Weekly Crop Bulletin.

The reports of correspondents of the Weekly Crop Bulletin, issued by the North Carolina Climate and Crop Service, for the week ending Saturday June 6th, 1896, indicate in general fair progress in the growth of crops and in harvesting. The temperature was below the normal every day, excepting Sunday (May 31st) and Saturday (June 6th,) but the deficiency was not excessive and did little damage, except to retard growth of cotton and cause a little yellowing. The rain-fall was considerably above normal, and, though too much rain occurred at many places, yet the thorough breaking of the drought almost everywhere throughout the State compensates for any other disadvantages. There was less than half the normal amount of sunshine.

EASTERN DISTRICT.

The past week has been cool and cloudy, with frequent rains, setting in fair and warmer on Saturday. It is still dry over limited portions of the middle coast, but in general, ample rains have fallen over the District this week. In the north, from Halifax eastward to Chowan, and especially over Gates county, there was too much rain, causing corn to turn yellow and crowning some on lowlands, besides making crops very grassy and preventing farm work. In the south daily gentle rains were just suited for growth of crops, which progressed rapidly here and are clean. Corn generally is fine, much of it in silk and tassel, and being laid by. Cotton in south looks well and clean good stand, first forms reported June 2d; in north it is not so good on account of cool weather. Lice reported on cotton in several places. Transplanting tobacco over, crop growing well, but worms have appeared in abundance. Farmers almost through setting sweet potatoes. Shipments of Irish potatoes and beans proceeding. Irish potato crop generally poor; fine tops but no tubers. Cutting wheat and planting field peas now in order. Blackberries and huckleberries now in market.

CENTRAL DISTRICT.

Cool and cloudy weather prevailed, with plenty of rain and deficiency of sunshine until Saturday. Over most of the District the rain-fall was gentle and beneficial, but heavy rains washed lands in a few counties (chiefly Guilford and Randolph.) Grass is increasing among crops and farmers are getting behind with their work, but a week of fair weather will remedy this state of affairs. Corn is extra promising, and is being laid by slowly. Harvesting wheat is in full blast; with crop short but heads well filled; some fields were tangled by rain and wind, and some damage by chinch bugs still reported. Oats apparently not so bad as expected and spring oats improved during past two weeks. The greater part of the cotton crop continues in good condition, about all chopped, and forming squares in south; on light, thin lands cool nights caused a little yellowing. Lice reported at many places. Tobacco nearly all transplanted, except where drought hitherto prevented (Forsyth county), where setting is progressing, crop growing well. Irish potatoes poor. Sowing peas on stubble land.

WESTERN DISTRICT.

Fine rains occurred on the 3d and 4th, breaking the drought almost everywhere, and greatly benefitting all crops. Oats were improved by the showers, though much of the crop has been injured beyond recovery by the drought. Corn and cotton are doing finely since the rains. It was a fine season on tobacco plants recently set out, and also on potato slips. Rain assisted greatly in bringing up late planted cotton. Peas are being planted in fields now. Grapes are generally reported doing nicely. Harvesting of wheat was the chief work of the week: crop short, but grain good. Rain stopped work, but crops not suffering for want of cultivation.

TEMPERANCE DEPARTMENT.

THE FIRST GLASS.

MRS. M. L. P.

Young man, touch not the ruby wine,
There's danger in the bowl;
Danger to health and happiness,
And danger to the soul.
Set down the glass, as yet untouched,
Ere you its poison drink;
Pause for a moment, count the cost,
'Twill pay you well to think.
Life holds for you a promise rare,
The world is very wide;
Honors and friendships waiting stand
To journey at your side,
Your feet may climb with steady steps
The dizzy heights of fame,
Will you have gained the highest point
And carved thereon your name.
Look yonder at that broken neck,
With tottering steps and slow;
He was a young and honored man
A few short years ago.
He had of wealth a boundless store,
Love smiled upon his way;
His life held every happiness,
But what is he to-day?

A broken, bloated, ragged wretch,
Men pass him by with scorn;
Better it were for him and his
He never had been born.
What made him what he is to-day?
What robbed him of his name?
What stole his honor and his name?
The cursed fiend of drink.
Would you, too, tread the downward
way,
And be to rum a slave.
'Till false to truth, to honor lost
You fill a drunkard's grave?
Don't say: I'll only drink just once;
That surely is no harm."
That fatal glass, the first you take,
Unnerves your steady arm.

You say that you can stop at will;
It is not so my friend;
After the first the second comes,
And soon you reach the end.
'Tis the first glass that makes the sot,
Then shun it while you can;
Be true to honor and yourself,
God's noblest work—a man.
Don't tread the rapid downward way,
To fill a drunkard's grave;
Look up to Him, if you are weak,
Who has the power to save,
Don't drink the first, that fatal glass,
'Twill dim your beaming eye,
For honor's sake,
For love's dear sake
For God's sake pass it by.

HOW IT PAYS.

BY EDWARD CARSWELL.

He was seated on a Park bench—a dilapidated-looking fellow—and seemed to be reading a letter or paper which he held in his hand.
"You seem to be much interested in your letter," I said, as I took a seat on the same bench.
"Yes," he said, "I have been figuring out my account with Old Alcohol, to see how we stand."
"And he comes out ahead," I ventured the guess.
"Every time, and he has lied like sixty."
"How did you come to have dealings with him in the first place?"

"That's what I have been writing. You see he promised to make a man of me, but he made me a beast. Then he said he would brace me up, but he has made me go staggering around and then threw me into the ditch.

"He said I must drink to be social. Then he made me quarrel with my best friends, and to be the laughing-stock of my enemies; he gave me a black eye and a broken nose.

"Then I drank for the good of my health. He ruined the tittle I had and left me "sick as a dog."

"Of course."

"He said he would warm me up; and I was soon nearly frozen to death.

"He said he would steady my nerves; but instead he gave me delirium tremens.

"He said he would give me great strength; and he made me helpless."

"To be sure."

"He promised me courage."

"Then what followed?"

"Then he made me a coward, for I beat my sick wife and kicked my little child.

"He said he would brighten my wits; but instead he made me act like a fool, and talk like an idiot.

"He promised to make a gentleman of me; but he made a tramp."

"Then you quit?" I ventured to ask.

"No!" he answered sadly. "I drink now to forget all the other mean things he has made me do. Say! could you let a poor workingman out of employment have ten cents to buy bread?"

"I see he has also made you a liar," I remarked.

"Yes, I forgot that. I must put it down."

About 100 farmers and others who are for gold have issued an address to the people of the State. Many thousands of copies of this are being circulated, as supplements to gold papers. If the silver men of the State would sign a petition it would take a tremendous book to hold their names. The address impugns the honesty of silver men and says they favor paying debts with a 50 cent dollar, which is false. The silver men favor a 100 cent dollar; the gold men favor a 200 cent dollar. The demonetization of silver has given to the gold dollar the power to purchase two dollars worth of produce.—Kinston Free Press.

It is a good sign to see the color of health on a man's cheek, but not to see it all heaped together on his nose.

The habits of fruit are peculiar; we have seen a raisin box, a fig drum, and an apple stand all day at the corner of the street.

Complexion Hints.

Overfrequent washing of the face should be avoided. Some physicians insist that the face should be washed but once a day, and then in tepid water.

A certain amount of exercise is indispensable. Brisk morning walks, regularly taken and persistently adhered to, produce a healthy glow that defies artificial imitation.

Avoid rich and greasy foods. Though it is practically useless to tell a woman to abjure sweets, it may be suggested that they are complexion destroyers, and that the fewer one eats the fairer one's skin is likely to be.

Massage is recommended by many who have made a special study of the fine art of complexion-preserving. A gentle kneading of the face at night and in the morning makes the skin soft and healthy.

Famous beauties nearly all unite in giving testimony that a thorough steaming of the face at night is wonderfully effective in producing a clear complexion. This is done by holding the face over a bowl of hot water.—Chicago Record.

NO MORE COLD WEATHER.

I am now prepared to furnish ice in any quantity, and will keep well supplied throughout the summer. All orders in town delivered without extra charge. When you want to be served promptly send me your orders.

IN NORTH CAROLINA

Matters Of Interest Over the State.
Some one at Hillsboro, in the Hillsboro Observer, of last week, asked why it is that University Station is like the gubernatorial prospects this year in North Carolina? He answered by saying that at University Station you change cars for Chapel Hill, while the Democratic party will charge Car(r)s for Governor.
R. H. Battle, at the Normal commencement: Vance, the mountain boy, was walking with Dr. Mitchell, the learned geologist, one afternoon at the University. They came to an old mill with a broken dam. Vance pausing for a moment looked at both mill and dam, and said to the good old doctor, with a straight face: "Doctor that mill ain't worth a dam!" The doctor thought that was just about the size of it.—Greensboro V. J. Fireman.

MISHAP TO A SMUGGLER.

A Cab Runs Over Him and Betrays an Ingenious Device.
Near one of the gates leading into Paris an old man of stout proportions was seen one day wending his way, when a cab, driven at great speed, approached, and as the man paid no attention to the warning cry of the Jehu, he was knocked down and the vehicle passed over his body, to the consternation of the spectators.

A crowd gathered round the venerable individual, who lay on the ground, not in a pool of blood, but in one of oil. The hero of this misadventure, who had only been slightly stunned by the shock, soon rose to his feet, with profuse thanks for all the sympathy and compassion which his accident had elicited, and then, disregarding further offers of assistance, began to shuffle off as fast as his legs would carry him.

One of the eyewitnesses of this curious scene went up to an employe of the octroi and gave an account of the episode, upon which the official, running after the victim of the accident, extended to him a polite invitation to rest in his office.
"I assure you I am not hurt," replied the old gentleman, who displayed great anxiety to take himself off.
"So much the better," replied the employe, "but I want to have a little talk with you, all the same."

Some gentle force was required to induce the corpulent one to enter the office, but once there he was made to undress, when he was found to be almost a skeleton. The mystery was soon explained. He had between his waistcoat and his shirt a skin receptacle which was capable of containing from six to seven liters of liquid. On this particular occasion it had been filled with oil, and while it had saved the bearer from severe injury, it had betrayed him, and he was removed to the depot at the prefecture of police amid the laughter of the people who had witnessed the accident.

A quantity of receptacles of the kind described have been found at his dwelling, and another individual has already been arrested on suspicion of being an accomplice. It need scarcely be added that the oil was thus introduced into Paris with the object of evading the octroi dues. As a matter of fact, all sorts of devices are employed by persons who make a specialty of this fraud, but it is not often that a person is detected in these tragicomic circumstances.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

She Thanked Him.

An effective reproof was that given by an elderly man to a fashionably-dressed young woman, who, as it seems, must have been surprised out of her "manners." The young woman was walking rapidly along a street shaded by many trees, when the elderly man, coming up behind her, saw a large fuzzy caterpillar on the collar of her coat. "I beg your pardon," he said, laying a detaining hand on her arm as he spoke and removed the obnoxious crawler. "I wished to take off this caterpillar, which was almost at your neck." The young woman stared haughtily and with an air of resentment at the caterpillar and was about to pass on, with no word of thanks. "If I made a mistake, and you would prefer to have the caterpillar replaced, I can easily put it back," said the gentleman courteously, snatching the action to the word. "Oh, no, no, please take it off!" said the young woman, her haughtiness quickly vanishing; and with his second removal the elderly man got his "Thank you," and the caterpillar found another resting place.—Youth's Companion.

Living Flies in a Bag
A gentleman living west of town tells us that he saw a lady neighbor catching flies a few days ago in a way that is new and original. She had melted the bottom out of a small tin bucket and tied a small sack on one end, then put molasses inside the bucket. The flies would gather in the bucket, when she would close the other end of the bucket and shake them down in the bag and tie it up.—Burlington News.

Won Her By A Bluff

The old gentleman did not object in his heart to the young man as a son-in-law, but he was one of that kind of gentlemen who like to raise objections first and then reach an agreement, as though conferring a favor. When the young man called he was ready for him.
"So," he interrupted fiercely, almost before the suitor could commence, "you want me to let you marry my daughter, do you?"
The young man very coolly responded, "I didn't say so did I?"
The old gentleman gasped, "but you were going to do so."
Who told you I was?" inquired the applicant, seeing his advantage.
"But you want me to let you marry her don't you?"
"No!"
"No!" exclaimed the old gentleman, almost falling off the chair.
Then what the devil do you want?"
I want you to give your consent," replied the youth pleasantly.
"I'm going to marry her anyhow, but we thought your consent wouldn't be a bad thing to have as a start."
It took the old gentleman a minute to realize the situation. When he did, he put out his hand. "shake hands, my boy," said he. "I've been looking for a son-in-law with some pluck about him and I'm sure you'll do first class."
