IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Matters Of Interest Over the State.

All passenger conductors on the Seaboard Air Line will be required to file bonds for the faithful discharge of duty with the management of the road.

Spencer Eborn, a colored man on Blount's Creek, had a narrow escape a few days ago. His wife having grown tired of her hubby, ground up a spoon full of glass and baked it in his bread, but he discovered it in time to save himself.—Washington Gazette.

Rev. Jim Frazier, a colored Disciple preacher, who worked on Mr. John R. Wooten's farm, near LaGrange, ran away Sunday night with Neecy Exum, a 16-year old colored girl, whose parents live on the same plantation. Frazier left a wife and three children.—Kinston Free Press.

Sheriff Clark, of Halifax county, yesterday brought to the penitentiary four convicts. Among them was a little boy just 13 years old, and he is sentenced for murder. At the new manufacturing town of Roanoke Rapids, the lad had a dispute with another boy. He picked up a brick, struck his opponent at the base of the skull and killed him.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Superintendent Leazer is very much elated over the crop prospect at the State farm. He said that the large farm in Halifax was the best farm in North Carolina and was in perfect condition. He expects to make on it this year about 1,800 bales of cotton, 75,000 bushels of corn, several thousand bushels of wheat and oats and other minor crops. This is rather good farming.

TOWN COUNCILMEN MEET.

No More Wood Buildings on Evans Street.

The Board of Town Councilmen held their monthly meeting on Thursday night. Besides the routine business of allowing monthly accounts, etc., the Board enacted some new laws, one of which is of special importance. That is, that hereafter no wood buildings shall be allowed to be erected on that portion of Evans street between Third and Fifth streets nor within 80 feet of Evans street, nor shall any wood sheds be placed in front of any building within this limit.

The selling of liquor in any portion of the town lying south of Five Points was prohibited.

It was ordered that a ball and chain be put on persons put on the streets to work out fines.

The bond of E. M. McGowan, Tax Collector, was tendered and accepted.

For a Year and a Day.

When the Federal court opened at ten o'clock yesterday morning Judge Seymour announced his decision in the Murphrey case. He sentenced Charles Murphrey to imprisonment at hard labor in King's county penitentiary, Brooklyn, for a year and day. This is the minimum sentence that may be imposed for the crime of robbing the United States mail.

Sympathy for Murphrey is widespread, and many hope that he may yet be kept out of prison, and be restored to his wife and child. There is only one more chance for him, and that lies in appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals that meets in Richmond. F. H. Busbee, Esq., counsel for Murphrey, will endeavor to take an appeal to this court. If this does not succeed Murphrey must serve out his twelve months' term. Marshal Carroll will hold Murphrey in custody here until the matter is decided.—Raleigh News and Observer.

INCREASING THEIR FACILITIES

A Firm With a Reputation for Excellent Work.

The John Flanagan Buggy and Coffin Co., have completed their new show rooms and called in a REFLECTOR reporter to see the splendid display they are now making. The first thing to strike us was a handsome phaeton that had just been completed and run out of the work-shops. We have never seen a vehicle that could excel this in beauty and workmanship. The body was black, polished until it had a gloss equal to a mirror, and the running gear natural wood varnished. Every part about it was perfect in material and finish.

In the show room was an almost endless display of different styles and finish of buggies, some top, some open, some different colored gear, some natural varnished, all together making an exhibit well worth inspecting. In response to a remark about the excellent workmanship, Mr. Greene said "We are constantly making improvements in the quality of our work, while at the same time our prices are lower than ever."

In the coffin department we were particularly impressed with the line of cases and caskets they have on hand. True, a coffin is the last thing a man hopes to have any use for, yet he can admire beauty in workmanship even in this class of goods. And some the John Flanagan Co. now have in stock surpass any that have been brought here before. For instance, they have metal cases that are marvelous in construction and finish. The interior case is of copper fitted with glass front and made perfectly air-tight, while over this is an outer shell of cedar covered and draped with the best quality of broadcloth. The linings on the interior of the case are of cream satin.

The John Flanagan Buggy and Coffin Co., with the class of goods that they manufacture and handle, have established a reputation that is the equal of any firm in the State.

LATE NEWS.

By the fall of a passenger elevator in the building of the Friedenwald Printing Company, Baltimore, thirteen people were terribly injured, some of them it is thought fatally.

The town of Parksley, Va., had a $60,000 fire on Wednesday afternoon, only $12,000 insurance.

At the Kentucky Democratic State convention on Wednesday the mention of the names of Cleveland and Carlisle drew a storm of hisses from the audience.

Token of Esteem.

Just as Prof. W. H. Ragsdale started to ring the bell for the last time for the present session this morning he was treated with a surprise by the boys of his school. Mr. Harry Harding came forward and in behalf of the boys presented him with a handsome watch chain as a mark of their appreciation of his work. The presentation speech was a model for neatness, and truly appropriate, and the acceptance feeling. No teacher more fully wins the respect, confidence and affection of his pupils than Prof. Ragsdale, and no one more fully reciprocates these feelings towards their students than he.

Attention Firemen.

The regular monthly meeting of Hope Fire Co., will be held Monday evening, June 8th, at 8 o'clock. Every member must be present as the rules will hereafter be enforced. By order of F. M. Hodges, Foreman. A. B. Ellington, Secretary.

C. T. MUNFORD,
We are showing an elegant stock of Wash Fabrics, all new of this season's production, and just the thing for the warm weather, such as Dimities, Organdies, Batiste Spiral Cloths, Ducks, Gingham, Plisse and Fancy Swiss Muslins. Would you call special attention to the beautiful selection of White Goods, Laces and Embroideries we have on hand, and still we are adding something new every few days. The people are coming our way. Everybody admires our spring and summer styles of Clothing. No wonder the crowds come to our place one reason is, because they can buy suits that suit them, another reason is, because we have the courage to accept small profit. Low prices are quick travelers. Men who want style, elegance and durability at low cost should see our line. Our's are the worthiest garments to be found anywhere at anywhere near the price. Our customers demand Clothing of character and refinement—something above the ordinary "refinement"—fine grades, perfection of make, best taste, moderate prices are the prominent points in our clothes. We also have beautiful line of Gents Furnishing Goods which we are offering at surprisingly low figures. Next Door Tyson & Rawls.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A Texas Paper's Advice to Those Who Bought it.

Jane B., Canton, O.—Can I take ink stains out of a towel with nitric acid?

You can, Jane. You certainly can, but you won't be able to wipe your face with the holes the nitric acid will make in the towel.

John Calhoun, Mount Vernon, N. Y.—What is the best thing for fleas?

Dear John, from a careful study of their habits and tastes, we would think that a dog was about the best thing for fleas, although we have known some fleas to have a right good time on the human form.

R. B. Morrisoa, Taylor, Tex.—Are women who are ignorant of house-hold matters fit to be wives?

No, but many of them get there just the same.

Laura B., Kalamazoo, Mich.—What is the difference between a newspaper article and a magazine article?

In newspaper articles some live topic, some current event, is usually discussed. Magazine articles consist of warmed over reminiscences of great and little battles, written by generals who, most of them, fought and bled and failed to die when they should have died ante 1864.

Paul F., Wilmington, Del.—What can I do for a cat that kills chickens?

You can do almost anything for a cat that kills chickens. You can kill the chickens for her yourself, or you can treat her as one of the family, or you can buy her an annuity, but we think you had better take her out to the wood shed and saw her head off.

Of Other Days.

How often the man who is engrossed with the cares of business life finds himself in the quiet moments going back to the scenes of childhood, and how he longs to go back over those days again. Sometimes these scenes come in review unbidden; again they are called to mind by hearing some one tell his experiences; but come as they may, he longs to again go over the play ground, the forest and once more be a free, untrammelled boy again, to wade the branches, catch minnows, go swimming or chase the hare and squirrel. The impressions of these things come into the mind when young and pliant, and nothing short of insanity can efface them from memory. Such things bring mingled joy and sadness; joy, as one imagines he is going over the scenes again, sadness, on maturer reflection, bringing the knowledge that those scenes have changed. The open field may now be a forest, the grove a thicket, and on going to the old home he finds few objects that remind him of other years, and the return does not give the pleasure expected. But it is all a dream, and only a short rest for a weary mind, and cares crowd in and engross the mind again.—Burlington News.

The Billyville Banner.

O poet of the June time, you sent us yesterday

More lays than fifty pullets of the Georgia kind could lay!
 And their mellow music melted like mustard in the mouth,
 And you set our souls to singing in the rainy, rainy south.

O poet of the June time, your songs are wondrous good;
 So very full of fire that we'll use 'em yet for wood!

And when, perchance, you miss them you'll find the tuneful drove
 Where the ice is on the whiskers and the feet are on the stove!

Watermelons are coming in. We have a first-class appetite, and all we need now is a sharp knife.

We don't know exactly what time it was when we had the hot wave last year, but if we don't disremember, it was 'long about mushmillion time.

There has not been a lynching in town in six days. It was so hot when we struck the last fellow that the rope ran down his back.

Our summer relatives are still coming in. They are all so accommodating that they are perfectly willing to sleep on the floor.

It has been raining in Billyville for six weeks; so, if we don't all drown we'll have a fine time fishing when the weather clears off.

We have promised to vote for sixteen candidates, and yet we've only registered once!

We won't get to congress this year, but perhaps this fact will enable us to get to heaven some of these days.—Atlanta Constitution.

Had an Interchange of Shots With a Spanish Cruiser.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 3.—The steamer Three Friends returned to this port today, having landed a large filibustering expedition in Cuba. She carried nearly 100 men and a heavy cargo of arms and ammunition. The Three Friends landed last Friday night west of Trinidad, on the southern coast of Santa Clara province. On May 28th the Three Friends was chased by a Spanish cruiser. The Spaniard fired on the Three Friends, and Captain Bowrd, of the filibuster, returned the fire with a Hotchkiss gun. He thinks one shot struck the Spaniard. Captain Boward thinks the Laurada has also landed her expedition.

Relief Funds in St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 3.—The work of raising and distributing relief funds for the tornado sufferers is floundering in municipal politics. Honest differences of opinion upon the advisability and legality of appropriating city funds for relief have grown into bitter political warfare. Mayor Walbridge, a possible candidate for Governor, has resolutely refused to appeal to the outside world for aid. Last night he was hanged effigy in South St. Louis, and a large public meeting there demanded that he withdraw from his position of independence. The friends and opponents of the Mayor's present hopes are found opposing each other in the matter of soliciting relief.

The measure to appropriate $100,000 of city funds for relief also met strong opposition, on the plea that it was illegal. The bill was submitted today, with a proviso making it legal. The House of Delegates, the lower branch of the municipal assembly, met in special session this afternoon to consider the amended appropriation bill. The proceedings, at times, approached a general rough-and-tumble fight among the members, but the bill was finally passed by a vote of 19 to 3. The bill now goes to the upper house, and will be immediately passed.

Got His Answer.

Nothing could abate the conductor's urbanity. Since leaving the last station the nervous passenger had asked his usual thirty questions, to every one of which the patient conductor had given the soft answer that turns away a creditor. But the nervous passenger came back yet once more.

"Tell me, conductor," he cried, in his thin, wire-edge voice, "does this car go through?"

At that moment the bottom of the bridge fell out and in two skips the train piled up in the ravine.

They combed what they could find of the nervous passenger out of the wreck and spread it on the embankment. His lips moved, silently. Leaning down, the conductor whispered in his ear.

"It does," he said, softly.

A smile played upon the nervous man's countenance and was gone. He never spoke again.

That was one satisfaction.—N. Y. World.

The Last Resource.

"Greater New York!"

The Mayor of Chicago shuddered as he repeated the words. The news long expected, long dreaded, had been brought to him that morning.

He was realizing to the full his cup of bitterness.

"We shall have to do it, Lem" he said to his private secretary.

That faithful individual bowed his head in mute misery.

"Yes," continued the municipal dignitary, as he put on his dress suit to go out to lunch, "there is nothing left for us now but to—"

The pain in his eyes showed how keenly he felt the disgrace.

—"take in St. Louis!"—N. Y. World.

IDEAS FOR STOUT WOMEN.

Lose Flesh by Dieting and Wearing Certain Garments.

Some one has said of matrimony that "it is a sort of cage which all who are out desire to get in and all who are in desire to get out." This sentence may be applied to stoutness, for all thin people want to be stout, at least moderately stout, while all stout people ardently wish to be thin.

It must be confessed, however, that the thin people are by no means as eager for a change as their fat friends, who loudly groan and complain under their burden. Undue embonpoint ages a woman. At 28, if she weighs 14 or 16 stone, she looks to be over 40. Her step is heavy, she can no longer dance or walk or exercise with pleasure. Her clothes wear out more quickly and she is more difficult to dress to advantage. All this she feels and murmurs at despite the smoothness of her unwrinkled countenance and despite the fact that it is far easier for the stout to get thin than for the naturally thin to get stout.

All sweets and farinaceous foods must be avoided by the stout woman if she wishes to grow thin and the daintiest and lightest dishes indulged in.

I know it is a very trying ordeal to be present at a good dinner and allow the most tempting and appetizing plates to pass untasted, but think of it—it is still worse to grow positively fat, isn't it?

A stout woman must dine on a mutton cutlet and slice of dried toast, a little soup and drink claret and water, for whatever her searchings of heart, whatever her leanings, she must force herself to recognize that plain food taken sparingly and exercise will reduce weight. Self-restraint must be her motto and if she casts it aside she does it at her peril.

The ambition of the stout woman must be to have her size attract as little attention as possible, and if she wears dull stuffs the eye, so to say, glances off and is not fixed by any unusual brilliancy. Stripes are advantages for the skirt, but not so much so for the bodice. Broadly speaking, however, all pekin materials worn in their length are becoming.

The bodice should be cut all in very sloping V's, with downward points. If she consults her interests she will be careful to have the underarm seam long, and to do this will, if necessary, have to bring it more to the front of the armhole than is usual. The basque must be cut away on the hips and the sleeves droop slightly, as is the mode. For street wear short mantles will be found best; jackets are rarely suitable, but if adopted should be of the reefer shape.

In dressing her hair a woman must always avoid ugly "corners" at her temples, by so arranging the fringe as to cover these bare spots prettily. If she has wide cheeks she must by no means adopt a narrow coiffure, as this will give her face the shape of a pear, smallest at the forehead and broadening out like that of Louis Philippe.

Mrs. Russell Hovey, one of the greatest authorities on matters of dress, once said: "Fat is only an injury to beauty when it spoils the shape. It keeps the skin smooth and unwrinkled and so is often a benefit to women when it comes to advancing years. What we have to do is to make size expressive. We must have long lines to enhance the height and heavy fabrics to obscure by their folds unsightly protuberances. The fat woman who in a tailor-made gown shows off every inch of her bulk is a deplorable spectacle. She might, with proper dressing, look big and grand, soft and lovely, so as to make little women and men look mean and commonplace beside her. The great secret for anyone who is over-stout, therefore, is not to show her outlines.

For those who regard the corset an absolute necessity let me whisper in their ears this little piece of advice: Never fasten it by a single lace, but by three, after the French fashion. Of these the first should come from the shoulder to within an inch of two of the waist. The second should begin about an inch or so below the waist and continue to the end of the corset. Both these should be firmly fastened off and should not vary in size at any time, being left very open, so as to allow the figure and especially the chest full liberty to expand. The third, the only one to be tightened or loosened at will, comes in the middle from a little above to a little below the waist, and left quite loose in the morning may be gradually drawn in if it be necessary to put on a close-fitting gown."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Don'ts for Mothers.

- Don't nag.
- Don't be too severe.
- Don't break your promises.
- Don't neglect your husband for the baby.
- Don't spoil the children by overindulgence.
- Don't talk about the children in their hearing.
- Don't forget that you were once a child yourself.
- Don't forget that your friends can hardly be expected to share your own absorbing interest in your infants.
- Don't claim that the children inherited all their bad qualities from their father, and all their good ones from you.
- Don't forget that every child should be entitled to a happy childhood, and that in later life you may not have the power or privilege of making it happy or guarding it from unhappiness.—Detroit Free Press.

The New York Herald has polled the States by telegraph with a view of ascertaining the financial complexion of the several delegations to the Chicago convention. The total number of delegates is 910, and the Herald's figures, based upon the action of conventions that have been held and estimates touching those to be held, are: For silver, 503; for gold, 373; doubtful, 34.

It is singular that of the twenty-two United States Senators North Carolina furnished up to 1861, twelve of them resigned, including the two that withdrew from the Senate in that memorable year. Excluding them, just half the Senators up to the war resigned. None have resigned since the war, unless we count Gov. Vance who withdrew when refused admission. Now few die and none resign.—Raleigh News and Observer

It's A Great Big Bluff.

A Washington dispatch says that the sound money men there "have given up in despair, contenting themselves with declaring that while there will be no organized bolt from the Chicago convention, the sound money men will not vote for a free coinage candidate nor will they give money to carry on his campaign." There is nothing in this bluff and it won't work. The free silver forces are not going to suffer in their campaign from a lack of money. The same source of supply which have been drawn upon for months and for years for funds with which to maintain headquarters and to distribute literature exploiting the glories of cheap money, can be drawn upon for all the velvet necessary to conduct a cheap money campaign. Every time the Republican national chairman pulls the esteemed leg of a protected manufacturer in behalf of McKinley, the cheap money chairman will call on a rich silver miner to cough up a contribution. There are already three or four separate and distinct free silver organizations, not counting the Democratic party, and we have never heard of any of them being in bankruptcy or behind with rents or salaries. The Eastern Democracy has heretofore put up about all the money that the national Democratic party has had to run upon, but there is nothing in the notion that the cheap money campaign is going to fall down because the wise men of the East won't contribute to it—the rich men of the West will take their places and the campaign will bowl merrily along.—Charlotte Observer.
