities in their fight against official corruption and police brutality. The national spokesperson for her campaign, Vernon Bellecourt, a leader of the American Indian Movement, came to Robeson at the request of the community when Julian Pierce was murdered. We are protesting the ongoing persecution of Eddie Hatcher, who was forced to flee for his life, the unpunished murder of Julian Pierce, the endless crimes against people of color that the bipartisan political establishment of this state condones, and the unabated being brought by Fulani against the Commission. The candidate is seeking an injunction against the debates unless she is allowed to participate.

"It is an insult to the people of Robeson County and the whole state of North Carolina for Mr. Bush and Mr. Dukakis to march arrogantly in and pretend to have a 'democratic debate of the issues' when the life and death issues that the people face are being excluded because Dr. Fulani is being excluded," said Burke.

Bike-A-Thon

Brenda G. Yawkins has been named chairperson for the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital along with other 4-H leaders, Yvonne J. Moye; Valerie and Debra Johnson; Carolyn R. Smith and Rosa M. Pugh as co-chairperson.

The Bike-A-Thon is scheduled for October 15, at 9:00 a.m. at the Park here in Simpson. In case of rain the Bike-A-Thon is scheduled for the 22nd. We are asking that each participant is to be responsible for at least a $5.00 donation and Churches and Businesses are responsible for $25.00 or more.

Any participant with a donation of $25.00 will receive an official Bike-A-Thon T-shirt and $75.00 - and T-shirt and a sports bag from St. Jude's.

There will be other prizes given also!!

ed war of intimidation that is going on right now against the people of Robeson County."

Sunday's debate is the first in a national series being sponsored by the Commission on Presidential Debates, the joint creation of the Democratic and Republican national committees. Fulani, the first Afro-American ever to be on the ballot in all 50 states and the District of Columbia, was informed earlier this week that she was ineligible to participate in the Commission-sponsored debates because she could not demonstrate that she has a chance of winning the election. The demonstration at Wake Forest University coincides with a lawsuit

Shaw University inaugurates 12th president

Dr. Talbert O. Shaw will be inaugurated as Shaw University's twelfth president on Friday, November 18 at 2:30 p.m. in Raleigh Memorial Auditorium, Raleigh, NC.

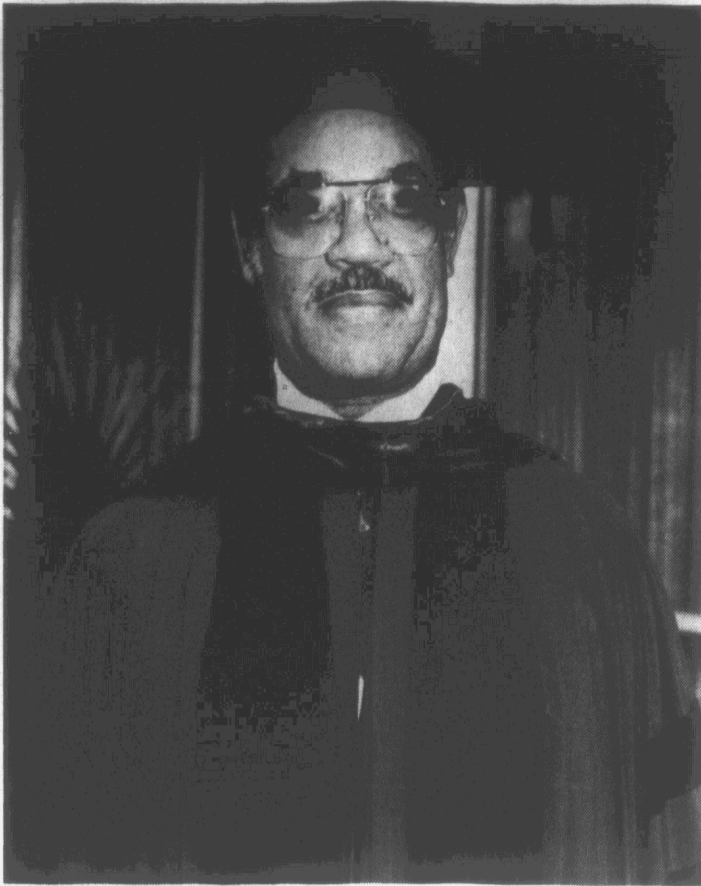

Several outstanding and distinguished educators, ministers, entertainers as well as many other guests from across the country and the globe are expected to participate in the gala weekend that also will include alumni activities celebrating Founder's Day and Homecoming in the 124th year of this historic institution of higher education.

Dr. Shaw earned his A. B. degree at Andrews College, Michigan, and his A. M. as well as his Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago. His dissertation developed an integrative theory of social responsibility employing descriptive and normative principles in the social sciences, philosophy and theology. His years as a professor and administrator have been spent at Howard University in Washington, D.C., Catholic University of American in Washington, Bowie State College in Maryland, Federal City College in Washington, Princeton University in New Jersey, and Morgan State University in Baltimore before coming to Shaw University as its twelfth president. He was a University Fellow while at the University of Chicago, is recognized in WHO'S WHO AMONG BLACK EDUCATORS, was given the Meritorious Award as a distinguished administrator by the Morgan State University Foundation, and elected to the Board of Directors for the Council of College of Arts and Sciences; he is an Academic Associate with the Atlantic Council of the United States. He was also a participant as an academic administrator at the NATO briefings at Brussels, Belgium in 1986 where he was sponsored by the Atlantic Council and the U.S. Department of State. His publications include theological and philosophical monographs in MESSAGE MAGAZINE, SPECTRUM, THE JOURNAL OF RELIGIOUS STUDIES and in the MORGAN STATE MAGAZINE.

He is a member of the American Academy of Religion, the American Association of Higher Education, the American Society of Christian Ethics, the Atlantic Council, the Council of the Colleges of Arts and Sciences, and the American Council on Education. He has recently published THE REAGAN CARIBBEAN BASIN INITIATIVE, and has two other works, LIBERAL EDUCATION AND AMERICAN PRAGMATISM, and MANAGING THE MANAGERS, in progress.

Dr. Shaw was selected by the Shaw Board of Trustees from among more than 65 candidates for the position. Incidentally, Dr. Shaw is of no relation to the University's name. He came to Shaw University after having served nine years as dean of arts and sciences at the Morgan State University in Baltimore, Maryland.

Since the appointment in November, 1987, Dr. Shaw has made some significant achievements on behalf of the university. These include constructive contacts and relationships with North Carolina's finest business, social and political communities; increased financial contributions; greater church relations; and significant outreach efforts for national and international associations in the corporate world.

"WHY NOT THE BEST?" . . . is the slogan and attitude of Shaw University's twelfth president, Dr. Talbert O. Shaw, pictured above, will be inaugurated during Homecoming activities slated for November 18th. Since becoming President of the 124-year old historic Black Institution, Dr. Shaw has witnessed record student enrollment and increased student activities during Shaw U's "rebirth!" The 'M' Voice and WOOW welcomes Dr. Shaw to North Carolina's Educational, Business and Social Communities.

Long-term behavior effects of cocaine

Long-term behavioral effects of cocaine and its highly potent derivative, crack, on infants born to drug-abusive mothers will be investigated in an East Carolina University School of Medicine study supported by an $80,080 grant from the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration.

Dr. Brian A. McMillen, associate professor of pharmacology at ECU, will spend the next three years determining behavioral effects of the drugs at all stages of gestation. He also hopes to discover the link between these effects and the biochemical changes which cause them.

Physicians believe that prenatal exposure to these drugs is responsible for hyperactivity and learning and memory impairments in children born to cocaine-addicted mothers.

"Our research is novel because unlike other studies of late, we are concentrating on the consequences of cocaine exposure in each stage of postnatal development," said McMillen.

He said previous studies have emphasized the drug's immediate effects on infants at birth, which include uncontrollable crying spells, severe birth defects and seizures.

"If we can determine biochemical changes in the brain leading to behavioral dysfunctions perhaps we will be able to develop drug therapy and other forms of

Transportation Board approves funds

The state Board of Transportation has approved $25,000 for highway work in Pitt County.

The board's action will permit the installation of a multi-phase traffic signal on US-264 at SR-1203. Work will begin as soon as equipment and materials arrive at the site.

Randy D. Doub of Greenville, who was appointed by Governor Jim Martin to represent Pitt County on the board, said funding for this construction and other work comes, in part, from the "Roads to the Future" program. That program was proposed in early 1986 by Governor Martin and partially enacted by the General Assembly in July 1986. Last year, additional provisions of the program were approved by the General Assembly.

Carver Activity Program

The Carver Activity Program is accepting applications for the 1988 - 1989 school year.

The Carver Activity Program is held on Thursday mornings from 9:00 - 11:30am for children ages 3-5 at Carver Branch Library.

While attending the program, children are exposed to stories, films, the basic concepts of learning (colors, shapes, numbers, alphabet, etc.), music, art, and physical exercises.

There is no fee for the program, however registration is required and the number of students accepted is limited.

For more details concerning the Carver Activity Program or registration procedures, visit the branch Monday-Fridays, 10:30am - 6:00pm or call at 830-4583.

9. Say "Yes" to being a regular attendee in Sunday school and church.

10. Say "No" to setting bad examples; discourtesy, improper table manners, gossiping, poor grooming habits.

You'll constantly need "No" in your life. Use it wisely.

Parents, you can make a big difference in how well your child does in school.

Listen to what teachers say:

1. Create a healthy, supportive home environment. Make sure your child gets enough rest and eats breakfast, preferably not in front of the television. Know your child's friends.

2. Read to your child and let him see you reading for your own pleasure; he'll learn by your example.

3. Keep up with your child's activities on a day to day basis. Go over his homework with him before he passes it in. Note the dates of upcoming school events on a calendar so that your child arrives prepared for them. And to make the teacher's job a bit easier, sign and return school papers promptly.

4. Inform your child's teacher of any problems or new situations that arise at home. If a teacher knows that a child's parents are getting a divorce, that there's been a death in the family or that a new baby has joined the household, he or she will be better equipped to help the child work through the problem or adjust to the new situation.

Physical therapists open outpatient clinic at ECU

A treatment program to help people with aching backs and pain in shoulders, elbows and knees is underway at East Carolina University in the Department of Physical Therapy.

The department, a part of the ECU School of Allied Health Sciences, has established an outpatient clinic specializing in orthopedic physical therapy applications.

"We considered calling it a back clinic so that people could better understand what we do," said George Hamilton, chairman of the Physical Therapy program. But he said calling it a back clinic tended to limit the wide range of services and treatment the clinic will provide.

"The clinic can help people with back problems, and problems associated with pain in the muscles and in the joints of the body," he said.

"Anybody who has low back pain, whiplash injuries, bursitis, tennis elbow, post fracture or some type of injury that causes the joint to be weak, painful or stiff can be helped by physical therapy," he said. "We will also work to establish function in a joint after injury or surgery," he said.

The clinic will take referrals by physicians or individuals can call the Department of Physical Therapy at 757-4135 or 757-6961 to set up an appointment.

Hamilton said the clinic is being opened to provide a place for physical therapy faculty to maintain their clinical skills while providing a service to the citizens of Greenville and eastern North Carolina. He said the clinic will also be a teaching resource for students and will assist in the collection of research information for studies on the effectiveness of various treatments.

The physical therapy department at ECU began in 1969 as one of the programs offered in the then new School of Allied Health. Although the program currently graduates about 24 students a year, the demand by students to major in Physical Therapy is high. Hamilton said the department gets more than 200 applications for the spaces available each year in the curriculum. He said the department gets a constant stream of calls and letters from potential employers outlining the opportunities for graduates of the program.

In past years the physical therapy program has provided a limited amount of clinical service, primarily to ECU students and faculty. This is the first time that it has offered a full time, full service clinic to the public.

The Physical Therapy Department and its clinic is located in the Belk Allied Health Building. Therapy rooms on the first floor of the building contain an array of sophisticated equipment. There are tables for therapeutic exercise and massage and special exercise machines designed for manipulating certain muscles and joints.

One of the machines is actually a type of robot, called a Biodex, that can be programmed to enhance muscle and tendon development in the knee and other extremity joints. The machine can also help therapists analyze the extend of functional loss following injury or disease of a joint.

Hamilton said that when an individual comes to the clinic a physical therapist will evaluate the problem and make an assessment to determine what should be done. If the problem is something that cannot be helped by physical therapy then the therapist will suggest seeing a physician.

"Our intent is to work closely with the medical community in helping people with musculo-skeletal problems," he said.

He said that one of the goals for the program is to combine the patient care services offered by the faculty of the Department of Physical Therapy with the patient care services offered by medical school faculty.

"We see physical therapy as an extension of the physician," Hamilton said.

He said medical doctors can treat patients by administering drugs, performing surgery or by physical intervention. But he said physicians sometimes forget the physical intervention and rely solely on drugs and surgery.

An example might be a patient who sees a physician for back pain. After examining the patient and taking x-rays, if the doctor can find no disease or major structural deficiency causing the problem the patient is sometimes told that the condition is fleeting and that it will get better with pain medication and rest.

"Sometimes they do get better and sometimes they don't," said Hamilton. These minor problems sometimes grow into greater problems because the patient will usually cut down on physical activity.

"As you cut down on activities you weaken your muscle and joint structure and allow biomechanical alterations to occur," Hamilton said. "You then may be placed in a sudden demanding situation and your body can't respond. When you can't respond you injure yourself," he said.

"Early intervention and patient education by the physical therapist can frequently reduce the extent of these adverse biomechanical changes and prevent more severe disability from occurring," he said.

Physical therapy faculty will be involved in providing patient

WHO OWNS YOUR ELECTRIC UTILITY?

You do! You and all the citizens in this community. In public power communities like Greenville, the owners and users are one and the same.

This makes a big difference - in rates and service. And all the benefits produced at home stay at home. Any revenues over and above the cost of operating GUC's system go to the City of Greenville. GUC has been able to provide over $7.5 million to the city's general fund over the past 5 years.

We're not in business for private profit. Locally owned electric utilities are in business to provide you with an essential service at the lowest reasonable cost. GUC is recognized regionally as a leader in developing innovative programs to keep power costs down. It's to our benefit - and yours.

You have a say in how we do things. Greenville Utilities Board of Commissioners is made up of local people - your neighbors - who set rates, policy budgets and development plans. You are welcome to attend Commission meetings which are held the second Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the Board Room of the Greenville Utilities building on the corner of 5th and Washington Streets.

Take pride in your community-owned utility. After all, it's yours.

McMillen, a member of the medical school faculty since 1982, has special research interests in drugs such as cocaine and amphetamines which affect the central nervous system. He has also conducted extensive research on anti-psychotic drugs and tranquilizers.

Outpatient Clinic

(Continued from page 4) services. One faculty member, Kevin Robinson, has joined the department as an orthopedic physical therapy specialist and will direct the outpatient services of the back and limb clinic in the Belk Building.

Hamilton said the clinic is designed to be self supporting and the department will assist their clients in obtaining collections from insurance resources to cover the cost of services.

Jordan focuses on health care in speech

By VALERIE ROBACK GREGG
Chronicle Staff Writer

Lt. Gov. Robert B. Jordan III told members of the N.C. Public Health Association Friday that as governor he would focus on providing health care to all segments of society, including those who can't afford insurance or adequate prenatal care.

"Health care is just as basic to our citizens as food, shelter and education," Jordan told about 200 people assembled at the Winston Plaza Stouffer Hotel. "North Carolina cannot afford to have an infant mortality rate higher than 12 other industrialized nations -- not states, but nations.

"We must have leadership committed to providing infant care, prenatal care and increased state support for drug education."

Jordan said he will work towards better quality health care for expectant mothers and children under the age of five. "As governor, I'll establish a chil-ren's cabinet to aggressively address infant mortality and premature delivery," he said. "No pregnant mother or child should lack prenatal care because they lack insurance coverage."

About 900,000 state residents lack health insurance coverage, Jordan said, but he has helped stem the problem by encouraging the formation of a state health insurance pool for small businesses. Jordan also plans to work to lower the cost of doctors' malpractice insurance. "We cannot afford a North babies because of medical malpractice insurance," he said.

Jordan also addressed the issue of affordable health care for the elderly, meeting the health care needs of the state's minority population, and AIDS education. "We must increase funding for AIDS prevention," he said. "I helped get the mandate for public schools to include AIDS education in their health curriculum."

Jordan also discussed the need to focus on environmental health issues including hazardous waste, solid waste disposal, and air and water pollution. Jordan also pledged to bolster the salaries and working conditions of public health employees.
