OUR BUYERS.

Some of Those Who Have Carried Their Part of the Burden in Pushing Greenville Forward.

In 1893, just after the warehouses were opened for that season, one morning walking leisurely around the warehouse floors with a very unassuming air and timid, boyish appearance, was a handsome young man with a frank, honest, open face. Being a stranger and alone we approached, and in an informal manner began discussing with him without telling ours or asking his name. In the course of our chat we found out that he was thinking of coming to Greenville to live and that his object in coming was to buy tobacco. This, of course, interested us in him and we spoke as encouragingly to him as we could. He said he was coming to Greenville, if the boys would let him stay here. He then told us that his name was

GEORGE E. HARRISON.

Everybody hereabouts knows George, for from the very day that he came to Greenville he began making friends and an easy matter it seemed for him to do. He has made them and the good of it is he has them today by the scores wherever he is known. Mr. Harrison began buying right away, principally wrappers and fine cutters. Up to this time Greenville had never had a chartered Tobacco Board of Trade, but now the buyers and warehousemen came together and incorporated a constitution and by laws under the State laws for regulating and controlling the sale of leaf tobacco on the Greenville market. At the very first meeting for the election of officers Mr. Harrison was elected Secretary and Treasurer which position he has filled so admirably and accurately that without a single dissenting voice he has been re-elected every time and is today Secretary and Treasurer of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade.

THERE'S A FORETASTE

Of Winter in the air these days that makes brisk trading. Never before were we so well prepared for the fall and winter trade as now. See us for anything in CLOTHING from the everyday business Suit to the most expensive Suit. Overcoats, Underwear, Hats, Scarfs, Shirts, Hose, Gloves, etc. Everywhere you'll note that prices are at the lowest notch at which honest reliable goods can be sold.

THE KING CLOTHIER.

The summer of '94 Mr. Harrison spent in the large leaf centers acquainting himself with the trade and learning more about his business. Early in the fall he again returned to Greenville and began buying. After closing up his year's business here, there being no sales here during the summer, he accepted a position as traveling salesman for a New York house. The summer of this year he spent traveling in the northern and middle States which position was both pleasant and profitable, but later in the summer he was offered a situation by T. E. Roberts & Co. to come back to Greenville in addition to the business he had already built up here. This, coupled with his natural inclination to come back South, caused him to resign his place with the New York firm and promptly the first of August he was on hand.

Since Mr. Harrison has been in Greenville we have seen a good deal of his manner of working up tobacco and we have heard numbers of others, whose judgment was much better than ours, say that he handled tobacco nicer, neater and better than any one they ever saw. Mr. Harrison is a very young man, only twenty-two years old, but he has known what responsibility was since his early boyhood, for when a mere lad, his father died leaving him a widowed mother, and three brothers and sisters to care for

An Interesting Fact as to North Carolina.

North Carolina is not only a State of great diversity of climate, but it is really a large State. Did it ever occur to you that it is really larger than the states of New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Delaware and New Jersey all combined and with 5,000 square miles to spare? This is true. If you will take a string and stretch it from the farthest point in Currituck county to the outer edge of Cherokee county, and holding the thumb at Currituck turn the string northward the Cherokee end will put you in the middle of Lake Champlain across Virginia, Maryland and all intervening states. New York included, to the lake. A great and marvelous State truly and in many ways. It has more sounds and rivers than any other state perhaps in the Union. It has a greater variety of production possibly than any other. Its manifold resources are only beginning to be known. It is very rich in forests, in fine native woods. There ought to be a half dozen or more large furniture manufactures in the State. But the products of North Carolina are too numerous and important for present handling.—Wilmington Messenger.

Counties in the United States.

The 51 States and Territories are subdivided into 2,859 counties. Texas leads with 244, and Delaware is at the small end with only 3. New England has but 53 counties, while New York, with a smaller territory, has 60, Arkansas 75, Virginia 101, and Georgia 137. Maine has 16 and South Carolina 35. North Carolina, with about the same area as New York, has 96. There are 191 counties divided among 27 States, in which no newspapers are published, viz.: Texas 49, Virginia 26, North Carolina 20, Kentucky 18, South Dakota 11;

Georgia, Tennessee and Utah 10 each; 6 in North Dakota; Idaho, Indian Territory, Michigan, New Mexico and Oklahoma 3 each; in Alabama, Florida and Nevada 2 each, and Arizona, Arkansas, California, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Vermont West Virginia and Wyoming 1 each.—Printer's Ink.

The Key to Success.

There is money enough expended every year in this country for advertising, in one form or another, to pay the national debt. Not only does the sum so expended amount to figures almost beyond comprehension, but every year adds to the sum total. Fortunes are made by it and millions uselessly or unintelligently spent. It is a large world we inhabit, and when any considerable part of its citizens glance our way in a financial sense it means much. Business men of today must recognize and act upon this fact or soon be relegated to the rear. Every successful business man of the future must become in some way an advertiser. He must, by one device or another, secure attention.—American Druggist and Pharmaceutical Record.

Preparing for His Burial.

A gentleman living in Salisbury and who is now enjoying perfect health has made a request of a quarryman near town that sounds a little queer. He wants a sepulchre of stone made for himself and this is the style after which it is to be fashioned: The sides, end and bottom are to be of rock five inches thick and well cemented together. The inside large enough to admit his body. The lid will be one of the same thickness as the sides and a glass will be inserted through which his face can be viewed when he is dead and his body has been consigned to the tomb. The sepulchre when finished will be placed in the Salisbury cemetery on top of the ground. When he dies it is his desire to be placed therein, the sepulchre to remain above the surface.—Salisbury World.

A Smart Little Girl.

That was a pretty sight which many of our people had the pleasure of witnessing Friday, when little Daisy Parker, of Ashe county, who is 11 years old, came into town leading 57 head of her pet turkeys to market. She had raised all of them, and they were as "gentle as dogs," following her wherever she went. Her father and brother were in a wagon behind. Messrs. Absher & Wallace purchased the entire drove, and they weighed 505 pounds, bringing her about $26. Little Daisy is a bright child, and has shown by example what a little girl can do in the poultry business. The parting scene between she and her pets was really pathetic.—North Wilkesboro News.

Kissing Unknown in Japan.
"Strange as it may appear," says M. de Guerville in his account of Japanese women, "a kiss is an unknown thing in Japan—not unknown to the gay maidens of Yokohama, Kobe, or Nagasaki, who have so much to do for the amusement of foreigners, but unknown to the Japanese in general. A lover never kisses his sweet-heart, a mother never kisses her child. He made a great mistake, the man who wrote that a kiss is nature's Volapuk, the universal language of love. You can kiss any Japanese girl. She will not object for she cannot possibly understand what you mean. She will only think 'what queer people these foreigners are.'"

whose interest and welfare he has always guarded and advanced.

Mr. Harrison is of a taciturn turn of mind, never forcing himself forward, yet not averse to social life. He is especially fond of his friends and always willing to make sacrifices in their behalf. As a friend and companion he is warm hearted and true and belongs to that class of men that are ever looking at the sunny side of life and trying always to see the good rather than the faults and the defects in frail human nature. As a business man promptitude and punctuality seem to be the characteristic elements of his make up. These and the other firm business qualifications that he possesses mark him for an especially prosperous and successful business career.
