THE LEGISLATURE.

Condensed Report of Proceedings.

FIFTIETH DAY.

SENATE.

The senate met at 11 o'clock. Bills passed as follows:

- To incorporate the Bladen and Columbus Railway and Lumber Company.
- To incorporate the Duplin and Wayne Railway and Lumber Company.
- To create the state board of equalization.

The special order was taken up, bringing the bill to revise and consolidate the charter of Wilson.

This bill was reported unfavorably by the committee on corporations. A minority report was filed, recommending its passage.

HOUSE.

The House met at 10 o'clock. There was the greatest legislative sensation here today ever known in North Carolina. It occurred in the house of representatives. At 11:58 o'clock Sutton, of Cumberland, member of the committee to investigate the lease of the North Carolina railway, to which the senate substitute bill was referred, arose. Cook, who is chairman of that special committee, was in the chair. Lusk presiding during the earlier part of the session, and Speaker Hileman, who was so hoarse that he spoke with difficulty, sat on the left of Cook. Sutton asked consent to call up the resolution asking the supreme court to give tomorrow its opinion in the matter of the substitute for the lease bill. His purpose was to gain time.

Blackburn sprang to his feet and as the hands of the clock pointed to noon declared that the hour set for the special order—the senate substitute lease bill—had arrived and that it must be taken up.

Both he and Sutton kept on their feet. Demands were poured at the speaker to recognize one or the other. Conspicuous among those who cried out were Sutton of Cumberland, Hancock and Alexander, Sutton, of Cumberland, said he wanted the special order held up until the resolution was acted on. He wanted delay.

Then the storm burst. Blackburn said: "You know that under the resolution adopted by this house no resolution can be introduced save by unanimous consent. You know that the journal shows that the resolution was not introduced. I move that the house concur in the senate substitute."

Then confusion broke loose. Twenty members were on the floor at once all shouting, all protesting, some one way, some another. The two factions arrayed themselves. For two or three minutes the uproar continued.

Person, of Wayne, moved that the house take a recess until 3 o'clock.

There was a roar of protests: "Vote it down, vote it down," and amid the din, the voices of Alexander, the two

For the Reflector.

ONCE UPON A TIME.

BY ECHO.

Sue and I one day were strolling
Where the bluebells loved to grow,
Swinging out their bell shaped censers,
Tossing sweetness to and fro.

All those reddish, purple beauties
Have their births in woodland wilds,
Clinging to some twig, or bramble
Like a frightened, timid child.

Yards and yards of green, gray mosses,
O'er the nearest holly stray'd
Berry laden were the branches
Swaying as the mosses swayed.

Not far off an aged beech tree
With a lightning batter'd crown
Through the leaves and parted branches
Sifted ripening beech nuts down.

For the busy bright eyed squirrels
In his bosom made their nests—
So he gave both food and shelter
To his little chattering guests.

All adown the steepest bluff side,
Tufted cedars all a row,
Each one like an Alpine cottage
In midwinter thatched with snow.

Through the pine trees slender fingers,
Winds came moaning sweet refrains
Never yet, has written music
Caught those mystic minor strains.

Gorgeous clouds were busy weaving
Wrappings for the aged sun—
He was going o'er the "Rockies"
And would need them ev'ry one.

O! the place was full of beauty,
Pictures, pictures every where,
While the river murm'ring near us
Seem'd intoning grateful pray'r

All those scenes have long since perished,
Not a trace is left, dear Sue,
And the feet of iron horses
Trample where the bluebells grew.

Still there's beauty elsewhere, elsewhere
Flooded with the sunshine bright
But, you know a world of beauty
Would be nothing without light.

Presbyterian Meeting.

On next Sunday Dr. William Black, Evangelist, will begin a series of meetings in the Presbyterian church to continue ten days or longer. Preparatory services will commence Wednesday night, at which time Rev. N. M. Watson, of the Methodist church will preach. Drs. C. M. Payne, of Washington and J. B. Morton, of Tarboro, are both expected to arrive Thursday and will continue the services the remainder of this week. A cordial invitation is extended to the ministers, christians and citizens of the community to attend all services. Let all pray earnestly for a great outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the meeting.

Don't Miss It.

The boys are making good use of the time before the Sandwich Spread studying the noses of the girls. The spread takes place tomorrow night in Germania Hall. The one who makes the largest number of correct guesses at the noses will be awarded a prize.

On Sunday the choir of the Baptist church was assisted by Mrs. T. E. Hooker, who sang a beautiful solo at each service. She possesses a rich, sweet voice and sings delightfully.

MONDAY, MARCH 8, 1897.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Suttons and Hancock could be heard surrounding the motion. The aisles filled. Cook put the motion. There was a burst of "Aye," drowned by a sweeping rush of "No," which rattled to the dome and descended in a torrent of sound.

"Division," shouted Blackburn, Murphy and forty more; but Cook declared the house had taken a recess until 3 o'clock.

Blackburn strode up the aisle. "That is false," he cried. "I appeal from the decision of the chair."

The scene at this moment was indescribable. Cook left the chair as the gavel fell. He stepped to the rear lobby. The uproar raged. Pandemonium broke loose. Members rushed to the front. Some put on their hats and moved towards the door. Some of the more timorous hurried to the lobby. The atmosphere was filled with execrations mainly of Cook and his ruling. "It is tyrannical," "It is unjust," "We will not submit to it," "He had the right to declare the house adjourned," shouted Cook's friends. Factions faced each other prepared for battle. One blow would have caused instant riot. Some men shouted "For God's sake stop this. It is the most disgraceful scene the house ever witnessed. Never talk about the legislature of 1868 again."

During the turmoil Speaker Hileman sat serene in his chair at the speaker's desk.

Suddenly Murphy shouted: "The house is without a speaker. I move we elect Freeman speaker pro tem."

"I second the motion," said Blackburn and a score of others and Murphy put the motion. There was a volley of "ayes" and then, taking Freeman by the arm Murphy led him to the speaker's desk. Freeman did not take the chair, but stood at the end of the desk.

The assemblage was now a mob. The galleries fairly bulged with wild, excited spectators. The uproar reached the senate, and senators poured into the hall of the house.

Suddenly Lusk rushed to the front and leaning over the desk at which the correspondents of newspapers were seated, raised his arms high above his head and in his loudest voice shouted as he looked at Freeman at the speaker's desk: "I protest. In the name of North Carolina I protest. This is treason. This is revolution. We ought to send for a force to clear this hall and to stop these riotous and revolutionary proceedings. Be ashamed of yourselves. Be men." All this was said with a rising voice to the accompaniment of yells and cries which stunned the ear.

Alexander, rushing up even nearer the desk, shook his fist at Freeman. His eyes flashed with anger: "Come down from that place," he cried. "You are a usurper. You are a traitor."

The faction, all party lines broken, roared and glared at each other. Angry words passed and repassed.

Suddenly H. A. Gudger appeared while Freeman was speaking and stood beside him. Freeman was entreating the house to be quiet, to listen to him. "I am not going to hurt you," he cried.

Gudger leaned over the desk and said: "Now boys lets all leave."

Freeman said: "Don't get excited. This is a small matter. The journal shows we have taken a recess until 3 o'clock."

Claud Dockery walked near the clerk's desk and said: "Gentlemen hear me. We will settle this matter at this session of the legislature and fairly, but I protest against this revolutionary business."

Freeman stepped down at 12.12 o'clock. The whole affair had occupied but nine minutes, but minutes seemed hours.

There were cries, "Freeman ought to be impeached." There were others, "Cook must be impeached. He is not our speaker. He will not act fairly."

There were loud curses of Cook, who by this time had left the hall, for his ignoring the demand for a division on the vote to adjourn. Cook's partisans declared he had a perfect right to declare the house adjourned.

Blackburn sprang on the desk and shouted: "Give us fair play. We won't be gagged."

The anti-Cook men declared he knew the substitute supporters were in the majority and had won the fight.

Speaker Hileman, as matters quieted, walked around to the reporter's desk and spoke of his hoarseness. He was very calm.

By 12:25 o'clock barely a dozen members were in the hall. The lately gorged galleries were empty. The quiet after the storm was almost startling. Out from the capitol the people poured. Groups of excited talkers were seen everywhere. Anti-Cook men said: "His conduct made us ten votes."

Governor Russell was in his office beneath the hall. At the first roar above his head he thought the building was falling. Then he ran out and up stairs; nor did he stop until he reached the head of the stairway on the second floor. There he met the advance guard of the people rushing out of the hall and found what the trouble really was.

Bill passed to incorporate the Tar River railway.

To place all fire insurance companies under the jurisdiction of the secretary of state and give him power to inquire into rates, and provides that rates on farm buildings shall not be higher than in Virginia.

To appropriate $5,000 additional for the colored agricultural and mechanical college; (passed as a substitute for the bill to pay the college $16,020 as its proportionate share of the United States land scrip fund.)

The omnibus liquor bill passed its final reading.

A committee was appointed to confer with a senate committee on educational bill.

Expensive Gratitude.

In one of the Western States an exciting murder trial was in progress. It happened that the attorney for the defense had in his employ a colored porter, who naturally became very much interested in the case.

When the jury retired he awaited their return with feverish impatience. At last, after several hours, they came in with a verdict of "not guilty." At the announcement the negro's self control deserted him entirely, and he cried out; "Thank de lord."

The judge immediately called him up and fined him ten dollars for contempt of court. The poor fellow was nearly scared to death, but after he recovered from his fright he remarked: "Dis heah am a funny country when you hab to pay ten dollars for thank-in' de Lord."

Shakespeare Improved Upon.
 This is said to be the way "Richard III" was played in Lancashire: "My lord, we'en cotched 'im." Richard—Cotch'd whoa? "Why, Bookinem." Richard—Noa, you dunnot say so? "Aye, but I du." Richard (assured)—Well, fetch 'im afore me, and I'll chop 'is chump off.—Pearson's Weekly

Baptists, See Here!

The Southern Baptist Convention meets this year in Wilmington, N. C., May 8th. Now, you want to go to this convention, and you also want to go in style and comfort. There is only one good firstclass line from the South and Southwest to Wilmington, and that line is the Seaboard Air Line, which runs the finest and fastest trains in the South and makes the lowest rates of any railroad running from the South or Southwest. Don't be fooled into making your arrangements until you have consulted one of the Seaboard Air Line agents, who always esteem it a pleasure to serve you. B. A. Newland, General Agent Passenger Department, 6 Kimball House, Atlanta, Ga., will be glad to write you or call on you, or you can apply to any of the representatives of the Seaboard Air Line in any town or city. This is the official route. Do you want to go with your friends?

PERSONAL POINTS.

People You Know, or May Know.

W. M. Lang, of Farmville, was here today.

Mrs. L. C. King, of Norfolk, arrived Saturday evening.

H. Walter Whichard, of Whichard, was here this afternoon.

W. B. James left this morning on a business trip to New York.

Postmaster J. A. Harrington, of Ayden, spent today in town.

J. S. Tunstall and wife returned Saturday evening from Baltimore.

Mrs. W. R. Smith returned Saturday evening from a visit to Martin county.

Miss Alice Smith returned this morning from a visit to her sister at Ayden.

Frank Wilson left this morning for the northern markets to purchase new goods.

Miss Lizzie Carver, of Raleigh, who has been visiting Mrs. S. M. Schultz, left today.

Rev. A. W. Setzer, who occupied the pulpit in the Baptist church yesterday, returned to Wake Forest today.

Miss Anise Jones, of Kinston, arrived this morning. She will engage in the millinery business here with Mrs. J. S. Tunstall.

Rev. J. W. McNamara came down Saturday evening to fill his appointment at Mt. Pleasant Sunday, and returned to Littleton today.

A. M. Moore, who left Greenville in 1889 for Seattle, Washington, arrived Saturday evening on a visit. During his residence in the northwest he has seen much of people of all nations and classes, and says he has yet to see a people or a section that will compare with eastern North Carolina.

Two Mississippi girls were so infatuated with the same lover that they agreed to decide the claim by a bicycle race. After the race the lover eloped with the loser. Such is life.

Strange things do happen. The Oklahoma legislature has enacted a law to punish a man who marries his mother-in-law, just as if the fact that he married her was not punishment enough.

The Missouri legislature has enacted a law prohibiting any one who is not a citizen of the United States from performing the marriage ceremony. The law applies to clergymen as well as to civil officers.

It is a great deal better to go through the world believing that everybody is good and honest than it is to be constantly suspecting that all your friends and neighbors are thieves, liars and possessed of a bad character generally.

The New York Sun, asked to name the ten American women who will live longest in history, gives this answer: Martha Washington, Rebecca Rolfe (Pocahontas,) Mollie Pitcher, Elizabeth Blackwell, Elizabeth Cade Stanton, Priscilla Alden, Eliza Goose, (Mother Goose,) Maria Mitchell, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Lucretia Mott.

Almost a Fire.

About 6 o'clock Sunday evening V. J. Lee was on his way to supper. Passing along Cotanch street in front of Hotel Macon he happened to look over in the lot just north of the John Flanagan Buggy Co's. factory and saw a light under the edge of the building. Going over to investigate he found some shavings and grass burning under the edge of the factory. Calling some parties to his assistance the fire was extinguished without giving any general alarm. It is believed that some one attempted to burn the factory. Servants about the hotel say they saw a man striking matches over there shortly before the fire was discovered, but could not tell who he was.
