THE LEGISLATURE.

Condensed Report of Proceedings.

TWENTY-THIRD DAY.

SENATE.

The senate met at 4 o'clock.
Grant, presented a petition of citizens of Wayne county against the dispensary.

The following bills were introduced:
Walker, for benefit of public schools in the State. It provides that all voters shall show tax receipts before they can vote, and by this means increase the school funds.

Walker, bill for benefit of aged and feeble voters.

Hardison, prohibiting sale or manufacture of liquor and sale of cigarettes in the state.

Odom, to elect cotton weighers in Anson by the people.

Hardison, to regulate hours of labor in factories.

Rollins, to regulate the sale of concealed weapons, by requiring license.

Moye, to define public schools and to increase their terms.

Hardison, to carry into effect the educational provisions of the constitution by providing that the commissioners of each county shall levy sufficient tax on property and polls to maintain the public schools in each district four months.

The bill to prohibit the county commissioners of Bladen county from collecting the extra tax voted for in Holy township was tabled.

HOUSE.

The house met at 3:30 o'clock.
The following bills and resolutions were introduced:

Cox, to allow defendants in actions to plead the statute of limitation; to make it the duty of superior court clerks, upon petition of 200 free holders that the county commissioners are improperly managing county affairs, to appoint two others.

Ensley, to promote marriage in the state, declaring all unmarried men aged 24 bachelors, who shall be taxed $10 for the first year of bachelorhood and the tax be doubled each succeeding year, the tax to go to the school fund.

Cox, to give the governor and not the legislature the appointment of state librarian; to impose fine on defeated candidates for office who fail to file statement of election expenses; to fine cotton weighers $5 who make errors in weighing cotton.

Ensley, to give justices of the peace jurisdiction in cases where persons are charged with carrying concealed weapons.

Roberts, to require license for sale of any concealed weapon.

Abernathy, to appropriate $100,000 from public funds for common schools, to be divided pro rata among counties so as to equalize the school terms of the respective counties.

Currie, to make the salary of the state librarian $800 yearly.

Young, to establish a school for the training of colored teachers.

Currie, requiring county examiners to indorse school certificates of teachers who have passed in other counties.

Hare, to amend the divorce law that either husband or wife can remarry during the other's life time.

Crews, a resolution instructing senators and representatives in congress to secure the repeal of the civil service law, declaring the latter unnecessary and contrary to the spirit of our institutions.

Sutton, to publish 1,000 copies of the sketches of North Carolina regiments, by Clark and Avery.

Lusk, to give all notaries public, justices of the peace or clerks of the superior and inferior courts power to take acknowledgements of deeds and take privy examination of married women.

Alexander, to make it a misdemeanor for intoxicated persons or others to interrupt school entertainments or political meetings.

Price, to establish a dispensary at Waxhaw.

Lusk, regulate division fences by declaring it a misdemeanor to erect any fence for the purpose of annoying owners' or occupants of adjoining property; to validate sales of real estate made by heir to bona fide purchasers from death of testator.

Alexander, to repeal section 5 of the county government law and construe the law to mean that a majority of any of the present board of county commissioners shall have full power to act on all matters coming before these boards without concurrence of one member who has been appointed by the resident or presiding judge.

The bill passed to allow the commissioners of Edgecombe county to levy a special tax and issue $16,000 in bonds to pay county debt incurred in putting draw spans in bridges across Tar river and building steel bridge at Tarboro.

Young's bill for a colored normal training school provides for a $5,000 annual appropriation after the building shall have been contributed by any city or town which desires to be the location of the school.

WORK OF COMMISSIONERS.

Routine Business Transacted—Stock Law Election—School Money Apportioned.

At the February meeting of the Board of County Commissioners orders amounting to $78.00 were issued for paupers, and $1,097.53 was paid out for general county purposes.

Upon petition an election was ordered in a portion of Swift Creek township not included in the stock law territory of that township to decide whether the new territory shall be included in the stock law.

Lands of G. W. Venters, in Chicod township, were reduced in valuation from $2,250 to $1,905, on account of timbers thereon having been sold.

Jesse Haddock, of Chicod township, was released from payment of taxes on 60 acres valued at $350 and was required to list taxes for 1894 on land valued at $400.

Lands of John F. Parker, Falkland township, were reduced in valuation from $1,000 to $700.

John Moore, J. L. Moore, Isaac Randolph, Geo. Mayo and W. J. Tyson were released from poll tax for 1896.

Mary E. James, Winfield Whitehurst, Nancy L. Brown, R. H. Garris, Jesse Haddock, John H. Smith and R. L. Warren listed taxes for 1896.

S. S. Raspberry was elected Standard Keeper.

J. C. Savage & Co. were granted liquor licenses for six months.

M. Patz was granted peddlers licenses for one year.

Henry Harris was dropped from the pauper list and Lucy Parker and John Wilson were added.

The chairman was authorized to make arrangements for working prisoners now in jail on the public roads.

The Board also made the apportionment of the public school money to the several school districts of the county. The aggregate amount was $18,500, the largest ever made in the county. The apportionment was made on the following basis: To each district containing 80 or less children of school age, $105, and in all districts containing more than that number the amount was increased $1.30 per head for each child in excess of 80.

Bluffed the Conductor.

They were two comedians and they were stuck in Wilkesbarre, with Scranton ever so many miles away.

"Well, what are we going to do now?" said one.

"Best if I know," said his companion. "But I do know that the walking is awful bad, and jumping coal trains no sort of work for two eminent comedians."

"Count the house," said Hanley.

They emptied their pockets, and found that by squeezing a cent or two they could buy one ticket to Scranton, they then conceived a plan for traveling at the rate of two on a ticket.

"There's only one ticket here," said the conductor gruffly.

"That's mine," said one of them.

"That's mine," said his companion, with equal emphasis.

"See here," said the conductor, "you can't both of you ride on one ticket. I'll have to put one of you off."

"Make it me—that's easy money," cried both comedians in a chorus. "Put me off if you dare."

"Well, you've got to get off at the next station," said the conductor vigorously—"one of you, at least."

The next station passed, and the next, but no conductor appeared to trouble the two men with but a single ticket. When Scranton was reached the couple sought out the conductor and told him if he would accompany them to the hotel they would make good the missing fare.

"That's all right," he said. "You got one on me that time. You see, we are under orders whenever there is a possibility of a suit to take the safe side."—New York World.

Prosperous Georgia Farmers.

The Irwinton (Ga.) Bulletin contains an editorial on the evidences of present prosperity among the farmers. The Bulletin says: "While everybody has been crying of hard times for the past few years, yet the people are really enjoying better times than they have ever been."

The Albany Herald quotes a farmer from Warwick, Ga., as saying: "I don't know a white farmer within ten miles of Warwick who will have to purchase any meat this year. We have been having regular hogkilling times ever since before Christmas. Plenty of farmers up my way have killed their fifty and sixty hogs, and some of them as high as one hundred and fifty. We have plenty of meat. I have 2,000 pounds to sell now, but the trouble is it will not bring anything. This country is getting on a good footing indeed when the farmers have plenty of hog and hominy. It means less debt and greater clear profit for the farmers."

North Carolina Oysters.

ANNAPOLIS, MD., January 29.—The northwest wind today drove the ice to the eastward and in consequence of the movement a channel was opened in the harbor which permitted several oyster vessels to enter. Two boats loaded with North Carolina oysters stopped, one of which discharged its cargo at 40 cents a bushel. The other proceeded to Baltimore in tow. It is the first time this season a North Carolina boat has stopped at Annapolis, and the dissimilarity of the North Carolina oyster with those caught in Maryland waters was remarked. They are quite salty and could be used to advantage, it is thought, if planted in our waters, being very prolific. A packer purchased 1,300 bushels. The experiment of planting North Carolina oysters in Maryland will be tried.—Baltimore Sun, 30th.

Paper Artillery to be Used by the Germans in Their Next War.

To add to the number of astonishing things that are made of paper, Krupp, the great German manufacturer of cannons, has lately completed a number of paper field-pieces for the use of the German infantry. Their calibre is five centimetres, or a little less than two inches, and the pieces are so light that a soldier can easily carry one. But the resistance is greater than that of a field-piece of steel of the same calibre. It is not expected that these paper guns will replace those of steel. They are intended for use in situations where the movement of field artillery would be impracticable. Paper artillery on the field of battle seems a most extraordinary thing, but it is hardly more so than paper wheels for carriages on railways appeared when they were first introduced; or, for that matter, than paper water pails were.

Author of Love Tales.

DUBLIN, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Hungerford, the novelist, is dead. Mrs. Hungerford's literary nom de plume, "The Duchess," first became widely known to the readers of light literature through her novels, "Molly Bawn" and "Phyllis." Pretty tales of the joys and trials of lovers, told in a light, chatty way, found favor on two continents, and for many years the novels of "The Duchess" have sold in many editions.—Raleigh Press-Visitor.

This Is Interesting.

Mr. J. P. Williams, of Union county, was shot in the wrist by his young brother in 1860. For some time he has had a peculiar feeling in his wrist, and not long since he detected two dark spots under the skin. Yesterday he showed his arm to Dr. Wilder. He said the spots were two shots, and proved it a few minutes after by cutting them out. They had worked their way entirely through the wrist.—Charlotte Observer.

False Earthquake Predictions.

Predictions of a sensational character in regard to the weather may do little harm. The self-constituted prophet outside the regular meteorological bureau is, however, always a fraud. But the man who foresees an earthquake may do a great deal of mischief. The bulletin of the American Geographical society prints this:

Professor Falb of Vienna inflicted grievous injury upon Athens in 1894 by predicting that the city would suffer severely from the earthquake on May 5. Nearly every one who could do so fled from the city, and there was indeed great suffering, caused, however, entirely by Falb, for there was no earthquake. Globus (volume 70, No. 1) says that another of his mischievous prophecies threw Valparaiso, Chile, into a sad state of terror in March, 1896. He predicted one of his "critical days" for March 29, and for several days preceding all the trains were crowded with fugitives bound for the mountains. The number of fugitives was about 7,000. There was no earthquake nor trouble of any sort except that caused by this irresponsible prophet.

CHARGING THE HOSTILES.

A Brave Little Fellow Rides Through a Band of Indians.

In St. Nicholas, Gertrude P. Greble has a story of frontier life called "Danny and the Major." Danny was the 7-year-old son of an army captain, and the Major was a favorite horse. One day he was riding him, in company with his friend, a Scotch corporal, when the horses of the post were stampeded, and the corporal was thrown and injured. Danny started to ride for assistance, and this was his experience:

Away to the north a cloud of dust marked the recent passage of the herd. On every other side swept the tableland, empty and placid and smiling. And beyond, to the south, stood the fort and home. Danny took heart, settled himself in the saddle and put the Major into a smart canter, holding the reins firmly and trying to recall the corporal's instructions while he rode, thinking with an ever recurring pang of his friend's condition, happy that the distance to the necessary succor was diminishing so rapidly and totally forgetful of the anxiety which had agitated the veteran before the accident that had separated them.

Suddenly, at the end of some 15 minutes of tranquil riding, as the Major galloped along the edge of the timber which fringed the bluff, there was a loud crackling and crashing in the bushes, and a gayly decorated war pony scrambled through them, his rider grunting in surly surprise, while at the same moment, from the thicket beyond, three other half naked mounted figures appeared and lined up in the path which led to safety.

The child's heart stopped beating. His frontier training told him that all that had gone before, even the tragedy which had darkened the afternoon, was as nothing compared with this new and awful danger. In a paroxysm of terror he tried to stop Major—tried with all his small strength to turn him aside toward the open plain, to check his mad plunge into the very arms of the enemy. But for the first time the horse paid attention neither to the beloved voice nor to the tiny hands pulling so desperately upon the reins.

Whether it was the sight of an old and hated foe, or whether the wise, kind heart of the animal realized the full extent of a peril of which the child was as yet only half aware, it would be hard to say. But little Dan found himself going faster than he had thought possible—and faster—and faster—till the tawny, sun-burned plain, and the pitiless, smiling sky, and the nearer, greener foliage of the willows and even the outlines of the dreaded savages themselves became as so many parts of a great rushing, whirling whole, and all his strength was absorbed in the effort to retain his seat upon the bounding horse.

And so, like some vision from their own weird legends, straight down upon the astonished Indians swept the great bronze beast with its golden haired burden. Down upon them and through them and away till by the time they had recovered from their amazement there was a good 50 yards between them and their flying prey. And that distance, hard as they might ride, was not easily to be overcome.

After that first wild rush the Major settled into a steadier pace—a smooth, even run, so easy to sit that the lad relaxed his clutch upon the animal's mane and turned his eyes to the horizon, where gathering swarms of savages showed like clusters of ants against the slope of the hillside. In his track, with shrill, singing cries, like hounds upon a trail, came his pursuers. And far to the south there was a puff of white smoke from the walls of the fort, and a moment later the first heavy, echoing boom of the alarm gun thundered across the plains.

The number of trees growing in the public highways of the city of London is found to be 14,700. These are on the public highways alone and not in the parks.

"If only one magazine can be taken, we would suggest the REVIEW OF REVIEWS, as covering more ground than any other magazine."—Board of Library Commissioners of New Hampshire, 1896.

THIS magazine is, in its contributed and departmental features, what its readers, who include the most noted names of the English-speaking world, are pleased to call "absolutely up to date," "thoroughly abreast of the times," "invaluable," and "indispensable." It is profusely illustrated with timely portraits, views, and cartoons. Its original articles are of immediate interest, by the best authorities on their respective subjects. The Editor's "Progress of the World" gives a clear, rightly proportioned view of the history of the human race during the current month. The "Leading Articles of the Month" present the important parts of the best magazine articles that have been written in every part of the world. The newest and most important books are carefully reviewed. Indexes, chronological records, and other departments complete the certainty that the reader of the Review of Reviews will miss nothing of great significance that is said or written or done throughout the world.

The Kinston Free Press has advanced its subscription price from $1 to $1 25 a year. It is well worth the latter figure.

Found Dead.

David Hilliard, of Weldon, was found dead in a room of the Mansion House at Norfolk, a few mornings ago. He was a son of the late ex-Judge Hilliard, and a few years ago lived near Falkland, in this county.

Run Against a Tree.

While the Academy boys were at play during the noon recess today, Alf. Forbes, one of the pupils, accidentally run at full speed against a tree. The collision stunned him for a while and one side of his face was considerably bruised.

Credit To Whom it is Due.

In making up proceedings of the Legislature as they appear in the REFLECTOR we have been condensing reports as found in the Raleigh News and Observer, Charlotte Observer and Wilmington Messenger, but for a week past we have depended almost entirely on the reports in the Messenger. These papers having to pay big prices for their service credit is deemed due them for the use we make of their reports.
