PRESENT CROP PROSPECTS.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

From the information that we have from private correspondence and other sources as well, the Virginia crop is very much damaged by recent heavy rains which in some places have been very destructive to not only crops of every kind, but it has caused many dangerous washouts along various rail roads, and number of hogs and cattle in the low lands of river bottoms have been drowned. We have had several letters during the last few days from tobaccoists all over the country inquiring after the crop prospects in Eastern North Carolina. All of them state that the rains have been most disastrous to the tobacco crop especially. In some places the crop is just simply washed to death, so to speak. Up in the central part of this State, around Durham, Roxboro, Oxford and Henderson, all advisers state that they have had entirely too much rain while all eyes are turned to Eastern North Carolina and information concerning the crop condition is eagerly sought. We don't suppose that there has ever been a year since the farmers of the eastern section have been growing tobacco when it was more difficult to arrive at an intelligent understanding of the true condition of the tobacco crop than this year. Reports from the farmers are all conflicting as to the crop. For instance the writer has always made it a point when enquiring about the crop condition in any particular section to get the opinion of three or four representative men in that section and the report of these farmers generally agree on the main points, but this year we have been completely stumped along this line. Only a few days ago we saw two farmers that came to town from the same section. We asked one of them how crops were in his section and his reply was that he never saw crops poorer in his life. He said tobacco did not look to him to be in a healthy condition, that in his judgment in his neighborhood the tobacco crop was by far the poorest one that had ever been planted. In a short while we saw another farmer from this same section standing with a group of men discussing crops of course, we walked up and asked him how crops were in his section, his reply was the exact reverse of what the other one had said. Why said he, crops are just as good as we could want them." Then he said it was true that the crop was somewhat broken and irregular but on the whole he thought the average a fair one. These two gentlemen are representative men and excellent farmers, both of them and their report of the crop in their neighborhood is one like you would get in almost every section of Eastern North Carolina this year. We did not understand these conflicting statements at first but upon investigation came to this conclusion: Plants were irregular in the spring, some farmers had early plants and some did not. Those who had early plants, and got their crop out early have good crops of tobacco while the man whose plants were late necessarily made a late setting and while the crop may yet turn out to be a good one prospects at present are not at all flattering, especially with the man among the late tobacco. This is true all over the east from whence we have any information and the crop is about equally divided one half set out early and the other late. The first tobacco that was set out up to a few days ago was looking splendid, but Eastern North Carolina has not escaped the heavy rains that have been falling farther up the country and at present it is entirely too wet for tobacco. Curing the older crop is now going on pretty brisk and these rains have a tendency to make the tobacco fire up on the hill, besides the gum is washed out and the tobacco will necessarily be chaffy and light. What the outcome of the crop will be no one can yet tell, but unless it stops raining and that soon prospects will begin to look gloomy, and if it does, the crop will not be an average one unless there is a great change from now.

HERE IS WHAT THEY ARE DOING.

The People Endorsing President Bryan.

Topeka, Kan., July 12.—In forty-three counties in Kansas yesterday delegates were elected to the non-partisan silver State Convention to be held next Wednesday, and in every county the delegates were instructed to vote for men who will endorse the nomination of William J. Bryan. Seven Populist conventions passed similar resolutions. The non-partisan conventions were composed of free silver Republicans, Democrats, and Populists.

Pueblo, Colo., July 12.—An outdoor ratification meeting was held here last night in honor of Bryan and Sewall. A lifelong friend of Senator Teller said that Senator Teller indorses Bryan and will support him in his candidacy for the Presidency of the United States.

Climbing Down.

If our recollection serves, the most popular song of the year 1892 was something like this:

"Brother Cleveland got elected,
'Twas no more that I expected—Climbing up the golden stairs"

—and so on. Truly, he climbed up the golden stairs. But this year he seems to be climbing down the same stairs and someone else is going up the silver stairs.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Bethel Notes.

BETHEL, N. C. July 14, 1896.—Rev. Albert Barnes returned from a visit to Fremont last Friday evening

Prot. B. F. Hassell and family left last Thursday to spend a few days with his father in Tyrrell county.

W. J. Whitehurst while at the phone last Friday evening during a storm was knocked down by electricity and was stunned for a while, but soon recovered from the effect.

We are glad to know that the new depot will be completed at an early day. The tobacco farmers are all busy curing tobacco.

The Democrats are all well pleased here with the nomination of Bryan.

A RETROSPECT AND AN ASSURANCE.

Many of those who have had jeers or sympathy for this paper on account of the fact that it has made a losing fight on the coinage question, will naturally suppose that it will find itself surrounded by embarrassments under the conditions which at this moment confront it—these conditions being a Democratic free silver candidate for President on a free silver platform. It does not feel embarrassed or chagrined in the least, and will disappoint those who have expected to see it join the Republican party, and likewise those who expect it to maintain a nominal connection with the Democratic party but to sulk through the campaign.

Throughout Mr. Cleveland's first term as President and his last the writer has been a steadfast supporter of his financial policy, barring the one difference with him as to the seignorage bill. The best thought that he has been able to bring to the subject, and the deepest study that he has been able to give it, have fixed it in his mind, with all the power of conviction, that the policy of maintaining the gold standard in this country is the correct one. There has been no such thing as avoiding discussion of this question for the past two years and more. Two courses were therefore left open to us—to teach what we believed or to profess what we did not believe. We conceive that in the position taken we have the support of the unbroken history of the party, up to the day before yesterday, though we have never for one moment mistaken the sentiment of the Democratic party of North Carolina on the subject. Beginning with 1890, the party in the State has declared for free coinage in 1892, '94 and '96. The greater the agitation of the subject the stronger the silver sentiment. By some fatality this paper became, of all individuals and instrumentalities in the State, the principal object of attack, and it has had no bed of roses. Its history for a year has been one of buffeting and strife. Nothing has given us so much pain as the fact that there has been installed in the minds of the agricultural people the belief that the Observer is their enemy; but neither for personal distress nor business considerations could we abandon a position deliberately and thoughtfully taken in what we believed to be the best interest of every citizen, nor is it to be understood that we abate any part of that opinion now. If it were to go over we should pursue the same policy again, with the same certain end in view.

But the party has spoken, and while it has incorporated a new doctrine among its articles of faith, there is nowhere for the Observer to go. It believes in the principle of majority rule—that is one reason why it is a Democrat. This party is tolerant of differences among its members, and that is another reason why we are a Democrat—it allows liberty of opinion and any man who believes in its fundamental principles may be a member of it whether he subscribes to all of its policies or not. It is a revenue tariff party, yet it numbers in its ranks many protectionists. It is an anti-sumptuary party and yet thousands of prohibitionists acknowledge it as the ark of the covenant to them. For eighteen years this money question has been more or less at issue, Mr. Bland having begun a free silver crusade at least as far back as 1878, when the Bland-Allison coinage act passed Congress as a compromise measure; and if throughout all these years free coinage and anti-free coinage Democrats have been permitted to enjoy equal rights in the party, we see no reason why they may not be permitted to continue to do so. We shall be no disturber of its peace; we shall avoid, as far as possible, discussion of controverted questions; but, please God, we are not going anywhere just because we do not believe in the financial doctrine laid down at Chicago, for there is too much else in Democracy that we do believe in while there is nothing anywhere else. It may be, after all, that the majority of the party is entirely right about this coinage question and the minority all wrong though we do not think so. But at all events we know it is right about the tariff and a hundred other questions and will take our chances with it on free coinage or whatever else may come.—Charlotte Observer.

Above is a manly editorial from the Charlotte Observer. It is so different from what many a paper is now saying which pursued the same course as this one before the convention that we cannot refrain from giving it to our readers in full. It marks a man, and it marks him with convictions. It shows manhood to assert them at the proper time. But above all it shows that the editor has the manhood to subordinate his personal preferences for the good of the party.

We have always believed that Joe Caldwell was one of the first men of the State and our opinion is now strengthened. Whatever this paper has said, and it has had something to say, in reference to the Observer's position on the financial question and what it would do after the convention, has been along the line of a little pleasantry. We have never for a moment doubted Joe Caldwell's devotion to the Democratic party and its principles and have never believed that he would do anything but what he has ever been doing, stand first and foremost in his advocacy of its ticket. He had convictions of duty before the convention and he expressed them without fear, and regardless of popular favor. Since the convention he still has convictions of his duty and no man in North Carolina will take precedence of him in telling the people what these convictions are. All honor to Joe Caldwell, the editor of one of the best dailies the Old North State has ever had.

He Loved His Master.

The other day the cook was away and Louis, who was busy writing, took his meals in the room. Knowing there was no one to cook his lunch, he told Sosimo, his body servant, to bring him some bread and cheese. To his surprise he was served with an excellent meal—an omelet, a good salad and perfect coffee.

"Who cooked this?" asked Louis, in Samoon.

"I did," said Sosimo.

"Well," said Louis, "great is your wisdom."

Sosimo bowed and corrected him—"Great is my love!"

Long ago Louis had a topaz stud that was somewhat difficult to put into his shirt; so he gave it to me. I laid it away in my trinket box and was dismayed when I first wanted to wear it to find it gone. Sosimo had missed the stud, discovered it in my box and carried it back to Louis's room. I kept up the fight for some time, trying to secrete it from Susimo by putting it in out of the way places, but it was invariably found in Louis's room, no matter where I had hidden it.

When he came up from the ship he put Louis's valise down on the veranda and carefully abstracted from his mementoes the precious stud he had carried there for safety. I gave up then, and it is now Louis's own—"Robert Louis Stevenson's Home Life," by Isabel Strong, in Scribners.

ARTHUR SEWALL.

On the fifth ballot Arthur Sewall, of Maine, received the nomination for the Vice-Presidency at Chicago by the Democratic Convention. He was born at Bath, Me., November, 25, 1835. He has been a life-long Democrat, and has been chairman of the Maine Democratic state committee for many years. His residence is the Sewall estate in Bath, which has been in the possession of the Sewall family since 1760, when his great grand-father took the title, only three removes from a grant by King George. Mr. Sewall married in 1859. His wife was Emma D. Crookes, of Bath.

There are two children—Harold M. and William D. Harold M. was appointed during Mr. Cleveland's first administration United States consul general at Samoa, but has since gone over to the Republican party. Mr. Sewall has been engaged most of his life in ship building and ship owning. In the early days he built the wooden whalers and coasters, for which the state of Maine was famous. The firm has been Sewall & Son for three generations.

Mr. Sewall is president and principal owner of the Bath national bank. He was president for nine years of the Maine Central railway. He resigned the latter position two years ago. He was at one time president of the Eastern railroad, and has still quite considerable interests in railroads and in railroad building.

Nuckolls County, Nebraska, offers a bounty for wolf scalps. The other day some bad Kansas men caught a litter of young wolves, took them across the line and killed them in front of the Nuckolls Courthouse. As the wolves were clearly killed in the county the bounty was paid on them.

The largest farm in this country, if not in the world, is in Louisiana, and is owned by a Northern syndicate. It is one hundred miles long and twenty-five wide. It cost $50,000 to fence in the 1,600,000 acres, which are divided up into ranches.

Even More Wonderful.

"When you come to think of it it is wonderful how many men have achieved distinction in youth," said the man with the magazine.

"Possibly, possibly," replied the man with the newspaper, "but I run across things every day that are more wonderful than that."

"Such as what?"

"Well, the number of young men who haven't achieved distinction, but who think they have."

And the man with the magazine was convinced.—Chicago Post.

SHOULD WOMAN WEEP?
If She Must, Let Her Shed Her Tears Artistically.

"Should woman weep?" is a topic of discussion by the readers of Woman, a London publication. One contributor puts in a most emphatic "No!" The crying woman, it is maintained, is out of date—she belongs to the '40's and '50's, and not to this end of the century.

Women was then a submissive slave and man the righteous ruler. Now all is changed. The new woman is here and she rules; therefore, she should not cry.

In the opinion of another writer, a woman should cry provided she does so "noiselessly." "If her face begins to swell, all wails should cease and she must not sniff, gulp or otherwise make an object of herself. If she does all the pathos of her crying is gone." The idea is thrown out that "style" in weeping should be cultivated; for there are several "forms" of weeping. "Some weep alone to their pillow in the dead of night." This, it is held, is a mistake, because it makes the weeper old and ugly before her time, and does not do anybody the slightest good.

Then there is the woman who is crying at every opportunity and inopportune moment. That is bad form in weeping. The "whimpering style, with a grievance, usually found in the past middle-age lady," is to be shunned. The worst form of all is the "red-faced cry of temper," which usually asserts itself in an injudicious stamp of the beautifully arched Trilby and ends in a general stampede of the assembled multitude.

Lobster Newberg.
Take the meat of a two-pound lobster and cut it into small pieces; melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a chafing dish or frying pan, add the lobster and cook for five minutes; add one tablespoonful of brandy and one of sherry; cook for three minutes, stirring often. Have ready the yolks of two eggs, beaten with one-half cupful of cream; pour this over the lobster, cook two minutes, stirring constantly to prevent curdling; serve very hot. This recipe makes enough for four persons. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg.—Good Housekeeping.

Floral Shoulder Straps.
Flowers on ball dresses are "correct," but they are, so far, only used as shoulder straps, and generally in a combination of colors. Thus white and mauve violets and roses, wall-flower and narcissus are very happy, if, be it well understood, the flowers are of the very best quality; otherwise it is preferable to make your shoulder straps of full mirror velvet, finished off with a chou, as there is nothing more unsatisfactory than common flowers.—Phila-

—DR. H. O. HEATT.

"If I were a mule
And some blame fool
Would dare to lash me through
A 'dead tough' road,
With a great big load,
I'll tell you what I'd do:
I wouldn't crow,
But I'd just lie low,
And keep most mighty 'mum'
Till I got a chance,
When I'd kick his pants
Clear into the kingdom come."
Sweet Music.
Last night portions of our citizens were delighted with a serenade by some of our Greenville talent. It consisted of Piccolo by George Woodward, mandolin by Charlie Forbes, and guitar by Ollen Warren. It was sweet music and the talent of these three gentlemen is of a high order. There is nothing more enchanting than to be awakened from a deep slumber to listen to the sweet strains of string instruments. We have heard these gentlemen complimented before and we say justly so.

VOX POPULI.

Rev. E. D. Wells left Monday evening for Seven Springs.

A. Forbes and son, Fred, left Monday evening for Kinston and Morehead.
We are glad to hear of the improvement of Mr. James Brown's eyes. He was out yesterday.
Judge Ollen Warren took the train this morning—but it was too heavy for him and he didn't take it far.

The funeral of Mrs. Frank Pittman took place this afternoon at the family burial ground, about 5 miles from town.
Miss Bernice Wooten, who has been visiting Miss Ada Wooten, returned to her home in Kinston Monday evening.
Miss Lizzie Pritchett, of Kinston, who has been visiting Miss Emma Harris, returned home Monday evening.
Miss Lizzie Highsmith, returned to her home at Conetoe this morning after a pleasant visit to the family of Allen Warrner.
Miss Dora Carr, who has been spending a while with Miss Novella Higgs, returned to her home in Greene county this morning.
H. T. King and D. J. Whichard left this morning for the North Carolina Press Association, which convenes in Wilmington to-morrow.

The sugar crop of Cuba, for this year now harvested, amounts to 200,- 000 tons, worth $10,000,000, against former crops of 1,100,000 tons, worth $50,000,000. It costs sugar to keep up the racket over there.

New Building.

Capt. J. T. Williams is now building a handsome dwelling for Mr. E.
A. Moye near the College Hotel. It is a two-story house on the English cottage style and will be a beauty when finished. Mr. Ola Forbes will soon have one on the road to completion.

Stabbed Her With a Pin.

The following we clipped from the Richmond Dispatch of the 13th. R.
Greene received a telegram today from James Greene saying everything had quieted down.
Norfolk, Va., July 11.—There is excitement at Deep Creek, Norfolk county, and before it subsides there may be trouble between whites and the blacks. On Thursday afternoon a well-known young lady of the village was walking down the road when she met three colored girls. One of them pushed the lady aside, and when spoken to, the colored girl grabbed a large hat pin from the lady's hat and stabbed her several times in the face, making very painful wounds. Mr. James Green, the telegraph operator at Tucker's Crossing, came up about this time, and gave the negro girl a severe beating.
The affair soon got noised about and a large crowd of negroes gathered, making threats against Mr. Green, even talking of lynching him, but there was no backdown in that young man. He secured a pistol and went into the crowd, which numbered a hundred or more, and told them to come on. His coolness had the effect of quieting the mob, and nothing was done by it. The white people are now aroused, and Winchesters and other fire-arms are loaded.
