THE PRIZE FIGHTERS.

Corbett Shows no Ill Effects of the Fight—Fitzsimmons Complains of Aching Arms and Sore Joints He Will Retire From the Ring.

San Francisco, Cal, March 18—Corbett arrived in this city on a special train last night. There were very few people at the station when the champion alighted and he at once entered a cab and was driven to his home. This morning he shows no ill-effects of his contest with Fitzsimmons. He is up and around and appears to be in his normal condition. It is said that he has no plans for the future and that he has cancelled all engagements.

Carson, Nev., March 18.—Fitzsimmons retired at midnight last night. He did not sleep well. His muscles twitched and his arms ached. He got up at 7 o'clock this morning and took a rub down. He complained of sore joints, but otherwise never felt better. He dined at the penitentiary today as the guest of the warden.

Fitzsimmons is willing to give in for the sake of his family and will fight no more.

A number of sensational rumors which were telegraphed to the effect that Fitzsimmons was dangerously ill caused a little excitement in the town. When they became current there was a scurrying for the hacks to transport inquirers to Cook's ranch and the jaded livery horses were robbed of an hour's rest by these ignorant vapors. When Fitzsimmons's quarters were reached and the visitor's mission made known the champion and his family expressed their indignation freely at the cruel canards. The fact is that Fitzsimmons at no time after he stepped out of the ring suffered any physical pain beyond that caused by a slight fracture of his right thumb joint which he received the second or third round of the battle. A piece of flesh colored court plaster over his split and swollen upper lip, a heightening of his ordinary ruddy complexion and a white linen band wrapped around his thumb were the only external evidences of the conflict.

Fitzsimmons' reply to Corbett after they had shaken hands in Bob's corner yesterday indicated that the Australian was thinking of retiring.

"You've licked me fair and square," said Jim. "Now I want you to give me another chance."

The champion replied coldly: "I will not fight you again."

"Then I will punch you in the head the first time I meet you on the street," was Corbett's retort.

"If you do," answered Fitzsimmons, with a bitter smile, and in an even tone, "I will kill you."

Mr. Corbett is in bed and is feeling very badly over the result of the fight. He would rather not see anyone just now, as he does not feel able to discuss it. He wishes to say, though, that he was defeated fairly and squarely and has no complaints to make; but he is not hurt, and is willing and anxious to meet Fitzsimmons again.

Open For a Challenge.

Hugh Parham is a sprinter right, and the tobacco boys are thinking of backing him for a race. Hugh was working a fake on the boys this morning. He told them goodbye at the depot and boarded the train. At the crossing he jumped off and made six feet strides for his factory to escape observation. But the boys had eyes on him and applauded his fine run.

The Verdict.

When Mr. F. G. James returned from dinner to his law office today he found a man stretched out upon the floor dead (drunk.) No amount of shaking would arouse the prone figure to activity or consciousness and a number of the lawyer's friends gathering around they decided to "set" on the body. The unanimous verdict was "Knocked out by a blow below the belt at the hands of King Alcohol."

Presbyterian church.—Sunday school 9:30 A. M. Preaching at 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M. by Rev. Wm. Black.

The Meeting.

Last night Dr. Black gave his congregation at the Presbyterian church a discourse on the invitation to the wedding feast, "Come, for all things are now ready." Much interest was manifested both in the regular service and the after meeting.

This morning his text was "I have appointed you a watchman unto the house of Israel." The duties of the watchman for God were very plainly pointed out.

There will be services again tonight at the usual hour.

Projected Railroad.

The last Legislature chartered a company to build a railroad from Greenville or Washington to some point on the Seaboard Air Line near Raleigh, or to connect with the Norfolk & Western road at Durham, the projected line to run via Snow Hill and Wilson. The purpose of the company is to open up this territory to the Norfolk & Western road, giving a competing line to the west independent of the Atlantic Coast Line. If the enterprise succeeds it is probable they will connect at Snow Hill with another line running to Goldsboro. The road in contemplation will open up a large territory that is now untouched by any railroad and that is greatly in need of such transportation facilities. Having such a road touch Greenville will be of vast importance to the business of the town. Several of our best citizens are interested in the enterprise and we understand that the company will organize in a few days.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 19, 1897.

There have been several times during the present week when an open rupture between McKinley and some of the biggest men in his party seemed inevitable, but by sacrificing some of his personal friends Mr. McKinley has so far avoided it. The bone of contention are the big offices. It is the fierce fight over each of them that accounts for the small number of nominations sent to the Senate. Slates are no sooner made up than some objectors gets backing enough to smash them. A number of men who had Mr. McKinley's positive promise that they would get certain positions, have had to give way to the objectors, among them being ex-Gov. Merriam, of Minnesota, and ex-Congressman Storer, of Ohio. It was not intended to make any but necessary appointments until after the tariff bill got through Congress, but it will require some very adroit maneuvering to do even that much without starting a bitter factional fight in the republican party. There is a fight in the Congressional delegation of nearly every state, especially bitter in those having republican Senators, over the men who shall get the offices which are to go to those states. Still, there are columns of rot being printed about the existing harmony between the administration and Congress.

The honest patent lawyers of Washington are after the fake concerns who have been bringing discredit upon their profession in dead earnest now. They have employed Mr. William Small, Attorney at-law, McGill Building, Washington, D. C., to undertake the duty of suppressing and prosecuting swindling concerns, and he invites correspondence from inventors, newspaper publishers and others who have been deceived and defrauded by and through false and fraudulent representations, specious devices, including offers and awards of prizes, medals of honor, certificates of stock, etc., of alleged procurers and sellers of patents. Those who have had unsatisfactory dealings with these fake patent concerns should accept the invitation and write to Mr. Small.

Using a bill introduced in Congress, which has no chance to pass, as a basis to swindle the ignorant is by no means a new dodge, but, according to the correspondence of many southerners in Congress is now being successfully worked among the ignorant negroes of the southern states by unscrupulous men. During the first session of the last Congress, Senator Thurston, of Nebraska, introduced by request a bill providing for the payment of a pension to all negroes who had been slaves. It was well known in Washington that the bill would never be seriously considered in committee, to say nothing of being passed by either House or Senate, but that bill is being made the basis of a swindle upon the poor negroes, who are being told that upon the payment of 25 cents for filling out an official looking blank with their name, age, residence, etc., they will be entitled to a pension when the bill becomes a law. The worst part of this dirty swindle is that the men operating it cannot be prosecuted, as it is printed upon each blank that "it is to secure the names and number of persons in each state entitled to pension under the Thurston pension bill," and the fee is charged for filling the blank.

The nomination of Henry White to be Secretary of Embassy at London, was almost as unpalatable to republicans as the Van Alen nomination to Italy was to democrats when it was made by Mr. Cleveland about four years ago. Some of them are inclined to be sarcastic about it. For instance, the man who said: "Who says White isn't an American! He has lived abroad for many years, but didn't he come over from Europe last year, live at Newport just long enough to cast his first vote and then go back. White is all right. His help is needed to make John Hay popular in London's swell society."

The tariff monstrosity known as the Dingley bill is in many respects worse than the McKinley bill, but it is going to be crammed down the throats of the democrats of the House with less than two weeks debate. There are also quite a number of republicans in the House who are opposed to this bill, and a few of them have threatened privately to vote against it, but there will not be enough of them to affect the result. The democratic opinion of the bill was voiced when Representative Berry, of Kentucky, said: "It is an excessively high protective tariff measure. It will, if passed, inevitably raise the price of the necessities of life, such as sugar and woolen goods worn by all classes. I don't see how it can fail to add to the burdens of the people instead of lightening them. It will cut off our foreign markets by raising the cost of production and thus curtail the manufacturers sales. As a consequence the mills will need to run only six months, instead of all the year, as they ought to do."

INSATIABLE HATTERAS.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Augustin Forget, the French Line's agent at this port, made the following statement of the disaster to the steamer St. Nazaire, as he had learned it from Captain Berri's disconnected remarks: "The St. Nazaire encountered attempt when forty-eight hours out from New York for Port au Prince. The steamsip had made about 270 miles from this port and was somewhere off Hatteras. Heavy seas swept the steamship continually from Sunday afternoon to midnight. They poured down the hatches and put out the fires in the engine room, rendering the vessel helpless. Captain Jacquenau ordered out the boats, seeing no other hope. Four boats were launched, only to be crushed against the ship. In a momentary lull the other four boats were launched in the lee of the wreck and all on board crowded into them.

"The boat in which Captain Berri got contained thirty-seven persons, all told, including a woman and four children. Captain Berri took command and ordered signal lights carried for the other boats to follow. The four boats parted company, however, almost at once, and Captain Berri never saw trace of the other three after leaving the ship. Everybody worked hard to keep the boat's head to the waves and all suffered most intensely through the first night. Some froze to death and others jumped over board. Of the last days of the terrible experience Captain Berri has only a hazy recollection."

Alphonse Dumois, one of the passengers on the St. Nazaire, was a brother of Hippolyte Dumois, lead of the firm of H. Dumois & Co., fruit dealers of this city. Ramon Jiminez, another of the passengers, was the head of the firm of R. J. Jiminez & Co., contractors and engineers, also of this city. Agent Forget furnished a complete list of the passengers and crew who were in the vessel when she left. There were but eleven passengers in all on the ship, but the crew list numbered seventy-one men. The names of the passengers are as follows: A. Dumois, L. Dumois, San Domingo; Ramon Jiminez, Maya; Puzyna Sarnolle, Port au Prince; Mr.

nd Mrs. Juan de Dois Tijada and four children, San Domingo.

The officers of the vessel were white men. The rest of the crew were colored. Captain Berri was a passenger, although not on the list. He is an officer of the steamship company. The four survivors were picked up by the schooner Hilda on Sunday afternoon about ten miles off Fenwick island. Four dead men were in the boat with the four living. The survivors are all in a fair way to recover their health, although all four were insane when rescued. The vessel left New York March 6th. The wreck occurred March 8th and the survivors were rescued March 14th.

We look at our neighbor's errors with a microscope, and at our own through the wrong end of a telescope. We have two sets of weights and measures—one for home use, and the other for foreign. Every vice has two names, and we call it by the flattering and minimizing one when we commit it, and by the ugly one when our neighbor does it. Everybody can see the hump on his friend's shoulders, but it takes some effort to see our own.—Dr. Watson.

THE GOOD TIMES

Let's sing about the good times—the happy times to be—
As sing the rivers rippling on in music to the sea!
As sing the birds—they know not why—
—when spring time days begin;
So let us sing the sad times out, and sing the glad times in!

Let's sing about the good times, when every cot and cloud
Shall send a benediction to the living kins of God!
When the world a brighter beauty and a rarer grace shall win:
And life shall sing the sad times out, and ring the glad times in!

Let's sing about the good times! They'll greet us on the way—
A rose upon the morning's breast—a sun throughout the day;
When life springs like a blossom from the color of the cloud,
And the world rolls on in music to the shining gates of God!

—FRANK L. STANTON

Weds a Convict Lover.

Although William Gruver is in Clatham county (Ga.) jail under sentence of fifteen years in the penitentiary for filing Henry Voight last October, this did not stop him from getting a girl of his choice as has just come to light. He was married to Miss Sarah Reilly, of Savannah, on January 19th, in the parlors of Sheriff John T. Roman in the jail building by Father Quinlan, of the Cathedral. They have long loved each other and Miss Reilly did not allow the fact of Gruver's trial and conviction to interfere with her purpose of marrying him. She sat by his side during the entire trial and in many ways indicated her love for him. She is a clerk in a ladies' furnishing store, and the store closing on account of Lee's birthday, she went quietly to the jail and was married. The news of the wedding has just come out. Gruver is making strenuous efforts to secure a new trial, and he and his wife believe he will finally be acquitted.

How a Sunday School Scheme Came to Grief.

The Sunday School needed money, and Mr. Smith, the superintendent, had a new way of getting it. He proposed giving each boy half a dollar. At the end of a month the principal, together with what it earned, was to be returned to him. The scheme was good, but it didn't work quite as Mr. Smith had anticipated.

The fourth Sunday found the superintendent ready to admit the profit and loss accounts, and he commenced with Johnnie's class.
"How have you done, Johnnie?"
"My half dollar has earned another one," said Johnnie, with the air of one having an option on a halo.
"Good," said the superintendent; "not only is Johnnie a good boy in helping the school, but he shows business talent. Doubling one's money in a single month requires no common talent. Who can tell but we may have a budding Wanamaker among us? Johnnie, you have done well."
"And now, Thomas, how much has your half dollar earned?"
"Lost it," said Thomas.
"What, not only failed to earn anything, but actually lost?" said Mr. Smith. "How was that?"
"I matched with Johnnie," was the reply, "and he won."—Life.

Political Notes From Blyville.

We don't know what McKinley will do with the silver bill; but if he'll just hurry up the $5 bill we'll try and be satisfied.

We want a foreign appointment quick! We can't afford to fall in a community where rope is so cheap and people so willing.

We are not certain we voted for McKinley, but we are sure we were on the fence and fell over his side when he was elected.

We are not positive whether we named our tenth boy after Bryan or McKinley. He's named Bill, however, and we have always been in favor of the bills we could get.

Theatrical Troubles.

"There is one thing," said the heavy man of the theatrical company, "that'll have to be attended to."
"What is it?" asked the stage manager.
"You remember the scene in which I pledge the princess' health in this crystal goblet of foaming wine?"
"Yes."
"Well, you can do one of three things. You can make that cold tea weaker, put some sugar in it or else get some man who isn't in danger of making a wry face to play the part."—Washington Star

Allowances.

"You should make allowances for your wife. Probably she does not intend to be extravagant. You know how fond of dress women in general are," said the kindly old gentleman to the fuming husband.
"Make allowances!" he gasped.
"That's where all the trouble lies. I have to make hers so big that there is hardly any left for me!"—Chicago News.

A Daring Criminal Kill.

Houston, Tex., March 18.—The most daring attempt at crime ever known here was frustrated this morning at 3 o'clock, when detectives killed Walter Hughes, as he was in the act of entering the house of Frank Dunn, a wealthy resident of this city. The police received information some time ago that a scheme was on foot to kidnap Dunn's little daughter. The purpose of the kidnapers was to keep the girl in captivity and demand $40,000 ransom for restoring her to her parents. The detectives had been on guard at Mr. Dunn's house for several nights, but no developments occurred until this morning, when it was discovered that a man was attempting to force one of the windows of the Dunn residence. One of the officers inadvertently attracted the attention of the marauder, who, finding he was discovered, drew a revolver and fired twice at the detective. The detectives then opened fire and the intruder fell dead. Hughes was a railroad man, but has lately been working as a carpenter. He had rented a house near Mr. Dunn's, and under the floor of one of the rooms had dug a cave, in which the kidnapped child was to be secreted until the ransom was paid. At a point some distance from the city, Hughes had arranged a number of tin boxes, where he intended to direct that the ransom money be deposited. Hughes also intended to give notice that if any watch was kept over these depositories, it would result in the death of the child. When Hughes body was searched a revolver, a keen-edged butcher knife and a bottle of chloroform was found. An immense crowd has gathered in and around the morgue where the body lies. Mrs. Hughes has been arrested, but will not talk.
