OAKLEY ITEMS.

OAKLEY, N. C. Feb. 3, 1896.

Elder J. L. Ross was the guest of W. H. Williams Wednesday.

S. R. Ross, near here, sent a young man, Ed Ross, for his mail Monday, and on his return happened to a bad accident. The horse became unmanageable and ran away and on turning a short bend in the road he slipped and fell and broke the boy's collar bone and otherwise bruised him. Dr. Nelson was called and dressed the wounds and the boy is doing well.

Miss Susan Jenkins was visiting relatives near Robersonville last week.

Mrs. Sallie Bryan, wife of Guilford Bryan near here, died Saturday evening after a long illness with consumption. The bereaved husband and relatives have our sympathy in their sorrow.

BETHEL ITEMS.

BETHEL, N. C., February 3rd.—J. H. Blount and C. M. Bernard passed through town Sunday.

Dr. Gregory, of Camden County, spent Saturday and Sunday here.

J. R. Bell, of Mount Olive, who lived here in 1894, spent Saturday and Sunday here.

Rev. J. W. Powell, of Rocky Mount filled his regular appointment at the Baptist church Sunday morning and night and preached excellent sermons.

G. W. Blount, of Williamston, spent Sunday in town.

H. W. A. Martin has moved his family to town and will occupy the J. L. Britton house on Main street.

Walter Dawson, of Conetoe, is in town today.

The Board of Supervisors of Bethel Township were in session here Saturday evening.

Financial Statement of the Atlanta Exposition.

According to the reports of the Finance Committee the receipts of the company has been $1,211,560.30 while the total expenditures reach $1,201,366.44. This leaves a deficit of $29,806.31. This amount however does not include the loss sustained by stockholders, bondholders and the railroads. It is the amount that will be lost by the holders of the floating claims.

According to the reports of the treasurer the the company was unable to pay $54,000 of its income bonds and will be unable to pay about 40 per cent of its issue of $100,000 of mortgage bonds.

The company received $238,000 in subscriptions from the city and citizens of Atlanta for which stock was issued. This will be a total loss as there will be no funds with which to pay the amount.

This statement shows that Atlanta invested $361,806.41 in the exposition. Atlanta Journal.

Fooled Her That Time.

A story is told of a Rhode Island woman whose husband is a chronic "joiner." He belongs to so many secret societies that he is away from home nearly every night until nearly 12 o'clock. This was very unpleasant for his wife, and she waited one night till he came home before she went to bed. She waited until 11 o'clock and no familiar footstep was heard on the gravel walk. She paced up and down the hallway like a sentinel on guard. The clock struck 12, and still no husband appeared. She waited another hour and then with some talk to herself about divorce proceedings, she went to the bed chamber and there she saw her husband peacefully sleeping the sleep of the just, and then she remembered that he had not gone to the lodge meeting, but stayed at home on account of a headache and so went to bed at 8:30.

A Bit of Human Nature.

A crutch supported him as he stood on the rear platform of a street car. His cheeks were hollow, and a hacking cough escaped him at times. Just in front stood a hale young fellow smoking. The fumes seemed to aggravate the cough. Finally the invalid nudged the offender and grumbled:

"Young man, you oughtn't to smoke."

The young man puffed violently and then retorted, "Whose business is it anyway—yours or mine?"

There was no response, but a feeble "hack, hack!" from the sufferer. Once again it sounded, and then the smoker wheeled about. "Oh, I beg pardon!" as he surveyed for the first time his invalid fellow passenger. "Certainly!" and he threw the cigarette into the street."

For a dozen blocks the car jingled on in silence; then the whilom smoker swung off. As he started for the curb the invalid peered out and shouted in conciliatory voice, "Good night, young man!"

"Good night, pop!" was the cheery response, and the "hack, hack!" was lost in the darkness.—New York Mail and Express.

Why the Editor Was Ill.

"If anybody inquires for me," said the editor feebly, "you can say I have gone into the hospital."

After he had tottered out of the office they looked on his desk and saw that he had just opened a letter from "Old Subscriber" containing these questions:

"Which is correct, 'Tomorrow is Friday,' or 'Tomorrow will be Friday?'"

"What were the causes that led to the Franco-Prussian war?"

"Will you please give in as brief outline as possible a history of government by cabinets up to the present date?"—Pearson's Weekly.

The Shortest.

The bard of the Visalia Delta says the following is the shortest poem in the English language:

Gladys
Sad is.

To which we reply:

Oh,
No.

—Stockton (Cal.) Mail.

Youth is not the age of pleasure. We then expect too much, and we are, therefore, exposed to daily disappointments and mortifications. When we are a little older and have brought down our wishes to our experience, then we become calm and begin to enjoy ourselves.—Lord Liverpool.

Gold pens are now usually tipped with iridium. The bits of this metal are laid in notches at the point of the pen, then fastened on with flux, being afterward ground and polished for use.

Germany stands next to Great Britain in the number of pensioners, there being 588 soldiers of the civil war who regularly draw their pensions from the United States government.

In 1890 the United States manufactured 13 per cent more iron than did England, while in steel our manufacture exceeds hers by about 25 per cent.

The toilet requisites of the sultan, including rouge and enamel for the ladies of the harem and jewelry, cost $2,000,000 a year.

The negroes of New York are trying to raise $7,000 to erect a monument to Fred Douglas. Commenting on this, the Marion Record says: "We would suggest that the committee send a copy of their letter to every member of the last Legislature (?) that voted for the Fred Douglas memorial, asking them to contribute, and as an inducement we think that they might put every man's name that could contribute a certain amount on the parchment, so that their deeds might be handed to posterity on enduring brass."

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 5TH, 1896.

It looks like allowing those Kinston incendiaries to leave the State rather than serve a term in the penitentiary is turning loose a bad set of men on some other community. If they were guilty they should have been punished. Sending them to another State is no punishment.

The United States Congress at Washington presents a spectacle not very promising for financial relief. The House passes a bill to issue bonds. It is sent to the Senate. That body amends it and makes a free coinage of silver bill. This when returned to the House will be changed back to a bond bill and so on ad infinitum. The Senate is playing politics to catch the vote of the silver States. The House considers it good politics at present to look out for the gold-bugs and so their work becomes one of politics and not statesmanship and nothing whatever need be expected from this body.

Benjamin Folger, a nephew of the late Charles Folger, who was Secretary of the Treasury under Arthur's administration, died in the poor house at Memphis, Tenn., last Saturday, 60 years of age. He was at one time one of the most prominent bankers and financiers in the country, but he took to speculation a few years ago and his fortune speedily disappeared. He went from bad to worse until he finally landed in the poor house. Ten years or more ago he was recognized as the "Beau Brummell" of Memphis society and was the king in all social affairs.

It Worked.

"De Witt, the squib writer on the Twinkle did a bright thing the other day."
"How was that?"
"He got the editor of a rival paper to write a letter to his paper asking for his name, and offering him ten dollars a week more than he got from the Twinkle."
"Well?"
"well, you see, it was a bluff at a raise in his salary to that figure."
"Did it work?"
"Did it? Why, I should say it did! As soon as the editor of the Twinkle read the letter he called De Witt to his office. 'De Witt' said he, 'I have a letter here that affords me great pleasure. For a long time I have thought I didn't fully appreciate your talents, and yet I was loath to turn you out into the cold world. Now the difficulty is removed. Here's a man who offers to pay you ten dollars a week more than you get here, and I have but to add my blessings. Go, my dear fellow, and take the job.'" - Washington Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C. POST BREVITIES.

It is barely possible that some of the members of the Ohio Legislature are not as black as they are indicted, but all of the evidence tends to show that they are.

Mr. Tillman's threat of an armed force moving on Washington, is a base plagiarism from Col. Watterson's attempt to solve the Presidential controversy of 1876.

The Cuban cause is to be congratulated on the fact that Field Marshal Halstead is not going down there in an advisory capacity.

Russia denies that deal with Turkey, but at the same time maintains a tight grip on her carving knife.

Doubtless an early adjournment would materially assist Mr. Reed's boom, but there are a number of booms stabled in the Senate.

Now that it is assured that Mr. Foraker is to be one of the Ohio delegates to St. Louis care should be taken to provide him with a room near the fire escape.

The Spanish press censors are very liberal with their (applause) marks.

It appears that the McKinley enthusiasm of the Illinois Republicans was confined to the press dispatches.

It looks as if John L. Sullivan's last drunk is a sine die affair.

It is said that Mr. Harrison is unable to fix his mind on his law business. Very likely the approaching New York and St. Louis events are somewhat distracting.

The South Carolina Legislature is disposed to wallow in Tillmanism.

In case Dan Stuart succeeds in pulling off that carnival he might be a good man to tackle the St. Paul.

The old Venezuelan maps are turning up with the same frequency with which the oldest Mason dies.

Mr. Tillman says he has a brick in his pocket for Mr. Hill. We would advise him to keep it there.

Our National Honor.

It is highly desirable, should war ensue, that all the country stand together. Our national honor is worth more, from a Christian standpoint, than the sentimentalism which, in the name of peace, will suffer another nation to take steps which, whether they touch our confines or not, cannot be interpreted other than as indicative that they will be reached in due time. For one, we believe in the Monroe doctrine. We know a little trouble now, in demonstrating it as a principle of a great people, will save a great war later.—Biblical Recorder.

Pension Money Coming South.

The time may not be distant when a third, and perhaps, half, of the pension money paid out by the government will be distributed in the South. The movement of the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, particularly of those who receive pensions, to the Southern States is now so large as to attract general attention, and it is steadily growing in volume.

The reason of this is that the old soldiers of the North suffer from the effects of wounds received, or diseases contracted, in the war, and are anxious to pass their declining years in a milder climate. The long and severe Northern winters are thinning their ranks rapidly. They believe they would live longer and would have better health in the South. That is why so many of them are settling in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

It would be a remarkable condition of affairs if the greater part of the annual pension disbursement should be distributed in the South before the end of this century, now pretty close at hand. Yet things more remarkable than this have happened.—Savannah News.

A Horrid Sample.

A commercial traveler whom I know carries perhaps the most unique "sample" in the drumming profession. It is nothing less than a human body, three years old, an example of the efficacy of a certain embalming fluid. For three years this mummy has been transported on the railroad as a sample case would be, and, indeed, there is no outward sign which would indicate the uncanny nature of its contents. In this instance the longer the body is preserved the more of an advertisement it is for the fluid in the veins of the "stiff." The box is zinc lined, and does not exceed the limits of the railroad excess baggage rule in weight.—Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A New Southern Amusement.

The old Southern "cake walk" is becoming a thing of the past in some parts of the South. In its stead there is now a dance, which is known as the "rag."

The dancers form a square in the centre of the dance hall, each standing separately, a man and a woman alternately.

Then there is a caller who stands in the middle of the floor. "Join hands!" he yells. There is a shuffle of the feet and the gentlemen "sasha," or dance across the room, and join hands with the ladies. Both shuffle their feet, when presently the caller yells at the top of his voice, everybody 'rag.'

Dancing continues for some time, and when all is over the best "ragging" couple are awarded the cake. The "rag" is a dance very similar to the "old Virginia reel," but there is more shuffling of the feet and it is of longer duration.—New York Herald.

IF YOU HAD A LOAD OF WOOD TO SELL

and told every man you met that you had a load of wood to sell, and every man you met would in turn tell every man he met that you had a load of wood to sell and every man you met would in turn tell every man he met that you had a load of wood to sell, it would, in course of time, become pretty well circulated that you had a load of wood to sell; but why not cut it short—not the wood, but the method—and place a good ad in a good newspaper and tell everybody at once. "Delays are dangerous," and a good newspaper would start in where the last man left off and keep on telling everybody that you had a load of wood to sell; or anything else. Vault Completed.

Gone to the Penitentiary.

Today Uriah Bell, Sherrill Bell, William Brantley and David Credle, the murderers of J. B. Bonner, were taken from Washington to the State prison at Raleigh. So it seems that the notice of appeal given by counsel for the defendants was only a big "blow out." They had better be thankful that their clients escaped the gallows.

Lecture Friday Night.

Rev. J. F. Betts, of Richmond, Va. who has recently returned from Palestine, will arrive in Greenville next Friday morning and give his lecture "Sights and Scenes in Europe" in the Baptist church that night. The proceeds of the lecture will go to the Ladies Aid Society of this church. His lecture is illustrated. The pictures are thrown on a seamless canvass 10x12 feet with Marey's Scioption. The entertainment will be interspersed with vocal music, solos and duets in which Mr. Betts will be assisted by his sister, Mrs. Thomas, late of Boston Conservatory of Music. Both are gifted in song and Mrs. Thomas especially has received the highest encomiums, the Boston Herald saying "she is quite an artist in her line." This entertainment promises to be of a very high order and the people of Greenville are to be congratulated that they will have an opportunity to hear it. Everybody ought to be present, especially as the price of admission has been fixed at the low rate of 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children under twelve years of age.

The notable days in February are St. Valentine's, Washington's birthday, and the first anniversary of the day upon which a rump body, called a Legislature dishonored North Carolina by adjourning in honor of the death of a negro after it had previously refused to adjourn on the birthday of Robert E. Lee.

If they continue to reduce the magazines in price and to add popular features to them, they'll all be first-class daily newspapers after awhile.

A Serious Occasion.

The undertaker in a New England town was requested not long ago, to send to the house of one of the summer residents a small coffin in which the children of the family were to bury a pet cat.

The light pine box was given to a darkey boy, employed by the undertaker, to carry to its destination. He took it carefully under his arm, and walked slowly down the village street with a sense of the importance of the occasion plainly to be seen on his small black face. On his way he had to pass a group of children, one of whom called out to him:

"Say, 'Gustus, what are you carrying under your arm?"

"Don't interrupt' me, chillun," said the youthful Augustus, turning a reproachful gaze on the speaker and his companions: "don't you see I's a funeral?"
