No. 460

C. T. MUNFORD,
 We are showing an elegant stock of Wash Fabrics, all new of this season's production, and just the thing for the warm weather, such as Dimities, Organdies, Batiste Spiral Cloths, Ducks, Gingham, Plisse and Fancy Swiss Muslins. Would call special attention to the beautiful selection of White Goods, Laces and Embroideries we have on hand, and still we are adding something new every few days. The prices are greatly reduced. The people are coming our way. Everybody admires our spring and summer styles of Clothing. No wonder the crowds come to our place one reason is, because they can buy suits that suit them, another reason is, because we have the courage to accept small profit. Low prices are quick travelers. Men who want style, elegance and durability at low cost should see our line. Our's are the worthiest garments to be found anywhere at anywhere near the price. Our customers demand Clothing of character and refinement—something above the ordinary "refinement"—fine grades, perfection of make, best taste, moderate prices are the prominent points in our clothes. We also have beautiful line of Gents Furnishing Goods which we are offering at surprisingly low figures.

Some Egg Yarns.

Several merchants were gathered on the shady side of the street whiling away the dull hours. Conversation drifted from one subject to another until it landed on eggs. Two or three rounds passed about big eggs, when John Andrews put in one that knocked all the others out. Said he "you fellows are nowhere on big eggs. When we boys went to the World's Fair we dropped in at a restaurant one day and among other things called for fried eggs. When the waiter came in he had one egg to a plate, but it was so large that it covered the plate and hung all over the edges."

Capt. White was noticed drawing a long breath and raising his hand like he was going to head Johnnie off, but the latter was too quick for him and gave them another: "There is one man who brings me so many eggs," he continued, "and it got to taking so much time to count them that the man got his hens to lay them on strings of a dozen, and when he comes now I just count a dozen at a time right along."

This so completely floored the crowd that they had to adjourn to Jim Long's for soda water.

Taken Sick at Church.

Mrs. Florence Dancy has been in poor health for sometime and had not attended church for two months. She felt so much better on Sunday that she decided to go out Sunday night. The walk to church was very trying to her strength and the lights making the building so warm she was taken very sick soon after the services started. Friends went to her assistance and she was carried from the building, but suffered intensely for some little time before she could be taken on home. In a note to the REFLECTOR she requests that her thanks be returned to all who in anyway administered to and assisted her. She expresses gratitude and appreciation to every one.

Hands Full.

Frank Hodges says he is the busiest man in town. His daily job is to watch the progress of the eight brick stores going up, keep an eye also on the double office building around the corner, look after the telephone wires as the linemen go along, keep everything in tobacco town moving along and see that the trains come and go on schedule time. He says he was about to put in a complaint that he had too much to do, when he found Prof. Ragsdale was helping him and concluded that between them both they could hold the job down.

The State Guard Encampment.

The Raleigh Press-Visitor says: "As to the encampment this year, it appears probable that the available money will be placed in the hands of the colonel of each regiment, who will probably be given authority to use it to the best advantage. At the encampments heretofore the regimental quartermasters have had no practical work to do. There is a desire on the part of some thoughtful officers to have practice or campaign matches as in some other States and as in the regular army."

An Exacting Landlord.

"Say, I think my landlord is one of the meanest men I ever met in my life."

"Well, what's the trouble now. How do you make that out?"

"How do I make it out? Why, he raised my rent when he took the paper off the wall because he said it made the room larger."—Boston Post.

Very Likely.

Little Sue: Ma, I wonder why it is that a rabbit has such a short tail?

Johnnie: I know, Sis; it's because they used up so much of the goods on his ears.

Two Wonderful Escapes.

Here are two accounts of wonderful escapes during the terrible recent storm in St. Louis. Says the Post Dispatch: "One of the peculiar freaks of the tornado was witnessed at the Drummond Tobacco Company's building, on Fourth and Spruce streets. A tinner was on the roof of the seven-story building repairing the roof when the storm came up. He ran under a little shed that had been erected on the roof next to the smokestack. When the worst of the tornado struck the building it lifted the shed, with the tinner in it, far up in the sky, twirled it about hundreds of times, with the tinner hanging to a scantling of the roof, then the thing began to come down at a terrible rate, when it struck a chimney on a building near Seventh street and Chouteau avenue, toppled it over into the street and then went sailing on. It crossed Chouteau avenue, raised in the air and continued its western course. It struck the slanting roof of a house on Ninth street, near Hickory, slid down that and fell on a tree that had been blown down by the storm, and the tinner walked out of the shed uninjured, save for a few bruises."

Says The Globe Democrat of Friday:

"When the tornado struck the river, near Morgan street, Wednesday evening it caught up and capsized a pleasure yacht lying close to the levee. Some half a dozen gentlemen were aboard the vessel, and all disembarked except Pattison, preferring to take their chance on terra firma than to risk death in the river. Scarcely had his companions disembarked when Pattison was hurled into the raging waters and the yacht capsized. Buffeted by wind and wave, Mr. Pattison started on his way to Cairo and the gulf, and, being a strong swimmer, he battled for life with all his power. Every now and then he sank under the waters, being repeatedly struck by flying missiles until his body was a mass of cuts and bruises. Scarcely an inch of his flesh but showed the marks of his terrible struggle with the elements. Finally, after being in the water for nearly an hour, he was enabled to make the Missouri shore a little north of Carondelet, where he lay exhausted for thirty minutes. Then, pulling himself together, he started on his long tramp through the black night over debris-encumbered streets to his home, on Thomas street which place he reached at midnight, after such a night's experience as few men have survived to tell."

"The world is wide, remember this, Nor shrink from fate's deep furrowed frown; Woo fortune with your brightest smiles, Don't let the world know when you're down."

No! Never let the world know that you have the worst of the fight. The world, the great big world, always yells for the dog on top in the fight. "Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone," has lots of truth in it.

LET THE BABIES YELL.

Babies should yell like merry—
 The wise physicians say;
 It strengthens lungs; so let their tongues
 Have practice all the day.
 Yes, let the babies yell! Oh, let the babies yell!
 Though neighbors choose bad words to use,
 Just let the babies yell!
 The lusty note from baby's throat
 Drives one to suicide;
 But kids grow strong by screech and song,
 With throattles open wide,
 So let the babies yell; let the babies yell!
 Though folks next door cuss all the more
 To hear the babies yell.

THE TEACHERS' MECCA.

Thirteenth Session of the N. C. Teachers' Assembly—Asheville, June 16th-23rd.

The prospects are that the approaching meeting of the N. C. Teachers' Assembly will be one of the most successful ever held in this State. The executive committee and Secretary Parker and President Joyner seem to have left no stone unturned to insure its success. The session has been shortened to a working session of five days with every afternoon for recreation. A full, attractive and varied program has been ranged, comprehending questions of living interest and vital importance to the advancement of the teacher's profession and to the educational and material development of the State, to be discussed by men and women whose eminent success and established reputation entitle them to speak with authority on these questions and insure able and helpful discussions.

The extremely low rate of one fare for the round-trip has been secured from all railroads in the State. An exceedingly low rate of board, ranging from $1.00 a day to $5.00 and $6.00 a week has been secured at many of the best hotels and private boarding houses in Asheville. These are the lowest rates ever before obtained for members of the Assembly. The railroad tickets remain in force till July 20th, and holders of Assembly certificates can secure the low rates of board for one month if desired.

After meeting at Morehead City for nine consecutive years, the change to the mountains will be restful and enjoyable and hundreds who had grown tired of the seashore and ceased to attend the meetings of the Assembly will take advantage of the remarkably low rates this year to renew their allegiance to the teachers organization, and to spend a delightful vacation of a few weeks at small expenses among the incomparable mountains of Western Carolina.

The citizens of Asheville seem unusually enthusiastic over the coming of the educators to their city, and are arranging to give all who attend a royal welcome.

The meeting of the Assembly has been very widely advertised in every corner of North Carolina through newspapers and circulars. We understand that programs and full information about the approaching meeting have been sent to nearly every public and private school teacher in the State.

We predict that the approaching session of the Assembly will be one of the greatest, most enthusiastic, and successful educational gatherings ever held in North Carolina.

Table Talk.

"H'm!" murmured Mr. Junius from his paper, "a man in Kansas falls dead while smoking his pipe, and"—
 "There!" cried Mrs. Junius, raising her needle and voice with the same gesture, "isn't that what I've always said and yet you will go on day after day with those horrid old cigars and me slaving my life away doing up lace curtains that mother gave us out of the very money she saved up with her own hands keeping hens and hard enough too I can tell you with eggs down to 12 cents the very moment hens begin laying as they ought to and I'd like to know where you think you'll land Junius if you keep on smoking your life away, Oh I know you say a cigar isn't as bad as a pipe but it is only a step and for pity's sake I wish you'd fix that one to the front door before some caller trips over it and breaks the knob with her spring bonnet and you know very well I've begged you on my bended knees to leave off before it's too late and not die suddenly like this man you're reading about with your life insurance run out and bringing everlasting disgrace on your wife's family but what a provoking creature you are Julius Junius to sit there grinning and refusing to say a word and you know I want to hear the rest of the particulars just as well as you do."

As his wife stopped to coal up Mr. Junius laid down the paper.

"The man was ninety-six years old," he said; softly; "somebody put a cartridge in his pipe for a joke and it went off and shot him."

And when Mr. Junius came in from the evening chores his wife was still flowing on unbrokenly.—New York World.

Let us Stand Together.

In the Populist party in Granville are many of our good citizens who are honest in their convictions, but take no stock in spoils hunters, and to these we earnestly appeal to place themselves on the side of the people for the protection of their homes and firesides. And we say with emphasis let every white man who believes in home rule and government in State and county affairs controlled by white people, come together on one common plane hand in hand and save us from negro domination Lay aside prejudice as our interests are one, remembering that our liberties are at stake in the approaching campaign.

The masses of the people believe in free coinage of silver, and hence we see no reason why they cannot come together for their common good, especially since the money issue has taken shape before the American people that forbids any middle ground between the masses and the goldbugs, who are bleeding the farmers and business men of the south and west at every pore. Consequently the great fight has narrowed down between the people and the money sharks. The question now arises who shall rule. The people or the combined money power of Wall street and the Rothschilds of England?—Oxford Ledger.

GOLD IN DEER'S TEETH.

Man Who Found It Now Trying to Discover a Mine.

Gold has been found in a variety of queer places, among others in the dust shaken from chickens' feathers, in the crops of wild turkeys, and between the toes of a wolf hound. The latest odd place for gold is as a filling for a deer's teeth, and it is told of in the Nidologist by John A. Bryant, of Kansas City, Mo. A Kansas City taxidermist was found in a great state of excitement by Mr. Bryant. He had recently got two deer heads for mounting from Colorado. The jaws of both deer were being scraped, and then the taxidermist observed a peculiar substance crusted on the teeth. This sediment was brownish yellow in color, and just for fool's luck the man scraped it off and sent it to an assayer. The assayer got a lump of gold, pure, yellow gold, from the stuff, and the taxidermist made haste to find out the precise locality where the deer were killed. Then he asked about the deer licks where the animals got their salt. He doesn't know yet whether the gold came from a salt lick or from the dust blown onto the grass or browse on which the deer fed.

The taxidermist said that the deer were killed not more than 100 miles from the Cripple Creek gold mines, and further, that he knows the spot exactly. He thinks that if deer can get gold filling for their teeth in the ordinary course of nature, a man can get bushels of it. He has so much faith in this that he is going to sell out his business, buy a burro, a grub stake, and a prospector's pick, and then go to prospecting on the deers' trails.

VENDETTAS IN SICILY.

Still Prevalent, and the Slightest Trifle Brings Them On.

In Sicily, young men who are eligible partis have to exercise extreme care in their demeanor toward young unmarried ladies. To dance with them so often as to be remarked, to attempt to talk to them alone, is, to use the ingenious expression of an Italian friend of mine, expected to make you their future-in-law. In the lower classes, says the New York Mercury, a vendetta results if a man pays attention to an unmarried girl without marrying her. Vendettas are quite prevalent still. I heard a characteristic and rather amusing story about one the other day. A gentleman's coachman did his part in a vendetta and was sent to prison for a term—there being no capital punishment in Sicily. His master went to visit him in prison, and asked if he could do anything for him. "Yes, signor; if you will pay half a franc a day for me I can have a better room and better food, and a shave." He attached most importance to the shave. If a man sees his brother being murdered, not more than anyone else in the crowd will he do anything to bring the offender to justice. He may not even interfere. But he will take it upon himself as a sacred duty to kill the murderer whenever he has him at his mercy.

BRIEF BUT INTERESTING.

The Story of an Interview with the Grand Old Man.

The correspondent of a London paper was seated on the stairs leading from the peers' gallery one day, when Mr. Gladstone happened to come downstairs unobserved by him. As the correspondent blocked the way the Grand Old Man said to him, politely: "Will you kindly let me pass?" The question at once suggested a brilliant idea to the newspaper man. He rushed to the telegraph office and sent this dispatch to his paper: "I had a somewhat brief but profoundly interesting conversation with Mr. Gladstone last evening, meeting the right honorable gentleman in the lobby," etc. Mr. Gladstone never denied the authenticity of the half column of conversation that followed.

A MYSTERY OF THE RIFLE.

Unaccountable Result of Shooting from a Visé.

Something that no man understands is why a rifle, clamped in an immovable vise, will not put a bullet in the same hole every time, even if the wind does not interfere. A correspondent of Shooting and Fishing tells how he put a rifle of 32 caliber into a vise and fired it ten times, the sights being always aimed directly at a mark. The bullets went all over a four-inch circle at 50 yards. Theoretically all ought to have gone into the same hole.

A man who holds his rifle gripped hard at one time and easily at another will not shoot as well as one who takes the same hold of his rifle every time. The best results are obtained from bench rests when the man puts his shoulder against the rifle butt.

Her Hat an Obstruction.

It is a literal fact, says a London paper, that the conductor of an omnibus had to press down a girl's hat at each side the other day before she could get in at the door. The wearer of the cart-wheel could not make out what was hindering her from getting in, when the conductor, with a polite "Allow me," gently depressed the brim on either side.

A Big Shark.

A shark measuring 16 feet in length is announced as having been captured lately in the harbor of Sydney, N. S. W. The fish's stomach on being opened was found to contain a large dog's collar, a man's coat, a briarwood pipe, some coppers and a great number of safety pins.

A "Confed" to General Grant.

A Lincoln county Confederate veteran called to see us one day this week and presented us with a copy of the following little story, which first appeared in print in 1871, and if at any time since, its droll, good natured humor will excuse its reproduction here:

"During the war a 'Confed' was captured by the Yankees and happened to be taken to Gen. Grant's headquarters. After being questioned by the General, the 'Confed' asked him where he was going. "I am going," said Grant, "to Richmond, to Petersburg, to Heaven and it may be I will go to hell." After eyeing the General for several moments, the old 'Confed' said: "Gen. Grant, you can't go to Richmond, for General Lee is there; you can't go to Petersburg, for General Beauregard is there; you can't go to Heaven, for Stoevall Jackson is there, but as to going to hell, you may get there, for I know of no Confederates in that region."—Charlotte Democrat.

Observations.

The philosopher is the man the other fellow calls a crank.
The epicure is what the man calls himself who's really a glutton.
The freethinker is often a man who is merely free from thought.
The angel is a woman who isn't married yet.
The altruist is a chap who doesn't look out for his own family.
The optimist and pessimist are the same fellow before and after the race.
The breadwinner is the member of the family who usually prefers beer.

Hungary has not been developing for a thousand years for nothing.

In that country a man convicted of bigamy is punished by being compelled to live with both wives in the same house. The few bigamists who have survived the fearful ordeal have petitioned the Diet to commute their sentences to fourteen years in the penitentiary, but the Diet does not consider that bigamy deserves such clemency.—Richmond Dispatch.
