WASHINGTON LETTER.

Greenbacks for Gold—The Tariff Bill—England and the Boundary—More Battle Ships—New York after the Convention.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 3, '96. President Cleveland may or may not have felt complimented when Senator Sherman offered a resolution providing that when greenbacks or U. S. Treasury notes are redeemed for gold they shall not be reissued except for gold, but that resolution and a speech made in its favor by Mr. Sherman have been the most sensational occurrences of the week in Congress. It will be remembered that when President Cleveland in his annual message and Secretary Carlisle in his annual report recommended the retirement of the greenbacks and Treasury notes as the best remedy for our financial troubles Senator Sherman was foremost among those republicans who hooted at the idea. Now Senator Sherman offers a resolution which, if it became a law, would probably result in retiring the greenbacks and Treasury notes, although he claims that it wouldn't. The basis for his claim is not, however, a very substantial one. He figures that the law would work like the assurance of a bank cashier to a frightened depositor, that he could have his money if he wanted it; and that those who have been presenting these notes for redemption in gold will stop as soon as they know that the notes so presented will not be again paid out for them to present again.

The scrambling among those who want more of the protection pork than the tariff bill which the House passed gives them has not been equalled since the McKinley bill was being made up. It has been and is making life miserable for the republican members of the Senate Finance committee, which is now trying to decide in what shape the bill is to be reported back to the Senate. The greed of those seeking protection for special lines, at the expense of everybody else, would make the scramble sufficiently disagreeable, but Presidential politics have also been brought into it. The McKinleyites declare that the bill as passed by the House is in the interest of Reed's candidacy, and that they will have more McKinleyism put into it, or know the reason why it isn't done. The Democrats are not taking much interest in the bill, although the nearer it gets to McKinleyism the better it will suit them; they believe that the country is as strongly opposed to McKinleyism now as it was when it elected the Democratic House of the fifty-second Congress and when it elected Cleveland President and gave the Democrats control of both branches of the fifty-third Congress and that the nearer the bill approaches the original McKinley bill the greater will be its effect towards helping to elect a Democratic President next November. Democratic Senators have not agreed upon any programme on the tariff bill, but the general sentiment among them indicates that after putting the party on record against the bill they will place no obstructions in the way of reaching a vote. Even if the bill passes the Senate in a shape to meet the approval of Mr. Reed, who is to all intents and purposes the House, it is well-nigh certain that it will be vetoed by President Cleveland.

At West Palm Beach, Fla., a destructive fire destroyed over half the business portion of the town. Several persons were badly injured by the explosion of dynamite to save other buildings. The loss is estimated at about $250,000.

A Norfolk dispatch says the peanut trust known as the Virginia Peanut Association has decided to wind up its affairs. It was found impossible to control the buying price of peanuts, hence this action.

Leap Year.

Why is it called leap year? It is because the Julian calendar, in which the custom of adding a day to February every fourth year was introduced, provided that the additional day should be inserted not at the end of the month, but six days earlier, forming a second sixth day. Hence arose the word bisextile, which is still retained as the name of the year in which the additional day is inserted, though now it is added at the end of the month. The name leap year refers to the fact that for a year after the insertion of the additional day, each date comes two days later in the week than it came the previous year, instead of on the following day of the week, as in ordinary years. The dates may be said to leap over a day, and hence the name.

No Hope From Congress.

We cannot say what Congress will do; but if any of our readers are in hopes that it will take a step toward free coinage, he had better disabuse his mind immediately. The truth is, we rather think there is but little for Congress to do. No matter how badly off the country is, Congress cannot help it half so well as it can by adjourning. It has come to be a fact in business that trade halts when the laws of our country are in the hands of legislators.—Biblical Recorder.

An All Round Raise.

A man owning a double house sublet the half he did not occupy to a noisy tenant. Such a racket was kept up that he notified the party to quit.

"What's the matter with me?" he asked, much hurt in his pride.

"Ah, you raise too much noise all the time, and I can't stand it."

"Why don't you balance matters by raising something yourself? I don't object."

"Don't you? Well, I'll just raise the rent," and he did to such an extent that the tenant left.—Strand Magazine.

Effective Weapons.

During the sieges of mediaval times it was very common for the besiegers to throw from their catapults and other military engines dead bodies of dogs, swine, together with pieces of horseflesh and similar carrion, into the city or castle besieged, in order that the defenders might, by the stench of this putridity, be forced to a surrender.

The Irish hare is considered to be exceptionally strong and suited for coursing purposes. A large number of these hares are exported annually to England and Scotland for various coursing meetings.

Bible Terms.

A finger's breadth is equal to one inch.

A shekel of silver was about fifty cent.

A shekel of gold was $8.

A talent of silver was $538.30.

A talent of gold was $13,809.

A piece of silver, or a penny, was thirteen cents.

A farthing was three cents.

A mite was less than a quarter of a cents.

A gerah was one cent.

An ephah, or bath, contained seven gallons and one pint.

A bin was one gallon and two pints.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 4TH, 1896.

The year 1895 will go down in shipping history as the blackest and most disastrous of the century. The most serious disasters of the year were the loss of the North German Lloyd steamer Elbe, the Spanish warship Reina Regenta, the Pacific mail steamer Colima, the China steamer Catterthorn, the French steamer Dom Pedro, the Spanish steamer Gravana, the Italian steamer Maria P., the Chinese transport Kung Pai, and the Brazilian steamer Pereira. In these nine wrecks alone 2,690 souls perished. Other big wrecks during the year, which, however, did not involve loss of life, were the French Liner L'Amerique, Ward Liner Cienfuegos, Netherland Liner Edam, and the Leyland Liner Venetia. By the loss of other vessels (including fishing smacks), not here enumerated, the New York Mail and Express calculates that 5,000 other lives were lost.

George W. Vanderbilt opened his great mansion, "Biltmore," near Asheville, Christmas day by entertaining a large number of members of his family, and by giving the employes of the estate, numbering over two hundred, a Christmas tree and collation. Mr. Vanderbilt made an address of welcome and presents were distributed to all. Ten private cars, forming two special trains, were required to transport the Vanderbilts, for this christening of "Biltmore" was made the occasion of a family reunion. All the Vanderbilts, save Mrs. Willie K. and the Duchess of Marlborough, were there. George Vanderbilt is a quiet and modest young man. Here is a little story about him: Not long ago his farm manager went to him and said he was about to build a residence. "How much is it to cost?" queried George. "Two thousand dollars," was the reply. Come and talk to me this afternoon," said the young millionaire. When the man went George handed him a check for $10,000, saying, "Now you can build a nice house."

Cotton Mill Building in 1895.

In a review of the year, the Baltimore Manufacturers' Record says among other things: Cotton mill building in the South in 1895 was phenomenal. The aggregate number of spindles for new mills undertaken during the year, and for enlargements of old mills, was in round numbers, about 1,000,000, or probably twice as great as ever before recorded in one year. During the year the South's pre-eminent advantages for this industry were for the first time fully and completely admitted by the foremost textile authorities of the world. In round numbers the South has, including mills in operation, and those under construction, or for which the money has been raised, about four million spindles in sight, all of which will be in full operation before the close of the present crop year.

The tide of population, which for a year or more has been slowly turning southward, has swelled during the past twelve months to great magnitude. Throughout the North and West thousands of people are turning southward, and the outlook indicates that within the next few years as many settlers from outside will come into the South as went into the Northwest fifteen or twenty years ago, when that country was being opened up to civilization.

Some Facts About Cuba.

Cuba is an island of an area of 43,000 square miles. (Area of North Carolina 50,704 square miles.) The sea coast is not far from any point, but it is not a low country; in its southeastern portion there are mountains 7,000 feet high. There are 20,000,000 acres of land yet uncultivated, 13,000,000 of which are of uncleared forest. Sugar is the chief commodity, tobacco is native to the soil, and of the finest quality. The census of 1887 numbered 1,631,687 inhabitants—about the population of North Carolina. There are 492,294 negroes and 43,811 Chinese on the Island; and 76 of every hundred inhabitants are unable to read. There is a school for every 2,105 inhabitants.

The Cuban insurgents are at least holding their own; but no one can foresee the issue of the struggle.

American capital in Cuba has suffered great losses on account of the war; and a syndicate of Americans has proposed to loan the Insurgent Republic $15,000,000 in gold for $45,000,000 in bonds of that doubtful government. If this proposition should be accepted, it would hasten the end of the war, as one of the conditions is that war be stopped, victorious or not, within a year. Fifteen million dollars would be a vast addition to the resources of the insurgents, and of a character that they most need.

WILL SHE?

When the coming woman gets here

Will she offer up her seat?
Will she offer her umbrella,
When there's rain or snow or sleet?
Will she help us in the wagon?
Will she bait our fishing hook?
Will she step into the water
That we dry may cross the brook
Will she seize a rail and rescue?
When the bully chases us?
Will she push the wheezy mower
Every eve and make no fuss?
Will she run the locomotive,
Shovel coal and handle brakes?
Will she level mound and forest?
Carry bitterns for the snakes?
Will she march to bloody battle,
Snap her fingers at the hurts?
Well, I guess not—she will merely Hide behind her husband's skirts.

—Joe Cone.

IF YOU HAD A LOAD OF WOOD TO SELL

and told every man you met that you had a load of wood to sell, and every man you met would in turn tell every man he met that you had a load of wood to sell, and every man you met would in turn tell every man he met that you had a load of wood to sell, it would, in course of time, become pretty well circulated that you had a load of wood to sell; but why not cut it short—not the wood, but the method—and place a good ad in a good newspaper and tell everybody at once. "Delays are dangerous," and a good newspaper would start in where the last man left off and keep on telling everybody that you had a load of wood to sell; or anything else. ### A RUNAWAY TRAIN.

Luckily It Had a Clear Track and a Cool Headed Engineer.

A railroad official, speaking of some of his experiences, said:

"I lived many years ago in a small Massachusetts city and managed a road where every employee, from the section men up, was personally known to me, and railroading was more of a pleasure than it is here, where the roads are so vast and long that one hardly knows the members of his own office staff. My office windows, I remember, looked out directly upon the principal business street of the place and the entrance to the Union depot, the street crossing the tracks at right angles not 20 feet from the great arched station entrance. Every hour or two New York and Boston express trains were arriving and departing, and it was always an interesting sight the day before Thanksgiving, when every train was running in two or three sections, and each one drawn by two locomotives, loaded down with passengers anxious to get to the old farm in time for the Thanksgiving dinner.

"One snowy, blustering day I sat waiting to see the 11:25 train pull in from Boston, for somehow I kind of smelled danger, as a railroad man often does. I knew the train was a heavy one, the rails slippery and that before it struck the crossing it came down a heavy grade four miles long. Out at the other end of the depot was a great long bridge carrying the train off to the west, and also the tracks branching south to New York. On both these tracks stood huge locomotives blowing off steam and seemingly in haste to couple on to the coming train, which was destined for both the south and west, and hurry it off to its destination. Well, to make a long story short, that train got the best of the engineer that day, owing to some defect in the airbrakes, and there was one of the most hair raising train runaways I guess I will ever witness. A mile up the grade I heard old Seth Mayoer, the engineer, making old No. 104 whistle for brakes in a way that made me turn cold. Almost at the same time the train came tearing down over the street crossing and into the depot, going 60 miles an hour, and I remember to this day and always will how cool Mayoer looked as he dashed by, blowing his whistle for dear life as a warning to give him a clear track.

"That they would even get those engines at the other end of the station out of the way I thought was an impossibility, but they did. There were cool men about that place that day, and No. 104's great Crawford whistle had given the warning. The switches were hastily set straight on to the bridge, and away dashed the waiting engine in a race to get out of the way of the runaway train. It was a close shave, and it unnerved me for a week, but luck saved the day.

"That runaway ran four miles before it stopped, and the engineer with the light engine tearing along ahead of it was beginning to wonder if the tracks were clear way out to Buffalo, when the brakes worked and the runaway was brought to a stop. For years I have been wondering how that train ever dashed down that grade and through the crowded depot, following the switches in and out, without a most frightful smash up.

"Old Seth Mayoer, when he stepped down from the cab after backing back, regarded it as a huge joke, but it scared everybody else within a mile of the station out of a week's growth."—Chicago Chronicle.

Marriage.

Sometimes it is the wise words of an infant that impress us more than those carefully thought out by the sage. Therefore we quote the words of the most innocent of mothers who has in charge a beautiful daughter: "I will not interfere with her marriage, though I do not exactly approve of the man she has chosen. All have to abide by the fate they make for themselves. I would have preferred some one else, but her heart has decided for her, and Cupid, after all, is the best judge." Mothers, sisters, friends, take this lesson to heart. You will never be thanked if you interfere, and no matter whether a marriage turns out well or ill the adviser, the third party, is seldom considered. Advice in business may go—in love it does not count. Remember this and save yourself time and annoyance by keeping to yourself any wise remarks that you think the occasion requires or your own conscience demands.—Exchange.

SAILORS' PETS.

Animals Which Vary the Monotony of Existence For Jack Tar.

Three things, writes a naval contributor, there are which do more than anything else to lighten the burden of existence such as it is borne by Jack Tar, says the Westminster Gazette. These three are grog, the hornpipe and a pet animal, and the pet animal is the greatest solace of the three. There is scarcely a vessel afloat, from one of our line of battleships down to a canal-boat, that has not a two or four footed pet on board. Sailors proverbially make pets of almost any animal they are shipmates with—elephants, bears, sheep, goats, monkeys, gazelles and raccoons among the mammalia, bantam cocks, parrots, cockatoos, magpies and sea gulls among bipeds, and even inhabitants of the ocean, such as seals and turtle, have been laid under contribution to provide amusement for our bluejackets!

An elephant seems "a large order" as a sailor's pet aboard ship, but who of the senior naval officers does not remember the vessel called by the nickname of H. M. S. Menagerie, and the elephant on board of that paddle wheel frigate when they were on the Indian station. The elephant was regularly stationed and harnessed to the jib balyards, and when the order was given to "Make all plain sail," he made a triumphant bellow and ran along the waist until the pipe was sounded to "Belay!" to the delonda est Carthago of any toes that got into his way!

Admiral Sir G. W. told me that when he commanded an Indian troopship a full grown tiger was embarked for passage to England as a present from some Indian prince to the queen. It was a magnificent animal, and for many years afterward was exhibited at the zoological gardens. One morning, about 5:30, the captain was awakened by a messenger, who said, "Please sir, the tiger has broken loose!" His reply was, "Lock my cabin door, and call me when he's in his cage again." It appears that in cleaning the cage, the men being then washing decks, the door of the cage had been unfastened and the beast had escaped, causing a regular stampede, the bluejackets for ward running up the rigging and the soldiers taking to the hammock nettings and the hurricane deck. The tiger ran aft; the men had not heard of its escape and were throwing buckets of water about. The scene appeared to puzzle the tiger. At any rate, an old quartermaster realized the situation, and taking his lantern flashed it full in the face of the tiger. He then took the animal by the scruff of the neck, ran it forward to its cage and slammed and fastened the door in a jiffy.

Here is another anecdote of a real pet, this time in the same ship. There are several officers now alive who can vouch for the truth of this story. The first lieutenant had a very jolly little monkey, quite a general favorite. One evening, just before dinner, on a guest night, the ship being in harbor, the first lieutenant went into his cabin with the monkey, and, opening a box of very choice Havana cigars rather hastily, by accident smashed two of them—the parts of which he threw overboard out of his cabin port. Then, filling his cigar case, as dinner was already on the table, he left the box on the table and hurried to mess.

It had been the custom for his monkey to follow him and wait by the table for a morsel of food now and again. This evening, after some little time had elapsed, and the monkey did not appear, his owner, excusing himself for a minute, ran back to his cabin to see what his pet was doing, knowing besides, having a strong imitative trait of character, it was generally up to some mischief or other. Alas, he was too late! The monkey had only too well imitated his master, for as the first lieutenant entered the cabin, he was just in time to see the last of his cherished weeds taken out of the box and thrown out of the port overboard.

Bitter Jerrold.
Among the sayings attributed to Douglas Jerrold is a very bitter one he applied to Mark Lemon, then editor of Punch. Lemon was deeply attached to Dickens and showed it in a very open fashion, which perhaps aroused the great satirist's jealousy. At all events, as Jerrold was walking out one day with Lemon and another friend, and Dickens with several more behind them, Lemon suddenly dropped away and turned back. "What has become of Punch?" asked Jerrold's companion. "Did you not hear Dickens whistle?" was the cynical reply. "Dickens pays the dog tax for Lemon."

This section only got a light flurry of the snow predicted for last night, but a full portion of the cold wave has been in evidence today.

Too Much For Him.

A gentleman remarked today that he didn't like one item in the REFLECTOR of Friday—the weather report. Some things, however, have to be taken just as you find them, one of which is the weather.

Tobacco Beds.

Some of the farmers are getting to work early on their tobacco beds for the next crop. J. S. Fornes tells us that he, H. F. Keel and Alfred Stocks sowed their beds on Thursday, 2nd. This is the first we have heard reported.

Laid To Rest.

The remains of Mr. Charles Rountree, who died in Charlotte Thursday night reached here on Friday evening's train accompanied by his widow and his son, Mr. C. D. Rountree. The burial took place this afternoon at the family graveyard near his old home, two miles from town. Services were conducted by Rev. C. M. Billings. The pall bearers were Messrs. E. M. Pace, W. M. King, H. A. Sutton, J. R. Moye, E. A. Moye, O. L. Joyner, G. F. Evans, Charles Skinner and Ola Forbes.

HAPPY NEW YEAR.

That is the Greeting These Extend Each Other.

Dr. C. J. O'Hagan went to Weldon today.

W. S. Bernard went to Newbern, Friday night.

Charlie O'Hagan returned to Horner School at Oxford today.

Miss Myra Skinner left today for Raleigh and from there will return to school at Salem.

Rev. J. W. MacNamara will preach at Mt. Pleasant church, four miles from Greenville, tomorrow.

Miss Bettie Warrens' school will open Monday in Mrs. Whichards' school building on Pitt street.

Miss Pearl Hornady, of Willow Green and Miss Emma Parker, from Ormonds, are the guests of Mrs. B. F. Sugg.

Mrs. Ellen Lee and little son Lawrence, of Raleigh, who have been visiting Mrs. R. W. King, returned home today.

BOTH ARMS BROKEN.

(Special to the Reflector.)

AYDEN, N. C., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Susan Harrington, aged 75 years, wife of the late John Harrington and mother of the Postmaster at this place, while crossing the yard, yesterday afternoon, fell and broke both her arms just above the wrists. Dr. Joe Dixon set the broken limbs and she is now resting quietly.

Bather Disagreeable.

The ladies had a cold reception in the waiting room at the depot this morning without any fire. Agent Moore says his supply of wood is out, and though he had telegraphed for more it has not been sent yet.

Begin Right.

If among your new year resolutions was one to be more punctual at Sunday School and church this year, don't be absent from your pew on the first Sunday. If you have not made such a resolution this evening is a good time to do so.

A Contrast.

About the warmest place we found this morning was in Gorman's tobacco factory. He had the steam turned on which made the interior of the building feel like summer time, while the moisture from the tobacco formed in great icicles that hung on the outside of the windows.

Thick Darkness.

A night was never darker (save the one in Egypt) than the early hours of Friday, night and there wasn't a street lamp anywhere to give a ray of light. People who had to be out tumbled over each other, run on fences, fell in ditches, butted against trees, and got mixed up generally. It was a bad time. Several just had to wait for the moon to rise so they could see how to get home.

Church Services

Baptist church.—Sunday-school at 9:30 A. M.

Presbyterian church.—Sunday-school at 9:30 A. M. Preaching at 11 A. M. and 7 P. M. by Rev. R. W. Hines.

A Close Call

Hotel Macon gave the town another scare, this afternoon, by catching on fire on the roof from a burning chimney. Both fire companies and many citizens responded promptly to the alarm and the fire was extinguished before any damage was done. Had the fire once got a hold, with the high wind blowing at the time, there is no telling where it could have been stopped. It makes a body shudder to think what the result might have been. Just here let us repeat what has been said many times before—Greenville needs water.

Dancing School.

Will commence Monday evening, at 8:30 o'clock, at Germania Hall, for gentlemen. All wishing to take lessons be present at that time.

A class for children will commence on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock
