LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS

BY O. L. JOYNER.

Farmers are now busy curing. Nearly all the available barns are in use.

Can't the citizens of the town organize a board of trade. One is needed more than any other one thing to aid Greenville in her onward progress.

A good many more tobacco buyers are expected here during the coming week. We are in receipt of letters from some of them saying they will be on the market by the 15th of this month.

Mr. P. H. Gorman has had a walling ran around his prizery and is adding good many other improvements to his prize house. His firm expects to do a much larger business here the coming season than ever before. The firm of J. N. Gorman & Co. is composed of young men and in North Carolina and Virginia there is not a more thorough going set of hustlers.

If a stranger was casting about looking for a location to start up an industry and should strike Greenville who would show him the town and the sites that could be had? Most likely he would interview the hotel keepers and by them would be referred, very probably, to some lawyer or some of the rest of us, who, while we might do the best we could in our individual capacity, yet it would fail to make the impression on a stranger that a set of men appointed for that purpose would make. Let us have a board of trade and then let the board appoint a standing committee whose business it shall be to attend to all matters of this kind. There is now a good deal of inquiring about Greenville all over the State. Nearly every drummer that we meet tells us that Greenville is in the healthiest condition of any town in the east. With a little effort on the part of our people, we could soon have a nice little city, and with the investigation that is now being made we certainly can't afford not to have a regularly organized board of trade to negotiate with prospectors, and even if we do not secure them make it pleasant for them while they are here. This much we owe to our self pride.

The following clipping from the Manufacturers' Record is from our townsman, Mr. S. C. Hamilton:

Mr. S. C. Hamilton, Jr., manager Greenville Lumber Co., Greenville, N. C., in a letter to the Manufacturers' Record, says: "We like the Manufacturers' Record and hope you will continue in the same line. You are building up the South on good, safe business principles, and every statement you make is to the point. The writer is from the North, way up in Maine, and for Southern people and industries we have only words of praise."

If we had more Northern men like Mr. Hamilton in our Southern States it would not be long before the South would be vindicated from the false and scurrilous reports that frequently go the rounds in the North. A few days ago speaking with the writer Mr. Hamilton said:

"When you hear of a northern man that has been South and goes back vilifying and abusing the Southern people, you may note that in most cases he is out of a job North and is not even respected by his own people, and as a matter of course, he is disappointed when the Southern people do not hug him to their bosoms." Mr. Hamilton speaks in the highest terms of Southern people and their hospitality.

Three Cases in Town.

On Tuesday of last week, the day that Mr. D. S. Spain's child was pronounced to have scarlet fever, Mr. J. B. Latham, who occupied a portion of the same house, moved over in Forrestown to a building he had previously rented. Since moving one of Mr. Latham's children was taken sick, and to-day the doctors pronounced it another case of scarlet fever and the house was promptly quarantined. As there are now three cases of the fever here we think it advisable that all parents keep their children at home until these cases are well. That will be a good way to keep the disease from spreading.

Sunday the house of Mr. W. J. Cowell was quarantined, one of his children having scarlet fever.

There is general improvement in the condition of crops throughout the county.

Shall the Girls Propose.

This query has always been decided in the negative, but Mrs. Potter Palmer thinks the girls are nowadays deciding it in the affirmative. Mrs. Palmer is the second most popular and widely known woman in America, and her observations are not idle words, but are entitled to be taken seriously. We quote:

"Why, if this tendency increases, the first thing we know the young women will be compelled to make proposals of marriage or remain forever single. They have come dangerously near it already. The half-concealed seeking, the management, the ingenuity, the leading, are now all in the hands of the girls and their mothers. Nothing remains but for them to seize a fitting moment to kneel at the young man's feet, declare undying love and propose matrimony. It makes my heart sick with in me to hear girls telephoning for young men, begging for their company at tennis, or in a drive or out boating—mere devices and pretexts for getting at the young man himself. The girls are just as sweet and lovely as ever, but there is a revolution in social conditions. I say it with pain, that the tendency of what is known as our higher society is towards the European system. Some of the principal phases of European society are abhorrent. It will be a sad day for America when they are adopted here—and already they are much imitated, especially in the east. Are our well-to-do young men in the first stages of the European process? Do they believe their early manhood should be devoted to roaming and license, and that matrimony should come only with weariness? I hope not."

Master or Slave.

There is all the difference in the world between being master or slave. And this difference is manifest in every phase of life, and in every sphere of power. Every man has nerves, but one man controls his nerves, and we speak of him admiringly as a man of nerve, while another man is controlled by his nerves, and we speak of him pityingly as a nervous man. In the one case the man is master; in the other case the man is a slave. It is a good thing for a man to have a strong temper and to control it. It is a very bad thing for a strong temper to have a man and to control him. A man is worth little in ordinary life who has no appetite, and a man who has his appetite in control is master of it for efficient service; but a man who is a slave to his appetite has neither happiness nor power. He is despised as the most abject of his race. The choice is before us, in God's providence, to be master or slave. And we are responsible for our choice.—Sunday School Times.

To the Sunday-school Workers of North Carolina.

For several reasons it has been deemed best to postpone the State Convention, appointed to be held at Goldsboro, Aug. 27-29 until Nov., the exact date not being yet determined upon.

This will enable many more counties to hold their local conventions and elect delegates to the State Convention. Notice will be given as soon as the date has been decided upon. In the meantime county officers are urged to hold township and county conventions and select their best representatives as delegates to the State Convention! The program is now being outlined and will be announced as soon as completed. We promise the Sunday school workers of the State one of the best conventions we have ever had. Help us to make it the best.

In His name.

Somewhat of a Laar.

Talk about your cycle liars, fish prevaricators and snake falsifiers, but they don't hold a light to the following correspondent of the Wadesboro Messenger. Hear him:

"Mr. Will Hendly takes the cake on the egg question. He says he found one on his place six inches long and had two deep grooves around it, which made it in the shape of three eggs. He set the egg and it hatched out a chicken, a guinea and a duck. Come again, ye ink sliager of Goodman's.

A reliable lady of this town says a hawk caught one of her freeslin chickens a few days ago, carried it to the woods, examined it closely and, to her surprise, brought it back and eased it down in the yard and gently flew away.

He Kissed Her.

There was a little comedy enacted at the corner of Ninth and Walnut streets shortly before eight o'clock the other evening, which was hugely enjoyed by a small but select audience. A pretty young lady, with black hair and big brown eyes, had just left an adjacent restaurant with a bashful young man. The latter seemed eager to get away from his fair companion, but didn't seem to know just how to go about it. Several people who were waiting for a car were startled to hear the young woman exclaim: "Well, you can't go until you kiss me!" Of course everybody turned to look. The bashful young man grew very red in the face, but the dark-eyed maiden put up a pair of tempting red lips and waited for the osculatory salute. "Ahl kiss her!" remarked one of the bystanders. The bashful youth seemed undecided whether to take the proffered advice or take to his heels. He finally decided upon the former course, and stooped over the patient, upturned face. Then there was a sounding smack, a suppressed scream, and the young man disappeared hastily up Ninth street, while the young woman strolled leisurely out Walnut.—Philadelphia Record.

Fighting Consumption.

Consumption or tuberculosis has been the subject of early and more vigorous efforts to check its transmission in Prussia than elsewhere, as is natural considering that Dr. Koch is a Berlin professor. The result is that while from 1875 to 1887, before his discovery, the deaths from tubercle or consumption were 31 in 10,000, since 1887 there has been a gradual decrease to 25 in 10,000. Elsewhere this decrease has not taken place. Prussian prisons and insane asylums show a reduction in their death rate from tuberculosis, since careful precautions were adopted. The death rate from this cause among religious nursing orders was in 1881-2 114 per 10,000. In 1893-4 it had dropped to 67, almost half. Facts like these show the absolute necessity of careful precautions for destroying the sputa of consumptive patients. Rigorous care in this direction would greatly decrease a disease to which a large proportion of deaths are due.—Phil-

A PASTEL IN PROSE.

Cruel Waves Washed Away the Writing in the Sand.

I.

All his life something had struggled within him. He knew not what it was. Only, he knew it was something of surpassing sublimity. Again and again he had sought to shape this wondrous mystery of thought. He dreamed through the long troubled nights of the time when he could express this something and men would know.

II.

The budding and decaying of the leaves told off the years as they came and went. A shadow settled upon his heart. He grew sad and silent. Men, when his name was mentioned, would shake their heads significantly and move on. He shunned his fellow beings and was shunned by them.

III.

He walked by the lonely sea and listened to the sad music of the waves beating ever, ever, against the shore. His head was white with years and sorrow, and there were deep lines about the pale lips, and the eyes were haunted and sunken.

IV.

Suddenly he gave a great cry! The mysterious something had come to him. In all its glory and splendor he saw it.

With his stick he traced in the sands of the beach the words, and they glowed like gilded gold.

Back to the city he hastened and called to men.

"Come," he said.

Wondering, the men followed him down to the seashore.

V.

But when they got there they found that the tide had come up and had washed the words away.

He was as though he had been turned to stone. He gazed with fixed eyes at the place where the earth and water met.

"My name is Mud!" he cried, and fell dead.

VI.

Even to this day in the city that was his home men talk of him and his strange life in whispers, and wonder what dark deed done by him in the days of youth caused him to live so long among them under an assumed name.

Little do they know that his swan song had reference to the mixing of the sea and the sands, and the washing away of a great truth.—N. Y. World.

Took It Back.

Singleton—I hear you're engaged. Congratulate you, my boy!

Ben Dictus—You didn't hear it quite right. I'm married.
