Will Leave Monday.
 The editor, nothing preventing will leave Monday morning for the Atlanta Exposition and will be away possibly ten days. During his absence Billie will be in charge of this looking glass and any assistance given in the way of items will be appreciated. If his subscription money holds out the "old man" may also take in the Tennessee Centennial at Nashville. If any delinquent thinks our prolonged absence would be for the good of the town he has from now until train time Monday morning to add his mite to the fund.

"Poor Papa."
 Several days ago a very amusing incident happened at the white Graded School, so it was learned from one of the scholars. Prof. W. C. Toms, the affable superintendent of the public schools of this city, was addressing the scholars and was trying to impress upon their minds the necessity of being industrious. He was denouncing laziness and said that no lazy person could go to Heaven. At this juncture a little girl, who was sitting in the rear of the auditorium, was heard to whisper, "poor papa." Incensed much merriment.

Which Will You Take?
 Entering the office of a well-known merchant, I lifted my eyes and found myself confronted with the brightest and most thrilling temperance lecture I ever steered myself against in the whole course of my life. It was an inscription marked with a pen on the back of a postal card nailed to the desk. The inscription read as follows:

WHICH?
 WIFE OR WHISKY
 THE BABES OR THE BOTTLE
 HOME OR HELL?

"Where did you get that and what did you nail it there for?" I asked the merchant.
 "I wrote that myself and nailed it up there," was his reply, "and I will tell you the story of that card. Some time ago I found myself falling into a drinking habit. I would run out once in awhile with a visiting customer, or at the invitation of a traveling man, or on every slight offer. I soon found that my business facilities were becoming dulled that my stomach was continually out of sorts, my appetite failing, and a constant craving for alcoholic stimulants becoming dominant. I saw tears in the eyes of my wife, wonder depicted on the faces of my children, and then I took a long look ahead. One day I sat down at this desk and half unconsciously wrote the inscription on that card. On looking at it upon its completion, its awful revelation burst upon me like a flash. I nailed it up there, and read it over a hundred times that afternoon. That night I went home sober, and I have not touched a drop of intoxicating liquor since. You see how startling is its alliteration. Now I have no literary proclivities and I regard that card as an inspiration. It speaks out three solemn warnings every time I look at it. The first is a voice from the altar, the second from the cradle, and the third and last from ———.

RICHER AND HANDSOMER

Than any ever produced. My Clothes, Hats and Furnishings, I'm talking about. Look over the stock; it's complete now, and see if you don't agree with me. One of two things I always mean to do: To sell you better goods than you get elsewhere for the same price; to sell you the same goods lower than you get them.

FRANK WILSON,

The King Clothier.

Here my friend's earnestness deepened into a solemn shaking of the head, and with that he resumed his work.
 I don't think I violate his confidence by repeating the story of that card. In fact, if it should lead to the writing of similar cards to adorn other desks I think he will be immeasurably gratified.—Saturday Evening Call.

Ten little fingers,
 Two little eyes,
 One little mouth
 That laughs and cries,
 One little boy
 Playing with his toes,
 Mamma is gone to Frank Wilson's
 To buy him a Suit of Clothes.

DID YOU BUY YOUR HUSBAND

His last Suit of Clothes? Most ladies do buy their husband's Clothes. Its right that they should. A man don't know what looks well on him and besides he don't know a good piece of goods from a common piece. His wife does and its to his interest to let her buy his Clothes. He saves money by it and is more becomingly dressed. Speaking of Clothes I have a very nice line for Men I bought at a bankrupt sale which I will sell at a very low price—about one-half its real value. I have Suits from $2 up. Don't fail to see me before buying. I have also a nice line of Dress Goods and Notions that I am selling cheaper than any man in town. When in need of SHOES remember my stock is complete and will sell them cheap.

Hydrophobia from Foxes.

"Is the skunk a dangerous animal? I should say so," remarked Mr. E. P. Glaze of St. Louis. "I know very many people will be surprised at the assertion, but there is one species of this unpopular tribe that is as much to be dreaded as a rattlesnake, as I learned one year while sojourning in western Texas. One night in midsummer a party of us were camping out on the prairie of Llano county when we were awakened by the screams of a colored boy who had been taken along to cook for the outfit. He said that something had bitten him, and examination showed that his hand was pretty badly torn. There were unmistakable evidences of a skunk in the vicinity, and there was no doubt that it had done the deed.

"The sequel is that a few days later the boy died a most horrible death of hydrophobia. I learned that it was not a rare thing for the bite of these miserable little cats to produce that dread ailment, and several well authenticated cases of it occurred before I left the state. Some people think that hydrophobia finds its origin in these animals."—Washington Post.

A Fatal Defect.

We have received a story entitled "A Dark Deed," which is respectfully declined. The first chapter opens with, "It was midnight." That is all right. It is often midnight—at least seven times a week—but the author forgets to add, "and silence brooded o'er the city." This is a fatal oversight. Silence always broods over a city when it is midnight in works of fiction—nowhere else. We can't print a story in which silence does not brood at midnight.—London Tit-Bits.

Land and the improvements upon it constitute the first and most important item of our national wealth.

A Queer Habit of Thieves.

"There is one peculiar fact about a professional thief that I always notice, and that is that he invariably insists on going into a crowd, where suspicion is sure to rest on him," said Detective Murray. "Another thing is that you can't induce these fellows to leave town and go where they are unknown. Then of course when we see them in a crowd the only thing to do is to arrest them. The prisoner sets up a howl that we are hounding him and driving him to commit crimes, but still he persists in going where he is sure to be noticed."—Philadelphia Call.

EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

It does look as if there are some men in this world who, it matters not how successful they may be and what positions they occupy, cannot rise above the lowest type of the demagogue. Senator Butler of this State is a perfect example of this class. His whole song for the past two years has been sympathy for the farmers, and a pretended desire that agricultural products should advance in price and yet when this is being realized he comes out in the Caucasian in a column editorial seemingly bewailing the fact that it so, and saying that it is only done to kill out the sentiment in reference to the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and is only a political trick designed for this purpose. Instead of rejoicing at the fact that farmers are getting nearly as much again for their cotton as they did last year, way down in his heart he is sorry that it is true because it may operate against his object of keeping everybody dissatisfied with what is. He tells the farmers that if he could he would persuade them to make lots of cotton next year. "Make 12 or 15 millions bales if you want to. It will not go down no matter how much you make." The reason given by this solon is "next year is election year." He adds "remember one thing, you want to get your cotton in market and sold before election" The fact of the business is that the only thing in his mind is elections and if it were not for these he would care no more about the "beloved farmer" than he pretends to care for the goldbug.

We submit that the reasons assigned by him for the advance in the price of cotton and the advice given the farmer for next year could only have originated in a mind that has been utterly debased by pursuing a course that has had nothing in it but self, and which sees no advantage to anybody, and desires none that does not help self. It is a positive calamity that we must be represented in the United States Senate by such a contemptible demagogue.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, C., Oct. 11th.

President Cleveland will make a short stay in Washington as he is due at the Atlanta Exposition next week. When he returns from Atlanta he will settle down to the winter work, and he will find plenty of it on hand. In addition to other important work which he must take up, he will have only a little more than a month within which to write his annual message to Congress, and it will probably be one of the most difficult messages he has ever had to write. The message, although addressed to Congress, will really be written to the country, as nobody knows any better than the President that nothing short of overwhelming public sentiment will be sufficient to make the republican Congress accept his recommendations as to legislation, however wise they may be.

When a man makes a gigantic ass of himself the best thing he can do is to keep quiet about it. Some men don't know enough to do this. One of them is Lord Sackville West, who was British Minister to the United States until given his passport, in 1888, by Secretary Bayard, who acted under the instructions of President Cleveland, for having allowed himself to be trapped into writing a letter to be used as a republican campaign document. That Sackville should be sore is natural. But in raking up the whole business in a pamphlet published for distribution among his friends he has not vindicated himself; he has only confirmed the previously held opinion of him, and shown that the years which have passed since his humiliating departure from America have added nothing to his discretion. The dime museum manager who offered him an engagement then would be glad to give him double the money now; and as a freak he would unquestionably draw well.
