Base Ball.

Baltimore, July 2—The Champions took from Washington today the last game they will play on the home grounds until July 27th. In today's game the Orioles managed to wrest victory from defeat in the eighth. Nops pitched well and the Senators' runs were mostly made on errors. The Birds could not hit King until the eventful eighth, when three singles, a pass to first and a hit batsman (Jennings told the story. Double plays and Bowerman's batting were the features. Attendance 1,834. Score. Baltimore, 6; Washington, 4.

Louisville, July 2—The Colonels braced up today and defeated the Reds for the first time this season. Evans pitched a masterly game and his support was almost perfect. Attendance 1,000. Score. Louisville, 4; Cincinnati, 1.

Chicago, July 2—Errors by Padden and Donnelly, a base on balls, Connor's single, Everett's double and Ryan's triple, all after two outs in the fifth, gave the Colts enough runs to win. Two gifts, a steal and a single, also after two out, produced two more in the seventh. Friend had the visitors at his mercy, excepting in one inning. Attendance 1,000. Score. Chicago, 7; Pittsburg, 4.

Cleveland, July 2—Only the batting of Burkitt and the brilliant fielding of Cross and Harley enlivened today's game. The Clevelanders got thirteen runs in and had seventeen men left on bases, with eighteen hits, both Hart, and Coleman, the Browns new pitcher, who replaced him in the sixth, being very wild. The Browns objected to McGinty as umpire and a compromise was made whereby their pitcher, Donohue, officiated with him. Donohue gave very close decisions and some that were not close to Cleveland all through the game, while McGinty was impartial. Attendance 800. Score. Cleveland, 13; St. Louis, 1.

New York, July 2—The game between New York and Boston scheduled for this afternoon was postponed on account of rain. The rain was preceded by an electrical storm, during which the flag pole on the club house at the polo grounds was struck by lightning, "Bill" Clark, first baseman for New York, was sitting by a radiator and was slightly burned on the thigh, while "Ducky" Holmes got a shock in one of his feet.

Philadelphia, July 2—The game with Brooklyn was postponed on account of rain.

Hat for the Chief.

Capt. A. J. Griffin, Chief of the Fire Department, received a package by express Saturday night. Nothing unusual for him to get a package, but this proved to be one that delighted Capt. Jack very much. It contained an elegant fireman's white helmet with the word "Chief" across the front. The hat was sent to our efficient Chief with the compliments of Elliott Bros., of Baltimore. Not only Capt. Griffin but every member of the department appreciates the compliment.

JUST FOR FUN.

Wheeler—"What wheels are selling most just now?" Dealer—"Pinwheels I guess."

Blobbs—"Are you out on your bicycle much?" Slobbs—"About $40 for repairs."

"Everybody plays it on me," complained the piano. "Well, I think I'll take a turn myself," remarked the stool.

Hoax—"What are you doing now?" Joax—"Sharpening knives and scissors." Hoax—"How do you finds?" Joax—"Dull."

Rollingstone Nomoss—"What kind o' music do you like best?" Thirsty Thingumbob—"De kind wid the most bars an' lots of rest."

THIS YEAR'S EARTHQUAKES.

The news comes from India that nearly every building in Calcutta has been injured by the recent earthquake there, and that still greater damage has been done in the villages of the interior.

This is not unexpected; that is, while we did not know of an earthquake in India, and had no special reason to expect one, it was quite certain, from all precedents, that we would sooner or later hear of a serious earthquake somewhere. Seismic disturbance always occur at nearly the same time at widely different points of the earth.

This will go on record as an earthquake year—not that there has been so far any serious loss of life from these disturbances, but they have been exceptionally frequent and widely distributed.

So far in the last few weeks they have occurred in Canada, Mexico, Italy, Japan, in the central part of the United States, and, last of all, in India, and it is believed, generally throughout the East Indies.

News from India is still meagre, and it may prove, when we get the returns from the far away districts, that the disaster has been even greater than at Calcutta, and accompanied by some loss of life.

disturbance of the ground over a space of many miles. The air was filled with sewer gas and sulphurous fumes, the former natural enough when it is considered that the drains were broken, and the sewers clogged and choked by the falling walls and buildings.

Nor is there any reason to believe that the seismic disturbances are yet over, for they generally wind up in some severe shock before the earth rearranges itself. Against such disturbances however, we are reasonably safe, for the United States seldom suffers more than a slight seismic shake, and New Orleans and the country around scarcely feel it.

Value of the Toad Frog—Destroys Great Numbers of Insects.

Saturday morning a party of gentlemen were sitting around trying to keep cool, when the subject of toads came up. One man said they were valuable to have around, when another man laughed at him, contending that they are a pest, but the other declared that they devoured an army of things, which, left alone, were injurious to vegetation.

Running over some current literature, however, we find this. Read it and see who was right:

"It appears that Entomologist Kirkland, of the Massachusetts experiment station, has discovered that the toad is even more valuable than the crow as a destroyer of pests. Mr. Kirkland has given much attention to toads, as much as the Agricultural Department bestowed on crows. And he, too, has published a book. He states that 77 per cent. of the toad's food is insects. He says he found in the stomach of a single toad fifty five army worms, another sixty five gypsy moth caterpillars. He also instances an experiment where in three hours' time a toad had consumed between thirty and thirty five full-grown celery worms. He estimates from what he has observed that in the months of May, June, and July a toad would devour 3,312 ants, 2,208 cut worms, 1,940 myriapods, 2,208 sour bugs, 368 weevils, and 368 carabids. Of these 9,986 are injurious insects, and 368 are beneficial insects, the latter being the carabids. On the basis of gardeners figure one single toad is credited with saving approximately $20 in that time."—Greensboro Record.

To Prevent Chicken Cholera.

The manager of the poultry division of the Experiment Station gives in this month's Agricultural Bulletin, the following recipe for preventing chicken cholera, a disease that plays havoc with the average farm flock at this time of the year:

"The first step to be taken is to clean out the hen houses thoroughly, whitewash every nook and corner, sprinkle lime all over the floor, put kerosene oil on the roost-pole. Burn all nest material, swab out the inside of the nest boxes with kerosene oil, then whitewash them and put in new material of hay, pine straw, or tobacco stems (the latter is best.) When this is done go over all the fowls at night with insect powder, and very soon the health of the flock will be improved. A remedy that the Station has used successfully for the extermination of lice is composed of one-half gallon of tar, one-fourth gallon kerosene oil, and one-fourth gallon waste engine oil, mixed thoroughly and applied to roosts and also to the fowls. Pour into a cup a small quantity of the mixture, dip a cotton rag into it, and by raising back the feathers rub the dampened rag near the skin, so no stain appears on the surface. Spots touched the size of a silver dollar will do the work. Do not use too much. Try it on one or two fowls and place them in a coop for several hours; then examine and see if any live lice are there. If so, use the least bit more on the next treated. Young chicks not feathered should only be touched in two places, viz: on top of head and over vent.

"By ridding the fowls of lice and supplying them with fresh drinking water often, an invasion of cholera need not be feared."

An Appropriate Poem.

A poor collector was found puffing and blowing on Fayetteville street yesterday. He mopped his forehead and quoted the following poem:

"Backward, turn backward, O time in your flight, Give us a snow storm just for to-night. I am weary of weather so hot, The sweat in produces would fill a big pot. Weary of working away for a swag, Weary of collars that wilt like a rag. A snow storm or blizzard would go very nice. Put me on ice! mother, put me on ice."

A Terrible Fight.

A wild night and a terrible scene was that enacted at the home of Alina Simpson on Friday night.

It seems that Miss Simpson, who is a young girl employed at the Clermont knitting mills in this city, arose during the night and wanting a drink of water, went down stairs to get one. In the darkness the girl accidentally stepped upon the house cat, which became enraged and seized the girl by the ankle, sinking its teeth deep into the flesh.

The girl's screams aroused her mother, who came to the rescue, and attempted to pry the cat's mouth open so as to release the girl from the animal's teeth. This proved impossible, and it was only after the mother had secured a stone and beaten the cat's head so that it was killed, that the girl was released.

Dr. R. S. Primrose was sent for and rendered all assistance possible in the girl's cause.

Saturday it was determined that Miss Simpson ought to be sent to the Pasteur institute, New York, for treatment, and a purse was made up here to meet all expenses.

The girl has started for New York city, and her case will receive the most thorough treatment.

The spinal cord of the cat has been secured and will be sent to New York for examination, to see what was the condition of the animal at the time it attacked the girl.—Newbern Journal.

Every gossip needs a mentor, and once in a while the need is supplied.

A young woman well known for the freedom of her tongue remarked with an air of satisfaction:

"I always try to make as many friends as possible." "Of course," said Miss Cayenne; "if one had no friends, how could one discuss their private affairs?"—Washington Star.

A CELLAR FIRE.

A New York Fireman's Graphic Account of a Thrilling Experience.

There is an article on "The Risks of a Fireman's Life" by Charles T. Hill in St. Nicholas. Mr. Hill says: While speaking of cellar fires, let me relate an incident that happened to some companies in the downtown district at a fire of this description. It occurred in Barclay street, in the subcellar of a crockery and glass warehouse, amid the straw used to pack the glassware. It sent forth a dense, stifling smoke and was an ugly fire to fight. I will relate it in the rather characteristic way in which it was told me by a fireman in one of the companies that were summoned to subdue it. The story gives an idea of what the firemen in the business part of a big city may have to face at any time.

"The station came in one night at 11:30. We rolled, and found the fire in Barclay street in a crockery warehouse. Burning straw, jute, excelsior and all that sort of stuff in the subcellar. Smoke! I never saw such smoke since I've been in the business. We went through the building and found the fire hadn't got above the cellar. We tried to get the line down the cellar stairs, but it was no use; no one could live or that stairway for a minute. The chief then divided us up, sent out a second (a second alarm), and we sailed in to drown it out; 27 engine got the rear; 7 engine the stairway, to keep it from coming up, and our company, 29, got the front. We pried open the iron cellar doors on the pavement, only to find that the elevator used to carry freight to the bottom had been run up to the top. Here were four inches of Georgia pine to cut through! And, phew, such work in such smoke!

"Well, we got through this, opened it up and out it came! No flames, just smoke, and with force enough to suffocate a man in a second. We backed out to the gutter and got a little fresh air in our lungs and went at it again. We brought a 35 foot ladder over from the truck and lowered it through this opening and found we couldn't touch bottom! A 45 foot ladder was put down and only three rungs remained above the sidewalk. This showed that there was over 40 feet of cellar and subcellar! And down in this place we had to go with the line.

"Well, the sooner we got at it the sooner it was over. Shifting the line over the top rung of the ladder, so it wouldn't get caught, down we started. It was only 40 feet, but I can tell you it seemed like 340 before we got to the bottom. Of course, when we got there it wasn't so bad; the smoke lifted and gave us a cramer in the cellar shaft where we could work, and we soon drove the fire away to the rear and out, but going down we got a dose of smoke we'll all remember to our last days."

"The company working in the rear fared even worse than the other. They had to descend into a narrow court only 4 feet wide, about 25 feet long (the width of the building) and 40 feet deep, merely a shaft to give light and air to the cellar and subcellar. When the company in the front got to work, they drove the fire to the rear with such violence that this company was compelled to ascend rapidly to the street floor to save their lives.

The Mashonaland Doll.

No doubt the earliest manufactured toy of all was the doll. Little girls play with dolls everywhere, and have always done so. Indeed, among the Bechuanas and Basutos at the present moment married women carry dolls until they are supplanted by real children. There is for its possessor a curious individuality about a doll, altogether unaccountable to other people. How often may it be observed that a child will neglect the splendid new 5 shilling waxen beauty, with its gorgeous finery, and cling faithfully to the disreputable, noseless wreck of rags that has been its favorite hitherto. Something causes other children besides Helen's babies to dislike "bued dollies," even to the preference for an article made of an old towel. This something, whatever it is, is doubtless a great comfort to the small girls of Mashonaland.

It is an innocent, armless sort of affair, without any such disfigurement as waist or shoulders might cause, no knee joints to get unfastened, and nothing at the end of its legs to cause expense at the shoemaker's. As regards dress, it is inexpensive, the whole suit of apparel consisting of a piece of string threaded through a hole humanely bored through the head.—Strand.

A Story of Whewell. Sidney Smith said of the great Dr. Whewell, master of Trinity college, that "science was his forte and omniscience his foible." On one occasion two fellows of the college, thinking to get beyond his range, read up the subject of Chinese metaphysics and then disputed about it in the doctor's presence. He listened in silence for a time, and then observed, "Ah, I see you have been reading a paper which I wrote for an encyclopedia of science."

She Was Limpid. Mrs. Partington has left behind her many disciples. A Chicago theater manager the other day explained to a group of friends how he had scared his wife by impersonating a burglar. "She always has pretended to be game," he said, "but when she caught sight of me she just gave a scream and fell over, perfectly limpid." This ought to be clear enough.—Chicago Times-Herald.
