Death of Mrs. Rightsell.

Mrs. Willie Rightsell, wife of Prof. L. T. Rightsell, died at her home in Ayden yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock after an illness of only a few hours. Cause of her death was heart failure. Mrs. Rightsell was the daughter of Mr. William Rountree, of Lenoir county, and was 35 years old. She married Prof. Rightsell about two years ago, and came with him to Ayden to take charge of the Christian College. She had taught continuously in this school until her death, and it will be hard to supply her place. She left her impress upon all with whom she came in contact. The town of Ayden has also lost one of its best friends, and most popular and loved women. She leaves a devoted husband, a loving father and mother, and several fond brothers and sisters to mourn her loss.

Her remains were taken to Kinston this P. M. for interment.

Mrs. Rightsell was an intelligent, cultivated, christian woman and the many friends of the family will share the grief of the sorely bereaved husband and relatives.

A lady teacher in one of the public schools, in trying to explain the meaning of the word "slowly," illustrated it by walking across the floor. Then she asked the class to tell her how she walked. She nearly fainted when a boy at the foot of the class shouted, "Bow-legged ma'am.—Ex.

THE EDITORS MEET.

Seventy-five Present—Drivings, Concerts and Banquets the order of the Day—An Interesting Session.

(Special to Reflector.)

GREENSBORO, N. C., July 18, '95.

The North Carolina Press Association convened this A. M. in twenty-third annual session. Fifty editors present at opening, arrivals during the day increasing number to about 75. At close of afternoon session they were taken driving over city. To-night a concert was given complimentary to Association. After business session Thursday an excursion will be taken to Guilford Battle Ground and the editors will be banqueted at night. Beside the pleasure of meeting each other and the interesting topics considered by the Association, Greensboro is giving the editors a grand time.

Steamer Sunk.

The steamer Beta on her down trip from Tarboro had a hole knocked in her bottom about fifty feet this side of the Old Dominion dock this morning at 11:30. She was near the middle of the stream and was trying to make the wharf when she struck. The Captain had all power put on and she ran near the shore and sank on a sand bar. We could not learn what damage was done. All on board were safely landed.

Base Ball.

The following is the score of games as played by the National League Monday:

At Cincinnati.—Cincinnati 9, Boston 2.

At Louisville.—Louisville 2, Brooklyn 5.

At Cleveland.—Cleveland 6, Baltimore 3. Second game.—Cleveland 1, Baltimore 0.

At Chicago.—Chicago 4, Philadelphia 11.

At St. Louis.—St. Louis 4, New York 9.

Death of Mr. Galloway.

Mr. E. S. Galloway, son of John Galloway, died yesterday at his home in this county. He had been sick for a long time, and death was not unexpected. The deceased was about fifty years of age. He married Miss Alice Tucker, daughter of Joshua Tucker, who survive him. Mr. Galloway was a good citizen and his community will feel his loss.

University Catalogue.

The University Catalogue for 1894 '95 shows 471 students, as follows: 317 in the college, 78 in the law school, 26 in the medical school and 59 in the summer school for teachers. The faculty embraces 85 professors and instructors. The catalogue contains 114 pages, is carefully indexed and gives full information about the University. EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

Men may talk about their love for the old homestead, and women may prattle about its memories being around their hearts, but we have noticed that there is nothing clings to it so closely as a good, healthy mortgage. It never loses its interest in the old place.

The jury in the case of the State vs. The Raleigh Water Works Company found the Company guilty and Judge Timberlake, before whom it was tried, fined them $10,000 and costs. The Company at first gave notice that they would take an appeal, but decided if the Judge would take off the fine they would pay all cost, which amounted to $1,000, and not use the pond between now and winter, to move the dam and drain the pond between November 20th and December 10th. The papers were signed and then the fine was made one penny and costs.

This paper was probably one of the first in North Carolina to express an opinion about the verdict in the Shemwell case recently tried at Lexington, N. C. The verdict was rendered at 9 o'clock, A. M. and that afternoon at 4 o'clock we had expressed the opinion that it was an outrage upon the State and a miscarriage of Justice. No other view of the case seemed reasonable to us from the evidence which was so fully reported by the press. To show that our sentiment was well founded and in accordance with the public sentiment generally, we make a few extracts from some of the leading papers of the State.

Two gentlemen were speaking about the matter yesterday afternoon. One of them remarked that the next legislature should so amend the law in regard to capital punishment as to make it applicable to all counties save Davidson. There the law should be inoperative and accused parties should be allowed to go free without trial. The other remarked that in the revolutionary war Davidson county was infested with a stronger tory sentiment than any county in this section; that in the late war it had a strong Union contingent; that it was one of the few white Republican counties and had more purchasable men than any other in the State, and that because of this law and justice were mocked and set at naught.—Salisbury Herald.

It has been a queer case. Everybody around Greensboro who read the evidence of the trial said it was premeditated murder, yet there seemed to be a feeling that the jury would acquit him, or at least fail to convict him of murder in the first degree.

"It's a farce and an encouragement for lynching."

"Could a man hire that jury, cage them up and start in the show business, charging an admission of 50 cents a head exhibiting them, he would make a fortune."

About the next man shot in Davidson will be followed by a lynching.

It is evident class distinction played an important part in the acquittal. The middle classes were made to believe that the Paynes were aristocratic, autocratic and were of the rule or ruin sort, while Shemwell was held up as one of the common people who would not bow his knee to them.

With such ideas fastened in the brain of a fool, there could have been no other result.—Greensboro Record.

Our high regard for courts of justice and trials by jury prevent our indulging in criticism at this time, but cannot refrain from saying that in the estimation of fully four-fifths of our people, the verdict in the Shemwell case is a miscarriage of justice. There is a settled conviction that a great crime has gone unpunished, and a criminal has evaded the justice of the law. A verdict of murder in the second degree, or even manslaughter, would not have been so surprising, but that it should have been acquittal is beyond the understanding of those who expected a verdict in accordance with the evidence.—Charlotte News.

With such a case of the miscarriage of justice as that at Lexington yesterday, before their eyes, newspapers can have little heart to inveigh against lynch law and to beg the people to respect the courts and leave violators of law to be dealt with by the law which they have offended. Those who have followed the evidence impartially and who have a modicum of knowledge of the laws under which they live, cannot conceive how such a verdict was arrived at. Where is society's protection when we see it demonstrated, as it has been in this case and in many, that the jury system is a perfect farce?—Charlotte Observer.

The verdict of the jury was all that was talked of in the city this morning. Nine men out of ten said that Shemwell was guilty of murder and expressed the opinion that the ends of the law had been miscarried. Few anticipated acquittal and the common theory was that the jury would disagree.—Raleigh Press.

The acquittal of Shemwell will come as a shock upon the people of the State who, while not desiring vengeance, believe in the punishment of crime. There have been two juries trying the case—one the twelve men, picked from the neighbors of the slayer and his victim, and the other the reading population of the State, for no case in the annals of the State has been so fully and fairly reported. The first jury of twelve knew all the parties, and was in a position to be influenced in rendering its verdict by local coloring. The second jury knew neither of the parties, and made up its verdict from the evidence as it appeared in cold type.

The verdict rendered by the twelve does not agree with the verdict of the reading public.

When the Judge refused to remove the trial, a well-known citizen said: "That is the first mistake in the trial. I know something of the county. Shemwell is rich and he and his friends have a knowledge of the feeling of nearly every family in the county. They know who are the friends of the Paynes, and they know who they can rely on. Shemwell will be acquitted, but it will be a decision wholly unwarranted by the facts."

He was a prophet. Every law abiding citizen will feel in Shemwell's acquittal that there has been a miscarriage of justice.

Imprisonment for life would have been a small punishment for the blood of which he was guilty. It is greatly to be doubted whether he would have escaped hanging in any county in which he had no acquaintance.

Shemwell has been acquitted by the laws of the country and every good citizen will acquiesce in the verdict. But a thousand verdicts cannot wipe the murderer's blood off of his hands. He is a marked man, and has escaped the gallows by a hair's breadth. He ought not to have escaped at all.—Raleigh News and Observer.

A WONDERFUL TASK.

A Marvelous Genius Constructed a Watch in Eight Hours.

Jules Curzon, a Polish mechanic, who was presented with a gold medal for his inventions, performed a most extraordinary thing when he succeeded in manufacturing a complete watch in the space of eight hours, and from materials on which any other watchmaker would have looked contemptuously. It appears that the czar of Russia, hearing of the marvelous inventive genius of Curzon, determined to put him to the test, and forwarded him a box containing a few copper nails, some wood shavings, a piece of broken glass, an old cracked china cup, some wire and a few cribbage pegs, with a request that he should transform them into a timepiece. Nothing daunted, and perceiving a golden opportunity for winning favor at the court, Curzon set about his task with enthusiasm, and in the almost incredibly short space of eight hours had dispatched a wonderfully constructed watch to the czar, who was so surprised and delighted at the work he sent for the maker and conferred upon him several distinctions, as well as granting him a pension. The case of the watch was made of china, while the works were simply composed of the odds and ends accompanying the old cup. Not only did it keep good time, but only required winding every three or four days. This remarkable watch is believed to be still in the possession of the Russian royal family.—Household Words.

King's Chapel.

That tyrannical old Gov. Andros, who so sorely vexed the souls of our Puritan ancestors, left as a monument of his high-handed rule King's chapel, which still stands on the corner of School and Tremont streets, Boston. Until this reckless governor from Merry England arrived upon the scene, the austere admirers of Oliver Cromwell had rigorously refused a foothold in Boston to any form of Episcopal worship, considering a Church of England service as iniquitous a thing as the observance of Christmas or any other kind of popish mummery. Imagine the holy wrath of the pious Pilgrim Fathers when Gov. Andros calmly announced that henceforth the Old South church should become an Episcopal chapel. Such a storm of opposition did his edict arouse that he changed his mind. Instead of utilizing the Old South, he coolly appropriated a choice lot of land, the property of an opposing colonist, and built King's chapel.

THE NEW SOO CANAL

It Compares Favorably with the American Sault Route.

The almost utter silence and total lack of ceremony with which the Canadian parliament has treated the completion of the new Soo canal is in striking contrast with the value of the great engineering work in its relation to the dominion's vast chain of artificial waterways. The rapidity with which the enterprise has been accomplished has been notable.

Canada did not seriously conceive
the idea of this canal around the falls of St. Mary's river on her own side until seven years ago, and on September 25 last the water was admitted to the lock for the first time.
The size of the new shipway may best be appreciated by comparison of this lock with the latest lock of the American Sault route. The Canadian chamber is nine hundred feet long and sixty feet wide, and is deep enough for vessels of twenty-foot draught. The American lock is eight hundred feet long, one hundred feet wide and twenty-one feet deep.

The exact value of this new Canadian Soo depends upon its relation to the chain of Canadian canals from Lake Superior to the St. Lawrence.
The extent of rivalry between the United States and the dominion for the immense traffic of the great lakes—one-fourth of all the seaport tonnage of the United States—will be determined by the average depth of continuous ship channel.

By the engineering improvement
of St. Clair Flats and the Lime Kilns, near Detroit, the American lake route will soon have a through depth of twenty-one feet. It will be a long time before the Canadian system shall possess throughout accommodation for vessels of twenty-five hundred tons burden. Nevertheless, the day is not far distant when Canada will make a desperate struggle for the carriage of the commerce of the great northwest.—Philadelphia
