THE EASTER BONNET.

Don't make 'em like they used to— done killed with too much style; Fixed up with birds an' flowers till you'd know 'em half a mile; They all look mighty fancy in the 'big store winders hung, But they're nothin' like the bonnets that they wore when we was young.

How much completer—neater, an' sweeter was the old.

Time: bonnet shadin' rosy cheeks an' ringlets black an' gold.

Plain—with no fixin' on it, with strings o' white or blue; But a kiss beneath that bonnet was as sweet as honey dew!

Don't make 'em like they used to; yet the girls that wear 'em seem Almost as lovely as the girls that made our boyhood's dream; But I almost sigh to see 'em in the big store winders hung, For they're nothing like the bonnets they wore when we was young!

TOBACCO JOTTINGS.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

There are men, a few and very few of them in Greenville to-day, that are still mouthing and quarreling mostly with themselves because there is a tobacco market here and our farmers have seen proper to cut loose from the infernal mortgage system and assert their independence. There is a merchant in this town, one who has seen the time when he carried the largest per cent of the farmers of this county on a mortgage in his overcoat pocket, but he has lost his grip and the time has gone now who has been heard to say within the last few days that he wished that there was not an acre of tobacco planted in the county and that the merchants of Greenville had never been benefitted one cent from the tobacco market, that there was not as much money made to-day by the people of the county and that the merchants of Greenville did not sell as many goods to-day as they did ten or twelve years ago when there was no tobacco planted in Pitt county, and closed by saying that the farmers told him that the tobacco men were the toughest men to deal with of any class in the country and that if he had his way about it he would not plant a stalk this year. Well! Well! Well! the Greenville tobacco market will certainly have to close if this man fails to plant tobacco. He never has sold his crop in Greenville and if he fails to plant this year we will be ruined, of course.

Through the kindness of Messrs. J. B. Cherry & Co., the writer was furnished a comparative estimate of the number of bales of cotton that was grown in Pitt county since 1880, and from that statement (and we believe that this firm have as accurate an estimate as can be found in the county) take the greatest number of bales of cotton grown in any one year and place the price of the cotton at ten cents a pound and the Greenville tobacco market paid out last year as much money for tobacco as was paid for cotton when the greatest number of bales were produced in any one year at the largest average price that cotton has sold for in fifteen years. This statement is not produced here for any other purpose than to give the facts to those who may not know them.

As to whether the merchants have increased their sales they will decide, but it is so plain that there were nearly twice as many goods sold in Greenville in 1895-1896 as was sold ten years ago that a way-faring man though a fool might see it. It is not doubted at all that there may be some men in town who are not selling as many goods as they formerly did, but this is because an era of comparative prosperity has loomed upon the farmers and they are allowed to trade where they please, and the day also has passed when one, two or three men constituted Greenville, and the man who made this remark, whoever he was, must necessarily sooner or later realize that the business of Greenville is not by any means all vested in one man. It is evident that he is very much behind the times as yet or he would not have made the remark and if such is the case then it is only natural for him to think that Greenville is not selling as many goods as formerly because he is not.

That the tobacco market has done a great deal toward developing Greenville no intelligent man will dispute, and that some of this man's property who made this remark has been increased in value in some cases as much as 50 per cent no man that knows will dispute. In conclusion we want to say that ordinarily these things would not have been noticed, but recently this thing has become not only odious but is calculated to do harm and it is only in justice to those engaged in the tobacco business that any attention is paid it.

IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Matter of Interest Over the State.

The North Carolina Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows is called to meet at Goldsboro in May, when the cornerstone of the new main building at the Odd Fellows' Orphanage will be laid.

Near Way Cross, Sampson county, the house of John Johnson (colored), an aged and deaf old negress, was cremated. It seems that she was left alone in charge of the house while the family were away. Nothing but the heart and liver could be found after the fire.

John Francis, sixty-five years old, an inmate of the Cleveland poor house, has fallen heir to $250,000. He is a native of England, and was once employed as a street flagman of the Nickel Plate railroad. Two years ago he was dismissed for inattention to his duties, when he became a city charge and was committed to the infirmary.

Health Lectures to Ladies.

The final Health lecture to ladies will be given to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 in the Court House, topic, "Nervous Women, Cause and Cure." Admission free. Concerning this lecture the Greensboro Record says:

"Miss Blinn's lecture on Friday afternoon had for its subject, "Nerves." She was greeted on this occasion by a very appreciative and enthusiastic audience. There are very few women who do not suffer to some slight extent from "nerves," and a great many more in a pronounced degree. Miss Blinn explained fully and illustrated with charts in the most interesting manner the causes of these nervous derangements, and explained the cure. She is an interesting and delightful speaker, and one would be amply repaid by a visit to her."

Nice Barber Shop.

Herbert Edmunds has moved into his new barber shop, between Hardee's store and the REFLECTOR office, near Five Points. He has put in entire new furniture and has the handsomest shop ever opened in Greenville.

THURSDAY, MARCH 26TH, 1896.

Mexico has an ingenious plan for facilitating verdicts in jury trials. Two supernumerary jurors are drawn to sit near the jury box and listen to the evidence and arguments.

We notice that the Charlotte Observer, the acknowledged leader in the single standard agitation in this State, seems to take considerable pleasure in reprinting anything from a paper with a silver leaning which says that its individual opinion will be held in abeyance to the Democratic National Convention, and whoever that convention nominates for President will receive its support.

A few days ago an old darkey applied to one of our physicians for a remedy for chills and fever for him self and wife. That old remedy—quinine and whiskey—was prescribed.

Moral Rights of Witnesses in Court.

The Beaufort Herald, whose editor is himself a practicing attorney, and knows whereof he speaks, in discussing the present system of court trials and their abuses, speaks as follows upon one line along which attorneys too frequently run to excesses:

"It might, too, help jurors to a better knowledge of facts if witnesses were protected from the insolence and abuse of attorneys. It is a crime against all good morals to force a man or woman upon the stand to give testimony and then allow them to be insulted and vilified by counsel with no protection or redress.

IF WE HAD THE TIME.

If I had the time to find a place And sit me down full face to face With my better half that cannot show In my daily life that rushes so; It may be then I would see my soul Was stumbling still toward the shining goal,

If I had the time to let my heart Speak out and take in my life a part, To look about and stretch a hand To a comrade quartered in no luck land; Ah, God! If I might but just sit still And hear the note of the whippoorwill I think that my wish with God's would rime—

If I had the time to learn from you How much for comfort my word would do; And I told you then of my sudden will To kiss your feet when I did you ill!

If we had the time. —Richard Burton.

Ship Canal, Norfolk to New Berne.

Washington, D. C., March 23.—Secretary Lamont sent to the House today a report of the corps of engineers giving an estimate of the cost of constructing a ship canal from Norfolk, Va., through Dismal Swamp, to New Berne, N. C.

The Consanguinity of It.

The upturned eye is typical of devotion. Wide open eyes are indicative of rashness. The eye is really a self-adjustable telescope.

About the Eye.

The downcast eye has in all ages been typical of modesty. Many eyes supposed to be black are only a deep orange brown. Eyes in rapid and constant motion betoken anxiety, fear or care.

People of melancholic temperament rarely have blue eyes. The eyes of fish and birds are round, with no angles at the corners. The chameleon is almost the only reptile provided with an eyelid.

Whenever blue occurs in the iris it is generally the predominant color.

Eyes with long, sharp corners, indicate great discernment and penetration.

Homer attributed a protruding eye to Juno. He called her the ox-eyed Juno.

In all nocturnal animals the eyes are placed to look forward, as in the case of man.

The eye of the octopus is said to be black, large and as vicious as that of a snake.

The white of the eye showing beneath the iris is indicative of nobility of character.

The eye of the serpent seems to have an expression of intense hatred and malignity.

A bit of gold leaf 1-1/25th part of an inch square can be perceived by the naked eye.

Effect of Corsets.

Some years ago a comic opera was produced in New York city which required that two of the male members of the company should impersonate women. The day before the opening night there was a dress rehearsal, at which they appeared in their feminine attire, and, for the first time in their lives, wearing corsets, which, the costumer declared were laced no tighter than the average woman would wear them.

LEGEND OF A LAKE.

It Tells How a Princess Was Lost with Her Humble Lover.

For some past a series of explorations has been carried on at the bottom of Lake Nemi, an extinct crater in the Alban hills, about 15 miles from Rome. The place is most picturesque, and a little village, with a tall medieval tower and red and yellow roofs, regards its reflection in the limpid waters of the lake far below.

The dwellers along the banks of the little lake, "the nymphs and satyrs of the chestnut alleys," have thrown the poetry of their vivid imaginations around the story of a lost ship and have woven around it a strangely picturesque legend.

This legend in its briefest form relates that once upon a time in the misty ages of the past a king lived here with his one only child, the fair Princess Diana. She was a noted huntress and went daily to the chase, attended by a group of girls, spirits kindred to her own.

One day the fortunes of the chase separated her from her companions and after wandering about, tired and hungry, she saw in the distance a youth engaged in whistling, imitating the birds of the forest, especially the nightingale, whose rippling notes he had caught exactly. He was as handsome as a dream and was a strawberry-gatherer. He gave the princess a basket filled with strawberries and a pretty bunch of cyclamens, which abound in these woods. It may be noted here that Nemi is celebrated for the flavor of its wild strawberries.

Next day the princess separated again from her companions of the chase, but now it was by design and not by accident. She again met the peasant youth with the strawberries and the cyclamens. The wandering away of the princess from her companions became as much a habit with her as meeting with the handsome young man who whistled like a nightingale. These two became fond lovers. The king was informed of the matter and the hunting was stopped and the princess was relegated to a sort of mild imprisonment.

She wandered about in a wooded garden, open on the lake side, but inclosed with great walls on the land side.

A great barge or boat was moored near the land, and when the days were warm she sought the coolness of this retreat. The barge, according to the legend, was an enchanted island, united to the shore by a well-guarded draw-bridge. It was a retreat just suited for lovers and had a sort of resemblance to that dreamed of by Claude Meunotte as a fitting residence for his bride Pauline.

Love laughs at locksmiths and over-passes great obstacles. On a wide, low-spreading plane-tree that hung over the water, the strawberry youth with the nightingale notes walked along the spreading branch and dropped down into the barge. He saw Diana and he was happy.

One evening every one was overcome with the hot sirocco wind. A storm arose. The princess and the strawberry lad were on the barge. The huge ship broke from her moorings. She sprung a leak and began gradually to settle down in the water. The storm raged and the terrible darkness was only broken by the flashes of vivid lightning which illuminated the scene for a brief moment. When the morning broke the lake was smooth and tranquil, but no boat broke the shine of its surface. The barge, with Princess Diana and her lover with the nightingale notes had perished, and no more was ever heard of the hapless pair.—Baltimore Sun.

FIRESIDE FRAGMENTS.

—Almond Cake.—Two cups of powdered sugar, one-half cup butter, one cup of milk, two and one-half cups of flour, one teaspoon of baking powder, the beaten whites of five eggs, one pound of finely-chopped almonds.—Boston Budget.

—Here is the correct way to carve a fish. Run a knife down the back, cutting through the skin. Remove the fins. Then cut into even pieces on one side. When these pieces are served remove the bones and cut the under side in the same way.

—A Good Hominy Pudding.—Two cupfuls of cold boiled hominy, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, three well-beaten eggs and a cup of sweet milk; mix thoroughly, season to taste and bake in a buttered pan for half an hour. This pudding may be served with the same course at dinner.—Ladies' Home Journal.

—Beef Fritters.—Are nice for breakfast. Chop pieces of cold roast beef very fine; make a batter of milk, flour and an egg; mix the meat with it. Put a little lard or butter in the skillet; then drop the batter into it from a large spoon. Fry until brown, season with pepper, salt and a little parsley if liked.—Farm, Field and Fireside.

—A Pleasant Pudding.—Place a quarter of a pound of sponge cake crumbs and three ounces of preserved ginger, cut small, in a basin. Boil rather more than a gill of milk with one ounce of fresh butter, ditto sugar, and add to it when very hot a tablespoonful of the ginger syrup, and let stand to cool. Beat three eggs thoroughly, and stir into the sponge cake. Butter a plain mold, and garnish with split raisins and strips of angelica. Steam for one and a half hours, and serve with a good custard sauce.—Liverpool Mercury.

—Calf's-Head Croquettes.—Cut the meat from the bones of a cold boiled calf's head, chop fine with the brains; to every pint of meat allow half a pint of rich milk, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, a teaspoonful of salt, a little grated nutmeg and cayenne pepper. Boil the milk, thicken with butter and flour rubbed together; take from the fire, add the meat and seasoning, mix well, and turn out on a largedish to cool. When firm, make into small croquettes. Dip first in egg, then in grated bread crumbs, and fry in boiling fat. Serve at once.—Ladies' Home Companion.

No Chance for the Judge.

At Harrodsburg the other day Judge Cardwell summoned a negro boy in his court to testify in a case. The following conversation took place between his honor and the boy:

"Do you know good from bad?"
"Yes, sir, boss; 'sper ez duz."
"Can you distinguish the truth from falsehood?"

"Yes, sah, I kin extinguish truth or anything else eff you'll gimme nut water."

"Do you know what will become of you if you testify to a lie?"

"No, sah, judge. Duz you?"

"Where does the devil live?"

"You'll neber git to see him; he lives in Heaven."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

GET A GOOD SAFE.

GREENVILLE, N. C., Feb. 26th, 1896.

J. L. SUGG, Agent Victor Safe Co., Greenville, N. C.

DEAR SIR:—I am pleased to say that the Victor Safe you sold me some five or six years ago preserved in tact all its contents in the late fire in Greenville on the 16th inst. The safe stood at a point in my office in the Opera House block that must have been one of the hottest parts in the great conflagration. It contained many papers and other things of value. When it was taken out of the ruins and opened, some twelve hours after the fire, everything in it was found to be safely preserved and in good condition. I cheerfully make this statement of facts in recognition of the valuable service rendered me by this safe and you are at liberty to make such use of it as you may see proper.

THOS. J. JARVIS.

The Victor Safe is made in all sizes, convenient for home, farm, office or general business use. Every Safe sold with a guarantee to be fire proof. Prices range from $15 up.

No town in the State its size can show a better health record than Greenville. There is comparatively little sickness here.

Brick and plaster from the burned buildings has been placed on main street down to Five Points and the work is being carried on out Dickinson avenue.

It is but little over a month now to the next town election. A progressive Board of Councilmen should be elected and it is time to be looking around for the right men.

Mr. Godwin will place the old Methodist parsonage building, which he is having moved, on Dickinson avenue near the Presbyterian church, instead of on Pittstreet. He will make two houses out of the old one.

Soldier's Picnic.

The Confederate soldiers of Pitt county will have a picnic and fish fry at Centre Bluff on April 24th. All are very earnestly requested to carry a basket and plenty of bread. Every old soldier is expected to get word to all other comrades so that all may be advised in time. The table will be under the supervision of that true and tried old veteran, Ruel Willoughby, who will be assisted by W. H. Wilkinson, A. D. Hill, Elder Samuel Moore, Albert Jones, C. D. Rountree, Elihu Briley, Ferd Ward, L. W. Lawrence, Paul Harrington, T. A. Nichols and J. A. Bullock. Let the old veterans come out and make this a pleasant day.

IN THE REFLECTOR.

People See Their Faces and Straightway Forget What Manner of Men They Are.

W. T. Brickell returned this morning from Kinston.

J. S. Jenkins returned Wednesday evening from Oxford.

R. L. Davis, and W. M. Lang, of Farmville, were here to-day.

J. H. Blount returned Wednesday evening from Williamston court.

Ex-Senator and Mrs. T. J. Jarvis returned from Raleigh Wednesday evening.

G. C. Moore, of Wilson, who was here to attend the wedding of his brother, returned home to-day.

Rev. R. W. Hines will preach in the Presbyterian church here next Sunday morning and evening, instead of on the first Sunday in April.

H. B. Clark returned Wednesday evening from the north where he had been to purchase goods. Mrs. Clark, who was visiting in Scotland Neck, also returned home.

Mr. J. L. Ludlow, of Winston, a civil engineer, has been taking a view of Greenville to-day for the purpose of making an estimate on the system of water works. He will meet with the committee to-night and make a report.

Moore-Draughan.

Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. William Draughan, in Edgecombe county, Mr. Zeno Moore, of Greenville and Miss Eloise Draughan, of Edgecombe were united in marriage by Rev. M. T. Moye.

The attendants were John Hearne with Miss Blanche Draughan, Lyman Draughan with Miss Lucy Dunn, Dr. Frank Whitehead with Miss Clie Draughan, L. D. Cutchin with Miss Lena Taylor, P. H. Rasberry with Miss Annie Bass, John McDowell with Miss Fannie Speight.

The bridal party reached Greenville on the evening train and a reception was held at night at the home of the groom on Dickinson avenue.

Among the presents, which were beautiful and handsome, were the following:

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Hearne, silver berry stand.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Forbes set knives and forks.

J. P. McDowell, rug.

Paul Rasberry, photograph holder.

J. S. Higgs, picture.

Miss Sadie Short, mat.

Miss Lena Harris, set fruit knives.

Miss Orpa Hackney, Wilson, souvenir spoon.

Miss Fannie Speight, sugar spoon and berry spoon.

Miss Annie Bass, silver napkin ring. Miss Ellen Moore, set silver teaspoons.

Miss Lizzie Moore, handsome glass set.

The REFLECTOR joins their host of friends in extending best wishes and in welcoming the bride to Greenville.

Can't Get the Change.

A letter from Mr. J. R. Kenly, General Manager of the Coast Line, in response to the petition from the citizens of Greenville, says in substance that the changes in the train service on this branch of the road asked for are impracticable. He says that to shorten the schedule of the present passenger train would necessitate breaking important through connections, and in reference to the morning train from Parmele, that it would be very expensive to inaugurate and would not begin to pay the cost of operation.

Mr. W. J. Cowell has taken the contract to build three brick stores for Mrs. M. A. Jarvis on the site where her other stores were burned. He tells us that the new stores will be much better buildings than the old ones.

Wind and dust went along together to-day.
