Sells Brothers' Great Show.

Mr. J. E. Boyle, press representative of advertising car No. 1 arrived with his car on Thursday evening and put his men at work at once billing the town and surrounding country for the appearance of this astonishing aggregation in Greenville on Friday, Nov. 1st. Mr. Doyle paid the REFLECTOR a visit to make a large advertising contract, and we found him exceedingly clever and pleasant to deal with.

Sells Brothers have unquestionably the largest show that has ever visited Greenville. Magnificent three-ring circus, five continent menagerie, fifty cages of rare wild animals, the only pair of giant hippo-ami, educated seals and sea lions, a flock of full grown ostriches, are among the many features of this great show. There will be a grand street parade at 10 o'clock on the morning of exhibition. Sells Brothers have no ordinary show, but it is the biggest of all shows on the road. Remember the date, Friday, Nov. 1st.

RICHER AND HANDSOMER

Than any ever produced. My Clothes, Hats and Furnishings, I'm talking about. Look over the stock; it's complete now, and see if you don't agree with me. One of two things I always mean to do: To sell you better goods than you get elsewhere for the same price; to sell you the same goods lower than you get them.

FRANK WILSON,

The King Clothier.

In our news columns a few days ago the death of Mr. M. C. S. Cherry, an ex member of the Legislature from Pitt county, was noted. He was known for many miles around for long years as "Uncle Mark" by all the young people. He was an old fashioned industrious, economical farmer who made his bread and meat when his neighbors were buying from the West; he kept the faith of Democratic simplicity, believing that those men are best governed who are least governed; he was true to his friends and if he forgave his enemies he did it after the pattern of Andrew Jackson; he was honest and just, though he found it hard always to be just to men whose public career was contrary to his idea of right; he had no love for a Republican and sincerely believed they were enemies of the country; he was an original man, forceful, energetic and aggressive. He was a kindly man, and this writer enjoyed such evidences of his friendship as to cause him to sincerely mourn the death of honest "Uncle Mark Cherry."—Raleigh News and Observer.

"Southern Leader," best cigar in town, at D. S. Smith's.

DID YOU BUY YOUR HUSBAND

His last Suit of Clothes? Most ladies do buy their husband's Clothes. Its right that they should. A man don't know what looks well on him and besides he don't know a good piece of goods from a common piece. His wife does and its to his interest to let her buy his Clothes. He saves money by it and is more becomingly dressed. Speaking of Clothes I have a very nice line for Men I bought at a bankrupt sale which I will sell at a very low price—about one-half its real value. I have Suits from $2 up. Don't fail to see me before buying. I have also a nice line of Dress Goods and Notions that I am selling cheaper than any man in town. When in need of SHOES remember my stock is complete and will sell them cheap.

THE ROW IS ALL ABOUT PIR.

The problem that confronts the Republican bosses is a difficult one. They are anxious to keep up fusion in order to get the spoils of the State administration, and afraid if they stick to the Populists they will be denied Federal patronage in case the Republicans elect the next President. It is a dilemma that did not confront them last year, and they are floundering about to find some way to get around it. We venture to predict that they will wind up by fusing on state and county offices, running straight party tickets for electors, believing in this way that they can successfully look two ways for Sunday. But at present the bosses are wide apart.

Pritchard wants to be re-elected to the Senate. Election elected him. He praises the bridge that carried him over and that he expects will prove his only safe passage again. He wants fusion all the way down, electoral ticket and all. His "Me Too," otherwise known as the Duke of Richmond Hill, also wants what his boss wants.

On the other hand Settle, presumably fresh from a conference with National Republican leaders, says he will have none of it, and says in effect that, having squeezed the Populist lemon dry, he is ready to throw it away. His "Me Too," Chairman Holton, also wants what his boss wants.

The whole situation, in a nutshell, is this: Settle sees better "pie" for him on the national Republican counter; Pritchard sees better "pie" for him on the State Republican counter.

Each is organizing his forces on the line that will give him the most "pie." That is all there is in the contest. Principle to the dogs!—Raleigh News and Observer.

A Good One.

The latest hot weather story comes to Mr. Tom Penson. He says that a well known farmer in this county told him that during the hot season not very long ago he was digging some sweet potatoes and when he flung them out the ground was so hot he found that they were already nicely cooked, and all he had to do was to get them on the table ready for eating.—Raleigh Press-Visitor.

Four Opinions.

There seems to be some division of sentiment among the Republican bosses on the silver question. A few days ago we copied an interview with Congressman Settle in which he put himself on record strongly against free coinage.

A few days after Settle's interview, his chief rival as the boss of the Republican party, Senator Pritchard, said:

"I am for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. The great majority of the North Carolina Republicans are for it. In fact, all are friendly to silver."

This seemed to make the issue plain between them. The Winston Republican comes to Settle's help and says:

"About nine tenths of the Republicans are opposed to free and unlimited coinage and do not propose to be dumped, bag and baggage, into the laps of our Populist friends."

And now come A. E. Holton, chairman of the State Republican Executive Committee, in a letter to Richmond Pearson, taking ground for fusion in State offices, but against it in the National fight. We quote:

Under these resolutions (those Butler had passed in the Silver Convention) neither Reid, McKriley nor Allison could hope to get their support, for even five electors, and it would be folly for us to talk about voting for Populist electors when they declare they will not support our part of the ticket, for no one expects the national Republican platform to declare for the free and unlimited coinage of silver independent of international agreement, or to nominate a free silver candidate for the presidency.

We cannot afford to condemn the policy of the National Republican party solely to effect fusion, nor can a Republican advocate the Populist doctrine and hope to retain the confidence of his party. He will either have to abandon his position or fall in line with the Populists. The sooner our people realize this the better for themselves and the party.

There is cold comfort for Pritchard in all this.—Raleigh News & Observer.

A young lady in Kentucky had such a dread of railroads that she could not be prevailed upon to ride in a car. A few days ago she yielded to persuasion, and boarded a train at Burnside. A few miles out from town the train made a lunge, when she screamed, became frantic, and died before she could be removed from the car. It was a clear case of death from fright.

Children and Chewing Gum.

It is not safe to give young children chewing gum. A child in Clinton who had been allowed to have gum at his pleasure has been in declining health and none knew what was the matter until recently when a large quantity of gum was dispelled from his stomach. He had swallowed all that had been given him and it had not been digested. It is like a child to swallow everything it can get in its mouth, and children ought not to be given gum or other things that they can't well digest.—Clinton Democrat

There is very little philosophy in people who lose sleep worrying about other people accumulating great wealth, fearing that a few men will ultimately absorb all the money and property of the country. This is one of those things that regulate themselves. "He heapeth up riches," said the wise man, "and who shall gather them?" Jay Gould dies and his property is divided up so that no Gould is worth a tenth of what he was. A Vanderbilt girl is about to marry a jock and chase off to England with a share of the Vanderbilt millions. Another rich man dies and a lot of dissipated sons blow in the patrimony. So it goes. "We brought nothing into the world and it is certain that we can take nothing out" and equally certain that the accumulations of the wealthiest will soon be divided between the tens and then the hundreds and after awhile the thousands. Why worry, then? —Charlotte Observer.

We have a good many kinds of fish in this country but we have none like the India fish that meanders out in the country and climbs trees. We have a good many kinds of liars in this country, too, but they will have to hump themselves to keep tally with the India nar.—Wilmington Star.

Jenny Lind as a Child.
Jenny Lind as a child of 3 years was the lark of her parents' house. As a girl of 9 she attracted the attention of all lovers of music and entered the Stockholm conservatory as a pupil. Her continuous studies at so tender an age caused the sudden loss of her voice, and for four full years she pursued her theoretical and technical studies, when suddenly the full sweet sound came back, to the delight as everyone knows, of thousands for many years.
