LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS

BY O. L. JOYNER.

About 75 per cent. of the crop has been cut, and cures up to now have been fairly good, but a good lot of that still on the hill has taken the second growth and not much good tobacco can be cured after this week.

The Danville Journal, conservative as it usually is, predicts that this will neither be a very fine nor a very common crop, but a medium one, with right much color. From the best information that we can gather this is about the condition of the crop in Eastern Carolina.

A dispatch from Rocky Mount to the Raleigh News and Observer dated August 24, says, "The warehousemen here seem the most modest and least boastful of their brotherhood, for while they sell more tobacco and at the highest figures of any of the Eastern Carolina markets, they never blow their own horns?" Whoop! Their horns must have been blown off, if they are not blowing them still, for if there ever was a town blown any more than the above named town, then we don't want to know it. If making the flat statement that the market sells more tobacco and at higher figures than any other eastern market is not gasping, in the light of all common sense and reason, we appeal to those who have a knowledge of both markets, what is it?

For the last three months we have been casting around picking up all the information we could gather on the prospects for prices of tobacco this year. From nearly every quarter comes the report that old stocks have been moving and dealers who have had accumulated stocks on hand for four or five years, and even longer, have been enabled to unload a large part during the past summer. One prominent leaf dealer who buys more tobacco on this market we expect than all the other North Carolina markets together (being engaged exclusively in bright tobacco) in a private letter to the writer some time ago said: "We shall be on this fall in better shape to handle the new crop than ever before. We have closed out to a very large extent our old stocks and shall be in better position to take hold of the new crop." The coast seems clearer and there is an all around better feeling among tobacco of all kinds, and everywhere, than since the writer has been engaged in the tobacco business. We wish to say in this connection, however, that by this we do not mean there will be any inflation of prices, because those who have had their money tied up for these many years will not be likely to rush recklessly into the new crop and thus damage themselves and paralyze stock. But we do believe there will be more general satisfaction in the marketing and disposition of this crop than any in five years. Farmers who have good tobacco will get good prices and be satisfied, while on the contrary, those who have common tobacco will get lower prices and be dissatisfied. There is one thing that if our farmers all would learn there would be less complaint and more content in the marketing of the tobacco crop. Study to become judges of tobacco and do your warehouseman the justice to give him credit for being an honest man until he proves himself to be otherwise, and don't look on him as being your enemy, but your friend. This done and a current of mutual interest will soon be circulated from one to the other and each then can be thoroughly understood. Oh, if we could only understand each other, and the motives which prompt our actions, and feel the impulses which direct our thought what a kind, happy world this would be.

HE PUT IN HIS THUMB.

And Walked Off With the Plum.

We caught a good one on Olthus Joyner at the Eastern Warehouse sale to-day. "Old Man Gus" had come on to relieve him and run the sales, and one of the buyers asked Joyner to bid for him a few minutes. The buyer came back just as there was a lively tilt over a pile of brights and gave Joyner a hunch with his thumb. Joyner took the hint and raised the bid. A wink from Pat Gorman to the auctioneer raised him a half when another hunch in Joyner's side sent it still higher, and so on until the pile was knocked off at a fancy figure. The buyer turned off to let Joyner bid longer for him, and the farmer whose tobacco they were on then silently observed what had just taken place and concluded to try his thumb. He eased up to where the buyer had just been standing and abided his time. The pile had started off nicely with a bid all around when the farmer's thumb coming in contact with Joyner's fifth rib made him sing "give him a quarter, a half, three-quarters" all in one breath. The other buyers raised him when that thumb came into play again, and both sides kept Bailey rolling the fractions and whole numbers at a lively rate. As they went to pass on to the next pile Joyner cut his eye around to look at the buyer who was doing that lively thumb work, when the farmer, smilingly thanked him for shooting it up so high.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2ND.

Editor:—In yesterday's REFLECTOR appears a local stating that the schools will open next Wednesday. This is a mistake as far as my school is concerned. I shall open the Male Academy next MONDAY, September 2nd and would call the attention of parents to the importance of having their boys present the first day. Don't let them stay out even for one week and then expect the best results. To the boys I would say I will be glad to meet you at the "old stand" next Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock when and where we will begin what I trust may be a pleasant and profitable session both to you and to me.
 W. H. RAGSDALE,
 Prin. Greenville Male Academy.

It has been arranged that President Cleveland will touch the button at Gray Gables on September 18, and set in motion the machinery of and unfurl the flags on the Cotton States and Industrial Exposition buildings.

Over Thirty Years Under Ground.
 News comes from Hickory of a find made a few days ago by Frank Loughran, proprietor of the Hickory Inn. The Inn stands on the site of a residence occupied years ago by Ex-Collector Kope Khas' father. In war times when Federal troops went to Hickory the Elias family silverware was buried in the garden. The point of concealment was forgotten and search for the silver was fruitless.

Recently while workmen were making excavations near the Inn they unearthed ten or twelve silver spoons which bear the Elias family initials and which have been in the ground for more than thirty years.—Asheville Citizen.

The Knights Templar are holding their triennial convolve in Boston.

Just Puns.
 Hardware dealers should be put on their mettle by competition.

Dealers in sewing machines should make business hum.

Grocers should put all the grit into their advertising and none into their sugar.

The leading druggist is the one who makes his advertisements as pungent as some of his compounds.

The advertising arguments of a coal dealer should be at least as weighty as the one he sells.

The dealer in musical instruments must be sure to strike responsive chords if he desires to make sales.

A barber should advertise for the patronage of men with whom he does not have a scraping acquaintance.

One of the best kinds of ammunition carried by a dealer in firearms is an ad in his local paper.

A dairy ad should not stand too long.

An electrician's advertisement should not be calculated to shock its readers.

A confectioner's ad should show good taste.

The ad of an architect should be well designed.

The style of a clothing man's ad should fit the season.

He that communes with himself in private will learn truths that the multitudes will not tell him.

Every man has in himself a continent of undiscovered character. Happy is he who acts the Columbus of his own soul.

The Planters had tobacco to-day from right close to Wilson, and some from Craven. That looks like where the best market is.

We would like to see the tobacco market that can show up three better auctioneers than Lipscomb, Bailey and Aiken. They make music.

There were several farmers from Greene and Craven counties with tobacco on the Eastern sales to day. It looked like a fall time break.

The DAILY REFLECTOR will give daily reports of the Albemarle Presbytery which meets in Greenville September 3rd. The paper will be sent through the week to any address for 10 cents.

The printers in the shop will get ahead of the editor sometimes. We wrote a squib for Monday's paper saying "The schools will open next Monday," but the type changed it to "Wednesday."

A large number of ladies were out at the sales to-day. If the buyers forgot and winked at their girls instead of the auctioneer the latter caught it every time and shoved up the bid.
