Dr. Robert M. Abdul-Karim, D.D.S., P.C.

The Oral-Systemic Connection; Pt 2:

"WE HAVE MET THE ENEMY AND HE IS US."

The body's own natural immune response causes damage to the body itself. This is the reason it fully activates only when something attacks the body first. This process of inflammation has researchers busy as they continue to find evidence linking it to other serious diseases. There is no better illustration of this than chronic gum disease. The body literally destroys itself, even though, the initial assault originated from bacteria. 2/3 of the damage sustained by the body is caused by the inflammatory process in response to the perceived invader. Even worse, the inflammation does not localize itself to just to the area of the perceived attack. It migrates! Here enters the association of gum disease with other health conditions like diabetes, premature birth, stroke and cardiovascular disease. However the infection travels from the mouth to distant organs, it is clear that it turns the body against itself.

When bacteria come in contact with the gums they secrete a toxin that breaks down the gum lining and it creates tiny cuts. The body's bloodhounds attack these invaders. If the bloodhounds keep the biofilm at bay the battle reaches a standoff called gingivitis. If the bacteria continue to advance deeper into the gums the immune system signals a higher state of alert releasing "bigger and badder" soldiers that have more destructive capability. The "high-alert" soldiers constantly release signals that heighten the inflammation process. Next thing you know, there is all out mayhem with immune soldiers running from house to house, spraying rooms with machine gun fire, tossing grenades, all before asking who is friend or foe. The tiny cuts become bigger ulcers sinking deeper into the gums creating periodontitis, more commonly know as gum disease. I know what you're thinking, "With all this mayhem occurring in my mouth, wouldn't I be aware it's going on?" The disease progresses silently and most people aren't even aware that they have gum disease. If gum disease is allowed to progress, the advancing inflammation eats away gum, bone and the ligaments that anchor the teeth in the socket which causes teeth to loosen until ultimately they fall out. Although the damage in periodontal or gum disease is primarily the result of the inflammatory process it can only be prevented or treated by addressing the bacteria that is infecting the gums. So if you haven't seen your dentist in the last six months, call and make an appointment or you could wind up being your own worst enemy! (Scientific American Magazine)

Why Community Christian Church Appreciates
Pastor James D. Corbett

Our Pastor has a thankless job
In many different ways;
He gets a lot of helpful hints,
And even gets some praise!

The time he has is not his own—
He's not like other men;
Right when he thinks some time is his
There rings that phone again!

Someone is sick or needs advice,
And asks for him to call;
And as God's man they know he'll come.

And hardly mind at all.

The wisdom of King Solomon
Is all he needs each day
To lead his flock and keep them safe
From Satan's cunning ways!

Like Jesus he prays for his sheep—
Prays faith will never dim;
But when we lift our prayers to God
How many pray for him?

So let's be faithful to that one
Who helps us day by day
Let's not forget our man of God
When we kneel down to pray!

Elaine Marshall: Let's Make History Together

Elaine Marshall: Let's Make History Together
By: Staff Reports

Our nation is witnessing a historical "first." Senator Barack Obama is the first African American ever nominated to a major party's ticket as the United States presidential nominee. History is happening right before our eyes, and like Obama's awe-inspiring journey, there have been many other "firsts" in the great state of North Carolina. Clarence E. Lightner was the first African American mayor of Raleigh, the state's capitol. Justice Patricia Timmons-Goodson is the first African American woman ever appointed to the Supreme Court of North Carolina.

Secretary of State Elaine Marshall is a platinum member of the elite "first" club as well - fighting to give a voice to those whose cries often have gone unheard. Marshall was the first woman elected to the office of Secretary of State in 1996, and has since served three consecutive terms.

In this year's election, the seasoned Democrat is running against Republican Jack Sawyer. Marshall remembers, "When I grew up and became the owner of a small business, I discovered that if I wanted a line of credit, my husband had to go to the bank and apply for the loan—because I was a woman. I witnessed other instances of inequity and discrimination in my community directed at men, women, children, and families who would have little chance of realizing their dreams. So as a lawyer, I stood up for people without a voice. As a member of the North Carolina Senate, I got needed health care services, especially for our state's rural areas. And as Secretary of State, I have made protecting consumers and creating jobs my top priorities."

As for the 2008 election, Marshall said, "I'm happy with all the new people who feel empowered this time. We've been preaching for years, 'This is your country, step up to the plate.'" Marshall understands the needs and relates to the challenges of working-class Americans as well as disenfranchised and underserved communities. "I've always believed it's my obligation to listen to people—to hear their hopes and dreams—and to find ways I can help make those dreams come true."

GREASE

Grease is a real "pain in the drain" because it can clog sewer lines, which can lead to sewer spills. GUC does everything it can to prevent sewer spills, but we can't do it alone. We need your help!

The best way you can "cease the grease" is to never pour grease (things like oil, butter, margarine, shortening, pan drippings, and sauces) down the drain. Instead, let it cool down, collect it in a container—like a used soup can or mayonnaise jar—and throw it away in the trash.

unfavorably by 9.2 percent. As he prepared to leave office in 2000, a Joint Center poll pegged his favorable rating among African Americans at 91 percent.

Even after several controversial remarks about Obama that drew ire from the Black community during the Democratic primary, the current rise in Clinton popularity may be due to their glowing endorsements of Obama during the Democratic National Convention in August. Some analysts largely attribute the Democratic Party unity to their Convention speeches.

Other findings in the Joint Center poll:

- 84 percent of African Americans prefer Obama over his Republican opponent, Senator John McCain (R-AZ), who was chosen by six percent of respondents, with 10 percent undecided or preferring not to share their preference.

- More than 90 percent of respondents had a favorable view of the Democratic nominee, with 4.7 percent viewing him unfavorably, as opposed to a 22.8 favorable and a 65.1 unfavorable rating for McCain.

- There was a significant change in party identification among African-American voters, with 73 percent identifying themselves as Democrats, up from 63 percent in 2004, and Black Republicans in the survey declining to four percent, down from 10 percent four years ago. The percentage of Black Independents declined from 23 percent to 19 percent over the same four year period.

- President George W. Bush's favorable ratings among African-Americans are the lowest on record for a sitting president. Only 13.3 percent of African-Americans view Bush favorably, while 80.2 percent view him unfavorably. The report reminds that "Black voters are an important factor in several swing states, including Florida, North Carolina, Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Missouri—as well as in several crucial U.S. Senate elections in Georgia, North Carolina, Kentucky and Mississippi."

"The intensity of the African-American vote could be pivotal to the outcome in some state races," concluded Bositis.

ACADEMIC SPOTLIGHT

-Lee A. Godley III

Biography-Lee A. Godley III is the son of Lee and Delores Godley and has one sister, Stacey. He loves the Lord, his family, his church and friends. The family resides in Washington, NC and are members of Davenport Temple COGIC where Bishop Leroy Jackson Woolard is the pastor. Lee has attended Chocowinity Primary and Middle Schools and is a graduate of Washington High School.

Lee began his public speaking very early in programs at church. He was asked by our Bishop to introduce him at the Holy Convocation in Raleigh when he was six years old before thousands of people. He was a member of the Youth choir but now holds membership to the Men's choir, the Junior Usher Board and a member of the video committee. He is also a Junior Minister of Children's Church. During the Youth Conventions, he was a 1st Place Oratorical winner in 2002 and 2003, 2nd Place Spelling Bee winner in 2002 and 1st Place winner in 2003 and 2005. He was also a member of Davenport Temple's basketball team.

Lee was enrolled in College for Kids classes at age 6 until he was 12 at Beaufort County Community College and is certified in the field of computer technology. He has been on the honor roll and Principal's List throughout school. He has numerous perfect attendance awards. He won 1 Place in a music writing contest and was presented a 1st Place medal in reading by Miss North Carolina. He was a member of the CMS Chorus and Steppin' Out for two years, in the academically-gifted class and participated in Envirothon at Goose Creek State Park. He did Science Olympiad for three years and was deemed a regional and state champion. Duke University selected him for the Motivation for Academic Performance program in 2002. He was also a library assistant. Lee had the highest averages in Science, math, computer, language arts, and social studies from 1998 to 2004. He was presented the Outstanding Academic Achievement certificate by Presidents Bill Clinton in 2000 and George Bush in 2004 and 2008. He is a member of the Junior and National Beta Club. At Washington High School he had the highest average in World History, geometry and computer engineering. He has been a United States All-American Scholar for 5 years.

churches, elected Northeast District 4-H Council Vice President and President of Beaufort County Youth Council. For eight years, Lee has been active with the NAACP Youth Council and was elected their President in 2007.

In 2006, he developed and presented a bill to the legislators at the General Assembly. It was to establish county-wide youth centers specifically geared towards catering the needs of today's North Carolinian youth. He is the youngest person ever to create & debate a bill in the Senate Chambers. During special programs at Mount Hebron and Beebe Memorial, he was given an award for Citizenship by the ASALH and an award for Academics and Citizenship by the Omega Psi Phi fraternity. In addition, Lee received an award for great citizenship from the NAACP at their annual youth banquet. He was also Washington Daily News' Student of the Year in 2006, with the front-page headline of "Godley Prepares for Leadership".

Lee's other academic awards during his tenure at Washington High School include: two-time Who's Who Among America's Top High School Students in which he is in the top 1% of all high school students in the nation, Who's Who Among Mathematic Students, the Nobel Peace Prize Organization, United States Achievement Academy, National Honor Roll, Vice President of National Honor Society at WHS, School Improvement Team, two-year Black History Month program chairman, President of Multicultural Affairs Association, member of the Math Team, and Future Business Leaders of America. Also as a member of Science Olympiad, his electric car won 1st Place and he won 6th Place out of 100 for science questions. Lee was on the basketball team, won 1st Place in Shot Put, Discus and weightlifting. He received the Embarq and Boy Scouts of America Scholarship at their Rewarding Academic Excellence Banquet. The Old Ford Ruritan Club hosted a dinner in his honor to present him with a check for his outstanding academic and civic achievements. During his school's dignified and emotionally-filled Awards and Scholarships Night, he received fifteen scholarships and a trophy for Best All-Around Male Student voted on by the entire student body.

He also was awarded the Bill Gates Scholarship, which is given to a few selected students in the United States. This is the very first time that any student has won this award from any school in Beaufort County. This shows you what God will do for you.

Attaining a G.P.A. of 4.3, Lee graduated with highest honors on June 11, 2008. He is employed as a technology consultant at Office Depot and enjoys playing his guitar, helping people and spending quality time with his family and friends. Lee plans to matriculate to Elizabeth City State University and, through a full four-year scholarship, double major in computer science & business management with a minor in mathematics (his mother is also an alumni of ECSU). But most of all, Lee says his steps are ordered by the Lord and everything here happened because of God's grace and favor!

Lee is very active in church, school and community functions. The Beaufort County Arts Council Art Camp has employed him as an instructor for 3 years. As a member of the 4-H Pamlico Pioneers, he has won bronze, silver and gold medals at District Activity Day and State Congress Week for public speaking. He worked with the staff at UNC-TV offices in Raleigh, volunteered at Pettigrew State Park and Dorothea Dix Hospital, did presentations for the Kiwanis Club, Noon Rotary, NAACP banquet and Black History programs at many

-Kay Hagan

In the Senate, Kay will work with our new President to bring change by:

- Working to create new jobs and keep the ones we've got from moving overseas.
- Fighting to make health care more affordable and accessible for all Americans.
- Fighting for a new energy policy that lowers the cost of gas and makes America energy independent.
- Working to bring about a safe and responsible end to the war in Iraq so we can bring our troops home.
