MISSIONARY WORK.

Some Notice of Woman's Work for Missions.

We have seen something of the organization, on work of the principal missionary societies, and wish to call your attention to another important department of mission work—that of woman's work for women. Woman's place in the gospel was secondary only in that she was not made an apostle—was not called to preach. In all other relations she held a first place and the service she rendered was graciously accepted by her Lord. Her burst of service extended from Anna, the prophetess, who spake of Christ to all that looked for redemption in Jerusalem to that elect lady who trained her children to walk in the truth. Women ministered to Him of their substance. The Samaritan woman gave Him her testimony, the Syrophenician mother her faith; the woman that was forgiven much, her love and her tears. Woman was truest to him, most unselfish and most constant in her faith and service. When the disciples, save John, had fled and left him in his shame and agony, the women were there. They saw him gory with his own blood, reviled, insulted, rejected and loved and trusted him. She was last at the cross, and first at the tomb, and first to find a risen Savior, and first to carry to the church and the world the news of his resurrection.

In the early christian church, as shown by the New Testament and the writings of the early christian fathers, some women were especially set apart as deaconesses to care for the poor and sick, and give private instruction to those of their own sex who could not be taught by men. Widows were often employed in this work. They were in fact the genuine missionaries of that age, when the state of society and of family life, especially, among the Greek resembled, in many respects, what we find to-day in southern lands. This office was merged into the men, when human inventions took the place of divine order and finally disappeared from church history.

The work of the Moravian church, the only church that gives more ministers to the Foreign than to the Home field, has observed this primitive order. Their women bear their part very much as Priscilla, Phoebe and Fersis bore theirs in the first christian missions. This order came back in some form, with all the churches in this century of missions, all the churches have their woman's missionary societies, and boards, and their missionaries in all the foreign mission fields. This is necessary because the great majority of heathen women are absolutely out of the reach of the ministration of men, and because all of them stand specially in need of such womanly training as christian women alone can give, to raise them from the degradation into which they have fallen, and fit them for filling their rightful place in the christian family and the christian church. No movement or work has been productive of so much good, both at home and abroad. G. A. OGLESBY.

NEWS AND FICTION.

A great deal is constantly said about the enterprise of the newspapers in securing information from all quarters of the globe, and a good deal of the commendation which this enterprise receives is deserved. But what readers of the newspapers crave to-day is not so much news as truth. They are weary of reading columns of telegraphic reports and then finding the next morning that their time has been wasted on a tissue of misrepresentations, or on actual fiction. A proportion of the so-called news matters in many of the newspapers is mainly fabrication. It is manufactured on a basis of fact so slender that a searching examination often fails to reveal it. Very often it is made out of whole cloth. In this matter, as in the expression of editorial opinion, there is a lamentable lack of sense of responsibility among many American editors. Not long ago, when there was a real tension of feeling between this country and Great Britain, the report was started that the flying squadron was to visit American waters, and this in turn was followed by the report that Great Britain was negotiating for the purchase of Cuba. Both reports were preposterous on their face, and yet they were gravely spread out, without head-lines. As a matter of fact, they were unqualified lies. They were deliberately manufactured for the purpose of filling newspaper columns with something sensational. These reports were no sooner printed than they were denied, and this sort of thing has now gone on so long that newspaper readers are becoming skeptical of everything they read. The most intelligent of them no longer believe anything in the way of a news statement until it has been confirmed. They have been misled too often. In the long run this kind of humbug is as bad from a business point of view as every other kind of humbug. It reacts in the hardened incredulity of the reader, and defeats itself by destroying the very possibility of excitement which the newspaper editor wishes to produce. The matter is not worthy of discussion from the ethical side, for the element of dishonesty in it is too evident to need anything more than plain characterization. What does need enforcement, in order to reach a good many of the men who sow falsehood broadcast as if it were truth, is the fact that it is very bad policy. Nothing pays a newspaper better than to establish a tradition for truthfulness; nothing harms it more in the long run than to create the impression of untrustworthiness. There are great opportunities in this direction at the present moment.—The Outlook.

Undesirable Immigration.

There is every indication that a strong pressure will be brought to bear on Congress to place additional restrictions on the admission to this country of undesirable immigrants, who are now arriving in swarms.

So long as we still had vast areas of land to open up to settlement there was no necessity of raising any such question, and it would not be necessary even now if the immigrants of to-day represented the races and classes to whom we owe the clearing of our forests and the extension and final obliteration of our frontier.

We have always welcomed and shall continue to welcome the thrifty, productive and independent immigrant who comes here on his own resources, prepared to add to the resources of the country. But we have also to deal with large volumes of immigration composed in great part of paupers and worse than paupers, with the fugitives of poverty, whose highest ambition is to share in the misery of our slums and sweat-shops, to lower the lowest standard of living among our wage-workers, and whose sole motive in coming is to escape starvation or imprisonment at home.

Our laws prohibit the importation of contract labor from abroad and the competition of convict labor at home. These laws undoubtedly represent public sentiment on the subject of artificial or unfair competition with the natural conditions of wage-earning. The influx of thousands and even hundreds of thousands of immigrants of the class now seeking this country offers a much more serious competition, and it is not to be expected that the popular sentiment of the country will permit it to go on unchecked.—New York World.

Cured of his Folly.

Mr. Jno. F. McLean, who has returned from a ten days visit to his father at Mooresville, tells us of a recent conversion. When Mr. McLean lived in Mooresville several years ago one of his friends was a hard working, enthusiastic Democrat. Shortly after Mr. McLean moved to Salisbury his friend wandered off into the Populist fold and moved to Cabarrus county, the hot bed of Populism. A few days ago this gentleman went to Concord and while there saw a negro magistrate trying a white man.

He stopped and looked at the proceedings for a few minutes and turned away with the exclamation, "My God! Have I helped to bring this on our people?"

From the trial he went to the Populist newspaper office and asked if he was in arrears for the paper. Ascertaining the amount he paid up, ordered the paper stopped and forthwith went to a Democratic office and subscribed for a Democratic paper. He is again a Democrat and is working for the party with his old time enthusiasm.

Such experiences as this ought to cure any white man of the Populistic craze.—Salisbury Herald.

Corn "To Burn."

The Sampson Democrat says a gentleman from Honeycuts while driving through a section of Cumberland county some days ago saw, an unusual sight. It was a field of last year's corn hanging ungathered on the stalk. He asked the farmer to whom it belonged why he did not gather it. The farmer replied that he had nowhere to put it. From this we may judge that corn is now as abundant in Cumberland as it once was in Egypt.—Fayetteville Observer.

NEGRO LIFE.

A Word Picture of Its Delights and Disappointments.

The Corn Shucking at Uncle Moses' and Its Interesting Features—Scenes of Hilarity Among the Dusky Participants.

Uncle Moses and his wife, Aunt Dilsy, both being very old and afflicted, were allowed to occupy a little old cabin and use what land they could tend, rent free.

Uncle Moses requested that he be permitted "to cut de trees offen dat ar li' branch, what runs from my bac yard, please, sah."

Permission granted, Uncle Moses didn't look as if he could fell a sapling. He was so afflicted that he couldn't plow. It was Aunt Dilsy that plowed. But he displayed an ability to cut down trees that was truly astonishing. Soon he had a long, narrow strip of rich, low ground, and Aunt Dilsy plowed it with the cow. She plowed with the cow because she was of a timid nature besides being afflicted. She would have been afraid of any other beast, even if she had had one, which she hadn't. And now, behold the corn! Such a pile of corn had been raised on "dat ar li' branch bottom," that its fame had spread abroad over the plantation.

Very proud and boastful was Uncle Moses, and great was the crowd at his corn shucking. Old and young, renters and hired hands, and even Uncle Bristol Hunt, who owned seven acres of land, were all there. As it was not a "licker corn shucking," but a "supper corn shucking," the ladies were out in full force.

Conspicuous among them were the Conitchee girls, in red skirts and new shirt waists, the belles of the evening. Stunning them pretty close, though, were the Turner girls, who wore only gingham dresses, but had side combs in their bangs and their back hair arranged in Psyches. The boys were numerous and jolly, several from "over the crick" being present. Jimmie Goode, the crack banjo player, was also there.

"You, Jimmie, dar!" cried Uncle Moses. "Don't you shuck none o' my corn; you pick dat banjo, so dese niggers can wuk fast. Dis ain't no one-horse cornpile!"

"All right, Uncle Moses," assented Jimmie, readily. "Jesso I don't haf ter pick it at supper time," and the fascinating strains of "Georgie Buck" filled the air.

The shucking went on briskly with increasing hilarity.

"Hi, dar, you niggers!" interrupted Uncle Moses. "Don't you dassen't play baseball wid my years o' corn," and "You stop dat rasslin', you Sam Jones en Kiah Hawkins! Miss Pattie Belle Conitchee ain't lookin' at yer en yer ain't got her ter study."

The task of preserving order kept Uncle Moses busy and gave him little time for telling any of his stories of "de good old time befo' de war."

When the huge pile of corn was getting low, the magic announcement of "Supper!" was made—and such a supper! Fat roasted pig, luscious chicken pie, spicy pumpkin pies, golden potato custards and the most wonderful cakes. Aunt Dilsy was a cook "shore nuff."

The compliments she received from the appreciative consumers were fairly overwhelming. The crowning feature was the cutting of the "live bird cake." It was a veritable cake, brown and delicious, in the center of which was a bird, alive and fluttering. A vote was taken to decide which of the young ladies should have the honor of cutting the cake and liberating the bird.

Excitement ran high, and through the energetic efforts of Siah Hawkins, Miss Pattie Belle Conitchee came very near being elected to that honor. But Miss Ginky Turner received the most votes in the end, greatly to the elation of the Turner faction. Miss Ginky Turner was led up to the cake table by Jimmie Goode, his banjo swung jauntily over his shoulder, and she sliced the cake with much grace and dexterity. The live bird hopped out, and after flying about the room in bewilderment, perched itself upon a rafter, among sage and red peppers, from which height it seemed to view the proceedings with a quizzical eye. The banjo being again called into requisition, Jimmie Goode played "Bird in a Cage, Love," all singing with him. This was followed by "Dat Yaller Gal, She's Mine," a solo by Kiah Hawkins. Jimmie then played his inimitable "Johnnie, Cynan't Yer Cum?" but it was to the dulcet strain of "Greasy Bread" that old Uncle Moses went to sleep under the table.—N. Y. Sun.

Matching to Win.
Two men matched coins for the fare on a street car, and the man who won said: "I have paid very few fares this summer, because I have solved the system of matching. I can't explain why my system is correct, but many experiments have satisfied me that it is. I always ask the other man to match me, and 65 times out of 100 I win. Apparently the odds are even. In reality they are against the man who matches and in favor of the man who is matched. This doesn't hold when the coins are spun on a table. It is good only when each man holds his coin in his hand. Calling coins is also an easy game to win. Three men out of five will call heads. I always hold the coin tail up, and in the long run I am a winner."

Too Gallant.
"Yes, I told him that it was said that kisses were much sweeter in the dark."
"And he turned down the gas?"
"The idiot did nothing of the kind. He just sat there like a stick and said that if a girl were as handsome as I, he thought darkness would detract from the pleasantness of the occasion. It was a very nice compliment, but there is time to speak and to act."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Big Worms.

Today Ernest Forbes and R. Hyman were digging for fishing worms, in the rear of Humber's machine shop, and found some unusually large grub worms. They were as large around as a man's thumb and four of them weighed a quarter of a pound.

A Handsome Brick Block.

Mr. W. H. Long tells us he has received the specifications for a new block of buildings which Elliott Bros. will put up where the Tyson block was burned, on the east side of the street. He tells us this new block is to be a very handsome structure, two stories high. The ground floor will contain five stores and a front entrance to the upper story. The entire front of the second floor will be made into nice offices and the rear will be connected with the stores below for use by the occupants. Work will commence very soon on this block and it is expected to be complete by August.

The Billville Banner.

Spring is with us once again and, as usual, we have lost our umbrella.

If it wasn't for the fact that there is a good deal of rain in this world the flowers wouldn't have any water to drink.

Everybody would enjoy the bird-songs in spring if it wasn't for the fact that so many people are continually predicting the failure of the fruit crop.

It may be hot weather in this world, dear brethren, but if you'll only pause long enough to think of the hot weather hereafter you'd keep powerful cool!

The man who gets our vote in this year of political grace and glory has got to pay more than a dollar. Brethren, we need groceries.—Atlanta Constitution.

NOTICE.

Two Yearlings taken up in oat field. Owner can get the same by paying for notice, feed and damage to crop. H. J. COBB.

NOTICE.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Councilmen March 4th, the ordinance prohibiting bicycles riders from riding on the sidewalk in the town of Greenville was adopted. All persons will govern themselves accordingly. OLA FORBES, Mayor. C. C. FORBES, Clerk.

Too Much Dust.

The brick bats, plaster and ashes which the town took from the burned buildings and placed along main street has become thoroughly powdered and makes the worst dust imaginable. During this dry weather the dust has given the merchants so much trouble that they decided to stand it no longer. As a remedy several of them are having clay hauled and a thin coating of it spread over the street in front of their stores. Perhaps this will form a crust sufficient to prevent dust rising, and it no sinks that will hold water are allowed to form along the street there is no reason why it should get muddy in wet weather. We hope all this work being done will make a good street after awhile.
