

C. T. MUNNIFORD,
 call special attention to the beautiful selection of White Goods, Laces and Embroideries we have on hand, and still we are adding something new every few days. Our prices are greatly reduced. The people are coming our way. Everybody admires our spring and summer styles of clothing. No wonder the crowds come to our store. One reason is, because they can buy suits that suit them, another reason is, because we have the courage to accept small profit. Low prices are quick travelers who want style, elegance and durability at low cost should see our line. Our's are the worthiest garments to be found anywhere at anywherenear the price. On our prominent demand clothing of character and refinement—something above the ordinary "refinement"—fine grades, perfection of make, best taste, moderate prices are offering at surprisingly low figures. We also have beautiful line of Gents Furnishing Goods which we

HOME CALLS.
 When the work-day hours are closing
 And the evening twilight falls,
 How the homes throughout the city
 Send forth their loving calls!
 Calls so low, you may not hear them;
 But how many hear and smile!
 And tired hand and heads so weary
 Are forgotten for the while.
 The dear home-sounds ring sweetly
 In the ears of toiling men,
 And, for love of wife and children,
 They seek their homes again.
 So I sit in the brooding twilight,
 And watch as they homeward go,
 With glad steps hurrying onward
 To the hearts that love them so.
 And I long to cry out to them:
 "O, guard the home-love well.
 Be tender and true to your dear ones—
 How long yours, none can tell!"
 For I know there is one among them
 Whose heart in sadness roams,
 Who hears no call in the twilight,
 Save the call to the Home of homes.

The Southern States Exposition at Chicago Will Not be Held.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 28.—The proposed Southern States Exposition is abandoned, because the South did not respond in accordance with the terms of agreement entered into at Chicago—that nine States should be represented. South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama would have been ready in time—Maryland applied for space. The Southern Railway, the Mobile & Ohio and other roads had also applied for space. These roads would have secured exhibits from half a dozen more States, but this would not have been a compliance with the agreement. The depressed condition of business rendered it impossible to secure favorable action in the Virginias, North Carolina, Florida, Mississippi and other States.

The advisory board of the Southern States Exposition Company met in Augusta this morning and declared the proposed exposition off.

DELIGHTFUL OCRACOCKE.
In Good Shape for the Coming Season.

Mr. J. J. Cherry returned Friday night from a brief trip to Ocracoke. He tells us that he found Mr. George Credle, the new proprietor of Ocracoke Hotel, putting everything in splendid shape for the coming season which opens the first week in June. The hotel is being improved and all needed conveniences added. Mr. Credle says he knows how people who go to the seaside for recreation ought to be treated, and he will be prepared to take care of his guests handsomely.

Mr. Cherry also tells us that the Old Dominion steamer Virginia Dare, in charge of clever Capt Dave Hill, will begin running regular Saturday night trips from Washington to Ocracoke the middle of June. The river steamers will wait at Greenville on Saturdays until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, so as to give people from here a quick through trip. Parties will be given special rates for board by the week. We expect to see a large number go down from Greenville this season.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.] WASHINGTON, D. C. May, 29, '96.

Just as the McKinleyites were hugging themselves to think that the Republican opposition to the fat-frying candidate had been whipped into silence they made a discovery which has frightened them.

It has leaked out that President Cleveland is gathering data upon which to base his veto of the $75,000,000 River and Harbor bill, which may go in any day before next Wednesday.

The Senate voted down the proposition to add 75 cents a barrel to the internal revenue tax on beer, which was offered as an amendment to the filled cheese bill.

Democrats were disappointed because the Supreme court decision, that the money appropriated by the last Congress for sugar bounties should be paid, did not touch the question of the constitutionality of the sugar bounty.

There is every reason to believe that the House committee on Invalid Pensions was merely indulging in a little campaign buncombe when a favorable report was ordered to be made to the House on the service pension bill, and that few members of Congress seriously wish this bill to ever become a law.

Ex-Congressman Enloe, of Tennessee, who is visiting Washington and who is an authority on the Democracy of this State, said of the outlook: "Tennessee is in good shape. We will elect our Democratic State ticket by an old-time majority. The people are as mad as hornets over the '94 slump and are going to expatiate that slip by easing up the Republicans in November.

It hardly needed a denial from Chairman Harry of the National Democratic Committee, to convince anybody who knows him that he had never said that the National Committee would attempt to keep anybody out of the Chicago convention. Mr. Harry is in Washington, and thus explicitly defines his position; "Speaking for myself as a delegate to the National Democratic Convention, I expect to enter it with a view of abiding by the will of the majority. Whoever is nominated will receive my support, and I am certain that will be the sentiment of the great bulk of the delegates. Democrats always enter a conference, caucus or convention with the idea of submission to the voice of the majority. That is a cardinal principle and there is no reason to think it will be violated at Chicago by either the advocates of sound money or of free silver."

Section 61 of the Wilson tariff law, admitting free foreign alcohol to be used in the arts and manufactures, was this week repealed by the House, the vote being 165 to 69. Secretary Carlisle had asked to have this section repealed because it had been so clumsily drawn that it was practically impossible to make regulations to enforce it. This section was one of the amendments added to the Wilson bill in the Senate. It was known at the time that it was badly drawn, and expected that it would be put into proper shape in conference. Everybody remembers how the House was compelled to accept all the Senate amendments in a lump to save the entire bill from failure.

The discussion of the bill prohibiting further issue of bonds would have been much more spirited in the Senate if there was any probability of action by the House on the bill.

Safest Place During a Storm is in the House Where There is no Draught.

"Electric storms are far less dangerous than the majority of people imagine," writes Edward W. Bok in June Ladies Home Journal.

"That a severe lightning storm is terrifying admits of no question, and will sometimes bring uneasiness to the heart of the strongest man. But the real danger is slight.

The chance of lightning striking a house, for example, is not one in a million. Particularly is this true in cities, strung as most of them are with electric wires. The greater danger from electric storms is in the country, and even there the danger may be lessened if the simplest and most common-sense of precautions are exercised.

The surest electric conductor is a draught, and if, when a thunder approaches, it is seen that all windows and doors liable to occasion a draught are kept closed, the danger is at once reduced to a minimum. If a woman is "caught" out in a thunder-storm the safest shelter is a house; the most dangerous a tree, particularly an oak tree. It is a peculiar, but nevertheless a proven, fact, that the oak is the most susceptible of all trees to a current of electricity.

Over fifty per cent. of trees struck by lightning storms during one summer, the Government statistician tells us, were oaks, while the beech tree was the least harmed. Therefore, the worst possible place of shelter in an electric storm is under an oak tree, while by all odds, the safest place is in a house and out of a draught. The actual danger (from an electric storm) is, in truth, not from the lightning nor the thunder, but from the nervous condition into which women allow themselves to fall. And this is a danger which they can avoid. A little calm thought and a few grains of common sense will do it."

Decoration-Day Number of the New York Ledger

The Decoration-Day Number of the New York Ledger, with its four cover pages and its newly increased number of inside pages, is a marvel of cheapness even in this age of low-priced literature. There is no extra charge for the Special Numbers which are issued on every Holiday, and which contain a rich table of contents inclosed with a cover of surpassing beauty.

The price of the Holiday Numbers of the Ledger is the same as the regular weekly issues—only five cents. By comparing the artistic embellishment and the vast amount of reading matter in the Ledger with the contents of any other five-cent journal, the new readers of the Ledger will readily see that they are receiving more for their money than they can obtain elsewhere.

SPIRITS OF TURPENTINE.

Some of Its Uses in the Arts and Manufactures.

Very few people have any correct notion of the number of uses to which the products of turpentine have been put. Let us mention some of the different ways spirits of turpentine enters into the arts and manufactures. Many who read this article by gaslight will remember when they read their newspapers by the smoky light furnished by "camphene." This was before the introduction and use of petroleum. Camphene is prepared by mixing the rectified oil of turpentine with alcohol. Although kerosene is now so cheap, the rectified spirits of turpentine is still used for illuminating purposes in some backward sections of the south.

Perhaps the most common uses of the spirits of turpentine are those in the arts, where it enters into the preparation of paints and varnishes, and especially in the manufacture of india-rubber goods. The paint and varnish industries take about 5,000,000 gallons annually, while the rubber industry requires about 3,500,000 gallons a year.

But spirits of turpentine has other uses not so well known to most readers. How many would enjoy their salad oils and other vegetable oils if they knew that they were adulterated with turpentine oil? How many invalids know that their medicines contain spirits of turpentine, or that the liniment or ointment which relieves their aches and pains is largely composed of turpentine?—Lee J. Vance, in Appleton's Popular Science Monthly.

Parsnip and Salsify Fritters.

Wash, scrape and boil parsnips till tender, and mash fine when done; to each pint allow two tablespoonfuls of butter, salt and pepper to taste; add a beaten egg; stir all together over the fire a few minutes, let cool, shape into balls, dip into egg, then into crumbs, and fry in deep, hot fat. Salsify or oyster plant fritters are made in the same way, only when boiling add two table-spoons of vinegar to the water. Poiled parsnips, dipped in batter and fried in hot fat are excellent, and boiled, cut in halves lengthwise, buttered and peppered, they form a nice accompaniment to steak.—Boston

INCREASE OF RED MEN.

Although They Have Good Schools There Are Many Blanket Indians.

The reservations are too small to permit the old, wide-ranging Indian habits, and the red men are compelled to live in localities entirely unsuited to the wild customs of their forefathers. Through this changed condition, it has frequently been said the Indian will rapidly die out; but information received at the Indian bureau shows this is an error. There are now about 300,000 Indians in the United States, and it is evident that they are increasing in numbers.

People may differ as to the past treatment of the Indians, and as to whether it was right to take from them the vast empire now occupied by the millions of thriving, industrious whites, but it has been done, and no one can doubt that it now rests upon us to give the Indian an occupation which will take the place of that former roving life which he has lost.

We have compelled him to make way for civilization: he must be civilized in order to become self-supporting in the conditions forced on him. Among the things which we give him are schools, in which 5,000 Indian children are now being taught. These schools are of three kinds—non-sectarian, boarding schools and day schools.

Chief among the non-sectarian boarding-schools is the large school at Carlisle, Pa. Here 750 Indian boys and girls are taught those branches which our own children learn in grammar and high school. During portions of the year these children are hired out to the good people of Pennsylvania in places where they are required to work on farms and in private families.

This, of course, is a great help to the young Indians. It gives them an insight into practical life, and teaches them how to act for themselves. The children in a school-like this are fitting not simply to go back on the reservations, but to scatter throughout the United States and take their chances with the rest of our citizens. They are taught how to work and support themselves by labor, and this is a lesson which every child should learn, whether red, white or black.

Progress is being made by many of the Indians. Some of them now teach Indian schools; some follow various mechanical pursuits; and many more readily learn to watch and herd cattle. But "blanket" Indians are still to be found in very great numbers.

By blanket Indians we mean those who do not wear citizens' clothes, but who are clad in buckskin shoes and leggings, and wrap themselves in great blankets instead of wearing coats and vests, while some of them in warm weather wear scarcely any clothing at all.

Many of them still know nothing of civilization or of Christianity. Their religious ceremonies are too often still heathenish, and they are regardless of marriage ties.—Secretary Hoke Smith, in Youth's Companion.

ALBINO BIRDS AND BEASTS.

The Idea That They Were Barren Seems to Have Been Erroneous.

W. L. Bruce, of Yankton, S. D., reports that while hunting 25 miles northwest of Yankton along the St. James river, he shot two albino quail from a flock normally colored. They were larger than the ordinary bird of a cream color, speckled with brown, but so dimly as to appear pure white at a short distance. Some years ago an old quail with 13 young, all albinos, were reported from California by a correspondent of the same paper. Many individual albino quail are reported and a few albino ruffed grouse. The London Field lately noted the finding of albino and pied rooks, crows and blackbirds, and a white house martin. It also told about a white badger that was taken in a weasel trap a short time ago.

A pure white deer and a mottled one were reported killed on Whidby Island, in Puget sound, lately. Three or more white wild turkeys are known to have been killed during the past 15 years. One bird in Tennessee was known as the "Old White Witch Turkey." He may not have been a bright bird naturally, but it wasn't very long after he was hatched that he learned that being white was not all comfort. The hen turkeys liked him exceedingly, and one of his offspring, a gray bird, was killed in 1882, while others of light color were seen. Hundreds of bullets were fired at the witch bird, but without success, and he probably died a natural death in some out-of-the-way clump of bushes.

For many years albinos were thought to be barren, but observation has proved this to be erroneous. One, a female robin, reared a brood of young for five successive seasons up the Hudson, and a number of other robins were seen attending young in the vicinity during two or three mating seasons, the young being often oddly colored. Albino robins and squirrels are most frequently seen of the small creatures, while deer are the most numerous of larger albinos. An albino moose was never seen.—Forest and Stream.

Too Much of a Denial. "You're rather too old to take in as an office boy," said Higgins, as he eyed the applicant. "You must have lived pretty fast to be at the bottom of the ladder at your age." "No, indeed, sir," said the other, earnestly; "I'm just as slow as I ever was!"—Bay City Chat.

CATARRH.

His Worst Enemy Defeated by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy.

FOR THREE YEARS HE SUFFERED—COULD

HARDLY BREATHE AT NIGHT—ONE

NOSTRIL CLOSED FOR 10 YEARS.

Mr. A. M. Ramsey, of DeLeon, Texas, was a sufferer from Catarrh in its worst form. Truly, his description of his sufferings seem little short of marvelous. Instead of seeking his couch, glad for the nights coming, he went to it with terror, realizing that another long, weary, wakeful night and a struggle to breathe was before him. He could not sleep on either side for two years. P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, cured him in quick time.

DE LEON, TEXAS. Messrs. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga. Gentls: I have used nearly four bottles of P. P. P. I was afflicted from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet. Your P. P. P. has cured my difficulty of breathing, smothering, palpitation of the heart, and has relieved me of all pain. One nostril was closed for ten years, but now I can breathe through it readily. I have not slept on either side for two years; in fact, I dreaded to see night come. Now I sleep soundly in any position all night. I am 50 years old, but expect soon to be able to take hold of the plow handles. I feel glad that I was lucky enough to get P. P. P., and I heartily recommend it to my friends and the public generally. Yours, respectfully, A. M. RAMSEY.

THE STATE OF TEXAS—County of Comanche.—Before the undersigned authority on this day, personally appeared A. M. Ramsey, who, after being duly sworn, says on oath that the foregoing statement made by him relative to the virtue of P. P. P. medicine is true. A. M. RAMSEY. Sworn to and subscribed before me this August 4th, 1891. J. M. LAMBERT, N. P., Comanche County, Texas.
