WHY THE WEDDING WAITS.

FRANK L. STANTON.

I sorter thought I'd speak my mind next time I went to see Maria, but—they'll never make an orator o' me!
For every time I struck a word I'd sorter choke an' cough,
An' that's why I can't tell you when the weddin's comin' off!
I looked at her a-settin' by the fire—blazin' bright—
Her cheeks like two red roses an' her eyes like lakes o' light,
An' I think I said 'twas snowin'—kinder keerness like an' free,
An' that's why I can't tell you when the weddin' is to be!
The quiet—it got painful; you could hear a feather fall;
We was 'bout as interestin' as the shades on the wall;
But at last I said: "Maria!" an' she turned an' looked at me,
An' that's why I can't tell you when the weddin' is to be!
I'm good at campaign speeches, an' I always win my race;
Kin speak my mind in meetin' an' sing "Amazin' Grace!"
But when Maria's by my side I lose my pedigree.
An' that's why I can't tell you when the weddin' is to be!
If women didn't look so sweet, an' didn't keep so still,
P'raps 'twould come as easy as rollin' down a hill;
But when I say: "Maria!" she's shore to look at me.
An, that's why I can't tell you when the weddin' is to be!

OFFICE OF THE
EQUITABLE NATIONAL BANK,
CINCINNATI, Jan. 9, 1894.

Hon. John M. Pattison, President
Union Central Life Insurance Co.,
Cincinnati, O.

DEAR SIR:—I take pleasure in acknowledging receipt this day through E. W. Jewell, your General Agent in this city, of $10,327.68, in payment of policy No. 9,928 in your company.

I wish to express to you my hearty thanks. My policy was for $10,000.00 and on your Life Rate Endowment Plan I paid you but the Ordinary Life Premium, just the same as I would have paid any of the other leading companies for a policy to be paid only at death, and yet your profits have been so large that in a little over 22 years it has matured for an amount over the $10,000, and thus I have an Endowment Policy at Ordinary Life Rates.

I am greatly pleased at my good fortune. No other company known to me gives such a contract or secures such results. I carry policies in a number of the leading companies, but I have none whose results compare with this.

I am glad that my own city of Cincinnati is the home of such an institution as the Union Central Life Insurance Company, and as a citizen I am proud of it. I am.

Yours respectfully,
GEORGE FISHER.

The policy contracts of the Union Central Life Insurance company are attracting a great deal of attention as well as the unequalled results for the insured arising from our interest rate, which is the largest of any company, and from our death rate, which is the smallest of any company.

Write for explanation for a policy on your life, stating age.

OUTRAGEOUS ASSAULT.

Knocked Down and Beaten Into Insensibility.

Through a letter to the REFLECTOR from Winterville we learn of an outrageous assault upon Elder Fred McLawhorn on Saturday night. After he had retired somebody knocked at his door. He got up and upon opening the door was knocked down and dragged out into the yard where he was beaten into insensibility. The letter gave no further particulars.

From another source we hear that Mr. McLawhorn while speaking of the assault on Sunday, said he did not know who the assailant was or whether more than one assaulted him. The first blow at the door stunned him, and when he regained consciousness he was on his bed and a fire had been kindled in the fire-place. He did not know how he got on the bed or who made the fire. Mrs. McLawhorn was away from home visiting a daughter at the time, and two other daughters were asleep in another part of the house but were not aroused by the disturbance and knew nothing of it until next morning. Our informant said Mr. McLawhorn also stated that he had had no trouble with any one to provoke such an assault, unless it was some words he had with a hand on his farm, Saturday evening, because the hand was cruelly kicking a horse.

This was a dastardly crime, calling a citizen from his bed in the dead hours of night and beating him into unconsciousness. If caught the assailants should be punished severely. Pitt county ought to have some blood hounds to run down criminals of this character.

Elder McLawhorn is a minister of the Free Will Baptist church, and was one of the Representatives from this county in the Legislature of 1893.

DON'T BE TARDY.

Danger in Being Too Slow to Act on Important Matters.

It becomes more evident everyday that Greenville should have a Board of Trade. In last week's issues of the REFLECTOR there were enough enterprises suggested to give the town a great forward impetus if there was the proper effort to take hold of them and push them to completion. There should be a Board of Trade to take such matters in hand and see that the necessary inducements are held out to capitalists who can be secured to come here. These things are worth giving attention to and the town is losing opportunities by delay. A $300,000 cotton factory and large tobacco stemmeries are not enterprises that can be picked up any day, and while there is a chance of securing them the opportunity should be embraced. Can't the business men leave their individual work long enough to give a few hours attention to such matters as will do so much for the general advancement of the town?

Wanted.

The other day I saw in a newspaper a notice which I think ought to be read with care, and then tucked away in the memory. Here it is.

"Wanted—In one hundred thousand households in America, a willing, sunny daughter who will not fret when asked to wipe the dishes, or sigh when requested to take care of the baby; a daughter whose chief delight it is to smooth away her mother's wrinkles, and who is quite as willing to lighten her father's cares as his pocket; a girl who thinks her brother quite as fine a fellow as some other girl's brother. Constant love, high esteem, and more honored place in the home guaranteed. Employment assured to all qualified applicants. Address, Mother, Home office."—Exchange.

He Sneezed a Bullet.

Colonel Sidney Cooke, of Herkington, Kan., one of the managers of the National Soldiers' Home, tells of a peculiar experience in the army during the civil war. At the outbreak of the war he was a stripping New England boy, with strength and vitality which stood him well during his army life.

After taking part in several engagements Colonel Cooke was shot in the head and left on the battlefield as dead. The Federals retreated from the field and the Confederates soon occupied it. Col Cooke, who was then a private, was aroused to consciousness by some one tugging at his boots. The boots were very fine and the pride of his boyish heart, having been given to him by the dear ones at home.

"Ain't you dead, Yank?" asked the Confederate, as he ceased tugging to remove the boots from the feet of the wounded boy.

On being assured that Cooke was not dead, a compromise was effected. The Confederate brought the Union soldier some water and carried him to a Confederate surgeon. In return he secured the coveted boots.

Cooke had a long convalescence, and finally recovered sufficiently to be sent to Andersonville prison where he suffered, in addition to the privations of prison life, great pain from his wound. This suffering continued even after his release and his discharge from the army at the close of the war.

One day, long after the war was over, Col. Cooke, who had settled in Kansas, was seized with a violent spell of sneezing. Just in the midst of it the bullet was expelled from his nose.—Chicago Record.

An Ostrich's Stomach.

One of the flock of ostriches owned by the Barnum & Bailey Show and kept in the Central Park Zoo died a few days ago. To ascertain the cause of death a post mortem examination was made by J. Rowley, the taxidermist of the museum of Natural History. In the bird's stomach were found these articles: One wooden clothes pin, two bottoms of beer bottles, a mouth harmonica five inches long by two inches wide, a metal skate key, the ferrule of an umbrella, with a piece of the handle about four inches long, an ordinary brass door key five inches long, a black horn comb, a silk handkerchief with the initial "M," two pieces of coal about an inch thick, and three stones about an inch thick.

Death was not caused by any of these nor by indigestion, but by tuberculosis.

Was Willing to Wait.

The last day of a negro criminal in Texas had come. He was awakened and asked what he would have for breakfast, and told that he could have anything he liked.

"Don, boss, I reckon I'll take a watermelon."

"Watermelons are not ripe yet."

"Nebber mind, boss, I kin wait."—Texas Sifter.

THE BRAVEST BATTLE.

The bravest battle that ever was fought!
 Shall I tell you where and when?
 On the world's maps you'll find it not;
 'Twas fought by the mothers of men.

Nay, not with cannon, or battle shot,
 With sword or nobler pen;
 Nay, not with eloquent word or thought,
 From mouths of wonderful men.

But deep in a welled-up woman's heart—
 Of woman that would not yield,
 But bravely, silently, bore her part—
 Lo! there is that battlefield.

No marshaling troop, no bivouac song;
 No banner to gleam and wave;
 But, oh! these battles, they last so long—
 From babyhood to the grave!

Yet, faithfully still as a bridge of stars,
 She fights in her walled up town—
 Fights on and on in the endless wars,
 Then silent, unseen—goes down.

O ye with banners and battle shot,
 And soldiers to shout and praise,
 I tell you the kingliest victories fought
 Were fought in these silent ways.

O spotless woman in a world of shame!
 With splendid and silent scorn,
 Go back to God as white as you came,
 The kingliest warrior born!

Swallowed a Mouse.

The other day at Archdale, not far from High Point, a party of several young men were congregated, examining a mouse which had been caught in a trap.

It was a fine little fellow and the boys were speculating on mice as food.

One young man said he would not mind eating a mouse or even a rat. He was gayed considerably about it and finally got red in the face and said he could even swallow the mouse alive and would do it for a wager. Finally two dollars was put up if he would perform the feat. No sooner said than done and the young fellow took the mouse in both hands, placed it to his mouth, liberated it and away it went right down his throat.

His eyes bulged outward for a moment but soon he grew calm and the last heard of him he was sitting patiently with a mouse trap baited with cheese held in front of his mouth, trying to induce the little varmint to return but at last accounts it had not done so.—Greensboro Record.

A Bowery Waiter's Amendment.

A slim young man with a high standing collar and straw-colored mackintosh hurried into a Bowery restaurant the other evening. As the waiter with furled shirt sleeves threw his towel down on the table and gave it a wipe, the slim young man jumped.

"What'll yer have?" asked the waiter.

"A piece of apple pie and a cup of coffee, and hurry up," said the young man firmly.

"Say, look a here, young feller," said the waiter, shaking his finger at the guest, "I'll git yer de pie and I'll git yer de coffee, but I'll be hanged if I'll hurry up," and the big fellow slouched off toward the kitchen, leaving the young man transfixed.

"One in de dark and Eve's gift to Adam on a limited freight fer a Cholley," was the order he yelled into the kitchen.

Advertising.

The ability of a farmer who planted seed and then left it to take care of itself would be questioned. Just so with advertising. This is the seed merchants plant, and, if not rightly taken care of a fruitful harvest ought not to be expected. To get good results from advertising you must help it along. This is the grease put on the squeaky wheels of your wagon to help it up the hill. Simply oiling the wheels though will not start it going nor keep it running. It requires pushing and then the grease will make it move and lively, too, if the requisite amount of push be there. It will have to be a case of pushing and pulling if you want to get the wagon to the top of the hill.—Philadelphia

Absolute Punctuality.

Some two months ago a boy who asked for employment in a local manufactory was told to come again when he was eleven years of age, as he was at that time under the proper age.

Last Tuesday morning the manager found him coming into the works at about 7.20 and said to him:

"Oh, so you're coming to make a start, eh?"

"Yes, sir," answered the youngster. "Well, but look here, sonny," remarked the man, "why didn't you come at 6 o'clock?—that's the time we begin here."

"Yes, I know that, sir," replied the lad, "but you told me not to come again till I were full up eleven, and I wasn't eleven till sixteen minutes past seven!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Voice of Experience.

We are not willing to believe that the farmers of the South will be so blind to the plain suggestions of their experience this year. They are in a distinctly better condition than they were a year ago. The explanation of this fact may be given in one sentence. It is because they planted less cotton and raised more provisions. They can improve their condition still further next year by simply keeping in the middle of the road on which they have been moving so smoothly this year. Such a crop of cotton as the South raised last year means five cent cotton or less; such a cotton crop as the South produced this year means eight-cent cotton or better. The one represents nothing as the result of the farmers' toil, and possibly a loss; the other means a good profit.—Atlanta Journal.

HOW TURKISH WOMEN DRESS.

Wearing Neither Corset Nor Stockings, They Have Curious Articles of Attire.

In not a single respect is a Turkish lady's attire similar to that worn by the women of the occident. Amazingly little is known, in fact, about the wardrobe of the women of the harem, and the average American woman has little idea regarding it, save that all Turkish women wear trousers and a veil.

The two most interesting and important points are that the Turkish woman wears no corsets and no stockings. She has nothing whatever in the place of corsets, but instead of stockings knitted woolen socks. Often these are open-worked very skillfully, and have a mixture of silk threads. Some are elaborately embroidered in colors and in gold.

The very first garment the woman of the orient puts on is a long-sleeved chemise of Broussa crepe gauze. This is made exactly like the seamless holy coat of Treves, and its neck is cut out and hemmed in a close roll.

The trousers are made most often of chintz or cretonne, and are vivid and startling in color. They are put on immediately after the chemise, and are about four inches longer than the leg. They are fastened by a drawing-string at the waist, tied in front, and they hang down over the ankles.

The entarri, a garment taking the place of the trained skirts of the west, comes next. It is of cotton, wool, silk or satin, perhaps of rich brocade, perhaps of a brilliant tint, but of whatever material it may be made it is bright and gay. It consists of four breadths.

Next in order come the sash and the jacket, the latter being worn only in warm weather. It is shaped like what we call an Eton jacket, and buttoned to the waist line with small jewels or gold buttons. The sleeves are sometimes elbow sleeves, always loose and often left flowing below the elbow. The curious thing about this jacket is that while it is well fitted in the back, all the portion that should cover the breast is cut away, leaving the entire bust exposed.

While the other portions of the costume worn by Turkish women are wonderfully picturesque, the most pride of all is taken in this jacket. Velvet, silk or satin are the materials used for it. The wives of the richest Mohammedans have it embroidered with seed pearls, turquoise or coral, and always with gold and silver threads.

Exceedingly important, too, really the most important article in this attire, is the yashmak, or Turkish veil. The Turkish woman wears no hat, but she nevertheless is not debarred from the usual feminine prerogative, for it is invariably in order for her to query whether her yashmak is on straight. In fact, a woman shows whether she has style or not by the way she wears this veil. It is a law of the prophet that Mohammedan women shall never be without it when outside of their homes; and this law is rigidly adhered to.

One valuable use the veil has. It etherializes by its folds the entire face, a very necessary thing when the feminine custom of painting the whole countenance is taken into consideration. Without her veil the Turkish woman looks rather ghastly when she is in full regalia. Her eyebrows are blackened with kohl, her lips are crimsoned, her cheeks are dyed carmine and the rest of her face is whitened with arsenic paste or some similar compound.—N. Y. World.

A COZY RECESS.

An Odd Corner in the Wall Can Be Fitted Up Attractively.

A recess in the wall, or a jog, as it is frequently called, can be tastefully fitted up as a wall bookcase with but little trouble. If the walls of the room are papered the jog will probably be papered, too. But if the paper shows an aggressive pattern it will not serve well as a background for the books and ornaments, and the jog should, in such cases, be papered with a plain paper of suitable coloring. A flock paper, which will look like a velvet lining, will be preferable, and the color should be such as to harmonize well with the wall color. Maroon and golden olive make good backgrounds for books. If the jog runs all the way up to the ceiling, have a panel of lattice in squares let in at the top, and under this set a pole in sockets, secured to side pieces of wood nailed up for the purpose of securing the lattice transom.

This pole might be a one-inch brass pole, from which to suspend curtains before the shelves. A really elegant appearance will be given to the roof, if the lattice is nicely made and the curtains are of good color and design. If the room shows walls covered with paper of a pronounced pattern and coloring the lattice might be of mahogany color and the curtains of perfectly plain material. If the room has walls of a single color the curtains may show either a set figure at intervals or else an all-over figure, but the colors should be quiet and subdued.

The shelves of the impromptu bookcase may be simple pine or some other wood that can be stained by rubbing in thin oil paint of the desired color. If the shelves are not needed for books some may be utilized for the keeping and displaying of bric-a-brac. In a bedroom the jog may be turned into a clothes press with shelves or into a wardrobe or closet.—St. Louis Republic.

The Schoolboy and the Inspector.

In an Edinburgh school the other day an inspector, wishing to test the knowledge of a class in fractions, asked one boy whether he would rather take a sixth or a seventh part of an orange if he got his choice. The boy promptly replied that he would take the seventh. At this the inspector explained at length to the class that the boy who would choose the smaller part, as this boy had done, because it looked the larger fraction was very foolish; but the laugh was on the other side when the chirping voice of another urchin broke in in remonstrance: "Please, sir, but that boy disna like oranges!"—Westminster Gazette.

GET A GOOD SAFE.

GREENVILLE, N. C., Feb. 26th, 1896.
J. L. SUGG, Agent Victor Safe Co.,
Greenville, N. C.

DEAR SIR:—I am pleased to say that the Victor Safe you sold me some five or six years ago preserved in tact all its contents in the late fire in Greenville on the 16th inst. The safe stood at a point in my office in the Opera House block that must have been one of the hottest parts in the great conflagration. It contained many papers and other things of value. When it was taken out of the ruins and opened, some twelve hours after the fire, everything in it was found to be safely preserved and in good condition. I cheerfully make this statement of facts in recognition of the valuable service rendered me by this safe and you are at liberty to make such use of it as you may see proper.

THOS. J. JARVIS.

The Victor Safe is made in all sizes, convenient for home, farm, office or general business use. Every Safe sold with a guarantee to be fire proof. Prices range from $15 up.

They Better Fish On Land.

Several of the tobacco boys went to a fish fry up at Goff Landing, Saturday afternoon. Litt Maddux was the Jonah who got in water again, and the boys say there were some far-reaching groans and lamentations until he was pulled out. Pat Foley got in up to waist after Litt.

IN THE REFLECTOR.

R. Hyman left this morning for Scotland Neck.

E. O. McGowan went to Rocky Mount to-day.

W. S. Rawls was out to-day after a week's confinement with grip.

Hughes Mayo, of Parmele, was here Saturday to see his best girl.

L. C. Bagwell, of Raleigh, spent Sunday with his brother, Dr. W. H. Bagwell.

Mrs. Georgia Pearce and little Blount returned Saturday evening from Baltimore.

Ex-Treasurer John Flanagan has been kept at home with rheumatism for several days, but is now getting out again.

Mrs. M. A. Jarvis has decided to rebuild her three stores that were burned. The lot is being cleared up and the contract will be let at once.

Smoke the best—the Golden Seal. JESSE W. BROWN.

The Democratic State Executive Committee will meet in Raleigh April 9th at which time the date for holding the State Convention will be named.

Another Capsizing.

Saturday evening Messrs R. W. Ward and C. L. Wilkinson went out to try their skill skimming for shad in the river. When just below the bridge they managed in some way to overturn their boat and both were thrown out. Ward is a good swimmer, and grabbing Wilkinson by the after part of his pants kept him afloat until another boat could go to the rescue.

Badly Scalded.

Saturday evening little Mary Lucy Dupree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dupree, met with a very painful accident. A basin of hot water had been left on a table, and the little girl reaching up to see what was in the basin turned the water over on herself. She was badly scalded about the face and neck. The little girl has suffered intensely but is getting along as well as could be expected.

Leave Them Off.

Now that the rebuilding of the lately burned district is starting in earnest, the REFLECTOR has a suggestion to make to the property owners: Don't let any more of the unsightly wood sheds be placed in front of your buildings. Such sheds mar the looks of the buildings and greatly increase the danger from fire. If the occupants of the buildings must have shade in front let folding awnings be put up.

Roll of Honor.

For the first month of the public school taught at King's Cross Roads, by Miss Bessie Tyson:
