Weather Bulletin.

Scattered showers to-day, fair to-night and Wednesday.

Oakley Items.

OAKLEY, N. C., July 1st, 1895.—Mr. I. H. Little and wife spent Sunday here.

Mr. W. J. Little and sister, attended the union at Spring Green Sunday.

Mr. W. H. Williams made a business trip to Pactolus Friday night.

Mr. Roscoe Little returned home last week from the coast. He is looking well and reports a pleasant time.

Saturday at 10:30 P. M. the sad news reached this place of the death of Mr. B. O. Fleming. He was a member of the Disciple church. He had been sick for a year. He leaves no near relatives but many friends to mourn his death.

Honoring Our People.

We have seen a copy of the Knoxville, Tenn., Journal of June 16 containing a full account of a very brilliant entertainment tendered by Lieutenant and Mrs. Lawrence D. Tyson to ex-Governor and Mrs. T. J. Jarvis during their recent visit to that city. The Journal pronounced it the most brilliant social function of the week, and the most elegant of the many entertainments tendered to the distinguished guests. Lieutenant Tyson was a Pitt county boy, and took especial delight in thus honoring old time friends of himself and parents.

The rain has given crops a big hump.

THE PEOPLE NOT IN IT.

The Town Council "Sets Down" on the Wheelmen's Petition and Divide on the License Question.

The Town Council had a full attendance of the Board at their meeting Monday night and they had a breezy session, somewhat in keeping with the stormy weather that prevailed outside. The weather was so bad that the REFLECTOR had no reporter present, and we have to depend on what can be gathered outside as to what was done.

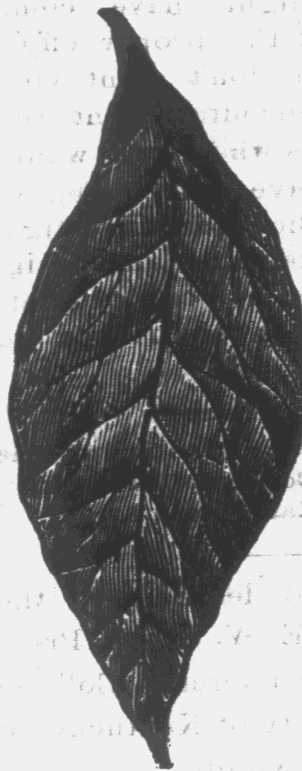

The matters of most importance that occupied the attention of the Board was action on two petitions before them. One of these petitions was in behalf of the wheelmen of the town that they be allowed to ride bicycles on the sidewalks except between the Court House and Five Points on Evans street. This petition had between 75 and 100 signatures, many of the leading citizens of the town being among the signers, but it was ignored by the Board and tabled by a vote of 5 to 1.

The other petition was against the granting of license to sell liquor near the tobacco warehouses. This petition also had a large number of signatures, nearly 100 names being to it. The question was warmly discussed and when a vote was taken resulted in a tie. Councilmen Brown, Smith and Ruffin voting to grant the license and Councilmen Godwin, Wilks and Jenkins against the license. Mayor Forbes took the side of the citizens and cast his deciding vote against issuing the license.

The usual monthly bills were allowed.

Mule Killed.

While hands were hauling logs this morning on Walling's tram road, a few miles below town, the brake to the truck broke on a grade, allowing it to run down on the mules. One of the mules was killed and another injured so badly as to ruin the animal.

SACRIFICE SALE!

Cutting and Slashing prices to make room for my incoming fall goods this week. My entire stock is thrown open to the public and you just name the price and we will suit you. Low prices on goods but the quality remains the same. Come and see

In Memoriam of Ruth Cherry.

Wednesday, June 19th, just as twilight was drawing her curtain, death came and found strange beauty on that cherub brow, and that sweet spirit took its flight to heaven. Pure and transient as the morning dewdrops she passed from her earthy suffering to rest in sweet blissfulness. Her shining face is radiant with Heavenly light, and sweet little angel, we know her brow is decked with an ermine of Paradise. Oh! the gentle form of darling Ruth slumbers in that city of the dead, but her spirit is in the bosom of God. Mourn not but draw comfort from the consoling thought, that your tender plant, though nipped in its sweetest fragrance, has exchanged her suffering here to sing praises throughout endless eternity.

Now, dear Pattie let the remembrance of her sunny laugh, and sweet little cooing voice come like visions of tenderest recollections from the sorrowful past. Try to look forward to a day of reunion when your darling shall be the first to welcome you to the upper sanctuary.

"One by one earth's ties are broken
As we see our love decay,
And the hopes so fondly cherished,
Brighten but to pass away.

One by one hopes grow brighter
As we near the shining shore,
For we know across the river
Wait the loved ones gone before."

AUNT LUCIE.

The Press says the Confederate monument at Raleigh is being defaced by people chipping off pieces for souvenirs.

The County Commissioners could not finish all their work yesterday and were in session again to-day.

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS

BY O. L. JOYNER.

There is one thing that Greenville needs just at present more than anything else, and that is a first-class Board of Trade, consisting of the active, energetic business men. We have found several letters in our box lately, directed to the Greenville Board of Trade, and thinking probably they were intended for the Tobacco Board of Trade we opened them and in every instance found they were seeking information about our town and country. Now if we had an organized Board of Trade of our merchants and business men generally, who would take an interest in letting the world know what we had and the inducements we could offer to visitors, we could the more easily impress home seekers and business men by united and concerted action, than in the slipshod manner in which it must necessarily be done until we have an organized board of this kind. Again what is everybody's business, and matters of this kind left to be attended to by any and everybody will most likely go unnoticed, and hence in a great many instances the town loses a good citizen, when by prompt attention it might have saved one. There are numbers of towns in this State with not near so many inhabitants as Greenville, and whose natural resources are much more limited, that have regular organized Boards of Trade through which medium they are bringing themselves to the notice of the world of trade and thriving under conditions a great deal less favorable than ours.

If the people of Greenville want to induce capitalists to come among us, if they want the natural resources and latent industries of our country opened up, if they want to build up a live, hustling town in the centre of one of the most God favored spots on earth, let our first step in this direction be the coming together of our business men, young and old, and organize a Greenville Board of Trade.

By our silence heretofore in this particular, we have said to those who might have come among us, had the proper effort been made, we don't want you, and with this encouragement the class of citizens whom we would like to have, have justly taken offense and without an investigation of our advantages and in ignorance, caused by our indifference, they have given us the go by.

Prof. E. W. Smith, President of the Commercial College of Kentucky University Has Passed Away.

We have just learned of the death of Prof. E. W. Smith, President of the Commercial College of the University of Kentucky at his home in Lexington.

Five years ago the writer entered the Commercial College of Kentucky University, and our first instructions were given by Prof. E. W. Smith. At that time we had never remained long from home, and naturally we were blue and homesick beyond expression. For the kind fatherly words of advice and cheer and the many little innocent, amusing jokes that he told to kill the dull monotony and the ever concentrated thought of home, we shall hold his memory in kind reverence.

His mind always seemed to be full of beautiful thoughts and in his daily lectures in the school room the weight of his discourse always tended to the elevation of mankind and the purification of morals. On account of his age, we suppose, at that time his articulation was smothered and we frequently noticed inattention on the part of some of the pupils, but when he came in to lecture we always gave him our undivided attention with the result of always feeling after each lecture that we had been benefited more than double the value of time employed on our books.

Prof. Smith's life was a campaign of education, so to speak, and the thousands of young men all over the country that he has aided in acquiring a knowledge of business are living monuments to-day of his earthly labors. It seems to us that the most consoling thought that can gild the sunset of life, when the trials of this world, with its vicissitudes and sorrows are over, is to look back upon the stage of action and know that we have done all that we could toward elevating our fellowman and as little as possible toward his degradation. This Prof. Smith could rightfully claim. He devoted his life to the elevation of young men and now he has gone to claim his reward.

The following gives some little insight into the politics of England at the present time:

The political character of the new Parliament as determined by an imperial forecast gives the Unionists a solid majority. The most sanguine liberal estimate as published by the Westminster Gazette admits that the Unionists will gain 32 seats, which means 64 votes on a division and entails a steady majority in Parliament of 24. A thoroughly non-partisan view assigns to the Unionists a majority of 80, but Cock-a-Hoop conservatives predict a majority of 120, but the latter figures are ridiculous. Any how the Liberals enter the lists with a feeling of despondency and a conviction that they will meet such a defeat as will establish a Unionist government in power for the next seven years.

"We have not a ghost of a chance," said Sir Charles Dilke in an interview to-day; "the Unionists are certain to secure a solid vote which will keep them in power for a long time to come."

The last hope of the home rulers rested upon an appeal to Mr. Gladstone. The leading McCarthyites and several staunch English adherents to home rule privately approached Mr. Gladstone beseeching him to issue a manifesto and also to engage in some degree of active personal intervention during the electoral period, but they got negative replies in every case, some times directly from Mr. Gladstone, and some times through Mrs. Gladstone, who declares that her husband must not be troubled with reference to anybody connected with the political situation. She is convinced that the physical and mental disturbances arising from political excitement would seriously injure his health and is determined to keep him aloof from all political agitation. For this reason she will be overjoyed to get him back to Hawarden.

RATHER SWEEPING.

If they would look this country over they would see that, with the exception of Senator Morgan, of Alabama, there is not in it a man of the first order of ability who is advocating the free coinage of silver.—Charlotte Observer.

Senator Pugh, colleague of Senator Morgan, is thought to be a big enough man to be Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate; Senator Voorhees to be Chairman of the Committee of Finance; Senators Daniel, Jones, Berry, Geo. Turpie, Walthall, Butler of South Carolina, Blackburn, Cameron, Coke, Teller, Roach, Gordon, Bacon, Call, Pasco, Jones, Dubois, White of California, Harris, Bate, Vest and Cockrell, are justly regarded as among the ablest men in the United States Senate. They certainly are the ablest Democrats in that body, and some of them are men of "the first order of ability." In the House, Chas. F. Crisp is regarded as the leader of the Democratic forces, and is one of the few men who ever declined a seat in the U. S. Senate. He has been a judge, and he is a man "of the first order of ability" if there are any in the House. One of the strongest leaders on the floor of the House is Benton McMillan, of Tennessee and such men as Culbertson, Richardson, Black, Bland, Hutch, Fithian, Williams, Hunter, Wheeler and dozens of others are thought to be pretty big men in their States, and have come to exert wide influence.

Besides, such rampant anti silver men as Sherman and Carlisle once favored silver. The Asheville Citizen says that President Andrews, of Brown University, is for free coinage.

Most of the brains in the Middle and New England States are opposed to free coinage. In the balance of the country a large majority of the men of the first order of ability "are in favor of free coinage." It is certainly true in North Carolina in the ratio of 16 to 1.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Womans Greatest Charm

I am quite sure that men regard "sweet simplicity" as the greatest charm in women and especially in girls, writes Ethel Ingalls in a delightful dissertation on "The Girl in Society," in the July Ladies Home Journal. This does not mean simplicity in the simpering sense but an absence of that affected air of boldness and mannishness which has lately been assumed by too many really lovable girls. Then, too, sincerity in expression is one of the characteristics that charm men. To be sincere and candid the girl in society need never be abrupt nor self-assertive.

BIGGEST SHOW ON EARTH.

Penina's Idea of the First Home of Her Ancestors.

A young matron of New York having a strong liking for the sunny south, imported from "old Virgininy" a colored cook named Penina, who understood the mysteries of corn pone and hoe cake, and whose dishes of terrapin, wild turkey or venison ragout could not be beaten.

One day Penina's mistress conceived the idea of giving her a treat, and took her to the park to see the animals in the "zoo." She was delighted with everything she saw, and standing before the lions' cage asked:

"What dat say, honey?" pointing to the label at the top of the cage:
 "Lion hab. Africa."

"Oh, that says the lion came from Africa."

"Shore 'nuff! And de elephant, whar he come from?"

"Africa."

"An' de' de hippotmusses, whar dey come from?"

"Africa."

"An' de corkerdiles?"

"Africa."

"An' de ostriches?"

"Africa."

"An' de monkeys, an' camels, an' giraffs, an' cape bufflers, an' anteaters, an' big snakes—whar dey come from?"

"Africa."

"An' de big pink flowers down by de fountain?"

"Yes, they came from Africa.

Why, Penina, your ancestors come from Africa, too."

"Shore 'nuff! Shore 'nuff! Bress your heart, honey pears to me Africa makes de biggest show on dis yere yearth."—N. Y. Home Journal.

A Case in Natural History.

Many years ago Noah Webster classified a fish as an oviparous, vertebrate animal, breathing by means of gills or branches, and living mostly in the water. Now comes another Webster—surnamed Loper—who keeps a stall in the city market and who declares by his acts that a fish is either a fruit or a vegetable.

Because of this peculiar entomological classification the new Webster is in trouble. The fishmen at the city market are after him and the city may cancel his lease.

Some time ago Loper secured from W. N. Irwin a lease on stall 46, city market. The lease gave him permission to deal in fruit and vegetables. He sold fresh fish, too, along with bananas and potatoes, and now the fishmen want the city finance committee to declare that a fish is neither a fruit nor a vegetable, and that Mr. Loper is deceiving the public by selling it as either.

There is a strong probability that Webster Loper may have his lease canceled.—Kansas City Star.

THE WAYS OF A MULE.

He Wouldn't Pull Until Made to do So.

Mr. Bryant Hardee has had a time getting a load of tobacco flues out home. He came in Monday afternoon with a mule and cart to carry them out. The flues were placed on the cart, and the mule started for home. Not a hundred yards had been gone over before that mule began to show displeasure at the rattling of the flues, and with a hump and a jump he let out, galloped around the Academy grove, and scattered the flues over the earth. The idea of carrying the load home behind the mule was abandoned, and when Mr. Hardee came back and got a barrel of flour to take instead, the mule walked off as meek as a lamb. Today Mr. Hardee came back for the flues with a horse, another driver coming along with the mule also. And the horse would not pull flues, either, but as soon as the load was put on the cart he scattered them all over Five Points. It was concluded to give the mule another trial. He was led up, and at the very first rattle of a flue he "danced to the music." The fun attracted all the clerks in the neighborhood and they made up their minds to load that cart. Enough of the boys got around that mule to hold him down and the loading began. They rattled flues and the mule squirmed and twisted, but the boys got the better of it. By the time they got through the mule was ready to buck's down to business and walk off home.

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS

BY O. L. JOYNER.

We understand that a good many farmers are curing tobacco this week.

There is much need of a road leading from the Farmville read somewhere between Moye's School House and the race track to come into the plank road between the college building and Mr. A. C. Nobles' place. This would cut off about three-quarters of a mile in distance and avoid pulling a load up and down the hills in bad weather and through the deep sand in dry weather. There are numbers of people all out in the Farmville section that have to come in over that road, and they are very anxious for it.
