GLOVES!

IF you fear temptation keep away from our Glove counter. We have a dollar Kid Glove that would tempt a miser. With some a dollar Glove is simply a pair of gloves for a dollar. With us it means the best Glove on earth for the price. If you want them for your own use or to give them to a friend, you can buy here without misgiving. A reasonable guarantee goes with every pair of dollar gloves.

PAID THE PENALTY.

George Washington Hanged at Tarboro.

(Special to Reflector.)

TARBORO, N. C. Dec. 4th. Though last night was the last that George Washington, colored, the murderer of Charles Neville, spent in this world, he slept soundly and seemed not to fear in the slightest the doom that awaited him to-day. He arose as usual this morning, dressed and ate a hearty breakfast, yet showing but little concern that only a few hours were between him and death.

About 11 o'clock he was taken from the jail and carried in a phaeton to the scene of execution, the Edgecombe Guards marching on each side. At 11.30 the drop fell, breaking his neck instantly, and in a few minutes he was pronounced dead. He made no address on the gallows, simply shaking hands and bidding those nearest to him good-bye, at the same time adding "I'm going."

The execution was witnessed by about 2,000 people, and was attended by no unusual excitement. The body was turned over to relatives for burial.

FIRE AT SNOW HILL.

Caused by a Defective Flue—Several Buildings Burned.

The town of Snow Hill, county seat of Greene, had a destructive fire Tuesday. The fire originated from a defective flue in the store of J. J. Potter, which with several adjoining buildings was destroyed. The following losses have been reported to us;

McD. Pate, loss $600, insurance $300.
J. J. Potter, loss $300.
G. E. Dail, loss $300, fully insured.
W. H. Dail, loss $1,000, insurance $600.

Well Said.

Many people have an idea that the columns of a newspaper are public property, to be devoted gratuitously to whoever chooses to occupy them. The publisher of a newspaper has one thing to sell and one thing to rent; and an exchange asks why he should be expected to give away either the one or the other. He can do so if he chooses, and he does, as a matter of fact, furnish a great deal of space rent free. But it does not follow that he ought to be expected to do so. It should be recognized as a contribution, as would be the giving away of sugar or coffee by the groceryman. But, strange to say, it is not looked upon in that light at all; yet everybody knows that the existence of a newspaper depends as much upon the rent of its space and on the sale of the paper as a merchant's success depends on selling his goods instead of giving them away.—Louisburg Times.

Mr. Thos. L. Brown, of Biltmore, writes the Asheville Citizen that if the American corn growers had a few of the superstitions of the Zulus on the corn question, they would profit by it. One of these is that if a plow be carried through a field of corn in tassel the crop will be blasted. Mr. Brown says that's a "superstition" based on Zulu lead mule sense, and follows it up with the assertion that the American people lose millions of dollars on the corn crop every year by cultivating it when in the tassel.—Wilmington Star.

OUR BUYERS.

Some of Those Who Have Carried Their Part of the Burden in Pushing Greenville Forward.

The firm of T. E. Roberts & Co. became established here in 1893. There is probably today no concern better known in the trade. Mr. R. H. Hayes, the youngest member of the firm, came to Greenville early in the fall of 1893 from Winston. Until he left Winston at that place he was one of the American Tobacco Co's. buyers. Mr. Hayes wanted to come east, so he severed his connection with the American Tobacco Co. and formed a copartnership with Mr. T. E. Roberts, of Chase City, Va. During his stay of two years here Mr. Hayes made many friends. The first year he was only a buyer, but the second year he entered into copartnership with Messrs. G. F. & L. F. Evans, and during 1894 they conducted a warehouse business in the Greenville warehouse, Mr. Hayes, however, taking no very active part in the warehouse business, for his other business had grown so large that it required his whole time to attend to that. He was a plain, fair and square dealing business man, and all his business transactions were conducted upon the highest plain of business principles. We don't believe there was any power that could deter him from doing his full duty in his business relations. During the fall of 1894 Mr. Hayes began to fear that his lungs were affected and that the climate here was too heavy for him, so in the summer of this year he went to Philadelphia and placed himself under a course of medical treatment. In August he was discharged from the institution and pronounced cured, but he thought it best, for the present at least, not to come back east. Having built up a large and valuable business he began to look around to find some one to take his place on this market. In Clarksville, Va., he met Mr. G. P.

Fleming, and they soon negotiated an arrangement for the latter to come to Greenville. If he had searched North Carolina or Virginia over we don't believe he could have found a better man to step right into his shoes on this market than George Fleming. Mr. Fleming was born in Granville county on the farm, moved from the country and engaged in the leaf business in Oxford in 1881. Four years later he moved to Clarksville, Va., and remained there till he moved to Greenville in August 1895. From the short stay that he has made he is highly impressed with our country and more with our tobacco. Speaking with him a few days ago, we asked him if he was permanently located in Greenville. "Yes," said he, "I have come to Greenville to make it my future home. I like the people, I like the tobacco that is grown in the eastern section and I am very well satisfied with my business in Greenville." It is highly gratifying to the tobacco people here that T. E. Roberts & Co., secured such a man, for prior to his coming it was feared by most of us that no one could be secured who would take the same interest in the market that Mr. Hayes did, but when Mr. Fleming came all doubt was soon dispelled, for from the beginning he settled right down with the rest of us, and is working for the market. Mr. Fleming is a high toned gentleman in any place you find him. He is affable and pleasant to do business with and no more whole-souled, jocular man can be found anywhere.

Mr. Jas. W. Wiggins is probably one of the oldest buyers now on the Greenville market. Since the old Greenville Warehouse was first built in 1891 he has been directly or indirectly connected with the market. Mr. Wiggins is an Edgecombe county boy. He was raised on the farm not very far from Tarboro and remained on the farm until the tobacco industry began to get a hold in the eastern section. In 1890 he left the farm and entered into partnership with a Mr. Ellington to operate a warehouse in Rocky Mount under the firm name of Ellington, Wiggins & Co. In 1891 the firm was dissolved and Mr. Wiggins came to Greenville to live. While Jim is not a very heavy buyer on the greads that he is handling, he is a great help to the market in keeping up the prices. This year he is buying more largely than before and occupies one half the prize house in which T. E. Roberts & Co. did business last year. Mr. Wiggins is a prudent and cautious man who measures well every step before he takes it. This characteristic alone renders him a safe and sound business man. Like all the rest of our buyers he is a young man permanently identified with Greenville, and we hope for him a prosperous future.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 4TH, 1895.

The Progressive Farmer helped to elect a part of this Congress. It is in part responsible for the election of Pritchard, Pearson, Linney, Settle, & Co., and yet listen at what it has to say about this body which is now in session and of which the above men form a part:

"Congress is again in session. For some time such an announcement has been sufficient to frighten the bravest of the brave, for instead of benefiting the people, each session has been a curse. We hope the present Congress will be an exception, but there is nothing to encourage anybody. Of course many old, tried and true tools of the money power have been retired or will all be when their terms expire—such as Ransom, Brice, Gorman, Breckinridge; Hill, Ingals and others, some new blood has been infused, but not enough yet to rescue the country.

The Republican party has the chance of a life-time to redeem a dark past, in part, at least, but will it do it? The Democratic party acted both the fool and the rascal two years ago, and the Republican party will likely do the same. But we have less to fear from this session than any previous one for twenty years, and less to hope for in the way of good things, as we see it. That leaves us in a position to hope for nothing good."

How do our Republican friends like to be talked about in this manner? "The Republican party will probably act both the fool and the rascal" is not very nice talk about the two-third part of the "cooperationists" and yet this is what the one-third part seems to expect of them. It says we have less to hope for from this body than any in twenty years. Pretty bad to help elect a body of this character. Of course it abuses the Democratic Congresses. This is expected because this habit has become habitual and chronic with the editor of this so called "reform" paper, but better things are expected to be said by it of its own men. What strange bedfellows this Fusion in North Carolina has made.

GOVERNMENT BALANCE-SHEET.

Receipts and Expenditures—Customs Income—Internal Revenue.

A comparative statement of government receipts and expenditures for the month of November, and the five months of the fiscal year to date, has been issued by the Treasury Department.

The deficit for November is $1,212,780, and for the five months of the fiscal year is $15,869,327.

The receipts for November $25,986,503, and the expenditures, $37,199,187.

As compared with November, 1894, the receipts for last month show a gain of nearly $6,000,000, while the expenditures are $1,250,000 less than for November, 1894.

For the five months of the current fiscal year the receipts are $141,279,116, which is $3,750,000 greater than for the corresponding five months of 1894.

For the same period the expenditures have been $157,148,443, or $2,700,000 less than for the corresponding five months of 1894.

The receipts of November were nearly $2,000,000 less than for October last, and the expenditures $7,000,000 less, due to interest payments in October.

The customs receipts for the five months of this fiscal year were $12,000,000 greater than for the corresponding five months of 1894.

International Revenue-Commissioner Miller has compiled the collections for the four months of the current fiscal year, and they amount to $71,449,692, a decrease of $13,364,992, as compared with the corresponding four months of 1894.

The principal sources of internal revenue were: Spirits, $26,777,637; a decrease of $14,417,013 (arising from the withdrawals in 1894 to evade the increased tax of 20 cents a gallon); tobacco, $11,036,369, an increase of $793,273; oleomargarine, $485,297, a decrease of $172,848; and miscellaneous, $130,786, a decrease of $127,319.

The receipts for October, 1895, were $13,750,213, against $6,114,375, in October, 1894.

The Girls of Jerusalem Know Nothing of Social Life.

Of social life the girls of Jerusalem know nothing—absolutely nothing, writes Edwin S. Wallace, United States consul at Jerusalem, in November Ladies Home Journal. They occasionally meet, a few together, and appear to enjoy each other's company a little. They talk about their household work—which is really everything they know—and indulge in some light gossip chat about friends, though their gossip is never of a harmful kind. In conversation they show some little animation and spirit, but being ignorant and illiterate, they have no idea of grammatical form of expression. Occasionally cards, dominoes and checkers are played, but the native girls have little inclination for any pastime involving mental effort. Such things as dances, fetes and fairs are unknown to the girls of Jerusalem; occasionally they are taken on a family picnic to some olive orchard near their homes where they pass part of the day. From these and all similar gatherings men are barred. There is absolutely no commingling of the sexes. For a girl to appear at any assemblage where there are men would be regarded as audacious and shocking. No Jerusalem girl would do such a thing; she would not dream of committing so fatal a breach in the unwritten, though well-defined law, governing the conduct of her sex. So strict is this law, or custom, of exclusion, that under no circumstances would a girl attend the wedding of her brother to which were bidden guests outside the immediate families.

The Henderson Gold Leaf says: "There seems to be a determined effort on the part of sharpers to systematically 'work' some of the North Carolina tobacco towns with forged checks. Within the past week two forgers have been caught in Henderson, Raleigh and Durham. People should be careful how they cash checks for strangers."

HARPOONING A WHALE.

The Capture of One That Seemed Like Gold Blooded Murder.

As we came abreast of a tiny cove or cleft in the cliffs the harpooner suddenly stiffened with excitement, and he muttered "Blow-ow-ow" in an undertone. There in that little docklike cleft lay a monster just awash, a tiny spiral of vapor at her side showing her to be accompanied by a calf. Down came the mast and sails as if by magic, and in less than one minute we were paddling straight in for the cove. The water was as smooth as a mirror, and the silence profound. A very few strokes and the order was whispered, "Stand up!" to the harpooner. Louis rose, poising his iron, and almost immediately darted. The keen weapon was buried up to the socket in the broad, glistening side. "Stern all!" was shouted, and backward we swiftly glided, but there was no need for retreat. Never a move did she make, save convulsively to clutch the calf to her side with one of her great winglike flippers.

We carefully approached again, the harpooner and officer having changed places, and, incredible as it may seem, almost wedged the boat in between the whale and the rocks. No sheep could have more quietly submitted to slaughter than did this mighty monster, whose roll to one side would have crushed our boat to finders, and whose death struggle, had it taken place as usual, must, in so confined a corner, have drowned us all. Evidently fearful of injuring her calf, she quietly died and gave no sign. Case hardened old blubber hunters as we were, we felt deeply ashamed, our deed looked so like a cold blooded murder. One merciful thrust of a lance ended the calf's misery, and, rapidly cutting a hole through the two lips of our prize, we buckled to our heavy task of towing it to the ship. We were soon joined by the other boats, but all combined made no great progress, and we had seven hours of heavy labor before we got the carcass home. Securing it alongside, we went to a hard and well earned meal and a good night's rest.—Good Words.

this way to enlarge its sphere of usefulness and render immediate assistance to practical farmers.

The Growing of Onions.

Would there be a possibility of my growing a good crop of onions on newly cleared land, with everything taken out and well plowed and worked? I want to grow a good crop. I have nothing but commercial fertilizers to use. My land is light and high, a good sandy loam. How much fertilizer can I use and not burn the crop? Is the "Prizetaker" the best for me to plant, and market under the "New Onion Culture"? What time are they ready to market set out February 1st.—A. F. C. Chadbourn, N. C.

[Answered by W. F. Massey, Horticulturist, N. C. Experiment Station.]

You can doubtless grow a fair crop of onions on your land, by liberal fertilization, and by repeating the heavy fertilization, you can grow larger crops on the same land annually for a number of years. It takes several years fertilization and culture to get the maximum crop of onions on a piece of land that has never grown that crop. I should use fully a ton per acre of a high grade fertilizer, and I would not buy any particular brand of mixed fertilizer, but would mix my own, for there is no brand that I am acquainted with which has as large a percentage of potash as the onion crop and your soil need. In bulletin 113, on Trucking in the South, you will find some formulas for home mixing of fertilizers. If you wish to grow green onions for bunching to ship in March, you should use sets of the Early Pearl or the White Potato onion, and plant them in October. The bulletin referred to will give you full directions. For a rise crop for the home market or for early shipment ripe, you can use the Prizetaker, and start the plants under glass in January, or if you want a crop that can be kept then sow seed in February of the White Southport Globe, or the Red Opal. The Prizetaker is the best for the "new onion culture," that is the starting of the plants early and transplanting in March, or with you in February, if well hardened off. They will be ready to ship in late June or early in July, while the onions grown from sets planted in October, will be ready to pull and bunch in March and ship with the tops on, in ventilated barrels.

DIDN'T OCCUR AGAIN.

A Railroad Magnate's Rebuke That the Conductor Remembered.

They are telling one now on an official of a certain steam railroad company. This gentleman is a very strict observer of discipline, and if an opportunity affords to teach an employee a lesson in being a little more careful he always seizes it. A little while ago this official was riding toward Baltimore in a train, and in charge was a brand new conductor. He knew by sight, however, several of the officials of the company, and he did what he thought was a most proper thing and one which he thought would flatter the magnate. When he collected fares, he simply glanced at the gentleman in question and passed him by. Our disciplinarian saw this, and when the conductor came back called him up.

"You have not collected my fare," said he.

"Oh, sir," responded the conductor, with conscious pride, "that's all right. You see, I know you, sir. You are Mr. —, and of course you have a pass."

"You should not know anybody, sir," rejoined the official in a tone that made the conductor wonder whether he would not soon have to apply for another job. "No matter whether I ride on this train 100 times a day you should collect my fare. Punch this pass, sir, and be sure you do not let this occur again."

But he laughs best who laughs in his sleeve. It was but a few days after this that Mr. Official came riding back from Baltimore and happened to strike the same train. The conductor observed him quietly and made sure he would not get caught a second time. So at the proper moment he approached the official and made a remark about "Tickets, please." The railroader looked up and saw standing before him the man he had "roasted" so severely a few days before.

"Ah," said he, "quite right, quite right," and then he fumbled in his pocket for his passbook. It wasn't there. Nor was it in any of his other pockets. "Strange, strange," muttered he. "Where could I have left it? How unfortunate!"

All of which language fell on deaf ears, for the conductor looked stonily into space and then held out his hand again.

"Well, you see," said the confused official, "I have misplaced my pass book. I am Mr. —, you know."

"Can't help that, sir," responded the conductor. "I don't know you, sir. I'll have to have your fare."

The fare was not very large, it was true, but the mortification was great, especially as half the people in the car had turned around and were gazing curiously at the man who had stirred up all the fuss by trying, as they thought, to beat his way. So the magnate went down into his pocket again and fished out sufficient in bills to pay for the fare. The conductor coolly punched out a rebate ticket and handed it over.

"You can get the drawback at the depot when you get to Washington," said he and passed on. He has been waiting for several days for his discharge, but it is not likely he will get it.—Washington Post.

Huxley and Gladstone.

There was—perhaps there still is—in England a metaphysical club of which Huxley and many other eminent persons were members. They met once a month to discourse of these high matters. Mr. Gladstone was one. There is no known subject on which the great parliamentarian is not ready to enlarge with copious confidence. He did on metaphysics at the club and elsewhere. Mr. Huxley was once asked whether Mr. Gladstone was an expert metaphysician.

"An expert in metaphysics? He does not know the meaning of the word," was the rather startling answer. Between Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Huxley no love, in truth, was ever lost. Their relations were never intimate, and though in private they met as men do in England, amicably and civilly, no matter how much they differ in public, there was and could be no cordiality.—

Cleaning Dull Gold.

Dull gold may be cleaned by immersion in a bath of 80 grains calcium hypochlorite, 80 grains sodium bicarbonate and 20 grains table salt, all of which ingredients are dissolved in three quarts distilled water. The fluid must be kept for use in well corked bottles. Articles to be cleaned are placed in a basin and covered with liquor and taken out after awhile, washed and rinsed in alcohol and dried in sawdust. The article then looks like new.

Many of the Western farmers are moving from the cold and bleak West to the South and East. A correspondent of the New York Sun writing from Iowa says the exodus there is considerable and shows no sign of abatement. He says that not less than 100,000 families "have found their way back from the plains to the confines of civilization and comfort in the East."

They Meet Tonight.

The Town Council will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight, and Councilman Brown tells us there is considerable business to come before the body. Two matters in which the people are most interested are the application for a street railway charter, and the question of lighting the streets with electric lights. If the Council votes to rent twenty arc lights for use on the streets the establishment of the electric plant is assured.

IN REVIEW.

Faces Passing Before Reflector Readers.

Dan Quinerly, of Kinston, came over this morning.

Mrs. L. C. Ricks returned from Elm City Tuesday evening.

F. M. Smith returned home Tuesday evening from Greensboro.

W. O. Warren, of Edgecombe, spent yesterday and last night with his uncle, ex-Sheriff Warren.

Rev. C. M. Billings left Tuesday evening, via Kinston, to attend the Baptist State Convention at Greensboro.

W. A. and Levin Gaskins, of Newbern are here prospecting with a view of locating and engaging in business in Greenville.

We were pleased to have a call this afternoon from J. C. Roberson, who is here in the interest of Geo. L. Arps & Co., cotton factors of Norfolk.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

A large cotton mill near Baltimore was destroyed by fire on Monday. Loss $50,000.

Cornelius Lipscomb, of Washington City, while eating dinner, was choked with a piece of chicken bone. The bone could not be dislodged and he died in a few minutes.

The falling of the ceiling of a public school building at Paterson, N. J., injured a dozen pupils, one fatally.

Some boys in West Virginia took some blasting powder and tried to grind it down fine in a coffee mill. There was an explosion and two of the boys fatally burned.

Death of Mrs. Thos. McGee.

It is with profound sadness that we are called on to chronicle the death of Mrs. Thomas McGee, of Mount Olive, N. C. Many of us are well acquainted with Mr. Thomas McGee, and he is well and favorably known in and around Greenville. All of his friends join in sympathy and condolence to him and the family in this the saddest hour of their lives. She was the youngest daughter of Rev. J. N. Andrews, who for many years was a member of the N. C. Conference of the M. E. church South. This family for the past 10 years has indeed suffered many heart aches. In 1885 the father was called to pass over the river, in June, 1894, the oldest son, S. A. Andrews, died in South Carolina, the next November the mother, and in June of this year an older sister died in Florida, far away from home and friends; in August and September Mrs. McGee lost her two youngest children. The shock was too much for her already feeble condition and this, together with a fatal disease, soon terminated her life and her spirit has gone up to the realms of light and glory.

"Blest be the tie that binds,
Our hearts in purest love,
The fellowship of kindred minds
Is like to that above,
When we asunder part,
It gives us inward pain,
But we shall still be joined in heart
And hope to meet again."

Sale of Valuable Town Lot.

In obedience to an order made by the Board of County Commissioners at their meeting on the first Monday in November 1895, directing me as the Clerk of said Board to advertise for sale the lot belonging to the County of Pitt, known in the plan of the town of Greenville as lot number 102, it being the lot now used by the town of Greenville, as a Market House with the permission of the Board of County Commissioners, I, William M. King, ex officio Clerk of the Board of Commissioners of Pitt County, do hereby give public notice that said lot will be exposed to public sale to the highest bidder, in front of the Court House door, at 12 o'clock M. on Monday the 6th day of January 1896. The terms of sale will be one third cash and the balance to be secured in two equal instalments, payable in one and two years, with six per cent interest on deferred payments, with privilege to purchase to pay the whole at any time and take his deed. Title reserved until the whole of the purchase money is paid. The board reserves the right to affirm or disaffirm said sale. Notice is also given that the town government will be permitted to remove the Market House and other buildings erected on said lot by the town, in accordance with the agreement entered into at the time permission was given by the Board of County Commissioners to the town Commissioners to erect and use said buildings. The lot will be offered in three alternate ways which will be shown in detail on a plan on file in the office of the Register of Deeds and can be seen by the public at any time and will also be announced on day of sale.
